

BIBLIOTHECA INDICA

A COLLECTION OF ORIENTAL WORKS

THE MAATHIR-UL-UMARA

BEING

BIOGRAPHIES OF THE MUHAMMADAN AND HINDU OFFICERS OF THE TIMURID SOVEREIGNS OF INDIA FROM 1500 TO ABOUT 1780 A.D.

ВY

NAWWĀB SAMSĀM-UD-DAULA SHĀH NAWĀZ KHĀN

AND HIS SON

'ABDUL-HAYY

(SECOND EDITION)

TRANSLATID BY

H BEVERIDGE, BCS. (RETD)

ANI

REVISED, ANNOTATED AND COMPLETED BY BAINI PRASHAD, D Sc, F R A.S B

Work Number
202
Vol I, Fasc VII

Issue Number
1544
New Series

CALCUTTA:

Printed at the Baptist Mission Press
Published by the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal,
1 Park Street

1941

BIBLIOTHECA INDICA

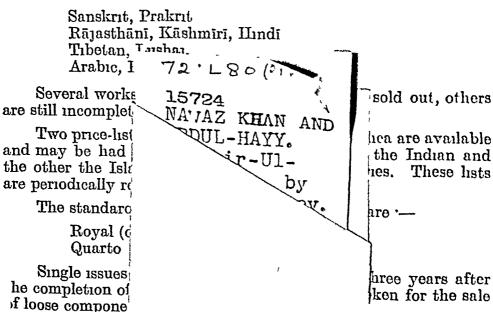

PUBLISHED BY

THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY OF BENGAL

THE Bibliotheca Indica is a collection of works belonging to or treating of Oriental literature, and contains original text editions as well as translations into English, and also bibliographies, dictionaries, grammars, and studies.

The publication was started in 1849, and consists of an Old and a New Series The New Series was begun in 1860, and is still running.

The issues in the series consisted originally of faccicles of 96 or 100 pages print, though occasionally numbers were issued of double, triple or larger bulk, and in a few cases even entire works were published under a single issue number. Of late years the single issues are made as much as possible to constitute complete volumes. Several different works are always simultaneously in progress. Each issue bears a consecutive issue number. The Old Series consists of 265 issues, in the New Series, till January 1st, 1941, inclusive, 1,542 issues have been published. These 1,807 issues represent 263 different works, these works again represent the following literatures—

RAJPUTANA UNIVERSITY TODARV

BIBLIOTHECA INDICA
WORK No 202

 $exttt{MAar{A}} exttt{TH} ext{IR-UL-UMARar{A}}$

(ENGLISH TRANSLATION WITH NOTES AND PREFACE)

THE MAĀTHIR-UL-UMARĀ

BEING

BIOGRAPHIES OF THE MUḤAMMADAN AND HINDU OFFICERS OF THE TIMURID SOVEREIGNS OF INDIA FROM 1500 TO ABOUT 1780 A.D.

 $\mathbf{B}\mathbf{Y}$

NAWWĀB SAMSĀM-UD-DAULA SHĀH NAWĀZ KHĀN

AND HIS SON

'ABDUL HAYY

(SECOND EDITION)

TRANSLATED BY

H BEVERIDGE, BCS (RETD)

REVISED, ANNOTATED AND COMPLETED BY

BAINI PRASHAD, DSc, FRASB

VOLUME I

PRINTED AT THE BAPTIST MISSION PRESS
PUBLISHED BY THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY OF BENGAL

1911-41

Printed by G. E. Bingham, Baptist Mission Press, 41a Lower Circular Road, Calcutta

PREFACE

The late Professor Dowson 1 rightly described the Maathu-ul-Umara as 'the Peerage of the Mughal Empire', and remarked 'It consists of a Biographical Dictionary of the illustrious men who have flourished in Hindustan and the Dakhin under the house of Timur from Akbar to He described it as the work of Shāh Nawāz Khān Samsām-ud-Daula, and referred to its two manuscript editions The first was prepared by the author, and later restored with a few editions by Mir Ghulam Alī Āzād, it consisted of 261 biographies including the life of the author by the editor The second edition was the work of the son of Samsāmu-d daula, named Abdu-l Hai Khān who 'completed the work in its present The biographies in the second edition are 731 2 in number giving an increase of 569 lives not contained in the former edition are very ably written, and are full of important historical detail, and as they include the lives of all the most eminent men who flourished in the times of the Mughal Emperois of the House of Tīmūi down to 1194 A H (1780 A D), the Ma-asuu-l umara must always hold its place as one of the most valuable books of reference for the student of Indian History'

From this brief but very succinct description of the genesis of the Maāthir-ul-Umarā, it is clear that the work was planned and executed by the author whose full name was Mīr 'Abd-ur-Razzāq, Nawwāb Samsām-ud-Daula Shāh Nawāz Khān Khawāfī Aurangābādī during the period of this forced retirement of six years following the defeat of his patron Nāsir Jang in the battle of Buihānpūr on 3rd August, 1741, and till he was reappointed governor of Beiāi in 1747, that he devoted himself to the compilation of the work 3 In the life of the author by Mīi Ghulām 'Alī Āzād the period of his retirement is incorrectly given as five years4 After Samsām-ud-Daula's reinstatement in office. the work was apparently forgotten, but in reply to a remark 5 of his son 'Abdul Hayy he suggested that the latter should complete it Samsām-ud-Daula's arrest on 5th April, 1758, his house was plundered, and the manuscript of Maāthir-ul-Umarā together with all his library It was recovered in an incomplete form a year later, and some twelve years after its composition (i e, in 1759), it was realianged and completed by the author's close friend and associate Mir Ghulam 'Ali Azād⁶, this constituted the so-called first edition ⁷ 'Abdul Hayy, who

¹ Elliot and Dowson, History of India, VIII, pp 187-189 (1877), the account, as the editor noted, is based mainly on Morley, Descr Cat Hist MSS Arabic and Persian Roy As Soc, pp 101-105 (1854)

2 In reference to the number of biographies also see Beveridge's Note 1 on

² In reference to the number of biographies also see Beveridge's Note 1 on p 33 of the translation The biographies by the son 'Abdul Hayy are distinguished by the letter Qāf which is an abbreviation Alhaq or supplement

³ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text III, pp 727, 728

⁴ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, p 19, Beveridge's translation, p 16

⁵ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, p 3, Beveridge's translation, p 2

⁶ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, p 11, Beveridge's translation, p 10

⁷ For descriptions of the two editions, see in addition to Morley and Dowson cited already, Rieu, Cat Persian MSS British Museum, I, pp 339-341 (1879), and Ivanow, W, Descr Cat Persian MSS As Soc Bengal, pp 69, 70, Nos 213, 214 (1994) 214 (1924)

PREFACE

had fortunately escaped death, and who later received his father's title and a high rank, started the preparation of additional biographies in 1182 A H (1768-69 A D), and completed the second edition in 1194 A H (1780 A D) 1 it was this edition which formed the basis of the three volumes of the Text-edition published by the Asiatic Society of Bengal duiing 1887-96 (for details vide infra) On the title pages of the three parts of the English translation of the work published up to 1914, Mr H Beveridge gives 'Nawāb Samsāmu-d-daula Shāh Nawāz Khān and his son 'Abdul Haqq' as the names of the authors This mistake is repeated by Beni Prasad 2 in his short but valuable notice of the work and by There is no reference to any son of the name of 'Abdul Haggin the autobiographical accounts of Samsām-ud-Daula in the Maāthir, noi is any such person mentioned as the joint author of work in the fairly detailed biographies and descriptions of Maāthi by Ghulām 'Alī Āzād and 'Abdul Hayy The mistake is apparently due to Beveridge reading the name 'Abdul Hayy as 'Abdul Haqq A sımılar mıstake in reference to the authorship of the work was made by Stewart,4 who stated 'This book was compiled by Abd al Hy Ben Abd al Rezāk Shāh Nūāz Khān, and finished by his son Sumsam al Dowla, A D 1779'

The publication of the Text-edition by the Asiatic Society of Bengal was started under the editorship of Maulyi Abdur Rahim in 1887 and the work was completed by Maulvi Mirza Ashraf Ali in three volumes in Details of the dates of publication, etc., of the various parts are as follows —

I-Fascicles 1-1x (1887-88), edited by M Abdui Rahim Vol Fascicles x, xi, Index (1894), by M Ashraf Ali

II-Fascicles 1-1x (1888-89), edited by M Abdui Rahim Vol Fascicles x-xii, Index and List of Contents of Vols II. III (1896), by M. Ashraf Alı

Vol III—Fascicles 1-x1 (1890-95), by M Ashraf Alı

In July, 1906, Mr H Beveridge—to whom and his talented wife Mrs Annette Susanna Beveridge the students of Indian History will always remain indebted for their masterly translations of Albainama, Tūzuk-1-Jahāngīrī, Humāyūn-Nāma of Gulbadan Bēgam and the Bābur-Nāma—offered to prepare for the Asiatic Society of Bengal for publication in the Bibliotheca Indica series an English translation of the Maāthir-ul-The Council of the Society in its meeting of November, 1908, agreed to its publication, and 600 pages of the work comprising Fascicles 1-2, 3-4, and 5-6, of 200 pages each, were issued in 1911, 1913 and 1914 In the translation the author followed the alphabetical arrangement for the biographies, but naturally the sequence of the various notices is quite different from that in the three volumes of the Text-edition part consists of the introduction—including the remarks in reference to the two editions and the life of the author—and 219 biographies which

¹ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 3-5, Beveridge's translation, pp 3-5
2 Beni Prasad, History of Jahangir, pp 450, 451 (1931)
3 Arberry, Cat Library India Office, Persian Books, II, Pt 6, p 273 (1937)
4 Stewart, Descr Cat Oriental Libr of Tipoo Sultan, p 19 (1809) and in the descriptive account of the authorities prefacing his History of Bengal (1813), the mistake was pointed out by Prof Dowson, on cet. p 189 mistake was pointed out by Prof Dowson, op cit, p 189 were dealt with under the letters A to a part of H. Unfortunately, the arrangement is rather faulty and a number of biographies, which should have been dealt with under these letters, have been left out. The arrangement in regard to the various biographies is somewhat arbitrary, and as the author did not give the volume or page numbers for the biographies translated, it is not easy to find out the ones which have still to be dealt with. In the table of contents, I have supplied this deficiency by giving the numbers of the volume and the pages on which the accounts are to be found in the Text-edition

PREFACE VII

The part now printed, and which with the first six fascicles will form Volume I of the translation, consists of the remainder of the account of Haidar Quli Khān (No 223), and Nos 224-254 of the letter H, Nos 255-295 of the letter I, Nos 296-324 of the letter J, Nos 325-358 of the letter Kand Nos 359-365 of the letter L, in all 142 biographies In this part an attempt has been made to revise and complete the translations, to indicate as far as possible the sources from which the accounts were taken, and to supply references to recent literature in the foot-notes The references to printed texts are mainly to editions published in the Bibliotheca Indica series, and the same applies to the translations so far as these have been This, owing to the absence of or the very defective indices available, has involved a great deal of reading, and it is likely that references may have been missed in several cases. It has not been possible to check all historical data, but names of various places have been corrected with reference to the modern spellings in the Imperial Gazetteer so far as possible. The conversion of the Hijii dates as given in the Text-edition into dates according to the New Style of the Christian Era has been effected with the help of Wustenfeld-Mahler's Vergleichungs-Tabellen (Leipzig, 1926) The standard scheme for transliteration recently adopted by the Society has been followed with slight modifications To reduce the cost of publication the format and type for the new part were changed from the more expensive form used in the earlier fascicles to that used for the Journal of the Society For facilitating reference the volume and page numbers of the biographies dealt with in this part are given under the names of the nobles as also in the Contents The names of the nobles dealt with are also printed as page-headings over the accounts

I am fully conscious of the shortcomings in the work as now issued, but these are natural when one is editing a posthumous work from an imperfect manuscript. An entirely new version would probably have resulted in a better translation, but this was not possible, as the only consideration which weighed with me in agreeing to complete the work was to preserve the work of Mr Beveridge. The translation of a text of some 2,700 pages must have been a stupendous undertaking and entailed no end of hard work for the author in his advanced age—Mr Beveridge was 92 years of age when he died on 8th November, 1929, and the work was begun by him when he was well over seventy. While craving the indulgence of my readers for the imperfections in the translation, format, etc., I hope that this great monument of the scholarship, industry and devotion of the late Mr Henry Beveridge will prove useful to students of Indian History particularly for the Mughal Period

I am grateful to my colleague Dr B S Guha, the General Secretary of the Society for facilities provided in connection with this work. My thanks are due to my friend Sir Jadunath Sarkar, the leading authority on Indian History of the Moghul Period, for his valuable suggestions and the loan of some works from his personal library. I am also indebted to Shams-ul-Ulama Khan Bahadui Hidayat Hosain for his ever-ready help in the elucidation of several difficulties. The staff of the Library and the Persian and Arabic Department of the Society have helped me ungrudgingly at all times. Finally, I have to acknowledge the ready cooperation of Mr. G. E. Bingham of the Baptist Mission Piess in the expeditious printing of this work.

VIII PREFACE

MUSEUM HOUSE, CALCUTTA, 31st August, 1941

BAINI PRASHAD

CONTENTS

| | | Page |
|-----------------|---|-------------------|
| | Preface . | \mathbf{v} |
| 1 | The Maasu-ul-Umara ¹ (Text I, pp 1-10) | 1 |
| 2 | Note of Editor to Second Edition (Text I, pp 10-13) | 9 |
| 3 | Life of Nawab Samsāmu-d-daulah Shāh Newāz Khān, etc | |
| | $(\text{Text I, pp } 14-41) \qquad .$ | 12 |
| 4 | Preface to the Table of Contents (Text I, p 42) | 32 |
| | A | |
| 5 | 'Abdu-l-'Azīz Kh ān Bahādur (Text II, pp. 836–839) Q | 33 |
| 6 | 'Abdu-l-'Azız Khān, Shaikh (Text II, pp 686-688) Q | 34 |
| 7 | 'Abdū-l-Hādī Khwāja (Text I, pp. 772, 773) Q | 35 |
| s | 'Abdu-l-Majīd of Herat (Āsaf K Khwāja)—(Text I, pp 77-83) | 36 |
| 9 | 'Abdu-l-Matlıb Khān (Text II, pp 769-771) Q | 40 |
| 10 | 'Abdu-N-Nabī Sadr (Sharkh)—(Text II, 560-564) | 41 |
| 11 | 'Abdu-l-Qawī (I'tımād K Shaıkh)—(Text I, pp 225-229) | 44 |
| 12 | 'Abdu-r-Raḥīm Beg Uzbeg (Text II, pp 793, 794) Q | 48 |
| 13 | 'Abdu-r-Rahīm of Lucknow (Sharkh)—(Text II, pp 564, | |
| | 565) | 49 |
| 14 | (Mīrzā) 'Abdu-r-Raḥīm Khān-Khānān (Text I, pp 693-713) | 50 |
| 15 | 'Abdu-1-Rahīm Khān (Text II, pp. 812, 813) Q | 65 |
| 16 | 'Abdu-r-Rahīm Khān (Khwāja)—(Text I, pp. 792, 793) Q | 65 |
| 17 | 'Abdu-1-Raḥmān, Afzal Khān (Text I, pp. 115–117) | 66 |
| 18 | 'Abdu-r-Raḥmān Sultan (Text II, pp. 809–812) Q | 68 |
| 19 | 'Abdu-r-Razzāq K Lāii (Text II, pp. 818-821) Q | 70 |
| 20 | (Saifu-d-Daula) 'Abdu-S-Samad Khān Bahādui Dilei Jang (Text II, pp 514–517) Q | 71 |
| 21 | 'Abdu-l-Wahāb Aqzīu-l-Qazāt Qāzī (Text I, pp 235–241) | $7\overline{3}$ |
| $\frac{2}{2}$ | (Saiyid) 'Abdullah K Bāiha (Text II, pp. 489–491) Q | 79 |
| $\overline{23}$ | (Saiyid) 'Abdullah Khān (Text II, pp. 400, 401) Q | 80 |
| 24 | 'Abdullah Khān S'aīd Khān (Text II, pp 807, 808) Q | 81 |
| 25 | 'Abdullah \overline{K} Uzbeg ($\overline{\text{Text II}}$, pp. 764–769) | 82 |
| 26 | (Khwaja) 'Abdullah Khān (Text I, pp. 832, 833) Q | 84 |
| 27 | 'Abdullah Khān (Shaikh)—(Text II, pp 573-583) | 85 |
| 28 | (Mullā) 'Abdullah Ansārī Makhdūmu-l-Mulk (Text III, | |
| 00 | pp 252–257) | 93 |
| 29 | 'Abdullah K Fīrūz Jang (Text II, pp 777–789) | 97 |
| $\frac{30}{31}$ | (Mīr) Abū-l-Baqā Amīr Kh ān (Text I, pp. 172–174) | 105 |
| 32 | Abū-l-Fath (Text I, pp. 558–562) | $\frac{107}{110}$ |
| 33 | Abū-l-Makāram Jān Nisar Kh ān (Text I, pp. 537–540) Q Abu-l-Fath K Deccanī and an account of the Mahdavī | 110 |
| 00 | Religion (Text I, pp 120–125) | 113 |
| | | 110 |

 $^{^1}$ The spellings of the names and titles for the first 219 biographies and the introductions are given as they are printed in the fascicles published up to 1914. For facilitating reference to the Text the volume and page numbers of the Textedition are, however, given within brackets after each name biographies by 'Abdul Hayy are distinguished by the letter ${\cal Q}$

| | | Page |
|-----------------|--|-------|
| 34 | Abu-l-Fazl 'Allāmī Fahāmī (Shaikh)—(Text II, pp 608-622) | 117 |
| 35 | (Khwāja) Abū-l-Hasan of Turbat (Text I, pp 737-739) | 128 |
| 36 | Abul Khair K Bahādur Imām Jang (Text I, pp 363-365) Q | 131 |
| 37 | Abu-l-M'a ālī (Mīr Shāh)—(Text III, pp 186–191) | 132 |
| 38 | (Mırza) Abu-l-Maalı (Text III, pp 557–560) | 136 |
| 39 | Abu-l-Mansur K Bahādui Safdar Jang (Text I, pp 365–368) | 100 |
| 90 |   | 137 |
| 40 | Q Ahā Naar Khān gan of Sharata Khān (Tayt I no 202 202) Q | 140 |
| | Abū Nasr Khān, son of Shaista Khān (Text I, pp. 292, 293) Q | 141 |
| 41 | (Mīrza) Abū S'aīd (Text III, pp. 513–516) | |
| 42 | (Mīr) Abū Turāb Gujiātī (Text III, pp. 280–285) | 142 |
| 43 | Adham Khān Koka (Text I, pp 67-73) | 145 |
| 44 | Afzal Khan (Text I, pp 65-67) | 148 |
| 45 | Afzal Khān 'Allāmī Mullā Shukrullah Shīrāzī (Text I, | |
| | pp 145–151) Q . | 149 |
| 46 | Aghr (Aghuz) Khān Pīr Muhammad (Text I, pp 274-277) Q | 153 |
| 47 | Ahmad Beg Khān (Text I, pp. 194, 195) | 155 |
| 48 | Ahmed Beg Khān Kābulī (Text I, pp. 126, 127) | 156 |
| 49 | (Mīr) Ahmad Khān (Text III, pp 662-666) | 157 |
| 5 0 | (Mīr) Ahmad K The Second (Text III, pp 760-765) | 160 |
| 51 | (Saiyid) Ahmad K Bāiha (Text II, pp 378, 379) Q | 163 |
| 52 | Aḥmad Nāītha (Mullā)—(Text III, pp 562–566) | 164 |
| 53 | Ahmad Khān Niyāzī (Text I, pp. 185–188) | 167 |
| 54 | Ahmad (Shaikh)—(Text II, pp 554-556) | 169 |
| 55 | Ahsan Khān Sultan Hasan (Text I, pp. 301–303) Q | 170 |
| 56 | (Hakīm) 'Aīnul-l-Mulk Shīrāzī (Text I, pp. 562, 563) Q | 172 |
| 57 | Ajīt Singh Rāthor (Mahārājah)—(Text III, pp. 755–760) Q | 173 |
| 58 | | 176 |
| 59 | (Saiyid) 'Ālam Bārha (Text II, pp. 454–456) Q | 177 |
| 60 | (Mī) 'Alī Akbar Mūsavī (Text III, pp. 231, 232) (Mī) 50 1 Alī Bar Albar Shāb (Text III, pp. 255, 257) | 178 |
| 61 | (Mīrzā) 'Alī Beg Akbar Shāhi (Text III, pp. 355–357) | 180 |
| $6\overline{2}$ | 'Alī Khān (Mīrzāda)—(Text III, pp. 257, 258) Q | |
| 63 | (Hakım) Alī Gīlānī (Text I, pp. 568–573) | 180 |
| 64 | 'Alī Mardān Bahādur (Text II, pp. 773–775) Q | 185 |
| 65 | 'Alī Mardān K Amīju-l-Umarā (Text II, pp 795–807) | 186 |
| 66 | 'Alī Mardān K of Haidarabad (Text II, pp. 824, 825) Q | 194 |
| 67 | 'Alī Muhammad K Rohilla (Text II, pp 841–843) Q | 194 |
| 68 | 'Alī Qulī K of Andarāb (Text II, p 764) Q | 196 |
| 00 | 'Alī Murād Khān Jahān Bahādur Kokaltāsh K Zafar Jang | - 0.0 |
| 69 | (Text I, pp 817–819) Q | 196 |
| 70 | 'Alī Qulī Khān Zamān (Text I, pp 622–630) | 197 |
| 71 | Alli Man Aman Beg (Text I, pp. 191–194) | 204 |
| $7\hat{2}$ | Aliverdi Khān Mīrzā Bandī (Text II, pp. 843–847) Q | 205 |
| 73 | Allah Wuli Khān Uzbeg (Text I. pp. 189–191) | 208 |
| 74 | Anan Yar Khān (Text I. pp. 182–185) | 210 |
| 7 5 | Allan Yar K. Mir Tūzak, etc. (Text I, pp. 216, 217) Q | 212 |
| 10 | Aman Ullah Khan Zamān Bahādur M (Text 1, pp. 740-748) | |
| 76 | · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · | 212 |
| 70 | Than (1ext 1, pp. 293–295) | 219 |
| 78 | Amanat K. Mirak M'uinu-d-Din Ahmad (Text I, pp. 258–268) | 221 |
| 79 | $\frac{11}{11}$ $\frac{1}{11}$ | 230 |
| | (1tau) Amai Singh (Text II, pp. 230–237) O | 232 |
| 80 | Amin K Deccani (Text I, pp 352-357) | 236 |

CONTENTS X1

| | | Page |
|----------|---|-------------------|
| 81 | Amīnu-d-Daulah Amīnu-d-Dīn Kh ān Bahādur Sambalī (Text I pp 357, 358) Q | 240 |
| 82 | (Muhammad) Amīn Khān Mīr Muhammad Amīn (Text III, | |
| വര | pp 613-620) (Saveral) Assir IV, Whowiff (Tout II, and 456, 455) O | 241 |
| 83 | (Saivid) Amīr K Khawāfī (Text II, pp. 476, 477) Q | 245 |
| 84 | Amīr Khān Mīr Mīrān (Text I pp 277–287) | 246 |
| 85 oc | Amīr Khān Sindhī (Text I, pp. 303–310) | 253 |
| 86 | 'Āqil Khān 'Inavat Ullah (Text II pp 790–792) Q | 259 |
| 87 | (Rajah) Anūp Singh Badgūjai (Text II, pp. 220–223) | 261 |
| SS 89 | Rajah Anurudha Gaui (Text II pp. 276 277) Q | 263 |
| იყ 90 | 'Āqīl K Mīr 'Askarī (Text II pp. 821-823) Q 'Arab Bahādur (Text II, pp. 771-773) | $\frac{264}{266}$ |
| 91 | 'Arab Khān (Text II, pp. 794, 795) Q | 268 |
| 92 | Arslān Khān (Text I, pp. 774, 735) Q | $\frac{208}{268}$ |
| 93 | Asad Khan Māmūrī (Text I, pp. 140–142) | 269 |
| 94 | Asad Khān Āsafu-d-Daula-Jamla-al-Mulk (Text I, pp. 310- | 209 |
| 74 | 321) | 270 |
| 95 | Āsafu-d-Daula Amīru-l-Mamālık (Text I, pp. 368-369) Q | 279 |
| 96 | Asaf Khān Khwāja Ghīyāsu-d-Dīn 'Alī Qazwīnī (Text I, | |
| 97 | pp 90-93) Āsaf Kh ān Mīrzā Qiwāmu-d-Dīn J'aafar Beg (Text I, pp 107- | 280 |
| ,, | 115) | 282 |
| 98 | Āsaf K. known as Āsaf Jāhī (Text I, pp 151-160) | 287 |
| 99 | Asālat K Mīi 'Abdu-l-Hādī (Text I, pp 167-172) | 295 |
| 100 | Asālat Khān Mīrzā Muhammad (Text I, pp. 222–225) | 299 |
| 101 | Ashraf Khān Mīr Munshī (Text I, pp. 73–75) | 301 |
| 102 | Ashıaf K Khwaja Barkhürdar (Text I, pp. 206, 207) Q | 302 |
| 103 | Ashiaf K Mir Muhammad Ashiaf (Text I, pp. 272-274) | 303 |
| 104 | Askar Khān Najm Sānī (Text II, p\ 809) Q | 304 |
| 105 | Atish K Habshī (Text I, pp. 188, 189) Q . | 305 |
| 106. | Ātish Khān Jān Beg (Text I, pp. 255-258) Q | 305 |
| 107 | 'Azdu-d-Daula Iwaz K Bahādur Qaswara Jang (Text II, | |
| | pp 832-836) Q | 308 |
| 108 | Azım K Koka (Text I, pp. 247–252) | 311 |
| 109 | A'zım Khan Mil Muhammad Baqır, otherwise İradat Khan | |
| 110 | (Text I, pp 174–180) | 315 |
| 110 | 'Azīz Koka M Khān A'zam (Text I, pp. 675-693) | 319 |
| 111 | 'Azīz Ullah Khān (Text II, pp. 789, 790) Q | 334 |
| 112 | 'Azīz Ullah Khān (Text II, pp. 823, 824) Q | 335 |
| | В | |
| 113 | Bābā Khān Qāqshāl (Text I, pp 391-393) | 335 |
| 114 | Bahādur (Text I, pp 393, 394) Q | 337 |
| 115 | Bahādur K Bāqī Beg (Text I, pp 444–447) | 338 |
| 116 | Bahādur Khān Rohīla (Text I, pp. 415–424) | 340 |
| 117 | Bahādur Khān Shaibānī (Text I, pp 384–387) | 348 |
| 118 | Bahāduru-l-Mulk (Text I, p 398) Q | 350 |
| 119 | Bahādur K Uzbeg (Text I, p. 400, 401) Q | 351 |
| 120 | Baharjī, Landholder of Baglānā (Text I, pp. 412-415) | 351 |
| 121 | (I'tıqād K Mīrzā) Bahman Yār (Text I, pp. 232–234) | 354 |

| | | Page |
|---|--|---|
| 122 | Bahrām Sultan (Text I, pp 431–444) | 355 |
| 123 | Bahramand Khān (Text I, pp. 451-457) | 365 |
| 124 | Banām Khān Khan-Khanān (Text I, pp. 371-384) | 368 |
| 125 | Banām Beg Turkamān (Text I, pp. 399, 400) | 378 |
| 126 | Bāljū Qulīj Shamsher Khān (Text I, pp. 401, 405) Q | 379 |
| 127 | Bāqi K Celah Qalmāq (Text I, pp. 127—129) | 380 |
| 128 | Bāqī Khān Hayāt Beg (Text I, pp. 458-461) | . 382 |
| 129. | Bāqī Muhammad khān (Text I, p. 394) Q. | 384 |
| 130 | Bāqu K Najm Sānī (Text I, pp. 408-412) | 385 . 388 |
| $\begin{array}{c} 131 \\ 132 \end{array}$ | Basālat K M Sultan Nazı (Text I, pp. 461, 462) Q Barkhūrdāi (M Khan Ālam)—(Text I, pp. 732-736) | . 300 389 |
| 132 133 | (Rajah) Bāsū (Text II, pp. 157–160) Q | 392 |
| 134 | Bāz Bahādur (Text I, pp. 387-391) | 394 |
| 135 | Bebadal khan Sadar Gilani (Text I, pp. 405-408) | 396 |
| 136 | Begläi Khan (Text I, pp. 401-401) | 399 |
| 137 | (Rajah) Bethal Das Gaur (Text II, pp. 250-256) Q. | 101 |
| 138 | (Rajah) Bhagwant Dās (Text II, pp. 129-131) | 404 |
| 139 | (Rao) Bhão Singh Hārā (Text II, pp. 305-307) Q. | 405 |
| 140 | (Rajáh) Bharatha Bandila (Text II, pp. 212-214) Q | 407 |
| 141 | (Rai) Bhoj (Text II, pp. 141, 142) Q | . 408 |
| 142 | (Rajah) Bihāta Mal (Text II, pp. 111–113) | 409 |
| 143 | (Rajah) Biki amājīt (Text II, pp. 139-141) Q | 411 |
| 144 | (Rajah) Bikiamājīt Rai Rayān (Text II, pp. 183-195) | 412 |
| 145 | (Rajah) Bir Bahadur (Text II, pp. 361, 362) Q | $\begin{array}{c} 419 \\ 420 \end{array}$ |
| 146 | (Rajah) Birbar (Text II, pp. 118–122) | 420 |
| 147 | (Rajah) Bu Singh Deo Bandila (Text II, pp. 197-199) Q | $\frac{425}{425}$ |
| $\frac{148}{149}$ | Bıyān K (Text I, pp. 462, 463) Q Burhanu-l-Mulk S'aādat K (Text I, pp. 463-466) Q | $\overset{125}{425}$ |
| 150 | Buzuig Umed Khān (Text I, pp. 453, 454) Q | $\frac{1}{428}$ |
| 100 | Buxing Office main (Lext 1, pp 400, 191) 4 | |
| | C | |
| 7 ~ 7 | (D 1) 0 1-1 D- N- (D / TT 900 990) (| 429 |
| 151 | (Rajah) Cabila Rām Nāgai (Text II, pp. 328–330) Q | 430 |
| $\begin{array}{c} 152 \\ 153 \end{array}$ | (Khān 'Alam) Calma Beg (Text 1, pp. 632-635) | 433 |
| 154 | (Rajah Candai Sen (Text II, pp. 336–338) Q . (Mirza) Cīn Qulīj (Text III, pp. 351–354) | 434 |
| 155 | Cūrāman Jāt (Text I, pp. 540–548) | 436 |
| | outument out (Toxe 1, pp or oro) | |
| | D | |
| 156 | (Rao) Dalpat Bundīla (Text II, pp. 317–323) Q | 442 |
| 157 | | 446 |
| 158 | Dārāb Khān (Text II. pp. 39-42) | 448 |
| 159 | Dārāb Khān Mīrzā Dārāb (Text II, pp. 14-17) | 450 |
| 160 | Darbar K (Text II, pp. 1-3) | 453 |
| 161 | Daryā Khān Rohilla (Text II, pp. 18-21) | $455 \\ 457$ |
| $162 \\ 163$ | TONG II, pp 0 0/ W | 458 |
| 164 | - (±0x0 11, pp 00 00) W | 462 |
| 165 | | 464 |
| 160 | | 467 |
| | 0- (xovo xx, pp 21 00) | |

CONTENTS X111

| | | Page |
|-------------------|---|------------|
| 167 | (Rajah) Debī Singh Bandīla (Text II, pp. 295-297) Q | 471 |
| 168 | Dīānat Khān (Text II, pp. 59-63) | 472 |
| 169 | Diānat Khān (son of the above)—(Text II, pp 70–80) | 475 |
| 170 | Dīānat Khān Qāsım Beg (Text II, pp 8, 9) Q . | 483 |
| 171 | Diānat Khān Hakīm Jamālā Kāshī (Text II, pp 37, 38) Q | 484 |
| 172 | Dīānat Khān (Text II, pp 22, 23) . | 485 |
| 173 | Dılāwar K Bahādur (Text II, pp. 68-70) Q | 486 |
| 174 | Dılāwaı Khān Kākar (Text II, pp. 9-14) | 487 |
| 175 | Dilei K 'Abdu-r-Rauf Miyana (Text II, pp 56-59) Q | 491 |
| 176 | (Saiyid) Diler Khān Bāiha (Text II, pp 412-415) Q | 493 |
| 177 | Diler Khān Daūdzai (Text II, pp. 42-56) | 495 |
| 178 | Dīndāi Khān of Bokhara (Text II, pp. 23, 24) Q | 505 |
| 179 | (Rai) Durgā Sīsodia (Text II, pp. 142-148) Q | 505 |
| | E | |
| 100 | 17 | 509 |
| 180 | Ekatāz Kh ān 'Abdullah Beg (Text III, pp. 968–971) | 508 |
| | ${f F}$ | |
| 181 | Faiz Ullah Khān (Text III, pp. 28-30) | 512 |
| 182 | Faizī Fiyāzī (Shaikh Abu-l-Faiz)—(Text II, pp. 584-590) | 513 |
| 183 | Fākhir Khān (Text III, pp 26-28) Q | 518 |
| 184 | Farhat Khān (Text III, pp 1-3) Q. | 519 |
| 185 | (Ihtishām K Ikhlās K Shaikh) Farīd Fathpūrī (Text I, | ×00 |
| | pp 220-222) Q | 520 |
| 186 | (Shaikh) Farīd Murtaza Khān Bokhārī (Text II, pp 633- | |
| 107 | 641) | 521 |
| 187 | (Mīrzā) Farīdūn Khān Bārlās (Text III, pp. 354, 355) Q | 527 |
| 188 | Fath Jang Khān Mīyāna (Text III, pp. 30–32) | 528 529 |
| 189 190 | Fath Mang K Rohilla (Text III, pp. 22–26) | 532 |
| 190 | Fath Khān (Text III, pp 3-10) Fath Ullah Khwājagī (Text I, pp 669-671) Q | 536 |
| $\frac{191}{192}$ | Fath Ullah Khān Bahādur 'Ālamgīrshāhī (Text III, pp 40-47) | |
| $\frac{192}{193}$ | Amir Fath Üllah Shirāzī (Text I, pp. 100–105) | 543 |
| 194 | Fazāil Khān Mīr Hādī (Text III, pp 38–40) | 546 |
| 195 | Fāzıl Khān (Text III, pp. 18–21) | 548 |
| 196 | Fāzil K ahas Mullā 'Alāu-L-Mulk Tūnī (Text III, pp 524— | 0.10 |
| | 530) | 550 |
| 197 | Fāzıl Khān Burhānu-d-Dīn (Text III, pp. 34–38) | 553 |
| 198 | Fāzil Khān Shaikh Makhdūm Sadr (Text III, pp. 32, 33) Q | 556 |
| 199 | (Mīr) Fazl Üllah Bokhārī (Text III, pp 361–365) | 556 |
| 200 | Fedar Khān (Text III, pp 10-12) | 558 |
| 201 | Fedar Khān (Text III, pp. 12–18) | 559 |
| 202 | Fedai Khān Muhammad Sāhh (Text III, pp 33, 34) Q | 563 |
| 203 | Firūz K, the eunuch (Text III, pp 21, 22) Q | 564 |
| 204 | (Mīrza) Fūldā (Text III, pp 258–264) | 565 |
| | G | |
| 205 | (Sharkh) Gadāī Kambū (Text II, pp 539-541) | 568 |
| 206 | (Rajah) Gaj Singh (Text II, pp. $223-226$) Q | 570 |
| 207 | Ganj 'Alī Khān 'Abdullah Beg (Text III, p 155) Q | 572 |
| 208 | (Rai) Gaur Dhan Süraj Dhwaj (Text II, pp. 195–197) | 572 |

| | | T'aq |
|------------|---|-------|
| 209 | (Mn) Ge û of khurăsân (Pext III, pp. 249-252) | 57. |
| 210 | Ghanat khān (Text II, pp. 863-865) | 57 |
| 211. | Gharat khan Muhammad Ibrāhim (Text II, pp. 869-872) Q | 57 |
| 212 | Ghālib khān Bījāpūrī (Text II, p. 865) Q | |
| | | 579 |
| 213 | Ghazanfar khān (Fext II, pp. 866-868) | 551 |
| 211 | (Mirzā) Ghāzī Beg (Parkhān)—(Text III, pp. 345-348) | 58. |
| 215 | Ghāzī Khān Badakhshī (Text II, pp. 857-862) | 55 |
| 216 | Ghazīu-d-Dīn K. Bahādur Fuñz Jang (Text II, pp. 872-879) | |
| | Q | 557 |
| 217. | (Amīru-l-Umarā) Ghāzīu-d-Dīn K Bahādur Fīrūz Jang | |
| | (Text I, pp. 361, 362) Q | 59. |
| 218 | (Rajah) Gopāl Sing Gaur (Text II, pp. 340, 341) Q | 59 |
| | | |
| | II | |
| 219 | Habsh kh ān (Fext I, pp. 579-583) | 50 |
| 220 | Hādī Dad khān (Text III, pp. 941-943) Q | 597 |
| 221 | Haidar 'Alī khān Bahādin (Text I, pp. 611-613) Q? | 597 |
| 222 | Haidai Muhammad K. Akhta Begi (Text I, pp. 554-557) Q | 599 |
| 223 | Haidai Quli khan Mu'izzu-d Daulah (l'ext III, pp. 746- | |
| و۲ ضد کنند | 751) Q . | (6DE) |
| 224 | Hākm Bēg (Text I, pp. 573-576) | 60. |
| 225 | Hākīm Hādhiq (Text I, pp. 587-590) | 604 |
| 226 | Hakîm Humâm (Text I, pp. 563-565) | 606 |
| 227 | Hakīm-ul-Mulk (Text I, pp. 599, 600) Q | 607 |
| 228 | (Sourch Hamed Boldon, 170 of 11 no. 206, 200) () | 608 |
| | (Saryid) Hāmid Bokhārī (Text II. pp. 396-399) Q | |
| 229 | (Mu'ızz-ud-Daulah) Hāmıd khān Bahādur Salābat Jang | 610 |
| 200 | (Text III pp 765-769) Q | |
| 230 | Hamīd-ud-Din khān Bahāduı (Text I, pp. 605-611) Q | 611 |
| 231 | Haqiqat Khan (Text I, pp. 590, 591) Q | 614 |
| 232 | (Ikiām Khān, Saiyid) Hasan (Text I, pp. 215, 216) Q | 615 |
| 233 | (Muqarrab khān Sharkh) Hasan, known as Hassū (Text III, | . 1. |
| 20.4 | pp 379-382) | 616 |
| 234 | Hasan 'Alī Khān Bahādur (Text I, pp. 593-599) | 617 |
| 235 | Hasan Beg 1 Badakhshī Shaikh 'Umaii (Text I, pp 565-568) | 620 |
| 236 | (Mīrzā) Hasan Safavī (Text III, pp. 477–479) . | 622 |
| 237 | Hāslum Khān (Text III, pp. 940, 941) Q | 622 |
| 238 | Hayāt Khān (Text 1, pp 583, 584) Q | 623 |
| 239 | (Saiyid) Hidayat Ullah Sadi (Text II, pp. 456, 457) Q | 624 |
| 240 | Himmat Khān Mīi 'Isā (Text III, pp 946-949) | 624 |
| 241 | Himmat Khān Muhammad Hasan and Sipahdāi Khān | 03- |
| 0.10 | Muhammad Muhsin (Text III, pp. 949-951) | 625 |
| 242 | (Saryid) Hizbi Khān (Text II, pp. 415, 416) Q | 627 |
| 243 | Hızbr Khān son of Ilāhvaidī Khān (Text III, p 946) Q | 627 |
| 244 | Höshdär Khan Mil Höshdäl (Text III, pp 943–946) | 628 |
| 245 | (Amīr-ul-Umarā, Saiyid) Husain 'Alī Khān (Text I, pp 321– | ess |
| 040 | 338) | 628 |
| 246 | (Ikhlās Khān) Husam Bēg (Text I, p. 151) Q | 639 |
| 247 | Husam Bēg Khān Zīg (Text I, pp $591-593$) | 639 |
| | | |

 $^{^{1}\,}$ The word $\underline{\mathrm{Kh}}\bar{\mathrm{a}}\mathrm{n}$ has madvertantly been omitted after Beg

CONTENTS XV

| | | Page |
|------------|--|------|
| 248 | (Saryıd) Husaın Khān Bārah (Text II, pp 500-502) Q | 640 |
| | Husain Khān Khwēshgī (Text I, pp. 600–605) | 641 |
| 249 | Husain Khān Tukriyā (Text I, pp. 551–554) | 644 |
| 250 251 | | |
| 251 250 | (Khán Jahān) Husam Qulī Bēg (Text I, pp. 645–653) | 645 |
| 252 | (Mī) Husām-ud-Dīn (Text III, pp. 323, 324) | 649 |
| 253 | (Mīr) Husām-ud-Dīn Anjū, Murtadā Kh ān (Text III, pp 382- | |
| 251 | 384) | 650 |
| 254 | Husām-ud-Dīn Khān (Text I, pp 584-587) | 651 |
| | I | |
| 255 | (Shaikh) Ibrāhīm son of Shaikh Mūsā (Text II, pp 570-572) | |
| | Q | 653 |
| 256 | Ibrāhīm Khān (Text I, pp 295–301) | 653 |
| 257 | Ibrāhīm Khān Fath Jang (Text I, pp 135-139) | 657 |
| 258 | Ibrāhīm Khān Ūzbeg (Text I, pp 75-77) Q. | 659 |
| 259 | Iftikhār Khān Khwāja Abūl Bagā (Text I, pp 200-203) | 660 |
| 260 | Iftikhār Khān Sultān Husain (Text I, pp 252-255) | 662 |
| 261 | Ihtimām Khān (Text I, pp. 160–162) \hat{Q} | 663 |
| 262 | (Khān 'Ālam) Ikhlās Khān (Text I, pp. 816, 817) Q | 664 |
| 263 | Ikhlās Khān Ikhlās Kēsh (Text I, pp 350-352) Q | 665 |
| 264 | Ikhlās Khān Sharkh Ilāhdiya (Text I, pp. 198, 199) Q | 666 |
| 265 | (Saiyid) Ikhtisās Khān, or Saiyid Fīrūz Jang 1 (Text II, | |
| | pp. 473–475) Q | 667 |
| 266 | Hāhwardī Khān (Text I, pp 207-215) | 668 |
| 267 | Ilāhwardī Khān (Text I, pp. 229–232) | 672 |
| 268 | Ilangtōsh Khān Bahādur (Text III, pp. 971, 972) Q | 673 |
| 269 | 'Imād-ul-Mulk (Text II, pp 847–856) Q | 674 |
| 270 | 'Ināyat Khān (Text II, pp 813-818) | 678 |
| 271 | 'Ināyat Ullāh Khān (Text II, pp 828–832) Q | 680 |
| 272 | (Rāja) Indarman Dhandēra (Text II, pp. 265, 266) Q | 682 |
| 273 | Irādat Khān Mīr Ishāq (Text I, pp 203–206) | 683 |
| 274 | Īraj Kh ān (Text I, pp. 268–272) | 685 |
| 275 | Irshad Khan Mir Abūl-'Alā (Text I, pp 290, 291) Q | 687 |
| 276 | 'Isā Khān Mabīn (Text II, pp 825–828) | 687 |
| 277 | (Mīrzā) 'Īsa Tarkhān (Text III, pp 485-488) | 689 |
| 278 | (Mū'taman-ud-Daula) Ishāq Khān (Text III, pp 774-776) Q | 690 |
| 279 | Iskandar Khān Uzbeg (Text I, pp. 84–87) | 691 |
| 280 | Islām Khān Chishtī Fārūqī (Text I, pp 118–120) | 692 |
| 281 | Islām Khān Mashhadī (Text I, pp. 162–167) | 694 |
| 282 | Islām Khān Mīr Diyā-ud-Dīn Husam Badakhshī (Text I, | |
| ดอก | pp 217–220) | 696 |
| 283 | Islām Khān Rūmī (Text I, pp. 241–247) | 698 |
| 284 | Ismā'il Bēg Dūldī (Text I, pp. 64, 65) Q | 701 |
| 285 | Ismā'il Khān Bahādur Panī (Text I, pp. 370, 371) Q | 701 |
| 286 | Ismā'il Khān Makhā (Text I, pp. 291, 292) Q | 702 |
| 287 | Ismā'il Quli Khān Dhū-al-Qadr (Text I, pp 105-107) | 703 |
| 288 289 | I'tıbār Khān Khwājāsarā (Text I, pp. 134, 135) Q | 704 |
| 400 | I'tıbār Khān Nāzır (Text I, p 65) Q | 705 |

NI CONTINTS

| | | Pag |
|---|--|---|
| 290 | I'tımād khān Gujarātī (Text I, pp. 93-100) | 70: |
| 291 | I tımad khan khwajasara (Text I, pp. 85-90) | 708 |
| 292 | I'tiqud khan Farrukh-Shahi (Text I, pp. 339-346) | 709 |
| 293 | I'tiquad Khan Muza Shapur (Text I, pp. 180-182) | 714 |
| 291 | Twad khān Qāqshāl (Text II, pp. 776, 777) Q | 710 |
| 295 | 'Izzat kh ān kh wāja Bābā (Text II, pp. 775, 776) Q. | 716 |
| 70 | Trac Matt Maraja Daba (10 Ce 11, pp. 110, 110) Q. | 710 |
| | J | |
| 296 | Jādū Rāo Kāntīh (Text I, pp. 520-523) | 717 |
| 297 | (Mű'tmm-ul-Mulk) Ja'tar khān (Text III, pp. 751–755) Q | 719 |
| 298 | Ja'far khān Taklū (Text I, pp. 507-509) | 721 |
| 299 | Ja far khān Umdat-ul-Mulk (Text 1, pp. 531-535) | 722 |
| 300 | Jagan Nath (Text I, pp. 514-516) Q | 724 |
| 301 | (Kunwar) Jugat Singh (Text III, pp. 149, 150) | 725 |
| 302 | (Rāja) Jagat Singh (Text II, pp. 238-241) Q | 720 |
| 303 | Jagmāl (Text I, pp 510, 511) Q | 727 |
| 301 | Jagrāj, also known as Bikiamājīt (Text I, pp. 526, 527) Q | 727 |
| 305 | Jahangit Quli khan (Text I, pp. 512-514) | 728 |
| 306 | Jahängir Quli Khan (Text I, pp. 521, 525) | 729 |
| 307 | (Rāja) Jai Rām Badgūjar (Text II, pp. 211–212) Q | 730 |
| 308 | (Mīrzā Rāja) Jai Singh Kachwāha (Text III, pp. 568-577) Q | 731 |
| 309 | (Dhītāj Rāja) Jat Singh Siwā'ī (Text II, pp. 81–83) Q | 735 |
| 310 | Jalāl Kākai (Text I, pp. 530, 531) Q | 736 |
| 311 | Jalal Khan Qurchi (Text I, pp. 509, 510) Q | 737 |
| 312 | (Mīr Saryad) Jalāl Sadr (Text III, pp. 447-451) . | 737 |
| 313 | (Khwāja) Jalāl-ud-Dīn Mahmūd khurāsānī Bujūq (Text I. | |
| 010 | pp 615-618) | 740 |
| 314 | (Shaikh) Jamāl Bakhtiyār (Text II, pp. 566, 567) Q | 741 |
| 315 | (Mit) Jamāl-ud-Dīn Injū (Text III, pp. 358-360) | 712 |
| 316 | (Mīrzā) Jānī Bēg Arghūn (the ruler of Thatha)—(Text III, | |
| 010 | pp 302-314) | 743 |
| 317 | Jāmsh Bahādur (Text I, pp. 511, 512) Q | 748 |
| 318 | Jān Nithār Khān (Text I, pp. 527-529) | 749 |
| 319 | (Mahārāo) Jānojī Jaswant Nimbālkai (Text III, pp 806, | 1 40 |
| | 807) Q | 750 |
| 320 | Jān Sipāi Khān (Text I, pp. 535-537) | 751 |
| $32\dot{1}$ | Jān Sipār Khān (Khwāja Bābā)—(Text I, p. 530) Q | 752 |
| 322 | Jān Sipār Khān Turkamān (Text I, pp. 516-519) | 752 |
| 323 | (Mahārāja) Jaswant Singh Rāthōi (Text III, pp 599-604) | 754 |
| 324 | (Rāja) Jujhāi Singh Bundēla (Text II, pp. 214–218) Q | 756 |
| | | |
| 995 | K | |
| $\frac{325}{226}$ | Kākar 'Alī Khān (Text III, pp. 148, 149) Q | 757 |
| 326 | Kakar Man or Khan Jahan Kakar (Text III, pp. 152, 153) Q | 758 |
| $\frac{327}{220}$ | Kamal Khān Gakkhar (Text III. pp. 144–148) | 758 |
| $\begin{array}{c} 328 \\ 329 \end{array}$ | Rangar Man (Text III, pp. 159, 160) Q | 760 |
| $\frac{329}{330}$ | (Rānā) Karan (Text II, pp. 201–208) Q | $\begin{array}{c} 761 \\ 764 \end{array}$ |
| 331 | (Rāo) Karan Bhūrthiya (Text II, pp. 287–291) Q | 766 |
| 091 | Kārtalab Khān (Text III, pp 153, 154) Q | 100 |

| | | Page |
|------|---|------|
| 332 | Khalīl Ullāh Khān (Text I, pp. 775–782) | 767 |
| 333 | (Mīr) Khalīl Ullāh Yazdī (Text III, pp 335-342) | 770 |
| 334 | Khān Daurān (Text I, pp 782–785) | 774 |
| 335 | Khān Daurān Amīr-ul-Ūmarā (Text I, pp 819–825) Q | 775 |
| 336 | Khān Daurān Nasrat Jang (Text I, pp 749–758) | 778 |
| 337 | Khān Jahān Bahādur Zafar Jang Kōkaltāsh (Text I, pp 798- | |
| | 813) | 783 |
| 338 | Khān Jahān Bārah (Text I, pp. 758-766) Q. | 791 |
| 339 | Khān Jahān Lōdī (Text I, pp 716-732) | 795 |
| 340 | Khān Zamān (Text I, pp 785–792) | 804 |
| 341 | Khān Zamān Mēwātī (Text I, pp 829–832) | 808 |
| 342 | Khān Zamān Sharkh Nizām (Text I, pp 794–798) | 809 |
| 343 | Khidmat Parast Khān (Text Ì, pp 713-716) | 811 |
| 344 | Khidr Khwāja Khān (Text I, pp 613-615) | 813 |
| 345 | Khudā Banda Khān (Text I, pp. 814–816) | 815 |
| 346. | Khudāwand Khān Deccanī (Text I, pp 659, 660) | 816 |
| 347 | $\overline{\text{Kh}}$ udāyār $\overline{\text{Kh}}$ ān (Text I, pp. 825–829) Q | 817 |
| 348 | Khushhāl Bēg Kāshglarī (Text I, pp. 773, 774) Q | 819 |
| 349 | Khusrau Bē (Text I, pp 673-675) . | 820 |
| 350 | Khusrau Sultān (Text I, pp 767–772) | 820 |
| 351 | Khwāja Jahān Herātī (Text I, pp 630-632) | 823 |
| 352 | Khwāja Jahān Kābulī (Text I, pp. 672, 673) | 824 |
| 353 | $\underline{	ext{Kh}}$ wāja Jahān $\underline{	ext{Kh}}$ awāfī ($	ext{Text I, pp}$ 748, 749) Q | 825 |
| 354 | Khwāja Qulī Khān Bahādur (Text I, pp. 834, 835) Q | 825 |
| 355 | Khawwas Khān Bakhtıyār Khān Deccanī (Text I, pp 774, | |
| | (775) Q . | 826 |
| 356 | Kīrat Singh (Text III, pp 156-158) | 827 |
| 357. | (Rāja) Kishan Singh Bhadāwariya (Text II, pp 228–230) Q | 828 |
| 358 | Kıshan Sıngh Rāthōr (Text III, pp 150–152) | 829 |
| | | |
| | ${f L}$ | |
| 359 | Lashkar Kh ān (Text III, pp 161–163) | 830 |
| 360 | Lashkar Khān Abūl Hasan Mashhadī (Text III, pp 163–168) | 831 |
| 361 | Lashkar Khān, otherwise Jān Nithār Khān (Text III, pp. 168- | |
| | $\frac{171}{171}$ | 834 |
| 362 | (Rukn-ud-Daula Saiyid) Lashkar Khān Bahādur Nasīr Jang | |
| | (Text II, pp 359–361) | 835 |
| 363 | (Rāi) Lünkaran Kachwāha (Text II, pp. 116, 117) Q | 836 |
| 364 | Lutf Ullāh Khān (Text III, pp 171–177) | 837 |
| 365 | Lutf Ullāh Sādıq (Text III, pp. 177, 178) Q | 840 |
| | | |

The Maasir-ul-Umara.

In 1 the Name of God, the Merciful, the Compassionate

Boundless praise and countless benedictions are due to the king of kings, for the acts of famous princes and the deeds of great ministers spring from His almighty power and absolute will Ruler whose commands sway the hearts and hands of mortals timest atom cannot move without the permit of His glorious power, nor without His stringent order can any movent cease He is an Arranger who has given grace and glory to Space by the personalities of princes of lofty lineage and thereby made it a cradle of rest He has associated high-thoughted nobles with enthroned princes so that they may be as limbs to the heart, and may bring to a happy issue the affairs of nations He is a supreme Ordainer who by the one word "Be" (Kun) hath brought worlds on worlds of creations from the secret places of non-existence into the expanse of Being-a consummate Artist, who in His creations has produced such marvellous excellencies that the masters of Wisdom feel helpless before them and are unable fully to appreciate them As it has been written

Verse.

O God, by Thy commanding, within the universe Earth is stationary, Heaven movent Giver of greatness to men and genii King of kings of the world art Thou!

Salutations without number to a Leader who after showing his mission to the followers of the Divine commands regarded not

¹ This is the preface to the second edition, but it comes first in the text It is by 'Abdu-I-Hayy, the son of the original author, the paucity of adherents nor the plurality of adversaries, but attacked and routed the misleading heretics and founders of error, and by successive victories requited them according to their deeds, till at length his firm faith dominated the world and obtained universal currency. As it has been written

Verse

Muhammad, King of Realm and Religion Whose sword o'erthrew the foundation of malice Crown-wearer of the company of the apostles On him is the seal of power and prophecy

Blessings also upon his holy family and upon his well-born companions for they are the strong pillars of the arch of rule and the gates of approach to him

Let it not be concealed from the readers of this work that as Mir Abdu-r-Razzāq, who afterwards received the title of Samsāmud-daulah, the deceased father of the writer of these lines, who had acquired such knowledge in the science of biography that the accounts of the Indian princes of the house of Timur and of their officers were all on the tip of his tongue, and had such skill in genealogies that many persons applied to him for information about their ancestry, while in retilement in the Qutbpūra 1 quarter of Aurangabad occupied himself in composing this book which contains an account of the officers of the aforesaid princes He had made rough drafts of many biographies and had also faired out many notices Afterwards when Nawāb Asaf Jāh (the Nızāmu-1-mulk of Haidaiabad) became well-disposed towards him and summoned him to his presence and ordered him to engage in his public business, and also later when the martyred ² Nızāmu-d-daulah made over to him the charge of the Diwani of his establishment (Saikar), the completion of the book remained wrapped in the veil of abeyance. One day the writer of these words represented to him that a good foundation had been laid, would that it might be completed! That great one replied "Do you finish it" Afterwards he became the minister of Nawab

¹ Maasır III, 107

² That is Nāsir Jang

Salābat¹ Jang, and at last gave his life in that service. His house was plundered² and the chapters dispersed. Some years afterwards a few portions came to hand. Mīr Ghulām 'Alī Azād—peace be upon him—who was an intimate friend of the deceased—gathered those portions together and wrote a preface and an introduction and a notice of the author.

After that some other portions were recovered. As the command of that great man continued to gnaw at my soul I was always anxiously thinking about it, and at last I made a beginning in 1182 (1768–1769) and compiled from historical works supplementary biographies, and I also supplied a pieface which my deceased father had written at the beginning of the work, and which I had copied out into a commonplace book, as well as a preface and introduction which Mīr Azād had written, and four biographies, also written by Mīr Azād. The list of books which I consulted at the time of composition is as follows:—

List

- 1 Akbarnāmah by Shaikh Abu-1-Fazl s Mubārak
- 2 Tabaqāt Akbarī by Khwājah Nizāmu-d-dīn Ahmad
- 3 Muntakhabu-t-tawārīkh by Shaikh 'Abdu-I-Qādir Badayūnī
- 4 Gulshan Ibrāhīmī, commonly known as the Tārīkh Ferishta by Muhammad Qāsim
- 5 'Ālam Ārāī by Sıkandaı Beg, the secretary (munshī) of Shah 'Abbās (the 1st), the ruler of Persia
- 6 Haft Iqlīm by Amīn Ahmad Rāzī
- 7 Zubdatu-t-tawārīkh by Nūru-1-Ḥaqq
- 8. Iqbālnāmah by Mʻutamad Khan Bakhshī
- 9 Jahāngīrnāma ⁸ in which Jinnat-Makānī (Jahangir) wiote the account of twelve years of his reign

¹ A brother of Nāsır Jang

² Ghulām 'Alī was alive when this was written He survived the writer of this preface who died in 1196, April 1782, whereas Ghulām 'Alī did not die till 1200, 1786 He is buried at Khuldābād or Rawzā (Haig, Historic Landmarks of the Deccan, p 58)

³ As pointed out in Elliot VI, 279, the (son of the) author does not seem to have had access to a copy of the Memoirs extending beyond the first

- 10. Zakhīrau-1-Khwānīn by Shaikh Farīd of Bhakkar
- 11. Majma'u-l-Afghānī² written by someone for Khān Jahān Lodī.
- 12. Pādshāhnāmah by Mullā Abdu-l-Hamīd of Lahore, and Muhammad Wārıs.
- 13 'Amal Sālih by Muhammad Sālih Kambū
- 14 Waqāī 3 Qandahar
- 15 'Alamgīrnāmah, by Muhammad Kāzım Munshī
- 16 Mırātu-1-'Alam by Bakhtawār K the eunuch
- 17 Tārīkh 4 Āshām
- 18 Khulāsatu-t-tawāiīkh, written by a Hindu in the time of Aurangzeb
- 19. Tārīkh 6 Dilkushā, written by a Hindu and containing the account of some events of Aurangzeb's reign
- 20 Maasır 'Alamgīrī, by Musta'ad Khān Muhammad Shafī ⁷
- 21 Bahādur 8 Shāhnāmāh, by Nı'amat Khān 'Ālī
- 22 Labb Labāb, by Khwāfi Khān
- 23 Tārīkh Muhammad 9 Shāhī
- 24 Fathıyyah, by Yüsuf Muhammad Khān 10
- 25 The Tazkıra ¹¹ (anthology) called Majma'u-n-nafāīs by Sırājud-dīn 'Ālī Khān Ārzū twelve years The Jahāngīrnāmah of Ghairat K, ie Kāmgār Husainī, is not mentioned in the list, but is referied to at II, 865 in the account of Ghairat K

- 1 Presumably this is the work mentioned by the writer's father, I, p 8, as being by Shaikh M'arūf of Bhakkar
- ² This must be the Makhzān Afghāni of Rieu I 210, 212 and Elliot V
 ³⁷ It is by N'iamat Ullah
- 3 Apparently the Latāīfu-l-Akhbār of Rieu I, 264b It is an account of Dārā Shikoh's unsuccessful siege of Qandahar
- 4 By Shihābu-d-dīn Tālish, Rieu I 266a It is also called Fathiyah-i-'Ibratiya See ASBJ for 1872, p 51

- ⁵ The author was Sujān Rai of Batāla in the Gūrdāspūr district of the Panjab See RASJ for 1894, p 733, Rieu 230a and Elliot VIII, 5
- 6 The author was Bhīm Sen Rieu I, 271 It was translated by Jonathan Scott
 - 7 Should be Sāqī, Rieu I, 270
 - 8 Rieu 272a
- 9 This may be the Nādiru-z-Zamānī of Khūshhāl Chand, Rieu I, 128, and Elliot VIII, 70, or it may be the work by Yūsuf Muhammad K mentioned in Elliot VIII, 103
- 10 This may be the work mentioned in Elliot VIII, 70, or it may be the Jinana-I-Firdaus of do 413 See Rieu 138a and III, 1081a
- 11 See Sprenger's Oudh Catalogue, 132

- 26. Mırāt Wārıdāt, by Muhammad Shafī, with the poetical name of Wārid
- 27 Jahān² Kushā, a history of Nādir Shāh
- 28 and 29 Sarv Āzād and Khazāna 'Āmrā, both by Mīr Ghulām 'Ālī Āzād
- 30 Mırātu-s Safā,³ by Mīı Muhammad 'Alī of Burhānpūr
- 31 Tārikh Bangāla 4

My hope is that readers of this work will correct omissions or mistakes if they find any, and that they will pardon defects

Be it known that the deceased compiler of this work arranged the lives according to the date of death, and where, as in some cases, that date was unknown, the date down to which the biography was carried, was treated as the date of death

Heaven be praised! This delightful work was finished in 1194 (1780) and the chronogram is—

Verse

The pen decked the garden with a verbal Sping, Approved by the wise, 'tis the pleasure-ground of every sage

The sheet produced by the writer's Spring-creating pen dissipated the glories of Irām ⁵ and emulated Paradise Reason, the Secretary, wrote the year of completion Bravo' 'Learned Associate (editor) of the Maasiru-l-Umarā' (1194—1780)

PREFACE WHICH THE PARDONED AUTHOR (SHAH NEWĀZ) OF THE BOOK WROTE AT THE COMMENCEMENT 6 OF HIS WORK

From the beginning of my years of understanding and discretion I had, in spite of the time given to ordinary lessons, a love for

¹ Rieu I, 275, and Elliot VIII,

² The work translated into French by Sir William Jones

³ Rieu I, 129, and Elliot VIII, 25

⁴ Rieu I 312b It is observable that in the above list no mention is made of the Mulaskhkhas or Abridgement of 'Ināyat K 'Ashnā It is commonly known as the Shāh Jahānnā-

mah and is referred to in Maasir II 762, and elsewhere See Elliot VII, 73 The author seems to have used the Mulakhkhas in his account of the taking of Qandahar by the Persians

⁶ A fabulous garden in Arabia Felix

⁶ The author states in the biography of his grandfather Muhammad Kāzm III, 721, that he was born on investigating biographies and chronicles. Whenever I had any leisure, I devoted some of it to the instructive annals of former kings, and some to the accounts of highly-placed officials. Sometimes the words of philosophers and saints enlarged my vision, and sometimes I was stirred up by the rhythmical utterances of poets. At length, in the third decade of existence, touched with contrition, when there is a change in life, Time cast me into the struggles of service and my days were spent in the acquisition of a livelihood. After that, prosperity and pleasure threw me into other occupations and I ceased to be in 1 touch with books, and the love of literature left me. Though the thought of my manuscript collections occasionally affected me, and I wished to offer a pilgrim's present to the rising generation, yet time kept saying to me with the tongue of gesture (zabān-i-hāl)

Verse

The brain o'er heaven, the heart at foot of golden idols? How can I speak, where is the brain and where the heart?

Suddenly the wondrous working of destiny gave me in 1155, 1742, retirement and solitude. Outwardly the year was pregnant with a thousand troubles and anxieties, but the heart was impledged to calm and composure, and regarded the unexpected leisure as great gain. The same old desire took full possession of my soul and ancient wishes flowered anew. But a revision of my design dissuaded me from composition, for my forerunners had completed books of every kind or fashion which I had thought of, and other subjects had been dealt with by great thinkers and artists both directly and indirectly, and at large or in abridgment. So my heart did not incline towards my compositions, and I judged them as belonging to the class of the common-place. Suddenly there shot into

Deccan, the pagodas of early travellers, which were also called būt-ashrafī on account of their having an idol or temple represented on them. See Bahār-i-'Ajam s v. "The brain o'er heaven" seems to refer to his lofty aspirations

²⁸ Ramzan 1111 (8th March 1700), and that he became diwan of Berar in 1145 (1732-33), in his 34th year

¹ Masās Two BM MSS have shinās

² $Muhrb\bar{u}t\bar{a}n$ Apparently this refers to the gold coins called $h\bar{u}n$ in the

my heart the thought that if I wrote from the beginning of the reign of 'Arsh Ashiyani (Akbai), of which the chronogram is Nasiat Akbai ("Victory of Akbar" oi "Great Victory," and equal to 963, or 1556) to the present time, an account, in alphabetical order, of the lives of great Amiis and exalted nobles, -some of whom had, at the time of their glory, by dint of fortune and good conduct, been the authors of great deeds, and carried the ball of a famous name to an honourable goal, while others had, by the wind of their allogance and presumption, heaped up final rum for themselves,-and should append to the biographies remarkable sayings, strange narratives, prudent enterprises, great actions, extraordinary campaigns, and exhibitions of courage, and should incidentally describe the events during two centuries of the illustrious princes of the Timuide dynasty in India—Thanks be to God for their achievements—and should make mention of many ancient families, assuredly a new work would be produced and one which would stand apart from the writings of other authors Accordingly, my heart firmly decided upon this singular undertaking, and the countenance of purpose displayed itself in a conspicuous mannei

Although a book by Shaikh M'arūf of Bhakar called the Zakhīia-al-Khwānīn which contains an account of Amīrs came to my notice at this time, and many of its statements have been included in the present work, yet as it is founded upon hearsay, and is contrary to the ascertainments of the masters of this science, whereas p 1047a of his catalogue mention is made of an extract from the Zalhīrat-ul-Khwānin which is described as another name for the Zalhīrat-ul-Mulūk, a treatise on practical ethics, by the Kashmir saint Shāh Hamadān It is much to be wished that S M'arūf's book could be found, for apparently it was full of interesting gossip At p 288 of Vol II the author of it is spoken of as Shaikh Farīd Bhakrī See also the list of works consulted by 'Abdu l-Hayy, No 10.

¹ Text Khwāqīn, but the entry No 10, in the list of authorities by author's son, and the reference at II, p 260, shows that Khwanin, as given in the variant, is right It is stated at the last place above referred to (viz, the life of Amanat K) that the book was written in 1060 (1650) of Vol III mention is made of a S M'arūf who was Sadr of Bhakar, but probably this was the grandfather of the S M'arūf, the author No historical work called the Zakhīra-al-Khwānīn is mentioned by Rieu, though at the basis of my book is trustworthy writings, the originality and superiority of the latter are evident

As in the time of Akbar, when the limit of rank for Amirs was 5000-though in the end of his leightwo or three persons attained to 7000-royal service had a high value and mansabs were greatly respected, many persons in small positions were possessed of influence and excellence, and therefore I have for that period included officers down to the rank of 500 For the reign of Shah Jahan and up to the middle of Aurangzeh's reign-after which many offices and dignities came into vogue—I have noticed holders of 3000, and the possessors 1 of drums and flags. After that on account of the Deccan campaigns full of contrarieties (īsāq pūr mashāq), the increase of servants, and decrease of produce of the country, such superiorities did not continue Gradually the circle became larger, and for the present time—vacant of goodness or blessing—when many hafthazārīs (holders of the rank of 7000) are at sixes and sevens (bahaftu-hasht, "at seven and eight") and are damaged in reputation and honour, and when in every district and direction many a shash-hazārī and panch-hazārī (holder of 6000 or 5000) is in preplexity from the buffetings of fortune, I have thought it enough to stop Many ancestors who had brushed the corner of at 5000 or 7000 obscurity have acquired the fame of eternal life as appendages to their celebrated posterity, and many sons and grandsons, who from want of merit did not rise to high office, have had their names blazoned because of their illustrious ancestry Some who did not obtain to high rank have been noticed on account of their noble qualities

This work, which is a collection of numerous marks (isāi), has been designated Maasiru-l-Umarā, "Marks of Amīrs" In the family of Timuride princes each heavenly father and pure mother received a title, as for instance Sāhib Qirān (Lord of Conjunction) denotes Amīr Timur, Firdūs Makānī is Zahīru-d-dīn Muhammad Bābar, Jinnat Āshiyānī is Nasīru-d-dīn Muhammad Humāyūn, "Arsh Āshiyānī Jalālu-d-dīn is Muhammad Akbar, Jinnat Makānī,

¹ From a statement in the Tūzak J it appears that drums and flags were bestowed on holders of office of the value of 3000,

Nūiu-d-dīn Muhammad Jahangir, Firdūs Āshiyānī and 'Alī Hazrat, Shihābu-d-dīn Muhammad Sāhib Qiiān Sānī is Shah Jahan, Khuld Makān, Muhīu-d-dīn Muhammad is Aurangzeb 'Ālamgīr (ṭhāzī, Khuld Manzil Qutbu-d-dīn Muhammad M'uzzam Shāh 'Ālam is Bahādur Shāh, while the venerable mother of 'Aish Āshiyānī (Akbar), viz Ḥamīda Bānū Begam, has the title of Miriam-Makānī, and the honoured mother of Khuld-Makān, viz Arjmand Bānū Begam, is entitled Mumtāz Mahal (Tāj Mahal), and his elder sister, Jahān Ārā Begam, is called Begam Sāhiba Accordingly, whenever there was occasion to mention them in this book, it was sufficient to do so by their titles. With regard to other princes, their correct names have been given, except that in some places Muhammad Shāh Pādishāh has been styled Firdūs Ārāmgāh

Preface and Introduction which Mīn Ghulām 'Alī Azād—may God prolong his life—placed at the head of the chapters after they had been collected

(Note of Editor to Second Edition.)

(As this composition has become well-known, and as it contains a life of the deceased author (Shah Newāz), the writer of these lines ('Abdul-l-Hayy the son) has included it in the book)

Praise to the King of Kings who has bestowed upon kings the exalted position of the rule of the world and has given to their Amīrs, the adorners of the throne, the office of assisting them. And Peace and Salutation be upon the Protector of the world (Muhammad) who has so gloriously guided the acts of the nations, and has controlled genii and men by the God-given seal of prophecy, and upon the illustrious family who are honourable princes, and on the companions of holy lineage who are sublime Viziers

But to proceed This book is charming, and a masterpiece which has no fellow. It is the production by God's help of that congeries of human perfections Nawāb Samsāmu-d-daulah Shāh Newāz Khān—may God have mercy upon him--who composed it with a magic pen, and for five years devoted all the powers of his intellect to the task

I This is the preface to the first edition See account of Ghulam 'Alī in Beale s v Azād and in Colonel Wilks' "Sketches of the South of India," I 237, and 267 n

Those who are acquainted with history can judge how much labour 1 the noble author bestowed upon it, and how far he carried out his researches and strove after accuracy.

But the pages which had been written remained nearly twelve years in the alcove of forgetfulness, and the lovely peacock spread his plumage in the cell of a cage Time did not allow of the blackness of the rough draft's being changed into the whiteness of the finished page, nor of the long winter night's being converted into a world-illuminating moining At last they administered to the noble author-mercy be upon him-the cup of maityidom and placed the children of his lofty genius (his writings) in the dust of orphanhood The author's house was plundered and the accumulations of his library were at one stroke dispersed faquır Ghulām 'Alī—whose style ıs Āzād Ḥusaınī Wāsıtī Bılgrāmī was on terms of exceeding friendship with the deceased, and smote his hands in sorrow when the unrivalled masterpiece disappeared, and for a long time pursued the threads of search over the world

There was no trace of whither it had gone and into whose hands it had fallen. One full twelve month after the martyrdom of the noble author, a clue was found, and the lost Joseph showed his countenance. There was great joy, and I immediately rolled up my sleeve to arrange and whiten and mend the torn garment of the foul draft and to stitch the scattered pages. As the manuscript had taken flight from the library in detachments and had fallen in various places, the chapters did not remain together. They had to be gathered like the leaves of autumn. After great labour the scattered pages were collected, but the biography of Qutbu-l-mulk 'Abdullah Khān (one of the two Saiyids of Bārha) grand vizier of Muhammad Farrukh Siyar, which the author had written, had perished, and the biography of Amīru-l-Umarā Saiyid Ḥusain 'Alī Khān the brother of (the said) Qutbu-l-mulk came to hand with an im-bestow 'How much blood oozed from the vein of his thoughts.''

perfect beginning. The author had not written the biographies 1 of Nawāb Āsaf Jāh and of his successor the martyred Nawāb The jealousy of fortune had not granted him Nızāmu-d-daulah The eminence of these four Amīrs was as clear as leisure for this the sun, and it was imperative that their biographies should be included in the work By chance I had put together all four biographies in my book the Sarv Azād I copied out the biographies of Qutbu-l-mulk, Nawāb Āsaf Jāh, and the martyred Nizāmu d-daulah from the Sarv Azād For the biography of Amīru-l-Umarā Saivid Husain 'Alī Khān I retained all that came to my hand and supplied the beginning from the Sarv Azad Some other necessary brographies were wanting in the chapters, such as the biography of S. Abūl Fazl,2 the author of the Akbarnāma, whose pre eminence does not need to be mentioned The deceased author used to imitate his style in his compositions The biography of S'aad Ullah K, grand vizier of Firdūs Ashiyānī (Shah Jahan), was also wanting The author in several places refers to intended notices, and these are not forthcoming The inference is that they were written but that the violent blasts of accidents had carried them away

The noble author, who has been received into mercy, has also in various places recorded his intention of writing (such and such) a notice, but it has not been found at the position indicated Whatever has been done has been done, and whatever was not done remained undone. Now, who has the brains to compile such notices and to add them as a supplement? The author himself completed his preface, but the writing of plaise and prayer was wanting, so I wrote some words of praise and supplication and prefixed them. The first biography in this place is that of the author After that the body of the work commences. May God grant help!

vol and the son does not mark it as his, and Ghulām 'Alī does not say he wrote it. The life of S'aad Ullah, the prime minister of Shah Jahan, appears in Vol II, p. 441, of the Maasir under the style of 'Allāmī S'aad Ullah Khān It is by the son 'Abdul-l-Hayy

¹ The lives of Ghāzīu-d-dīn the son of Nizāmu-l-mulk and of his son 'Imādu-d-dīn seem all to be by Ghu-lām 'Alī as they appear in his Khazāna 'Āmrā

² Apparently the life of Abū-l-fazl was afterwards found by Shāh Newāz's son, for there is a long one in the 2nd

Life of Nawab Samsāmu-d-daulah Shāh Newāz Khān Shahīd (martyred) Khwāfī Aurangabādī—the mercy of God be upon him '

His real name was Mīi 'Abdu-r-Razzāq, and he was of 2 the family of the Saiyids of Khwāf His ancestor (great, great, greatgrandfather) Mīr Kamālu-d-dīn 8 came to India from Khwāf in the time of Akbar and became one of his chief servants His son Mīrak Husam was a distinguished servant in the time of Jahangir, and his grandson Mirak M'uīnu-d-dīn received the title of Amānat Khān and obtained high office under Shah Jahan reign of 'Alamgii, he became diwan of Lahoie, Multan, Kabul and Kashmir, and when the subahdari of Multan was assigned to the Prince Shah 'Alam, Amanat K was made naib-subahdai in addition to his diwanship He acted in keeping with his name (amanat, "trust") and served with perfect honesty and trustworthi-A royal order was sent to him in the time of his Diwānī to send a certain person to court, and he summoned him and pressed him to go The person said that he would go if Amanat K would guarantee his being treated with respect Amanat K replied that he had no confidence in a person who had behaved in such and such a way to his father and brothers (Amanat referring thereby to Aurangzeb's treatment of his father and brothers), how then could he be a guarantee ? Talebeaiers cailed this remark to the king, and he became angry and deprived Amanat of his office and his fief He remained a long time unemployed, but at last the king was struck with the thought "This person (Amanat) fears God and regards not me" He became the patron of such a praise-

Kamāl came to India to his maternal uncle Shamsu-d-dīn Khwāfī, for whom see Blochmann 445 The statement of Ghulām 'Alī that Mīr Kamāl became one of Akbar's chief servants, or that he became a servant at all, is not borne out by the Āin or by Shah Newāz's own account of his ancestry, in his life of Amānat Khān See Maa-ir I, p 259

¹ Translated by H H Wilson, Quarterly Oriental Magazine, IV, 269

² By the female side

³ No servant of this name is mentioned in the Āīn, but several Kamāls are spoken of in the A N III At p 259, Vol I, of the Maasir the author calls his ancestor Mīrak Kamāl and says he was the son of Mīr Hasan and came to India with his son Mīrak Husain worthy officer The king took him again into favour and restored to him his rank, his fief, and his diwanship. He became impressed by his personality and relied fully upon him for every thing, both for word and deed. When the king was in Upper India and the subahdarī of the Deccan was committed to Khān Jahān Bahādui Kokaltāsh, the diwanship of the Deccan, the paymastership and recordership were given to Amānat Khān. He managed the diwāni with consummate ability, and Khān Bahādur used often to come to his house. He also had charge of the Nizāmat (the criminal jurisdiction) of Aurangabad.

Four of his sons were distinguished. The first was 'Abdu-l-Qādir Dīānat Khān, the second Mīr Husain Amānat Khān, the first was made Diwān-i-tan,' and the second, Diwān-i-khālsa (diwān of the exchequer). Amānat K (the second son) was also made governor of the port of Surat, and on his death 'Dīānat K (his elder brothei) succeeded him. This Dīānat K, had been diwān of the Deccan before he became governor of Surat, and after becoming governor, he again became diwān of the Deccan. The third son Mīr 'Abdu-r-Rahmān Wazārat K had the poetical name of Girāmī' and was made diwān of Malwa and diwān of Bījāpūr. He wrote excellent verses and they were collected into a divān. The following are specimens.

Verse 4

Ere the caravan-leader of the ecstatics took an omen for the march

Our madman girt up his loins for the desert

MS of Girāmī's divān The first occurs before the middle of the MS (not paged) and the second is towards the end of the volume. In the MS the second line comes before the first The divān seems to consist chiefly of love-songs. The poet says he made an ill-timed repentance in the season of flowers as that is the time of enjoyment.

¹ The office of looking after the tankhuāh or assignments of land to private individuals

² In 1111, 1699—1700 See Maasn 'Ālamgīrī, 412

³ Girāmī's divān is mentioned in Stewart's Cat of Tippoo Sultan's Library See also ASB Cat 114, and Sprenger Oudh Cat 412, and Ethe Cat ÍO, p 889, No 1625

⁴ I found both verses in the ASB

Another verse

The flower-season came and I made an ill-timed renunciation How hard was I on the bowl, and how I abused the glass Separated from my companions I could not join the march Alas! I trod the fields of ecstacy alone

The fourth was Kāzım K the Diwān of Multan Mīr Hasan 'Alī the son of Kāzım K was the father of Nawāb Samsāmu-ddaulah Shāh Newāz K On his mother's side Samsāmu-d daulah was descended from Mīr Husain Amānat K above mentioned (second son of Amanat No 1) Mīi Hasan 'Alī, the father of Samsāmu-d-daulah, died at the age of nineteen ' and had no opportunity of developing himself

Be it known that the descendants of Mîrak M'uīnu-d-dīn Amānat K became very numerous and occupied a large ward (Qutbpūra) in the city of Aurangabad The diwānī of the Deccan and other high offices became appurtenances of the family world of men obtained shares in the bounties of the family dıwanı of the Deccan after Mir 'Abdu-l-Qadır Dianat K fell to his heir Alī Naqī K and he got his father's title of Dīānat K his death this great office fell to his son Mīrak Muhammad Taqī After his death his brother who obtained the title of Wazāiat K He served in the Mīr Muhammad Husam K was appointed time of Nawāb \overline{A} saf Jāh afterwards, and was fully trusted At last he received the title of Yamīnu-d-daulah Mansūr Jang He and Samsāmu-d-daulah were martyred on the same day

I now proceed to give an account of Nawāb Samsāmu-d-daulah The virtues of his incomparable Amīr are beyond the powers of the pen to delineate, nor could a wide expanse of parchment contain them. Truly the eye of the world never beheld another Amīr with such a combination of excellencies, nor have the ancient heavens ever weighed in the balance of a vision a statesman of such an universality of talents. From the beginning of his development the marks of rectitude appeared on his forehead, and the lights of future excellence shone on the brow of his actions. He was born on 29 Ramzān i 1111 9th March, 1700, in Lahoie As many of his relations were in Aurangabad, he went there in early youth 2 In the beginning he had an office on the establishment of Nawab Asaf Jāh, and some time after he was appointed to the imperial diwānī of Beiai He was long in this office and discharged the duties well so that the Nawab Asaf Jah remarked one day, that the work of Mīi 'Abdu-i-Razzāq had vigoui and smaitness 3 (nimakī dārad) When Muhammad Shah the ruler of Delhi summoned Nawab Asaf Jah to his presence in 1150, 1737, and Nawab Isaf Jah went off to the capital, leaving his son and hen Nawab Nizamu-d-daulah Nasır Jang as his deputy Samsamu-d-daulah became associated The latter made him diwan of his own office as with the son well as royal diwan, and he conducted the duties of both offices with supreme ability and integrity

¹ He died in Lahore, and Samsāmu-d-daulah was a posthumous child Maasir III, 721

When Nawāb Āsaf Jāh i eturned from Hindustan to the Deccan, wicked men instigated Nawāb Nizāmu-d-daulah to oppose his honoured father. Such was not the opinion of Nawāb Samsāmu-d-daulah. On the contrary he uiged him to agree with his father. As a great crowd of wicked men were gathered from every side, the words of Samsāmu-d-daulah were of no avail. On the day when the son and the father met in battle, Samsāmu-d-daulah was on a elephant following that of Nizāmu-d-daulah (i e Nāsii Jang). When Nizāmu-d-daulah's army was defeated and Āsaf Jāh's men captured his elephant, Harz-Ullah K, the grandson of S'aad

^{1 28}th 15 days after his father's death Maasir III, 721

² It appears from 1, 611 that he was in Lahore in 1127, 1715, where he saw Hamīdu-d-din He was then 15 He left for the Deccan in that same year for he tells us at III 722 that he left for the Deccan in the year that Husain 'Ah the Bārha Saiyid left for the Deccan, and this was in 1127, or 1715 He was made diwān of Berar in 1145, or 1732 In the biography of his grandfather Muhammad Kāzim the author indulges in much ihetoric about himself At III, 728 he says he spent about six years in retirement At p 740 of Vol III in the biography of Mubāriz the author mentions that he was with the Nizāmu l-mulk in his campaign of 1136, 1724 when Mubāriz was defeated and killed From the way in which he describes the battle, etc., it would seem that he would have preferred if Mubāriz had been successful

³ Maasır III, 722

⁴ See Maasii II, 521, apparently he was the great-grandson of Shah

Ullah K Vızıer—who had an acquaintance with Samsāmu-d-daulah—said to him, "Nizāmu-d-daulah is going to his father's house, where are you going ? You have fulfilled the conditions of loyalty as far as was proper, you should withdraw from this dangerous place" Samsāmu-d-daulah got off the elephant and withdrew For a time he was under Nawāb Āsaf Jāh's displeasure, and lived in retirement. During this period he engaged in drafting and writing the Maasiru-l-Umarā He spent five years in this way At last Nawāb Āsāf Jāh at the close of his reign withdrew the ban in 1160, 1747, and made him diwan of Berar as formerly. Shortly afterwards Asaf 2 Jāh died and Nizāmu-d-daulah sat on the mas-He summoned Samsāmu-d-daulah from Berar and made him nadhis own diwan as formerly He thoroughly discharged the duties of the entire diwani which consisted of the viziership of the six prov-When Nızāmu-d-daulah at the summons of inces of the Deccan Ahmad Shah the ruler of India proceeded towards Shahjahanabad (Delhi) he left Samsāmu-d-daulah in the Deccan, and at the time of departure gave him his own ring saying to him that it was Solomon's seal (indicating that it was the seal of the prime minis-But when the Nawab had come as far as the Narbadda he, in accordance with the orders of his sovereign, returned to the Deccan When his army marched to Arcot, and he was victorious over Mozaffar³ Jang, Samsāmu-d-daulah represented to him that he should not remain there, but should leave Muhammad 4 'Alī K Anwāru-d-dīn K Shahāmat Jang of Gopāmau (in Oudh) there

Jahan's Vizier See what seems to be a not altogether candid account of the affair in Maasir III, 725—726

¹ He went to the house of Matahawar K, for an account of whom see Maasir U III, 108 in notice of Qutbuddin Khweshgi Matahawar died in 1156 There is a long account of Matahawar K in the third volume, p 776 It is stated at p 793 that the author was enabled by the exertions of Matahawar to take up his abode in the Decean Probably this means that he married into Matahawar's family, for he mentions at p 722 of the same article that he married and so became fixed in the Deccan

² He died in 1161, 22 May 1748 (Beale) Colonel Wilks in his Hist Sketches I, 258, gives 24 March 1784 as the date, and says it happened on the same day as the battle of Myconda along with the English in order that they might chastise the French Christians of Pondicherry—Nawāb Nizāmu-d-daulah did not listen, and some short-sighted men who wished, for their own selfish ends, to stay there, induced the Nawāb to remain in that country until there happened what happened ¹

³ His sister's son and the grandson of Asaf Jāh His real name was Hidayat Mohīu-d-dīn (Wilks)

⁴ Burke's Nawab of Arcot

After the martyrdom of Nawab Nizamu-d-daulah, the rule came to Mozafiar Jang. He turned away from the country, and was killed? near the city of Kurpa (Cudappah). Then Nawab Salabat Jang Amīru-l-Mamālik 4 Āsaf Jāh became ruler, and proceeded to Karnül from Kurpa Nawah Samsamu-d-daulah was with the army up to this point, but in Kainul he separated and went rapidly to Amangabad. The writer of this notice accompanied him on this occasion. Samsamu-d-daulah remained? for some time in his house and on 9 Rajab 1165 12 May 1752, went to Haidarabad in order to appear before Nawāb Amīru-l-Mamālik (Salābat Jang) He appeared before him and was appointed to the Subahdārī of Haidarabad After sometime he was dismissed from this appointment and went into retirement. At last Navāb Amīru-l-Mamālik came to Aurangabad and on 11 Şafi 1167, 11 December 1753 he gave him a robe of honour and made him prime minister and gave him the rank of Hafthazārī (7000) together with 7000 horse and the title of Samsāmu-d-daulah. He filled the office for four years and discharged the duties in gross and in detail in an excellent manner. In spite of the want of materials he did wonders so that the wise were amazed. When he became prime minister, the affairs of Nawab Amīru-l-Mamālik were in an extraordinary condition so that from want of money his household furniture had to be sold Samsāmu-d-daulah put things to right in an admirable manner so that the waters which had departed returned to their channels (a phrase) and disorganization was succeeded by order. The refractory put the ring of obedience in their ear and the crooked in thought the saddle cloth of rectitude on their

¹ Nāsii Jang's assassination which took place on 5 December 1750, Wilks id I, 267, note, and Grant-Duff II, 45

² February 1751 He was killed at

Raichoutee about half of his journey to Golconda, Wilks I, 272, and Beale

³ Ho was dismissed for a time at Bussy's instance and then restored by the same influence.

shoulder Peace quickly returned to the country, and the peasantry, and subjects generally, enjoyed repose in the coolness of justice. In the space of four years he equalised the income and expenditure, and he used to say that next year Please God! the receipts would exceed the disbursements

To be blief, after he was established in the ministry he set the standards of Nawab Amīru-l mamālık ın motion and proceeded towards Berar in order to chastise Raghū Bhonsla He defeated him and took five lacs of rupees as tribute. From Berar he proceeded to Naimal 1 Suryā Rāo, the zamindar of Narmal, had been in rebellion from the time of Asaf Jah and had repeatedly defeated the government troops Samsāmu-d-daulah contrived to imprison him, and confiscated his territory He accomplished these two great things in the first year of his ministry He spent the rainy season in Haidarabad and in the second year 1168 1755, he brought Nawāb Amīru-l-mamālik to Mysoie and took fifty lacs of rupees from the Rajah of Mysore as tribute In the beginning of the rainy season he returned to Haidarabad At this time the Sultan of Delhi 'Alamgir the 2nd sent the insignia of 2 Mahi-u-Maratib to Samsāmu-d-daulah Some one made this versified chronogram

Verse

From the Shah of Ind came mahī and also marātīb 1168 (Az Shāh Hind āmid mahī u ham marātīb)

In the third year 1169, he assisted Rāo Bālājī The circumstances are these Rāo Bālājī besieged the city of Savānūi ³ The Afghans strengthened the fort of Savānūr and defended it vigorously They made frequent sallies and smote the men in the batteries Rāo Bālājī was in difficulties and asked help from Samsāmu-daulah Good God! Rāo Bālājī who took possession of the territories of the Deccan and of Hindustan, and who shook the emperor

¹ In Telinganah, Jarrett II, 237, the Neermul of Grant-Duff's map, it is E Nandair

³ "The fish and dignities" See Irvine, Army of the Moghuls, 33

³ It seems also to be called Banka pūr, Wilks I, 19 Savānūr is in the Dhārwar district of the Bombay Presidency of Delhi and the pillars of his throne, turned for assistance to Samsāmu-d-daulah! He brought Nawāb Amīru-l-mamālik to his help, and conveyed an army to Savānūr. He set up batteries and put artillery in position so that the Afghans changed their tone and proposed peace. After this Samsāmu-d-daulah set about the overthrow of the Christians.

Beitknown that when Nawāb Nizāmu-d-daulah Nāsir Jang went to Arcot in older to put down Mozaffai Jang, the latter with the help of the French Christians at Pondicheily showed fight and was defeated. The Christians slunk back to Pondicherry and Mozaffai Jang was made prisoner. The Christians again made a disturbance with the help of the Afghans, and they maityred Nizāmu-d-daulah, and raised Mozaffar Jang to power. As I have described at length in the Sarv Āzād, the Christians before this were confined to the poits and did not stretch their feet beyond their limit. They became bold after the martyrdom of Nizāmu-d-daulah and perceived the sweets of conquest. Part of the Arcot territory came into the possession of the French, and part was seized by the English. The also prevailed over Bengal and took the castle of Surat, et cetera. Such was the beginning of the Christian power.

In short, after the martyrdom of Nawab Nizamu-d-daulah, Mozaffai took the French Christians into service, and made them his supporters After he was killed, the Christians became the servants of Nawāb Amīru-l-mamālık, and took as then fiefs Sīkākul (Chicacole), Rajbandaıı (Rajahmahendrı) and other places, and became M Bussy, the head of the Christians, received the titles of Saifu-d-daulah (Sword of the State) and 'Umdatu-l-mulk (Pillar of the Kingdom) and acquired fame Haidai Jang became the manager of his affairs Haidar I Jang's extraction and position were as His real name was 'Abdu-i-Rahmān, and his father Khwāja Qalandar was of Balkh and came in the time of Nawāb Āsaf Jāh from Balkh and obtained consideration He became governor (faujdar) of Machlibandaı (Masulipatam), and the government accounts were in his charge He had in Masulipatam become acquainted with some Christians and owing to this connection he went to Pondicherry and lived under the protection of the Christians Haidar Jang was young then and the governor, lie, the captain or Hākim of Pondicherry, took a great fancy to him When Mozaffar Jang became Chief, the governor placed with him a body of Christians under the command of M Bussy 'Abdu-r-Rahmān was sent along with M Bussy to be a link between the Muhammadans and the Christians As he was a man of ability he got great promotion and had full control of the affairs of the Feringhis and received the title of Asad Ullah (Lion of God) Haidar Jang

¹ See Wilks I, 390

In fine, Samsāmu-d-daulah, after disposing of the affaii of the Afghans of Savānūr, wanted to drive out the Christians, and Amīiu-l-mamālik at his instigation dismissed them from his service They went off to Haidarabad, and got possession of it Nawāb Amiru-l-mamālik followed them and besieged the city for nearly two months. There was fighting, but at last, owing to the treachery of officers, peace was made, and 'Umdatu-l-mulk (Bussy) and Ḥaidai Jang came and had an interview (with the Nawāb). As during the siege the fiefs of the Christians had become disoiganised, 'Umdatu-l-mulk and Haidar Jang took leave and went off to Rajamahendrī and Chicacole and put the estates in order. Samsāmu-d-daulah spent the rains in Haidarabad and left it in the fourth year of his ministry 1170, 1756-57. Rām Candra Mahratta held pos-

3 Rām Candra Jadow, Grant Duff Hist of Mahrattas, II, 106

¹ Text Kūrundūr كورىدور nām kaptān y'anı hākım Wilson l c 278 has Captain Graven There does not appear to have been any such person, but if the word was so written in Wilson's MSS it might stand for Kerjean or De Kerjean, the Kirjean of Orme, who was Dupleix's nephew and a noted soldier, though he never was governor of Pondicherry Irvine has suggested Godeheu who was the governor after Duplers, but he only came to Pondicherry in 1754 when Haidar could hardly have been very young (khurd sal) and the spellling does not agree I have no doubt that the word is the Portuguese

Governador or Gobernador and that the first letter should be a G, Gāf and not Kāf The fact of its coming from the Portuguese accounts for the d See Hobson-Jobson, 2nd ed, 390 In a Persian petition of one Shāh Alāuddīn Muhammad in the Marsden MSS B M Add, 9585, the word Kūrundūr occurs, as applied to a Portuguese official

² Ghulām 'Alī says in his Khazāna 'Āmra that Mozaffai was the first man to employ Feringhi soldiers (in the Deccan) and Orme says the same thing

3 Rām Candra Jadow, Grant-

session, from the time of Asaf Jāh, of Bhālkī 1 and other estates appertaining to the province of Bidar and which yielded lacs of rent-From a bad disposition he did not perform the duties of a subject, and Samsāmu-d-daulah desired to take his estates from him Rām Candra made preparations for wai, but after some vain attempts he put the ring of submission in his ear, and his jagns, except Bhalki were confiscated In the beginning of the rains Samsāmu-d-daulah came with Nawāb Amīru-l-mamālik to Aurang-At this time a force was sent to besiege Daulatabad fort was taken from the Bokhara Saiyids who had held it from the time of 'Alamgii (Aurangzeb) After this, the juggling heavens began to turn the page and girded up their loins for the discomfiture of Samsāmu-d-daulah They took back from him all his wisdom and understanding The brief account of these events is as follows pay of the soldiers was much in arrear Wicked men stirred them up and they made clamorous demands Samsāmu-d-daulah could have quelled the disturbance by the expenditure of two lacs of rupees, but as the time of his downfall had come, he did not exert himself On 6 Zī-l-q'ada 1170, 23 July 1757, the soldiers brought Nawāb Shujā'-ul-mulk Basālat Jang, the son of Nawāb Āsaf Jāh, out of his house and produced him before Amīru-ul-mamālik They made him dismiss Samsāmu-d-daulah 2 and give the Khilāt of the prime ministry to Basālat Jang There was a general 110t, and the rabble and the market people made a commotion and wanted to fall upon But circumstances occurred which the house of Samsāmu-d-daulah postponed the attack till evening At night the leaders of the not Samsāmu-d-daulah was apprehensive that if on the morrow they made a demonstration, he would not be able to contend with his master It would be better for him to withdraw At midnight he put loads of necessary chattels on elephants and left property worth lacs, and various curiosities, and proceeded towards the fort of Daulatabad along with his household, male and female Of his followers nearly 500, horse and foot, attended Torches were lighted, and he came out armed from his house He took the road to the Zafar gate of the city wall. The guards of the gate could not stand against him and fled. They (Samsāmu-d-daulah's party) broke the bolts of the gate and came out. Near morning on the 8, Zī-l-q'ada 1170, 25 July 1757, they reached Daulatabad. After his departure some of his goods were plundered, but most of them were confiscated to the government. After some time an army was appointed by the Government and the fort of Daulatabad was besieged, and fighting went on Samsāmu-d-daulah was adorned with pleasing qualities and amiable dispositions, but it sometimes happens that the Almighty casts his servants out of public favour, and in order to adjust their final rank places them in the world's judgment-hall, and exposes This was exemplified in Samsāmu-d-dauthem to the evils of trial lah's case In spite of his qualities and merits, he was now abandoned by all, high and low, countiers and costermongers (darbārī-u No one uttered a word except "Seize him and kill him" If anyone stood firm on the path of fidelity and preserved his affection for him, where had he the coulage to say anything or to set in motion the chain of investigation? This poor man was the only one who made an agitation, and disregarded the enmity of the I had interviews with Nawāb Shujā'-ul-mulk and whole world In order to bring about laid the foundations of a reconciliation peace I repeatedly went to the fort, and by all sorts of stratagems and contrivances protracted the siege of the fort The terms of peace had not been fully settled, when Nawāb Nızāmu-d-daulah the 2nd who was Nazım of the province of Berar came from Elchīpūr The Nawāb Amīru-l-mamālık made him to Aurangabad successor and gave him the title of Nizāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jāh sent for the writer of this notice, and charged him with conciliatory messages for Samsāmu-d-daulah He signed the list of his conditions in accordance with his (Samsāmu-d-daulah's) request and I took the list and went to the fort. made it over to the writer and made Samsāmu-d-daulah eager to come into the Presence. The Nawab Asaf Jah sent the chief officers to welcome him, and Samsāmu-d-daulah came out of the fort on 1 Rabī'-al-awal 1171, 13 November 1757, and had an interview, in the precincts of the fort, with the officers who had come to meet him. On the same day he waited upon Nawāb Āsaf Jāh 2nd, and Nawāb Amīiu-l-mamālik, and was the object of various favours

¹ The Balkee of Grant-Duff's map It is N W Bidar and Haidarabad

² Grant-Duff Hist of Mahrattas, II, 107

At this time Bālājī Rāo approached Aurangabad with hostile intentions, and made his son Biswās Rāo his general Rajah Rām Candia had come from his own country in order to interview Nawāb Amīru-l-mamālik, and had reached 1 Sindkhair, 30 kos from The Mahrattas besieged him there and put him Aurangabad Nawāb Āsaf Jāh maiched from Aurangabad to Sindinto straits khair and delivered 2 Rām Candra from the whilpool of danger There were great fights on the way and Nawab Asaf Jah gave proof of heart and courage A number of the enemy were slain by On this occasion Samsāmu-d-daulah waited on his the sword Meanwhile news came that 'Umdatu-l-mulk M Bussy and Haidar Jang had disposed of the affairs of the jagirs and intended to interview Amīru-l-mamālik They airīved at Haidarabad, and Haidar Jang wiote letter after letter to Samsāmu-d-daulah showed such sincerity that Samsāmu-d-daulah fully believed in his honesty He became quite oblivious of his trickery The victorious army had returned from Sindkhair and had encamped in Shahgarha when Haidar Jang came to the Presence, and the whole camp came to Aurangabad, and settled down on the north side of the city

Samsāmu-d-daulah completely surrendered into the hands of Ḥaidar Jang the bridle of control, and the latter moved along the path of deception, gathering up the nets of fraud and deceit Though acquaintances who knew his trickery, openly, and by hints, told Samsāmu-d-daulah about him, he did not believe them He relied upon the honesty of foes and did not weigh in the balance of consideration the well-wishing of friends At last on 26 Rajab 1171, 5 April 1758, Amīr-ul-mamālik 3 went to visit the garden Bagh Begam in Aurangabad Haidar Jang made ready his plot there, and when Samsāmu-d-daulah and Yamīnu-d-daulah—who has been mentioned —came, in obedience to a summons—to that garden, both of them

¹ It is east of Aurangabad

² Grant-Duff speaks of the rescue as a farce, II, 109

^{3 &}quot;He went to pay his devotions at the tomb of his father some miles from Aurangabad" Wilks I, 390 were put under arrest. They were taken to the camp and put into separate tents. Mīi 'Abdu-l-Hayy K, Mīr 'Abdu-s-Sālām K and Mīr Abdu-n-nabī the sons of Samsāmu-d-daulah were also sent for and confined in their father's tent which was surrounded by Christian sentinels. Samsāmu-d-daulah's house was plundered of what had been a second time gathered together and the veiled ladies of the Saryids were turned out of doors. Samsāmu-d-daulah's connexions and those who were in his confidence and were possessed of abilities were put into strict confinement. Their money was taken from them, and such was the oppressions practised on the Saryids that the catastrophe of the Karbalā was renewed

In fact these proceedings did not turn out well for Haidar Jang The Nawab Asaf Jah 2nd conceived the idea of wiping out his existence. One reason for this was that Haidar Jang had broken faith with Samsāmu-d-daulah and that he could not be trusted Another reason was that Haidar Jang had first deprived Āsaf Jāh of his plumage, and then imprisoned Samsāmu-d-daulah The account of this is that Nawab Asaf Jah brought a powerful army from Berar, and took the management of political and financial affairs into his hands Haidar Jang saw that this influence could not exist along with Asaf Jah's, and set about overthrowing By various tricks he separated the troops from the Nawab, and distributed from his own purse eight lacs of rupees as the After that soldiers' pay Thus he reduced the Nawab to solitude he imprisoned Samsāmu-d-daulah, and so made himself at ease on both sides He wished to send Asaf Jah to Haidaiabad on the pretence of making him the Subahdar thereof, but intended to confine him in the fort of Golconda The field would then be open for his own evolutions. He did not know that fate (taqdīr) laughed at plans (tadbīr) On 3 Ramzān 1171, 11 May 1758, at about midday! Haidar Jang came to the tent of Asaf Jah who had already determined with his councillors to assassinate him The household servants seized and killed him, and Asaf Jah mounted a horse and came out alone from the camp The whole park of artillery of the Feringhis remained in empty bewilderment and Āsaf Jāh displayed a courage 1 such as threw into the shade the feats of Rustum and Afrasyab After the slaughter of Haidar Jang, 'Umdatu-l-mulk M Bussy and the other officers lost their senses During the confusion, the waiters upon events martyred Samsamu-ddaulah, his young son Mīr 'Abdu-l-Ghanī and Yemīnu-d-daulah The good thing was that Haidar Jang, the real murderer of these Saiyids, was killed four hours before them! Samsāmu-d-daulah heard with his own ears of his death and said "Now our safety does not appear to me" (does not look likely) and so he devoted himself to prayer (lit sate fixed in contemplation of the qibla). At last Lachmanan, a Hindu, one of the followers of the Christians, came and killed them. Father and son were buried in the grave of their ancestors on the south side of the city, near the shrine of Shāh Nūr.2 and Yemīnu-d-daulah was buried in the grave of his ancestors at the foot of Shah Nur's dome The writer found the date of the martyrdom of all three Saiyids in the glorious verse Wujūh (un) yaumaız (in) musfirah 3 "On that day the faces of some shall be bright" 1171 He also put the death of Samsāmu-d-daulah into this verse

¹ Qarıb ba ıstawā Istawā is again used in the sense of midday at p 37

Verse

Samsāmu-d-daulah went from the world, The thud of the illustrious month of Ramzān

¹ The courage consisted in ordering an assassination, and then flying! The Nawāb fled to Burhanpur 150 m N of Aurangabad Haidar Jang was stabbed to the heart, and not slain by having his throat cut as the translation of the Siyar Mutakhirin has it Orme ed , 1778, II, 349, says Nızām 'Alī fled at midnight to Brampur (Burhanpur) and after he knew of the killing of Shah Nawaz and his son this circumstance which disconcerted Bussy judged it better not to try to catch the Nızām and bring him to justice Ghulam 'Ali repeats his account of these matters in the

Khazīna 'Āmra and gives the same details about Ibrahīm K Gārdī See his account of Salābat Jang

² A saint who died 2 February, 1693, and is buried near Aurangabad (Beale 367)

S This verse is in the 80th Sura, entitled "He frowned", verse 38, and is translated by Sale "On that day the faces of some shall be bright, laughing and joyful," etc. The letters w, j, u, h, y, u, m, i, z, m s, f, r, h give 1171 (1758) according to abjad. The chronogram is a neat one

The Saiyid himself declared the year "Slain we by 'Abdu-i-Rahman' (1171) 1

The writer also composed this quatiain

Quatrarn

Samsāmu-d-daulah the great Amīr, the sage, Wrongfully slam in treachery's ambush, Alas for the oppresed, alas!

Azād presents the date Hear O friends!

"Wietches martyred the Saiyid" 1171, "We are God's 2"

Be it known that Mii 'Abdu-l-Hayy and Mīi 'Abdu-s-Salām remained safe on the day of their father's martyrdom. The reason was that Mīr 'Abdu-l-Hayy had been separated from his father one day before, and that Mīr Abdu-s-Salām had been sent from the tent to a house on account of sickness. Because the lives of both brothers were predestined, God put it into the hearts of their enemies to separate them from their father. In the safety of Mīr 'Abdu-l-Hayy and Mīr 'Abdu-s-Salām, the writer of this notice received the flash of inspiration that "Names descend from heaven." The names Hayy (God) and Salām s (safety) did their work and preserved both their namesakes

After Haidai Jang was killed, Amīru-l-mamālik, Shujā'-al mulk, 'Umdatu-l-mulk M Bussy, and Zū-l-fiqār Jang the brothei of Haidar Jang—who became his representative—went off to Haidarabad After coming there Zū-l-fiqār Jang went off to his fiefs of Rajamahendri and Chicacole, and 'Umdatu-l-mulk went to Pondicherry Wai broke out between the Zamindar of Chicacole and Zū-l-fiqār Jang and the latter was shamefully defeated His soldiers were routed and the contents of his jewel room and wardrobe as well as his elephants and artillery fell into the hands of the Zamindar.

¹ It would have been more correct to say that they were killed by Asaf Jah the 2nd for it was his assassination of Haidar that caused their deaths

² Innā Allah "We are God's, and unto Him shall we surely return"

Koran, Sura II, v 151 (Sale) The words, shahīd nākasan Saiyidrā yield 1171

³ Salām is one of the names of God and Hayy means "The living" (God), see Redhouse RASJ for January 1880, on "the most comely names"

He and a few others saved their lives Lacmanān the murderer of Samsāmu-d-daulah was killed and also Muhammad Husain the Jam'adār of the Gārdīs He had been put in charge of Samsāmu-d-daulah and his friends and connexions, and had ill-treated them and both he and his men were killed

'Umdatu-l-mulk M Bussy who went towards Pondicherry, be-seiged Cīnāpatan (Madras) the English port and made several fiery attempts (ātish kārzāi) At last the English were victorious and 'Umdatu-l-mulk had to fly, completely broken, to Pondicherry In a few months retribution⁸ for the blood of the Saryids blossomed out. Or rather, retribution in the case of Haidar Jang's person was heard of by Samsāmu-d-daulah with his own ears.

Nawāb Samsāmu-d-daulah was a congenes of perfections and was familiar with all the sciences. The questions of every science were present in the treasury of his memory and he was unique in the comprehension of poetry. He knew well the idioms of the Persian tongue, and foreign Mīrzās (Persian literati) who met him were astonished at his idiomatic knowledge. He used to say "I lay claim to two things. One is justice, for in intricate questions I arrive at a right conclusion, and I distinguish between truth and falsehood. The other is a knowledge of poetry." One day he said to the writer "This opening stanza of Faizī's is well known

Verse 4

Two griefs have befallen me in love's path I'm the doomed one, and the beloved is the slayer

According to the apparent meaning, one grief is that the lover is slain, and the other is that the beloved is the slayer

¹ Grant-Duff II, 114 He thinks he was probably killed at Condore in the battle between Forde and Conflans in December 1758

² See Siyar Mutākharin trans III, 355 n Gārdi is from the French garde See Hobson-Jobson, new edition

³ Salābat Jang Amīru-l-mamālık also had a violent death He was implisoned by his brother Nizam 'Ālī (the same man who killed Haidar Jang) and after two years was murdered by Nizam 'Ālī's orders in 1763 See Beale, Wilks I, 479, and Khazīna 'Amrā 61

⁴ The verse is quoted in the Ain, Blochmann 535, but the translation there given is wrong

Therefore escape is impossible. But another meaning occurs to me. One grief is that the lover is the doomed one (lhūngirifta 'at the point of death'), God forbid that another than the loved one should slay him! The second grief is that the beloved has become a murderer. God forbid that he should kill anyone but the lover! Both of these things are unendurable by the lover!"

He was an unrivalled Secretary, and his letters have a special chaim Alas that they have not been collected! If they were, readers would have an exquisite eye-salve. He was the unique of the age in historical knowledge, especially as regards the history of the Timuide kings of India and their ministers. This book, the Maasiru-l-Umarā, is a proof of it which masters of the science will recognise He had collected a large library of Arabic and Persian books, and he often compared and corrected them with his own hand. At this time his library is in confusion His viitues were greater than can be described He had a lofty nature and a firmness of mind such that Aristotle might have been his pupil had a sedate and majestic soul, and was also affable, sympathetic, just and modest, faithful, pure, straightforward, truthful very indignant against falsehood and never esteemed a liar Whenever he got money, he spent a tenth of it on the needy and he had a separate tithe-treasury and disbursed from it to the deserving He was an office-adorning officer When he sate on the masnad he graced it without formality Two days in the week, Tuesdays and Fridays, were set apart for the administration of justice He had plaintiff and defendant brought before him, and exerted himself to get at the real issue He had at his finger-ends the regulations of the country, and in the matter of consultations about public matters he had no off-time either by day or by night He had no privy councilloi The wise of the day were mirrors of astonishment on beholding his lofty perception and his powers of reasoning reciting the morning prayer he set to business and was occupied Then he recited the afternoon till midday when he took a siesta prayer and again occupied himself with business Up to midnight

l This is very doubtful if, as the writer says, they were modelled on Abūl Fazl's See I O M S Ethá, 1464, p 143b, for Fazzī's couplet

or even later he was engaged in political and financial matters. He examined all applicants face to face and had no one to introduce them. He presided with dignity on the bench, and he was humble and pleasant in privacy.

Nawāb Sālāi Jang Bahādur related that Samsāmu-d-daulah after coming out of the fort of Daulatabad said to him "I have come to know that these external l circumstances (of prosperity) which have been gathered round me have no permanency " (i e Sālāi Jang) asked him "how he knew" and he replied "God has informed me" The same Nawab told that "On the day they took the ministry from him, and there was a great commotion I and many others spent the night in his house and could not sleep on account of anxiety. At dawn when I met him he said 'This night I slept quietly'" He also told that the Nawab Samsāmu-d-daulah said to him "Before going into the fort, stock was taken of the carpet store-100m and there were found 200 odd carpet and rugs, on the day I went to the fort not one carpet was found "Under these circumstances there was not the least change in his feelings. The writer of this notice tells that when Nawāb Nızāmu-d-daulah came to Aicot and was victorious over Mozaffar Jang, the officers of the district were summoned to the presence On account of the Diwani a tent had been pitched for them, at Nawāh Samsāmu-d-daulah's entrance One day I came out of his tent, and a man came running up and said, "Hājī 'Abdu-sh-Shakūr, a former officer says, 'I'm in the hands of the sazāwals (appartors) and am not allowed to move!' Do you push severity to such an extent as this ? " I had no acquaintance with the officer in question, but I saw that it would be cruel not to visit him I went, and he complained about the calling for accounts, and his being confined by the sazāwals I immediately went back to Samsāmu-d-daulah and said, "Hājī 'Abdu-sh-Shakūr an officei ('āmil, a collector) who is reckoned among the officers is at the entrance, and you should send for him '' The Nawab replied "It is not according to rule that a collector whose accounts are under examination should

¹ The sentence is obscure, but apparently the meaning is that Samsāmu-d-daulah felt that the present return to favour would not last

Therefore escape is impossible. But another meaning occurs to me. One guef is that the lover is the doomed one (Lhūnquifta 'at the point of death'), God forbid that another than the loved one should slay him! The second guef is that the beloved has become a murderer. God forbid that he should kill anyone but the lover! Both of these things are unendurable by the lover!"

He was an univalled Secretary, and his letters have a special charm Alas that they have not been collected! If they were, readers would have an exquisite eye-salve He was the unique of the age in historical knowledge, especially as regards the history of the Timuide kings of India and their ministers. This book, the Maasıru-l-Umarā, is a proof of it which masters of the science will recognise He had collected a large library of Arabic and Persian books, and he often compared and corrected them with his own hand At this time his library is in confusion. His viitues were greater than can be described He had a lofty nature and a firmness of mind such that Aristotle might have been his pupil had a sedate and majestic soul, and was also affable, sympathetic, just and modest, faithful, pure, straightforward, truthful He was very indignant against falsehood and never esteemed a har ever he got money, he spent a tenth of it on the needy and he had a separate tithe-treasury and disbuised from it to the deserving He was an office-adorning officei When he sate on the masnad he graced it without formality Two days in the week, Tuesdays and Fridays, were set apart for the administration of justice He had plaintiff and defendant brought before him, and exerted himself to get at the real issue He had at his finger-ends the regulations of the country, and in the matter of consultations about public matters he had no off-time either by day or by night He had no privy councilloi The wise of the day were mirrors of astonishment on beholding his lofty perception and his powers of reasoning After reciting the morning player he set to business and was occupied till midday when he took a siesta Then he recited the afternoon prayer and again occupied himself with business Up to midnight

¹ This is very doubtful if, as the writer says, they were modelled on Abūl Fazl's See I O M S Ethe, 1464, p 143b, for Fazī's couplet

or even later he was engaged in political and financial matters. He examined all applicants face to face and had no one to introduce them. He presided with dignity on the bench, and he was humble and pleasant in privacy.

Nawāb Sālāi Jang Bahādur ielated that Samsāmu-d-daulah after coming out of the fort of Daulatabad said to him "I have come to know that these external i circumstances (of prosperity) which have been gathered round me have no permanency " (i e Sālār Jang) asked him "how he knew" and he replied "God has informed me" The same Nawab told that 'On the day they took the ministry from him, and there was a great commotion I and many others spent the night in his house and could not sleep on account of anxiety At dawn when I met him he said 'This night I slept quietly'" He also told that the Nawab Samsāmu-d-daulah said to him "Before going into the fort, stock was taken of the carpet store-room and there were found 200 odd carpet and lugs, on the day I went to the foit not one calpet was found "Under these circumstances there was not the least change in his feelings. The writer of this notice tells that when Nawāb Nızāmu-d-daulah came to Alcot and was victorious over Mozaffar Jang, the officers of the district were summoned to the presence On account of the Diwānī a tent had been pitched for them, at Nawāh Samsāmu-d-daulah's entrance One day I came out of his tent, and a man came running up and said, "Hājī 'Abdu-sh-Shakūr, a former officer says, 'I'm in the hands of the sazāwals (appartors) and am not allowed to move!' Do you push severity to such an extent as this?" I had no acquaintance with the officer in question, but I saw that it would be cruel not to visit him I went, and he complained about the calling for accounts, and his being confined by the sazāwals I immediately went back to Samsāmu-d-daulah and said, "Hājī 'Abdu-sh-Shakūr an officer ('āmil, a collector) who is reckoned among the officers is at the entrance, and you should send for him '' The Nawab replied "It is not according to rule that a collector whose accounts are under examination should be brought into the Presence." I said "I don't say that he should be excused his rendering accounts, but still I should like that he should be summoned to your presence '' The Nawab was for refusing, but I persisted At last the Nawab sent for him, and saw his condition, and was very sympathetic He said "To-morrow be present at the door of Nawab Nızamu-d-daulah's house" also charged the ushers to let him know whenever he came day Hājī 'Abdu-sh-Shakūı appeared at the door and the usher (chōbdār) reported the fact Nawāb Samsāmu-d-daulah represented to Nawāb Nızāmu-d-daulah '' Hājī 'Abdu-sh-Shakūi, a collector among the collectors whose accounts are under examination has Mīr Ghulām 'Alī told me he should be introduced, been summoned and I said that a collector under examination does not come into the Presence Though I persisted in my refusal, the Mīr would not let me off, so I was helpless and sent for him Now I make the same petition to you, viz, that he may be once for all brought into the Piesence" Nawab Nizamu-d-daulah ordered that he should be introduced As soon as he came in at the door, the Nawāb Nızāmu-d-daulah looked at him, and what did he see? bowed old man (pir) ninety years of age! He had his tunic $(pir\bar{a}$ han) on his breast, a green turban on his head, and a staff and passion Nawāb N. daylah called him to his side and gave quittee and asked after his health He put the signature of acproviance on his accounts and assigned him a daily maintenance and gave him a caillage (sawāri) from the government store, and then dismissed him

¹ The sentence is obscure, but apparently the meaning is that Samsāmu-d-daulah felt that the present return to favour would not last

The description of the virtues of Nawāb Samsāmu-d-daulah which has been made is but a drop from the clouds, and a single ray from the sun. May God receive the deceased into special mercy and adorn the chief place of Paradise with his presence!

Be it known that after the martyrdom of Samsāmu-d-daulah when the army went to Haidarabad, Mīr 'Abdu-l-Hayy K was taken with them and imprisoned in the fort of Golconda Mīr 'Abdu-s-Salām K remained in Aurangabad on account of sickness and was sent to the fort of Daulatabad Nawāb Asaf Jāh Sānī (the 2nd) after the killing of Haidai Jang went off rapidly on horse back towards Berar. He prepared an army and addressed himself to the chastisement ' of Jānojī, the son of Raghū Bhonsla Though he had a small force and the enemy was numerous he was victori-After that he went to Hardarabad Nawāb Amīru-l-mamālik, who had gone to Masulipatam to arrange matters, turned his rem and the two brothers had an interview in Haidarabad Āsaf Jāh according to the former arrangement sate on the masnad of the heir apparency, and took the bridle of the management of the political and financial affairs into his hands On 15 Zūl-q'ada 1172, 29 June 1759, Mir 'Abdu-l-Hayy' was brought out of the fort and had fresh life granted to him His old title was Shamsu-d-daulah Dilāwar Jang, but after coming out of the fort he received his father's title of Samsāmu-d-daulah Samsām Jang and the lank 6000 with 5000 hoise, and was an object of favour Mīr 'Abdu-s-Salām K was also, in accordance with orders, brought out of the fort of Daulatabad, and met his family May the Peace of God be upon them !

> ³In the name of God the merciful, the compassionate Praise be to God and peace be upon true believers ¹

The poor man 'Abdu-r-Razzāq Alhusamī Alkhwarazımī Alaurangabādī who from the beginning of the years of understanding, etc which as Ghulām 'Alī has said above, he added to 'Abdu-r-Razzāq's pre-face

This life by Ghulam 'Alī should be compared with Shah Newaz's account of himself and his ancestors in the biographies of his great grandfather Amanat K and his grandfather Muhammad Kānm K at Vol I, p 258, and Vol III, 715, of Bib Ind ed of the Maasir See also Elliot and Dowson VIII, 187 At Vol III, p 117, the author, in his biography of Qıl'adār K informs us that his grandmother was one of the four daughters of Qıl'adar K by a daughter of M Jamshid Beg At p 680 of the Maasır, Vol III, Shah Newāz mentions the interesting fact that he was

¹ Grant-Duff II, 118

² Ghulām 'Alī has a notice of 'Abdu-l-Hayy in the K Amrā lith p 296 There his pen-name seems to be given as Sināram which might mean 'My plane tree 'But though Sināram seems to be the reading in the IOMS of the KA, No 2979, p 224b, it is probable that the true reading is Sarim "a sharp sword" as given in 'Abdu-l-Hayy's conclusion to the Massr III, 974 He there says that this pen-name was adopted on account of its associations with his other title, and as Samsam means a sharp sword, Sārım seems appropriate Ghulam 'Alı says 'Abdu l-Hayy's penname was at first Waqār

³ This is the pious ejaculation

PREFACE TO TABLE OF CONTENTS (p 42 of Vol I (BY THE SON OF THE ORIGINAL AUTHOR)

It should be known that some of the biographies written by the founder of this work were left as imperfect drafts owing to excess of materials and to postponements. I have done my best to complete and correct them, and I have supplied a list of the biographies, and have added in red ink, the letter $q\bar{a}f$ to the supplementary names so that the words of that great man (his father) may be distinguished from those of an insignificant person like myself. The glorious collection contains 730 biographies as the following list shows very intimate with \underline{Kh} āfi \underline{Kh} ān, the historian

For Ghulām 'Alı's own biography see his Yad Baiza and his Maasir-ul-Ikrām He was born at Bilgrām on Sunday, 25 Safr 1116, 18 June 1704, and was the son of Muhammad Nūh He went in 1143, 1730-31, to Scinde and returned in 1147 He went to Mécca in 1150.

I This preface is by 'Abdu l-Hayy He has marked his additions with Qaf as an abbreviation for Ilhāq "supplement" See Rieu I, 341, col 2, and Ethé I O Cat, pp 253-55. Abdu-l-Hayy's list does not contain quite 730 biographies, but perhaps the discrepancy is the result of his mode of Occasionally two or more names are put under one head list does not always tally with those in the Bib Ind ed in the index vol In the latter there are one or two omissions, the result of oversight The total of the lists in the index volume is 720 The total in 'Abdu-l-Hayy's list according to the total numbers for each letter comes to 726 As a matter of fact the number of the biographies contained in the three volumes is considerably more than 726 for most of the notices end with accounts of the sons and grandsons of the subject of the biography

At the end of the third volume of the Maasir III, 973, 'Abdu-l-Hayy, the son of the original compiler of the work, gives a short account of himself and some specimens of his verses says he was born in 1142, 1729-1730, and that in 1162, receive l a mansab and the title of Khān from the martyred Nāsır Jang and was made Diwan of the province of Berar, and superintendent of Nasir Jang's fiefs there In the time of Salābat Jang he was made governor of Aurangabad and governor of the fort of Daulatabad Afterwards the Nızamu-l-mulk Nīzāmu-d-Nāwab daulah patronized him and he received his hereditary title and was made Diwan of the provinces of the Deccan, and the Nawab's companion in the battle and the banquet The title of Samsāmu-l-mulk was conferred on him and he assumed the pen-name of Sārım (a sharp sword) 'Abdu-l-Havy Samsāmu-l-mulk died at the fort of Kaulās, 15th Jumāda I, 1196, (28 April 1782) and was buried in his garden (cemetery?) at Haidarabad (Rieu I, 342) Kaulās, marked in some maps Kowlass, is in Haidarabad State and N N W of Haidarabad and N of Bidar There is an account of 'Abdu-l-Hayy in the Yad Baiza of Ghulam 'Alı, and also in the Khazina 'Amrā lithograph, p 296, under the name of Sārım

'ĀBDU-L-'AZĪZ KHĀN BAHĀDUR

Shaikh Maqbūl-i-'Ālam (a world-tavourite) was descended from S Farīdu-d-dīn Ganjshakar—May his grave be holy The abode of his ancestors was the village of Asiya lear Bilgram grandfathei was called S 'Alāu-d-dīn, but was commonly known as S Alhadiya They say that Saiyid Abū-l-Qāsim S Saiyid K Muhammad S. Saiyid Mahmud of Tatta 2 had three sons Of them Saiyid 'Abdu-l-Hakīm and Saiyid 'Abdu-l-Qādir were the offspring of a wife who was one of his kinsfolk. By another wife he had Saivid Badru-d-dīn who married in the village of Asiya Saiyid Badru-d-dīn had no son, his wife adopted her brother or sister's child and he got the name of S Alhadiya (the gift) When Saiyid Fāzil S Saiyid 'Abdu-l-Hakīm was acting as diwān of one of the Amīrs in Daulatabad, S Alhadiya was with him Amīr perceived his capabilities and sent him to the royal camp as his agent As S Alhadiya behaved well in business he gradually prospered He had three sons, and the third of them was 'Abdu 1-Rasūl K who was the father of the subject of this notice

Fīrūz Jang (Ghāzīu-d-dīn) Bahādui introduced him ('Abdu-l-'Azīz) to ioyal service in the time of Aurangzeb. Afterwards he obtained suitable rank and the name of Khidmat Talab Khān, and was made governor of the fort of Naldrug in the province of Bijapur, and also of Ausā in the province of Muhammadābād Bīdar. Afterwards he was, in the time of Nizāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jāh, made governor of the fort of Junair, and became a favourite of his. When the Nizāmu-l-mulk left Nāsii. Jang the maityred in the Deccan and went off to Muhammad Shāh, and Bājī Rāo, the Mahratta leader, raised the head of sedition, and the carpet of strife was widespread, Nāsir Jang was conceined about collecting men and summoned 'Abdu-l-'Azīz from Junair as he was famed for courage and was acquainted with the Mahratta tactics, and consulted with him. After the war with the

¹ The Asyūn of J II, 178, and the Asīwan in the Unao district of Oudh of the IG VI 13 See also Beames ASBJ, for 1884 p 227

² Text Bhata, but BMMS has Tatta and this is probably the correct reading

Mahrattas was ended, he made him Naib (Deputy) Sūbahdār of Aurangabad When after the return of Nizāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jah from Upper India there was a disagreement between father and son, and Nāsu Jang retired to the Khuldābād cemetery (Aurangzeb's cemetery) (Rauza) which is two kos from the fort of Daulatabad, 'Abdu-l-'Azīz took leave and went off from the Rauza to Asaf Jah He, on perceiving a want of favour, made a pretext to come to Aurangabad, and by letter and message induced Nāsir Jang to come out of the Rauza, so that at last he hasted to Mulhair and collected a force and came against his father in front of Aurangabad, and then there happened what happened When the business failed, 'Abdu-l-'Azīz went off to Junair After that, having contrived by various means—the best of which was the clemency 1 and prudence of Asaf Jah—to have his offences forgiven, secretly wrote and sent verbal messages to the court of Muhammad Shāh and asked for a sanad in his own name for the province of Gujarat, which was in the possession of the Mahrattas When Asaf Jah had his camp near Trichinopoly, he ('Abdu-l-'Azīz) enlisted many men and proceeded towards the province Mahrattas stopped him on the way and a battle took place, and as fate would have it, 'Abdu-l-'Azīz was maityred in 1156,1743 He was a bold man and acquainted with the work of making collections ('amildārī). He had no scruples about getting in money with or without reason One of his sons was Mahmūd 'Ālam K, who after his father was made governor of the fort of Junair and stayed there a long time When the Mahrattas became very powerful, and there was no hope of assistance, he received an estate from the Mahrattas and surrendered the fort to them. At the time of writing he is still alive. Another son was Khidmat Talab K who was at last made governor of the fort of Naldrug and died (Q)

'ABDU-L-'AZIZ KHAN, SHAIKH

A connection of S 'Abdu-l-Latīf' of Burhanpur As Aurangzeb had many associations with the latter, or rather was devoted to him on account of his virtues and piety, the Shaikh recommended 'Abdu-l-'Azīz, and he was enrolled as a servant In the battle with Maharajah Jeswant Singh he showed zeal and received one and twenty wounds, and was rewarded with a robe of honour and a horse When Aurangzeb marched from Agra to Delhi in pursuit of Dārā Shikoh, 'Abdu-l-'Azīz received the rank of 1,500 with 500 horse and the title of Khān, and was made governor of the fort of Raisin in Malwa In the 7th year he was summoned to court, and in the same year he was made, on the death of Mīr Bāqir K, faujdar of the Chakla of Suhind Afterwards he was made governot of the fort of Asīr, a dependency of the province of Aurangabad, and in the 20th year when Sīvā Bhonsla got his men up to the top of the fort by means of lassoes, he was active and slew them, and for a long time remained film there. In the 29th year corresponding to 1096, 1685, he died After him, his son Abū-l-Khair succeeded him, and in the 33rd year had charge of the fort of Rājgarha When the Mahratta army sent him a message to evacuate the fort, he became terrified and asked for quarter and came out with his family and necessary effects. The Mahrattas cast aside the agreement and seized whatever property they could get When this transaction was made known to the emperor, he dismissed Abū-l-Khair and appointed a strict sazāwal to see that Though his mother made great efforts and he went to Mecca obtained a revocation of the order, yet before this came he had already embarked at the port of Surat On his return he again became an object of favour and received his father's title, and was put in charge of the tomb of Shāh 'Abdu-l-Latīf which was ın the city of Burhanpur His son was Muhammad Nāsir K alias Mıyan Mastı (the mad Mıyan), who is serving other people At last he too has gone to the final lodging (Q)

¹ Cf II, 77, nine lines from foot 2 Khāfī K II, 553, etc

'ABDŪ-L-HĀDĪ KHWĀJA

Eldest son of Safdar K Khwāja Qāsım In the beginning of Shah Jahan's reign he was in the town of Sāronj which was his

¹ Khāfī K II, 392 On the same page mention is made of 'Abdu-l' 'Azīz as a slave who had been brought up by the family of Bairam K Khān-Khānān and as having been in charge of the fort of the Khaibar father's fief In the 4th year when Khān Jahān Lodī in concert with Daiiyā K Rohilla hastened from the Decean to Malwa, and came to that town, he took charge of its protection. Up to the 20th year he had a mansab of 900 with 600 horse, and in the 21st year he rose to the rank of 1,500 with 800 horse, and in the 23rd year he had an increase of 200 horse. In the 26th year he went off with Prince Dārā Shikoh who had been appointed to take Qandahar. At the time of departure, his rank was 2000 with 1000 horse and he had the gift of a khilāt, and a horse with a silvern saddle. In the 27th year he had the distinction of a flag. In the 30th year corresponding to 1066, 1656, he died. His son Khwāja Jāh had in the 30th year the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse.

'ABDU-L-MAJĪD OF HERAT (ĀSAF K KHWĀJA)

He was descended from Shakh Abū Bakı Tāībādī¹ When Tımur ın 782, 1380-1381, conquered Herat which was held by Malık Ghīāsu-d-dīn, he came to Tāībād and sent to the Shakh and asked why he did not come to wait upon him The Shakh replied, "What have I to do with him?" The Amīr then went in person and said "Why did you not advise Malık Ghīāsu-d-dīn?" He replied, "I did advise him, but he did not listen God has sent you against him, I now advise you to be just If you do not listen, He will send another against you" The Amīr used to say, "During my Sultanate with whatever darvish I consorted, I perceived that each of them was in his heart thinking about himself, except the Shakh whom I found separated from himself"

Khwāja 'Abdu-l-Majīd was one of the servants of Humāyūn, and on account of his honesty and skill he was made Diwān at the time of the conquest of India When the world renewed its youth by the accession of Akbar, the Khwāja was exalted from the diwānī to the rank of commander (sirdārī) and united the sword with the pen When Akbar proceeded to the Panjab in connection with the affair of Bairām Khān, the Khwāja got the

¹ B 366 As pointed out by Blochmann, there is an account of Abū Bakr in the Nafhātu l-Uns, but it does not tell the story about Timur See lith ed, p 325

² mın Ihudra dar hajāb,

title of Āsaf K and acquired reputation as governor of Delhi He received a drum and a flag and an office of 3000 When Fatū K, the slave of Adılī, who had taken possession of Chunār, showed a desire to surrender it, Asaf K in accordance with the king's orders went along with Shaikh Muhammad Ghaus, and obtained peaceable possession of the fortress. The charge of Sarkār Kaia Mānikpūr was made over to him At that time Ghāzī K Tanūıī, who was one of the leading Afghan officers, and had for a time served Akbar, absconded and went off with some men to the country of Panah, which was an independent kingdom There he was in security and set about being seditious Āsaf K in the 7th year conveyed to Rajah Rām Chand, the ruler there, the message that he should become tributary and deliver up the lebels The Rajah in his presumptuousness joined with those wretches and prepared for war Āsaf K. behaved with energy and killed the refugees The Rajah was defeated and took refuge in the fortress of Bandhū which was the strongest fortress in that country At last, by agreeing to make submission, and at the intercession of Rajahs who were near Akbar, an order was issued to Asaf K to abstain from attacking the Rajah Asaf therefore withdrew, but as he had acquired much power by his victory he formed the idea of conquering Garha. It was an extensive territory south of Panah and was commonly known as Gondwāna. It was 150 kos in length and 80 kos in breadth They say that in old times it contained 80,000 villages

The inhabitants are Gonds, which is a low-caste tribe, and one looked down upon by Hindus. Formerly many Rajahs ruled it, but at this time the power was in the hands of Rānī Durgāvatī. She by her courage, dexterity, and justice had united the whole country. Garha was a great city in that country and Katanga was the name of a village which was subordinate to it Āsaf K ascertained by means of spies the modes of access to the country, and in the 9th year invaded it with 10,000 cavalry. The Rānī, who had not at that time collected her forces, came with a few troops to give battle. She said, "How can I, who have ruled this country so long, think of flying? It is better to die with honour than to live with disgrace." Her officers represented that it was a fine thing to resolve upon fighting, but that to east aside the thread of counsel was not courage They should strengthen some places until they could collect their army This was done When Asaf K took Gaiha and did not ietreat, the Rānī called together her officers and said, "I want war Whoever desires it, let him come with me There is no third course It is a case of victory or death" She turned to fight When she was told that her son Bir Sāh had received wounds, she bade them remove him from the battle-field to a safe place, and when she herself was wounded she said to a confidant, "I have been conquered in battle God forbid that I be conquered in name and fame, do your duty, and put an end to me with a dagger" He had not the courage to do so, and she stabbed herself Asaf K set off to seize Chūragarha, which was a fort and a capital, and had many buried treasures, and which Bīr Sāh had strengthened After a struggle in which Bīr Sāh bravely fell, the fort was taken After this victory, which was the greatest of Asaf K's achievements, he became possessed of boundless treasures, and grew proud and arrogant He went astray, and out of 1,000 elephants he sent (only) 200 to H M In the 10th year Khān Zamān Shaibānī, in conjunction with the Uzbeg officers in the eastern districts, raised the standard of rebellion and besieged Majnün K Qāqshāl in the fort of Mānik-Āsaf K came to his assistance with 5,000 cavalry When Akbar came to that country to put down the rebellion, Asaf K appeared before him, and presented as peshkash the rarities of the spoils of Garha, and held a review of his troops. He was again treated with favour and sent to pursue the rebels But the imperial clerks,1 who had had a taste of his bribes, out of cupidity and envy, hinted at his accumulation of wealth and his embezzlements, and talebearers exaggerated these remarks and filled Asaf K with fears On 20 Safr 973, 16 September 1565, he out of vain suspicion took to flight In the 11th year, when Mahdī Qāsim K was appointed to the government of Garha, Āsaf K left, with many regrets, that country, and with his brother Wazīr K

¹ Akbarnāmah, II, 256.

accepted an invitation from the Khān Zamān and joined him in Jaunpur On the first interview he perceived the Khan Zaman's tyranny and arrogance and repented of his coming, and when he saw that his cupidity was excited by his possessions he sought an opportunity of leaving him At this time the Khan Zaman sent him and his (own) brother Bahādur K against the Afghans, but kept Wazīr K with himself Hence both the brothers resolved to fly and went off to Mānıkpūr Bahādur K pursued them and fought with them Asaf K's men were defeated and fled, and he was captured Suddenly Wazīr K arrived and learned what had happened As Bahādui K 's men were engaged in plunderıng, Wazīr K attacked and Bahādur K fled He gave a sıgn to kıll Āsaf K who was fastened on an elephant He was struck once or twice, his fingers were cut, and he was wounded on the nose, when Wazīr K arrived and relieved him Both brothers in the year 973, 1565-66, came to Kaia Āsaf K sent Wazīr K to Agra to Mozaffar K Tarbatī in order to obtain pardon through his intervention Mozaffar K, who in obedience to a summons went to the Punjab in 974, took Wazīr K with him and produced him before Akbar in the hunting-field, and interceded for him An order was given that Āsaf K together with Majnūn K should guard the boundaries in Kara Mānikpūr In the same year Akbar made a rapid expedition against Khān Zamān and Bahādur K, and slew them In this battle Āsaf K displayed zeal and showed perfect loyalty In the year 975, 1567, he obtained the pargana of Biāna i as his fief in supersession of Hājī Muhammad Şīstānī in order that he might go there and make preparations and act as the advance-force in the matter of Rānā Udai Singh When in the middle of Rabīu-l-awal of that year, September 1567, Akbai marched from Agra to punish the Rānā, the latter left Jaimalwho was formerly in Mīrtha—in charge of Chitor, and letired to

¹ Text pargana Biāk B 368 has read this as Piyag, i c Allahabad But the Maasir is here copying the T Akbari, and that has (see Elliot V, 324) Biāna, which is on the way from Agra to Chitor Hāji Muhammad

apparently got a fief in Malwa in exchange, A N II, 313 Āsaf and his brother's going on in advance of Akbar's army is referred to in A N II, 313

the corners of the hills. As af K did excellent service in the siege of that fort. Chitor hes on the top of a hill which is nearly a los in height, and this hill is in the midst of an open plain which has no elevation. Its encurt is at the foot six los, and three los where it is walled in. Besides large stone tanks which are filled by rainwater, there are springs high up in it. After 4 months and 7 days the fort was taken on 25 Shābān of the 12th year. 24 February 1568, and the whole Sarkār of Chitor was assigned 2 to Āsaf K as his fief

'ABDU-L-MATLIB KHĀN'

Son of Shāh Budāgh K, and one of Akbar's Amīrs of the rank of 2500 At first, he was appointed along with M. Sharafu-d-dīn Husain to take Mīrtha and did good service on that occasion. Afterwards he became one of Akbar's personal attendants. In the 10th year he went with Mir M'uzzu-l-mulk to punish Sikandar K Uzbeg, and Bahādur K Sharbānī When the king's army was defeated and scattered he too took his own road. After that he was sent off with Muhammad Qulī K Barlās against Sikandar K who had made a disturbance in Oudh. After that he for a while lived on his fief in Malwa. When in the 17th year the Malwa officers were ordered to assist the Khān A'zim Koka, he came to Gujarat and in the battle with Muhammad Husain Mīrzā bravely engaged in single combats. By orders he came with the Khān A zim Koka and did homage at the time when the king was besieging Surat, and then was allowed to go back to his fief. In

I This is taken from the Tabaqāt, see Elliot V, 325, but Nizāmu-d-dīn must mean that the height, balandī, extended for a los, ie, the ridge was so long, not that the elevation was a los See account of Chitor in Rājputana Gazetter III, 51 "The fort stands on a long narrow hill extreme length of fort from wall to wall 5,735 yards" "The hill averages about 450 ft above the surrounding country"

² AN II, 324 The article ends

rather abruptly, and, as B has pointed out, does not mention when 'Abdul-Majid died B adds that he must have been dead in 981, 1573-74, as in that year the title of Asaf K was bestowed on another noble A F places him among the holders of 3000 The T A adds to its notice of him that he entertained 20,000 horse

⁵ B 403 'Abdu-l Matallib was the name of Muhammad's grandfather

the 23rd year when Qutbu-d-dīn K's men arrested Mozaffar Husain M and were bringing him to court from the Deccan, he as a precaution joined them with some Malwa troops In the 25th year he was appointed along with Ism'aīl Qulī K to chastise Niyābat K 'Arab,' and displayed zeal and devotion In the 26th year he was accused 2 of having killed Fath Dost, the son of Alī Dost Bārbegī, but after some time was received into favour expedition to Kabul he had command of the left wing 27th year when Akbar went to the eastern districts and came near Kālpī—where 'Abdu-l-Matlıb had his fief—he at 'Abdu-l-Matlıb's request visited his residence. In the 30th year he went to the south as one of the auxiliaries of the Khān 'Azim Koka, and in the 32nd year 3 he went with a large force to punish Jalāla Tārīkī day, when Jalāla Tārīkī attacked the men of the rear-guard, though 'Abdu-l-Matlib did not mount his horse, the other officers rushed forward and defeated the enemy and slew many of them 'Abdu-l-Matlib from excessive anxiety and mental disturbance became mad and came to court in a helpless condition. he died at his appointed time Sherzād his son attained to the rank of 500 with 200 horse during Jahangir's time

'ABDU-N-NABĪ SADR (SHAIKH)

Giandson of S Abdu-l-Quddūs of Gangoh, who was a descendant of Imām Abū Hanīfa of Kūfā, and one of the later celebrities of India He died in the year 944, 1537-38 S 'Abdu-n-Nabi was the first of his time in literary (naqlīya) sciences, and had a

¹ A N III 328

² AN III, 354 and also Iqbālnāma which tells us that the father of the murdered man declined to prosecute Fath Dost had just been made a member of the Divine Faith

See AN III 520 521 B wrongly says it was the son that was attacked AF mentions that the general could not mount his horse, but does not give the reason Perhaps all that is meant is that he could not get back to the scene of battle

The text of the A N spells 'Abdul-Matlib's name as 'Abdul-Muttalib A F says he was sent in as he was insane. He does not say why he became mad. The battle is also described by Nizāmu-d-dīn. See Elliot V, 456

⁴ J III 374, where the date of death given is 950, 1543 The Khazīna Asfiyā has 945 Apparently 945 is the correct date Rieu II, 830a XV For Abdullah see B 457 high place in the science of Hadis (tradition) In spite of his great acquirements, he was assiduous in following the practices of the noble order of Chisht He could so hold his breath that he for the space of a watch (pahar) could without breathing occupy himself ın mental utterance (zıkr qalbī) ¹ In the 10th year of Akbar's reign he attained through the influence of Mozaffar K the chief diwan, the office of principal Sadr 2 of India In the course of time the chief transactions of State were carried on in accordance with his recommendations His intimacy with the king became so great that Akbar used to go to his house to hear the Traditions As at that time Akbar, at the instigation of the Shaikh, showed great zeal in the performance of exemplary acts and the non-performance of what was prohibited, he personally recited the Azan (call to prayer) and acted as Imam (leader of the prayers), he even went so far as to sweep the mosque in order to acquire merit. One day on the occasion of the anniversary of the accession, the colour of saffion had been put on the king's clothes The Shaikh was angly and ın open dıwan so wielded his staff that it reached the king's skirt The king was displeased and went to his mother and and tore it complained, saying that the Shaikh should have made his remonstrance in private Miriam-Makānī said, "My son don't be vexed This will be a cause of salvation to you on the last day Till the day of the Resurrection they will tell how a poor Mullā dealt with the king of the Age, and how the king of happy augury submit ted "

As the Shaikh and Makhdūmu-l-mulk every day displeased the king by their censures and bigotry, his heart became alienated from them Shaikh Faizī and Shaikh Abū-l-fazl perceived this and represented that their science was greater than that of those hypocritical Shaikhs who under the screen of religion $(d\bar{\imath}n)$ had gathered things of the world $(daniy\bar{a})$ "If Your Majesty will support us we'll silence them by convincing proofs" Accordingly one day there was food containing saffron 4 on the table-

¹ See account of Zikr in Hughes' Dict of Islam Jahangir read the Forty Traditions with 'Abdu-n-nabī

² Badayūnī II, 71

³ Sālgirih It may have been the anniversary of the birthday

⁴ Dishes containing saffron are described in the Ain B 59, 60

When 'Abdu-n-nabī partook of it, Abū-l-fazl said, "Oh Fie, Shaikh, if saffron be lieit, why did you make all those strictures on H M the Vicar of God, and if it be illicit, why have you partaken of it so that for three days the effects will remain?" There were repeated altercations between them At last in the 22nd year there was an inquiry into siyūr ghāl and other tenures. and it appeared that the Shaikh in spite of his devotion and austerity did not observe the due degrees of moderation and In every province a separate Sadr was appointregard to ment And when in the 24th year Akbar had an assembly of Ulamā and sages it was agreed by them that the reigning king 'Pādishāh-i-Zamān' was the Imām of the time, and Mujtahid (Doctor) of the world Whichever of the conflicting opinions of former Doctors he adopted was to be received by mankind, that is to say, in matters of Faith, as to which Mujtahids differed, whatever side His Majesty adopted, for the soothment of the world, and the tranquillity of the men of Islam, was binding upon mankind, and whatever order he might issue which was not contrary to the Law and the Sunnat, and was for the good of the people, could not be opposed without incurring loss in this world and in the next For the rank of a just king was above that of a Mujtahid A document was drawn up to this effect and it was attested by the seals of Abdu-n-nabī, the Makhdūmu-l-mulk Sultanpūri, Ghāzī K Badakshī Hakīmu-l-mulk and othei 'Ulamā This 1 took place in the month of Rajab 987, August 1579

When different statements were made by 'Abdu-n-nabī and Makhdūmu-l-mulk, and it appeared that they were saving that they had been made to attest the document by force and against then will, Akbar, in the same year, made the Shaikh the leader of the caravan and sent him off with a sum of money for the chief men of Mecca, and for the indigent there, and he also dismissed Makhdūmu-l-mulk. In this way he exiled them from his territories, and gave the order that they should always remain there in the practice of devotion and not return unless they were summoned. When the coming of M. Hakīm and the rebellion of the officers of Bihar and Bengal caused confusion in India, 'Abdu-n-nabī and Makhdūmu-l-mulk—who were watching for such an opportunity—heard exaggerated accounts and resolved to return In spite of the admonishment of the Shārīf of Mecca and in opposition to the king's command, they made the voyage and in the 27th year arrived at Ahmadabad. Though the Begams of the Harem interceded for them, yet as the rebels renewed their improper language, the Sharkh was sent for, and was imprisoned with great severity on the pretext of his having to render accounts. He was put into the charge of S. Abū-l-fazl, and he knowing that the king would not question about his murder, secretly had the Sharkh strangled, in consequence of the old enmity, in the year 992, 1584. Or perhaps he died a natural death

'ABDU-L-QAWĪ (I'TIMĀD K SHAIKH)

He is famed for his excellency, laudable qualities piety and orthodoxy He was long in the service of prince Aurangzeb and was his personal attendant. He 8 was highly honoured and trusted on account of his honesty in speech and act. When Aurangzeb left the Deccan for Agra for the purpose of assuming the sovereignty, he was raised from 900 to a mansab of 1500, and was in attendance on Aurangzeb's stirrup at all the battles After the Accession he attained high office and became an Amīr In the 4th year he received the title of I'timad Khan, and became a favourite above all his contemporaries As he advanced in the service and was in the king's confidence and was distinguished for tact, he became more intimate with the king than the other pillars of the They say that he used to sit with the king in private and that his suggestions were listened to and approved of But he never recommended anybody and kept the gate of liberality closed On account of his connection with sovereignty and the pude of being the king's teacher he did not pay attention to men. and was very pompous He was also very bigoted

¹ Badayūnī Lowe 321, and also 244

² There is a full account of 'Abdun-nabī in the Darbār Akbarī, and in a note at p 327 it is pointed out that M'ūtamad K in his Iqbālnāma (Part II) distinctly says that AF killed 'Abdu-n-nabī See also the account in Badayūnī III, 79, where 991 is given as the date of death, but in II 312 the date is given as 992

⁸ Cf 'Ālamgīrnāma, pp 982-83

Sa'īdāī¹ Ṣarmad was a Jew by ongin and was regarded as a Rabbī When he became a Muhammadan he studied under Mīr Abū-l-Q'asım Qandarsakī He came from Kāshān to Tatta (Scinde) for purposes of trade and there fell in love with a Hindu's son and threw away everything that he had He did not even cover his private parts When he came to Delhi, he associated with Dārā Shikoh who had much faith in distracted persons Afterwards, when the Fates put the reins of power into Aurangzeb's hands, he, who was very strict in religious matters, ordered Mullā 'Abdu-l-Qawī to send for Sarmad, and make him wear clothes When he was brought, the Mullā said, 'Why are you naked?' Sarmad replied, 'Satan is powerful,' and he recited this quatrain

1 Rieu II, 547a, and III, 1089b, 'Allah Yār's Hadiqatu-l-Aqālīm lith ed, 109, Beinier II, 124 of ed 1699, Manucci, translation I, 223 and 584, but the best account of him is in the Dabistan Cal lith, p 298, etc author of that work saw him at Haidarabad (in the Deccan) in 1057, I think the statement that Sarmad was an Armenian is a mistake for Rabanian, and the meaning is that he was a Rabbi See Dabistan I (which seems to be the Maasir's authority) The word Qanduz in text seems a mistake for Qandarsakī This is one of the variants, and it is supported by the Dabistan Saimad's name was Muhammad S'aid, but presumably this name was assumed after he became a Muhammadan put to death in 1071, 1660-61 have altered the statement in text that Saimad was reported to be an Armenian. It is Qandarsagī in the Dabistān and in the variant to the text of the Maasir, but qat and fa only differ According to the Buihan Qātī and Vullers II, 693b, where Abū-l Qāsım Fandarsagī is mentioned, Fandarsag is a village in the district of Astrabad, on the S E coast of the Caspian But for the statement of Burhan Qati' one would be inclined to read the word as qandazsagi and to connect it with Abu-l-Qasim of Nīshāpūr and Nasrabād, about whom a story is told of his giving up the benefit of his forty-five pilgiimages in order to feed a dog Qandazsag might mean a fox or a dog See the Hadīga-ul-Igālīm, p 398, and the Khazīna Asfiyā's notice of Abū-l Qāsım II, p 207 It is true that this saint died in 367 AH, 977-78, but perhaps the passage in the Dabistan only means that Sarmad studied his writings There is a notice of Sar mad in the Khazina A II, p 352 An Abu-l Qāsım of Andıjān ın Ferghāna is mentioned as a leading Shaikh and as having come to India in the time of Shah Jahan biography of Khwajah 'Abdu r-Rahim Maasir I, 792 Perhaps it was this Abū-l-Qāsım who was Sarmad's teach-Apparently Sarmad was still a Jew when the author of the Dabistan met him

² Is there an allusion here to 'Abdu-l-Qawi's name? The words are Shaitan Qawiest

He is pleased with so debasing me (?), His evil eye has ta'en the cup from my hand (?), He lies in wait, and I'm at his beck, A strange robber 1 has made me naked

The Mullā and the other lawyers decided that he should be put to death, and the Mullā made this quatrain which denied the Ascension of Muhammad a reason for this

Verse

He who was aided by the Prince of Tiuth Was himself wider than the wide heavens The Mullā says, "Ahmad ascended to heaven" Sarmad says. "Heaven descended to Ahmad"

The truth is that the main reason for putting him to death was his companionship with Dārā Shikoh, otherwise there were many thousand naked enthusiasts like him in every lane and street ²

In short, Mullā 'Abdu-l-Qawī was a very strict censor the ninth year, 1077, 1666-67, an unknown Turkoman Calendar killed him with a sword. This event was of a surprising nature The details are as follows -When Taibīyat K had gone off as ambassadoi to Shāh 'Abbās the second, he did not perform the duties of the etiquette of an embassy in a proper manner, and made the Shāh, who was of a lunatic disposition, more mutated than ever The old friendship became clouded over and it came to the leading of aimies against one another. At this time Saiyid Amīr Khān, the governor of Kabul arrested some Moghul Turkomans as spies and sent them to court I'tımād was bidden to examine them He sent for one of these men—who was a Turkoman soldier—and had him brought in to his private room unbound and unchained, and proceeded to examine him At this time, he, whose daring mind was suffused with ignorance, suddenly moved from his place, and approached a servant, who was keeping charge of his weapons outside, and, taking a sword from him, struck the Khān a blow which killed him The attendants The deceased \underline{Kh} āfī K has told the story in a different slew him manner in his history Although the reliance (tahaqīq) which that author-between whom and the writer there was great intimacy—placed upon the Mırātu-l-'Ālam and the 'Ālamgirnāma 1 18 well known, yet as his account was derived by him from the Calendar's companions, and is still more extraordinary (than the current story), it is here set down. It is that the Calendar was one of the professional athletes, pahlwānān, and conjurors of Persia These men by impudence and swagger⁸ force money from gentlemen, and then fling it away This man too had performed wonderful feats in Surat and Burhānpūr When he came to Delhi in the course of his travels he was received with honour by the Persian Amīrs, and collected together some qalandars Every day he spent in gardens with music and singing This became notorious, and some charged him with alchemy and some with thieving and lobbery. At last it was represented (to Aurangzeb) that he was a spy of the Shāh all knew his courage, the Kotwāl caught him while he was asleep and conveyed him in chains to the king's presence I'timād K was directed to examine him After examination, although he said that he was a wandering beggar by profession, it was of no avail, and the Mulla used threatening language to him doomed man saw that there was no release for him, and said, "If you will assure my safety, I shall tell the truth to the ear of the Nawab'' When he approached, he bent down as if to speak, and though both his hands were bound he quickly seized with his

¹ Text dard but the MSS have dazd 'a thief or robber' and I have adopted this reading

² Ghulām 'Alī Āzād says in the Yad Baiza that Sarmad's tomb is near the Jama' Masjid of Delhi

١

^{1 &#}x27;Ālamgīrnāma 982, Maasır A, 57

² Khāfī K II 203, etc The text is rather curiously worded The expression dai janab "on the side" of with regard to "is to me somewhat obscure and some of the MSS have a different reading, viz jinnat or perhaps jambat I do not think that the writer can mean that Khāfī K was less trustworthy than the other two writers

³ Sargala zadan, which might mean "striving for pre-eminence," and literally is "acting as head of the herd." The Bib Ind ed of Khāfī K II, 203 has siilalima, but the true reading seems to be sirlala-zadan, which means to butt, or fight with the head and horns like rams or deer See Bahār-i-'Ajam sv Here it seems to mean to extort by threats, to black mail fingertips a short sword (nīmcha shamsher) which had been left on I'timād's dars (masnad), and so smote him on the head with the scabbard thereof that he was at once slain. The king was much grieved at his death and showed favour to his family and promoted his sons and other relatives to mansabs and showed them other kindnesses

'ABDU-R-RAHĪM BEG UZBEG

Biother of 'Abdu-i-Rahmān Beg the guaidian of 'Abdu-l-'Azīz K the (eldest) son of Nazr Muhammad K the rules of In the 11th year of Shah Jahan's reign he came 2 from Balkh and did homage The king gave him a robe of honour decorated dagger, and a sword with golden accourrements and enamelled work, and the rank of 1000 with 600 horse, and a sum of Rs 25,000 in cash Afterwards be received an increase of 500 with 200 horse and a fief in the province of Bihai, and went off After he came there, as owing to the harsh measures of 'Abdullah K Bahādur, the governor of the province there was disagreement between him and the governor, he, considering this to be an injury to himself, feigned illness for some days and represented himself as dumb 4 For a year he entirely refrained from speech so that even his women did not know what was the matter. When the king heard of this, an order was passed for his coming to court In the thirteenth year he came 5 and used his tongue When he mentioned the cause of his dumbness the audience were aston-As the king was going to Kashmir this year, he conferred on him the rank of 2000 with 1000 horse and directed him to remain in the capital In the 22nd year he was appointed to accom-

¹ baladū Lhvāra gardīd "made him like a cucumber" (") The vailant is Ildu janāza gardīd IOMS, No 628, has īka janāza gardīd "he became the same as a corpse" I think there can be no doubt this is the correct reading and that the phrase is an allusion to the inscription on Prince Daniel's gun bar har ka Khurda tīr-ī tu īka u janāza, Tūzuk

Jahāngīrī, p 15 'Who'er receives thy ball becomes a corpse'' Compare Maasir III, 13, last line, where the phrase is repeated There is an account of 'Abul-l-Qāwī's death in Manucci II, 147

² Pādshahnāma I, Part II, 243

^{3 1}d 275

⁴ Khāfī K I, 571

^{5 1}d 169

pany Prince Aurangzeb to Qandahar — From thence he went with Qulīj K to Bust, and did good service in the battle with the Persians — Consequently, in the 23rd year he attained the rank of 2500 with 1000 horse — In the 24th year he went to Bihar along with J'aafai K the governor of that province — In the 26th year he went with Dārā Shikoh to Qandahai, and from there he went with Rustum K to take Bust

'ABDU-R-RAHĪM ' OF LUCKNOW (SHAIKH)

One of the noble Shaikhzādas of Lucknow city That is a large city in the province of Oudh on the bank of the Gumtī, the tract is called Baiswāia ² The Shaikh had the good fortune to enter Akbar's service and by good conduct attained to the rank of 700, which was a high rank in those days. As he was very intimate ³ with Jamal Bakhtiyār—whose sister was one of Akbar's favourite wives—he was led into drinking habits. He became madly addicted to wine-bibbing, and as intoxicants injure the soul and reason, his intellect became clouded, and he shewed signs of folly

In the 30th 4 year, at the time of returning from Kabul, when the camp was at Sialkot, the Shaikh became deranged in Hakīm Abū-l-fath's quarters and wounded himself with the Hakīm's dagger People took it out of his hand, and they sewed up the wound in Akbar's presence They say the emperor did so with his own hand

Though experienced physicians considered that the wound was incurable, and it became so bad that after two months he was given up yet the king always gave him hopes, and when he was yet at the point of death he recovered in a short space of time Afterwards he died in his native land at the appointed time

They say he had a Biahman wife who was called Kishnā That clever woman after the Shaikh's death built houses and

¹ B 470

² The country of the Bais tribe of Rajputs. See Elliot, Supp Gloss I, 13

^{$} A N III, 371 Blochmann, 425, calls the sister the superintendent of Akbar's harem

⁴ A N III, 470 Badayūnī, Lowe, 359

made a garden, a serar, and a tank. She also took villages in farm, and looked after the adornment of the garden in which the Sharkh was buried. Whoever passed by that way—from a panyhazārī to a common soldier—was entertained by her suitably to his rank. And though she became old and blind she did not give up her kindly ways, and for about sixty years she kept her husband's name alive.

Verse

Not every woman is womanish, or every man manly

(MĪRZĀ) 'ABDU-R-RAHĪM KHĀN-KHĀNĀN

son and heir of Bairam K His mother was of the family of the Khāns of Mewat When in 961, 1554, Humāyūn became for a second time seated on the throne of India and had established himself at Delhi, he, in order to give assurance and encouragement to the zamindais, instituted mairiages with their daughters When Jamal K the cousin of Husain K of Mewat-who was one of the influential zamindais of India-waited upon Humāyūn, he possessed two daughters Humāyūn married the eldest, and gave the second to Bairam On 14 Safr 964, 17 December 1556, in the end of the first year of Akbar's reign, M 'Abdu-i-Rahîm was born in Lahore When his father fell a martyr at the hands of the Afghans in Pattan-Gujarat, 'Abdu-1-Rahīm was four years old The rioters attacked the Khān's camp Muhammad Amīn Diwāna, Bābā Zambūr, and his mother rescued the Mīrzā from that tumult and set off for Ahmadabad They fought with the Afghans who followed in the rear and arrived at the city four months Muhammad Amīn Diwāna and some other servants proceeded towards the court with the Mīrzā In Jalaur an order reached them, summoning the child In the beginning of the sixth year, 969, 1562, he did homage, and Akbar, in spite of the importunities of evil-speakers and evil-thinkers, perceived in him the marks of nobleness and nourished and cherished him

¹ A N II, 48 Humāyūn did not reach Delhi till Ramzān 962,

July, 1555, so that the date 961 is wrong

When he came to years of discretion he received the title of Mīrzā Khān and was married to Māh Bānū, the sister of the Khān-A'zam In the 21st year he was nominally appointed to the government of Gujarat, while the management of affairs was entrusted to Wazīr K In the 25th year he was made Mīr 'Arzī (inspector of petitions) In the 28th year he was made guardian of Prince Sultan Selīm, and in the same year he gained a victory over Sultan Mozaffar of Gujarat The details of this are as follows -Sultan Mozaffai, in the first Gujarat expedition fell into the hands of the royal servants and was imprisoned He was sent 1 to Mun'ım K the Khān-Khānān When Mun'ım died, Mozaffar was sent back to court and was made over to Shāh Mansūr In the 231d year he made his escape and came to Gujarat He reposed there in the neighbourhood of Jūnāgarh and under the protection of the Kāthīs The officers regarded him as unimportant and paid no attention to him When I'timād K got the government of Gujarat in succession to Shihābu-d-dīn Ahmad, some servants of the late governor became disloyal and raised the head of disturbance Mozaffar joined them and became a leader and took possession of Ahmadabad Akbar appointed Mīrzā K with a good force As there were 40,000 horse with Mozaffar and the whole of the royal troops was only 10,000, the officers did not advise a battle, and the king also wrote that till Qulīj K and the other auxiliary officers from Malwa joined, he should not engage Daulat K Lodī who was his companion and chief swordsman (Mīr shamsher) said, "At that time you will have partners in victory if you want to be Khān-Khānān (Lord of Lords) you must win victory alone 'Tis better to be killed than to live with an unknown name" Mīrzā K encouraged his companions and made them all keen to fight. A severe engagement took place at Sarkej three kos from Ahmadabad On every side the heroes contended with one another Mīrzā Khān was stationed with 300 braves, and 100 elephants, when Mozaffar came to meet him with 6 or 7000 horse. Some well-wishers seized his rein and wanted to turn him back Mīrzā K advanced the foot of boldness, and some of the enemy were slain and many took to flight Mozaffar, who had been exulting in his airogance, became confused and fled. He went to Cambay and took goods from the merchants and again laised the head of sedition. Mīlzā K took with him the Malwa officers who had now allived, and matched (against Mozaffar), and several times chastised him (Mozaffar) Mozaffar went off to Nadot and there again caused strife. The brave men on both sides fought on foot (i.e., dismounted) and did wondrous things. At last Mozaffar turned his face from battle and went off to Rajpīpla. Mīlzā K received from court the rank of Panjhazārī and the high title of Khān-Khānān.

They say that on the day of the Gujarat victory he gave away all that he had At last, a man came to him and said he had got nothing A standish had remained over and he gave him After he had put the distracted country of Gujarat into order he left Qulij K there, and came to court In the 34th year he presented to Akbar the Memous of Bābar-which he had translated from Turki into Persian—and was much praised In the same year 998, 1590, he was made Vakīl, and received Jaunpūi in fief In the 36th year Multan was given him as his fief and he undertook the conquest of Tattah and the territory of Sharkh Farzī found the chronogram, Qasd-1-Tatta (999) "Tatta was the object" When the Khān-Khānān had by skill and rapidity passed by the foot of the fort of Sihwan which they call Sīvistān, and got possession of Lakhī-which is the gate of that country,—like Garhī of Bengal, and Bārahmūla of Kashmi,— Mīrzā Jānī the ruler of Tatta—who had come to war—suffered defeat after severe fightings, and in the 37th year proposed terms The conditions were that he should surrender the fort of Sihwan which is on the liver Indus—and accept Mīrzā Īrij the son of the Khān-Khānān as a son-ın-law, and after the rains go to court As on account of paucity of provisions the imperial army was also in distress, the Khān-Khānān yielded, and having made over the fort to Hasan 'Alī 'Arab encamped twenty kos from Sīhwān When the rains came to an end, Mīrzā Jānī made excuses for not proceeding further The Khān-Khānān was obliged to go to Tattah The Mīrza (Jānī) came 1 out from the city (Tattah) as far as three kos, and tried manœuvres, but all at once the imperial forces were victorious, and Mīrzā Jānī became a suppliant and made over the whole country to the imperialists, and went off with all his family in company of the Khān-Khānān to court He was received with favour Mullā Shikebī 2—who was a servant of the Khān-Khānān—wrote a masnavī about this victory This verse is from it

¹ A N III, 615

Verse

A Humā which was moving over the heavens You seized and freed from delusion $(d\bar{a}m)$

The Khan-Khānān gave him a thousand ashrafis as a present, and M. Jānī also gave the Mullā a thousand ashrafis, and said, "It is by God's mercy that you called me a humā Had 3 you called me a jackal, who'd have checked your tongue?"

When Sultan Murād at the king's orders set out from Gujarat to conquer the Deccan, he halted in Broach in expectation of the airival of the auxiliaries The Khān-Khānān —who had been appointed to accompany the prince, -made some stay in Bhīlsah, which was his jagir, and then proceeded to Ujjain The prince was displeased at this and sent him an angry message. He wrote in reply that he was engaged in conciliating Rajah 'Alī K the ruler of Khandes, and that he was going to bring him with him prince became indignant and set off for the Deccan with the troops The Khān-Khānān made over the camp and the park of artillery to M Shahrukh and went on rapidly along with Rajah He joined the prince at Candaur thirty kos from Ahmada-After some time he was admitted to an interview, but no graciousness was shown towards him The Khān-Khānān became annoyed and withdrew his hand from the work. Though in the

¹ A N III, 634

² B 335n, and 576 Badayūnī III, 253, who styles him Ispahānī In the Tārīkh Tāhirī the poem of Mullā Shikebī is called the Sāqīnāma, and he is said to have been rewarded with a present of Rs 12,000

³ One MS has gurita instead of guita in the first clause $d\bar{a}m$ in the verse also means "a snare"

end of Rabī'-ul-akhır 1004, end of December 1595, Ahmadnagar was invested, and arrangements were made for electing batteries and driving mines, yet owing to the prudence and courage of Cānd Bībī Sultan, the sister of Buihān Nizām Shah and widow of 'Alī 'Ādil Shāh of Bijapur, who was defending the fortress in conceit with Abhang K the Abyssinian, and also owing to the treachery of the officers, and their spoiling one another's work, the conquest of the fortress was not one to be easily made

When the besieged became awaie of the discord among the leaders, they proposed a peace to the effect that Bahādur the grandson of Burhān Nızām Shāh should be brought out of prison and that to this boy should be given the title of Nizāmu-l-mulk, and that he should be made a servant of the empire Also that the prosperous territory of Ahmadnagar should be given to him in fief and that the territory of Berar should revert to the imperial-Though men of experience represented the want of food of the besieged and their distress and duplicity, they were not listened Also at this time it was beto on account of the dissensions lieved that Suhail K the eunuch, M'atmadu-d-daula of Bijapur, was approaching to assist the Nizām Shāh troops, and so peace was made by the intervention of Min Murtaza, and the army turned away to Bālāpur in Berar When Suhail K with the Bijapur army on the right wing, Qutbu-1-mulki troops on the left wing, and the Nızāmu-l-mulk army ın the centre became presumptuous and drew up in battle-array, the prince wished to engage them, but the officers disloyally refused to do so The Khān-Khānān, M Shahrukh and Rajah 'Alī K set out from Shāhpūr against the In the end 1 of Jumāda-al-ākhirī 1005, February 1597, a battle took place near the town of Ashtī, twelve kos from Pāthrī There was a severe engagement, and the ruler of Khandes with five 2 Sardars and 500 men, who there opposed the 'Adılkhanis, bravely lost then lives The enemy thought they were the centre and that M Shahiukh or the Khān-Khānān was killed, and set about plundering The Khān-Khānān also routed the force opposed to his own, and in the darkness of the night the hostile forces got

¹ Ferishta has 17 Jamāda-us sānī

² Thirty-five AN III, 719.

separated, and halted Each thought it had gained the victory and spent the night on horseback At dawn the imperial army, which consisted of 7000 men, as it had spent the whole night with thirst, proceeded hastily to the river The enemy came forward to meet them with 25,000 horse Many leaders of the three armies of the enemy were killed 2 They say that Daulat K Lodi-who was ın the Khān-Khānān's vanguard at the time when Suhail K had put the elephants and artillery in motion and was advancing-said to the Khān-Khānān, "We are 600 horse in all To advance in front (of such a force) is to lose ourselves, (yet) I'll 3 attack the enemy's centre '' The Khān-Khānān said, "You're losing Delhi" Daulat K replied, ' If we defeat the foe, we shall have made a hundred Delhis, and if we die the work is with God " When he desired to urge on the horse Qāsim Bārha and the Saiyids were beside him He (Qāsim) said, "We and you are Hindustanis There is no resource but to die You should ask the Khān as to what his wish is" Daulat turned round and said to the Khān-Khānān, "There is a great force in front of us, and victory depends on heaven Tell us where we shall find you if you are defeated" The Khān-Khānān said, "Under the corpses" Daulat K and the Saivids penetrated by the centre (kamargāh) and drove off the enemy In a short time Suhail took to flight They say that on that day the Khān-Khānān had with him 75 lacs of rupees He gave 5 them all away, and only two camel-loads remained In spite of so great a victory affairs did not go on well The Khān-Khānān was summoned to court, and he did homage in the 43rd year His wife Māh Bānū 6 died in this year

¹ B 336 "Each party believing itself victorious" The original is gumān fīruzī balhud barda, and it would seem better sense if the meaning were "each party doubting if it had gained the victory" But see account in Ferishta

² Akbarnama III, 719

^{&#}x27;3 A The meaning seems to be, "We shall all be killed but yet I'll attack the centre" See Darbār Akbarī, 618, line 11

⁴ The Darbār Akbarī, p 613, says that the Khān Khānān was much attached to Delhi and used to remark, "If I am to die, I'll die in Delhi" to be scrambled for Hamara $ighm\bar{a}i$ $s\bar{a}kht$ See Darbārī Akbarī,

⁶ She died at Umballa in 1007, December 1598

When Akbar consulted the Khān-Khānān about the affairs of the Deccan, he recommended the recall of the prince, and the giving the control of matters to himself The king did not approve of this and was displeased with him When Prince Murād died and Sultan Daniel was sent to the Deccan in the 44th year and Akbar resolved to go there himself, the Khān-Khānān was again received into favour and sent to the prince In the end of Shawal of the 45th year, 1008, May 1600, the prince in company with the Khān Khānān besieged the fort of Ahmadnagar On every side great efforts were made Bībī proposed an agreement, and Cīta 1 K the eunuch rebelled against this view, and in concert with some wicked people put that noble lady to death Guns were discharged from the fort, and hostilities were renewed After thirty yards of the wall had been blown up by a mine, the besiegers entered by the Laili? bastion and put many to the sword Bahādur the son of Ibrāhīm -whom they had made the Nızām Shāh-was made prisoner The fort was taken after a siege of four months and four days The Khān-Khānān took Nızām Shāh and presented himself before Akbar in Burhanpur At the time of the king's return to the capital he gave Khandes the name of Dandes and made it over to Prince Daniel, and gave Jānā Begam the Khān-Khānān's daughter in marriage to that prince He sent the Khān-Khānān to chastise R'ajū Manā who had set up the son of Shāh 'Alī, the uncle of Murtaza Nızām Shāh, as ruler and was stırııng up strife After the death of Akbar a great breach occurred in the Deccan In the third year of Jahangir 1017, 1609, the Khān-Khānān came to court and undertook 3 that if in addition to the troops already assigned to him 12,000 cavalry were given him, he would finish the affairs of the Deccan in two years Accordingly, he immediately was given leave to go to the Deccan Prince Parvez under the guardianship of Asaf K J'afai, the Amīru-l-umarā Sharīf Khān, Rajah Mān Singh Kachwāha and Khān Jahān Lodī, were appointed one after the other to assist him. When it appeared

¹ Or Jitā A F III, 774, has Habsha Khān Seo B 336 The Lucknow edition of A F has Jitā

² Text Balbali but see A N III,

⁷⁷⁵

S Elliot VI, 318, and Tuzuk J 71

that the Khān-Khānān had in the height of the rains taken the prince from Burhanpur to the Bālāghāt (the Highlands), and that on account of the discord among the chiefs plans had been neglected, and that the army had been reduced to great straits by the scarcity of corn and the deaths of the quadrupeds, and that the Khān-Khānān had been compelled to make a dishonourable peace, and such as was unworthy of the empire, with the enemy, and then had returned, the affairs of the Deccan were made over to Khān Jahān, and Mahābæt K was sent to recall the veteran general

When he came to court in the 5th year, he obtained leave to to go to his fiefs in Kālpī and Qanauj in order that he might put down disturbers in that quarter In the 7th year when a severe defeat happened in the Deccan to 'Abdullah K (Fīrūz Jang), and the work did not make progress under Khān Jahān, it was perceived to be necessary to send the Khān-Khānān, and so he was despatched there with Khwaja Abū-l-Hasan As on this occasion also, in spite of the presence of Prince Parvez and of leading officers, the work did not take proper form, Jahangu in the 11th year, 1025, 1616, sent off Sultan Kharram (Shah Jahan) to the Deccan, and gave him the title of Shāh-which no prince had had since the days of Sāhib Qirān (Timur),—and himself in Muharram 1026, January 1617, came to Malwa and took up his The prince made Burhanpur his headquarters, abode m Māndū and sent capable men to the rulers of the Deccan, and at the same time took in marriage, by Jahangir's orders, the daughter of Shāh Newāz K the son of the Khān-Khānān After the arrival of Shah Jahan's envoys, 'Adıl Shah sent as a present 50 elephants as well as cash and jewels to the value of 15 lacs of rupees, and shewed marks of Servitude and obedience Accordingly, at the request of the prince, he was distinguished by the title of farzand (son), and Jahangir with his own hand wrote 1 this impromptu verse at the beginning of the firman

Verse

At Shah Kharram's instance thou'rt become Famous the world o'er as our son

Qutbu-l-mulk also sent presents of the same value and was treated with favour Malik 'Ambar also placed the head of service within the cord of obedience, and made over the keys of the foit of Ahmadnagar and of other foits as well as the parganas of the Bālāghāt of which he had taken possession

When the prince was satisfied about the arrangements for the Deccan, he made over the government of Khandes, Beiar and Ahmadnagai to the Sipahasālāi (the Khān-Khānān), and appointed Shāh Newāz K, the eldest son of the latter, to manage the conquered parts of the Bālāghāt, and assigned every estate in fief to the officers of the contingents and left 30,000 horse and 7,000 musketeers 1 and in the 12th year waited on his father in Mandu the time of the interview Jahangir involuntarily rose up and went two or three steps to welcome the prince He gave him the rank of 30,000 with 20,000 horse and the title of Shah Jahan and the right of sitting on a chair near the throne, which was a special favour and was not the custom of the dynasty from the time of Jahangir himself came down from the that oka and pouted a small tray of jewels and a trayful of gold on his son's When in the 15th year Malik 'Ambar broke his agreement and the oppression of his banditti (bargīān,2 perhaps Mahrattas) made the imperial thanadars quit their posts, so that Daia M returned from the Bālāghāt and came to Bālāpur, and then too could not maintain himself but came to Burhanpur and was besieged there along with his father, Prince Shah Jahan received a kioi of iupees for expenses of the expedition and a present of ten krois of dams from the conquered territories and was hastily sent off a second time

They say that when petition after petition from him (the Khān-Khānān) were produced before the king to the effect that he was in a difficult position and he had determined to follow the custom of johar (immolation of self and family, literally "life-

¹ tope? The word is clearly used in Iqbalnama 271 line 2, for musleteers They represented the infan-

Lu. Bargi is the name often applied to a Mahratta, and in Captain James Kerr's History of the Mahrattas, London 1783, it is stated that Malik 'Ambar was at one time in league with the Mahrattas abandonment''). Jahangu said to the Prince that as Akbar I had by a hurried march rescued the Khān 'Azam when besieged by the Gujaratis he should now rescue the Khān-Khanān from his dangerous position. When the Deceanis heard of the coming of Shah (Shah Jahan) they dispersed. The Prince reached Burhanpur and again undertook the administration of the Decean.

When in the 17th year Shah 'Abbas Safavi advanced to besiege Qandahai, the Prince was recalled as quickly as possible He brought the Khān-Khānān with him Meantime things took another turn, and by the machinations of foolish persons a household quairel of such a grave character arose that no thought was given to the commotion of foreigners The Prince was obliged to return with the Khān-Khānān and to take up his abode at Māndū Jahangn at the instigation of Nui Jahan Begam, appointed Sultan Paivez with Mahābat K as commander-in-chief the treachery of Rustum K, -whom the prince had sent to encounter the imperial army,-Shah Jahan crossed the Narbada with the Khān-Khānān, and after leaving Bairam Beg Bakhshī to watch the river, proceeded to Burhanpur At this time a letter of the Khān-Khānan's which he had secretly written to Mahābat K, and which had this verse on the maigin, came under the prince's observation-

Verse

A hundred persons are watching me Otherwise I'd fly from discomfort

He sent for the Khān-Khānān and showed it to him He had no excuse that could be listened to Accordingly, he and his son. Dārāb K were put under surveillance When the prince was passing by Asīr he made father and son over to Saryid Mozaffar K Bārha and sent them to the fort Inasmuch as the imprisonment of the innocent Dārāb K was unjust, and he did not approve of letting him go and keeping the father, he sent for them both and let them go after taking promises from them When Mahābat K came with Sultan Parvez to the bank of the

Naibada and saw that Bairam Beg had taken off the boats to the other side and blocked the ferries with guns and muskets, he had recourse to fraud, and secretly sent a letter to the Khān-Khanān and led away that old and experienced man The Khan-Khanan wrote to the prince that the heavens were unproprtious made a truce for some days the servants would certainly obtain The prince, who was always desirous to compose disputes, regarded this occurrence as a great gain, and called the Khān-Khānān to a private interview Again he took an oath from him on the holy book, and when satisfied about this, let him go, in order that he might stay on this side of the Narbada and do what was light for both parties As by the arrival of the Khān-Khānān and the rumours of peace there had come to be slackness in the guarding of the ferries, Mahābat K —who was awaiting his opportunity—caused a number of active young men to closs over the river at night The Khān-Khānān was deceived by the false letters of Sultan Parvez and Mahābat Khan, and from love of the world behaved disloyally and forgot his recent oaths and joined Mahābat K The prince was helpless and did not think it right to remain in Burhanpur and went off to Bengal by the loute of Telin-Mahābat K came to Burhanpur, and having joined with Khān-Khānān crossed the Taptī and pursued Shah Jahan for some The Khān-Khānān wrote to Rajah Bhīm (son of the Rānā of Udaipur), who was one of Shah Jahan's officers, that if the prince would release his sons he would contrive to tuin back the imperial troops Otherwise affairs would become difficult Bhīm wrote in reply that they had still five or six thousand devoted followers, and that whenever he approached, his sons would be put to death, and he himself would be attacked, After the Prince had settled the affairs of Bengal he proceeded to Bihar and released Dārāb K and made him governoi of the province (Bengal) Mahābat K, at the time when he proceeded to Allahabad to oppose the Prince, kept the Khān-Khānān under surveillance, as he doubted him on account of his trickery and duplicity In the 20th year Jahangir summoned him to the Presence from being with (i e, from being under the charge of Mahābat) Mahābat K , and forgave him He himself apologised, saying, "All this has been the result of fate. It was not in your or our power, and I teel more ashamed than you" He gave him a lac of rupees and confirmed him in his rank and title, and the jagir of Malkūsah. The old man who, from love to the world had given name and fame to the winds, engraved this veise on his ring—

Verse

By the help of God, the kındness of Jahangır Has² twice given me life and twice the Khān-Khānānī

Mahābat K apologised when he was summoned to court, and did not fail to provide him with equipages and strove to remove the cloud from his mind As it happened, the Khān-Khānān had taken leave to go to his jagu and had halted in Lahore, when Mahābat K turned back and came to Lahore to see the king The Khān-Khānān made no inquiries after his health, and Mahābat K was disgusted at his want of courtesy, and when he was dominant at the bank of the Jhelam he appointed men to make him go back (from Lahore). The Khān-Khānān cast anchor in Delhi At the same time the juggling heavens played another trick the time of the king's returning from Kabul, Mahābat K became a vagabond Nür Jahān Begam summoned the Khān-Khānān and appointed him to follow Mahābat with an army She presented him from her own stores with twelve lacs of rupees, with elephants, horses and camels She also assigned to him Mahābat But life did not give him time Khān's fief He fell ill in Lahore, and came to Delhi and died there at the age of 72 in 1036, 1627, at the end of the 21st year of Jahangir The chronogram ıs Khān Sıpahsālār ko, "Where's the Khān Commander-ın-chief?" (1036) He was buried near Humāyūn's tomb

I Malkousah of Supp Glossary II 90 It was in Qanauj, J II 184 There is an account of the Khān-Khānān's interview with Jahangir in Kāmgār Husāinī B M M S — Or 171, p 187a It occurred in the 20th year See also Tūzuk J, p 398 But the expression of Jahangir that he felt more shame than did the Khān-Khān-Khānan occurs in the annals of the loth year Tūzuk, 141 Apparently the author of the Maasir has mixed up the two incidents

² Referring to his having been twice forgiven Tūzuk 141 and 398

The Khān-Khānān was in respect of ability the unique of the age He was versed in Arabic, Persian, Turkī and Hindī understood poetry well, and wrote it Rahīm was his tallyallas They say that he could converse in most of the languages of the world His liberality and magnanimity are proverbial in India Some extraordinary stories are told of him. They say that one day he was signing barāts (orders on the Treasury) On the war rant 1 (barāt) for a foot-soldier (piāda) he had signed for a thousand supees instead of for a thousand tankas (pice), and he did not alter He several times weighed poets against gold when giving a present One day Mulla Nazīrī 2 (B. 579) said "How big a heap is a lac of rupees? I have never seen it " The Khān-Khānān ordered the amount to be brought from the treasury. When they "Thank God that by had brought it together, the Mulla said means of my Nawab I have seen so much com' He ordered all to be given to the Mulla, so that he might now give thanks to God He continually, both openly and secretly, gave large sums to dervishes and to learned men, and yearly sent money to people The gatherings of men emment in every science in at a distance his time were like the time of Sultan Husain K 'Alī Shīr

In fine, he was in courage, generosity, and political skill the greatest man of the age. But he was malevolent, worldly and time-serving to a very great extent. His favourite saying (bāigīr kalāmash, "The burden of his song") was, "Enmity to an enemy should come out under the guise of friendship." This stanza was composed about him—

Verse 3

A span in height and a hundred twists in the heart, A tiny handful of bones, and a hundred frauds

¹ For $bar\bar{a}t$ see Irvine A of M 56 It was an order on the Treasury for payment A tanka here probably means the same thing as a $d\bar{a}m$, viz, $\frac{1}{10}$ th of a rupee

² See Khazāna 'Amirā, page 437, where it is said that the story is told in the Zakhīra-ul Khwānīn Na/īrī died in Ahmadadad in 1021, 1612

³ It would appear from this couplet that the Khān-Khānān was small of stature There is a play on the word girth in the first line, as it means both a knot or twist, and a cubit There is also a play on the word ishkil in the second line which means frauds, and also may mean 'figures' (iskhāl)

He served in the Deccan at intervals for thirty years. Whenever any of the princes or officers came as his auxiliaries they saw the obedience and loyalty of the Deccan princes to him, and ascribed to him hypocrisv and sedition. So much was this the case that S Abū-l-fazl frequently gave judgment (fatwa) against him as a rebel. In the reign of Jahangir he was suspected of friendship for Malik 'Ambar, and so was dismissed. Muhammad M'asūm¹ a confidential servant of his became unfaithful to him and denounced him to the king, saying that the correspondence of Malik 'Ambar was with Shaikh 'Abdu-s-Salām, of Lucknow, who was a servant of the Khān-Khānān. Mahābat K was ordered to inquire into the matter. He tortured the poor man, who died without opening his lips

The Khān-Khānān was one of the great officers of the Sultanate His name is perpetuated in the writings of the period. In Akbai's time he did great deeds. Among them there are three conspicuous ones,—the victory of Gujarāt, the conquest of Scinde, and the defeat of Suhail K, of Bijapur. These have been described at length in their place. With all his wisdom and ability he had to endure mortifications. He did not withhold his hand from the love of splendour. They say that he had a great avidity for court-news, so that every day two or three persons sent him journals by relays of couriers. There were spies appointed in the court-houses, and offices and terraces (cabūtra), and even in the market-places and streets, who wrote every popular rumour. In the evening he read them all and then burnt them. They say that many things were in those days peculiar to his family,—for instance, the feathers of the humā which no one wore except princes.

Though his father was an Imāmīya in religion he professed to be a Sunnī But people suspected him of reserve (taqīya) But his sons were bigoted Sunnīs. He had other sons besides Shāh Newāz K and Dārāb K. One was M. Rahmān Dād, whose mother belonged to the Saudha tribe of 'Amarkot. In his youth

¹ M'asūm is mentioned in the Tūzuk J 81 as being 'Abdu-r-Rahīm's vakīl and as having brought to Jahangir on his behalf a valuable copy of the Yūsuf and Zulaikha

he was adorned with splendid qualities, and his father loved him much. He died in Mahkar 1 about the same time as Shāh Newāz K (1e, M Īrij) passed away. No one had the courage to report it to the father. At the request of the ladies, Haziat Shāh 'Īsā, of Scinde—may his grave be holy—came to the house of the Khān-Khānān and condoled with him and comforted him. Another son was Mīrzā 'Ami Ullah, who was the offspring of a slave-gul. He remained without education and died young

The best of the Khān-Khān's servants was Mīyān Fahīm Though it was reported that he was a slave he was really a Rajput by descent. He was brought up like his son and possessed great ability and steadfastness. To his last breath he never failed in the night prayer, the forenoon prayer, and the prayer at sunrise. He loved dervishes. He ate with the soldiers like a brother, but he was of a hot disposition. The sound of the whip was ever loud.

They say that one day he saw that Rajah Bıkramājıt² Shah-Jahānī was reclining beside Dārāb K on the same sofa abused him and said "Does a brahman like you sit alongside of the grandson of Banām K Would that this one (Dārāb) had died instead of M Īrij '' Both of them made excuses When at last the Khān-Khānān's disposition had became alienated from him, he was brought to account about the fauldari of Sarkai Bijagarh behaved very rudely to the Nawab and slapped the face of Hafiz Nasr Ulla who was the Diwan, and then left the city that the Khān-Khānān went himself at midnight and brought him He was proverbial for courage and rash daring When Mahābat K was planning the imprisonment of the Khān-Khānān, he in the first place wanted to seduce Fahīm by the bribe of high rank and other promises He did not agree Mahābat K said: "How long will you plume yourself upon your soldiering?" Though Fahim said to the Khān-Khānān that fraud and deceit

i Sarkār Mahkar in Berar J II 230, 237. The Tūzuk 315 says he died in Bālāpūr I do not know why B says (339) he was dissolute Can he have read khabīsat for haisiyat? The Tūzuk gives him a high character and describes him as dying under heroic circumstances. He died at Bālāpūr

² Rajah Rai Rayan Sunar Das He was a brahman See Maasir II 183

were being practised, and that he should be on his guard against falling into disgrace and contempt, he should arm himself and be ready to go to the Presence, the Khān-Khanān did not agree When he was put under arrest, Mahābat K previously sent the king's men against Fahīm Fahīm said to his son Fīrūz K

Watch the men for some time until I have performed my ablutions and said two prayers in peace." After finishing them he with his son and forty of his servants gave up their lives for honour.

'ABDU-R-RAHĪM KHĀN

Fifth son of Islām K of Mashhad After his father's death-he received a suitable rank and in the 30th year of Shah Jahan was made superintendent of the pages (darogha-i-khwāssān). In the second year of Aurangzeb he had the title of Khān, and in succession to Himma K Badakhshī was made darogha of the ghusal-khana. In the 23rd year he was made Master of the Horse in succession to Bahramand K, and in the 24th year he was removed from this post and made third bakhshi and received a jade inkstand. In the 25th year corresponding to 1092, 1681, he died

'ABDU-R-RAHĪM ĶĦĀN (KHWĀJA)

His ancestors belonged to Andijan in the country of Ferghana (Kokhand) His father Abū-1-Hāsim was one of the leading Shaikhs of that country, and in the reign of Shah Jahan came to India 'Abdu-r-Rahīm was in his youth a favourite of Dārā Shikoh After the accession of Aurangzeb he obtained service with him, and as he was observant of the Law he acquired consideration and received a suitable rank and the title of Khān In the 26th year he was appointed to the chamberlainship (hajābat) 2 of Bijapur, and on returning from there he received the present of an elephant In the 32nd year he was appointed, in succession to l B 338-339 See Daibārī A 646 The Daibārī A says his name is still proverbial in India for courage

² Maasıı A 228 and 255 Apparently hajābat here and in other places means being sent as an envoy

Bijapui had not been conquered then In the 20th year we find 'Abdu-r-Rahīm taking part in the conversion of two Hindu boys Massir A, p 273 For other notices of 'Abdu-r-Rahīm see also pp 312, 335 and 349

Muhsin K, to the charge of the Biyūtāt (household matters) When in the 33rd year the fort of Rāhīrī was taken he was appointed to take possession of the effects there. Afterwards, on the death of M'utamid K, he was appointed also superintendent of the branding and the verification $(d\bar{a}qh\ u\ tash\bar{b}ha)$. In the 36th year corresponding to 1103, 1692, he died. He had several sons. The second son was Mīr N'aamān K, and his son Mīr 'Abdu-I-Mannān came to the Deccan and was for a time a servant in the household of Nizāmu-I-mulk Āsaf Jāh. At last he confined himself to his house. He composed poetry, and his pen-name was 'Itrat (a ball of scent). This verse is his

Verse

How shall I tame thy wild-deer eyes, Haply I may make the knots of my heart a net for thee

The eldest of his ('Abdu-l-Mannan's) sons was M'utamidu-d-daula Bahādui Siidār Jang. He was Salābat Jang's diwān, and died in 1188, 1774-75. His second son Mīi N'aamān K was killed in a Mahiatta battle in the time of Salābat Jang. The thiid Mīi 'Abdu-l-Qādii died of disease in his youth. The fourth, Ahsanu-d-daula Bahādui Shaiza Jang, and fifth, Mafawwaz Ullah K Bahādui Jang, Jkatāz, are still alive, and are friends of the writer

'ABDU-R-RAHMĀN, AFZAL KHĀN

He is the son of Āllāmī Fahāmī (the very learned) Shaikh Abū-1-tazl He was brought up in his father's service. In the 35th year of Akbar's reign the brother's daughter of S'aādat Yār Koka was given to him in marriage. When a son was born, the king gave him the name of Bishotan, which was the name of Isfandyār's brother who was one of the heroes of Persia. At the time when S Abū-1-fazl was commander-in-chief in the Decean, Ābdu-1-Rahmān was the "arrow at the mouth of the Shaikh's quiver." Whenever there was any work to be done, and wherever there was an urgency, the Shaikh sent off 'Abdu-r-Rahmān there, and he by courage and smartness accomplished the task. In the 46th year

¹B 250, n 3, who says it is "life-certificate" see Irvine 46 and 53 when Malık 'Ambar the Abyssınıan captured 'Ālī Mardān Bahādur the governor of Telingana in battle, and took possession of that country, the Sharkh sent 1 him from the bank of the Godavery with a brave army in that direction. He also sent Sher Khwāja, who was in Pāthiī,2 to help him S 'Abdu-r-Rahmān in conjunction with Shei Khwāja crossed the Godavery near Nander, (Nandair of I G) and engaged Malik 'Ambai near the river Manjara and obtained a victory.° Certainly S 'Abdu-1-Rahmān was by skill and bravery the fortune (rozgār) of the Shaikh (A F) spite of the feelings which he on account of his father entertained towards Jahangir he served the latter well and was favoured by He received the title of Afzal K and the rank of 2000 h_{1m} the third year he was promoted by an increase of rank and by being appointed to the charge of Bihar and Patna in the room of Islam K (A F's brother-in-law) As Gorakhpur, which is 60 kos from Patna, was given to him in fief, he left S. Husain Banarasī and Ghiyas Beg, who were the bakhshī and the diwan of the province, in charge, along with a number of other officers, and went off to By chance an unknown man by name Qutb 4 from Uch came to the country of Ujaina (Bhojpūr), which is near Patna, in the disguise of a dervish and gave himself out as Sultan Khusrau and enticed the seditious there by various devices, and got them to join him In a short time he collected a force and proceeded on the wings of swiftness to Patna and entered the fort Banarasī was too bewildered to make the fort secure with Ghiyas Beg he got out by a window on to a boat and fled The rebels took possession of the Afzal K's goods and of the royal treasure, and after proclaiming the administration of justice set about collecting men As soon as Afzal K heard the news he

¹ AN III 789

² Patri of the maps, W Nandan

⁵ A.N III 791, but the fruits of the victory were soon lost See 1 c

⁴ See Elhot VI, 321, and Tūzuk J 83, 84, and B XXXV, XXXVJ The affair occurred on 4 Safr 1018, 18 April 1610 Bishotan the son of

^{&#}x27;Abdu-r-Rahmān died in löth year of Shah Jahan's reign B XXXVI 'Abdu-i-Rahmān died in 1613 Though Gorakhpūr is the name given here and in the Tūzuk as the fief of 'Abdu r-Rahman, I believe that it should be Kharakpūr, for it was that place which was given him as fief hastened to punish the rioters The impostor strengthened the fort and prepared for battle on the banks of the Pun-Pun a short struggle his troops were dispersed and he came to the fort a second time Afzal K followed close at his heels and entered the fort The impostor after causing the deaths of some people was captured and executed When Jahangir heard of the affair he issued an order that the bakhshi and diwan and the other officers who had shown slackness in protecting the city should have their heads and beards shaved, be clothed in women's headdress (m'ijai) and be placed on donkeys with their faces to the tail and sent off to court Also that they should be pilloried in the cities and towns on the road, so that they might be a warning to other cowards and short-sighted men At the same time Afzal K was attacked by a sudden illness and was summoned to court After he had paid his respects he suffered from an abscess for a long time and died in the 8th year

'ABDU-R-RAHMĀN SULTAN

Sixth son of Nazi Muhammad K. In the 19th year of Shah Jahan Prince Murad Bakhsh went with a large army and-after Nazr Muhammad K with his two sons Subhan Quli and Qutlaq Muhammad had fled—took possession of Balkh he summoned Bahrām and 'Abdu-r-Rahmān the sons of Nazı Muhammad, and his grandson Rustum, who was the son of Khusrau, and made 1 them over to Lohrasp K In the 20th year S'aïd Ullah K, who, after the resignation of the Prince, had been appointed to settle the country, sent in accordance with orders all three to count along with Rajah Bethal Das and others On their arrival the Sadiu-s-Sadūr Saiyid Jalāl ieceived them at the Khiyābān (avenue) and brought them into the Presence The king presented Bahiām with a robe of honour, a cārqab sewn with gold, a jīgha (turban-oinament), and a decorated dagger, a $ph\bar{u}l$ katāra, and conferred on him the rank of 5000 with 1000 horse, and two horses with golden saddles, ten 3 taqūz (nine pieces) of cloth and a lac of shāhīs, which

¹ Khāfi K I 261 This punishment was witnessed by Hawkins Hawkins' Voyages, Hakluyt Society 1878 p 434

² Pādshāhnāma II 541

³ B 364 note 2 qu 90 pieces

amount to Rs 25,000 To Abdu-1-Rahmān he gave a 10be, a jīgha, a decorated dagger, a horse with golden trappings and five taqūz (nine pieces) (45?) of cloth. To Rustum he gave a 10be of honour and a horse 'Abdu-1-Rahmān who was the youngest of the brothers had a daily allowance of Rs 100 and was made over to Dārā Shikoh

the Begam Sāhib (Shah Jahan's eldest daughter) sent tor the Khān s (Nazr Muhammad) wives and soothed and comforted them in various ways. Afterwards, at various times he received presentof horses elephants and cash. When Balkh was given back to Nazi Muhammad he after various disturbances with the Uzbegs and Almanan and after putting them down and acquiring a settled power, moved the king for the return of his sons and their connections (wives etc.) Inasmuch as Khusrau had been on bad terms with his father before the taking of Balkh and Badakhshan and had come to the Presence, he was neither sent for by his father nor was he willing to go to him Bahrām too would not tuin away from the pleasures of India In the 23rd year Abdu-1-Rahman received a robe of honour a decorated 1icha, a sword and dagger and a shield with ornamented armour and two horses with gilded saddles and Rs 30,000 in each and went off with his father's ambassador Yādgāi Chūlāq When he came to his father the latter gave him the territory of Ghorī Subhān Qulī the fourth son was displeased and came to Balkh with 1000 cavality and put the Khān into difficulty, so that he was obliged to recall 'Abdu-1-Rahmān 'Abdu-1-Rahmān was going back when the Qalmāqs-who were on good terms with Subhan Quli-blocked the road made him prisoner and took him before Subhān Quli He imprisoned him but 'Abdu-i-Rahmān won over his guards and in the 24th year arrived at court and was given a robe of honour, a decorated jīgha, a phūl katāra and the rank 4000 with 500 horse, a horse with gilded saddle an elephant and Rs 20 000 in cash. In the 25th year, when news came of the death of Nazr Muhammad K , Khūsrau, Bahıām and 'Abdu-r-Rahman his sons received mourning dresses In the 26th year, when he showed improper conduct, the king grew displeased with him and sent him to Bengal After Aurangzeb sate on the throne, he was in the army-centie in the battle with Shuja

(and on his side) When Shuja' fled, he joined the king. Up to 13th year he and Bahrām were alive and occasionally received presents in each and horses and elephants from the king

'ABDU-R-RAZZĀQ K LĀRI

At first he was servant of Abū-1-Hasan K ruler of Haidarabad and had the title of Mustafa K When Aurangzeb in the 29th year of his reign invested the fort of Golconda where Abū-l-Hasan had taken refuge, most of the servants of the latter owing to the necessity of the time turned to Aurangzeb and received high posts But 'Abdu-1-Razzāq was faithful to his salt and continually sallied from the fort and attacked the batteries, and never spared himself A royal firman holding out hopes to him which was sent in order to conciliate him was rejected by him on account of his loyalty, and he tore 1 it in pieces with expressions of One night when the king's officers in concert with some of the garrison, entered the fort, and there was a great uproar, he without stopping to gird up his loins, got upon a hoise with a chār jāma (a saddle-cloth, a saddle without a tiee) and a sword and shield, and with some 10 or 12 followers rushed 2 to the gate royal troops had negotiated the gate of the city-wall and were Abdū-1-Razzāg met advancing to the citadel like a flood of evil them and smote with his sword every one who approached was wounded by the imperial troops and had twelve wounds on his face, till at last the skin of his forehead covered his eyes and his horse carried him off to under a (cocoanut) 3 tree near the citadel Someone recognised him and had compassion on him and took When the occurrence became known to the him to his house officers, and by them was told to the king, he approved of his loyalty and sent surgeons 4 to him

They say that when a hope of his recovery was reported to Aurangzeb, he sent him a message that he should send his sons for service and that he himself too would obtain service. He after

¹ Khāfī K II 360

² Do 362

³ Do 363 and Stanley Lane-

Poole's Aurangzeb, pp 185-87 4 "Two Indian and European sur geons," Khāfi K 366 returning thanks said that though his tough existence had not come to an end, yet he was wounded hand and foot and could Even if he could serve, one whose flesh and skin (gosht not serve u post) had been nourished by Abū-1-Hasan's salt could not serve Kıng Ālamgīr The king's countenance showed displeasure at this reply, but from a feeling of justice he ordered that when he had quite recovered, his condition should he reported When he had recovered, an order was sent to the governor of Haidarabad that he should comfort him and send him to the Presence again refused, an order was given to send him as a prisoner Khān Fīrūz ² Jang interceded for him and summoned him before He kept him for some time with him and brought him In the 38th year he received the rank of 4000 with 3000 lound horse and was enrolled among the servants, and received the title of Khān, and the gift of a horse and an elephant, and was made In the 40th year he acquired renown as faujdār³ faujdār of Rahīrī of the Konkan 'Adıl Shāhī', which is on the sea-shore and near the port of Goa Afterwards, he by urgency obtained leave to go to Mecca, and set off After coming to his home in Lar (Persia) he went into retirement there The king, on hearing of him, sent hıs ('Abdu-r-Razzāq's) son 'Abdu-1-Karīm with a firmān, summoning him and a thousand young 4 men of Lar Meanwhile news came that he, at the summons of the king of Persia, had left his home and died on the road Two sons, one Razzāq Qulī K, and the second, Muhammad Khalīl, were in Aurangabad and lived and died on their jagīrs The writer was acquainted with the second one

(SAIFU-D-DAULA) 'ABDU-S-SAMAD KHĀN BA'HĀDUR DILER JANG

A descendant of Khwāja Āhrār His uncle Khwāja Zechariah had two daughters, one of whom he gave to him in marriage, and for Rs 50,000 was also sent There is a good account of 'Abdu-r-Razzaq in Major Haig's Historic Landmarks of the Deccan

^{1 &}quot;Two Indian and European surgeons," Khāfī 367

² Do 373

⁵ Maasır. A 387

⁴ Do. 459 A cheque on Surat

the other was the wife of I'tmādu-d-daula Muhammad Amīn K Saifu-d-daula came to India in the time of Aurangzeb and at first had the rank of 400. In the reign of Bahadur Shah his rank rose to 700. In the battle of the four princes, the sons of Bahādui Shāh, he joined with Zū-l-fiqāi K and distinguished himself in the slaying of Sultan Jahān Shah In iewaid he got high In the reign of Farrukh Siyar his rank was 5000 with 5000 horse and he had the title of Dilei K and was made governor of He was appointed to finish the campaign against the Sikh Gūiū who from the time of Bahādur Shāh had practised various kinds of oppression in that country over both Muhammadans and Hindus The Khān-Khānān Mun'im K had been sent with 30,000 cavalry to chastise him and had besieged him in Lohgarha and the emperor had himself gone in that direction, but the Guiu had escaped from the foit Afterwards Muhammad Amin was sent in pursuit of him with a large force but was not successful

The history of the Sikh tribe is this. Formerly Nānak Rām a faquir, became notorious in that country. He attracted many followers especially from among the Khettris of the Panjab. His followers were called Sikhs. A large number collected, and they proceeded to oppress the country-side. They laid hands on and plundered everyone whom they found from the city (Delhi) up to near Lahore. Some faujdārs left their parganas and came to court and some who remained lost their property and their lives. At the time of writing also the province of Lahore and part of the province of Multan are in possession of this tribe. The Shāh Durrānī armies which are in possession up to Kabul have once or twice suffered defeat at their hands and have withdrawn from attacking their country.

Dilei Jang showed courage and skill in this affair and established himself with a large force near Gai hī (Gūrdāspūr), which is the residence of the Gūrū. The Sikhs came out several times and had hand-to-hand fights. The Khān remained firm and stopped the coming in of supplies. After a long time, when they were in straits from want of grain, and many had been reduced to misery they sent a message asking that their lives should be spared and brought their leader, with his young son, the diwan, and those who had escaped the sword He put a number to death and brought the Gūrū (Banda) and some others to court For this good service he was rewarded by the rank of 7000 with 7000 horse, and the title of Saifu-d-daula (Sword of the State) On the day of arrival at the capital he by orders put some of the prisoners into collars (takhta-u-kalah) and caps and brought them into the city This affair occurred in 1127, 1715 In the 5th 2 year of Farrukh Siyar and while Saifu-d-daulah was governor (of the Panjab), 'Īsā K Mabīn was put to death He had gradually come from the position of a zamindai to that of a loyal servant and had become a leader, and behaved with haughtiness (exhaled the breath of "I and no other) " An account of him has been given in his biogra-When Husain K Khweshgi, the taluqdar of Qasur, which is 18 kos from Lahoie and on the way to Multan, became rebellious and indulged in presumptuous ideas, in the time of Rafiu-d-daula, Saifu-d-daula took the field against him, and after much fighting put an end to him In the 3rd year of Muhammad Shāh he came to court and was graciously received In the 7th year when the government of the province of Lahore was given to his son Zechanah, who was the brother-in-law of I'tmādu-d-daula Qamaru-d-din K, he was made governor of Multan He died in 1150 4 He was a valuant commander, and cultivated much the men of his own country

'ABDU-L-WAHĀB AQZĪU-L-QAZĀT QĀZĪ,⁵

grandson of S Muhammad Tāhii ⁶ Bohra who lived in Pattan-Gujarāt Muhammad Tāhir was adorned with excellences and

¹ Khāfī K II 761, etc, and the Sıyar Mutākharın, translation I 861, etc Elliot, VII 456

² The executions took place in Muharram 1127, January 1715 It was the 4th year of Farrukh Siyar's reign

³ Maasır, II, 825

 $^{^4}$ Beale says he died in 1739 1151-52, during the invasion of Nadir Shah

^{5 &}quot;Most remote, 1e, highest or best of Qāzis"

⁶ See biography in Mirāt Ahmadī lith ed, Part II, 77, and in Khazīna Asfiyā, I 436 S 'Ali Muttāqī is mentioned in Rieu, I 356a There is a notice of him in the Safīnau-I-Auliyā There is a notice of 'Ali Muttāqī Chishtī in the K Asfiyā, I, 429

perfections and went to the holy places (Mecca), and (there) met in with Shaikh 'Alī Muttaqī---May God have meicy on him' He became his disciple, and succeeded in becoming the unique of the age for piety, asceticism and the science of Tradition he returned to his native country, he did away with the heresies in belief and practice which had become prevalent in his tribe, and laboured to put down the Mahdavi sect of the followers of Saiyid Muhammad of Jaunpūi Foi the use of students of theology he drew up a Rule (Midād) in accordance with the last precepts of his Sharkh, and gave expository lectures thereon He used to say why should one man be hindered 1 by another (?) The Mulma'-al-bahāi gharība-l-laghātu-l-Hadīth, "The gathering of the seas of the rare words of Tradition'', is a well-known work of his In 986, 1578, a number of men attacked him on the road between Ujjain and Sārangpūi and killed 2 him They say he had made a vow that until the blackness of Shīism³ and other heresies had been cleansed from the hearts of his tribe he would not bind his turban on his head When in 980 1572-73, Akbar entered Gujarāt, he had an interview with the Shaikh and with his own hand fastened on his turban, and said, "The satisfaction of your vow is in my charge '' He appointed M 'Azīz Koka to the government of that country, and the Sharkh, with the help of the Mīrzā, abolished many of the customs of his tribe After some time, when the government fell to one of the Peisian Amiis, that set with his (the new governor's) help became perverted again, and the Sharkh took the turban off his head, and set off towards Agia In spite of the warning of Saiyid Wajī-u-d-dīn 4 Gujiāti, he would not be dissuaded, and then there happened what happened (i e, his muidei) His body was taken from Malwa to

Perhaps the meaning is, 'Why should one not be benefited by the knowledge of another?'

² The Mirāt Ahmadī II 77 gives date as Shawāl 986, 6 December, 1578 The same work also states that the name of the son of 'Abdu l-Wahāb who is known as Shaikh-ul-Islām was

Muhammad Ikrām

⁵ tashiya' Perhaps it means here sectarianism or heresy, and not the special doctrines of the Shias

⁴ It appears from the Tabaqat Akbari, 11th. ed, pp 393, 395, that there were two saints of this name

Nahiwala which is another name for Pattan and was builed in the tomb of his ancestors

Qāzī 'Abdu-l-Wahāb had great skill in the science of theology, and in the time of Shah Jahan was for a long period Qazi of Pattan, which was his birth-place When Prince Aurangzeb was appointed to the government of the Deccan the Qazi hastened to serve him and was received with honour From the time that Aurangzeb sate upon the throne of India 'Abdu-l-Wahāb acted as Qāzī of the army and was highly considered. None of his predecessors held such a dignified position as he, for the king was disposed to uphold religious principles considering that the maintenance of so wide a country depended upon the penal laws (for heresy) The qazis of the cities and towns used in concert with the governors and magistrates to sell the right of retaliation! for gold The Qazi of the Presence-who shewed himself as an ascetic and a sticklei for religion-reformed matters in every particular and spread out the banner of 'I and no other' The high officers were afraid of him and burnt with envy Yet with all this (piety, etc.) they say that the Qāzī had a long aim for hauling and snatching, and collected large sums of money Mahābat 2 Luhiasp was famous for his audacity, and once when he was sent off to the Deccan campaign and had halted for some days in the vicinity of the capital to get advances 3 for the troops he found out that three or four lacs of rupis worth of Kashmir and Agra goods, which had been purchased by the Qāzī, were being sent along with the goods of merchants to Ahmadabad He was on bad terms with the Qāzī and he laid hold of all the things and gave them to the soldiers as maintenance When this was reported to the king, Mahābat replied that out of necessity he had borrowed the goods from the merchants and that he would return them with the profit The Qāzī saw that he could do nothing but wink at the In the 17th 5 year on account of continued illness transaction

¹ San ba zan mī fanolhtand "sold blood for bullion" But there are various readings

 $^{^2}$ Khāfī K , II 216 He was the second son of the Mahābat of Jahan gır's reign

masā'ada See Blochmann, 265

⁴ Khāfī K adds that Mahābat proposed that the Qāzī should estimate the profit!

⁵ Maasıı 'Alamgīrī, 143

he was obliged to go from Hasan Abdāl to the capital. Saiyid 'Alī Akbar Qāzī of Lahoie was appointed as his deputy. In the beginning of the 19th year, 18 Ramzān 1086, 26 November 1675 os, he died im Shahjahanabad (Delhi)

He had four sons The eldest was Sharkhu-l-Islām who was made Qāzī of the capital He came to the king in obedience to a summons on the death of his father and was made Qāzī of the camp. There was no hypocrisy in his piety. He did not take a single dâm of the property left by his father and which amounted to a lac of ashrafīs² and five lacs of rupees, besides jewels, etc., but distributed his share to the other heris. He led a good life. He perceived the turbulence of the age in which men were prone to lying and violence, and did not decide disputes upon evidence and witnesses but exerted himself in order to bring plaintiff and defendant to an agreement

They say that the king asked his advice about the lawfulness of the expeditions against Bijāpūr and Haidaiabad, and that he gave a reply contrary to the king's wishes. In the 27th year he had a divine call 5 and withdrew from service and shook out worldly affans from his skirt. In spite of royal tavours, and instigations, he would not turn back or withdraw from his abandonment of service At his recommendation, the office of Qāzī of the camp (Uıdū) was bestowed on Saiyid Abū S'aïd, the son-in-law of Qāzī 'Abdu-l-Wahāb, who was in the capital In the 28th year he took leave to go to Mecca, and on his return to Surat. Aurangzeb sent for him and lavished favours on him. For instance 6 he several times with his own blessed hands smeared 'ati on his garments, and pressed him to accept the Qaziship and the office of Sadr He refused, and begged to be allowed to go for a while to his home, in order that he might visit the tombs of his ancestors and see his family, and then come back After that he used to pray to God that he might not again be defiled by the king's business 42nd year an affectionate order was sent along with his brother

^{1 1}d 148

² Khāfī K, II 247, who says there were two lacs of ashrafis

Khāfi K, II 379

⁴ Khāfi K, II 343

⁵ Maasır 'Alamgīrı, 239

⁶ Khāfi K II 414

Nūru-l-haqq to the effect that on coming to the Presence he would get the office of Sadi if he would take it. As he was helpless he unwillingly set out from Ahmadabad for he was always eager to be with the real Lord and anxious not to mix in state-matters. At the same time he was taken dangerously ill and he died in the year 1109–1698 (lit), he hastened to the quarter to which he had been attracted). The king grieved for his death and said. "Happy he in that after pilgrimage he has not defiled himself with worldly affairs." In this Timuride dynasty of 200 years there has been no Qāzī like him for honesty and piety. While he was Qāzī he was always seeking to retire. The king did not let him go till on the occasion of the affair of Bījāpūr which was a war against Muhammadans, he withdrew himself.

Those who sell religion for worldliness (dīn ba danyā "faith for fortune '), regard this noble office as a very easy one and spend money in blibes (to obtain it) in order that by doing away with the rights of men they may extort a hundred times more regard nikāhāna (fees on marriage) and mahrāna (fees on dowers) as more their due than their mother's milk. What shall be said of the hereditary Qāzīs of the townships for to be in touch with science is the lot of enemies (ie, is a misfortune), and the registers of the despandya (village-accountants) and the words of zamindars are their law and holy books Though in honour of Qazīs there is the 'tradition' with reference to knowledge and practice that out of every three Qāzīs one is paradisaical, Khwājah Muhammad Pārsā-may his tomb be holy-has said in the Fasl-ul-Khitāb, "Yes, that paradisaical Qāzī is there, but he is a Qāzī of paradise'' (i e, not an earthly Qāzī) Who can estimate the irregularities and darkness of this tribe who are worse than ignoiant?

That deceased (the Shaikhu-l-islām) had four children. Among them was Shaikh Sirāju-d-dīn who was the diwān of Beiai He renounced ³ the imperial pay (²) and at last assumed the cloak of a dervish, and became the disciple of Khwaja Abdu-i-Rahman who for a long time had said goodbye to rank and income and had knocked at the door of reliance upon God and become a master of eestacy and vision After the death of Aurangzeb he came with his Shaikh to the capital and died at his appointed time. Another son was Muhammad Ikiām who was long the Sadi of Ahmadabad He got the title of Sharkh-al-Islam and at last became blind and retired to Surat He died in the time of the present sovereign (Khusrau-1-Zamān) 1 Among the sons of Qāzī 'Abdu-l-Wahāb were Nūru-l-Haqq and 'Abdu-l-Haqq who were extremely like one another in appearance. One day the king was in doubt as to which was which The elder was Provost-marshal (thisāb) of the army, and the other was darogha of the Presence The son of 'Abdu-l-Haqq Muhammad Muhammad M'uālī Khān was addicted to drink and enamoured of music He himself used to perform without any shame He was very fond of hunting a long time during the present reign laujdar of Malkapur in Berar, which is 18 kos from Burhanpūr Eighteen years ago, more or less, he died

¹ See Khāfi K's eulogium II, 438-39

² Rieu Cat II 862, 864 The book is an account of the twelve Imams He died in Medina 822 A H 1419 A D

^o Znhāi pādshāhi ba san āwanda "He turned away from the royal moneys" (')

It should be known that bohara means a merchant in the Indian language. As many of this tribe are merchants they have become known by this name. They say that about 450 years before this, at the exhortations of a learned man named Mulla 2 'Alī, and whose tomb is in Cambay, a number of the people of Gujarāt, who at that time were for the most part idolaters, embraced the Muhammadan religion. As that person belonged to the Imāmīya sect they all joined it. After that when Sultan Ahmad, who was a confidential officer of Fīrūz Shāh, the king of Delhi, came to the country and spread the Muhammadan religion, some of the people aforesaid became Sunnīs at the teaching of the 'Ulamā of the time who were all of that religion. As between the two parties there have prevailed from of old strife and contention the dust of dispute has arisen between them

¹ Mr Irvine observes that Khusrau- i-Zāman means reigning sovereign, and therefore means here Muhammad Shah

² Mnāt Ahmadī, II 86, where there is a long account of the Borahs

¹ Those who have remained Shīas always adhere to a pious and learned man of their own tribe and bring before him the questions of the Law. They send one-fifth of their property to the Saryids of Medina, and they give alms to the learned headman above spoken of and he distributes them among the poor of the tribe.

(SAIYID) 'ABDULLAH K BARHA

also called Saivid Mivan At first he was servant of Shah Alam Bahadur He was appointed along with Rüh Ullah K in the affair of the Konkan, and in the 26th year of Aurangzeb he received the rank of 1000 with 600 horse and entered the royal service. In the 28th year he went with the abovementioned prince to chastise Abū-l-Hasan, ruler of Haidarabad, and in that campaign did good service, and was wounded 2 One day when he had charge of the rear-guard, and there was a hot engagement, he drove off the enemy and came to the assistance of his own right and left wings. When on that day the enemy had wounded Bindiaban 3 the prince's diwan and were driving off his elephant. Abdullah attacked them and after a struggle released the diwan and brought him with him. As during the siege of Bijapur the prince became an object of suspicion to his father, and some of his companions were ordered to be dismissed, an order was also issued about 'Abdullah and he was 'imprisoned Afterwards, by the intercession of Rüh Ullah K he was made over to him to be kept under surveillance, gradually by Rüh Ullah's influence his faults were forgiven. When during the siege of Golconda, Rüh Ullah K came to court, upon summons, from Bijapur 'Abdullah was left there as his deputy After some time he was made substantive governor there. In the 32nd year, when news came that 5 Rāmā, the brother of Sambhā Bhonsla, had fled from the fort of Rāhīrīgarha which Zūlfiqāi K

I Compare this with the Mirāt Ahmadī lc, p 87, which seems to ascribe these customs both to the Sunnīs and the Shīas of the Borah tribe Manucci refers to 'Abdu-l-Wahāb, I 381, II 5, 188, and there is a portrait of him at III 210

² Khāfi K, II 303

^{&#}x27; Author of the Lubbu-t tawārīkh Elliot, VII 168, and Rieu, I 228b

⁴ Khāfi K II 321

⁵ Rajah Ram M 'Alamgīrī, 327

was besieging, and of his having taken refuge in the territory of the ruler above mentioned (Abū-l-Hasan), an order was sent to 'Abdullah to search for him and to arrest him. He marched three days and three nights and came upon him. Many influential leaders were serzed but Rāmā himself escaped. On this account, in spite of such great services, the king was not pleased. Besides this, as an order had been given for confining the prisoners in the citadel of Bijapur, and several of these escaped from such a place, 'Abdullah was in that year removed from Bijapur. In the 33rd year he was made farīdār of Nandam in succession to Sīndār K. He died at his appointed time. He had many sons,' two of whom were highly distinguished, wiz, Qutbu-l-mulk 'Abdullah K and the Amīru-l-Umarā Husam 'Ali K. Of the others there was Saiyid Najmu-d-dīn 'Alī K. Accounts of all three have been given son of Mī Khwānanda From his early years he was cherished and employed by Akbar, and attained to the rank of 700 In the 9th year he was appointed, along with other officers, to pursue 'Abdullah K Uzbeg, who had fled from Malwa to Gujarāt In the 17th year when there was an intention to conquer Gujarāt and the Khān Kalān was sent on in advance, he was chosen as one to accompany him In the 18th year he was sent off with Mozaffai K who had been appointed to Malwa In the 19th year, when the king went in person to the eastern districts, he was one of his attendants. Afterwards when the Khān-Khānān was appointed to conquer Bengal, he accompanied him. On the day of the battle with Dāūd the son of Sulaimān Kaiarānī, he was in the van-guard with the Khān 'Ālam From there he for some reason came to court In the 21st year he was sent off by relays of horses to the eastern districts to convey to the officers the news of the king's approach In the middle of that year he brought the news of victory and travelled a great distance in eleven days and arrived at court and was received with favour So much gold and silver was poured into his skirt that he could not carry it off

(SAIYID) 'ABDULLAH KHĀN,2

th

¹ The famous Saiyids of Barha

they is that when the line had enthun of he aid to him. You is our town of a victory. In the 25th year, when Khan A am Kesce are opposited to Penral to put down the rebellion, the Kanara question was a staff flow with him. He was in the left was at the bettle action Shahles K and Mra um K. Francischer. As those did not no right in the proxime. He was in the exact true that year 1995, sent of to the unit who had been appointed with a serminant of K. Jimi. One day when it was he turn to be one duty be chared a mill hill of the chair, but is he is set in microwithout proper arrangement. The charms to the deliber the scholar aded him on every side with grows and online, and reads and means left their live. The Khan died in the same province of lever in the 34th wear, 1997, 1589.

ARDULLAH KHAN SAID KHAN

Fourth son of Stad & Belodur Zator Jane - As by good for tane and good service he father we continuelly being advinced to strained a suitable rank. In the 13th year of Shah Jahan he was made the protector of Lower Bangash. In the 17th year his real was took with too horse and he was given leave to join his father in Qandahar. When his fither died in the 25th year, Abdullah's rank was 2000 with 1500 horse, and in the end of the same year he had the title of Khan and the gift of a horse with a silvern saddle. He was sent off with Prince Aurangzeb who had been appointed for the second time to the Q indular campaign Afterwards he was for a long time in charge of the city of Kabul In the 31st year his rank was 2000 with 2000 horse and he had the gift of a flag and drum, and afterwards he had an increase of 500 and the gift of a drum. He was attached to Sultan Sulaiman Shikoh who had been appointed to act against Sultan Shujā' Afterwards, when the heavens assumed a new aspect, and Dara

 $^{^{-1}}$ viz the castern districts. See A.N. III 516

² A N III 522 According to B 465 he was killed on this occasion The circumstance is not mentioned by A, I The statement in the Massir us derived from Badayūnī, Lowe 380 who says that Saivid 'Abdullah, whom he calls Chaugānbegī, died of a fover a year-after the engagement with Yaqūb

⁸ Blochmann 466

Shikoh atter the battle of Samogarh fled to Lahore, he separated from the above-mentioned prince and entered the service of Aurangzeh. He received a robe of honour, and the title of S'aïd K and his rank became 3000 with 2500 horse. No further account of him appears

'ABDULLAH K UZBEG 1

One of the officers of Humāyūn, and he was among those who were magnanimous and jeoparded their lives In Akbar's time, after the victory over Hemū he received the title of Shujā'at K, and was made fief-holder of Kalpi As in the conquest of Malwa he had assisted Adham K and had become acquainted with the country, in the 7th year, when Pir Muhammad K Shirwani, the governor there, was drowned in the Narbada, and Baz Bahalaid hold of Malwa as his heieditary property, Akbar raised 'Abdullah Uzbeg to the rank of 5000 and appointed him to chastise Baz Bahadui and to settle the country He was given full powers there When 'Abdullah went properly equipped to conquei Malwa, Bāz Bahādui was unable to iesist him and fled, and the country came again into the imperial possession 'Abdullah K came to Mandu-which was the capital of the juleis of Malwa-and distributed the cities and townships among the officers

As power soon corrupts those deficient in loyalty 'Abdullah K quickly became haughty and rebellious—In the 9th year, 971 1563-64, in the height of the rains, Akbar came to Narwar and Siprī on the occasion of elephant-hunting—which were then plentiful there—and thereafter went on rapidly to Māndū—The thunder and lightning and the rain, the floods and the mud, and the holes, and hollows which exist in Malwa made the march difficult. The horses had to swim like sea-hoises, and the camels had to traverse tempestuous seas like ships—The animals' feet sank in the mud up to their chests, and many of the porters of the camp stuck in the ground—But Akbar hurried on from Gāgrūn, as the object of this terrific journey was to come suddenly on 'Abdullah K, who did not think it possible that troops could come to Malwa at such a time Ashraf K and I'timād K were sent ahead to give him-who was apprehensive on account of his evil actionsthe good news of the royal grace and to bring him into doing homage, so that he should not become a vagabond in the fields of mis-Akbar in one stage travelled 25 Malwa kos which are equal to 40 of the ordinary Delhi kos, in all the mud and water, and reached Salangpur When he came to Dhar he learnt from his envoys that though they had urged him (to come in) they had not succeeded on account of his fears He had made some wild suggestions, and had then fled with his family and belongings Akbar turned his rein from Māndū and sent on a number of his officers as van-guard that they might block 'Abdullah's path himself pressed on still more. When the van-guard came up with 'Abdullah, he thought that as they had come a long march, there would be few men present and so turned round and fought the engagement grew hot and the arrows of the enemy passed over the king's head, Akbai ordered the diums of victory to be beaten and said to Mun'im K Khān-Khānān that there was now no time for delay, and that the enemy must be attacked The Khān-Khānān said, "It is good, but it is not the time for combating singly, when I have collected the men, I shall attack " Akbar got angry and was on the point of attacking I'timād K in the excess of his zeal seized his rein, and the king got angly with him and As the Divine protection watched over him, the pressed on enemy fled, though 'Abdullah K had more than one thousand cavalry and Akbar had not more than 300, yet he suffered his chief men to be killed, and quitted the field and went by the way of Ālī¹ Mohan to Gujarat Akbar sent a body of troops under Qāsım K of Nīshāpūr after him The land-owners of the neighbourhood joined the force out of loyalty and fell upon 'Abdullah s camp near the defile of Campanir He got bewildered and turned 8 off his women into the desert, and taking his son with

l Text wrongly has Abī Ālī Mohan or 'Alī Rājpūr is a native state in SW corner of Central India See also J II 251 and A N II 228

² A hill or defile, from which Cam-

pānīr is visible A N II 228 The troops did not enter Gujarat

³ Left them in the desert A N II 229

him went off The officers seized all his belongings-especially his women and elephants—and halted there The king traversed 'Ali' and came there and after returning thanks to God returned with 'Abdullah K -who had escaped half-alive from the battle-field-went off to Gujarat and joined Chingez K who was powerful there Akbar sent Hakim Amu-l-mulk to Chingez K to request that he would either send the wietch to court or expel him from his country. He petitioned to the effect that he was not averse to submitting to the royal command, and that he would send him to court if Akbai would forgive him - If Akbai did not agree to this, he would expel him. When the message was repeated, Chingez K turned him off and he came to Malwa and raised a disturbance Shihābu-d-dīn Ahmad K —who had been previously sent to manage Malwa—led a well-equipped army against him in the 11th year 'Abdullah was nearly being captured After a thousand difficulties he joined 2 'Alī Qulī K Khān Zamān and Sikandai K Uzbeg, and died there (i e, in Bengal or Bihai) a natural death

(KHWAJA) ABDULLAH KHĀN

His family was from Turan At first he and his brother Khwāja Rahmat Ullah K weie in attendance on 'Imādu-l-mulk Mubārız K, and both held the collectorships of Sīkākul (Chicacole) and Rajendrī When, after Mubārız K's being killed Nizāmu-lmulk Asaf Jah came to Haidaiabad, both brothers appeared be-'Abdullah was made Khānsāmān together with the management of the Rajendrī estates, and his biother was made dıwān of Āsaf Jāh's establıshment Khwāja Rahmat Ullah soon died After his death Kinwaja 'Abdullah became diwan, and when Āsaf Jāh went to the capital (Delhi) for the second time he left Khwāja 'Abdullah in the Deccan as guaidian of his son the maityred Nāsır Jang When Asaf Jāh returned to the Deccan he was always a confidential courtier When S'aādat Ullah K $\,$ the t'alūqdār of the Carnatic Haidarabad died, and Dost 'Alī K his brother's son and Safdar 'Alī K (Dost 'Alī's son) came to their end 3 in the manner described at length in the account of S'aādat Ullah K , and the fort of Trichinopoly-which is a famous fort in that country-came ınto the possession of Murār 1 Rāo Ghorpuia, Āsaf Jāh appointed Khwāja 'Abdullah to the said t'alūq of the Carnatic and addressed himself to the taking of the fort of Trichinopoly When he returned 2 after taking it, he conferred a dium upon 'Abdullah and sent him off to the t'alūq. On the same night, 1157, 1744, he was relieved from the troubles of this world by a sudden death Nagqāra-i-ākhir, "The last drum," is the chronogiam He was of a saintly family (wilāyat zai) and a man of a quiet disposition. and famed for his charities, but he was of an nacund nature. he were angly with anybody, and another person chanced to come in, he treated him with harshness and severity. The best of his sons was Khwāja N'iamat Ullah K who after his father's death was for some time collector of 3 Rajbandarī In the time of Salābat Jang he was made deputy-governor of Bijapur and had the title of Tahawwur Jang Bahādur After a while he became mad and rolled up the carpet of life Other sons were Khwāja 'Abād Ullah K, and Khwāja Sa'd Ullah K who were in the service of Shujā-ul-mulk Amīru-l-umarā The second had relations with learning Q

¹ Text abī, "a stream"

² BAN II 271

³ They were killed in battle with the Mahrattas, vol II, 513

'ABDULLAH KHAN (SHAIKH) 4

A worthy son of the great Sharkh of the Shattārī order S Muhammad Ghaus of Gwalior Of the sons of that saint S 'Abdullah and S Ziyā Ullah were the most distinguished. The first was known by the name of S Badrī. In the science of incantations (d'awat) and taksīr b (increasing?) he was his father's pupil and in the guiding and directing of men he took his father's place. By fate's decree though he was a faquir and a dervish he entered into the king's service and became one of the great Amirs. In the campaigns he continually did good service, and jeoparded his life.

¹ The Merari Row of Orme

^{2 &#}x27; to Sahan Buniyad'' Is this Arcot, or another name for Auranga bad? Mill mentions a report that 'Abdullah was poisoned

³ There is the variant Rajendri

⁴ B 457

⁵ Apparently this is a mistake for tashir, enchantment See Baday ūnī, Ranking, 459

m battle In the 40th year of Akbai's leign he attained the lank of 1000. They say he attained to the rank of 3000 and died in the prime of his age.

The second son was Ziyā Ullah, he did not serve, but lived as a dervish. In his tather's life-time he went to Gujarat, and waited upon Wajīu-d-dīn¹ 'Alawī who was very learned in exoteric sciences and had written valuable commentaries upon many books, and was a disciple of his (Zivā Ullah's) father. Under him he acquired science and in the town of Pattan he obtained from S. Muhammad Tāhir² Muhaddis (traditionist). Bohia a knowledge of Hadīs (traditions). At that time he received from his father a certificate and the grant of the khinga (robe) of succession. On the death of his father, which took place in 970, 1562-63, he took up his abode in Agia, and made a house and a khānga there. For a long time he applied himself to the attainment of final reward, and professed Sufism in a pleasing manner. On 3 Ramzān 1005, 10 April 1597, he died.

They say that in the year when Akbai was wounded at Lahore in the testicles by a deer's horn, when he was watching their fight, and he was in great pain, many leading men came from various quarters to visit him (and prescribe for him). One day the king said, "S Ziyā Ullah has not remembered me". S Abū-l-fazl informed Ziyā Ullah of this remark and he came to Lahore. By chance, after some time one of Prince Daniel's wives became pregnant, and the king ordered that she should be taken for her confinement to the Shaikh's house. The latter remonstrated, but in vain, and the lady was brought. As the Shaikh was disgusted with life, he died a week afterwards.

As the opportunity has occurred, some account will now be given of the honoured father 6 of those two brothers. S. Muham-

¹ Khazīna Asfiyā II 336 Hıs shrine is in Ahmadabad

² Khazīna Asfiyā I 436 He was a Bohra by caste and was killed in 984 The Mirāt Ahmadi says he was killed in 986, 1578

³ There is a reference to Ziyā Ullah m Badayūnī, Lowe, 204 Akbar gave him a lodging in his Ibādatkhāna See Persian text, p 202 See also Badayūni III 121 See also A N III 723

⁴ A N III 712

⁵ One of his wives gave buth to a son in 1005 AN III 729

⁶ Badayūnī, III 4

mad Ghaus and his elder brother S Bahlūl were descended from S Farīd 'Attār, and they were among the noted saints of the time Both of them were of perfect skill in incantations by the Names (of God) and could hold their breath—S Bahlūl was a disciple of Shah Qamīs who is buried in Sādhaurah (in Sarkār Sirhind) Humāyūn became his follower, and though he had been the pupil of Khwāja Khāwand Mahmūd the grandson of Khwāja Nasīru-d-dīn Ahrār he broke off the connexion, and became a pupil of the Sharkh—The Khwāja was indignant, and abandoned Humāyūn's companionship and went off from India to his own country—And he recited this verse §

Verse

Say, O Humā, ne'er cast thy shadow In a land where the pariot is less accounted than the kite

When in the year 945, 1538-39, Bengal was conquered, the clim ate suited Humāyūn and he opened out the carpet of enjoyment, and became absorbed in sensual pleasures. M. Hindāl the younger brother of the king had received Tirhut as his jagir. By the companionship of some intriguers he became imbued with evil thoughts and went off, in the height of the rains, to the capital without obtaining leave. Mīr Faqīr 'Alī the governor of Delhi—who was one of the pillars of the empire—came to Agra and by good advice brought the Mīrza back to loyalty, so that he soon went to Jaunpūr to chastise the Afghans. Meanwhile some officers fled from Bengal and joined the Mīrzā in Jaunpūr. They suggested the reading of the Khutba in his name, and his ascending the throne,

¹ Phūl in text but the variant Bahlūl is preferable

² The Khazīna Asfiyā mentions I, p 135, Shah Qamīs Gilānī who ded in Bengal in 992, 1584, and is buried in Sālūia Khiziābad 'Abdur Razzāq commonly called S Bahlūl was his disciple Sālūra seems a mistake for Sādhaurah He died in Bengal, but his body was brought away and buried in Sādhaura The I G XXI, 347 mentions Shāh Qumais' shrine in Sādhaura in the Ambāla division

³ T Rashīdī, Ney Elias and Ross

^{399,} and Badayūnī, Lowe 45 The Humā here stands for Humāyūn M Hardar generally calls Khwāja Khāw and, Khwaja Nūra

⁴ It does not appear that Hindāl went to Jaunpūr The officers joined him in Agia See A N I, p 336, etc This Nūru-d-dīn is the father of Salīma Sultan Begam who became the wife of Bairām and afterwards of Akbar She was born in this very year of 945, 1538-39, as the chronogram, Lhūsh hāl, preserved by M Muhammadī shows and the Mīrzā resumed his evil thoughts. When Humāyūn heard of this, he sent S Bahlūl to give the Mīrzā advice. The Mīrzā went out to receive him and brought him to his quarters, and treated him with respect. The officers were perplexed and annoyed by the Shaikh's arrival, but at last they united on condition that he should be put to death, for until the veil was removed from their actions there would be no harmony. M Nūru-d-dīn Muhammad seized the Shaikh in his tent on the charge of his being in concert with the Afghans, and beheaded him in a sandy place near the royal garden. S. Muhammad Ghaus found the chronogram, Fa qad māta shohīda, 945, 1538-39. "Verily he was martyred." His tomb is in the vicinity of the fort of Bīāna, on the top of a hill

Humāyūn was much grieved at the slaving of the Shaikh, and condoled with his brother Muhammad Ghaus The latter was a pupil of Hāji Hamid of Gwalioi and Ghazni, who, again, was the pupil of S Qāzan Bangālī, who was the pupil of S 'Abdullah Shattārī His proper name was Abū I-mūīd Muhammad, and he had the title of Ghaus from his father's side He lived 2 in the hill-country of Chunai in Bihar as a heimit (pii), and in the year 929, 1523, wrote in that retirement the famous book called the Jawahar 3 Khamsa (The five jewels) At that time he was 22 years of age When Shei Shah in the year 947, 1540 conquered Upper India, the Shaikh became alarmed on account of his connexions with Humāyūn and fled to Gujarat. There he built a lofty kl.ānqa (monastery) and communicated spiritual advantages to many men of that country When in the year 961, 1554, the standards of Humāyūn were unfurled in India, the Sharkh resolved to return there and in 9634—which was the commencement of Akbar's reign—he came to Agra viá Gwalior

^I Qāzan in Khazīna Asfiyā II 332

² Badayūnī, Lowe 28, who says he saw in Chunar the cave where the Shaikh had lived for twelve years Perhaps the cave is the one described in Fuhrer's Inscriptions of the N W P, etc, Vol II of Archæological series, p 260

³ See account of this book in

Hughes' Dict of Islam, art D'awa As stated in text, Abūl-Mūld or Muwayyid is another name for M Ghaus The date of the book given in Hughes is 956 If M Ghaus was 80 when he died, as Badayūnī says, he must have been about 40 in 929

⁴ Badayūnī, Lowe 28, says he came to Agra in 966

The king welcomed him, and showed him much respect Gadai Kambū the Sadru-s-Sudūr, on account of his old enmity with the Shaikh, again girded up the loins of animosity and brought to the notice of Bairam K the treatise (risāla) which the Sharkh had written in Gujarat, called M'rajiyya, and which gave an account of his own M'ırāj (ascent), and which the learned men of Gujarat had denounced Gadai made the Khan averse to the Shaikh and so he did not give the Shaikh the royal reception which he had expected So he took his leave and returned in displeasure to his residence at Gwalior On Monday, 17 Ramzān 970, 10 May 1563, he left this dustbin of a world The chronogram is Banda-i-Khudā shud "He became a servant of God" (970). They say that he $^{\circ}$ received from Akbar a pension of a kror of $d\bar{a}ms$ In the Zakhīra-ul-khwānīn it is stated that the Shaikh had a jagir of nine lacs of rupees, and that he had forty elephants appears even from the Akbarnāma that it is true, as is reported, that Akbar was his pupil, though S Abū-l-fazl, from the rivally of Sharkhs, or from prejudice, or from consideration of the king's disposition, has represented the matter differently He has stated that in the 4th year, 966—which some have mentioned as the date of the Shaikh's return from Gujaiat—Akbar came out of Agra to hunt and arrived at Gwalior It appeared that Qibcāq ³ (Tartary) cattle had come from Gujarat along with S Muhammad Ghaus, and an order was given that they should be purchased from the merchants at a proper price It was represented that the Shaikh and his people had better cattle than these, and that if Akbar at the time of returning from hunting should pass by the Shaikh's quarters, he would certainly present them as an offering (peshkash) When Akbar visited him, the Shaikh regarded his coming as a great honour, and as an amulet against his ill-treatment by Bairām that Gujarat cattle have anything to do with Tartary The MSS in B M have a word which I can't read, but which certainly does not begin with a Q The A N which is the Massir's source has be-badl "unequalled".

¹ See Badayūnī, Lowe, 28 and 62

² Badayūnī says in his history a kror without specifying the coins, but doubtless it was tankas or dāms and not rupees Badayūnī III 5 says it was a kror of tankas

³ So in text, but I think there must be some mistake, for I am not aware

K He presented all the cattle his men had, and other curiosities and rarities of Gujarat He also produced sweetmeats and perfumes. At the end of the interview he asked the king if he had given the hand of fealty to anyone. H M replied "No" The Shaikh stretched out his own aim and laid hold of the king's, and said, "We have taken your hand." The king smiled and departed It is reported that the king said, "On that same night we returned to our tents and had a wine-party and enjoyed ourselves, and laughed over the way to catch bullocks, and the Shaikh's dodge of stretching out his arm."

Verse

'Neath their varied robes they hold nooses See the long arms of those short-sleeved gentry.

Afterwards this self-pleasing simpleton exulted in public over what he had done. He (A F) also added some 2 words to the narrative, but to copy them out here would be improper

Abūl-Fazl has written still more (strangely) about S. Bahlūl, viz, that as Humāyūn was interested in incantations the Shaikh was honoured by being allowed to practise them, and that he sometimes claimed Humāyūn as his disciple and sometimes boasted of being his loyal servant In fact (says A F.) the two brothers were destitute of excellencies or learning, but at one time had sate in hermitages in the hills, and practised incantations by the Divine names, and made this the means of their own renown, and influ-By companionship with princes and nobles they succeeded in their craft by the help of simpletons and put up the things of saintship to sale and by specious pretences acquired villages and In fact all this talk 3 is S Abu-l-fazl's abuse such as he practised towards the great Shaikhs of the time because of a secret grudge and the envy of a rival, for his father was also one of the religious leaders of the time, and claimed to be equal to M Ghaus, though he was not accepted as such Or it was the result of the

¹ See the story in Akbarnāma II translation, p 133

² Referring to A F's reflections on the occurrence and on the Sharkh's conduct

M Ghaus is included in the Ain among those who understand the mysteries of the heart B 539 Badayūnī III 5 says that Akbar became M Ghaus's disciple eccentricity and unbridled speech which is opposed to good-will and rejects the common opinions. Whatever may be the case with regard to the saintship and the qhausiyat (Aid) which see hidden things it is perfectly clear that Humāyūn believed in those two brothers. The letter which Humāyūn wrote to S. Muhammad Ghaus after Sher Shah's victory, and which has been copied into the Gulzār-r-Abrār (the rosarium of the pious), and the reply of the Sharkh, will show this, and they are therefore set down here

THE KING'S LLTTER

"After respects and kissing of hands I beg to represent that the favour of the Almighty together with the guidance of your Reverence and of all the dervishes have brought me out from the defiles of difficulty into ease. What has occurred from intriguing fate has not grieved me further than that it has excluded me from serving your Reverence At every breath and at every step my thought was how will those demon-natured men (Shei Shah and the other Afghans) behave to that angelic personage heard that your Reverence had at about the same time departed to Gujarat my heart was somewhat relieved from this anxiety hope in God is that as He has brought you out from the trouble of that worthless one, He will also free me from the pain of seeming Good God! How shall I render thanks for His goodseparation ness in guiding me? In spite of many calamities which to outward appearance have involved me, in the core of my heart, the abode of worship of Oneness, there has not been a tittle of lift or failure May the path of coming and going always be trodden and be wide enough for the transit of the caravan of my good wishes!"

REPLY

"The arrival of the distinguished letter of the sovereign, and the perusal of the honoured writing of Humāyūn have brought the blessing of life to the faithful in this country. It conveyed also the intelligence of the health and wealth of the servants of the stirrup. What has been written is in accordance with the essence of things. There is no grief for what has occurred.

l Rieu III 1041b

Verse.

The word which comes from the heart assuredly settles in the heart (of the recipient)

My prayer is, May my lord's crowned head be not disturbed by the sad events!

Verse

To the traveller in the right path whatever happens is for his good

Whenever God designs to lead His servant to perfection He cherishes him both by His beautiful and His terrible attributes. The beautiful attributes have had their cycle, now, for some days, is the time of the terrible ones. As has been said, "With pleasures come pains, with pains come pleasures." The time of the beautiful attributes will soon come again, for according to the Arabian. Canon, One pain comes between two pleasures. And because the extent of the enclosed is less than the extent of the enclosing, the bride of success will soon take her seat on the marriage-dais. May God giant this, and praise be to God both now and hereafter."

In short S Muhammad Ghaus was one of the later leaders among the Shattārī in India He had many distinguished successors and disciples Saiyid Wajīu-d-dīn of Gujarat, who wrote commentaries on didactic books, and was very learned in exoteric sciences, was his disciple. One said to the Saiyid, "Why have you, with all your learning and wisdom, given the hand of adherence (inābat) to the Shaikh (who does not possess so much learning)" He replied, "It is a thing to be thankful for that my Prophet (Muhammad) was ignorant (umī) and that my Pīr is so 2 (also)" The Shattārī order goes back to the Sultānu-l-Ārifīn Bayāzīd Bistāmī. Accordingly in Turkey this order is called the Bistāmī. As one of the links of this order was S Abū-l-hasan 'Ishqī—May his trans. By the expression "Arabian Can-2. Reference is Koran The reference is vv 5 and 6 "Verily a be attended with ease" on, "Means

The repetition is taken to mean that for every difficulty there are two pleasures

² See Iqbālnāma 109

grave be holy—the order is called the Ishqīya in Persia and Tūrān They call the Pīrs of this order Shattārī¹ because they say that they are keener and more enthusiastic than the leading Shaikhs of other orders. The great men of this order in the Arabian and Persian 'Irāq continually light the lamp of guidance for travellers on the Path. The first person who came to India from Persia was S. 'Abdullah Shattārī, who by five descents was connected with the Shaikh of Shaikhs, Shāikh Shihābu-d-dīn Sahrawardī, and by seven descents with Bayāzīd Bistāmī—May his grave be holy! He took up his abode in Māndū in Malwa and died in 890,² 1485, and is buried there. His successors are occupied in various parts of India in instructing pupils

(MULLĀ) ³ 'ABDULLAH ANSĀRĪ MAKHDŪMU-L-MULK

Son of S Shamsu-d-dīn of Sultanpur His ancestors came from Multan to Sultanpur and adopted it as their home. Mullā 'Abdullah studied under Maulānā 'Abdu-l-Qādir of Sirhind, and acquired a complete knowledge of the sciences of Law and Theology. The renown of his learning spread over the world. He wrote scholia (hāshiya) on the Mullā's 'commentary, and the Minhājū-d-dīn (Highway of Faith) on the life of the Prophet. The Peace of God be upon him and on his family! The princes of the age paid great respect to him, and Humāyūn was devoted to him. When Sher Shah's turn came, he gave him the title of Sadru-l-Islām They say 'b that one day Selīm Shah saw him in the distance and said, 'Bābar Pādishāh had five sons, four went away and one

¹ Shatārat means fearlessness, and Shātır means a courier

² Beale says he died in 809 or 1406, and refers for an account of the Shattārīs to JASB for 1874, p 216 There is an account of 'Abdullah Shattārī in the Khazīna Asfiyā II 306, and it is stated there that he died in 832(1429)

³ B VII 172 and b44 The family originally came from Herat For other notices see Badayūni III 70 Darbārī Akbari 311, Khazīna Asfiyā I 448-49 of ed of 1894, and Tabaqāt

Akbari, end of account of Akbar's reign

⁴ B 544, copying Badayūni, says his works were the 'Asmatu-l-Anbiyā, and a commentary on the Shamāīlu-n-nabī The Mullā referred to in text is perhaps the Tirmī∠ī referred to by D' Herbelot under the heading of Schamail-Al-Nabi But possibly the work of Jamālu-d-dīn Atā Ullah is referred to, as 'Abdullah said he had written scholia on it, Badayūnī III 71

⁵ Badayūnī, Ranking, 534.

remained "Sarmast K. said, "Why keep such an intriguer?" replied, "I can't find a better man" When the Mulla came near him, Selīm Shah placed him on his throne (takht) and gave him a 10sary of pearls worth Rs 20,000 which he had just received As the Mullā was a great bigot—which people called being a defender of the faith—he under the guise of holding the Faith displayed great animosity For instance, the putting to death of 1 S. 'Alāi was brought about by the exertions of the Mulla S 'Alai was the son of Shaikh Hasan who was one of the great shaikhs of Bengal acquired exoteric and esoteric knowledge from his father, and after visiting Mecca he settled in Bīāna, and undertook the practice of what was right and the rejection of what was wrong At this time S 'Abdullah 2 Nıyāzī settled ın Bīāna. He was one of the followers of Selīm Chistī, and after returning from Mecca joined himself to Saivid Muhammad of Jaunpūi who claimed to be the Mahdī S 'Alāi approved of his methods and took from him the practice of holding the breath, which is a rule among the Mahdavis, and acquired the fame of working miracles He spent his days, with a great number of followers, in trusting in God night he would leave the household vessels—even the water-jugs empty, and in the morning there was a new supply 'Abdullah accused him of innovations in religion and heresy, and induced Selim Shah to summon him from Bīāna and to order him to hold a conference with the Ulama S 'Alāi was victorious As in that conference S Mubārak (Abu-l-fazl's father) took his part, he too was accused of Mahdiism

Selīm Shah was impressed by 'Alāi and whispered to him to deny Mahdīism, and then he would make him religious censor in his kingdom, otherwise he must leave the country, as the Ulamā had given judgment for putting him to death. The Shaikh went off to the Deccan. When Selīm Shah went towards the Panjab to put down the Niyāzīs, Mullā 'Abdullah represented that S 'Abdullah was the Niyāzī's Pīr. Selīm Shah sent for him in 955,

It was on the site of his cell

tran |

2 ReVIII 1

the occuss of Sirhind See Badayūnī that Akbar made his 'Ibādatkhāna See also Badayūnī I Ranking, p 508

1548, and had him so scourged 1 and kicked and cuffed that he fainted. They say that as long as his senses remained, he kept saying, "Lord, forgive us our offences" When his senses were restored, he renounced Mahdīism, and in the year 993, 1585, entered the service of Akbar who was proceeding towards Attock. He received some land in Sirhind for his maintenance in the names of his sons, and he died at the age of ninety in the year 1000, $ 1592.

When Selīm Shah had disposed of the Niyāzī affair, Mullā 'Abdullah again instigated him, and he summoned S 'Alai from Selīm Shah repeated what he had formerly said, but the Shaikh would not agree Selīm Shah said to the Mullā, "You and he know (what to do) '' The Mulla ordered him to be scourged At the third stroke of the whip he died and his body was tied 4 to the leg of an elephant and publicly exposed They say so strong a wind blew that day that men thought it was the Judgment-day So many flowers were scattered on the Sharkh's body that it became as it were entombed After this Selīm Shah's reign did not last two years When Humāyūn came again to India and took Qandahar he gave the Mulla the title of Shaikhu-l-Afterwards, when the sovereignty of India came to Akbar, the Mulla received the title of Makhdumu-l-mulk, and Bairam K. gave him a rich pargana 5 as tankwāh with a rental of a lac of rupees and raised his honour above all the great notables He became one of the chief pillars of the State After the lapse of some months and years the disposition of the sovereign became alienated by sundry occurrences from the learned men of the age, and in the 24th year, 987, he sent off him and S 'Abdu-n-Nabī the Sadr-between whom there had long been strife and enmity—to the Hijāz as if they were to be companions to one another In spite of that, there never was concord between them, either on the journey, or in the exalted stations (at Mecca), nor was the dislike removed

As the Makhdumu-l-mulk had been honoured from the time of

¹ B VIII The Darbārī Akbarī has a notice of him at p 811 See also Badayūnī I Ranking, 508, etc

² Qoran III 141

³ Badayūnī I Ranking 520

⁴ Badayūnī I 408 Ranking, 524

⁵ pargana-i-tānkwāla The D Akbārī says it was near Mānkot It seems to be tānkwāla in all the MSS.

the Afghans to that of Akbar, and was famed for his good judgment and experience of affairs, and the report of his wisdom had spread everywhere, the Shaikh Ibn Hajar 1 known as the Muftī of Mecca came out to welcome him and showed him much respect, and opened the door of the K'aaba for him, out of season. When the agitation of M Muhammad Hakīm the (half) brother of Akbar was heard of, 'Abdullah believed that the untrue account of the confusion in India was correct, and from a desire of pre-eminence and a love of glory he returned with 'Abdu-n-Nabī, the Sadr, to Ahmadabad When the king learnt that they had spoken improperly about him in assemblies, owing to secret malice, he privately appointed some persons (to arrest them) as the Begams of the Harem were siding with them and interceding for them Makhdūmu-l-mulk died of fright in 9912 They say he was poisoned at Akbar's instigation His body was secretly brought to Jālandhar and buried there Qāzī 'Alī was appointed to confiscate Much buried treasure was found in Lahore his effects it some chests containing bricks of gold were taken out of his tomb which had been buried on the pretence that they contained corpses On this account his sons suffered severities for some time in the search for property Three krors of rupees were found

S 'Abdu-l-Qādır Badayūnī writes in his history that Makhdūmu-l-mulk gave an opinion (fatwa) to the effect that at this time the pilgrimage was not lawful for the people of India, as security was a condition thereof, and the journey had either to be made by sea—and this could not be effected without Feringhi passports, which bore the figures of Mary and Jesus, which was an infringement of the law and a sort of idol-worship,—or it was by the route of Persia, where there was unsuitable society (the Shias of Persia) They say that Makhdūmu-l-mulk, on account of his bigotry, burnt the third volume of the Rauzat-al-Ahbāb, as it

¹ Apparently this was a title of the Sharif of Mecca

Should be 990 1582. The statement that he was poisoned is also taxle in the Khazina ul Asfiyā

B 172 and Badavuni Love, 206

Badayuni does not say that he heard 'Abdullah say this

^{+ &}quot;The Garden of Lovers" by Jamālu-d-dīn 'Atā Ullah Rieu I 117a See Badayūnī III 71 Badayūnī expresses the opinion that the contained some deficiencies and mistakes in the account of early times, and that on this account this volume is scarce

'ABDULLAH K FĪRŪZ JANG

His name was Khwāja 'Abdullah, and he was a descendant of Khwāja Obed Ullah Nāsīiu-d-dīn Ahiār, May his giave be holy! and a sister's son of Khwāja Hasan Naqshbandī In the latter part of Akbai's leign he came from a foleign country (Wilayat) 1 to India, and for some time served with Sher Khwāja (a relation of his) Wherever there was fighting he distinguished himin the Deccan Afterwards he left the Khwaja and joined prince Sultan Selim in Lahore and was made one of the Ahadis prince was in Allahabad, and from independence and presumption began to distribute mansabs and titles, and to give fiefs to his seivants, he received a mansab of 1500 and the title of Khan as he could not get on with Shaiff K, who was the prince's manager, he in the 48th year (of Akbar) proceeded 2 to court, and the king (Akbar) perceiving his good qualities, gave him the rank of 1000, and the title of Safdai Jang His biotheis Khwājas Yādgār and Barkhūidāi also ieceived suitable posts, and after Jahangu's accession he got a drum and a flag

As the matter of the Rānā (of Udaipūi) did not make progress under Mahābat K, 'Abdullah was in the 4th year appointed to the command of the army, and in that affair he acquired 3 a name

'Abdullah was for a long time unsuccessful, and though the Rana was ultimately obliged to submit, this was not till the 8th year and then it was Plince Khairam, ie, Shah Jahan, who was the The elephant Commander Gumān, or 'Alam Kamān, not sent in till the beginning of the see Tūzuk J 127 calls the Rana Umra Singh Elliot VI 336 for the statement that 'Abdullah was unsuccessful until Ja hangir left Ajmere Mihrpūr is not mentioned in Khāfī K. as the Rānā's Udaipūr is nentioned there, third volume was not by Jamālu-d-

¹ He came from Hisār in Transoxiana in 1000 A H along with his two brothers Yādgār and Barkhūrdai Najību-nisā, daughter of M Hakīm was married to his uncle Khwāja Hasan Naqshbandī See M Hādī's preface to Tūzuk J, p 6, and A N III 823

² Khāfi K, 220, 227 Tūzuk J, 11, where Jahangir comments on the impropriety of his leaving his service

³ The account here given does not agree with Jahangii's account in the Tūzuk J According to him

He attacked Mihrpūi, which was the place of refuge of Rānā Amar Singh, and got possession of the elephant 'Alam Guman which had no equal In Kombalmir he established a station and routed and plundered Baırām Deo Solankhī who was a leader among the Raiputs In the 6th year, 1020, 1611 he was made governor of Gujarat and an auxiliary force was also given him from the court The arrangement made was that he should march to the Deccan with the Gujarat army by the route of Nāsik and Trımbak, and that the Khan Jahan along with Rajah Man Singh the Amīru-l-Umaiā and M Rustum should go by the Beiai route and that the two armies should keep in touch with one another, and on a fixed day should surround the enemy It was probable that in this way the enemy would be annihilated

'Abdullah' K had with him 10,000 well-mounted cavalry, and in his pride and presumption he entered the enemy's territory without having any tidings of the second aimy Malik 'Ambar, who was much afraid of him chose out men and sent them to extupate him Every day they skirmished (bargīgarī mīkardand) round his camp, and they did this from night till morning approached nearer to Daulatabad the numbers of the enemy in-When he got there no sign could be seen of the second He thought it proper to retreat, and marched towards Ahmadabad viâ Baglāna On the maich the enemy pressed upon him, and there was a battle every day 'Alī 2 Mardān Bahādur did not approve of having the stain of flight put upon him and fought manfully and was made pusoner. As to the report 3 that Malık 'Ambai colluded with the Khān-Khānān and detained him by wiles, it is not true for at that time the Khān-Khānān had left

^{1 278} as his capital For the account of the Rana's submission see Elliot VI 339 'Abdullah - appointment in the 4th year is mentioned in Tüzuk J 71 and it is stated there that he got the title of Firuz Jang

¹ Mai K , I 273, etc

B 172 and Ref. and he has repeat-B 172 and Back in the account of

Khān JahānLodī The charge against the Khān-Khānān was not that he had colluded with Malik 'Ambai at the time of 'Abdullah's disaster the contrary Jahangir sent him to retuere affairs The charge was that he colluded with Malik 'Imbar in the 4th year when Khan Jahan was sent Jahangu believed this and recalled the Khan-Khanan 'Abdullah's affair was later the Deccan and gone to count. When the Khān-Khānān heard the sad news he returned and in 'Adilābād joined Prince Parvez

They say that Jahangu had portraits taken of 'Abdullah K and the other officers and that he took them into his hand one by one, and made comments on them Referring to 'Abdullah's portrait he said, "To-day no one equals you for ability and lineage, with such a figure and such abilities, and lineage, and rank and treasure, and army you should not have run away. Your title is Gaiez Jang (the fugitive from battle) " When in the 11th year (of Jahangii) 'Abdullah' sent for 'Ābid K', the son of Khwāja Nizāmu-d-din Ahmad Bakhshī (the author), and who was Wāga Nigāi (reporter) of Ahmadabad, and insulted him on account of his reports, Dianat K was sent from the court to bring 'Abdullah on foot to court He, before the order reached him, went off on that way (on foot) and by the intercession of Prince Sultan Khairam was paidoned his offences. When the hen-apparent Prince Shah Jahan went to the Deccan for the second time, 'Abdullah was sent with him but he left the Deccan without permission and went to his fiefs. On this account he was censured and deprived of his jagir and I timad Rai was made the sezawal to carry him to the Prince When the Prince was summoned from the Decean to the court for the affair of Qandahar and, on account of the rains, stopped in Mandu, and the king, on account of the instigations of make-strife people, became alienated from such a son, and the matter came to fighting, 'Abdullah came from his jagir and waited on the king in Lahoie When the Prince lettied from opposing his father and left his army under Rajah Bikrāmājīt facing the loyal army, so that he might check a force if it was sent after him, it was contilved by Khwajah Abū-l-Hasan that and his walking 60 miles on foot is told by Sii Thomas Roe. There is also a reference to 'Abullah's acts of tyranny in the Tūzuk J 208. There it is said that he cut down the trees of a garden that Nizāmu-d-din had planted at Ahmadabad in order to spite the son 'Ābid. For this his allowances for horses were reduced.

¹ See Massi I 663 in account of Ni/āmu-d-din's son, where he is called the bakhshī of Gujarat The story seems to be wrongly told there See my note 3 Perhaps the apparent mistake is only due to the author's confused style, or to the omission of a clause by a copyist See Khāfī K, I 286 The story of 'Abdullah's coming to sue for pardon

'Abdullah should be appointed to the vanguard of the royal army As soon as the two sides met, 'Abdullah' galloped off and joined the Prince's army By chance at that time a bullet from an unknown hand killed Rajah Biki amājīt Both armies fell out of order and went off to then own places As the Rajah had held the government of Gujarat, the Prince gave it to 'Abdullah, and he appointed a eunuch named Wafa 2 as his deputy with a small M Safi Saif K assumed the part of a well-wisher of force there the king and with the help of people appointed there ariested the eunuch and took possession of the city 'Abdullah took leave from the Prince in Manda and without looking for auxiliaries went off there in hot haste. When an encounter took place between the parties, 'Abdullah was defeated,' and he had to come to Baioda and then to Surat He collected a force and joined the Prince at Burhanpur After that he was always in the van in that time of struggle and contest

When in the 20th year the prince returned from Bengal to the Deccan, and taking Yaqut K. Abyssinian and other Nizam Shāhī servants with him attacked Buihānpui, 'Abdullah vowed that whenever he got possession of that city he would make a general massacre When the prince, without attaining his object, withdrew from the siege, 'Ahdullah perceived that the prince was not favourably inclined towards him, and shut his eyes to all the kındnesses he had received and went off, and joined Malık 'Ambai As the latter did not patronise him as he had expected, he, by means of Khān Jahān, entered the king's service They say that when he came to Burhanpur, Khan Jahan went as far as the garden of Zamābād to welcome him, and received him with res-He adopted a fawning and humble attitude, wore a farjī4 like the Uzbeg darvishes, had a beard hanging down to his navel and came unarmed, and when an hour of the night was remaining, to the Khān Jahān's diwānkhāna and sate down Khān Jahān went according to orders, to Junan he accompanied him (?) and wrote to Malik 'Ambar that if he now fell upon the

¹ Khātī K I 335-36

² Wafā-dar, Khāfī K , I 337

³ Do 339 There is a fuller account of 'Abdullah's defeat in the Tūzuk J

^{364,} etc

⁴ See B 89

Khān Jahān he would get the better of him. By chance they intercepted the letter. The Khān Jahān put it into his hand and he confessed. According to orders he was imprisoned in Āsīr Ikrām K of Fathpūr, the governor of the fort, treated him badly and at the instigation of Mahābat K, who was then in power, repeated orders came to blind him. The Khān Jahān would not consent. He wrote in reply that he had come in upon his word and that he would bring him to court

When the sovereignty came to Shah Jahan, he was pardoned at the intercession of that distinguished member of the Naqshbandī order, 'Abdu-r-Rahīm Khwāja,' who was the successor of Khwāja Kılan Khwaja Jüibaii, who was thirty removes from Sayıd 'Alī 'Aıīz's, the Great Imām (Imām Hamām) J'aafar Sādıq,2-Peace be upon him,—and was one of the glorious Saiyids of Tūrān, and an object of faith and reverence with the Uzbeg Khāns who are entirely devoted to this family 'Abdullah K then wore in his mental ear the ring of discipleship to Khwāja Kilān. In the time of Jahangır he ('Abdu-r-Rahīm) came from Imām Qulī K the ruler of Tūrān as an ambassador, and was received with great honour was allowed to sit by the side of the thione and was treated with great respect by all the nobles and grandees of Peisia, Tūrān and In the beginning of Shah Jahan's reign he came from Lahore to Agra and received more honour than ever It was because 'Abdullah was connected with the Naqshbandī order that he was pardoned 3 and raised to the high rank of 5000 with 5000 horse, and had the gift of a flag and a dium, and had Saikāi Qanauj given to him in fief

When, in the same first year Jujhāi Singh Bandīla fled from court to his home in Undcha (Oicha), a force under the command of Mahābat K was appointed. The Khān Jahān Lodī from Malwa and 'Abdullah K from his jagir with the officers of various quarters entered his country and opened the hand of violence When Jujhāi was hard pressed he approached Mahābat and expressed a wish to kiss the threshold. 'Abdullah and Bahādur K and a number of other officers with 9000 cavalry came to the

¹ Khāfī K , I 400

² The 6th Imam He died at Medina in A H 148, 765 Jairett III, 359n

³ Klāfī K, I 400

fort of Irij which is thirteen kos from Undcha, and was in the eastern part of the country and in the possession of Julhan alaciity and energy they took the fort When Shah Jahan came to Burhanpur in order to extirpate Khan Jahan Lodi, 'Abdullah went to the Deccan from his fief of Kālpī and joined with the army which had been put under the command of Shaista K he had recovered from a swelling which he had in his abdomen he came to the Piesence and was appointed to chastise Daiyā K Rohilla who was making a disturbance in the neighbourhood of Chālīsgāon An order was given that he should stay in Khandes and pursue without delay $\underline{\mathrm{Kh}}$ ān Jahān and Dariyā K whichever way they had gone

When in the 4th year Khan Jahan and Danya K went off to Malwa from Daulatabad, he followed close after them and gave them no lest anywhere At last, on the bank of the Schonda 1 (tank) Khān Jahān stood film and was killed In reward of this great service he received the rank of 6000 with 6000 horse, and the title of Fīrūz Jang In the 5th year he was made governor of Bihai 2 'Abdullah resolved to chastise the zamındar of Ratnpūr³ and went to that quarter Bābū Lachmī the zamındar there got frightened and was admitted to quarter through the mediation of Amai Singh, the ruler of Bandhu In the 8th year he brought tribute and did homage in company with 'Abdullah When 'Abdullah went off to his lands, Jujhai Bandila again In accordance with orders 'Abdullah turned back on his road and proceeded to chastise him Khān Daurān joined from Malwa, and Saiyid Khān Jahān Bāiha did so also When they were encamped one kos from Undcha, that miserable wretch got frightened, and went out of the fort with his family and his servants and some silver and gold, and went off to the fort of Dhāmūnī which his father had made very strong royal troops, after taking Undcha, pursued him and when they came to within three kos of Dhāmūnī they learnt that he had

¹ Text Sindhiya but see B 505, and Maasır, I 729, in account of Khān shān Lodī would appear from an inscription mentioned by Buchanan that 'Abdullah built or repaired the Patna fort in 1042, 1633

³ In Sarkār Rohtās J, II 157

gone off with his goods and chattels to Cūragarh, and was waiting for a letter from the zamindar of Deogarh. If the latter would give him a passage through his territory he would go to the Deccar. The royal forces took Dhāmūnī, and Sarvid Khān Jahān chose to remain there to settle the conquered country. 'Abdullah went on with the vanguard of Khān Daurān Bahādur. Juphār fled by the route of Lānjī, which belongs to the territory of the zamindar of Deogarh. 'Abdullah marched every day ten Gondah Los and sometimes twenty, which are about double the ordinary Los and came up with him on the borders of Cāndā and fought with him. The wretch took the road to Golconda.' After much marching 'Abdullah came up with him (again), and the father and son in fear of their lives fled to the jungle. There they gave up their lives at the hands of some Gonds. Fīrūz Jang cut off their heads and sent them to court

When in the 10th year Rajah Pratap 2 Ujjamya—who had received the rank of 1500 with 1000 horses-got leave to go to his own country-as had long been his desire-he withdrew from obedience and took the path of ruin 'Abdullah K', in accordance with orders, went off from Bihai to punish him. He first besieged the fort of Bhojpūi which was the zamindai's seat, and where Pratap had taken refuge He, after struggles, became terrified and had recourse to supplications He put on a lungi (waist-cloth) and took his wife in his hand and through the mediation of one of the eunuchs of Fīiūz Jang made his appearance The Khān impirsoned him and his wife and reported the matter to the Presence An order came to put the scoundrel to death and to take possession for himself of the wife and the property Fīrūz Jang gave some of the spoil to his brave men, and made the wife a Muhammadan and married her to his grandson. In the 13th year he was appointed to chastise Prithīnāj, the son of Jujhār Singh, and Campat Bandīla, who were making a disturbance near Undcha by the efforts of BāqīK —whom Abdullah hadsent—Puthīrāj was made pusoner, yet 3 Campat—who was the ougunator of the commo-

 $^{^1\,}A$ mistake for Gondwāna $\,$ See Pādishāhnāma I , Part II , p $\,$ 262, and Khafi K , 512, etc $\,$ The name of the son was Bikiamājīt

² B 513 note Khāfī K , I 544-45 3 Pādishāhnāma, II 136

tion—managed to escape This was ascribed to Fītūz Jang's negligence and love of comfort, and so he was deprived of his fief of Islāmābād and censured. In the 16th year he was made governor of the province of Allahabad in succession to Saryid Shujā'at K. After some time Shah Jahan removed him from his rank, and gave him a lac 1 of rupees by way of support. At the same period, he again became favourable to him and restored him to his rank. He was nearly 70 years of age when he died on 17 Shawāl of the 18th year, 1054, 7 December 1644

In spite of his ciuelty and tyranny men believed that he could work miracles, and used to make offerings to him years as an Amii He was often removed from office and then restored and had the same magnificence and power as before serve him had something lucky about it. In his life-time many of his servants became panjhazārīs and cārhazārīs (5000 and 4000) They say he looked well after his soldiers but that they did not get more than three or four months' pay in the year. But compared with other places this three months' pay was equal to a year's No one was able to represent his case to him personally, he had to speak to the diwan and the bakshi If the latter delayed to report the matter, he cut² off their beards (?) lar practice was that when engaged in a difficult 3 expedition he marched 60 or 70 los a day He kept a trustworthy rear-guard If any one lagged behind, his head was cut off and brought to Fifty Moghuls—who were yesāwals (lictors) of the Mīr Tūzuk (Provost-Marshal)—were dressed in uniform and had adorned staves They say that in the affan of the Rānā he had and kept order with him 300 troopers with gold-embroidered dresses and deconated armoun, and 200 footmen consisting of khidmatgais, jilaudāis (runners), and cobdars dressed in the same style. He was very pleased to see any one who had a wounded face He was very dignified in manner At the end of his life he used to begin his diwan in the last watch of the night He also had by this time ceased to be cruel

l It was an annual allowance Pādīshāhnāma II 348

² Safāī resh mī balhshīd The phi ise given in the dictionaries

³ Text dar yūrash u sowārī, "In expeditions and ridings" But I O MS 628 has yūrash dushwārī, which seems preferable

S Farīd Bhakan says in the Zakhīna-ul-khwānīn that, 'At the time when 'Abdullah was kept under surveillance by Khān Jahān Lodī the latter sent through me 10,000 Rs for his expenses I said to 'Abdullah, 'The Nawāb has done much as a holy warrior in the path of God How many infidels' heads have you caused to be cut off?' He said, 'There would be 200,000 heads so that there might be two lows of minarets of heads from Agra to Patna I said, 'Certainly' there would be an innocent Muhammadan among these men' He got angly and said, 'I made prisoners of five lacs of women and men and sold them They all became Muhammadans From their piogeny there will be krois by the judgment day God's apostle used to go to the house of the cotton-carder ³ (naddāf) and beg him to become a Masalmān once made five lacs of people Masalmans If justice 4 were done, there would be even more followers of Islam ". When I reported this conversation to Khān Jahān he said, 'It is strange in this man that he boasts of his evil deeds and his non-repentance!" His sons did not do well M 'Abdu-r-Rasūl was appointed to the Deccan

(MĪR) ABŪ-L-BAQĀ AMĪR KHĀN

The best son of Qāsim ⁵ K Namakīn By knowledge of his duties and of affairs he was superior to all his brothers. He distinguished himself during his father's life-time and attained the rank of 500. After his death he attained high rank. In the time of Jahangii he rose to the rank of 2500 with 1500 horse and was appointed governor of Multan as deputy for Yemenu-d-daulah. In the 2nd year of Shah Jahan when Murtazā K. Anjū the Subāhdār of Tatta died, he got an increase of 500 horse and was raised to the rank of 3000 with 2000 horse, and made governor of l If this is the author of the book he must be identical with the S M'arūf mentioned in Shāh Newāz's preface Perhaps it is to this man that Stewart refers in his history of Bengal, p 177, as Fereed Addeen Bokhary

² One MS has 'O God' (Allah) instead of albatta, and neknāmī "respectable' instead of begunah

o Naddāf I do not know what convert is referred to here

⁴ Perhaps "If a correct calculation were made" 'Abdullah's remark reminds us of the boasts of the Portuguese pirates about the number of Christians they had made

⁶ B 470 and 472.

that province In the 9th year at the time of the return of the prince (Shah Jahan the king) from Daulatabad to the capital he was appointed to the fiel of the Saikāi of Bīr in the Deccan and for some time was among the auxiliaries (kamakīān) in that territory In the 14th year he was sent off to Sivistan in succession to Qazāq 1 K In the 15th year he was for the second time put in charge of the province of Tatta in succession He died there in the 20th year of the reign, 1907, to Shād Khān 1647, and was buried in his father's tomb called the Safa-i-Safā (dais of purity) on the hill which is opposite to Bhakai fort and on the south side He was more than one hundred years old and there was no decline in his intellect or strength. In the time of Jahangır he was known by the name of Mii Khān Shah Jahan, by the addition of an alif to his title, took one lac of rupis from him as peshkash, and gave him the title of Amīr 2 Khān He like his father had many children His eldest son 'Abdu-i-Razzāq was of the 900 class under Shah Jahan In the 26th year he died Another was Zīyāu-d-dīn Yūsuf who at the close of Shah Jahan's reign held the rank of 1000 with 600 horse, and afterwards had the title of Ziyāu-d-dīn K His grandson Mīi Abū-l-Wafā in the close of the reign of Aurangzeb held 3 the office of daiogha of the oratory along with other offices and was known to the appreciative monaich for his intelligence and honesty Another son who perhaps was the ablest of them all was Mn 'Abdu-l-Karīm Multafat K, who was an intimate associate of Aurangzeb and had his father's title His biography is given separately. The daughter of the deceased Khān was married to Prince Murād Bakhsh, but this connection took place long after the Khān's death. On account of the prince's having no child by the daughter of Shah Newaz K Safavī, Shah Jahan in the 30th year gave this chaste lady, who was worthy to be mairied to a prince, a lac of rupees in jewels, etc, as a mairiage present, and sent her to Ahmadabad to be married to the prince who was then the governor of the province (Gujarat)

¹ B 472 Qarāq

² See the story in the life of his son Abdul-Karīm

⁸ Maasır A 459

ABŪ-L-FATH

of Gīlān who had great insight in matters of contemplation and devotion. For years the Sadārat (chief ecclesiastical authority) of that country was in his charge. When Gīlān came into the possession of Shah Tahmāsp Safavī in 974–1566-67, and Κhān Ahmad the ruler of that country fell into prison on account of his want of tact, the Maulānā from his truthfulness and orthodoxy ended his life in imprisonment and torture. The Hakīm and his two brothers Hakīm Hamām and Hakīm Nūru-d-dīn—each of whom was distinguished for quickness of apprehension and ability in the current sciences and for external perfections—chose departure from their native land and came to India. In the 20th year they entered into Akbar's service and all three brothers received suitable promotion.

As Abū-l-fath possessed unusual excellence and had tact and knowledge of the world he obtained promotion at court and in the 24th year was made Sadr and Amīn of Bengal Afterwards when the seditious officers of Bengal and Bihai united and got 11d of Mozaffai K the governor Hakim and many others of the loyalists fell into prison One day he saw his opportunity, and threw himself down from the top of the fort and reached safety with difficulty and blistered feet, and went on pilgiimage to the Piesence he kissed the threshold he surpassed all his equals in influence and Though his rank was not higher than 1000 yet in degree he was more than a vizier or vakil When in the 30th year Rajah Bīrbar left to reinforce Zam K Koka, who had been appointed to chastise the tribe of the Yūsufzai, Hakīm was also made leader of a separate auxiliary force But they did not take account of one another and did not act with concord The result of concert and duplicity was that the Rajah was killed and that the Hakim and the Kokaltash escaped with great difficulty and presented themselves at court For some time they remained under censure In the 34th year, 997, 1589, at the time when Akbar was marching from Kashmii to Kabul, Hakīm died a natural death in the neighbourhood of Damtür In accordance with orders, Khwāja Shamsu-d-dīn Khwāfī carried his body to Hasan Abdāl and committed it to the dust under a dome which he had built for himself. As some days before this, the very learned Amīr Azdu-d-daula of Shiraz had died. Saifī Savajī tound this chronogram

Vasc

This year two scholars departed from the world, One went before and the other went after Until both agreed (i.e. met) together. The chronogram 'both went together' did not arise

Akbai who was exceedingly gracious to him, visited him during his illness, and after his death expressed his sorrow by saving the fātiha for him at Hasan Abdāl. The Hakīm was an acute, wise and active-hearted man. Faizī says about him in his elegy

Verse 2

His writings were an exposition of fate 5 decrees, His thoughts an exposition of fortune's records

In studying and managing the dispositions of men he did not spare himself. Whatever came from him was found of weight in wisdom's balance. He was generous, and the beauty of the age, and for perfections he was the unique of the world. He was the subject of panegyire by the poets of the day. Especially did

¹ The words of the chronogram are, Har do baham raftand, which make 997, The Darbārī Akbarī quotes 1580 the lines with some differences of read ing (apparently improvements) at p The text has Haifi, but Sarfi is the right name and means grammati See Badayūnī III 260, where he is called Sarfī Savajī and is stated to have been for a time with Nizāmu-ddin Alımad ın Gujarat Helived for a time in Lahore and was a man of dervesh manner - He went with Faizī to the Deccan and died there cording to Nizāmu-d dīn Lucknow

ed 100, his name was Haifi Savahji and he went on pilgrimage to Mecca See also B 586 and note Savahji means that he came from Savah (in Persia) See Spienger, Cat 382, who calls him Salāu-d-dīn Sarfī, and refers to the Maasīr Rahīmī about him There was also a Haifī of Sawah, do 30 Perhaps the second line of Sarfī's quatrain means that one scholar was higher in rank or abler than the other, but that now they have met together Abūl Fath's tomb still exists at Hasan Abdāl

² See A N, III, 563, line 14

Mullā 'Uıfi of Shıraz wııte many bııllıant odes ın hıs pıaıse The following lines are from one of them

(Here follow eight lines of poetry)

His (youngest) brother Hakīm Nūru-d-dīn with the takhallas of Qarārī was an eloquent man and a good poet

This verse is his

Verse 1

What reck I of death ? A shaft from thine eyes hath pierced me

And shall age torture me though I die not for another century

An extraordinary ² perturbation seized him, and by Akbar's orders he was sent to Bengal where he died without obtaining advancement

The following are among his sayings 3 To show off your ability before another man is to shew off your ambition (?)" "To watch over a rude servant is to make yourself ill-mannered" "Whomever you trust, he is trustworthy" (i e, none is really trustworthy) He called Hakim Abū-l-fath a man of the world, and Hakīm Hamām a man of the other 4 world and kept aloof from them both A separate account has been given of Hakim Another brother, named Hakım Latf Ullah, who Hamām had come from Persia (afterwards) was, by the influence of Hakim Abū-l-fath, enrolled among the royal servants and attained the rank of 200 He soon died Abū-l-fath's son Fath Ullah was an able man As Jahangir was unfavourable 5 to him, one day Diānat 6 K Lang charged him with disloyalty and said that

¹ B 587 who translates "I doubt Death's power, but an arrow from thince eye has pierced me, and it is this arrow alone that will kill me even if I were to live another hundred years". The lines and their context occur in Badayūnī, III, 313—They are more vigorous than most of his quotations

² This is taken from the Aīn, 1 252, but the Maash has separated the expression from its context. See B 586 and note 4. Baday ūnī seems to say, lc, that Qarārī was sent off to Ben gal as a punishment because he would not conform to the rules about military service See Darbānī A, 671, etc

³ The sayings are obscure See Darbāri A 666 and 672

⁴ mard-rākhrat "A man of the end of things See B, lc, line 2

⁵ Iqbalnāma 28

⁶ Tūzuk J 58 where it is stated that his former name was Qāsim 'Alī B 465 (?) but B, lc, note says Qāsim 'Alī should according to the Maasii be Qāsim Beg See Maasir, II 8 The Iqbālnāma J 30 calls him Qāsim K at the time of the rebellion of Sultan Khusiau. Fath Ullah had said to him that the proper thing was to give Khusiau the Panjab and so stop the contention. Fath Ullah denied he had said so, and the parties were put to their oaths. Fifteen days had not elapsed when he reaped the result of his false oath, for he had joined Nūru-d-dīn —the cousin of Āsaf K. Jafafii—who had arranged with Khusiau that he would bring him out of prison on a fitting opportunity. By chance in the second year when Jahangii was returning from Kabul to Lahore, the plot was revealed to the emperor. After enquiries, Nūru-d-dīn and others were capitally punished and Hakīm Fath Ullah was pilloried, being made to ride on an ass backwards and so conveyed from stage to stage. After that he was blinded ²

ABŪ-L-MAKĀRAM JĀN NISĀR KHĀN³

He was Khwāja Abū-l-makāiam At first he was one of the confidential servants of Prince Sultan Muhammad M'uazzam When Sultan Muhammad Akbar had prepared the materials of rebellion, and was, in conjunction with ignorant Rajputs, about to march with a large force against his father, as information about his army had not fully reached the emperor, Khwāja Abū-l-makāram went as a scout on the part of the prince (M'uazzam) and fell in with the scouts of Prince Akbar. A fight ensued and the Khwāja escaped with wounds. In this way he became known to the emperor and afterwards obtained the rank of 900 and the title of Jān Nisār K. In the campaign of Rāmdara he was appointed to accompany the said prince (M. M'uazzam afterwards Bahādur Shah), and in the siege of Sāmpgāon he distinguished himself, and stamped the diploma of bravery with the inscription

I Iqbālnāma, J 27

² B 425 says he was put to death, and refers to the Tūzuk 58, but it is not said there that he was killed Jahangir says be intended to do so, but refrained and contented himself with imprisoning Fath Ullah and putting to death some others. The Iqbālnāma 29, last line, says that Fath Ullah was pilloried etc. He does not say he was blinded. From Khāfī K, I

^{233,} line 7, where mention is made of a plot to $makh\overline{u}l$ u $makb\overline{u}s$ (blind and imprison) Jahangir, it is clear $makh\overline{u}t$ does not mean to kill

³ Apparently he was son of Iftikhār K 'Ālamgītnāme, 247

⁴ Khāfī K, II 280, 291

⁵ Text Sātgāon, variant Sāpgāon The real name appears to be Sāmpgāon See Khhāfi K, II 291 It is described there as a strong foit and of wounds! When the prince returned from there he was appointed to attack Abū-I-hasan Qutb Shāh and Jān Nisār accompanied him. In accord unce with directions from the prince he proceeded to take the fort of Saram! and established a thāna. He repulsed i sally of Abū-I-hasan stroops and he distinguished himself in the siege of Golconda and was wounded. In the 33rd year he was presented? with a dagger with a hilt, etc. (u sāz) of jade and sent off to chastise the yile foe. Next year he received a robe of honour and an elephant. As he had repeatedly distinguished himself the emperor used to show him favour. Afterwards when there was a battle between Sānta Ghorpura and the imperialists in a village of the Carnatic, the latter were defeated by the evil assistance of fate. The Khān was wounded but managed to escape. After that he became faurdār and qil*udār of Gwaliyar and chose the corner of contentment.

When Aurangzeb went to paradise though the Khān was an old servant of Bahādur Shah and was hopeful of promotion from him, yet as he saw that A zim Shah was at hand he, from inconsideration by wrote petitions to A zim Shah and Sultan Muhammad Azīm (Bahādur Shah s son) to the effect that he wished to join, but that the opposite party had appointed a force to carry him off and that he would come in as soon as he had got carriage, etc Meanwhile he learnt that Bahādur Shah had arrived at Agra and went off posthaste to join him. As the emperor had previously expected that Jān Nisār K would have gone over to Muhammad 'Azīm with 4 or 5000 horse, he was displeased. But after Muhammad Azīm Shāh was killed, he, on perceiving signs of penitence in Jān Nisār after some delay admitted him into his service. He received the rank of 4000 with 2000 horse and the gift of drums

After Bahādui Shah had gone to paiadise, the Khān served on the right wing of Jahāndāi Shah in the battle with Farrukh Siyar Afterwards he served Farrukh Siyar When Husain 'Alī

Jān Nīsār was wounded at the taking of it See Elliot, VII 314

¹ Sanam in Khāfī K , II 302

² M Aalamgiri, 331

³ Text beparwage but the variant bepardage "effrontery" seems more likely to be correct. He wrote to both sides

⁴ There is the variant A'zim, but apparently the text is night Bahādui Shah thought that Jān Nisāi should have joined his son earlier

K the governor of the Deccan came to the taluqs 1 and made peace with the enemy on the agreement to grant one-fourth of the revenue and ten per cent desmulhi, and this arrangement was not approved of by the sovereign, Jan Nisai —who was vexed (mizā) quifta qu "tactful ") and was a man of the world (sahbatdīda) and the adopted brother of 'Abdullah 2 K Sarvid Wiyan took leave in the 6th year to go as governor of Burhanpur in order that he might make Husain 'Mi K listen to reason and bring him into the right way. After coming to the ferry of Akbarpur (on the Naibada) Husam 'Ali after perceiving that he would not be of his party (2), sent a body of troops and summoned him to his presence at Aurangabad Though in appearance there was much cordiality, and food was sent every day and he was always treated with respect, and he was addressed as 'Ammū Sāhib 'Sii Uncle, vet he put off admitting him to Burhanpur After the harvest of the cold-weather crop he was admitted on condition that he should send his eldest son Dārāb K to Burhānpur, and himself accompany him (Husain 'Alī) When Husain 'Alī K showed a design to go to the capital, as he was not confident about Jan Nisai, and the people of Buihanpui complained about Daiab K, he appointed Saifu-d-d-din 3 'Alī K in his 100m, and took him (Dārāb?) with It is not known what finally became of Jan Nisai He had two sons. One was Dārāb K, and the other was Kāmvāb K Both were with Nizāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jāh in the battle with 'Ālam 'Alī K The second son was wounded, and the eldest-who was son-ın-law of Khān Jahān Bahāduı Kokaltāsh 'Ālamgīrī, and whose sister (Jan Nisar's daughter) was married to I'timadu-d-daula Qamaru-d-dīn K -was addressed by his father's title, and in Muhammad Shāh's time became faujdār of Sarkāi Kaija Jahānābād in the Allahabad province He remained there for seven years and in the 14th year was killed by the hand of Bhagwant Singh the zemindai of that place

¹ ba taaluqa rasīda Apparently this means the territories of Rajah Sāhū the Mahratta See Massir, I 330 line nine from foot

² The father of the two Saiyids See P 392 He is also called Tihan-

pūrī Perhaps the meaning of mizajguifta is that Jān Nisār had under stood the feelings of Fairukh Sivai about the convention

³ A vounger brother of Husam 'Alī, B 392

ABU-L-FATH K DECCANÍ AND AN ACCOUNT OF THE MAHDAVĪ RELIGION

He was descended from Mīr Saryid Muhammad of Jaunpūr On account of his being connected by mailinge with Jamal Kthe Abyssiman (he was his son-in-law), he lose to high lank in the He was distinguished for courage and generosity They would say that when in the leign of Multaza Nizām Shāh, Sultan Hasan B Sultan Husain of Sabzawāi, who was a native of Ahmadnagar, received the title of Mīrzā Khān and became the Peshwah of the dynasty, he, from wickedness and folly, brought Mīrān Husain the son of Murtaza Nızām Shāh aforesaid from Daulatabad to Ahmadnagar and made him king He also put 1 Muitaza Nizām Shāh to death by torture and became more powerful than ever After some time intiguing persons alienated Miizā K and Miiān Husain from one another As Husain Nizām Shāh (1e, the Mīrān Husain aforesaid) from carelessness and mexperience uttered menacing words, Mīrzā Khan observed the maxım of "remedy a fact before the fact occurs," and so he imprisoned Husain Nizām Shāh in the fort and raised to the throne Ismáīl, the son of Burhān Shāh, who (Burhan) at that time had fled from his brother Murtaza Nızām Shāh and had become a servant of Akbar

On the day of the accession Mīizā K summoned the other Moghul officers to the fort and held rejoicings Suddenly Jamāl K the Abyssinian, who was the centurion (Sada) mansabdār, joined with the Deceans and the Abyssinians and made a tumult at the gates of the Ahmadnagai fort. They said that for some days they had not seen Husain Nizām Shāh, and that he should be shown to them. Mīizā Khān from exceeding arrogance replied by engaging in battle. When this did not answer, he, being desperate, had the head of Husain Nizām put on a spear and stuck above the fort. He then proclaimed, "Here is the head of the man for

¹ The history of these occurrences is fully given by Ferishta who was an eye-witness. It was Mīrān Husain who put his own father to death. See also AN, III, 539 and 587

² Sada means "one hundred", and it would seem from Ferishta that there were a number of officers so styled Originally perhaps it meant the captain of a hundred men whom you are clamouring, our king is Ismáīl Nizām Shāh." Some on seeing this wished to turn back, but Jamāl K said that now he would exact retribution from this man (Mīrzā Khān) and put the reins into the king s own hands, otherwise their fortunes and their honour would be ruined. By his endeavours there was a general riot, and fire was set to the gate of the fort. Mīrzā K became helpless and fled to Junan. The rioters entered the fort and proceeded to slay the foreigners. M. Muhammad Taqī, Nazīrī Mīrzā, Sādiq Urdūbādī, Amīn A'zzu-d-dīn Astrabādī—every one of whom had acquired court office and rank and had not their equals in the seven climes in that age for the customary excellencies—and many of the Moghuls, high and low, servants as well as merchants, were slain. Mīrzā K too was brought from Junan, cut to pieces, and his limbs hung up in the bazaar.

Jamāl Khān was a follower of the Mahdavī religion he arrived at power, he made Ismáīl Shāh—who was young 2—a member of the same faith, and abolished the proclamation in the name of the twelve Imams and exerted himself to promote the Mahdavī³ sect He gathered together nearly 10,000 horses of this party, and at this time the latter flocked from every quarter to Ahmadnagai Saıyıd Ilahdād-who was a descendant of the Mīi Saıyıd Muhammad of Jaunpur who had proclaimed Mahdavism-came to the Deccan with his son Saiyid Abū-l-fath As Saiyid Ilahdad was renowned for his austerities, and the purity of his life, Jamāl Khan gave his daughter in marriage to his son Saiyid Abū-That son of a Saiyid at once attained to great fortune and became master of goods and of undertakings When Burhān Shāh heard of the confusion in the Deccan, and of the accession of his son, he took leave of Akbar and came to his heieditary country With the help of Rajah 'Alī Khān Fāiūqī and of Ibiāhīm 'Ādil Shāh he fought a battle $\,$ with $\,$ Jamāl $\,$ K $\,$ in the neighbourhood of Rohankhīra,4 and gamed the victory It happened by fate that

¹ Urdūbād is a town in Azarbaijān and is on the Aras, a tributary of the Kur The province is now known as Erivan

^a Ferishta says he was only 16

For an account of the Mahdavi religion see Blochmann, Āīn, Preface, p 111, etc

⁴ Ferishta calls the place Ghāt Rohangīr and says that when Jamāl K found that pass closed against him he went by another and more difficult

Jamāl K was wounded by a bullet and killed Ismáīl Nizām Shāh was made piisoner. The verse "The currency of religion seized the head of Jamāl" enigmatically gives the date of the event, 999

Burhān Nizām Shāh revived the Imāmiya ieligion and put to death the Mahdivies and plundered their property—In a short time no trace of them remained—Saiyid Abū-l-Fath together with his wife's brother, who was Jamāl K 's son, was seized and for a long time kept in prison—Afterwards he escaped and collected Jamāl K 's scattered troops and took possession of the territory of Bijapui—Ibiāhīm² 'Ādīl Shah sent 'Alī Āqā Turkoman against him It chanced that 'Alī Āqā was killed and that Abūl Fath got possession of his horses and elephants and became master

'Ādīl Shāh was helpless and conciliated him by bestowing high office on him and assigning to him the revenues of pargana Gokāk ⁸ After some time 'Ādīl Shāh meditated treachery against him, so he put his wife and mother on horseback and fled to Burhānpur The Khān-Khānān ('Abdu-1-Rahīm) regarded his arrival as an honour, and procured him the rank of 5000 and the gift of drums After that he was given Mānikpūr in fief and the government of Allahabad, and acquired a name there for courage. In the 8th year of Jahangir he was appointed to march with Sultan Kharram (Shah Jahan) against the Rānā, and in 1023, 1614, he fell ill route to attack Burhān See also A N III 587 where the scene of the battle is called Fardāpūr It is near the Ajanta caves The battle was fought on 13 Rajab 999, 27 April, 1591 It is described in Major Haig's Historic Landmarks of the Deccan p 167 The place is there called Rohankhed, and the date given is May 18, 1591

1 The two words away Mw-away mazhab yield the date 996 and they "take the head" that is, add the first letter z of Jamāl which gives 3, and so the whole becomes 999, 1591 Apparently there are several puns in the line Mazhab means religion and muzhab means gilded, i e, flowery, and muruj is the pluial of marj, a meadow Murawwaj also means a dealer, and so Murawwaj mazhab might mean deale. In the cuitent religion Further Sirisamal may mean both "the head of Jamāl" and "a beautiful head" The line therefore might be translated "The golden meadows put on a beautiful appearance" The chronogram is given by Ferishta at the end of his account of Ism'ail of Ahmadnagar's reign, and he says it was composed by Muhammad Sharif Karbalāi

² Cānd Bībī's nephew

In the Belgaum district I G $\chi_{\rm B}$, 306

at the thāna of Kombhalmīr, and died in the city of Pūr Mandal²

M11 Saiyid Muhammad of Jaunpūi was the fountain of the Mahdavī movement He was an Avīs,3 and from his abundant spirituality became possessed of esoteric and exoteric learning Many regard him as a disciple and successor of Sharkh Daniel, who was the successor of Rājī Hāmid Shāh of Mānikpūr He was a Hanafī in ieligion In the end of 906,4 1501, he, owing to confused brain and the influences of the age, proclaimed Mahdism Many persons became his adherents and displayed their eccentricities They say that when he became convalescent he repudiated his doctrines, but many who did not attain to sanity remained Some maintain that his statement in the same ideas am the Mahdi" meant that he was the forerunner of the Mahdi and not that he was the Mahdi promised in the Law 5 Some say that in fact God made a revelation to the Saiyid by a secret voice, which said, "Thou art the Mahdi," and that consequently he knew that he was the promised Mahdī He held this belief for a long time, and then went from Jaunpur to Gujarat Sultan Mahmūd thè elder (Sultan Mahmūd Bigarha) received him graciously On account of envious people he could not go to India, and set out for Persia, in order that he might go by that route to the Hijaz On the way it was made plain to him that his idea of being the Mahdī was a complete delusion, and he said to his

¹ J II 258 Kumalgarh of Rajputana Gazetteer, III 52

cubed as two separate towns, about 10 miles apart. They he NE Udarpur. There is also a Mandalgarh, le, 33. See also J. 11. 274

Abū-I-Fath is mentioned in the Iūzuk I III as having become loval to Jahanga two years before the 7th year

That is, apparently, a tollower of the order of Avis the Awers Qarani of Beale, and the Chivasu I-lo-hat and Avis All ount of D'Herbelot a saint of Yeron, who was filled in AD 557

See also Khazīna Asfiya II, p 118, and Nicholson's ed of the Tazkīna Aulīya, I 15

⁴ Text 960, but this must be a mistake, for he died in 910 Probably shast has been written by mistake for 9hash See Blochmann V, Bayley's Gujiat 240 et seq, Mirāt Sikandarī lith 136 and Badayūnī I Ranking 420, 21 Feiishta however has 960

P B III

b According to the Mirāt Sikandari the Sultan wished to see him, but was dissuaded by his officers on the ground that the Saiyid's eloquence might make him torsake secular business disciples, "Almighty God hath wiped the drops of Mahdism from my heart. It I return in safety, I shall retract all I have said." When he came to Farah he died, and was buried there. Ignorant people, especially of the Afghan Panī tribe, and some of other tribes, regard him as the promised Mahdī, and have adopted this fictitious religion. The writer of these sheets (ajzā) chanced to be in company with one of these believers, and it was clear that besides matters which were disputable (?) they had extracted some rules and principles from the traditions which were contrary to the tenets of the four religions 3

ABU-L-FAZL 'ALLĀMĪ FAHĀMĪ (SHAIKH)

Second son of Mubārak of Nāgōi He was born in 958 (6 Muhairam = 14 January 1551), and by his quickness, ability, lofty genius, and fluency of speech soon became the unique and unequalled one of the age By his fifteenth year he had acquired the philosophic sciences, and traditionary learning. They say 4

See Jarrett, III 444 and Perown sian text of Ain, II 278 By the Ispahānī seems to be meant Shamsu-d-dīn Muhammad Al Ashārī who wrote a gloss on the commentary of Baizavī on the Koran He died in Egypt in See D'Herbelot, art 749, 1348-1349 See also B XI, where by Espahanı mistake the manuscript is said to have been damaged by fire passage in the text is a copy, though apparently not at first hand, of A F, and in the 5th line of p 609 the word sih has been omitted after du Jarrett's translation is, "When both were compared in two or three places only were there found differences of words, though synonymous in meaning, and in three or four others (differing) citations but approximate in sense" B explains that the folios had been destroyed from top to bottom, half of each having been eaten away This would affect the last half of each line on one side of the folio and the first half on the other. The story seems apocryphal

I Farah or Fairah is in Afghanistan on one of the main routes from Herat to Qandahar It is 164 m S Heiat, I G I 35, and is in Sistan

² Siwāī Masīla-i-Mā Nahn Fīh, an Alabic phrase which I do not fully understand Perhaps it means, some questions which we do not discuss or describe

³ Meaning the four orthodox sects of the Sunnis described by Sale in his Preliminary Discourse Blochmann gives 911 as the date of Saiyid Muhammad's death Bayley and Badayūnī have 910, and the Mirāt Sikandarī Lith has 917 According to one account he was killed, and according to another he died a natural death biography is by Shah Newaz, and the remark at the end would seem to imply that he was a Sunnī But possibly he really was a Shīa He certainly was not a bigoted Sunnī oi Shīa four sects of the Sunnis are also described in Hughes Dict of Islam

⁴ Apparently the author did not know that the account was A F s

that in the early days of his instruction and when he was not yet twenty the gloss of Sıfāhānı (or Ispahānī, i e, an ınhabıtant of Ispahan) came into his hands, but with more than half of it eaten by white-ants so that it could not be understood He removed the worm-eaten portion and joined on blank paper Then after a little meditation he understood the beginning and ending of each line, and by conjecture filled up the blanks Afterwards when another copy was procured, and the two were compared, it was found that they agreed, except in two or three places where there were synonymous expressions, and three or four places where there were (differing) citations (inad) but approximate in sense All were astonished As his disposition was retiring, and loved solitude, he shook off society and sought to lead an independent life He did not try to open the door of a profes-At the instance of friends, he in the nineteenth year of the reign of Akbar presented himself before the sovereign at the time when the latter was about to proceed to the eastern districts, and tendered a commentary which he had written on the Ayatu-l-kursī, "The Thione-verse" (v 256 of the second chapter of the Koran, p 45 of Sale ed 1825) Afterwards, when Akbai retuined to Fathpūi, he presented himself a second time, and as the fame of his ability and learning had on several occasions reached Akbar, he became the object of his boundless favour When Akbar became alienated from the bigoted Ulamā, the two brothers, who, along with then emment knowledge and ability, were not devoid of tact and servility again and again disputed vehemently with Shaikh Ābdun-Nabī and Makhdūmu-l-mulk,—who from then science and possession of the current learning were pillars of the empire,and assisted Akbai in putting them to silence Day by day their influence and intimacy with the king increased, and as the Shaikh's disposition and that of his elder brother Sharkh Faizi harmonised with Akbai's, Abū-l-fazl came to be an Amīi In the 39th year he became an officer of 1000 and in the 34th, when the Sharkh's mother died, Akbar came to his house and condoled with him and He said, "If men were immortal, and did not die, comforted him one by one there would be no need for sympathetic hearts practising resignation. As no one long abides in this caravanseral, why should we bring upon ourselves the reproach of impatience". In the 37th year he was raised to the rank of 2000

When the Shaikh had acquired such sway over the king that the princes were realous of him, not to speak of the officers, and was always in contiguity like the setting to a jewel, and that nothing was concluded without his approval several of the discontented induced Akbai to send the Shaikh to the Deccan. It is also notorious that Sultan Selīm one day went to the Shaikh's house and found forty clerks employed in copying the Koran, and a commentary thereupon. He took them all, together with the chapters of the books, to the king who became suspicious and thought, 'He incites us to other kinds of things, and then when he goes to the privacy of his home he acts differently.' From that day there was a breach in their intimacy and companionship!

In the 431d year he was dispatched to the Deccan to bring away Prince Murad The order to him was that if the officers who had been appointed there to guard the country were doing their duty, he was to return with the prince Otherwise he was to send off the prince, and to conduct the administration with the assistance of Mīrzā Shahrukh When he arrived at Burhānpur, Bahādur Khān the ruler of Khandes, whose brother was married to Abū-lfazl's sister, wished to take him to his house and entertain him The Sharkh said, "If you will go along with me in the king's business, I shall be able to accept (your invitation) " When this road was stopped he sent some clothes and other presents The Sharkh rejoined, "I have made a covenant with Almighty God that until four conditions be fulfilled, I shall take nothing from any one "The first condition is Love, the second is that I shall not overestimate the gift, the third that I did not ask for it, the fourth that I was in want of it " Here, the first three conditions are fulfilled, but how can the fourth be got over for the graciousness of the Shahinshah has obliterated desire?"

Prince Muiād, who had fallen into chronic melancholy owing to his having returned unsuccessful from Ahmadnagar, and to this

¹ See B XVI who takes the words as having been spoken by Selīm But A F never was Selīm's teacher,

and I think the words are intended as an expression of Akbar's probable thoughts that in the early days of his instruction and when he was not yet twenty the gloss of Sıfāhānı (or Ispahānī, i e, an inhabitant of Ispahan) came into his hands, but with more than half of it eaten by white-ants so that it could not be understood He removed the worm-eaten portion and joined on blank paper Then after a little meditation he understood the beginning and ending of each line, and by conjecture filled up the blanks Afterwards when another copy was procured, and the two were compared, it was found that they agreed, except in two or three places where there were synonymous expressions, and three or four places where there were (differing) citations (inad) but approximate in All were astonished As his disposition was retining, and loved solitude, he shook off society and sought to lead an independent life. He did not try to open the door of a profession At the instance of friends, he in the nineteenth year of the reign of Akbac presented himself before the sovereign at the time when the latter was about to proceed to the eastern districts, and tendered a commentary which he had written on the Ayatu-l-kuisī, "The Throne-verse" (v 256 of the second chapter of the Koran, p 45 of Sale ed 1825) Afterwards, when Akbar returned to Fathpūi, he presented himself a second time, and as the fame of his ability and learning had on several occasions reached Akbar, he became the object of his boundless favour When Akbar became alienated from the bigoted Ulama, the two biothers, who, along with then emment knowledge and ability, were not devoid of tact and servility, again and again disputed vehemently with Shaikh Abdun-Nabī and Makhdūmu-l-mulk,—who from their science and possession of the cuirent learning were pillars of the empire,and assisted Akbai in putting them to silence Day by day then influence and intimacy with the king increased, and as the Shaikh's disposition and that of his elder brother Sharkh Faizī harmonised with Akbai's, Abū-l-fazl came to be an Amīi In the 39th year he became an officer of 1000, and in the 34th, when the Shaikh's mother died, Akbai came to his house and condoled with him and comforted him He said, "If men were immortal, and did not die, one by one, there would be no need for sympathetic hearts practising resignation. As no one long abides in this caravanseral, why should we bring upon ourselves the reproach of impatience". In the 37th year he was raised to the rank of 2000

When the Shaikh had acquired such sway over the king that the princes were realous of him not to speak of the officers, and was always in contiguity like the setting to a rewel, and that nothing was concluded without his approval, several of the discontented induced Akbai to send the Shaikh to the Decean. It is also notorious that Sultan Selīm one day went to the Shaikh's house and found forty clerks employed in copying the Koran, and a commentary thereupon. He took them all, together with the chapters of the books, to the king who became suspicious and thought, "He incites us to other kinds of things, and then when he goes to the privacy of his home he acts differently." From that day there was a breach in their intimacy and companionship!

In the 431d year he was dispatched to the Deccan to bring away Prince Murād The order to him was that if the officers who had been appointed there to guard the country were doing their duty he was to return with the prince Otherwise he was to send off the prince, and to conduct the administration with the assistance of Mīrzā Shahiukh When he arrived at Burhānpur, Bahādur Khān the ruler of Khandes, whose brother was married to Abū-lfazl's sister, wished to take him to his house and entertain him The Shaikh said, "If you will go along with me in the king's business, I shall be able to accept (your invitation) " When this road was stopped he sent some clothes and other presents The Shaikh rejoined, "I have made a covenant with Almighty God that until four conditions be fulfilled, I shall take nothing from any one "The first condition is Love, the second is that I shall not overestimate the gift, the third that I did not ask for it, the fourth that I was in want of it" Here, the first three conditions are fulfilled, but how can the fourth be got over for the graciousness of the Shahinshah has obliterated desire?"

Prince Murād, who had fallen into chronic melancholy owing to his having returned unsuccessful from Ahmadnagar, and to this

¹ See B XVI who takes the words as having been spoken by Selim But A F never was Selim's teacher,

and I think the words are intended as an expression of Akbar's probable thoughts cause had been superadded the death of his son Rustum Mīrza,had with the connivance of sycophants, taken to drinking, and become epileptic. When he heard of his being summoned, he went off to Ahmadnagar in order that he might make this expedition an excuse for not repairing to the presence. He reached Dihari on the banks of the Pumā and died in the year 1007, 1599 On the same day the Shaikh arrived after a rapid journey at the camp There was an extraordinary commotion High and low wanted to The Shaikh considered that to return at this time when the enemy was close by, and they were in a foreign country, was to play into their own loss Though many got angry and went off he addressed himself with a strong heart and true courage to soothe the leaders and to keep together the army, and marched on to subdue the Deccan In a short time he collected the wanderers, and guarded in an excellent manner the whole territory Nāsik, which was far off was not retaken. But many places such as the forts of Batīālā, Taltum, and Situnda were added to the empire He encamped on the bank of the Godavery and appointed fit aimies in every direction On receiving a message he made proper agreements and promises with Chand Bibi to the effect that when Ahang Khān the Abyssınıan, with whom she was at feud, should be chastised she would take Junair as her fief and surrender Ahmadnagai. The Shaikh moved from Shahgarha in that direction

At this time Akbai came to Ujjain and found that Bahādur Khān the iulei of Āsīi had not paid his respects to Prince Daniel The prince resolved to punish him. As the king intended to come to Buihānpui he wrote to the prince to address himself to the capture of Ahmadnagai. Accordingly, letter after letter came from the prince to the Shaikh telling him that his energy was known to every one far and near, but that Akbar wished that he (the prince) should conquer Ahmadnagai. Abū-l-fazi therefore should refrain from the enterprise. When the prince moved from Burhānpur, the Shaikh, in accordance with orders, left Mīrzā Shahrukh with Mīr Mūrtaza and Khwāja Abū-l-hasan in the camp and went off to kiss the threshold. On 14 Ramzān, 1008 A.H. 19 March 1600, and in the beginning of the 45th year, he paid his respects to the king at Kargāon in the Bijapui tellitory There came on Akbai's lips the verse—

A fine night and a glorious moon i fit well For my talk with thee on every topic

The Sharkh was appointed, along with Mīrzā 'Azīz Koka, Āsaf Khān J afar, and Sharkh Farīd Bakhshī to besiege the fort of Āsīr, and the government of the Khandes was assigned to him. He sent his own men with his son and his brother and established thānas in twenty-two places, and excited himself to put down the contumacious. At the same time he displayed the flag of a mansab of 4000.

One day the Sharkh went to inspect the batteries One of the besieged, who had joined the men in a battery pointed out a path by which they could get upon the wall of Mālīgarha in the waist of Āsīi on the west by north side there were two noted forts called Mālī and Antarmālī Whoever wished to enter the strong fortiess (Asir) had first to get through these two forts Separate from them and in the north and north-east side there was another fort called Jūnamālī Its wall was not completed From east to south-west there were smaller hills, and in the south there was a high hill called Kortha On the south-west was a lofty hill called Sapan As this last had come into the hands of the imperialists, the Shaikh arranged with the officers of the battery that when they heard the sound of the drums and trumpets every one should come out with ladders and should beat loudly the great drum He himself in a dark and cloudy night came with his men to the top of Sāpan and sent off the men They broke open the gate of Mālī and when they had entered the fort they sounded the drums and trumpets The garrison resisted, and the Sharkh followed and arrived when it was near moin-The garrison were confused and entered Asir When it was day the besiegers poured in from every side, some by Kortha and some by Jūnamālī. A great victory was gained Bahādur Khān asked for quarter, and through the intervention of Khān A'zım Koka he was permitted to do homage When Prince Daniel arrived at the Piesence during the congratulations for the victory of Āsīr there alose a disturbance caused by Rajū ¹ Manā and the attempt to laise to the throne the son of Shah 'Alī the paternal uncle of Nizām Shah. The Khān-Khānān came to Ahmadnagar, and the Shaikh got leave to go and subdue Nāsik. But as many men were making a disturbance about the son of Shah Alī, the Shaikh, in accordance with orders, returned from that quarter and went to Ahmadnagar along with the Khān-Khānān.

¹ The 14th would be a full moon

When in the 46th year Akbar returned to Upper India from Burhanpur, Prince Daniel remained in the latter place. The Khān-Khānān took up his abode in Ahmadnagar so that the commander-in-chiefship and the prosecution of the war fell to the Sharkh After fightings and struggles the Sharkh made a treaty with the son of Shāh 'Alī and then proceeded to chastise Rājū Manā. After taking Jālnapūr and its neighbourhood—which had been held by the enemy—he hastened to Ghātī Daulatabad (i.e., the approaches to Daulatabad) and the Rauza 2 and marched down from Katak 3 Catwāra and repeatedly fought with Rājū and was always victorious. Rājū 4 took shelter for a time in Daulatabad and again made a disturbance. After a short engagement he fled and was nearly captured. He flung himself into the moat of the fort. His baggage was plundered.

In the 47th year when Akbar became displeased with Prince Sultan Selim on account of certain occurrences, he, because of his servants' having sided with the prince, and because there was no one who was equal to Abū-l-fazl in truthfulness and reliability, summoned him to court He ordered him to leave his establishment and to come unattended, and with haste Abū-l-fazl left his son 'Abdu-r-Rahmān with his establishment and with the auxiliary officers in the Deccan, and came on rapidly Jahangii, who suspected him on account of his loyalty and devotion to his master, regarded his coming at this time as an interruption to his

l Akbarnāma III 784 Rājū is also called Rājū Deccani He was a tival of Malik 'Ambar

² Rauza is another name for Khuldābād where Aurangzeb is buried

³ A N III 795 Katak means an army, and also a fort, and perhaps here a camp The A N merely has Cat wara

⁴ AN III. 797

plans, and considered his coming unattended as a gain Rather, from mappreciation, he considered that the getting rid of the Shaikh would be the first step to the sovereignty, and by various promises instigated Bir Singh Deo Bandīla—through whose territory the Sharkh must necessarily pass—to kill him He waited in When this news came to the Shaikh in Ujjain, men said that he ought to go by the route of Ghātī Cāndā (by Malwa) The Shaikh said, "What power have lobbers to block my path?" On Friday 4 Rabī-al-awal 1011, 12 August 1602, half a kos from the serar of Bir which is six los from Narwar, Bir Singh Deo assembled with numerous horse and foot The Sharkh's wellwishers tried to bring away the Sharkh from the field of battle, and Gadai Afghan, one of his old servants, said that in the township of Antiī which was near at hand there were the Rai Rayan and Rajah Sūraj Singh with three thousand horse He should take them with him and put down the foe The Shaikh did not approve of incurring the disgrace of flight and manfully played away the com of life

Jahangii himself writes that Shaikh Abū-l-fazl had persuaded his (Jahangii's 2) father that because His Excellency, the seal and asylum (of prophecy)—the peace of God be upon him and his family—was possessed of perfect eloquence, he composed the Koran (i e, it was not a Divine revelation)—Consequently he, at the time of the Shaikh's coming from the Deccan, told Bir Singh to kill him, and after this his father's views changed

In accordance with the customs of the Caghatai family that the deaths of princes are not openly announced to the king, but that the prince's vakil binds a blue handkerchief on his arm and makes his reverence, and that in this way the fact becomes known, so as none of the attendants had the courage to announce the death of the Shaikh, the above custom was followed. Akbai was more grieved than for the deaths of his sons, and after hearing the details he said that if the prince aimed at the kingship he should have killed him, and guarded the Shaikh He also uttered this verse extempore 1

¹ Called Bar by Blochmann XXV It seems to be the Barquisera (Barke Serai) of Tavernier II 39, ed 1676 It was between Narwar and Antrî and about 6 miles S of the latter The Trie of Tavernier is Antri

² Price's Mem of Jahangii, p 33 It does not occur in the genuine Memoirs

Verse

When our Sharkh came towards us with eager longing A desire of kissing our feet lost him, head and foot

The Khān 'A,zım enigmatically gave the date of the Shaikh's death thus—

Verse

The wondrous sword of God's Prophet severed the rebel's head 1 (1011) (ie, 1692 A D)

They say the Sharkh appeared in a dream (to him) and said, "The date of my death is ' $Banda\ Ab\bar{u}$ -l- $fa\ l$ ', "The slave (servant of God) Ab \bar{u} -l-fazl', "for in God's workshop, His bounty is extensive to the eiring No one should despan"

It is related of Shāh Abū-l-m'aālī Qādnī,² who was one of the leading Shaikhs of Lahore, that he said, "I objected to the doings of Abū-l-fazl One night I saw in a dream that Abū-l-fazl was produced in the assembly of the Apostle His Majesty cast his blessed glance upon him and gave him a place in the assembly He condescended to observe, "This man during part of his life did evil things, but this prayer of his of which the beginning is 'O God reward the good for the sake of their goodness, and comfort the evil for the sake of Thy graciousness' became the cause of his salvation"

The assertion that the Shaikh was an infidel is upon the lips of high and low. Some reproach him with being a Hindu in religion, and some call him a fire-worshipper, and entitle him a secularist. Some even carry their disgust so far as to call him impious and an atheist. Others in whom justice prevails and who, like the followers of mysticism, give good names to those who have a bad name, rank him among the followers of "Peace with all, 'and with those who are of a wide disposition, and accept all religions and are relaxers of the Law, and are free-thinkers. The author of the 'Ālam Ārāī 'Abbasī¹ says that Sharkh Abul-fazl was a Nuqtavī (Blochmann 452) as is shown by an edict (manshūr) which was put into the form of a letter and sent (by Abū-l-fazl) to Mīr Saryid Ahmad Kāshī—who was one of the leaders of this sect, and the author of treatises on the Nuqta doctrine, and who, in the year 1002, 1594 when there was a slaying of heretics in Persia was killed² in Kāshaū by Shāh Abbās with his own hand. The Nuqta doctrines are impiety and infidelity, and license and broad churchism and the Nuqtavīs, like the philosophers consider the universe to be eternal. They deny the Resurrection and the Last Day and the retribution for good and evil and make Paradise and Hell to consist in prosperity and adversity in this world! May God preserve us (from such doctrines)

¹ The removal of the first letter of hāghī, 'a rebel'', yields 1011, ie, Sar $ib\bar{a}ghi$ burīd minus b=1011

² Safīna u-l-Auliyā and Khazīna Asfiyā I 149 He was born in 960, 1553, and died in 1024, 1615

 $^{^3}$ Or perhaps, "I refused to have anything to do with him, i.e., I refused to say prayers for him "

With all this, the Shaikh was an able man, and had a great intellect and critical disposition, and an acute glance which overlooked nothing however minute, in worldly affairs, and current questions. How was it that he did not enter into agreement with the wise, and that he abandoned the excellent way? Man in the affairs of this world—which is unenduring—does not devise his own evil and does not approve of injuring himself! In the affairs of the final world, which is stable and enduring, why does he knowingly and intentionally choose destruction? "Those 3 whom God permits to go astray are without a guide"

What appears upon investigation is that Akbai, from the beginning of his years of understanding, had a great love for the manners and customs of India Afterwards, he observed the precepts of his honoured father who had accepted the advice of Shah Tahmāsp the king of Persia The latter, in conversation with Humāyun, discussed the question of India, and the loss of sovereignty He said, "It appears that there are in India two

^{1 &#}x27;Ālam Ārāī, Tehran ed, p 325 Sikandar Munshī says this on the faith of statements of people who had come from India, and of a letter or rescript which was found in Ahmad Kāshī's house

² 'Ālam Ārāī 325 'Abbas cut him to pieces in Nasrābād Kāshān

³ Sūra 7, v 185, "He whom God shall cause to eri, shall have no Director" (Sale)

parties who are distinguished for military qualities and leadership, the Afghans and the Rājpūts. At present you cannot get the Afghans on your side for there is no mutual confidence. Make them traders instead of servants, and arrange with the Rājpūts and cherish them? Akbar recognised that the winning over of this body of men would be one of the great political achievements, and strove for it to the uttermost. So much so that he adopted their customs, such as the prohibition of cow-killing, shaving the beard, wearing pearl earrings. Dussarah and Diwālī festivals, etc. Though the Shaikh had influence over the king, yet perhaps from love of glory he could not hold the rems in this matter. All these connexions recoiled upon himself.

It is stated in the Zakhīra-al-Khwānīn that the Shaikh used to go to the houses of dervishes at night-time and distribute ashrafīs (gold coins) and beg them to pray for the preservation of Abū-l-fazl's faith. The builden of his plaint was, "Alas! What is to be done?" And then he would place! his hands on his knees and heave a deep sigh. He never used bad language, nor was there fining? for absence, or the confiscation or stoppage of wages in his establishment. Whomsoever he once employed he never, if possible, discharged him even if he did his work badly. He would say, "Men will impute it to my want of intelligence and will say, "Why did he take him on without knowing what legal term meaning attachment of property, eq, Kūrūk Amin, 'an attaching officer ' The juxta-position of the word bazyaft seems to shew that a word meaning stoppage of wages was intended The MSS might be read as giving quiught as well as faroght, for there is only a dot of Blochmann difference between them however has accepted the word as furugh for his rendering at p xxviii absence on the part of his servants " Perhaps the word means simply dismissal The expression occurs again at p 408 of vol III m the notice of Mahabat and is made with reference to Khān Jahān Lodi's establishment

¹ Lit "strike his hands upon his knees" It is an attitude in prayer See Bahār i 'Ajam and Hughes' Dict, art Prayer See also B XVI, XVII The phrase "to strike one's hands on one's knees" is also used in Maash I 745 line 6 Apparently it is a gesture of emotion

 $^{^{2}}$ ghan hāzirī See Invine A of M 25

³ bāzyāft u faroghi Farogh means splendour or a star, and furugh means bringing to an end But I think there is a misreading and that the word is qurught See Vullers sv quruq Steingiss gives quruq as a Mongolian word meaning confiscation It has been adopted into Bengali as a

he was?' On the day that the Sun entered Aries he had all his household goods brought before him and he wrote down the details and kept the list. He burnt his account-books (dafātu) and gave all the clothes he had worn to his servants on New Year's Day, except the trousers (pārāma) which were burnt in his presence. He had a wonderful appetite. They say that, exclusive of fuel and water, his daily ration weighed two and twenty surs. His son S 'Abdu-1-Rahmān was his table-attendant (safarcī, "warter"), and sate as such. The superintendent of the kitchen (mashrif-1-bawarchīhāna) was a Muhammadan and stood by and looked on. Whatever dish the Sharkh put his hand into twice, was prepared again next day. If anything was tasteless, he gave it to his son to eat, and he went and admonished the cooks, but the Sharkh himself said nothing

They say that his airangements and establishments during the Decean campaigns were beyond anything that could be imagined In a cahal ranati (a large tent) a divan (masnad) was spread for the Sharkh, and every day one thousand plates of food were prepared and distributed among all the officers. Outside a nuhgazī ("a nine-yaid canopy"?) was set up, and cooked kichiri was distributed all day long to whoever wanted it—high or low

They say that when the Shaikh was Piime Minister (vakīl matlaq), the Khān-Khānān one day came to see him, in company with M Jānī Beg, the (formei) rulei of Scinde. The Shaikh was lying at full length on a bed and looking at the Akbarnāma. He did not rise up at all, but, just as he was, said, "Come in, Mīrzās, and be seated" Mīrzā Jānī Beg, who had princely ideas, was disgusted and departed. On another occasion the Khan-Khānān prevailed by entreaties on the Mīrzā to go to the Shaikh's quarters. The Shaikh came to the gate to welcome him and paid him great attention, and said, "We² are your fellow-citizens and your servants". The Mīrzā was astonished and said to the Khān-Khānān, "What is the meaning of the whilome hauteur and of the present humility?" The Khān-Khānān replied, "On that day he had the canons of viziership in view, he conformed the shadow to the substance. To-day he adopted fraternising manners."

 $^{^{1}}$ Possibly gazi is the same as gazinah mentioned in B 95 and in Vullers as a coarse cotton cloth

² Alluding to the fact that his ancestors settled in Scinde when they first came from Arabia to India.

To leave aside all such matters, the Sharkh had an enchanting literary style. He was free from secretarial pomposity and epistolary tricks of style, and the force of his words, the colligation of his expressions, the application of single words, the beautiful compounds, and wonderful splendours of his diction were such as would be hard for another to imitate ². As he strove to make special use of Persian words, it has been said of him that he put into prose the Quintet of Nizāmī. It is owing to his consummate skill in this art that he has written many things in praise of his sovereign, and in preambles which seem strange and which cannot be understood without close attention ³

(KHWAJA) ABŪ-L-HASAN OF TURBAT,

WHO HAD THE TITLE OF

RUKNU-S-SULTANAT

Turbat is a district of Khurāsān Qutbu-d-dīn Haidai, who was a doer of wondrous deeds, and from whom the Haidaiians derive themselves, came from there The Khwāja entered the service of Pince Daniel during the reign of Akbar and was made Diwān of

¹ toragī Perhaps the Khān-Khānān was referring to AF's having been then reading the Akbarnāma and so been imagining himself at court Perhaps we should read tūzagī See II 851 eight lines from foot

² The part of this eulogium which refers to A F 's freedom from "the technicalities and flimsy pretrinesses of munshis (B XXVIII)" is taken from the Haft Iqlim, the author of which says in his account of Agra and its writers, that Abul-fazl considered it right to refrain from such tricks of style. The passage is quoted in the Darbārī A, p 494

³ According to Ghulām 'Alī's preface the life of AF had not been written by the author of the Maasir But probably he made this statement because he had not found it Piesumably 'Abdu-l-Hayy afterwards found it

⁴ Turbat Haidarī, Reclus IX 226 Eighty-eight miles NW Khāf (Conolly) and SW Mashad Perhaps the Haidarians are the Haidar Zai of Conolly D'Herbelot mentions Haidhari as the name of a doctor called Qutbu-d-dīn, but he was a native of Syria

When Jahangir ascended the throne, the Khwaja the Deccan was summoned from the Deccan to court. In the second year when Āsaf K M J'afar became Vakıl, he requested (Tūzuk 50) that he might have him as an associate for the purpose of regulating the establishment After that, when Asaf K engaged in the affairs of the Deccan, and the Diwani fell into the hands of I'timādu-d-daula, the Khwāja acquired influence and intimacy in attendance on the king, and in the 8th year, 1022, 1613, attained the high office of Mīi Bakhshī When I'timādu-d-daulah died, the Khwāja was made Chief Diwān and had the rank of 5000 with 5000 horse In the affan of Mahābat K, the Khwāja along with Asaf Jahi and Iradat K were in front of Nur Jahan Begam's elephant-litter, and with a small force they swam their hoises and. opposed Mahabat, with their arms wet Suddenly the enemy drove off the Begam's men with a shower of arrows, and every one of the officers went aside At this crisis the Khwaja got separated from his horse, but with the help of a Kashmiri boatman 1 escaped with his life In the 19th 2 year he was made governor of Kabul, and his son Zafar K was sent off from court to be his deputy In the leigh of Shah Jahan he attained the rank of 6000 with 6000 horse When on the night of Sunday 26 3 Safr 1039, 4 October 1629, Khān Jahān Lodī fled from Agra, Shāh Jahān appointed the Khwāja and other officers to pursue him Though some officers pressed on and fought, and Khān Jahān Lodi crossed the Cambal and went off, the Khwaja arrived at the bank at the close of the day As without boats he could not cross, he had to stay there till noon 4 of next day Khān Jahān thereby got a start of seven watches and entered the Bandīla country Jagraj the son of Jujhar gave him protection and passed him out of his country He intrigued with the guides of the imperial army so that they directed it wrongly, and took it by wrong roads Accordingly, the Khwāja and the other leaders uselessly traversed the jungles, and gained nothing but giddiness

¹ Iqbālnāma 264, and Elliot VI 427

² Mahābat's rebellion was later than this, viz, in the 21st year

³ The Maasır has 27th at p 725 in account of Khān Jahān Lodī

⁴ Khāfī K I 418.

When Shah Jahan arrived at Burhanpur in order to put an end to Khān Jahān, the Khwāja and the other auxiliaries waited upon him, and were sent off to free the country of Nāsik and Tiimbak 1 After settling that country and the jagir of Sāhū Bhonsla the Khwāja, according to the king's orders, went to help Nasīrī K who was besieging the fort of Qandhar While on the way he heard of a victory 2 and returned He came to the town of Pātūr Shaikh Bābū 8—which is a pargana of the payinghāt (Lowlands) of Berar-and to the bank of a stream which had little water in it He intended to spend the rains there when suddenly a great flood from the hills came down upon the camp The men got confused on account of the darkness of the night and the force of the water, and ian off on every side. The Khwāja and other officers got 'upon unsaddled horses and extricated themselves from that. dangerous position Nearly 2,000 persons, and all the Khwāja's property, including a lac of rupees in cash, were carried off by the water In the 5th year he was made governor of Kashmir, but as he was a grey-beard of the State, Shah Jahan did not think it proper that he should go far off, and sent off his son Zafar K to manage the business of that country as his deputy The Khwāja died in the 6th year, 1042, 1632-33, at the age of seventy Kalīm⁴ found the date of death

"May he use with the Amīiu-l-mūminīn ('Alī)" (1042)

The Khwājah was a straight-forward and able man, but he was of a sour countenance and harsh manners. His heir was Zafar K of whom a special account has been given. Another son was M Khuished Nazr

¹ West of Nāsik It is a hill foit and place of pilgrimage Elliot VII 10 Text has حوم as in Khāfī K I 426

² That is, the fort was taken Pādshāhnāma I 396

³ See account in Pādshāhnāma I 396 and Khāfī K I 461 The occurrence was in the first month of 1041, July—August, 1631 Pātūr is the Pātar of Jarrett II 234, but is Pātūr in I G XX 76 It is in the Akola district of Berār

⁴ Shāh Jahān s poet-laureate Rieu I, 686a He was a native of Hamadan and died in Kashmir in 1062, 1652

⁵ See a specimen of his harshnes in his remarks about Gaur Dhan and Haikarn, II, 159

ABUL KHAIR K BAHĀDUR IMĀM JANG.

He was descended from the Fārūqī Shaikhs, and his lineage ascends to Shaikh Faridu-d-din Shakrganj The native place of his ancestors was Mīrpūr in the Sarkār of Khairabad, Oudh. As he lived for some time in Shikohabad (in the Mainpuri district), he became known as Shikohabādi His father, S Bahāu-d-dīn, was in the time of Aurangzeb an officer of 2000 and was Sadr and Ihtisāb (supervisor of market) of Shikohabād Abul-Khair held first a mansab of 300 and for a while was assistant to Marhmat K in the city of Māndū in Malwa In the year that Nizāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jāh proceeded from Malwa to the Deccan he accompanied 1 As he was an experienced soldier, and had good judgment in such matters he was approved of and consulted He obtained the rank of 2500, the title of Khan, and the gift of a suitable jagır, and was appointed faujdār of Nabī Nagar, otherwise Utnui (Uttur or Otūr in Poona district) When in the year 1136, 1724, that unequalled Amīr (Āsaf Jāh) returned from the capital to the Deccan, he took with him Khwajam Quli K, the governor of the fort of Dhar and favidar of Mandu, along with him, and left the Khan Afterwards, when Qutbu-d-dīn Ālī K Panchkaurī was appointed to these offices by the court, the Khān went to Āsaf Jāh and was attached to Hafīzu-d-dīn K , who had been made gover-He did good service against the Mahrattas, and nor of Khandes gradually rose to the rank of 4000 with 2000 horse, the title of Bahādur, and the gift of a flag and drum He was also for a time faujdār of Gulshanābād,2 and for a time Naib of Khandes and also for a time faujdär of Sirkär Bagläna In the time of Näsir Jang he had the title of Shamsher Bahadur and became Naib of Au-In the time of Mozaffar Jang he became governor of Khandes, and in the time of Salābat Jang he held the rank of 5000 with 4000 hoise and had the gift of a fringed palanquin and the title of Imam Jang He commanded the van-guard in the battle with the Mahiattas, which took place during the diwanship of Rajah Roghanāth Dās They say that in the battle he sought death from a desire for martyrdom, but by the decree of fate he died after the battle of a slight ailment in 1166, 1753 He was a valiant man and bold of speech He also had learning In the year when Bähü Nāik, a Mahiatta leader, had collected a laige force for the purpose of levying the chaut in the Haidarabad Carnatic and had come there, he was appointed with a force from the Sarkar in order that he might, in concert with Anwaru-d-din K, taluqdar of the said Carnatic, and 'Abdu-n-Nabī K, faujdāi of Cuddapah, and Bahādur K, faujdāi of Kainūl, oppose Bābū Nāīk attacking the enemy, seizing his baggage and inflicting a disgraceful defeat upon him, so that Saidāi did not make any moie disturbances, are known to high and low. He left two sons eldest, Abū-l-barkāt K Bahādur Imām Jang, possessed the jewel of courage and died young The second is Shamsu-d-daula Abū-l-Khan Khan Bahadur Tegh Jang who, at the time of this writing, is a favourite with Nizāmu-d-daula Āsaf Jāh (s. Nizamu-l-mulk) and holds the rank of 5000 with 5000 horse, and has a flag and a drum and the fief of Ilgharab in the province of Bīdai praiseworthy qualities and a good reputation 1

¹ Khāfi K II 848

² "In Baglana near Junir" Elliot VII 337

ABU-L-M'AĀLĪ (MĪR SHĀH)

One of the Saiyids of Taimiz He was introduced in his early youth to Humāyūn in Kabul through Khwāja Muhammad Samī' As he was handsome and had external graces he became a favourite and arrived at the dignity of being an Amīi, and received the title of farzand (son) He distinguished himself in the expedition to India, and after the victory was sent with some other Amīis to the Panjab If Sikandar K Sūi, the ruler of India

¹ I O M S 628 adds to this notice the following statement —

[&]quot;On the 25th day of the month of Rabīu-s-sānı 1205, 1 January 1791, he died of dysentery in the camp at the fort of Pankul () and after three months his bier was conveyed in the month of Rajab to Haidarabad and he was buried in the sepulchre of Shah Hasan Barhāna — May his grave be holy — to the east of Haidarabad

May God have mercy upon him!' (This note must have been inserted by a reader or copyist, for 'Abdu-l-Hay' died in 1782)

^{*}Probably Pālakollu or Palcole in the Kistna district, Madras Presidency It is an old Dutch settlement It is on the Narasapūr canal See Cotton's Inscriptions of the Madras Presidency, p 222, and I G XIX 334

-who had escaped from the battle and withdrawn to the hillsshould come out and make a disturbance, he was to chastise him But his immoderation and his haughty demeanour to the Amīrs were the cause that Prince Akbar and his guardian Bairām K were sent there, and that he was appointed to the Sarkar of Hissai When he waited on the prince at the bank of the Beas, the latter had regard to the favour shown him by Humāyūn and invited him to sit in the assembly, and behaved with much kindness towards him He, who did not understand positions, went to his quarters and sent a message to the prince to the effect that every one knew how he stood with Humāyūn, and especially was the prince aware of this, for on a certain day he had eaten along with the king at one table, while the prince had had his food sent to him "Why then, when I came to your house, were a separate divan and pillow assigned to me". The prince, in spite of his youth, replied "The laws of sovereignty are one thing and the laws of love another You have not the connection with me that you had with the king It is strange that you have not understood the difference and have made a disturbance" Afterwards when Akbar mounted the throne, Bairām K perceived in him the marks of rebellion and arrested him in the assembly on the third day after the Accession and sent him to Lahore He made him over to the Pahlwan Gulgaz, the 'asas (police-officei) One day he, owing to the negligence of his guards, escaped and went to the country of the Gakhars Kamāl K Gakhar confined him From there too he escaped and wanted to go to Kabul When Mun'ım K, the governor there, heard of his flight, he by stratagem got his brother, Mīr Hāsham, who was jāgīrdār of Ghorband, etc., into confinement, and Abū-l-M'aālī did not go there, but in Naushahra joined the Kashmīris who had been oppressed by their ruler, Ghāzī He won them over by craft and flattery and fought with the ruler of Kashmīr He was defeated Some have written 1 that when he joined Kamāl K the (Gakhar) country was then in the hands of Adam Gakhar the uncle of Kamāl, and that Kamāl K showed belief in Abū-l-M'aāli and raised an army, and they two

¹ Ferishta says that he settled matters with Kamāl

went together to Kashmir After the defeat he apologised Abu-l-M'aālī went secretly to pargana Dīpālpūr, which was in the fief of Bahādur Shaibānī, and hid himself in the house of M Tülak who was a servant of Bahādur, but who had formerly been a servant of Abu-l-'M'aālī It chanced that one day Tūlak had a quarrel with his wife and severely punished her. She went to Bahādur and revealed the facts, and said, "They have resolved to kill you " Bahādur ımmediately went off on horseback and put Tūlak to death, and imprisoned Abū-l-M'aālī and sent him to Bairām K He put him in charge of Wali Beg to take him to Bhakar went off to Gujarat in order that he might go from there to Mecca In Gujarat he committed an unjust slaughter and fled to Khān He, in accordance with a summons, sent him back to This time Bairam detained him with honour for some Baırām days and then imprisoned him in the fort of Biana of his own downfall he from Alwar² released Abū-l-M'aālī, and sent him to court with other Amirs All the Amirs did homage in the town of Jajhai (in the district of Rohtak) The Shāh (Abū-l-M'aālī) too came and paid his respects on horseback, which displeased the king He was again put into chains and made over to Shihabu-d-din Ahmad in order that he might send him to Mecca Two years afterwards, he in the 8th year returned from the holy places, and with evil intent came to Jalaur and had an interview with Sharifu-d-din Husain Ahrāri-who had become a He gave him a body of troops and he went to the territory of Agra and Delhi and raised the dust of strife He first went to Nārnol and took possession of the king's treasure He came to Jhanjhanun and from there went to Hissar Fīruza He saw that things were not succeeding and that the royal armies were pursuing him on all sides So he went to Kabul He wrote an account of himself to Māh Cūcak Begam the mother of M Muhammad Hakīm—who had the management of affairs in Kabul Abū-l-M'aālī put this verse into his letter

¹ Apparently to Abu-l-M'aālī

² This is a mistake Bairam was proceeding towards Alwar, but it was from Bīāna that he released Abul-M'aālı See A N II translation p 152

Verse

We've not come to this door in quest of honour and glory We've come here for protection against the hand of fate

People told the Begam that Shāh Abū-l-M'aālī was a young man of distinguished rank and courage and that Humāyūn had betrothed her eldest daughter to him If she cherished him, it would be an advantage to her She was deceived and wrote in reply-

Verse 1

"Show kindness, and alight, for the house is thy house"

She brought him with honour into Kabul and gave Fakhrunısā Begam (her daughter), the sister of M Muhammad Hakim, in marriage to him When by this connection he became master of the situation, he, from his wicked nature, and the evil suggestions of some persons to the effect that while the Begam lived his position would not be secure, in the middle of Sha'ban 971, April 1564, entered the Begam's chamber with two ruffians and killed her He also killed many leading men, and among them Haidar Qāsim Kohbar whose ancestors had held high office in the family, and who was then Vakīl M Sulaimān, who always was wanting to get Kabul, came there from Badakhshman at the secret request of M. Muhammad Hakim and some Kabul officers Shāh Abū-l-M'aālī took M Hakīm with him and came out to fight gagement took place near the Ghorband river When the conflict was beginning (lit was in the balance), the well-wishers of M Hakīm carried him over to M Sulaimān, and all the Kabulis Shāh Abū-l-M'aālī became confused and fled dispersed Badakhshis pursued him and seized him in the village of Chārīkārān (Charikar) In Kabul on the day of the 'Īdu-l-fitr in this year, 13 May 1564, he was hanged by orders of M Hakim and received the retribution of his deeds.

Verse 2

With my own eyes I saw in a thorough fare $(gazarg\bar{a}h)$ A bird take the life of an ant her eldest daughter to him

¹ The Darbar A gives another line besides this one See p 746 I do not know where the Massir got the statement that the Begam's advisers told her that Humāyūn had betrothed

² Taken from Akbarnāma II 207 The lines come from Nizāmī Khusrū and Shīrīn, near the end

His beak was not withdrawn from the prey Before another bird came and finished him Be not secure when you have done wrong, For retribution is according to nature

Shah Abū-l-M'aālı had a pleasant wit and wrote ' poetry His takhallas was Shahīdī

(MIRZA) ABU-L-MAALI

Son of the well-known 1 M Wālī who was married to Bolāgī Begam the daughter of Prince Daniel After his father's death he received the rank of 1000 with 400 horse, and in the 6th year of Shah Jahan his rank was 2000 with 1500 horse and he had the jāgīrdājī and faujdārī of Sīwistān Afterwalds he had an increase of 500 horse, and in the 31st year, on the death of Sazāwār K Mashhadī, he was made faujdār of Tirhut in Bihar Afterwards, when the wondrous workings of foitune disorganized Shah Jahan's sovereignty, and the intrigues of his sons produced confusion in affairs, and things ended in civil war, and Dāiā Shikoh, who had the management of affairs, was defeated by Aurangzeb and took to flight, and the capital was brightened by the arrival of Aurangzeb's army, it appeared to Auiangzeb 2 that the most important thing was to secure for Shuja' from his father the inclusion of the township of Monghyi and the province of Bihar and Patna in the wide country of Bengal Prince Shujā' had always been desirous of this, and now Aurangzeb took his part Consequently the other jāgīrdārs and faujdārs, willingly or unwillingly submitted to him (Shujā'), and M Abū-l-M'aālī also was obliged to join Shujā, who had previously been defeated near Benares, and whose affairs had fallen into disorder, was pleased at the defeat of Dārā Shikoh and the conveyance to him of Bihar, and expressed his gratitude very warmly But when Aurangzeb proceeded towards

l Badayūni III 248 There is a notice of Abu-l-M'aālī in the Darbar A 743 The M Wālī who married Bolāqī B was a son of Khwājah Hasan Naqshbandī and Fakhranisā B the half-sister of Akbar B 310 He is also mentioned in the $T\bar{u}zuk$ J 272

² After Dāiā's first defeat Aurangzeb endeavoured to propitiate Shujā Khāfī K II 42, 43

the Panjab in pursuit of Dārā Shikoh, and it seemed likely that the enterprise would take a long while, Shujā' formed greater desires and advanced into the province of Allahabad On receiving this news Aulangzeb withdrew from following Dārā Shikoh and turned his rein in order to fight with Shujā' Before a battle took place, Mīr Abū-l M'aālı by the gurdance of auspiciousness left Shujā's camp and joined 1 Aurangzeb He was rewarded by the present of an elephant, etc., and the title of Mızā K, a present of Rs. 30,000 and an increase of 1000 with 500 hoise so that his ıank became 3000 with 2000 horse Aftei Shuja' fled, and Prince Sultan Muhammad was appointed to pursue him, Abū-l-M'aālī was made his auxiliary Afterwards, he received the faujdārī of Darbhanga In the 6th year he was ordered to proceed with Ilahvardī K, the faujdār of Gorakhpur to punish the zamindar of the Morang In that quarter he died a natural death in 1074, 1663-64 His son 'Abdu-l-Wāhid K in the 22nd year received the title of Khān He did good service at the siege of Haidarabad The pargana of Anhal² in Malwa—which had been assigned to this family from the time of M Walī—was made his jagir and descended to his sons When the Mahrattas took possession of Malwa, they dispossessed them His grandson is Khwāja 'Abdul-Wāhid K Khwāja Himmat Bahādur, who in the time of the Nızāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jāh came to the Deccan When the rule came to Salābat K, he got his grandfather's title, and gradually attained high rank and the title of Amīnu-d-daulah Bahādur Saif Jang and the diwani of the establishment of 'Ali Jah,' the heir of Nizāmu-d-daula Āsaf Jāh, and died in 1189, 1775 was unequalled as a faithful friend

ABU-L-MANSŪR K BAHĀDUR SAFDAR JANG.

His name was M. Muqim and he was the sister's son and son-in-law⁵ of Buihānu-l-Mulk His father had the title of Siyādat K. After the death of his father-in-law he (Safdai)

^{1 &#}x27;Ālamgīrnāma 240 2 J II 198

^{3 &#}x27;Alī Jāh was the eldest son of Nızām 'Alī K and died in 1795 before his father (Beale)

⁴ dar pās āshnāi be misal būd The author of the Maasir says somewhere that the Deccanis are unequalled for the constancy of their friendships

⁵ See Siyaru-l-M III 303 note, for a reference to Safdar's widow was appointed governor of Oudh by Muhammad Shah, and he, after chastising the ielels there brought them into subjection In 1155, 1742, he, at the emperor's order, went to Patna to assist Alī Veidī K., the governor of Bengal, where the Mahrattas were making a disturbance. As a reward he received charge of the forts of Rohtas and Chunar, but as 'Alī Verdī suspected some thing, he procured an order from the emperor directing him to desist from helping him, and he returned to his own province 1156 he came to court in obedience to a summons and was made superintendent of the aitillery. In 1159, 1746, the province of Allahabad was made over to him on the death of 'Umdatu-lmulk Amīr K In 1161 when the Durrānī Shah (Ahmad) marched from Qandahai to attack India, and passed beyond Lahoie, he, to support the emperor's orders, proceeded to Suhind along with Sultan Ahmad Shah, and after I'tımadu-d-daula Qamaru-d-din was killed, he stood firm and displayed vigour until the Durrānī When, one month afterwards, Muhammad Shah Shah retreated died on 27 Rabīu-s-sānī of that year, 16 April 1748, and Ahmad Shah sate on the throne, and shortly afterwards news came of the death of Asaf Jah, Safdar Jang put on the Vizier's robes was displeased with 'Alī Muhammad K Rohilla he stured up Qāīm K Bangash against S'aad Ullah K, the son of the said When Qāīm K and his brothers were killed, as has been detailed 2 in the biography of his father, Muhammad K Bangash, Safdar Jang stirred up the emperor against Ahmad K Bangash, the brother of Qāīm K., and demanded the latter's property The emperor halted in Alīgaih (Kol), and Safdai Jang marched to the Ganges from which Farakhabad was twenty kos distant mother of Ahmad K came and settled the matter for sixty lacs of supees, and the emperor seturned to the capital Jang in order to collect the promised money stayed for some time and set about confiscating the properties of Ahmad K. He placed ın Qanauj Newal³ Raı of the Kayath caste, who had formerly held

¹ See Siyaru-l-M III 287

² Massir III 772

Siyaru-l-M III 290 Irvine's Bangash Nawabs, J A S B for 1879

pp 50 and 64 Nawal or Neval Rai was killed in the battle of Khudāgaon in August 1750

a low office on his establishment, but had been gradually promoted, and was now Naib of Oudh, and went himself to court Rai was killed in a battle with the Afghans, and Safdai Jang set about collecting an aimy, and in concert with Süiai Mal the Jat marched against Ahmad K Bangash A battle ensued in which he was disgracefully defeated,1 and in 1163, 1750, he went to the capital Meanwhile Ahmad K Bangash stirred up strife in Allahabad and Oudh and failed not to plunder and burn every-Next year Safdai Jang joined with Mulhai Holkar and Jai Āpā (Jyāpa) Scindiah--who were two influential Mahratta leadersand addressed himself to confronting Ahmad K. This time the Afghans were defeated,2 and they went off and took refuge on the slopes of the Madaith hills, which are a branch of those of Kumaon At last they were reduced to make supplications, and to make a peace on terms satisfactory to Safdar Jang news came of the approach of Ahmad Shah Duriānī from Lahore to Delhi, and Safdai Jang in accordance with the emperor's order took Holkar with him by the promise of a large subsidy and came As Javid K Bahādui the eunuch, who was the to Delhi in 1165 centre of affairs, had made an agreement with Qalandar K the ambassador of Shāh Duriānī, and then sent him back, Safdar J, who did not like the eunuch, invited him one day to his house, and put³ him to death, and took charge of the business of the sovereignty Afterwards, the emperor, at the instigation of Intizāmu d-daula, the Khān-Khānān, son of Qamaru-d-dīn K., sent him a message that he should give 4 up the superintendentship of the qhuslkhāna and the artillery He understood the object, and stayed in his house for some days and then applied for his dis-As it was not granted he went off without leave and halted at two kos from the city Every day there was an increase of disturbance till at last Safdar Jang raised up a fictitious prince Ahmad Shah appointed Intizāmu-d-daula vizier in his 100m

¹ In September 1750 Irvine 1 c 74 2 Siyaru-l-M III 306 Irvine 1 c 98

The defeat was in April—May 1751 The Madārih range is mentioned in the Siyar M. Persian text

³ Siyar M 328, Elliot VIII 133 and 317 The murder was on 28 August, 1752

⁴ Sıyaru-l-M III 330

'Imādu-l-mulk engaged in fighting with Safdai Jang, and the contest went on for six months. At last by the mediation of Intizāmu-d daula peace was made on the agreement that Safdar should retain the provinces of Allahabad and Oudh. Safdai Jang set out for his government and died on 17 Zīlhajja 1167, 5 October 1754. A separate account has been given of his son Shujā'-u-d-daulah.

ABŪ NASR KHĀN, SON OF SHAISTA KHĀN

In the 23rd year of the reign of Aurangzeb he was appointed 2 to the service of 'Arz Mukarrar (Revision of petitions) in the place of Latīf' Ullah K In the 24th year when Sultan Muhammad Akbar showed signs of rebellion, and there was only a small force in attendance on the king, Asad K was sent in advance to the tank Pūshkai,3 and Abū Nası was sent along with him Afterwards he became Qurbegi, and in the 25th year was removed from office Afterwards he was made governor of Kashmir and in the 41st year he was removed from there and appointed to the government of Lahore in the room of Mukaiiam K For some cause he lost his mansab and in the 45th year he was again received into favour and made governor of Malwa in the room of Mukhtar K and had a mansab of 3000 with 1500 hoise After that he was for a time attached to Bengal In the 49th year he was made governor of Oudh and held a commission of 3000 with 2500 horse is known of him after that

Ajmeie and pieparing to encounter his son Muhammad Akbar who had joined the Rajputs and was meditating rebellion. He afterwards fled to the Mahrattas and eventually went to Persia and died there. He left his wives and children behind him. In the Massir 'Ālamgīrī the Pūshkai tank is apparently called the Rānā's tank Tālāb i-Rānā. Here too, p. 200, Push kai is misspelt as Bhakar. Apparent ly Asad K. and Abū Nasr were sent to Pūshkai to interview Shah 'Ālam (afterwards Bahādur Shah)

¹ He died at Pāparghāt (Beale) The Sivai M III 339 has Mahdīghāt

² Maasır 'Ālamgīrī, 188

Text tālāb-i-Bhakar, but the place meant is really the famous sacred tank Pūshkar, described in the Rajputana Gazetteei II 67, and which according to the Khulāsat Tawārīkh and the Araish Mahfil is three los from Ajmeie In the Bib Ind edition of the Ain the place is also wrongly spelt Bhakar, and hence we have in Jairett II 267 Bhakar with variants, none of which is night Amangzeb was then in the city of

(MIRZA) ABŪ SAID

Grandson of I'timādu-d-daulah and brother's son of Nūi Jahān Begam. He was famous for his beauty and princelmess, and he had great taste both in dress and food. He looked after earpets, etc., and in ornamentation and style and in all worldly matters he was distinguished, so that in those respects none of his equals or rather of his superiors could come up to him. He had such incety and such lofty ideas that sometimes he was still arranging his turban when news came that the darbār was broken up, and sometimes when he was not contented with the arrangement of his turban he put off his riding. By the favour of his grandfather he arrived at high dignities and held his head high. He was so haughty and mighty that he regarded neither the earth nor the heavens (fulk-u-mulk)

As his handwriting resembled that of 1 timādu-d-daula, he, in the time of the viziership (of the latter), signed most of the grants and cheques. After I'timādu-d-daula's death be from inexperience and youth quarielled with his (paternal) uncle Asaf Jāhī and made a league with Mahābat K He also became intimate with Pimce Sultan Paivez and attained to a high position He went to the Deccan in company with the prince, and after his death came to court In the 22nd year of Jahangir he was made governor of Tatta (Sind), and when Shah Jahan came to the throne he, on account of disagreement with Yemenu-d-daula Asaf K, was degraded from his office and influence and was allowed an annual pension of Rs 30,000 For a long time he lived in retirement with comfort and tranquillity In the 23rd year, at the request of the Begam Sāhib he was made faujdār of Ajmere and had the rank of 2000 with 800 horse As he had the dau-s-s'alab (the fox's disease) he could not attend to business In the 26th year he received an allowance of Rs 40,000 and again lived in retirement in Agra and spent the rest of his life in careless ease He died in the beginning of Aurangzeb's reign. He had a poetical vein and earnestly desired to compose eloquent divans He made a selection of many poems and called it the Khulasaı-Künîn (the cream of two worlds) Hıs son Hamīdu-d-dıñ K was successful by being the companion of Prince Aulangzeb

After the battle with Rajah Jeswant Singh—which was the first crowning victory—he had the title of Khānazād K. After that his name became Khānī. In the 26th year, on the death of Kurram Ullah, he was made faujdār of Mūngī Pattan which is 20 kos from Aurangabad, and on the banks of the Godavery. In the 29th year he was governor of the fort of Qandhār in the Decean

(MĪR) ABŪ TURĀB¹ GUJRĀTĪ

He belonged to the Salāmī Saiyids of Shiiaz His grandfather Mīr 'Inayatu-d-dīn Sar Ullah-who was also called Hibbat Ullah, and was commonly known as Saiyid Shāh Mīi-had attained great proficiency in the acquired sciences, and was a school-fellow of Amīr Sadıu-d-dīn 2 He came to Gujaiāt in the time of Sultan Qutbu-d-din the grandson of Sultan Ahmad—from whom Ahmadabad derives its name After some time he returned to his home, and again at the time of the disturbance of Shah Ism'aīl Safavī (the first) came to Gujarāt during the reign of Sultan Mahmūd Bīgarah, with his son Mīr Kamālu-d-dīn, who was the father of Abu Turāb He took up his abode in Campānīi — Mahmūdabad, the former capital of the Sultans He set up as a teacher, and he also He left good sons The best of them was wrote useful books Mīr Kamālu-d-dīn, who was distinguished for outward and inward perfections When he died, leaving a good name behind him, Abū Turāb iemained as the eldest of the biothers and cousins family of these Saiyids is connected with the Maghrabih order, the lamp of which order was S Ahmad & Khattū called Salāmi because apparently it happened that one of their ancestors had heard the sound of a reply to his greeting when he visited the tomb of the Piophet, Peace be upon him and his family 1

Mīr Abū Tuiāb acquired influence in that country by his upnightness and skill. In the year when Akbar unfurled his standards there, the Mīr appeared before him sooner than the other Amirs

¹ B 506 The grandfather's name is there given as Ghiāsu d-dīn as in 1 N III 217

² One of Sultan Husain Baiqiā's

officers See Habibus-siyar The account of AT is taken from AN III 217

³ Bayley's Gujiat, 90

of Gujaiāt At the station of Jotāna, Khwāja Muhammad Haravī and Khān 'Ālam received him and introduced him, and he was exalted by performing the prostration When, before the royal standards halted at Ahmadabad, an order was given that every one of the Gujarāt officers who had gathered together in the loyal army, should 1 give bail, so that there might be no mistake made in cautiousness, I'timād K, who had held supreme sway in that country, became security for all except the Abyssinians, and Mīr Abū Turāb went bail for I'timād Afterwards when nearly half of the country had been assigned to I'timad and the other officers of Gujarāt, the royal retinue proceeded towards Cambay to see the ocean, and Ikhtiyāru-l-mulk Gujarātī from short-sightedness and turbulence fled from Ahmadabad I'tımād and all the others who had taken the oath were on the point of going off when Mīi Abū Tuiāb airīved and engaged them in talk They were near impusoning him and carrying him off with them when Shahbāz K came from the king, and so their evil intentions did not result in The loyalty of Abū Turāb was again conspicuous, and he From that time he was always in favour received royal favours

In the 22nd year, 985, 2 1577, he was appointed to the high post of leader of the pilgrims' caiavan, and five lacs of impees and 10,000 robes 3 of honour were given to him for distribution to the needy at Mecca. In the 24th year (987) news came that he had accomplished the journey and that he was bringing with him an impression of the Prophet's foot. On him be the benediction of purity! He reported that this was the fellow of the one that Saiyid Jalāl Bokhārī had brought to Delhi in the time of Fīrūz Shah. Akbar ordered that the Mīr should halt with the caravan at the distance of four kos from Agra. There, in accordance with commands, the court-officers prepared a pleasure-house, and the king with the great officers and learned men came and placed that piece of stone—which was dearer than life—on his shoulders and walked some paces. The nobles by relays, respectfully carried

IAN III 7

² Text 989, but both this and the variant 982 are wrong The 22nd year was 985 See A N III 217

[·] khil'at, but probably in this case ordinary suits of clothes.

It to the city, and by the king's direction it was placed in the Min's lodging \underline{Khan} algadam. Hall to the footsteps is the chronogram (987)

The explanation given by inquirers is that a report was current at the time that the king claimed the gift of prophecy and asserted that he was an apostle, and that he had a low opinion of the Muhammadan religion—which will endure to the end of the world—and that he was trying to set it aside. God preserve us! Accordingly in order to muzzle men's mouths, this respect and honour took place out of artificiality. And the words of Abū-l-fazl support this view, for he says that although H. M. knew that the relic was not genuine, and though cognoscenti had pronounced it to be spurious, yet he, in order to retain the veil and to preserve the respect (for the Prophet) and not to disgrace the simple-minded Saryid, and to prevent the sareastic from sneering, showed such reverence to the relic. Many who from wickedness had indulged in slanders were put to shame by this behaviour!

In the 29th year when the government of Gujarāt came to I'tīmād K—who for years had ruled it—Mir Abū Turāb was made Amīn and went off to Gujarāt with his two brothers' sons Mīr Muhibb Ullah and Mīr Sharafu-d-dīn Up to the year 1005,² 1596-97, the lamp of his life remained burning. He is buried in Ahmadabad. His son Mīr Gadar had a place among Akbar's officers, and under the guise of service he did not abandon the character of Saryidship and Sharkhship

Abū Turāb is the author of a history of Gujarāt B M MS Or 1818 According to Rieu, his grandfather's name was Gluyūsu-d-dīn, and his fether's Qutbu d-dīn His son Mīn Gadai is mentioned in Blochmann, 506 The text of Abū Turab's history was published by Dr Denison Ross in the Bib Ind in 1909

¹ The passage purpoits to be a quotation from the AN, but it is not exact See Vol III AN 281

² As pointed out by Rieu III 968α, the Mirāt-i-Ahmadī states that Abū Turāb died in 1003 At p 41 of Part II of that work, lith ed, it is stated that the date of death is 13 Jamāda-al awwal 1003 (14 January, 1595)

PART II

ADHAM KHĀN KOKA

Younger 1 son of Māham Anaga, who by the abundance of her understanding and the straightness of her loyalty had much influence over Akbai From the cradle to the throne she was a favourite, from her length of service and her reliability took a leading part in the overthrow of Banām \underline{K} hān, and conducted the political and financial affairs Though Mun'im Khān was the Vakıl of the State, she managed everything Adham Khān was a Panj-hazāiī He first acquired a name by his heroism during the siege of Mānkot when he was in attendance on His Majesty That fortress was in the Siwaliks on the summit of a lofty hill, and consisted of four forts built in a wonderful way on the top of small hills, so that the whole seemed to be one fortress Selīm Shah laid the foundations of it at the time he returned from the Ghakai campaign, in order that it might be a protection to the He wished to depopulate Lahore and to develop Panjab For the former was a great city and the habitation Mānkot of divers traders, and men of various classes It could easily produce a large and well-equipped army. As it was on the route of the Mughul army (from Kabul) the latter might come there and get much assistance, and things might pass beyond the power of remedies While occupied with those thoughts he In the second year Sıkandar Sūr took refuge there, but at last was admitted to quarter, and delivered over the fortiess In the third year Barrām K, who was always suspicious of Adham Khān, gave him as his jāgīi Hatkāntha neai Agra, which was inhabited by Bhadūiiyas, who were notorious for their rebelliousness and turbulent opposition to kings so that both might the rebellious be punished and also Adham be kept away from the Presence He was sent there along with some other officers and he by his energy reduced the district into order After Banām's fall Akbai sent him along with Pii Muhammad K Shirwani and others in the end of the fifth year and beginning of the sixth

(968, 1561), to conquer Mālwa, as the mjustice and folly of Bāz Bahādui had been repeatedly reported to HM When Adham reached Salangpul which was Baz Bahadul's capital the latter came a little to his senses and prepared to fight. There were gallant contests on both sides, but at last Bāz Bahādur was defeated and fled to Khandes Adham rapidly marched to Sārangpūi and took possession of all Bāz Bahādur's property, including his dancing guls and songtresses, who were famous throughout the world These successes made him presumptuous in spite of Pīi Muhammad Shiiwānī's counsels. He divided the territory of Mālwa among the officers and sent a few elephants by Sādıq Khān to HM He himself indulged in pleasure Akbai was displeased He regarded his correction as the most important matter, and made a rapid journey from Agra and arrived in sixteen days, viz, on 27th Shabān of the sixth year, 13th May 1561 When Adham had maiched out two kos from Sārangpūr in order to take the fort of Gagraun, H M suddenly appeared On learning this Adham paid his respects HM proceeded to Adham's quarters and alighted there They say that Adham had evil designs, and sought for a pietext (for killing Akbar) Next day Māham Anaga arrived with the ladies She roused her son from his slumber of neglect and caused him to pay the respects of offering presents and holding feasts, and to produce for H M's inspection whatever of Baz Bahadur's had come into his possession, whether animate or inanimate, as well as all the dancing girls HM returned some of the things to him, and after a halt of four days, set out again for Agra say that when he was returning, Adham Khan induced his mother-who was in charge of the harem-at the first stage secretly to make over to him two beautiful dancing girls of Bāz Bahādur. He thought that no one would notice this, but by chance H M came at once to know of it, and ordered them to be searched for Adham Khān became alarmed and let the gnls loose to wander in the fields When they were caught and brought back, Māham Anaga put those innocent women to death Akbai winked at this but in the same year committed Mālwa to the charge of Pir Muhammad K and recalled Adham K to court.

Adham K was filled with envy when Shamsu-d-dīn Muhammad K. Atka obtained the chief control of affairs, and Mun'im K, who had similar feelings, was always stirring him up to wrath At last on 12th Ramzan of the 7th year, 16th May 1562, when the Atgah Khān and Mun'ım K and other officers were in the Hall of State, engaged in public business, Adham K came in with a number of ruffians. The Atgah Khān iaised himself half up, and all the others stood up to do him honour Adham laid his hand on his dagger and went towards the Atgah Khān, and made a signal to his companions They wounded and slew the Atgah, and then Adham audaciously took his sword in his hand and went towards the female apartments and got up on the raised verandah which went round the harem A great uproat ensued, and Akbar awoke and putting his head out over the wall inquired what had happened Then he came out in wiath, -word in hand As soon as he saw Adham K he said, "Son of a bitch, why have you slain my Atgah? (fosterfather) '' Adham ian forward and seized Akbai's hands and said, "Your Majesty consider the matter, there has been (only) a little scrimmage '1 The king withdrew his hand from his clasp and struck him in the face with his fist with such force that he fell to the ground To Faihat Khān Khāsa Khail and Sangrām Hūsnāk, who were standing there, he said, "What are you gazing at, bind this madman". They obeyed and bound him Akbar bade them fling him down from the terrace, head foremost They did this twice, and his neck was broken In this manner the impious shedder of blood received the retribution of his deeds in the year 969, 1562 In accordance with orders both bodies were conveyed to Delhi, and the chronogiam Dū khūn shud, (There were two murders), 970, was composed They say Māham Anaga, who was then on a bed of sickness, heard that Adham K had committed such an outrage, and had been imprisoned by the king Maternal love made her get up and come to the king, thinking that perhaps he would release her son The king on seeing her said, "Adham killed our Atgah, and we have killed

¹ andakī talāsh Cf the phrase talāsh-u purkāsh in Bādshāhnāma II, 691.

But she did not know that her son had been capitally punished When she came to be certain of this, she out of respect did not utter any laments, but the colour left her cheeks and her heart received a thousand wounds HM out of regard for her long service spoke comfortably to her and dismissed her to her home. There she sate in sorrow, and her illness grew worse. Forty days after the occurrence she departed to the other world. HM showed his pity by escorting the body for some distance and sent it off to Delhi with all reverence, where a grand building was erected over the tombs of Māham Anaga and Adham Khān.

AFZAL KHAN

His name is Khwāja Sultan 'Alī His first employment was as ashrāf-i-khazāna (accountant) in the establishment of Humāyūn On account of his straightness and ability he was the recipient of favours and in 956 (1549) he was made the head of the Dinan-iharch (the office disbursements, 1e, he was made mashraf-1buyūtāt) When in the year 957 Mīrzā Kāmiān the youngei brothei of Humāyūn became opposed to his elder brother, who was kinder to him than a father and established himself in Kabul, he treated the royal clerks and servants with severity and put the Khwāja prison, and extorted money and goods. When the king (Humāyūn) resolved to march to India, the Khwāja was laised to the lank of Mīr Bakhshī (chief paymastel) When Humāyūn died, Tardī Beg Khān, who claimed to be Amūu-l-Umarā, undertook, in conjunction with the Khwaja, the management of Delhi. The Khwāja in the battle with the notorious Hemū had the charge of the centre assigned to him, along with other officers, and when the Maasir Adham's was the first life As regards Adham's parentage, reference may be made to the similar case of I'rangtosh whom Manucci supposes to have been an illegitimate son of Aurangzeb, Manucci, Irvine II 43. The account of Adham's murder of the Atgah K, etc., is taken from Akbar nāmah II 175

l It seems probable that Adham was the son of Nadīm Koka, or at least that the latter was Māham Anaga's husband See RASJ for January 1889, p 99, and Addendum 50, and second Addenda No 67 to Aky translation of the Akbarnama the ciam's elder brother was Bāqī K 323 In the original edition of

Hemū attacked the centre—the Khwāja gave way together with Ashraf Khān Mīr Munshī and Maulānā Pīr Muhammad Shuwānī—who were seeking an opportunity for running Tardī Beg the commander-in-chief—and took to flight—When the officers arrived, ashamed and disgraced, at the camp of Akbar—who had come from the Panjab to Suhind with the intention of giving battle to Hemū—Bauām Khan at once put Tardī Beg to death, and kept the Khwāja and the Wīr Munshī—who were suspected of treachery and bribery—under surveillance—After that the Khwāja and the Mīr Vunshī took to flight and went off to the Hijāz—In the fifth year of Akbar's reign they had the felicity of paying their respects, and the Khwāja was received graciously and raised to the rank of 3000—The compiler (stitcher) of the scattered pages has not ascertained what finally became of the Khwāja or when he died

AFZAL 2 KHĀN 'ALLĀMĪ MULLĀ SHUKRULLAH SHĪRĀZĪ

After acquiring learning in Shiraz, the abode of knowledge, he for a time occupied himself with teaching the ordinary sciences When he came by sea to Surat and thence proceeded to Burnanpūr, the Khan-Khanan, who was a magnet for the attraction of hearts, captured him and took care of him, and chose him for a companion After that he attached himself to Prince Shah Jahan, and became the law-officer (Mīr 'Adıl) of his army of the Rānā (of Udaipūi) he was his secretary and confidant When by his good counsels peace was made with the Rānā, his reputation increased and he became the prince's diwan. After the campaign was over he received at the request of Shah Jahan In the Deccan he went on behalf of the the title of Afzal Khān Prince to Bījāpūr in company with the 'Ādil Shāhī vakils and brought 'Adıl Shah to the highway of sincerity and obedience, and conveyed to the prince as tribute 50 elephants, rare curiosities, adorned weapons, and money In the 17th year the prince

¹ It would appear from this sentence that this biography, or at least this remark, was made by Abdul-Hayy, but it is not signed Q. There is a notice of Afzal in B. 376. He is called Turbatī by A. F., which means

either that he came from Turbat or that he was of the Turbat clan See Blochmann, 348, No 37 The last mention of Afral seems to be at p 111 of A N II

² Pādshāhnāma II 339-40.

obtained paigana Dholpūi as his fief and sent Daryā K to take Before this a request had made that the pargana charge of it should be assigned to Sultan Shahiiyai, and Shaifu-l-mulk took possession of it on his behalf. It came to a fight! between and it chanced that a gun-shot entered the eyes of Sharifu-l-mulk and blinded him This supplied the leaven for a Nūi Jahān Begam, who espoused the cause of Shahriyar, became angiy, and Jahangii, who had handed the bridle of his power to her, became alienated from his hen pince who had been summoned to the piesence from the Deccan for the affan of Qandahar stayed his progress and Shahriyar was appointed to the campaign under the guardianship of M Rustum. An order was given to the Prince that in lieu of his old jagns he should take from the Deccan, Gujarat, or Malwa, whatever place he wished and should settle there, and that he should send off the auxiliary officers for the purpose of the Qandahar The object was that if the prince submitted to yield up the jagiis and to part with the men, there would then occur another rift in his consideration and establishment, and that if he made a disturbance, and became disrespectful, there would be a pretext for punishing him. After that what other strange things might not happen?

The prince sent Afzal K to court in order that he might convince Jahangir by arguments that the plan was all wrong, and that to take a light view of such an important business could only bear the fruit of evil to the State He ought not to make over everything to women, but apply his own far-seeing mind to affairs. It would be a sad thing if there should be any breach in the devotion of this faithful follower (Shah Jahan). If Jahangir ordered at the word of the Begam, that his jāgīr should be taken away, how could he live among enemies?

He requested that the fiefs of Mālwa and Gnjarāt should also be taken from him and that the port of Surat, which was the gate of Mecca, might be granted to him in order that he might go there and became an anchorite

I Cf Elliot VI 383

½ Khāfi K I 331

The sole desire of the prince was that perhaps the dust of disturbance which had been raised might be laid by the sprinkling of soothment and moderation, and that the veil of iespect and reverence might not be rent. But the intriguers and ill-wishers had not prepared the materials of strife in order that things might be put right by Afzal Khan. Though Jahangir was touched and made suggestions to the Begam, she only became more insistent and her enmity increased, and Afzal was dismissed without gaining his object 1. When the prince became convinced that whatever submissions he might make would be imputed to weakness, and would encourage his enemies to go further, he perceived that it was necessary to hurry off before the ioval army was gathered together, possibly the veil (between himself and his father) might hereafter be removed. As this story has been told elsewhere in these pages, we shall not repeat it, but proceed with the biography of Afzal

After the prince turned his rem and, without visiting his father, went to Mandu and then established himself at Burhanpur, Afzal K was sent off to Bijapui to dispose of some business When the prince did not, on account of the approach of the imperial troops, think it advisable to remain in Burhanpur, he decided to go to Bengal by the route of Telingana Many of his servants became unfaithful and M Muhammad the son of Afzal K also fled with his family, and chose separation sent Saiyid J'aafar² known as Shujā'at K with Khān Qulī Uzbeg, the elder brother of Qulīj K Shahjahānī, after him with orders to bring him back if possible Otherwise they were to bring his head He was bold, and stood and fired his arrows Though they used soothing words it was of no avail He got rid of Khān Qulī and wounded Saiyid J'aafar He himself bravely gave up his life the prince was always trying to amend the past, and sought to please his august father, he after returning from Bengal sent Afzal K with suitable presents in 1035, 1626, the 20th year of Jahangir's

¹ Khāfī K I 332

² See Khāfī K I 343 who calls him Muhammad J'aafar He killed

Saīyıd J'aafar and was kılled himself. He was the son of the Afzal who is the subject of this biography.

reign, to court, but Jahangii unkindly detained 1 Afzal K. and exalted him by making him his Khānsāmañ (steward) 22nd year when Jahangir proceeded to Kashmir Afzal remained in Lahore on account of the difficulties of the journey and the work connected with the household On the way back the inevitable event (the death of Jahangii) occurred Shahriyar made himself be nominated to the sovereignty in Lahoie and made Afzal his vakil and the centre of all his affairs. As he in his secret heart was a well-wisher of Shah Jahan, on the day when Shahriyāi drew up an army and appointed it under command of Sultan Bāīsanghar to oppose Āsaf Khān, and himself mounted and went after it, Afzal represented that Shahriyār's going was not advisable, and that he should wait till news came the army (lashkar, perhaps it means camp here) his arguments he delayed him till men without substance (lit. without hands or feet) who had been gathered merely by a waste of money and were without a leader, dispersed without any real contest, and Shahiiyar crept helplessly into the citadel in 1037, 1628, Shah Jahan ascended the throne of India, Afzal came from Lahore on 26 Jumāda 2-al-akhir of the first year, 22 February 1628, and did homage He was promoted to the office of Mīi Sāmān (majoi-domo) and had an increase of 500 with 500 horse, and so had the rank of 4000 zāt (personality) with 2000 horse In the second year he was made Chief Diwan 3 (Diwan-i-kull) m the room of Irādat M Sāwajī, and had an merease of 1000 with 1000 horse The chionogram 4 is Shud Flätun wazii-i-Iskandar "Plato became the vizier of Alexander" (1038, 1628-29) 6th year he begged that Shah Jahan would honour him by visiting his house which was called and dated Manzal Afzal's "House of evaltation" or "House of Afzal" (1038, 1628-29) the place of mounting to the house itself-a distance of twenty-

¹ The Iqbalnama 248 says that in the 20th year the rank of 1500 with 1500 horse, &c, and sent him back It looks as if the two occasions of Af al's coming to I above had been mixed up. Perhaps he came again when Shah Jahan submitted to his father and was received into favour and made steward

² Pādshāhnāma I 176 savs 23rd

o do 257

⁴ do 495

five jarībs, varieties of carpets, were laid down. In the 11th year his head was raised as high as Saturn by his obtaining the man ab of 7000. In the 12th year, when his age was 70, bodily illness prevailed over him and the appearance of departure were visible on the cheek of his condition. Shah Jahan visited him and shewed him the kindness of inquiries. On 12 Ramzān 1048, 7th January 1639, in Lahore, he departed from this sad world. The date of his death was found to be $Z kh\bar{u}b\bar{i} bard go\bar{i} n\bar{e}kn\bar{a}m\bar{i}$, 1048

"He carried off the ball of a good name for excellence" (that is, he surpassed all in the goodness of his reputation)

The excellent man was irreproachable in conduct Shah Jahan frequently said that in eight and twenty years of service he had never heard from Afzal Khān a bad word against anyone was the admirable of the age for eloquence, and he was skilful in astronomy and mathematics and in accounts What they say, viz, that with all his science and learning he never put anything on paper, and that he did not know figures, is probably based upon his dignity and indifference Indeed he put everything upon his peshkar, Dīānat Rai Nāgai 2 Gujarātī — It was he who conducted all the examinations So that a wit said in an elegy after his death that when the angel put the question in the tomb,8 the Khān replied, "Ask Dīānat Rai, he will answei you" His tomb is on the other side of the Jamna at Agia. He left no children His brother's son 'Ināyat Ullah K who had the title of 'Āqil K was brought up by him as a son

AGHR (AGHUZ) 4 KHĀN PĪR MUHAMMAD

One of Aurangzeb's officers His tribe was connected with the Aghuz (Oghuz, who was one of the descendants of Japhet, the son

l A jarīb is about 55 yards in length, and so the distance would be nearly 1400 yds, about three quarters of a mile

² A tribe, Pādshāhnāma I 365 They are brahmans

³ Afzal's tomb is the famous Chinī kā Rauza on the left bank of the Jumna between I'timādu-d-daulah's tomb and the Taj It is the subject of a notice in the Archæological reports See Beale Afzal was a poet and wrote under the name of 'Allām-i His coming to Jahangir in the 17th year, 1030, 1621, with the spoils obtained from the Rānā is mentioned in Khāfi K I 322 The Chīnī kā Rauza is noticed in Kēene's Guide to Agra of Noah -Peace be upon him! Hence they are called by this name Many of them have been renowned for courage and have devoted their lives in every country. In the time of Shah Jahan one of them, by name Husam Quli who joined the king's service with his troop (tuman) attained the rank of 1500 with 800 horse and the title of Khān, and died in the 25th year. Aghuz K in the first year of 'Alamgir', Aurangzeb) became the head of his tube and went in company with princes Muhammad Sultan and M nazzam K in pursuit of Shujā towards Bengal - In the battles there he gave proof of courage. They say that one day the army had to cross the Ganges while on the other side Muhammad Shujā's men were ready to offer opposition. Aghuz, who was the scout, and was in front of Dilei A, the head of the vanguard, put his horse into the river and, on arriving at the other side engaged in a hand-to-hand combat. A wailike (mast) elephant which was in the enemy's van lifted him and his horse with his trunk and flung them to a distance Achuz immediately killed the driver with his sword and took his place on the elephant Just then Dilei K came up after having seen with his own eyes what had happened He praised him and went round and round Aghuz said "I have taken the clephant for your lordship, be good enough to give me a horse out of the spare (kotal) ones Diler said "Be the elephant also blessed to you," and sent him two good horses 1

⁴ Text Aghar See A N I 171 trans-

In that year Aghuz received the title of Khan and went with the Khān-Khānān on the Assam campaign and did great deeds The Khān-Khānan (Mīn Jumla) was pleased with him, but as his Moghuls oppressed the villagers and were wanting in discipline, not was prohibition effectual, the Khān-Khānān came to pass him over. On this account Aghuz became disgusted and ın the 5th year he got hıs² dıscharge from the Khān-Khānān, nolens volens, and set off to court Though the Khān-Khānān

The Oghuzān are referred to in the Alamgirnamah 521, top line See also note to account of Ekataz K ın Maasır

¹ The story is told in Khāfī K II

⁹⁵ Diler was on an elephant at the

The river was the Mahananda time the Maldah district Dāūdzai II 46 biography of Diler K ² See th details in Khāfī K II 157-

¹⁶⁰

arote about this to to be Mainmand Amin A Mir Bakhshi, and A have the force in the five and rethough in office and stelling to an event, set off to sub-linear met and accessed mentioned and opposed to the Konul susalines. There he wited and Richards ton Kinha Malon who are always furfuller wildliggide to the mild the mind to distrov Bon decline In the larger the recommend to court and a mil ter ta somet merch De merhon Sir Bhonslewis goin trails. The took deturached honell and repeatedly out that and determined Mountain Afterwards in accordance a senion to rest teaming and in the 17th year again went to Kabul. On the excession to the behaved with omage In the 1st over 10 A . Organizated by dalah and in the 24th—he had charge of the road in Atchangerin and was given a kettle dram. For xears of the cornellon the work of the State in the e pit de Kabules. In the 15th vee, when the lang summoned him to the lie con and who a he arrived mar Ama, the Jats-who at that time were turbulent and proceed highway robbery, attacked ocaray in and plunders I some outs which had fallen behind and made the men pusoners. When Aghuz heard of this he affacked then fort and rescued the prisoners. He ras'dy proceeded to attack another fort, and a bullet struck and killed him in 1102, Aghuz K 2nd was his son He gradually got his father's title and was living in the time of Fudus Aramgah. Muhammad Shah He rose to great fame and died at the appointed time

AHMAD BEG KHAN

Nephew (brother s son) of Ibrāhīm K. Fath Jang. When his uncle was governor of Bengal he was governor of Orissa. In the 19th year of Jahangu he was sent against the Zamindar of Kokra² who had become rebellious. Suddenly news came that Shah Jahan was coming to Bengal viâ Telingāna. Ahmad Beg was forced to abandon his expedition and to go to Piplī which was the capital

I See 'Alamgirnama 1059 and Khāfī K II '37, etc. It appears from hhāfī K II 232, etc., that a poem was composed about Aghuz or Aghar which was called the Agharnāma of the province As he had no power to resist, he carried off his property to Cuttack, which was twelve los distant in the direction of There too he could not protect himself and went off to Buidwan to Salh Beg the fauldar of that place From there too he came away and joined his uncle. On the day of the battle which Ibiāhīm K waged against Shah Jahan s troops, Ahmad tormed the reserve with 700 horse. When the engagement became hot, Ibrāhīm's vanguard gave way and became mingled with Ahmad's force tought manfully and was wounded After Ibrāhīm had been killed on the field, Ahmad in spite of his wounds went bravely off to Dacca where were the family and possessions of his uncle But the aimy of Shah Jahan followed at his heels going by the river, and Ahmad By the intervention of the prince's had no resource but to submit courtiers he entered into service. When Shah Jahan became ruler of India he conferred on Ahmad the rank of 2000 with 1500 horse, and made him faujdāi and tuyuldāi (fief-holdei) of Siwistan (Sehwān) Afterwards he was made deputy of Yemenu-daulah and made governor of Multan When that connection came to an end, he waited on the king and was appointed $j\bar{a}g\bar{i}id\bar{a}r$ of parganas Amethī and Jāīs appertaining to Lucknow In the 25th year he was made faujdār of Baiswāra (in Oudh) in succession to Mukarram Khān Safavī with an increase of 500, and 500 hoise In the 28th year he was set aside, and on account of some acts was for some time without a mansab of a jagit. In the 30th year he was reinstated 1

² Text Khurda, but see notice of Ibiāhīm Fath Jang. This notice repeats a good deal of what has been said in the biography of Ahmad's uncle Ibiāhīm.

AHMED BEG KHĀN KĀBULĪ

He was a Caghatai, and his ancestors, generation after generation, had served the family of Timur His ancestor Mir Ghiyāsud-dīn Tarkhān was one of Timur's amīrs He himself spent a long time in Kabul in the service of M Muhammad Hakīm, and he was classed among the Īkatāz of the Mīrzā For the young men who were distinguished for bravery and were near companions of the Mīrzā were known by this name After the Mīrzā's death he came to the court of Akbar and obtained the rank of 700 year 1002, 1594, when Kashmir was taken from M Yūsuf K Rezavī and distributed 1 among various fief-holders, he was at then head Afterwards when M J'afar Āsaf K married his sister, Ahmad Beg's importance and influence increased the time of Jahangir he became one of the great officers and had the rank of 3000, the title of Khan, and the right to a flag was also made governor of Kashmir In the 13th year he was removed and came to court and died some time afterwards was full of courage, and was also able, and maintained 700 chosen troopers. His sons were all soldiers and brave men The foremost of them was S'aīd K Bahādur Zafar Jang who rose to the highest rank and became the glory of his family He kept alive the name of his ancestors. Up to the present day many things are connected with his name in India High and low speak of him A separate account of him has been given. His eldest son Muhammad Mas'aūd was killed 2 in the Tīrah campaign against the Afghans Another son Mukhlas Ullah K Iftikhār K in the beginning of Shah Jahan's reign by increase of rank by 500 with 250 horse rose to the rank of 2000, with 1000 horse, and had the title above mentioned In the 2nd year he had the increase of 1000 horse and was made faujdār of Jamū He afterwards had another increase of 500 and died in the 4th year. Another son Abū-l-Baqā kept company with his elder full brother S'aīd K Bahādur In the 5th year he was thanadar of lower Bangash, and in the 15th year when Qandahar fell into the imperial possession, S'aïd K as a reward for the battle he waged against the Persians, obtained the title of Bahādui Zafar Jang and got the rank of 1500, with 1000 horse, and the title of Iftikhār K

¹ B 511 supposes that Ahmad was the son of Muhammad Sharif whom Jahangir executed for high treason

² Lit riding or attacking singly, and applied to men who singly charged the enemy (cavaliers seul), (monomachi) Irvine, Army of the Moghuls 43

(MIR) AHMAD & KHĀN

Son-ın-law of Khwāja 'Abdu-ı-Rahīm Khān-ı-bıyutāt He was an honest man of mılıtary tastes In the time of Aurangzeb he was made bakhshī and wāq'anavīs of the army of Shah 'Ālī Jāh

¹ AN III 654

² Bakār āmida B 466 has, "He was killed in the war with the Tārīkīs," and this is the meaning of the phiase

though not given in the dictionaries Cf \underline{Kh} \overline{a} fi K I 345, line 13, and B 465

³ Khāfi K II 381 uses the phrase Khān-1-Bıyutāt and speaks of Mīt

Muhammad A'zım Shah who had the charge of Gujarat Though he had a name for harshness and severity which are fit concomitants of truth and honesty yet in this duty the prince was pleased with him and favoured him, though he disliked most writing men After this he was made diwan of the army of Muhammad Bidāi Bakht and in the 48th year he was made the prince's deputy in the province of Khandes At the time when Shah 'Alam returned after the battle with Kam Bakhsh and encamped at Burhanpui, he wished to visit and hunt in the park (ramna) of Karāra, which is a delightful place and a hunting ground It is three kos from Burhanpur and has a stream of unparalleled purity. In former times a dam had been placed in the stream opposite Karāra. It was one hundred yards broad and two yards high and formed a cascade. By the orders of Shah Jahan who, when he was a prince, had charge of the Decean and had beautified the spot another dam was made in front of (above?) the former one and at a distance of eighty yards Between the two dams there was a lake 100 yards by 80, and there was another cascade from the second dam Rows of buildings were erected on the two sides of the lake, and a small garden was made near it But when the disturbance of the Rājpūts and the sedition of the Sikhs came to the hearing (of Bahādur Shah) he without delay maiched off in the beginning of Sh'abān of the third year 1121, September 1709, and left the Khān to protect the city By chance, in the 4th year Tulsī Bai, the wife of one of the Mahiatta Sudārs, made an attack with a large army, and after plundering the town of Rānwīr — which is seven kos from Burhānpūi — besieged the governor of the fort, who had not power to fight in the field, and had shut himself up As the fort was not strong he was nearly being made prisoner The Khān in his pride and excessive sense of honour did not approve of preserving his life in preference to martyrdom, or of withdrawing from opposing a female 2 foe

Ahmad as being the brother of 'Abdu-1-Rahīm

¹ Copied from Pādshāhnāma 1 331-332 It is said there that the stream was as clear as an Aleppo mirror and that its breadth in places was 100 yards (badshāhī, i e, royal)

² zan harbīya Perhaps "a warlike

10181

What is the manliness that is bess than womanliness?

He absolutely east uside the tems of self-control and without gathering an army or making arrangements for attack and retreat (Init u iarr) eame to Bahadurpūra and sallied forth. He sent ucsānals and messengers (nagbā) to summon the mansabadārs and servants. The men who had had a taste of the Khān's intensity and impetuosity preferred their honour to their selfpreservation and collected their followers-most of whom were piadas (footmen) or carriage people' (quidun-suudi) Next day the Khan-whose force was not more than 7003 troopers-formed his right and left wings and set off. On the way an encounter took place and the flames of combat blazed forth. Though the leaders grandchildren and other kinsfolk set their hearts upon dying and slew many of the foe yet the banditti wounded and killed many of the heroes with their long lances. The leader too was twice wounded in the leg by bullets. Meanwhile S Ism'ail Zifimand K the fauidai of Jamud 4-who commanded the reserve—came to assist and quenched the victorious flames of the infidels by the water of the sword. The army of Islam reached the precincts of the fort of Ranwir The battle of arrows and muskets went on for two days and nights. When the robbers perceived that the firmness of the combatants could not be shaken, they went off to the city Though the Qāzī and the headmen of the city excited themselves to protect the city, yet the suburbs were swept clean by the broom of plunder, and were consumed by the flames of injustice On the night 5 of the 10th woman '' Two B M MSS have zan jarīda '' a single woman '' But harbiya is probably right for it corresponds to the zanjangī of Khāfī K II 6, where also harbī occurs

Perhaps Le should be gar "if"

² From the mention of matsadīān, i.e., clerks, in Khāfī K I C I conjecture that the phrase gardūn suwān means here people accustomed only to ride in carts or carriages

⁵ Khāfī K II speaks, p 666, of ⁸⁰⁰ or 900 troopers besides Mir Ahmad's own men But the Mahrattas far outnumbered them The battle was fought on 9 Muharram 1122 = 27 February 1710 See Elhot VII 422

⁴ A pargana in Sarkār Dandes J II, 224, 225

⁵ Khāfī K says nothing of this second attack Surely Safr is a mistake for Muharram

Safi the Khan went off at night to make a night-attack, and moved off from the foot of the fort of Ranwii Though some experienced men said from well-wishing that it was not advisable to go by night he did not listen to them. When he came near the city, the wicked enemy became aware and stopped his path The flames of war burst forth. The brave on both sides shewed their courage Mir Ahmad K with most of his sons and relatives, and two-thirds of his army, drank the goblet of martyrdom in the field, Zafimand K surpassed the wind in swiftness, and in a situation in which the dust could not by the path of the wind reach the city, arrived at the city with one son of the martyred Khān and a few others Of the remainder some were wounded and some were made prisoners. Two sons survived the Khan One was Mīr Saiyid Muhammad who lived like a dai vesh, and was much respected in that character The other was Mir Muhamid who received his father's title A separate account of him has been given (Maasii III, 760)

(MIR) AHMAD K THE SECOND

Son of the maityied Mīi Ahmad K who bravely lost his life while governor of Buihānpūi in fighting with the Mahiatta mfidels. At first he had the title of Muhāmid K and afterwards he had his father's title. For some time he was faujdār of Chakla Eminabad¹ in the Panjab. By decree of fate, his wife, of whom he was exceedingly fond, died there, and he gave himself up to weeping and lamentation. This heart-rending wound was like the scar of the tulip on his mind. He applied himself to building and adorning her tomb and laid out a garden. Afterwards as deputy of 'Inayat Ullah K Kashmīrī, he became governor of Kashmir. It did not answer, and his life ended in disgrace. The account of this is as follows. Mahtavī K Mullā 'Abdu-n-nabī'—who was one of the learned of the age and was one of the officers—was always waiting, under cover of protecting the Islam, to gratify his own selfish desires. From bigotry

¹ A town in Gujranwala I G IV 352 The Uminābād of J II 319

² Sıyar M I 57, |Khāfī K II 867, also calls hım Mahbūb Khān

and a quarrel-ome disposition he occasionally made investigations among the Hindus of that country in the way of censorship

As misfortunes and the disorganized state of the sovereignty give rise to outbreaks of presumption and disorder, that mischiefmaker in the second year of Muhammad Shah's reign (1720) led away the base and foolish of the city by theological questions and made them his adherents. Gradually he attacked the Naib Subahdar and the Qazi and urged that the rules of the Law about Zimmis 1 such as forbidding them to ride on horses or to wear armour etc. should be put into force, and that they should be restrained from publicly practising their superstitions They answered that the practice in the capital and other cities of India must be followed. How could new rules be introduced without the order of the reigning sovereign! That turbulent fellow turned aside from uiging the rulers, and came out with the help of his followers and insulted the Hindus whenever he saw them. By chance at this time Majlis 2 Rai, who was one of the leading men in the city, came with brahmans to visit a garden and was occupied in holding a feast. That light-headed fellow came there and raised the cry of "Seize and lay hold" and immediately began to smite and to bind them. Majlis Rai fled and came to Mn Ahmad's house thinking that he would be safe there The unjust fellow turned back, and set fire to the Hindu quarter 3 and destroyed the Hindus Not satisfied with that he surrounded the Khān's house Whomever he caught he dishonoured The Khān on that day by stratagem preserved himself from his violence. Next day he having collected a body of men went with the loyal bakhshi and the mansabadārs to put matters to rights The turbulent fellow gathered together his men and took to discharging arrows and smiting with the sword And at his instigation the Muhammadans of the city also lose A number set fire from behind to the bridge which the Khān had crossed. From both sides of the road and market

¹ Non Muslim subjects Hughes'
Diet s v See also B 237 n

² Sāhih Rai in Siyar M But it is Majlis in Khāfī K

³ Lawrence in his Valley of Kashmir 195 says it was the Kalāshpūra quaiter that was buint He calls the fanatic 'Abdu-l-Ghanī

⁴ Bākhsī Pādishāhī Khāfī K has Mīr Shāhwar K Bakshī.

there was a discharge of arrows and muskets and stones and bricks were thrown. The women and children threw whatever they could find from the roofs and doors. During this dieadful uproat Saivid Wali, the Khān's sister's son, and many others The Khān was brought into dejection and supwere killed plication by these waves of slaughter for he could neither advance nor return, and deemed it an advantage to save his life, though with contempt. After that the turbulent fellow ('Abdu-n-nabi) plundered and destroyed the remaining homes of the Hindus and brought out Majlis Rai and a number more from their place of safety and mutilated them. At the time of cucumcising, men had then private parts out off. Next day Mahtavī K went to the chief mosque, and assembling the Muhammadans and deposing Mīr Ahmad K made himself governor of the Masalmans and took the title of Dindai K For five months -during which no other governor came from the court—he issued decrees and orders sate in the mosque and transacted financial and administrative business When Mūmīn K Najm Sānī as deputy of Inavat Ullah K, who was appointed to quiet the uproar and to make new arrangements, arrived in the end of Shawwal 2 within three kos of Kashmir (i e , Srīnagai), Mahtavī K —who was ashamed of his own evil deeds—came 3 out with a number of learned men and the chief persons of the city together with Khwaja 'Abdullah, a mansabdar (officer) who was one of the notables there, to welcome the deputy and brought him with honour into the city Khwajah, either from friendship or from mischievousness, which is the leaven in the composition of that country, advised him first to go to the house of Mīr Shāhwai K the Bakhshī, and apologise for what had occurred After doing that he would be accepted (be forgiven) As the time of retribution for his deeds had arrived, he gave ear to the messenger of death, and at once went off there not go out to bring in the Naib He proposed to do so but his friend the Khwāja advised him first to go to the house of the Bakhshi See Khāfī K 870 The text calls the Bakhshi Mîi Shāhpūi See also Siyar M I 160

¹ Their ears and noses were cut off and they were circumcised or rather had their male organs cut off Khāfī K II, 869

² Shawwāl 1132, equal to end of August 1720

³ This seems to be incorrectly stated. Mahtavī alias Mahbūb did

The owner of the house, who had posted some of the Ghakkar ! normal line and other and some men of the Judi 'Mali ward in corners of the house, went out after a while on pretence of business. The men addenly tell upon the doomed man, and first of All killed he are young consisting that went before him chantme the both of Muhammed and then put him to death with mony tortine. Next day his followers gut up then lons for buttle to receive the death of their leader and fell upon the Judi Will on Cubility and whose inhabitants were said to be Shias, and the His mahad word. For two days lighting went on between the two parties. As there we is general riot on this side (the followers or Mishit with they were at list victorious and killed 2 or Junt of the people of the two wards together with many Moghul triveller. They dso dishonomed the women and for two or three days plundered much money and goods. Afterwards they went to the house of the Bakhshi and the Qazi. The first got into a corner where they could not follow him. The second came out and escaped. They did not leave a single brick of their houses When Mümin K entered the city he reted on the principle of "Hold aslant and dont pour and sent off Mir Ahmad K with an escort. The Khān arrived at the capital. Afterwards he got from Qamaru-d-dîn K. Bahādm Ptimadu-d-daula the faujdārī of Moradabad. There he suffered much anguish. The date of his death does not appear b

(SAIYID) AHMAD*K BARHA

Younger brother of Saryid Mahmūd K. Bārha. In the 17th vear of Akbar's reign he, as also his brother, was appointed along with the Khān Kilān to the advance force sent to Gujarat

Perhaps this should be Kākai —an Afghan tribe

² Siyai 161 Judi Bal It i- Char bili in Khāfi K II 870

^{8 &}quot;By changing his clothes," Khātī

⁴ Khāfī K says he sent him off to Eminabad where his son was builed

⁵ The author makes no mention of his own grandfather Muhammad

Kānm K in connection with the Simagar nots, but it appears from Khāfī K that he was then Diwān of Kashmi and that he was dismissed on account of these disturbances See Khāfī K II 869, and also Maash III 721, where the dismissal is admitted

⁶ I B 107

⁷ AN II 372

After the Ahmadabad victory, the king sent him in puisuit of the sons of Shei K Fülädī who had taken then families and goods with them, and gone off to Idai Though they moved swiftly, and entered the mountain defiles, yet many of their goods fell into the hands of the king's soldiers. The Khān returned, and did homage Afterwards when Pattan became the royal camp, ıt was made over to Mīrzā Khān ('Abdu-r-Rahīm, S Baırām) and the government of it was entiusted to Saiyid Ahmad (on account of M Khān's youth) In the same year Muhammad Husain M and Shāh Mīrzā raised the standard of rebellion and came and besieged Pattan along with Shei K The Khān looked after the fortifications and defended the place. At last the Khan A'zim Koka approached with a large force, and the Mirzās withdrew from the siege. In the 20th year of the reign, he was sent off with his brother's sons Saiyid Qasım and Saiyid Hashim to chastise the rebels connected with the Rānā—who after the killing of Jalal K Quici, had stirred up the dust of strife On account of his good service he was encompassed with favours year 980, 1572-1573, he died He had attained to the rank of His son Jamālu-d-din was one who was known to the At the siege of Chitoi, when two mines were charged with gunpowder and set fire to, one hung fire, and at that time a number of men were killed He too consumed the flower of his youth

AHMAD NĀĪTHA (MULLĀ)

The Navāīt tribe was a newly arrived one and belonged to the nobles of Arabia The word "newly arrived," has become by frequent use Navāīt The author of the Qāmūs says 'Navātī are ocean sarlors and Nutryy is the singular" But it is evident that Navāīt is according to the rules of grammar the plural of Nāīt or Nāīta And Navātī is not connected with Navāīt 'Therefore the generality who call the Navāīt boatmen and rely upon the Qāmūs have fallen into error They say that the tyrant

¹ This is a mistake Jalāl K. Qūrcī was killed in 983-1575-1576, and in 984 Saivid Ahmad took part in the expedition against Siwāna, A.N. III

^{166, 167} Probably 980 is a copyist's error for 985 See B 408

² But see Lane 2863c The word seems to be Greek See I G XIV, 345

Hajāj the son of Yūsuf set himself to noot out the nobility and put to death many pious and learned people. Consequently men went into exile wherever they could find security. A number of the Qoresh tribe left Medina in 152 A H (769 A D) and embarked on ships. They landed on the shores of the Indian Ocean in the Decean country known as the Konkan and made it their home. In course of time they spread out and established villages, and in order to distinguish each set of them, they took titles from anything with which they had a slight connection. Strange titles have become usual among them

Mullā Ahmad was possessed of learning and other perfections, and was one of the erudite By good fortune he became a favourite with 'Alī 'Ādil Shah, the rulei of Bijapur, and in a short time became, by his wisdom and judgment, the strong pillar of his dominion After a time he for some reason fell out of favour with 'Adil Shah, or perhaps he thought in his haughtiness that he could have something higher than Bījāpūrī service, and came to have a desire for the service of Aurangzib He waited for an opportunity, and at last in the 8th year Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh after settling the matter of Sivā (jī) came with a large aimy to attack 'Ādıl Shah became conscious of his offences and awoke from the heavy sleep of neglect and sent the Mullā-who surpassed the other officers in ability—to the Rajah to make an arrange-The Mullā—whose long-cherished desire now fulfilment—thought this a great opportunity and joined the Rajah at the foot of the fort of Purandhar in 1076, 1665-66, and revealed his secret thought. When this was reported to the king an order was sent for summoning him and he was granted They say that a hint was the rank of 6000, with 6000 hoise given to the Mīrzā Rajah that after the Mullā came to court his title would be S'aad Ullah K and that he would be promoted to a suitable appointment

In fine the Rajah, in accordance with orders, gave him from the Government two lacs of rupees, and Rs 50,000 to his son, and sent him to court. The Mullā in accordance with fate—from which no one is exempt—fell ill on the way and died at Ahmadnagar, and it appears that as he did not recognize the claim of his old salt, so did he not profit by his new fortune. His son Muhammad Asad in accordance with the loyal order came to court and in the beginning of the 9th year did homage received favours and obtained the rank of 1500, with 1000 horse Mulla Yahia the younger brother and the title of Ikiām K of Mulla Ahmad-who had, before his brother, come in the 6th year from Bījāpūr to court—received the rank of 2000, with 1000 horse and was appointed to the Deccan He did good service along with the Mīrzā Rajah in devastating the Bījāpūi territory Afterwards he received the title of Mukhlis K and lived in Hıs son Zamu-d-din 'Ali K and hıs son-ın-law 'Abdu-l-Qādn Matbar K each received a suitable mansab When the faujdārī of the Konkan became held by Matbar K he did so well in settling the country—which was the home of the vile Mahratta tiibe—that he established his reputation at court He acquired such influence that everything he did was approved The king, when he became at ease about that troublesome country, often declared that it was good to have such a servant He left no son,—though Abū Muhammad the as M'atbar K son of one of his relatives was adopted by him as a son,—and his t'aluq came to Zamu-d-din 'Ali K his wife's brother latter held it for a long time, and afterwards in the time of Muhammad Shah he obtained it for the second time beginning of Fairukh Siyai's leign, Haidai Qulī K Khulāsānī was invested with the Diwānī of the Deccan and came to Auranga-As his power and influence were a thousand I and one times greater than that of a (an ordinary) diwan he attacked the Khān before mentioned (Zainu-d-dīn) about the money of the Khālsa lands which had been in his keeping (or, perhaps, which had been embezzled) In the beginning of the government of Husaın 'Alī K Amīıu-l-Umaıā (the younger of the Bārha Saryıds) He, on account of he went to Aıcot to S'aadat Ullah K Nāītha being of the same tribe and of the respect for an old family, regarded his arrival as an honour By the assistance of that nobleminded man he spent the rest of his days in peace. His son too got his father's title and is in the Carnatic. The dwelling of Mullā Yahīa was one of the famous old houses of Aurangabad As it was close to the residence of the governors, 'Asaf Jāh proposed to S aadat Ullah K to purchase it, and the latter, with the concurrence of his heir, sent him a deed of gift of it

AHMAD KHĀN NIYĀZĪ

The son of Muhammad K Nıyazı, and famous for his bravery and bounty (shujā'at u sakhāwat) He had many agreeable In the leigh of Jahangii when Rahim K Deccani, qualities one of the officers of Nizām Shah, came with a large force against Ilcapui (Elichpui) and forcibly took possession of it, though there was no large imperial army there, yet Ahmad K, who was in his early youth, engaged him with but a few troops and drove him out of the city and made himself renowned From that time he continually distinguished himself in the Deccan campaigns and in the siege of Daulatabad he went off with Khān Zamān Bahādur to bring the treasure and supplies which had arrived from Burhānpūr at the pass of Rohankia (Rohankhed) Khān Zamān left Ahmad K, who was unwell, in Zafarnagar with Bahār² Singh Bandīla It chanced that these two leaders after coming near (nazdīk qasba) the town with a few men, sent off their troops along with the Khān Zamān Suddenly Yāqūt K Abyssinian, who had joined 'Adil Shah, who was marching with a large force against the Khan Zaman, came upon them when they were in the open plain with a few men and at once attacked 3 Ahmad K and Bahār Singh Bandīla stood so firm that the malignant foe had to bite the finger of astonishment and to turn his back. Ahmad also distinguished himself on the day of the taking4 of 'Ambaikot, and many of his best men were Mahābat K used to say that Ahmad was the predominant partner in this victory In the Parenda campaign on the day

l Pādshāhnāma I 517 I G XXI 302

² Bahādur Singh in id, but at p 321 Pahār Singh as in variant

³ Pādshāhnāma I 518

⁴ This preceded the affair of Rohan khed See Pādshāhnāma I 502 'Ambarkot was the outer fort of Daulatabad, and was named after Malik 'Ambar that Mahābat K prevailed over the marauding loe, Ahmad K obtained renown for his fighting. The Khān commander-inchief laboured to honour and advance him, and so he took no other title than that of Khānzāda (the Khān 5 50n)

When in the ninth year Daulatabad was visited by Shah Jahan Ahmad K had an increase of 500 and 500 horse and was promoted to the rank of 2500, with 2000, and went off with Sharsta K who had been deputed to take Sangamun and Nāsik He in his zeal proceeded with the permission of his leader to attack the fort of Ram Sai3 and took it from the hands of Sāhū's men After that he was honoured by the gift of a drum, and attached to the royal stirrup. Afterwards he was made faujdar of Gulshanabad + As he had been brought up in that country he went with joy In the 23rd year he was raised to the rank of 3000 zat and horse, and made governor of the fort of Ahmad-In the year 1061 1651, and beginning of the 25th year, he died He inherited courage and generosity, and he also had other qualities in perfection. In his office there were never any dismissals, and if any one got an assignment (tankhuāh) for his subsistence it was like his own property. Even if it doubled in value his clerks did not interfere with it. In spite of his grandeur he was gentle to every one and spent his days in humility and piety He was an excellent governor of many children and relatives As his father had made Ashti in Berar his residence and his place of burial, Ahmad K laboured to improve the place and made a garden there He also saw to the building of a lofty mosque and of a tomb for his father. For a long time it was a place of prayers and a shrine for the public At present, except for some old tombs, there is no trace 5 remaining either of famous inhabitants of of homes

¹ Bar sir kahî ghanîm Kahî, apparently from kah straw, means a marauding or foraging party

² Sungamnere of Grant-Duff's map, SE Nāsik

³ Rām Sīj in variant and Khāfī K I 521

⁴ Apparently another name for

Wardhā in the Central Provinces, for Ahmad's father made Āshtī his home See Blochmann 484 and note 2, and biography of Muhammad K Niyāzī Maasir III, 376

⁵ The MSS differ The text has na az quttān nāmī'au na az masākin nīshān Blochmann's MSS has autan for AHMAD! (SHAIKH).

Second son of S Salīm Cistī of Fathpūr—May his grave be holy—whose family was of Delhi 2 His (S. Selīm's) father was S Bahāu-d-dīn, a descendant of Farīd Shakr Ganj The Sharkh lived long in Arabia and often made the pilgrimage and became known in that country as the Shaikhu-l-Hind After he returned to India he settled in the village of Sīkiī, twelve kos from Agra, and which was a dependency of Bīāna Because in that delightful spot Bābui had won a victory over Rānā Sāngā, he ordered it to be called Shukii On the top of a hill near that village S Selīm built a mosque and a Khānqāh (monastery) and there A wonderful cucumstance it was that practised asceticism Akbai, who had come to the throne at the age of fourteen for fourteen other years—when he came to be eight and twentv—had no child who lived. When he heard of the Sharkh he had a keen desire at that age that he should ask help from him Sharkh gave him the good news that he would have three sons At the same time there appeared signs of pregnancy in the mother of Jahangu As on such occasions a change of residence is a good omen, that chaste lady was brought from Agra to the Sharkh's house, and on Wednesday 17th Rabi'-al-awwal 977, 31st August 1569, Jahangn was boin He was called Prince Sultan Muhammad Selīm after the name of the Sharkh chronogiam is Dur Shahwār lajh-r-Albar (977) "A loyal peail from a great (akbar) ocean" Afterwards, when the buths of Sultan Murād and Sultan Daniel also took place and the Shaikh's influence was recognized, Sīkiī became a city, and a lofty khānkāh and a madrasa were built at a cost of five lacs chronogram was wa lā tarā fi'l-bilād sānīhā " And you ll not see in eities another such " (982 = 1574-75) Delightful palaces, large, quttan and IO. MS 628, has makān nāmī It appears from the note in Blochmann 484, and also from the IG article Āshtī, that the tombs have been restored The Maasii has in the third volume, p 376, a life of Ahmad K's father Muhammad Khān The author of the Maasır knew the Berars well It was at Āshtī that a great battle was fought in Akbar's reign

¹ B 475

² Salīm's father was first at Ludiana and afterwards came to Delhi, Khazīna A I 432

stone bazaars and beautiful gardens were made. As while the city was being made the rich country of Gujarat was conquered, Akbar wished to call it Fathābād, but it became known as Fathpūr, and this name was approved of by the emperor. The Sharkh died in 979, 1571-72. The chronogram is Sharkh Hindi. "The Indian Sharkh? 979. In consequence of the sincerity and respect that existed between the Sharkh and Akbar, his sons sons-in-law, and grandchildren obtained high office, and as the wife and daughter of the Sharkh were connected by fosterage with Prince Sultan Selīm, the Sharkh's descendants became his foster-brothers, and during his rule many of them rose to the rank of 5,000, and became owners of drums and flags.

In fine Shakh Ahmad showed many choice qualities in his relations with the world. He did not abuse people and did not become overcome with sorrow on beholding many improprieties. By his loyalty and his connection by fosterage with the prince he became famous and was emolled among the great officers. Though as yet he had not reached the rank of 500, he had great influence. In the 22nd year during the expedition to Malwa he got a chill (perhaps a stroke) (hawāzadayī). When he came to the capital, his illness on account of carelessness, became paralysis. In the same year he died, on a day when Akbar was marching to Ajmere and had sent for him. He took his last leave, and died after reaching his home in the year 985, 1577.

AHSAN KHAN SULTAN HASAN

His other name was Mīr malang (malang means enthusiast) and he was the sister's son of Muhammad Murād K. He was one of the distinguished men of Aurangzeb's time and held suitable appointments. In the 51st year when the king saw marks of weakness in himself, and perceived that Muhammad Ā'zim Shah—who had a name for courage and had won over the leading officers—looked upon Kām Bakhsh with severe eyes, he, because he always regarded this prince with affection, appointed Ahsan

¹ He had reached the rank of 500 when he died. The account in text is chiefly taken from A.N. III. 212

K to be his bakhshi and straitly charged him to take care of him Accordingly he continually looked after him in his coming and going. Muhammad Ä zim Shah repeatedly, accused to Kam Bakhsh to his father but it was of no avail. At last he wrote to his full sister Zīnatu-nisā 2 Begam a letter in which he said. Phough it would be no great task (kāre nīst) to chastise the impudence of that insolent one vet respect for H M restrains me . After the king had read this letter he wrote in reply "Do not disturb yourself about all this. We are sending away Muhammad Kām Bakhsh Mter that he presented that prince with the insignia, of sovereignty and sent him off to Bîjāpūi After he arrived at the fort of Parenda, news came of the death of Aurangzeb, and most of the officers went off without warning Sultan Hasan endeavoured to seeme the affections of the iemainder, and made excellent endeavours after reaching Bījāpūr so that Saivid Nivaz K the governor made over the keys and joined the prince The prince promoted Sultan Hasan to a commission of 5000 and gave him the title of Ahsan Hasan and made him Mīr Baklishī When the prince marched from Bījāpūr and took possession of Gulbarga, he came to Wākinkera-which had again come into the possession of Pīimā Nāīk zamindai Ahsan Hasan laboured to get possession of this also. Afterwards he took the princes son with him, as a matter of custom, and marched against Kainul He took money from there and went on to Arcot where Daud K Patni was faujdar He neglected not the smallest particular which could be of use to the prince, and in spite of little money and other difficulties he devoted himself to the carrying on of affairs He again joined the prince When they were within four stages of Hardarabad he soothed Rustum Dil K of Sabzawāi, who was the governor there, and

¹ Khāfī K II 547-48

² Khāfī Khān has Zību-nisā, but she was already dead

³ It would appear from Khāfi Khān 548 that Amangeb after the letter was read to him, caused the reply to be endorsed on it and put his own signature to it

⁴ Id 548 Aurangzeb sent him off under a fanfaronade of music

⁵ Pennark of Grant-Duff I 405

b Cun tora 'It was an oriental institution to have a prince with the army, however young, for luck induced him to join the prince As Hakīm Muhammad, who had the title of Taqariab K and was the Vizier, was envious of Ahsan Hasan-a thing which has of old destroyed dominions-he continually misiepiesented things to the prince, and alienated his teelings from him. At the time when there was between Ahsan K and Rustum Dil a movement of loyalty towards the prince Taqarrab K represented that they were plotting to make the prince a prisoner. The prince whose disposition tended towards madness, and who at that time was doubly perturbed on account of anxieties, after putting Rustum Dil to death as related in his biography, sent for the Khan and imprisoned him, and put him They say that though men had warned to death with torture him that the prince meditated imprisoning him, he—who always behaved with loyalty-would not believe this. This event happened in the year 1120,-1708 His elder brother Mīr Sultan Ḥusaın entered service in the 2nd year of Bahādui Shah and obtained a commission of 1000, with 200 hoise and the title of Tal'a Yāi K

(HAKĪM)² 'AĪNUL-L MULK SHĪRĀZĪ

He had a high rank in science, and was a man of praiseworthy He was related on the mother's side to Muhaqqiq-1 Dawwānī 8 From the first his company was pleasing to Akbai, and in the 9th year he was sent with an order to Cingiz K who was a leading man in Ahmadabad He ieturned with presents from the Khān to Agra In the 17th year he took a soothing letter to I'tımād K Gujaratī and brought him to service along with Abū Turāb In the 19th year, when Akbai went to the eastern districts, he was in attendance 5 Afterwards he was appointed to the Deccan for the purpose of guiding 'Adıl K of Bijāpūr, and neturned to court in the 22nd year. After that he was made faugdār of Sambhal, and in the 26th year when 'Arab Bahādur Niyā bat K and Shāh Dāna with a number of ingrates had stirred up commotion there, he strengthened the fort of Bareli (Bareilly), and

¹ Maan II 327

⁴ AN III 6 and 7 ² B 480, and Badavūnī III 164 5 AN 87

J 111 422

⁶ AN 211

exerted himself along with the fietholders. Though the rebels used threats and promises in order to induce him to join them he did not consent, and by excellent contrivance managed to cause dissension among them At last Nivābat K joined the royalists The Hakim along with the other fiefholders sought for battle and defeated the enemy In the same year he was made Sadr² of Bengal In the 31st year he was made bakhshī of the province of Agia Afterwards he went to the Deccan with the Khān A'zım When the said Khān took away his jāgīi of Hindia he without being summoned came to court in the 35th year, and consequently was not admitted to an audience. After inquiries were made, he received an order for him to pay his respects was confirmed in the pargana of Hindia, and was allowed to depart after some time In the 40th 4 year corresponding to 1003, 1595, he died He wrote poetry and had the takhallas of Dawar verse is his

Verse

In the night of her dark locks a dream of death serzed me, A strange sad dream it was which had no interpreter He attained the rank of 500

AJĪT SINGH RĀTHOR (MAHĀRĀJAH)

Son of Mahārājah Jeswant Singh When his father died in his thānadārī fof Jamiūd, he was in his mother's womb He was born after she came to Lahore for The king wished to get hold of him, and the Rāthors who were old servants of the deceased rose up in aims. Some were killed, and some took Ajīt to his native country. After the king had gone twice to the province of Ajmere

Khāfī K II 259 implies that they were boin in Afghanistan, for he says that when their servants were bringing them and their mothers to Aurangzeb there was a fight at the Attock crossing Possibly, however, he means that the children were still in the womb Elphinstone, p 561 of 4th ed, takes it that they were born in Afghanistan See also the translat on of Khāfī K in Elliot VII 297

¹ AN III 348

² A N 372

^{- 3} A N III 584

⁴ A N III 671 He died on 23rd August 1595 Badayūnī II 403

⁵ He died in or near Kabul in 1678 Elliot VII 187, 296

⁶ The Maasır A 177 says Ajīt and his brother were born at Lahoie See translation in Elliot VII 187

and striven to ruin the tribe, and had sent Prince Muhammad Akbar to pursue them they engaged in instigating that prince (to proclion) and perverted him so that at last he, in league with these men, came within 1½ los of the royal camp. As they became from some reason suspicious of him, they left the prince, and he was compelled to fly. The king appointed a faujdār in Jodhpūr, and as long as the king lived, Ajīt remained in the recesses of the hills. After the king's death, he disgraced (be hurmat sākhta) the faujdār and took possession of the town. Bahādur Shah sent him a summons during the war with A'zim Shah but he did not come. Consequently after the battle he marched to Jodhpūr, and appointed Khān Zamān the son of Mun'im K. Khān-Khānān against him. When the Khān came near Jodhpūr, Ajīt waited upon him, and having received assurances he submitted. After his offences had been forgiven, he was raised to the rank of 3000.

When the king went to the Deccan with the intention of confronting Kām Bakhsh, Ajīt in the course of the march joined with Rajah Jai Singh 'Kachwāha, and taking his necessaries and leaving his tents behind went to his native country. When the king returned from the Deccan, he was minded to punish the tribe, but the rebellion of the Sikhs, who had become world-conquerors in the Panjab, prevented him With a regard to prudence he overlooked his acts and omissions and arranged through the Khān-Khānān that he in concert with Rajah Jai Singh should pay his respects on. the march and go to his native country Afterwards when he had made proper arrangements, he was to come to court intriguing heavens are always stirring up fresh commotions the ınevıtable event (of death) appeared for Bahādur Shah after he had reached Lahore, and thereafter dissension broke out among the In the second year of the reign (of Farrukh Siyar) Hussaın 'Alī Amīı u-l-umaıā was appointed against Ajīt overcome by alarm and submitted to the Amīru-l-umarā agreeing to pay tribute his offences were wiped out off his daughter to be married to the king according to the established custom, and was honoured with the government of Afterwards he joined the Saryids and in the end of Muhammad Fanukh Siyar's leign came to court from Ahmadabad, and received the title of Mahārājah He took part with the Saryids in the arrangements for imprisoning the king, and on this account he became an object of reproach to high and low, and in the beginning of Muhammad Shah's reign was removed from the government of Gujarat By good fortune he got a sanad I for the city of Ajmere and took possession of it Afterwards when the officers were sent against him with an army he went to his native country and his men entrenched themselves in Garha Patli 10yal army went and besieged that place At last peace was made, and it was agreed that Abhai Singh his eldest son should remain at court as his father's representative Abhar Singh after coming to court at the instigation of the nobles there withdrew from filial duties and wrote to his younger brother Bakht Singh, and he sent 2 Ajīt to the other world while he was Abhai Singh got the title of Mahāiājah and in 1140, 1728, was made governor of Gujarat in heu of Subuland K to his home and spent one year in settling the country 11th year of Muhammad Shah he entered Gujarat and surrendered the province to the Marhatta Chaut When he saw that they were predominant he in the 15th year came to his native country, and the whole province fell into the power of the Mahrattas

Mahārājah Ajīt Singh had two sons The first was Abhai, of whom an account has been given The second was Bakht Singh, who after his father's death got possession of his native country After him his son Bijai Singh is at the time of writing (died in 1794) in possession, and is renowned for his care of the subjects, and for protecting the weak and for putting down the oppressive The supplementary account of Sultan Muhammad Akbar is that after he fled from the neighbourhood of Armere—as he had no home—he went to Sambhā Bhonsla Sambhā received him and kept him for some time When Aurangzeb marched to the Deccan, the noise of killing infidels was heard everywhere. Akbar got fughtened and embarked in a ship and went off to Peisia the ship reached Muscat the governor there took charge of him and wrote to Aurangzeb Meanwhile Shah Sulaiman Safavi heard of his having come to Museat. Prince Akbai too, had previously told Shah Sulaimān his intentions. The Shah wrote to the land-owner of Museat, who regarded the Shah as his suzerain and ordered that Prince Akbai should be sent to him. He was always treated with respect, and there were continually feasts and recreations. At last he asked for auxiliaries. The Shah said, "Your father is still alive, when the time of your brothers comes. I will give you proper help." Akbai was sad and said that the climate did not agree with his constitution and asked leave that he might go to Qandahar and live in the warm country (in the Garmsīr). The Shah gave him leave, and provided him with the necessary expenses. After Akbai came to that country he died in 1115.

¹ Siyar M trans I 230

² Khāfī K II 974, and Tod's Rajasthan, Annals of Marwār.

(SAIYID) 'ĀLAM BĀRHA

Brother of Saiyid Hizabi 8 K, of whom an account has been given in this book. In Jahangii's time he at first had a suitable mansab and at the end of his reign his rank was 1500 with 600 hoise After the accession of Shah Jahan his mansab was confirmed and he went with the Khan-Khanan to Kabul for the purpose of putting down Nazr Muhammad K. the ruler of Balkh who had raised the flag of disturbance in that province In the 3rd year he received a tobe of honout and a sword and an increase of 500 with 200 hoise, and was appointed to accompany Yemīnud-daula to the Bālāghāt of Berar In the 6th year he attended Prince Muhammad Shujā' in the affan of Parenda The Prince left him with 500 horse, as a soit of thana (station) in Jalnapür to protect the roads In the 8th year, at the time of the leturn from Lahore to the capital, he along with Islam K was active in chastising the rebels of the Duab Afterwards he accompanied prince Aurangzeb when he was appointed to the aimy for chastising Jujhār Singh Bandīla. In the 9th year, at the time when

¹ The Imām of Muscat See Elliot VII 312

² Should be 1118, or 1706 AD, according to Beale, but Khāfī K in the account of the year 1117, II, p 546, says that a report of the prince's death had been current for a year and was now confirmed The Maasu speaks of his going to the neighbourhood of Qandahar Khāfi K-speaks of the Garmsīr of Khurāsān, the prince having objected to Ispahan as too cold

⁸ B 392, and 395 note

the Deccan became for the second time the residence of the king he was appointed to punish Sāhū Bhonsla and to devastate the country of 'Adıl Khan, in the contingent of Khan Zaman Bahadur In the 13th year he received an increase and had the rank of 2000 In the 19th year he went with the prince Murād with 1000 horse Bakhsh to conquei Balkh and Badakhshān Afterwards, he went with prince Shujā' to Bengal, and in the 29th year he accompanied prince Sultan Zainu-d-dīn to court and did homage Afterwards he received a horse and returned When Aurangzeb obtained the sovereignty, and battles took place with his brothers, he was active on the side of Shujā' in the first battle, and also in the engagement, which occurred on the borders of Bengal, and jeoparded his life At last, when Shujā' went off to Airacan and had no one with him except ten Saiyids of Bāiha and twelve Moghul seivants, 'Ālam Bărha accompained him He disappeared in that country (i e perished along with Shujā')

(MĪR) 'ALĪ AKBAR MŪSAVĪ

Younger brother of Mīr M'uzzu-l-mulk of Mashhad He too in the reign of Akbar attained to the rank of 3000 and acted along with his brother in carrying out the king's work. In the 22nd year he produced before Akbar the story of his birth (maulūd-nāma) which had been written by Qāzī Ghrāsu-d-dīn Jāmī, who was endowed with eloquence and gifts, and was for a time Humāyūn's Sadr. It was written therein that on the night of the birth of the king, Humāyūn having seen in a dream that God had presented him with a son, ordered that he should be called Jalālu-d-dīn Muhammad Akbar Akbar shewed great pleasure on beholding it and rewarded the Mir with favours, and gave him the

¹ B 392, and 395 note

² B 382 The story is told in the annals of the 23rd year in the Tabaqūt N and just at the end of that year The king was then at Hūnsī in the Panjab B's suggestion of Nadīna is supported by a MSS of the Tabaqūt in my possession The modern name is Nagīna, N W

Moradabad See IG XVIII, 299 It is in the Bijnor district. The facts about 'Alī Akbar's being sent in chains and put in prison are recorded in the Akbarnāma III 309. It is not said there that he was imprisoned for life. The punishment took place in the 25th year 988, 1580.

pargana of Nadīna (text Nadīa) as a reward As his brother held a jagir in Bihar (viz Aiiah) he was made a partner with him In the 24th year when many of the Bihar officers took the path of rebellion the two brothers joined them But from far-sightedness they soon separated from them, and Mn M'uzzu-l-mulk came to Jaunpūr, while Mīr 'Alī Akhar stopped in Zamānia six kos from Nevertheless he was always by messages and wiles fanning the flames of sedition When his brother's boat sank in the Jumna in the 24th year, an order was sent to the Khan Azim who had charge of Bengal and Bihar, to arrest Mīi 'Alī Akbar and to send him off in chains He had recourse to fawning and wiles in dealing with the Kokaltāsh But as the latter was a clear-sighted man, his stories did not avail, and he was conveyed to the Presence by guards The kindness of the king abstained from inflicting capital punishment on him but sent him to the school of the prison

(MĪRZĀ) 'ALĪ BEG AKBAR SHĀHI

He was born and bred in Badakhshan, and was adorned with excellent qualities When he came to India, the coin of his loyalty was fully tested in Akbar's heart, and he was honoured by the title of Akbar Shāhī He distinguished himself in battle the campaign in the Deccan he was an auxiliary of Prince Sultan When the prince made peace and retired from Ahmadnagar, Sādıq K. from considerations of prudence made his abode in Mahkar in the 41st year Azhdai K and 'Ain K and othei Deccans rose up to make disturbance Sādıq K appointed a choice force under the Mīrzā, and he suddenly fell 2 upon their camp and seized abundant plunder, including elephants and $u\underline{k}\underline{h}$ ara women (dancing girls) On account of this success, Khudawand K and other Nızām Shāhī officers resolved to give battle with 10,000 horse Sādiq K fought a battle on the bank of the Ganges,3 with

¹ B 482

² Akbarnāma III 711

⁻ Akbarnāma 715, where the inter is called the Ban Gang, qu the Penganga of IG XX 102 It is a tributary of the Wardha

M 'Alī Beg in the vanguard, eight kos from Pāthiī The Mīnzā on that day displayed valour and defeated Khudawand K who attacked him with 5,000 horse. In the 43rd year he took the fort of Rāhūtara, a dependency of Daulatabad, after a siege of one month, and in the same year the town of Pattan-which is an ancient city on the bank of the Godavery-was taken by his exertions. In the end of the same year the fort of Longarha 2 Daulatabad was taken by his efforts. Both of these forts became deserted from want of water and are in the same state to day The Mīrzā in the campaigns of S. Abū-l-fazl also fought battles and did good service. In the siege of Ahmadnagar he gave great help to the servants of Prince Daniel In the 46th year he was rewarded for his good services with a flag and drum. After that he was for a long time in the Deccan as an assistant of the Khān-Khānān In the time of Jahangii he got the rank of 4000 and was made governor of Kashmir After that he obtained the fief of Oudh, and when Jahangu was residing at Ajmere he came to court and visited the shine of M'uīnu-d-dīn. He embraced the tomb of Shahbaz K Kambū who was buried in the enclosure, and said, "he was our old friend" and then died. He was buried in the same place. This occurred in the 11th year on 22nd Rabī -ul-awwal 1025 30th March 1616

Though he had but few servants, they were all excellent and had good wages. He was very fond of learned and prous men As he was addreted to oprum (koknār), the confectionary departments in his establishment were in great order. Varieties of confections and drinks and sweetmeats were produced in his assemblies. He had a poetical vem and composed verses 3

I Akbarnama 739, where the text has Ahubara with the variant Rahu tare

² 749 Both forts surrendered for want of water

³ See B 482, and Tüzuk J, pp 11 and 163 B, p 482, note, rightly doubts the correctness of the statement at p 11 of Tüzuk, that he belonged to Delhi None of the MSS have this Instead, they state that he was a distinguished man of this tibe, $\bar{4in}$ alūsh meaning the tibe of company of the Akbaishāhīs Or perhaps it means "this dynasty". The expression is used at p 103 of the Tūzuk M 'Alī Beg was over seventy-five when he died. He left no children The incident of his embracing Shahbāz's tomb is not mentioned in the Tūzuk.

'ALĪ KHĀN (MĪRZĀDA)

Son of Muhtaram Beg and one of Akbar's officers obtained the rank of 1000 and in the oth year he was sent off, with other officers in pursuit of 'Abdullah K Uzbeg who had fled from Malwa to Gujarat - In the 17th year when the king proceeded towards Gujarat and the Khān Kilān was sent off in advance, 'Alī K was sent with him In the 19th year when the king proceeded to the eastern districts, he was one of the companions Afterwards he was sent with a body of troops to punish Qasim 1 K ahas Kāsū who was making a disturbance with a body of Afghans in Bihai He did good service, and after that he distinguished himself along with Mozaffai K In the 21st year he came In the 231d year, when Shahbaz K went off to punish Rānā Pratāp alias Kīkā he was enrolled as an auxiliary 25th year he was appointed to act along with the Khān A zim in the eastern districts As he did not do well there he in the 31st year was sent to Qāsım K the governor of Kashmu 2 In a battle with the Kashmiris in the 32nd year, when it was 'Saiyid 'Abdullah's turn (to command) and the imperial troops were defeated, he was killed,3 in 995, 1587

(HAKIM) ALĪ GĪLĀNĪ

He was eminently skilled in 4 the sciences, especially in medicine and mathematics. He was one of the ablest physicians of the day. They say that he came to India from abroad in great poverty and distress. By the help of auspicious fortune he became enrolled among Akbar's servants. One day, by Akbar's order, several bottles containing the urine of sick and healthy persons and of cattle and asses were brought to the hakīm in order to test his skill. He diagnosed all of them by his powers of consideration, and from that time his reputation and influence increased so that he became an intimate companion of the monarch. He

¹ A N III 105 ² A N III 516 ² A N III 522 and B 443, who refers to Badayūnī III 326, who describes him as an occasional poet

 $^{^4}$ B 466 Instead of dar fun $\bar{u}n$ the B M MSS Add 65657 and 6567, have $z\bar{u}$ fun $\bar{u}n$ acquired power and became the equal of the highest officers. After that he was sent on an embassy to Bījāpūr 'Alī' 'Ādīl Shah the ruler thereof went out to welcome him and brought him into the city with great pomp. He presented him with the rarities of the country and wished to send him back, when suddenly in the year 988, 1580 (23rd Safr=10th April), the cup of his (Ādīl Shah s) life was spilled. Though Sāhib Ferishta (¿e, the author of Ferishta's history) has related that Hakīm Ālī Gīlānī went away before this event, taking with him the suitable presents previously given and that at this time Hakīm Aīnu-l-mulk Shīrazī came as ambassador, and that on account of the inevitable event he went back without presents, yet in the opinion of the author of these pages the account of the circumstances by the very learned Abu-l-Fazl is more correct 2

As the catastrophe of the killing of Alī 'Ādīl Shah is not devoid of singularity it is here related. He was the most just and liberal of the dynasty but in spite of his excellent qualities he was very unchaste. At last being much inclined towards fair faces he by great efforts got from the ruler of Bīdar two beautiful eunuchs. When his desire was nearly gratified, he being possessed by immodesty and baseness, in the darkness of his private chamber showed his improper desires to the elder of the two. That jewel of purity, from chastity and honour, would not yield up his body, and finished off the king with a dagger, which he had from foresight secreted on his person. A remarkable between that Maulānā Muhammad Rezā of Mashhad, who had the takhallas of Rezāī, found the chronogram Shāh Jahān shud shahīd. "The king of the world was martyred, 988."

Hakîm 'Alî in the 39th year prepared a wonderful tank, a road within which led to a chamber (kāshāna). The extra-

¹ Chand Bibi's husband

² Akbaināma III 298 and Feishta's account of the Bijāpūr dynasty He is presumably a better authority or Deccan affairs than Abu-'l-Fazl

death under such cucumstances as a martyrdom

⁴ See Elliot VI 193, where is a quotation from the Zubdatu-t-taw-ārīkh See also AN III 650—51 Badāyūnī, Lowe 273, and Iqbālnāma part II, account of the 39th year It is in the Iqbālnāma that the statement occurs that the water was kept out by air The subaqueous house was made at Lahore It seems that Ḥakīm 'Ālī ordinary thing was that the water of the tank could not enter the Men went down and endured much difficulty in examining the place, and many were so troubled that they returned when they got half-way Akbai went to see the spectacle and came to the chamber He got under the water at a corner of the tank and after descending two or three steps he arrived at the room It was much decorated and was well-lighted and there was space for ten or twelve people. There were sleeping coverlets (farsh hwāb) and clothing, and there was a collation There were some books in recesses The air did not allow a drop of water to enter As the king stayed there for a little, a strange feeling took possession of the men outside. Up to the 40th year the Hakim had attained the rank of 700 His cures astonished the world last when Akbai was attacked with diairhœa, the Hakīm's endeavours were unsuccessful. The king got angry and said to him, "You were nothing but a foreign spice-seller (pasārī) Here you put off the sandals of exile We raised you to this rank in order that some day you might be of use" And being exceedingly angıy he 2 flung two pājāma strings at him The Hakim taking something out of a bag flung it into a jug of water which immediately became congealed He said, "I have got this kind of medicine, but of what use is it seeing that it does not apply to the present case" The king on account of the unsettlement and restlessness of illness insisted, saying, "Whatever is to be, will be give this to me" Accordingly, owing to this medicine there was astringency and constipation in his frame But there was a pain in his belly constructed a similar chamber at Agra See Tūzuk 73, and Elliot VI 320, also Darbāri Akbarī, p 124

with being an adventurer and as having said that he had loosed his sandal-straps (pātāba) in India. By throwing him the strings he told him in effect to go about his business. It was a rude and contemptuous way of dismissing him. Where the Maasi'i got the story I do not know. Perhaps it was from the Zakhīra Khawānīn. The Zubdatu-t-tawārīkh has a long account of the illness, but it does not mention this incident. The story however is told in the Hindustani translation of the Akbaināma.

¹ Perhaps the true reading is ba siyare v-wilayat, "You were nothing but a foreign vagabond"

 $^{^2}$ I believe that the word- are $d\bar{u}$ thka and that they mean two strings or bits of things, and that probably they were the sings of Akbar's sleeping suit. I think that we must look to the previous clause to under stand the passage. Akbar is described as having reproached Hakīm 'Alī which produced restlessness So the physicians were obliged to use laxatives These produced excessive motions, and he died

One lof the wonderful things is the way in which the illness began. They say that there was an elephant in Jahangii's establishment named Giiānbāi, which no other elephant in the elephant stables of the emperor could withstand. But Sultan Khusrau had an elephant named Aprūp which also was first rate in battle. Accordingly Akbai ordered that these two ponder ous mountains should contend together.

Verse

Two iron mountains moved from their place You'd have said, the earth moved from end to end

He also appointed the elephant Ranhatan,3 one of his special elephants, to act as an assistant, that is, whenever one of them got the better of the other, and the driver could not restrain him, the said elephant was to come out of ambush and assist the defeated elephant Such an assistant elephant is called tapānca,4 and this was one of the king's inventions Akbai was seated in the iharoka watching the spectacle, and the princes Selīm and Khusrau were on horseback and waiting As it happened, the elephant Girānbāi after much fighting overcame his antagonist. Akbar wished that the tapānca should come to the rescue, but prince Selīm's men forbade this and flung stones at Ranhatan, and his driver, who was bravely pushing forward, was hit with a stone so that the blood flowed The courtiers excited the king by their urgency and he told Sultan Kharram (Shah Jahan), who was by his side, to go to his father 5 and tell him that, "The Shah Baba (Akbar) said, 'In reality all the elephants are yours, why then this immoderation " The pince said in reply, "I did not know about it, and

¹ B 467, and Khafi Khan I 230

² Abrūp seems to be the more likely reading Apparently it had once belonged to the Rajah of Udaipūr

³ Variant Ranthan B Rantahman Perhaps Ranthan is right and may mean a pillar in battle like the first part of the name of the fort of Ranthanbhor-Ransthamba See the account in Asad Beg's Wikāya where the elephant is called Chanchal, Elliot VI 168

⁴ Lit "slap" It also means a pistol 5 "Shāh Bhye"—"The Shahbrother" See Price's Jahangir, 74

I do not approve of the driver's having been struck "Sultan Khariam said, "If this is so I ll go and separate the elephants by means of fireworks" But though every effort was used, they were unsuccessful. At last Ranhatan too was worsted, and together with Apiūp plunged into the Jumna. Sultan Khariam returned, and by soothing words calmed down Akbar. Meanwhile Sultan Khusiau came making a noise and spoke unbecoming words about his father to Akbar, so that the latter's wrath blazed forth. All the might he was restless from fever, and his constitution was upset. In the morning Hakīm 'Alī, the Galen of the age, was called in, and Akbar said. "The foolish words of Khusiau have excited me and brought me into this state." Afterwards the fever ended in dysentery and was the cause of his death.

They say that as in the latter part of his illness H Hakīm 'Ali prescribed melons Jahangir' after his accession blamed him, saying that his prescription had killed his father

In the third year of his reign 1018,2 1609, Jahangii also went to Hakim Ali's house and visited the tank. After examining it, and coming out he received Hakīm 'Alī into favour and gave him the rank of 2000 Some time after, the Hakim died They say he spent nearly Rs 6,000 every year on medicines and broths for the needy Hakīm 'Abdu-l-Wahāb his son in the 15th year made a claim for Rs 80,000 against a number of the Saryids of Lahore, saying that his father had made over this sum to them (i e to then father) And he produced a bond (khat) with the Qāzī's seal on it and produced two witnesses in court to prove the claim according to law The Saiyids denied, but it was not possible for them to get out of the obligation \bar{A} saf \underline{K} hān was appointed to enquire into the dispute. As a rogue is timid $(\underline{kh}\bar{a}\bar{\imath}n \ kh\bar{a}\bar{\imath}f$ mībāshid) 'Abdu-l-Wahāb' proposed to the Saryids to withdraw the Āsaf K made various investigations and 'Abdu-l-Wahāb was obliged to confess that the claim was false He was therefore deprived of his rank and jagii

¹ Cf Price's Jahangir, 71

² Tūzuk 73 The year should be 1017, as Hakīm 'Alī died in the beginning of 1018, Tūzuk 74

³ See the story in the Tüzuk J 306, and Iqbālnāma 161 Apparently the two authors of the Maasir did not know the 2nd volume of the Tüzuk

ALĪ MARDĀN 1 BAHĀDUR

One of Akbar's officers In the 40th year he held the rank of 350 He was appointed, for the first time, to accompany the Khān-Khānān 'Abdu-1-Rahīm in the affair of Mīrtha and he did good service. In the 38th year he came to court with the Khān-Khānān and was admitted to an audience. After that he was appointed to the Deccan, and in the battle which took place in the 41st year under the leadership of M Shahrukh and the Khān-Khānān with the Deccan leaders he was in the altamsh. Afterwards he had the command of the Telingana force. In the 36th year he from his zeal came to help Sher Khwaja near Pathir Meanwhile he heard of the defeat of Bahādui K. Gīlāni—whom he had left with a few men in Telingana—and he turned back to that quarter fell in with the enemy, and though most of his companions fled he stood firm and was made a prisoner. In the same year when Ābū-l-fazl for political reasons made peace with the Deccan leaders. he was released and joined the imperial leaders. In the 47th year he was in command of the left wing in the battle between M IIII and Malik 'Ambai, and' in which the imperial servants gained a great victory In the 7th year of Jahangii he was appointed under 'Abdullah K Fīrūz Jang An order was given that they should go to the Deccan by the soute of Nasık with the army of Gujarat They were to keep in touch with the second army which had been appointed under Khan Jahan Lodi and to carry out the king's business together When Abdullah K came into the enemy's country and saw no signs of the other force he turned back towards Gujarat 'Alī Mardān resolved to die, and fought with the enemy's army, which was following him He was wounded and made prisoner and was carried off by the bargian (banditti or skumishers) of 'Ambar Though surgeons were sent to him he died after two days in 1021, 1611 One saying of his is well known Some one said on an occasion, "Victory is from heaven" ($asm\bar{a}n\bar{i}$) The hero (bahādui) answeied, "Ceitainly 2 victory is from heaven, but the fighting (maidan) is ours." His son Karm Ullah attained and the second s in Shah Jahan's reign to the rank of 1000 with 1000 horse, and for some time was governor of Udgīr in the Decean. He died in the 21st year

¹ B 496, Tūzuk J 108, where it seems as if the two days afterwards referred to Zūlfiqār Beg who was wounded on the same day by a rocket

² Fath asmānī, āmā Mardān az mā ast, Kāmgār Husainī BM MS 69b.

'ALĪ MARDĀN K AMĪRU-L-UMARĀ

His father was Ganj 'Alī K Zīg, which is a Kurdish tribe He was an old servant of Shah 'Abbas Wazi ('Abbas the 1st) In the time of Shah 'Abbās' childhood and when he was living at Herat, Ganj 'Alī was a head servant and during his reign by good service and courage—which he showed during the Uzbeg interregnum in battles with that tribe—he attained to high rank, and received the title of Aijmand Bābā (honoured father) and for nearly thirty years was ruler of Kerman He always showed the notes of justice and subject-cherishing. When the Shah in the time of Jahangir besieged Qandahar and after 45 days took it from 'Abdull-'Az-īz K Nagshbandī he made over the government to him One night in the year 1034, 1625, he was sleeping in the verandah of the citadel of Qandahai on a couch which rested against the verandah railing The lailing gave way, and he between sleep and waking fell down, without any one's noticing it After a while some of his servants came upon him and found him dead Shah gave his son 'Alī Mardān K the title of \underline{K} hān and made him governor of Qandahar and called him Bābā 'Sānī (Bābā the 2nd)

After the Shah's death, and when the sovereignty came to Shah Safī his grandson, the latter, on unfounded suspicions, degraded many of the Shah 'Abbāsi officers. Ālī Maidān got frightened and considered that his safety lay in joining Shah Jahan, and wrote and spoke to S'aīd K the governor of Kabul He also set about strengthening the walls and bastions, and made a fort on the top of the Koh Lakah—which is part of the fortiess of Qandahar, and finished it in forty days. When the Shah heard this he resolved to destroy him, and in the first place sent for his eldest son 'Alī Mardān was obliged to send him, but when after that the Shah put to death every one whom he suspected he threw off the mask. The Shah despatched Sīyāwash 'Qul-lar-

l 1 Pādshāhnāma II, 31, qullarbegurīs a Turkish phrase meaning a commander of troops See Vullers s v Perhaps the meaning of the pie-

āqāsī—who had been sent to Mashhad—against him 'Alī Maidān K sent a petition to Shah Jahan to the effect that the Shah was seeking his life and requested that the king would send one of his officers in order that he might make over the fortiess and come to court

In the 11th year 1047, 1637-38, S'aīd K the governor of Kabul, Qulij K the governor of Lahoie, as well as the governor of Ghaznīn and Bhakai and Siwīstan, went, in accordance with oiders, When S'aid K arrived before Quli K he perceived to Qandahai that as long as Sīyāwash was in the neighbourhood of Qandahar, the people would not be properly submissive In concert with 'Alī Maidān—his whole force being 8000 hoise—he at the distance of one farsakh (league) from Qandahar attacked Sīyāwash who 1 had 5 or 6000 horse A great battle took place, and the Persians fled, and did not turn iein till they had got to their camp on the other side of the Aighandab 2 liver S'aïd K did not give them time to halt there, but went against them, and they left their baggage and evacuated the place The heroes spent the night in the Persians' tents, took all the property and returned to Qandahar arrival of Qulij K who had been appointed governor of Qandahar, 'Alī Maidān went off to the Piesence, and in the 12th year he kissed the threshold in Lahoie As before he arrived he had been made a panjhazārī zāt u sawār (holder of 5000 with 5000 horse) and had received a flag and drum, he was on this day made an officer of 6000 with 6000 horse, and was given the mansion of I'tımādu-d-daulah which now belonged to the government of his leading servants received suitable positions. And out of special grace, 'Alī Maidān who was accustomed to the climate of Persia, and could not stand the heat of India, was made governor of Kashmir At the time of the royal standard's proceeding to Kabul, 'Alī Mardān took leave to his post, and when in the beginning of the 13th year 1049, 1639-10, Lahore became the royal ıesidence, 'Alī Mardān was summoned from Kashmii and made an vious sentence is that though 'Alī Mardān sent his son yet the Shah was still determined to destroy him ('Alī Mardān)

l He also occupied a strong position Pādshāhnāma II 43

² Text Andarāb, but see Pādshāhnāma II 45

officer of 7000 with 7000 horse, and in spite of his being governor of Kashmir, he was also made governor of the Panjab, so that he might by winter quarters and summer quarters pass the hot and cold seasons in comfort. In the 14th year, 1050, he was made governor of Kabul in succession to S'aïd K. In the 16th year—when the royal residence was in Agra—he was summoned there and received the high title of Amīru-l-Umarā, the present of a kror of dāms and the gift of I'tiqād K 's house, which was the finest mansion that officers of high rank had erected on the bank of the Jumna, and which at the king's request I'tiqād had presented as peshkash. Thereafter 'Alī Mardān received permission to return to Kabul

In the 18th year Taidī 'Alī Qatghān, 1 the guardian of Subhān Quli K the son of Nazı Muhammad K —who had been appointed by Nazr Muhammad to the charge of Kahmard and its neighbourhood in succession to Ilangtosh (Yālāngtosh)—wickedly attacked the Baluchis living in Zamīndāwar and plundered some of the Hazārī tribes who dwelt on the bank of the Helmand He then halted twenty kos from Bāmīān with the intention of making another attack when an opportunity offered 'Alī Maidān sent Faiīdūn and Farhād, who were his confidential servants, against, him, and they marching quickly fell upon the Uzbeg encampment Qatghān after some struggle took to flight His wife and some of his kinsmen, and all his property were seized, and in the same year the Amīnu-l-Umarā came to court and obtained leave to go and conquei Badakhshān, where Nazi Muhammad had fallen out with his sons and servants Asālat K Mīn Bakhshī was appointed to accompany him 'Alī Maidān K in the 19th year sent 2 an army from Kabul against Kahmard, and as there were few men in the fort, they fled without drawing the sword, and the fort was taken possession of On hearing this the Amīru-l-Umarā left with the Kabul army On the march it appeared that the Kahmard gariison had, from cowardice, at the approach of the Uzbeg army, surrendered the fort, and been plundered by the Armaqs and other

¹ Pādshāhnāma II 401

² Pādshāhnāma II 458

³ Pādshāhnāma II 460 The gai

rison surrendered under promise of being allowed to depart in safety, but the promise was not kept times on their route. As under these circumstances it was, on account of the want of provisions and forage difficult or rather impossible for the army to proceed, the recapture of the fort had to be put off to another time, and 'Alī Mardān turned his attention to the taking of Badakhshān. When he came to Gulbihār, the thānadār of Panjshīr (Daulat Beg), who knew the road, stated that it would be difficult for a large army to get the ugh the defiles and passes. It would also be necessary to cross the Panjshīr river in eleven places, which could not be done without bridging Accordingly the Amīru-l-Umarā sent off Asālat K. to attack Khinjān. He went and came in sixteen days, and then went (with 'Alī Mardān) to Kabul. This going and coming at such a time when there was confusion.' in Tūrān did not please Shah Jahan

In the same year, in the beginning of 1056, 1646, Prince Murad Bakhsh, 'Ali Maidan and others with 50,000 horse were appointed to take Balkh and Badakhshān and to chastise the Uzbegs and Almānān As at this time Jānnisāi K was sent off to Persia to offer condolences for the death of Shah Safī, and congratulations on the accession of 'Abbas the 2nd, a request was made to the latter for the sending of the Amīru-l-Umarā's eldest son who was a hostage with the Shah. The Shah did not sever the links of old friendship but sent him The Amīru-l-Umarā went off with Prince Murad Bakhsh by the route of the Tul (long) Pass When they came to Snāb, Sultan Khusiau,2 the second son of Nazi Muhammad, who was in charge of Qanduz, could not maintain his ground there on account of the predominance of the Almanan (robbers) and joined the prince Afterwards when the prince came to Khulm, three stages from Balkh, he sent the king's letter to Nazı Muhammad, in which were comforting messages and an invitation to him to come in He said in reply that the whole country belonged to the empire, and that he desired after doing homage to go to Mecca But that it was likely that the Uzbegs in their wickedness would kill him and plunder his property Amīlu-l-Umalā went on lapidly with the plince to the Imām s

l Pādshāhnāma II 462 Shah Jahan thought advantage should have been taken of the confusion to conquer Badakhshān

² See notice of Khusiau in 1st vol Maasir shine (Mazāi-u-shaiīf), and then it appeared that Nazr Muhammad was drawing out the time by wiles and deceits. They encamped two kos from Balkh At evening Bahram Sultan and Subhān Qulī Sultan, Nazı Muhammad's sons, and many of the nobles came and did homage, and then retuined after taking leave In the morning they went on to Balkh to have an interview with Nazı Muhammad and he went off to Bāgh Muiād to piepare a He took some jewels and ashrafis with him, and fled, and then made airangements in Shibuighān foi collecting soldiers Bahādui K Rohilla and Asālat K puisued him and fought a battle Nazi Muhammad, seeing their power, turned his iein and went 1 to Andakhūd and thence to Persia In the beginning of the 20th year the Khutba was read and com struck in the name of Shah Jahan, and twelve 2 lacs of supees' worth of gold and silver vessels as well as 2500 horses and 300 camels were serzed it appeared from the clerks that Nazi Muhammad had 70 lacs in cash and goods Some of this was taken by 'Abdu-l-'Azīz (Nazī M s eldest son) and much was plundered by the Uzbegs, and a small portion Nazr Muhammad had taken with him Besides Khusiau, who had already gone off to court, Bahıām and 'Abdu-ı-Rahmāntwo sons and three daughters and three wives-received in Kabul the kindness of the emperor The enigmatic chronogram was

Verse

Nazı Muhammad was \underline{Kh} ān of Balkh and Bada \underline{kh} shān , There he left his gold, his wives, his lands

When Prince Murād Bakhsh wished to return before the newly-conquered territory had been properly settled and did not obey the king's prohibition, the affairs of the country again got confused, and Shah Jahan censured the prince and deprived him of his fief

¹ Pādshāhnāma II 552

² Pādshānāma 540

The only way I can get at the figures 1056 is by supposing that there is a pun on the word Nazr The lines may then be rendered Balkh and Badakhshan were the present (nuzzar) of

Muhammad K He left out gold, wife, and lands Na/r-1-Muhammad Khān yields 1703, and if we deduct zar, qabīla, imlākrā, the value of which is 647, we get 1056 1703-647=1056 The Pādshāhnāma has another enigmatical chronogram at vol II 547 and rank and ordered Staad Ullah K to settle the country order was given to the Amiru-l-Umara to punish the rebels of Qanduz and to return to Kabul after the arrival of the governor of Badakhshān - In the same year, 1057, 1647, Prince Aurangzeb was given the government of Balkh and Badakhshān and was sent there. The Amiru-l-Umara also went with the prince. When they came to Balkh it appeared that Abdu-l- Azīz the eldest son of Nazi Muhammad, and who was the governor of Bolhara had proceeded from Quishi to the Oxus and had sent in front of himself the aims of Turan under Beg Oghli. He had crossed the Oxus and taken up his position in Ageha? Qutlug Muhammad Sultan another son of Muhammad Sultan, joined him prince went off in that direction without entering 3 Balkh A battle took place in Timurabad, and the Amīru-l-Umarā defeated his opponent and came to the quarters of Qutlug Muhammad Sultan-which were far from those of Oghli. His men plundered the tents and goods and animals of Qutluq and returned safe and loaded with plunder. Next day Beg Oghli attacked the Amiru-l-Umara with his whole force He stood firm and the prince (Auiangzeb) himself came to his assistance. A number of the Uzbeg leaders were killed and the others fled. At this time 'Abdu-l-'Azīz K and Subhān Qulī Sultan his brother—who was known by the name of the Little Khan-joined with many Uzbegs and set about dividing the good horses from the bad. Whoever had a good horse came forth to fight Yadgar Tukriva attacked the Amīru-l-Umarā with a torce of single fighters (īka tāzān == monomachi), and nearly made his way to him. The Amīiu-l-Umaiā seeing this diew his sword from the scabbard and spurred his horse Others joined him, and the flames of battle burst forth At last Yādgār was wounded in the face by a sword and his horse

Pādshāhnāma II 688 The text copies the Pādshāhnāma

² Do do

[•] He came to Balkh but did not enter the city This was on 1 Juma-da-al-awwal 1057 = 25th May 1647

⁴ Timurabad, one los from Fathabad Pādshānāma 688.

^{5 &}quot;Somewhat far," Pādshānāma 389 6 Pādshāhnāma II 697

⁷ Khāfi K I 667, where he is called Yādgār Beg According to Khāfi K it was 'Alī Mardān who wounded him See Pādshāhnāmā II 698 Yādgār, whom the Pādshāhnāma calls Yādgār Makrīt, was pardoned.

was wounded by a bullet and they fell, and he was captured by the Amīnu-l-Umarā's servants. He brought him to the prince, and was congratulated

In fine there was a great battle for seven days, and 5 or 6000 Uzbegs were killed. The prince continuing the fight came to Balkh and wished to leave his camp in the city and to pursue the foe at full speed 'Abdu-l-'Azīz turned his rem and in one day crossed the Oxus Many of his followers were drowned wards when Balkh and Badakhshān were restored to Nazi Muhammad, the Amiru-l-Umara came to Kabul and looked after affairs In the 23rd year he came to court and was given the fief of Lahore After some time he was allowed to go to Kashmir, the climate of which agreed with him When prince Dara Shikoh was appointed to the affairs of Qandahai, though the province of Kabul was assigned to his eldest son Sulaīmān Shikoh, vet the Amīiu-l-Umaiā was sent off to guard it Then he again went to Kashmir In the end of the 30th year he was summoned to court, and after anival was attacked by dysentery, consequently in the beginning of the 31st year, 1967, 1657, he received permission to return to Kashmu At the stage of Māchīwārah he died (on 16th April, 1657), and his body was brought to Lahore and buried in his mother's tomb His effects to the amount of one kin of supees in money and goods were confiscated. Though in Persia he behaved contrary to the ways of the servants of the Safavī family and made himself charged with disloyalty and faithlessness to his salt, yet in India he attained great respect by his loyalty, courage and ability, and was exalted above all the other officers position with Shah Jahan was such that the latter called him Yāi Wafādāi (the faithful friend)

One of his great deeds, which will remain on the page of Time for ages, was his bringing a canal into Lahore, which is the ornament of that city

In the 13th year 1049, 1639-40, 'Alī Maidān iepiesented to the emperor that one of his servants who was skilled in excavating canals undertook to bring a canal to Lahore. One lac of impees was estimated as the cost, and this was sanctioned. The person named surveyed the country from the debouchement of the Ravi—which has a fall in the hill-country—through the level country to Lahore a distance of fifty los. He commenced to dig and completed the work in a little over a year. In the 14th year on the banks of that canal and in the vicinity of the city, in a place which was high ground, he made a garden which became known as the Shālamar and was provided with ponds, canals and fountains

This was completed at a cost of eight lacs of jupees in the 16th year under the superintendence of Khalīl Ullah K. Hasan Undoubtedly there is no other such garden in India.

Verse

If Paradise be anywhere on earth It is here, it is here, it is here

As the water did not come in sufficient quantity, another lac of rupees was put at the disposal of the engineers. It chanced that the chief workmen from ignorance spent Rs 50,000 uselessly in repairs. At last by the decision of a number 2 of men who knew about water-works five los of the old canal were preserved and 32 new kos were made. The water came then without hindrance to the garden

Alī Maidān while governor of Lahore imprisoned and sent to Kabul the "Faqiāi," who renounced prayer and fasting, and called themselves "Independents" (be qaid, Antinomians), and were the cause of various immoralities and debaucheries. His wealth and power and executive ability are famous all over India. They say that in a feast to the king there were one hundred golden dishes with covers, and 300 silver ones. As regards his sons, separate accounts have been given of Ibrāhīm K, who attained to high rank, and of 'Abdullah Beg, who, in Aurangzeb's time, had the title of Ganj 'Alī K. He had two other sons Isahaq Beg and

¹ The statement in text seems rather confused. It is abridged from the Pādshāhnāma II 168. The canal is the Haslī or Shāhī Canal described in I G VII 17. It is now a small part of the Bārī Dūāb Canal. See Mu hammad Latīf's Lahore, p. 253. It began about fifty miles above La-

² See notice of Mullā Alla-I-Mulk alias Fāzil K. Maasir III 525

⁸ Should not this be Fikriyā, i e, "the contemplative," see Hughes Dict of Islām, p 568, No 10

Ism'āīl Beg, who, after then father's death, had each the rank of 1,500 with 800 horse and were both killed in the king's service in the battle of Samūgarha where they accompanied Dārā Shikoh 1

'ALĪ MARDĀN K OF HAIDARABAD

His name was Mir Husaini, and he was one of the leading servants of Abū-l-Hasan, the ruler of Haidarabad. In the 30th year of Aurangzeb, after the taking of Golconda, he became a king's servant and attained the rank of 6,000 and the title of 'Alī Maidān He was appointed to the territory of Kanchi (Conjeveram) K in the Haidarabad Carnatic. In the 35th year when Santājī Ghorpura came to relieve Ginjī—which was being besieged by the royal forces—he exerted himself to defeat him. After a struggle he was made pisoner,2 and his elephants, etc. were plundered After two years he was released by paying a large ransom was in his absence 3 (gharbana) restored to happiness by receiving the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 hoise. Afterwards he was for a while governor of Berar, and for some time was deputy of Muhammad Bīdāi Bakht in Burhānpūi He died in the 49th year Muḥammad Rezā4, his son, was after his death made governor of the fort of Ramgarha and held the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse

'ALĪ MUHAMMAD K ROHILLA

They say⁵ that he was not really an Afghan As he had lived for a long time with one of that tribe, and the latter was

¹ He also had a famous daughter, commonly called Sahibjī, of whom there is an account in the life of Amīr K Mīr Mīran I 284

² Khāfī K II 416 He was wounded and made pusoner and was released after paying a ransom of two lacs of rupees Khāfī K. says he was released after a few days, and the Maasīr A, p 364, does not say that he was imprisoned for two years, though it puts the release into the 37th year 1105, 1693-1694, while Khāfī K puts the defeat into 1104 It is Khāfī K who speaks of 'Alī Mardān as having been of the rank of 6,000 when he was defeated If so he was reduced when he got the rank of 5,000 afterwards But perhaps there is some mistake on the part of K K

³ Massir A, 364 Ghaibana means that he was not at court when the honour was conferred

⁴ Maasır A, 516

⁵ The Siyar M says he was an Ahīr, translation III, 233 See also Beale, and Forster's Travels The Afghan who brought up 'Alī Muhammad was called Dāūd Calcutta Review, October, 1875

11ch and childless, he put 'Alī Muhammad into possession 'Alī Muhammad took the property and at first took up his quarters in Aonla 1 and Bankai, which are paiganas noith of Delhi in the dāman-1-koh of Kumaon He spent some time in the service of the zamındars and faujdārs there, and afterwards took to oppression and laid waste Bans Bareilly and Muradabad which were the jagır of I'tımādu-d-daulah Qamaru-d-dīn I'tımādu-d-daula sent his matsadī Hīranand² to settle the estates, and 'Alī Muhammad encountered him and completely defeated him and got possession of much plunder and a large park of artillery I'tımādu-d-daulah was unable to remedy matters After this 'Alī Muhammad became a rebel and sent for many men from the Roh, which is the home of the Afghans, and took possession, partly of the royal territories, and partly of the lands of the Rajah of Kumaon He prepared magnificent tents of a red coloui like those of the kings of India Accordingly the king himself set out to put him down vagabonds of the royal camp went on ahead and set fire to Aonla At last by the intervention of the Viziei-who, in spite of his agent Hīranand's having been plundered, was paitial to him on account of his dislike of Umdat-ul-Mulk and Safdar Jang-a foundation of peace was laid, and he came in and did homage He received the Sarkar of Sirhind in lieu of what he had held When the Shāh Duirānī approached in 1161, 1748, he came out of Sirhind and took possession of his old estates of Aonla and Bankar (Bangaiha?) In the same 3 year (1748) he died His sons were Sād Ullah K, 'Abdullah K, and Faiz Ullah K. (and The first died of illness (in 1764) The second was killed along with Hāfiz Rahmat Ullah (in 1774), and the third is at the time of writing living 4 in Rāmgaiha Of his companions were Hāfiz Rahmat K and Dūndī K,—they were cousins,—and the former was closely connected with the Afghan (Dāūd), who had

¹ Text Anwala, it was in Sarkān Budaun, J II 288 Aonla is now a tahsīl and town in Bareilly, IG, V 388 'Alī Muhammad is buried in Aonla

² O₁ Harnand He was killed in the battle

³ According to Forster he died on 4 Jumāda the 2nd, 1160 = 6th May, 1747 But this must be wrong See note at end of article in CR

⁴ He died in 1794 'Alī M is said to have left four sons (Beale) Another account is that he left six.

been 'Alī Muhammad K's master (khāwand) They took possession of his territory ('Alī Muhammad's) and gamed a name for leadership The latter (Dūndī) died of illness (before 1774) The first lived for a long time till Shujā'u-d-daula, the son of Safdar Jang Abū-l-mansūr, in the year 1188 led an army against him After 'a fight he was killed Since then no one of the tribe has distinguished himself

'ALĪ QULĪ' K OF ANDARĀB.

One of the protegés of Humāyūn In the year when Humāyūn had heard untrue tales about Banām Khān and had come to Qandahar from Kabul, he put 'Alī Qulī in charge of the latter city Afterwards he accompanied Humāyūn to India and in the beginning of Akbar's reign he took part with 'Alī Qulī K Zamān in the affair of Hemū Baqqāl Afterwards he was joined with Khwāja Khizr K in resisting Iskandar (Sūi), and in the end of the sixth year he went with Shamsu-d-dīn Muhammad K Atka to oppose Banām K Nothing more is known of him

'ALĪ MURĀD ĶĦĀN JAHĀN BAHĀDUR KOKALTĀSH K ZAFR JANC

His name was 'Alī Murād, and he was the foster-brother of Sultan Jahāndār Shah He was of noble family In the time when Jahāndār was a prince, he obtained a place in his master's heart, and when the latter was governor of the province of Multan, he managed the affairs In the time of Bahādur Shah he got the title of Kokaltāsh K After the death of Bahādur Shah, and the murders of three princes, and when that fair one (shāhīd) the Sultanate of India came into the arms of Jahāndār Shah, he obtained

¹ He was killed in the battle, which took place on 10th Safi 1388, or 23rd April, 1774 (Beale)

of the present family of the Nawabs of Rāmpūr The author of the Hadīqa-ul-Aqālīm has a good deal to say about 'Alī Muhammad He was present at Bangarha when 'Alī Muhammad surrendered, and he describes his personal appearance. He gives the date of his death as 3 Shawwāl 1161, 15th September, 1748, in the first year of the reign of Ahmad Shah. See p 141 of Newal Kishore's hithograph. He calls 'Alī Muhammad a Rajput the rank of 9,000 with 9,000 horse, the title of Khān Jahān Bahādur Zafr Jang, and the office of chief Bakhshī Muhammad Māh, his vounger brother,—who had the title of Zafr K,—and his brother-in-law! Khwāja Husain K each received the rank of 8,000. The former of them had the title of A'zim K and the nizāmat of Agra, and the latter had the title of Khān Daurān and the 2nd Bakhshīship. This is the Khān Daurān, who was appointed guardian of Muhammad I'zzu-d-dīn, the son of Jahāndār Shah, and who went off to oppose Muhammad Farrukh Siyar. His cowardice was such that without drawing his sword from its scabbard, or a drop of blood having fallen from a soldier's nose he, at night, left 2 the camp with the said prince and took the road to Agra.

⁸ B 432

Kokaltāsh K was not iemiss in devotion to his master, but as there was rivality between him and Zūl-fiqār K, the materials of envy boiled over, and in councils they contradicted one another, and did not provide for the final issue of things, or do what was fitting. Moreover, the reigning sovereign was infatuated with L'al Kunwar and had bidden farewell to thought and prudence, and did not look after the affairs of state. The flower of success, did not blossom, and the parterie of wish took the colours of autumn. In the battle which took place with Farrukh Siyar in 1123 near Agra, Khān Jahān stood firm and fell in his master's service.

'ALĪ QULĪ KHĀN ZAMĀN

His father was Haidar Sultan Uzbeg Sharbānī In the battle of Jām he joined the Persians and attained the rank of an Amīr At the time of the returning of Humāyūn from Persia he entered into service with his two sons 'Alī Qulī and Bahādur and did good service in the conquest of Qandahar When the king was proof 1123 is the year stated by Khāfi K II 721, but it really was 1124, and the last month of that year The

¹ The husband of his wife's sister, Irvine, ASBJ for 1896, 160

² Siyar M I 50, Irvine lc, 185 Elliot VII 435

English date is 10th January, 1713 See Irvine 1 c, 198

⁴ Though Haidai was an Uzbeg by race, he had married a Persian wife, and apparently he fought on the side of Tahmāsp and the Peisians in the battle of Jām which took place in Septembe. 1528

ceeding towards Kabul, a plague broke out in the camp and many died Among them was Haidar Sultan 'Alī Qulī always behaved well in battle, and did especially well in the conquest of India, and rose to the lank of an Amīi When a madman named Qambai collected a number of men in the Dūāb and Sambhal and opened the hand of plunder, 'Alī Qulī was appointed to put him He soon got possession of him and sent his head to count When Akbai came to the throne, 'Alī Qulī K had fighting with Shādī 1 K, who was one of the Afghan leaders When he got news of the advance of Hemū towards Delhi, he regarded that as the more important matter and went off to Delhi He had not arrived when Taidī Beg K was defeated He heard of this in Mīitha and went towards the king Akbai also on hearing the news of Hemū's presumption had returned from the Panjab 'Alī Qulī waited upon him and went off as vanguald from Silhind with 10,000 It chanced that an engagement took place in Panipat where the battle between Bābar and Sultan Ibrāhīm Lodī had taken place A great battle ensued, and suddenly an arrow pierced Hemū's eye His aimy lost courage and fled, and Akbar and Bairam K had approached near the field of battle when there came the good news of victory The officers who had distinguished themselves were exalted by surtable titles, and 'Alī Qulī was called Khān Zamān, and had an increase of rank and fief that he won great victories in Sambhal, and subdued many of the seditious as fai as Lakhnau 2 He also acquired much property camel-driver, who possessed beauty of form and on this account was one of Humāyūn's body-guard, and with whom the Khān Zamān, owing to his evil nature, had long been in love, fled from the presence and came to the Khān Zamān The latter did not regard the majesty of empire, and according to the evil practice of Tiansoxiana called him Pādishāham "My king" and prostrated himself before him When his doing of such things became known, he was summoned to court, but though orders were issued to him

Text wrongly has Shāhī

² It is Lakhnau also in A N II 56, but it seems that the place meant is about the camel-driver's son they had no effect. This was the beginning of the cloud which came over the king's heart with regard to Alī Qulī. He gave many of his fiefs to men for their maintenance, and 'Alī Qulī in his presumption and immodesty became obstinate. Bairām K out of magnanimity (or perhaps, from pride) overlooked this and did not attempt to put him down, but Mullā Pīr Muhammad K Shirwānī—who was the Khān-Khānān's vakil and was master of the power of the State—disliked the Khān Zamān. In the fourth year the remainder of his estates was confiscated and given to Jalāīr officers! and he was appointed to Jaunpūr where the Afghans were plotting opposition.

Lakhnor in Sambbal See Elliot V 384, and the note

The Khan Zaman sent his confidential servant Buij 'Ali by name, to make his apologies and to conciliate the court. On the first day Pir Muhammad K, who was in the fort of Firūzābād (near Delhi) began a dispute with Buil 'Alī, and at the end said "Fling him down from the tower of the fort" In consequence, his skull was fractured. The Khan Zaman perceived that his enemies desired, under the pretext of Shāham Beg, to destroy him Accordingly he sent him away and went to Jaunpui, and by great contests succeeded in bringing that extensive territory into order When Bairam K. was set aside, the Afghans of that country thought then opportunity was come and raised up the son of 'Adılī and gave him the title of Shei Shah They attacked Jaunpūi with a large force and 500 elephants The Khān Zamān collected the officers of the districts and engaged the enemy latter were victorious and entered the lanes of the city The Khān Zamān came from behind and regained what had been lost He dispersed the foe and obtained many elephants and other But he did not send the fruits of these celestial victories to court, but became proud and airogant. Akbai made an expedition to the eastern provinces in Zī-l-qada of the 6th year, The Khān Zamān with his brother Bahādur K did homage in the town of Kaiia-which is on the Ganges-and piesented the larities of the country together with noted elephants, and he was allowed to depart

¹ A N II 68, where Husain K Jalair is mentioned

In this year Fath K Patnī (or Panī) and others made the son of Selīm Shah the material of strife and collected a large army in Bihar and took possession of the Khān Zamān's estates. The Khān Zamān went there with other officers, and as he did not think it expedient to give battle he laid the foundation of a fort on the bank of the Sone and entrenched himself there. The Afghans attacked him, and he was compelled to come out and engage them As soon as they encountered him they routed the imperial forces. The Khān Zamān—who was sheltering himself behind the wall—set his mind upon death, and went to one of the bastions and discharged a cannon. By heaven's decree the ball struck Hasan K. Patnī's elephant, and there was a great uproar in the army, and the men fled. The Khān Zamān gamed an unexpected victory. How the world acts like wine!

Verse

It develops whatever one is

The Khān Zamān in his arrogance did not recognize the rights of his master, and in the 10th year he in concert with the Uzbeg chiefs raised the standard of rebellion and went to war against the fiefholders of that country When he heard of the approach of the royal army he crossed the Ganges and encamped near Ghazi-Akbar came to Jaunpin and sent Mun'ım K, the Khān-Khānan, against him That honest Turk in his simplicity accepted the Khān Zamān's hypocritical excuses and begged for his being In company with Khwāja Jahān—who, at his request had gone from Akbar to soothe and conciliate him (Khān Zamān) —he embarked on a boat and had an interview with the Khan Zamān The latter, out of craft and hypocrisy did not agree to appear before Akbar in person, but sent off Ibiāhīm K who was the greybeard among the Uzbegs together with his own mother and noted elephants It was agreed that until the king returned he should not cross the Ganges But the presumptuous man did not wait for the king's return and crossed the Ganges, and proceeded to take possession of his fiefs. Akbar censuled Mun'im K and went off on the expedition himself The Than Zaman heard of this and left his tents and other property and went off that he again sought to unite himself with the Khān-Khānān and obtained once more, at Mun'im's intercession, the pardon of his Mīr Murtaza Sharīfī and Maulānā 'Abdullah Makhdūmu-I-Mulk went to the Khan Zaman and confirmed his repentance by exacting toba 1 (repentance or perhaps vows) After this, when Akbar proceeded to Lahore to put down the commotion of Muhammad Hakīm, the Khān Zamān, who had become infected with sedition (lit whose navel has been cut in sedition) again raised the head of disaffection and recited the Khutba in the name of Muham-He gave Oudh to Sıkandar K. and Ibrāhīm K and appointed his brother Bahādur K to oppose Āsaf K and Majnūn K ın Kaıra Mānikpūi He himself took possession of the territory up to the bank of the Ganges and came to Qanauj He besieged M Yūsuf K (Mashhadī) who was the jagirdai there, in the fort of Shergarha four kos from Qanauj On hearing of this offensive news Akbar hastened 2 to Agia from the Panjab and then went off eastwards The Khān Zamān-heard of this, and as he did not think that the king would return with such rapidity he recited the verse

Verse 8

His swift, gold-hooved steed beats the Sun Which goes from east to west but halts a night

He was helpless, and left the foot of the fort and went to Bahādur K at Mānikpur Fiom there he in pargana Singraur made a bridge over the Ganges and crossed. The king hastened from (Rāī) Barelī and crossed the Ganges at Mānikpūi on an probably does not mean that 'Alī Qulī actually uttered the words The Darbāri Akbarī has a long account of the Khān Zamān, and in quoting the lines at p 220 it says that Khān Zamān used them ironically It also has a different reading, the word mānd ending both lines whereas the Maasir has mānd in the first line and āmid in the second As Ferishta has mānd and āmed does not rhyme, I have adopted mānd Mānd may also mean "resembles,"

¹ A N II 268 For Mîr Murtaza's death, etc, see Badayūnī, Lowe 101

² Akbar did not make great haste on the way from Lahore to Agra He stopped at Thānesar and saw the fight between the Sannyāsīs He left the Panjab on 22nd March 1567 (Elliot V 318) He left Agra, where he heard of the Khān Zamān's besieging Shergarh, on 3rd May, having arrived there 19 days before, viz, on 15th April

³ This comes from Ferishta, who elephant with ten or eleven men. He with a few men-in all there were one hundred horse-nrived to within half a los of the enemy's camp and halted that night - Majnun K and Asaf K came with their troops---which were the vanguard-- and sent Akbar news one after the other. It chanced that on the night the Khan Zaman and Bahadur K, were in complete carelessness and were spending then time in drinking. Whoever spoke of the lang's rapid match and of his being near at hand was supposed to be romaneing. On the morning of Monday in the beginning of Zi-l-hajja 974, 9th June 1567 Majnun K was placed on the right wing and Asaf K on the left, and in the fields of the village of Sakrawal, one of the dependencies of Allahabad-which was afterwards styled Fathpin-they reached the Khan Zaman Akbar was on the elephant Bal Sundar, and he put M. Koka in the howda ('imari) while he himself took the place of the driver. Baba K. Qaqsal in the first onset dispersed the enemy and came up to the Khan Zaman. One of the fugitives in his confusion struck against the Khan Zaman, and the turban fell oft his head. Bahadui K attacked Baha K and drove him off Meanwhile the king had got on horseback. As the enterprises of the ungrateful are unsuccessful, Bahadur K was made prisoner, and his army fled. The Khan Zaman maintained his ground and was asking about the position of his brother when suddenly he was struck by an arrow. Another arrow struck his horse and brought him to the ground. He was on foot and was drawing the arrow out of his body when the elephants of the royal The driver Somnath drove the elephant Nat 1 centre arrived Singh against him, and the Khān Zamān said, "I am a leader of the army, take me alive before the king and he will honour you " The driver said, "Thousands of men like you are passing away without name or maik It is better to kill an illusher of the king" He then trampled him under the foot of his elephant no one knew what had become of the Khan Zaman, the king while standing in the battlefield said "Whoever will bring a Moghul's head from among the enemy will get an ashrafi, and whoever brings the head of a Hindustani will get a rupee" One of the

TA and by Badayūnī, but the AN

II 295 calls the elephant Namsukh (delight of the eyes)

plunderers had cut off his (K Zamān's) head, and another took it from him on the way in the hope of the ashrafī They say that a Hindu named Aizānī, who was the Khān Zamān's factotum, was standing there among the prisoners and looking at the heads, when his eye fell upon the head of the Khān Zamān, he took it up and smote his own head with it (?) and flung it at the foot of the king's horse saying, "This is 'Alī Qulī's head 'Akbai alighted from his horse and returned thanks to God, and sent the heads of both brothers to Agia and other places

Verse 2

The chronogram found was Fath Akbar Mubārik "The glorious victory of Akbar" (974) Another was $D\bar{u}$ khūn shuda (975). "There were two deaths"

The Khān Zamān had the rank of 5,000 and was a man of fame and majesty. He was unique for courage and vigour and

² The verse is as follows —
The heads of thy enemies! God forbid

That thy enemies should not do thee reverence (sir nabashid)

I stop my words at "the heads of thy enemies". For there is no better conclusion than this

The verse which contains the chronogram is—

Verse

'Alī Qulī and Bahādur were slam by the might of Heaven Beloved, ask not from me Bedrl how it happened I sought the year of their deaths from the Sage of Reason He heaved a sigh and said, "There were two slayings" The chronogram yields 975, which is one year too much, but a note to the text I 630 points out first that the event took place in the last month of 974, so that the anachronism is not great, and secondly that the heaving of a sigh means that the first letter of ah "a sigh" should be deducted, which would make the date right. The word "broken-learted" (bcdil) is probably the takhallas or pen-name of the composer. The chronogram is given in Badayūnī, Lowe 101. The second chronogram given there,

Qatl dū nimakharām be dīn

"The slaughter of two faithless traitors"

yıelds 975 and not 973 as stated by Mr Lowe Both brothers, viz, 'Alī Zamān and Bahādur, were kılled The date as given by Badayūnī is 1 Zū-lhajja 974=9th June, 1567 The name of the village where the battle was fought was Mankarwāl according to Elliot V 321—and Badayūnī But A N II 296 has Sakrāwal

¹ There seems to be no authority for the statement in text that Aizānī flung the head at the foot of Akbar's horse. The man was deeply grieved at his master's death and struck his own head in sorrow either with the head or with his hand. See A.N. II 295 and Badayūnī, Lowe 100. Badayūnī calls the Hindu Rai Arzānī military skill. Though he was an Uzbeg, yet as he had been nurtured in Persia and his mother was of that country, he was a Shia He did not practice any subterfuge $(taq\bar{\imath}ya)$ about this. He had a poetical vein, and his $ta\underline{k}\underline{h}$ allas was Sultan

ALIF KHĀN AMĀN BEG.

By family he was a Caghatai Barlas His ancestors had served the Timuid family 'Alī Sher K, one of the trusty officers of Timur, was an ancestor of his His father Mīrzā Jān Beg —whose 1 nature afterwards changed so that there was a worsening of his character—was in the service of the Khān-Khānān M 'Abdu-r-Rahīm and attained high rank When he died, Amān Beg revived the qualities of his ancestors and became a servant of Shah Jahan He obtained the lank of 1,500 with 1,500 hoise and was appointed 2 governor of the fort of Qandahar. He held this appointment for a long time, and in the 26th year got the title of Alif Khān In the end of the same year 1063, 1653, he He had gallant sons. Among them was Qalandar Beg, who held the rank of 600 under Shah Jahan. After the first battle with Dārā Shikoh which took place near 'Imādpui in the vicinity of Samogarha in the Agra district, he obtained from Aurangzeb the title of Khān and the charge of the fort of Kalyān in the provmee of Bidar, and went off to the Deccan It was as if this family had been set up as the barbican of the court of the Sultanate! The $\underline{K}\underline{h}$ ān in question and his sons spent their lives in guarding the forts of the Deccan After he had been long in Kalyān he guarded Ahmadnagar, and in the 15th year (of Aurangzeb) he became, in succession to Mukhtar Khān, the faujdār and governor of the fort of Zafarabad-Bīdar 8

When the fortress of Naldrug fell into the hands of the im-

¹ I do not know what this refers to A Jān Beg is mentioned in A N III 718 'Alī Sher is mentioned by D'Herbelot as the lieutenant of Sultan Husain in Samarkand, and as for a time being Timur's colleague there Perhaps the Jān Beg referred to is the man whom Jahangir had made

Wazīru-l-Mulk when he was prince Tūzuk, J, p 9

⁹ Pādishahnāma I, Part II, 216 His rank is there stated as 1 000 with 1,000 horse

³ Zafarabad is another name for Bidar

perial servants, he became the governor thereof Lastly he obtained the governorship of the fort of Gulbarga and also had the charge of the shrine of Saiyid Muhammad Gesū 1 darāz--May the peace of God be upon him! He also served in war one year before the victory over Bījāpūr Among his sons—who were all masters of their profession-was Mīrzā Parvez Beg, who was governor of the fort of Mulkhei alias Mozaffarnagar which is eight los from Gulbarga Also there was Nūru-l-'aīyān, who obtained the title of Jan-baz Khan, and afterwards was known by his grandfather's name and again by his father's He in the beginning was governor of the fort of Murtazābād Mirich and afterwards died as governor of Nasīrābād Dhārwar belonging to Bankāpūr But the most famous was Parvez Beg His first title was Jān bāz Khān, and afterwards he was called Beglar Khān He was governor of many forts When Ankar Fīrūzgarha was taken he was made governor of the fort, but a year had not elapsed when he died His son Beg Muhammad K became governor of Adoni, and his son Miizā M'aāli became governoi of Gulbarga. From there he went to Qandhar (in the Deccan) and died His son Burhānu-d-din Qalandai was for a long time governor of Mulkher He reckoned nothing as of any moment,2 and was a qalandar pure and simple He 3 was contented with the unsubstantial four walls of crumbling yellow stone which (God) had made

'ALĪVERDĪ KHĀN MĪRZĀ BANDĪ 4

They say that he and Hājī Ahmad were two brothers and the sons of Hājī Muhammad who was steward (Bakāwal) on the estab-

¹ A famous saint of the Deccan, 721-825 H, 1321-1421 See Rieu's Cat I 347b, and Khazīna Asfiyā I 381 See Haig's Hist Landmarks of the Deccan, p 90

² Alif hech nadārad "He regards Alif as of no consequence" According to the Bahār-i-'Ajam this is a proverbial phrase, and a couplet of Sa'ib is quoted in explanation of it. Possibly the author is making a pun Alif was Burhānu-d-dīn's ancestor's title, and the point may be that he did not regard his ancestry Ahf shudan is a phrase meaning "to be poor, or a recluse". The phrase ahf hech nadārad may therefore mean "he did not mind being poor".

³ The sentence is metaphorical Apparently shikananda here means "crumbling" and yellow stone means flesh

⁴ There is the variant "Mirzā Hindī" Indian Prince" But it is M Bandī in the Riyāzu-s-Salātīn, p 293 'Alīverdī is said to mean "the gift

lishment of Prince Muhammad A'zim Shah (third S Aurangzeb) 'Alīverdī when in poor circumstances had acquaintance with Shujā'ud-daula, the Nāzim of Bengal, and during the reign of Muhammad Shah came to Bengal along with Hājī Ahmad and trod the path of exile Shujā'ud-daula received them with kindness and gave allowances to both brothers He made them his companions and friends and did nothing without consulting them He wrote to court and obtained a suitable rank and the title of Khān for 'Alīveidī As the province of Patna was included in Bengal, 'Alīverdī was made deputy thereof. He during Shujā'uddaula's life behaved presumptuously in Patna and obtained from the king the title of Mahābat K and the substantive subahdarship Shujā'ud-daula was obliged to leave him in possession of the province After Shujā'ud-daula's death, and when the government of Bengal came to his son 'Alaud-daula Sarfaiaz K, the latter owing to a penurious disposition, which is contrary to chiefship, turned off many soldiers 'Alīverdī in the year 1152, 1739, took it into his head to seize Bengal and proceeded to Murshidabad with a strong aimy on the pietext of having an ınterview with Sarfarāz He told his brother Hājī Ahmad—who was in Sarfarāz's employ—what this intention was Hājī Ahmad helped him in his deceit When Mahabat Jang approached, Sarfarāz awoke and went out with a small force to meet him made a feeble fight and was killed in 1153, 1740 Murshid Qulī K who had the takhallas of Makhmūi 2 and was the son-in-law of Shujā'ud-daula was at that time the governor of Orissa collected an army and hastened to engage 'Alīveidī and was defeated (near Balasore) and came to the Deccan to Āsaf Jāh cated in the sense of being filled with Divine Love or with poetical fervour. The Riyāzu s-Salātīn has Majbūr Makhmūr is probably right as Beale says he was called poetically sarshar, which also means intoxicated. See also Rieu II 796b, and Oude Cat. 194, where he is styled Makhmūr. He wrote Rekhtah poetry and died in the Deccan.

of 'Alī Sıyar M I 276, translator's note Verdī is often written Berdī

¹ He was related to him through his mother He went to Orissa, and his brother came afterwards See Siyaru-l-M, translation I 275 'Aliverdi's mother was a Persian lady, of the Afshar tribe

² "The intoxicated" As it was his pen-name, it was presumably adopted by himself, and means intoxi-

Mīr Habīb Ardıstānī—who was Murshid Qulī K.'s bakhshī—went to Raghū Bhonsla who was makāsdār 1 of Beiar and urged him to conquer Bengal Raghū sent a large army under the leadership of Bhāskai Pandit, his Diwān, and 'Alī Qarāwal-who was his best general²—along with Mīi Habīb to Bengal against 'Ālīverd Fighting went on for nearly a month, and then 'Alīverdī proposed peace He invited Bhāskai Pandit, 'Alī Qaiāwal and 223 other leaders to his tent on the pretext of a banquet, and put them all to the sword The army scattered like "The daughters of the Biei" (the constellation of Ursa Majoi) Raghū and Mīr Habīb returned unsuccessful, but every year an army was sent to ravage Bengal At last 'Aliverdi fixed to pay a sum of money to Raghu, and in lieu of it gave him Olissa, and so preserved the country from 1um He 1uled for thinteen years After his death his daughter's son, who had the title of Snaju-d-daula, ruled for ten In that time he plundered the port of Calcutta wards he was defeated by the aimy of the Feringhi hat-wearers and got into a boat and fled When he came to Rājmahal, one of his servants by name Nizām arrested him and sent him to Mīr J'aafar his Bakhshī, who was mairied to Mahābat K 's sister and was in league with the Feringhis His head was severed from his body by the pitiless sword, and Mīr J'aafar had the title of Shamsud-daula J'aafar 'Alī K and became the ruler by the help of the Feringhis In the year 1172, 1758-59, when the army of Sultan 'Alī Gohar came to Patna and besieged it, Sādiq 'Alī K alias Mīian the son of Mīr J'aafai was appointed to relieve Patna firmly in the battle, and was wounded 4 When the prince turned his rein towards Murshidabad, Minan marched off quickly and joined his father Afterwards he went towards Puiniya where

 $^{^1}$ Properly mukhāsadār, a collector or revenue agent See Wilson's Glos sary, 352b

² 'Alī Qarāwal was originally a Hindu and a Mahratta Riyāzu-s-Salātīn, 349

³ Apparently the total number was22

⁴ Mîran's wounds are mentioned in the Siyar Mutakharîn, translation II 344, and in the Riyāz S 375 The battle took place near Bārh on the bank of the Adhuah (?) Shah 'Ālam had previously defeated Rām Naram at Fatūha

⁵ The Riyaz has Bardwan and the Siyar M says Bihar, but it appears that the prince's general did make an attempt to march on Murshidabad See Siyar M 345

Khādim Hasan, the Deputy-Governoi, was behaving rebelliously When he came near Bettrah, which is a dependency of Purniya, he on a night in 1173 (July 1760) was struck by lightning, and the harvest of his life was consumed. The chronogram is

Banāgah bang i aftāda b (a) Mīnan "Suddenly lightning fell upon Mīnan"

After this occurrence Qasim 'Alī K (Mīr Qasim), the son-inlaw of J'aafar 'Alī, dispossessed his father-in-law and became ruler Accordingly J'aafai 'Alī went to Calcutta In the end Qāsim 'Alī did not get on with the Christians, and J'aafar 'Alī laid hands on power for the second time Qāsim 'Alī K came away and brought the reigning king and Shujā'ud-daula, the Vizier, to the province (Bihar) But nothing was successful For a long time he waited for his opportunity in attendance on the emperor When he had no success, he for a time went away to outlying places It is not 2 known what finally became of him But J'aafar 'Alī K died in 1178, 1765. After him his son Najmud-daula sat upon the masnad and died in 1179, 1766 After him Saifuddaula for a time and Mubāiak Ullah for some months had the name of rulers In 1185, 1771-1772, the whole of Bengal and Bihar fell into the possession of the hat-wearers

ALLAH QULĪ KHĀN UZBEG

He was the son of the famous Alang Tosh, who was one of the Cossacks and eminent horsemen of Tūrān He belonged to the Almān tribe, and his name was Jatī In a battle he attacked with his breast bare, and from that time he was known as Alangtosh, for alang means in Turkī bare, naked, and tosh means breast He was servant of Nazar Muhammad, the ruler of Balkh, and held Kahmard and its appurtenances and the Hazārajāt in fief As he

¹ The chronogram yields 1173 The event occurred in July 1760 For Chādim Hasan the Riyāz has Khādim Husain

⁹ He died near Delhi, in 1777 (1191) At Kotwal an obscure village (Beale)

The Siyar M IV 51 says, he died at town between Agra and Delhi

³ The spelling Alang or Ilang, النگ, is wrong it should be Ilang or Yālāng as in Maasir I 740 See Zenker s v It is curious that ulanga is Bengalee for naked Tosh is Turkī for breast, got small pay as a servant he was an aimānci 1 (2) and a plunderer and raided as far as Qandahar and Ghaznīn and so got his livelihood. He also constantly made incursions into Khurāsān Shah of Persia was unable to protect the peasantry against him Gradually he added soldiering to his robberies, and extended his power far and wide, and in order to subdue the Hazāras, whose settlements were within the Ghaznīn boundary, and who from old times paid revenue to the ruler of Ghaznīn, he established a fort there and in the 19th year of Jahangir a great battle took 2 place between him and Khānazād Khān Khān Zamān, the son of Mahābat K, who was ruling in Kabul on the part of his father Uzbegs and Almans were slain, and Alang Tosh felt the claws and After the death of Jahangir and in the beginning was defeated of the reign of Shah Jahan, Nazr Muhammad K thought he had an opportunity of conquering Kabul and drew up an army against Alangtosh did not fail to harry the inhabitants in the neighbourhood of Kabul At last when the time of Nazr Muhammad's power was coming to an end and his fortunes declined, he took away Alangtosh's fief without his having committed any fault, and gave it to his own son Subhan Quli In similar manner he annoyed many of his officers, and went to the place that he went to Allah Qulī, before Nazr Muhammad K had deposed his elder brother Imām Qulī K and had added Samarkand and Bokhara to Balkh, had separated from his father, and came to Kabul in the 13th year with the idea of serving Shah Jahan from his spirit of appreciation presented him with Rs 5,000 by an assignment on the treasury at Atak He also sent Rs 5,000 to S'aīd K, the governor of Kabul, who had made an advance (to Allah Qulī) - When in the 14th year he entered service, he was raised to the office of 1,000 Shah Jahan gradually advanced him to 2,000, and in the 22nd year when he had distinguished himself, along with Rustum K and Qulij K in the battle with the Persians at Qandahar, he got an increase of 500 When in the 24th year J'aafar K was sent off as governor of Bihar, the Khān

Probably the word is almanci, for alman or alaman means plunder. Almanji is given in P de Courteille as meaning a plunderer was appointed to that province In the 26th year he came to the presence and was raised to the rank of 2,500 and 1,500 horse.

² 1 ūzuk J 387

ALLAH YĀR KHĀN.

His father was Iftikhār K Turkamān, who in the time of Jahangir was one of the auxiliaries in Bengal When Islām K Cistī became the governor of that province, he sent a force under the command of Shujā'at K. Shaikh Kabīi against Usmān K. Lohānī, who was rebelling in that quarter The command of the right wing was entrusted to Iftikhār K When the battle was imminent and the two forces were confionting one another, Usmān drove forward a warlike elephant against the imperial vanguard and defeated it and tuined against Iftikhāi. He stood firm and stretched forth the aim of battle, and after a number of his old servants and followers had been slain, Iftikhāi was also killed 2

Allah Yār, after the heroism of his father, became a favounte of Jahangir and in time rose to be an Amir In the end of that king's reign and the beginning of Shah Jahan's he attained the rank of 2,500, and according to old custom was enrolled among the auxiliaries of Bengal Qāsim K, the governor of Bengal, sent his son 'Inayat Ullah along with the Khān to take the port of Hoogly, which is one of the leading ports in Bengal The leadership and control were entrusted to the Khān He did good service in this victory and by his skill and bravery rooted out in the fifth year the tree of infidelity and of the sway of the Frank which had put down its veins and fibres (rag u resha) in that country, and in place of the nāqūs³ (wooden gong) he caused the voice of God's praise to resound. As a reward he received an increase in horsemen and in rank After that, he during

¹ $K\overline{a}rz\overline{a}r\ tar\overline{a}z\overline{u}$ a similar phrase to $qangtar\overline{a}z\overline{u}$ used in the notices of Abul-Maalī and Jahangir Qulī

² Literally "After a number of the old servants and helpers had decked the face of courage with the rouge of life-sacrifice, that drunkerd with bravery's wine manfully drained the bowl of death'

³ See Hughes' Dict of Islam The naque is used in some eastern churches, but here must be understood to mean the bells For account of siege of Hooghly see Elliot VII 31

the government of Islām K. (Mashhadī) together with Islām K's brother Mir Zamu-d-din 'Ali S'aadat K led 1 an army into Küc Hājū in the north of Bengal and did good service in extirpating the Assamese who attempted to help the ruler of Kuc Haju and who trespassed into the imperial territory. He reduced the arrogant to obedience and returned safe and full of plunder. was raised to the rank of 3,000 with 3,000 horse. In the same province (of Bengal) he died in the 23rd year, in the beginning of 1060, 1650. He had sons and other kindred. His sons Isfandıyar, Mah Yar and Zu-l-fiqar obtained suitable fiefs and appointments in that province. The second son died in the 22nd year in his father's lifetime, and the third in the 26th year, after his father's death Rahman Yar, the brother of Allah Yar, obtained in the 25th year, at the request of Prince Muhammad Shujā', the governor of the province, the rank of 1,500 with 1,000 horse, and the office of the charge of Jahangirnagar (Dacca) Afterwards he got the title of Rashīd K, and in the 29th year he had been appointed as Prince Muhammad Shujā's deputy to the charge of He delayed to go there and occupied himself with his former employment (at Dacca). When Shujā retreated before Aurangzeb, he went off to Bengal in a ruined condition and vainly tried to oppose the pursuit of M'uazzam K Khān-Khānān, and in the 2nd year of Aurangzeb established himself in Tanda in order to spend the rains there When he heard that Rashid K was recalcitrant and that a number of the landholders in that part of the country had joined with him in opposition and that he wished to take the imperial fleet and join M'uazzam K, he deputed his eldest son Zamu-d-din 2 along with Saivid 'Ālām Bārha in order that when he (the son) came to Dacca he might arrange to kıll Rahmān Yār By fraud and pretext he (Zaınu-d-dīn) one day

¹ Pādshāhnāma II 75 It was in the 10th year of the reign 1047, 1637-1638 See also Khāfī K II 559.

² Khāfī K I 570 and 618 has Zamu-l-fābidīn, but at II 49 he has Zamu-d-dīn In the Blochmann MS and the IO 628 we have le instead of ta in the third last line of the biography The account in text is taken from the 'Alamgirnāma, p 515, where the name of Shujā's son is given as Zainu-d-dīn It was Zainu-d-din, who went to Dacca and had Rashīd K alias Rahmān Yār put to death summoned him to the hall of audience and gave a signal to his men They all attacked Rohman Yar with their weapons and killed him.

ALLAH YAR K MĪR TŪZAK (Marshal, master of ceremonies).

He was a servant of Aulangzeb from the days of his prince-hood, and was in attendance in the battle with Maharājah Jeswant Singh. He distinguished himself in the first battle against Dārā Shikoh. In the first year of the reign he received the title of Khān, and he conveyed the treasure from the royal camp to Multan for the expenses of the force which under the charge of Khalīl Ullah K. had set forth to pursue Dārā Shikoh. After the battle with Muhammad Shujā' he was made superintendent of the cavalcade (?) (darogha-1-mulāzamān-1-jīlau) and given a commission of 1,500 with 1,500 horse. In the fifth year he was appointed in succession to Hūshdār K, darogha of the ghusalkhāna (private audience-room) and given a flag. He died in the 6th year, 1073, 1663.

AMĀN ULLAH KHĀN 1 ZAMĀN BAHĀDUR M

Son and heir of Mahābat K Zamāna Beg His mother belonged to the Khānazāds of Mewat In contradistinction to his father he was adorned with praiseworthy qualities, and was superior in excellencies to his contemporaries Men were astonished at such a father having such a son When in the 17th year of Jahangu, the die for overthrowing the fortune of Shah Jahan was éast in the name of Mahābat K, the latter was recalled from Kabul, and the management of that country was given to M Aman Ullah as deputy for his father, and he received the rank of 3,000 and the title of Khānzād Khān² The Uzbeg named Jatī, who belonged to the Alman tribe and was a servant of Nazr Muhammad K, the ruler of Balkh—he was commonly called Ilangtosh because in battle he left his chest bare, for the Turks term "naked" īl-

¹ Pādshāhnāma I 158

² Khānazād in variant and in Iqbālnānia The explanation of īlangtosh is given in Iqbālnāma 228, where the real name is said to be Ikhastī or Ḥas-nī See also Tūzuk J 388 Though here the word is written as Ilang, it is Alang or at least only Ilang at I, p 187 But Ilang or Jeleng is night See Zenker s v

ang, and chest tosh—was prominent on the borders of Khurāsān, and between Qandahar and Ghaznīn, and acquired a name as a raider and several times attacked Khurasan, so that the Shah of Peisia (Shah Abbas) was alaimed 1 at him He founded a fort 2 in the Hazārajāt in older to control the Hazāra tilbe whose seat (yūrat) was on the boundaries of Ghaznīn, and who from old times paid tribute to the governor thereof. He also sent his sister's son with an army to over an e them Thereupon the heads of the Hazāra tribe applied for help and iedress to Khānzād K. He hastened with a well-equipped force against the Uzbegs, and their leader (Hangtosh's sister's son) and a number of his followers were slain in battle. Khānzād K also destroyed the fort Ilangtosh by importunity got a sort of leave from Nazr Muhammad K -who had no intention of attacking the imperial territories—and in the 19th year prepared for battle, accompanied by a large number of Uzbegs and Almancis, s at a distance of two los from Ghaznin Khānzād K, with the help of the contingent of the province, distinguished himself in this battle and showed devotion in killing and making prisoners of the enemy They say that the elephants did great things in this battle. Whenever the Uzbegs made an attack, the elephants were driven against them, and their horses took fright In short the Uzbegs could not advance and Hangtosh was obliged to fly They say that in the battle an armed trooper was made prisoner. They were about to kill him when he cried out that he was a woman When they stripped the trooper they found that he was a woman She stated that nearly a thousand women like her were in the army, and wielded swords in a masculine manner Khānzād K pursued the foe for six kos and then returned victorious

When the government of Bengal was given to Mahābat K , \underline{K} hānzād K was at his father's request recalled from Kabul In the 20th year when Mahābat was censured and summoned to

¹ See Iqbālnāma 228, and Tūzuk J 388

² At Citūr, Iqbālnāma 225, and Sawār in Tūzuk J 386, where the word Ilang tosh is given as Palangposh

³ Text Imancis, but the word is Alman or Alamanci, ie "robber" See T Jahangiri 387

⁴ Sark dara, Iqbālnāma, 226.

court, the government of Bengal was assigned to Khānzād Afterwards, when Mahābat K in retribution for his deeds fled from the banks of the Jhelam, Khānzād was removed from his government of Bengal and came to court By his excellent behaviour he retained respect and did not deviate one han's breadth from submission to Asaf K After Jahangir's death, he was associated with Asaf K in the proceedings that were taken then. beginning 1 of Shah Jahan's reign he came from Lahore and did homage, and received the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse, the title of Khān Zamān and the government of Malwa in succession to Mozaffar K. M'amūrī In the same year, when his father was made governor of the Deccan, he went 2 there as his father's deputy After that, when in the 2nd year the government of the Deccan was given to Irādat K, who had the name of A'zim K., Khān Zamān kissed the threshold and went off to his fief of Sambhal When Shah Jahan proceeded to the Deccan to quell Khān Jahān Lodī, the Khān Zamān followed him and joined Āsaf K Yemenu-d-daula who had been appointed to chastise Muhammad 'Ādıl Shah, the ruler of Bījāpūr In the 5th year at the time of the royal return from Burhanpur to Upper India, the government of the Deccan and of Khandes was taken from A'zım K and given to Mahābat K who was then in charge of Delhi An order was issued to Yemenu-d-daula to leave Khān Zamān and his contingent in Burhanpur and to come to court with A'zim Khan and other officers At the same time, Khān Zamān got possession of the strong fort of Gālna Mahmūd K the governor of the fort had withdrawn from obedience to Fath K, the son of Malik 'Ambar, because he had put to death the Nızām Shah, and wished to make over the fort to Sāhū Bhonsla When Khān Zamān's father addressed himself, in the 6th year, to the taking of the lofty fort of Daulatabad, the Khān Zamān came with 5000 troopers prepared for battle, and went to every battery that needed assistance that time 20,000 cattle,4 as also corn, and a number of the contingent troops, were in Zafarnagar, but were not able to join on

¹ Pādshāhnāma I 158

² Pādshāhnāma I 199

³ Pādshāhnāma I 442-444

⁴ Pādshāhnāma I 505 The cattle

account of the predominance of banditti Khān Zamān went there, and Sāhūji Bhonsla and Bahlūl K surrounded him in Caklthana three kos from Khiiki The Khan Zaman maintained his ground, and discharged rockets, gajnal2 (elephant-guns) and muskets From whichever side the enemy advanced, they received a rebuff, and when night fell both armies left off fighting Khān Zamān remained on the field of battle and prudently waited (on guard) till the moining The enemy saw that they could not succeed and retreated in despan He conveyed the provisions to his father and continually behaved bravely both in the batteries and on foraging parties On another occasion he went off to bring in the coin, the money, and the gunpowder of the empire, which had reached Rohankhera and could not advance farther Randaula K, Sāhū and Yāqūt Ḥabshī followed him up with the idea that they might lay hands on the convoy The Khān Khānān heard of this and appointed Nasīrī K (i e, Khān Daurān) to assist him Khān Zamān by his vigour and courage took everything (of the convoy) with him and was returning march the vanguard and the realguard were more than a kos from the centre, and as they were entering Khirki the enemy suddenly fell upon them A great fight took place The enemy were punished After the victory over the fort (Daulatabad), he was, at and fled the request of prince Shujā', appointed to take part in the siege of the strong fort of Parenda Khan Zaman went off in advance and did not fail to drive mines and elect batteries, but on account of the double-facedness of the officers and the arrival of the rainy season, the taking of the fort was delayed The prince Mahābat K and others returned without having effected their object

Although Mahābat K was fonder of him than of all his other sons, and whenever it was mentioned that such and such a thing was the affair of Amān Ullah (sir—i—Amān Ullah) he would give up the claim even if it was a matter of lacs of rupees, yet from savagery and wickedness he would in public diwān use outrageous.

were for carrying the grain, and in the Pādshāhnāma the phrase is gāoghala, not gāo u ghala as in text

¹ Pādshāhnāma l c Bāgh Cakalthāna

 $^{^{2}}$ Pādshāhnāma I p 506, says gajnal = badalica 8 abuse about him Though the Khān Zamān both openly and by hints sent messages to him begging him to have respect to his (Khān Zamān's) years and to preserve his honour, and not to bring him into contempt, Mahābat only insulted him the more. The Khan Zaman repeatedly said, "Death is not in my power, and what difficulty would there be in going away,1 but I should be ruined both spiritually and materially "When his soul was specially afflicted, he went 2 off without taking leave and departed by the Rohinkhera ghāt with the intention of going to court the first day he reached Burhanpur, and after a night crossed by the Handia ferry Mahābat K was vexed and grieved, and said, "If the courtiers—who are all against me—say evil things of me to the king, it will be ascribed (by the king) to enmity and envy, but now that such a son, who is famed throughout the world for goodness, goes off in this way, there will certainly be a bad mark against me He has disgraced me in my old age" And then he would heave a cold sigh and 3 lay his hand upon his knee, and say, "Ah, Amān Ullah, you will die young" They say that when Khān Zamān's arrival was reported to the king he recited this verse

Verse

The beloved is so treated, alas then for the stranger

As it chanced on the day that Khān Zamān was to do homage there came the news of Mahābat K's death Shah Jahan sent

¹ The sentence is obscure, but nearly all the MSS seem to agree in the reading kushtan "to kill" cannot however think that Aman Ullah spoke of killing his own father I think that we must read gashtan, to depart Perhaps cha qadr kar ast means, "What sort of thing would it be for me to leave my father should be ruined morally and physically " Possibly we should read hushtī wrestling, and understand the son as saying that he could not contend with his father BM MS Add 65.7 apparently has kushti "struggling or wrestling "

² Pādshāhnāma I, Part 2, p 59, Khāfī K I 501

³ An attitude in prayer

⁴ Alluding to the belief that those who cause their elders to be ill-spoken of will die young. See B 569 note, where a similar verse is quoted about 'Urfī as his chronogram. Apparently the eastern superstition referred to by B is connected with the fifth Commandment. Mahābat's remark came true, for Amān Ullah only survived his father by two years, dying in 1046, while his father died in 1044, 1634 36

Yemenu-d-daulah and other officers to offer condolences and sent for Khān Zamān and treated him with various favours. As up to that time there had been one governor for Khandes and Berar there was now a division made. The Bālāghāt which means Daulatabad. Ahmadnagar, Sangmanīr Junair Pattan Jālnapūr, Bīr, Dhārwar and part of Berar, and the whole of Telingāna, the revenue of which was one and twenty krors of dāms, was made over to him (Khān Zamān), and he was sent off to take charge As in consequence of the chastisement of Jujhār Singh Bandīla, the government of Malwa was made over to Khān Daurān, Khandes was assigned to Hāhwardī and Berar was made part of the Bālāghāt and given to the Khān Zamān

In the 9th year when Shah Jahan proceeded to the Deccan to visit the fort of Daulatabad, the Khan Zaman was sent off with Rão Satr Sāl and other Rajputs, as vanguard, and Bahādur K Rohilla and a number of Afghans as rearguard, to conquer the territory of 2 Camargonda which was the home of Sahū, and also the country of the Konkan which was in his possession, and likewise to devastate the Bijāpūi lands which were in that direction. He chastised Sāhū several times, and placed thānas in Camārgonda and other estates of Ahmadnagar When 'Adıl Shah submitted, he returned and received the title of Bahādur After that, he was sent to take Junair, which is one of the great Nizām Shāhī forts The Khan Zaman regarded the pursuit and punishment of Sahū as the most important matter, and followed him to the Konkan never ceased his pursuit Sāhū allowed his home and goods to be plundered and took refuge in the fort of Māhūlī As Randaula K was ordered, on the part of 'Adıl Shah, to co-operate with the Khān Zamān Bahādui and to rescue the forts which Sāhū had taken possession of, and to make them part of the imperial territories, he invested Māhūlī on one side while Khān Zamān did so

¹ Khāfī K I 502 Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, p 62 The Deccan was now divided into the Bālāghāt (above the Ghats) and the Payanghāt (below the Ghats) 1 arb and 20 krors of dāms would be £3,000,000

^{2 &}quot;I huty-two miles south of Ahmadnagar The Chambergoonder of the Bombay Route Map" Elliot vii 52 note, and I G xxii 309 on the other. Sāhū¹ became fughtened and surrendered to the Khān Zamān the forts of Junair, Tringalwārī, Trimbak, Harīs, Jūdhan and Harsal (Harsira of Elliot), together with the relative of the Nizām Shah,—who was with him,—in the 10th year of the reign 1046, 1636-37 When the subāhdārī of the whole of the four provinces of the Deccan was entrusted to Prince Aurangzeb Bahādur, the Khān Zamān returned to Daulatabad and entered into that prince's service. He had long suffered from various diseases. Sometimes he got well and sometimes he had relapses At last in the end of the year in question he died 2. The chronogram was Rustum Zamāna mard. "The Rustum of the age is dead." (1047, 3 1637) They say that when he recovered consciousness at the last breath, he uttered this famous stanza.—

Verse

Amānī,4 life hangs on the lip like a lamp at dawn I desire the signal which may end matters

He was the unique of the age for courage and military skill He was very choleric and jealous, but in spite of that he was so mild and courteous that those who were deadly enemies of his father unrolled for him the carpet of love and single-heartedness though Mahābat K used to say, "Their love is enmity against me, and if after my death this unanimity and friendship remain, you have permission to abuse me!" He was also unequalled for wisdom and knowledge. He wrote 5 a history of all the princes of the earth. He also composed the collection called the Ganj Bādāward 6. Amānī was his poetical sobriquet and he is the author of a divān. These lines are from it:—

l Elliot VII, 59, 60 Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, 228, etc

 $^{^2}$ Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, p 257 He died on 14 Zīlhajja 1046 = 29th April, 1637, id 293

o The chronogram is not quite correct for he died in the last month of 1046

⁴ I presume that it is the angel of death who is supposed to be speaking

Compare Johnson's 'Counts death kind Nature's signal of retreat'

⁵ Rieu Cat. 509a Sprenger's Cat 330 and 109 Ethé Ind Cat, p 857, No 1571? There is a copy of Amānī's diwān in the Bodleian Library See Cat, p 683, No 1095

⁶ Bādāward was the name of the second of Khusrau's treasures See Versi.

Write our name on the rim of the cup
That it may abide while the cup goes round
Should the sphere not turn as we wish, say "Turn not"
Enough if the cup turn concordant with our wish

He had one son. His name was M. Shuki Ullah. He was able and known to the sovereign. At the time when his father went to relieve Junan, he as his deputy was sent off to guard Burhānpūr

AMAN ULLAH KHAN

Grandson of Hāhwidī K 'Alamgītī, his father probably was the Amān Ullah K the son of Hahwidī, who after his father's death became faujdār of Agia and got the title of Khān In the 22nd year he (the father) was faujdār of Gwahyar and fell bravely at the battle of the intrenchments of Bījāpār. The subject of this notice apparently got his father's title and had a commission of 1000 with 500 horse and was distinguished among the khānazādas. In the end of Aurangzeb's reign he came to the front by his courage and devotion and became an Amir. When in the beginning of 18th year the king—the holy warrior—(jehādārī) addressed himself to the capture of the robber-castles, he after taking the fort of Rājgarha turned his rein towards capturing the fort of Tornā which was distant four kos

It is well known that in the end of Aurangzeb's reign many forts, which belonged to Siva (Sivaji) and which were taken from his agents, were obtained by the imperial officers sending money to the governors, in order to get their own discharge (from the task of taking them). The governors therefore surrendered them. The king was quite aware of this, and so it repeatedly happened that the very sum which had been paid for the delivery of the fort was given to the taker after the capture by way of a present

Rieu II, 439b and 509b Ethé states that it was a work on agriculture

¹ Or Ilāhvardī (the gift of God)

² Maasır 'Ālamgīrī, 262

³ id 486, Khāfī K II, 521 Elliot

VII, 377 Twenty m S W Poonah Räjguth is three m east of it, Grant-Duff I, 131-32

⁴ Siva died in 1680, 27 years before the end of Aulangzeb's leign

But this fort came into the possession of the imperial servants by dint of courage and the stroke of the sword! The brief account of this is that Tarbīyat K set! himself to run an entrenchment from the side of the gate and Muhummad Amīn K. Bahādur barred the egress of the be-reged in another direction. Sultan Husain known as Mīr Malang on one side, and Amān Ullah on another girt up the loins of self-sacrifice. At last, on 15 Zul-Q'ada 1115, 11 March 1704, at night, Amān Ullah K induced some Māwah? footmen to send, first, one of their number, who parted, as it were, with his life, to the stone heap (sangchīn, perhaps

Maasır 'Alamgīrī, 187, the word is wrongly written مادليه mādalpa, with the variant madaliya It is written correctly in Khāfī K II, 522, whom the Maasir has copied The mal ya'ni humund ' mal, that is to say, noose or lasso" of the Maasir was perhaps "the strong narrow band of considerable length tightly girt about the loins" of Grant-Duff I 224 Perhaps however māl is māla, a garland, and also a string, and the word is almost certainly connected with the malchar of the Padshahnama, Part II, of vol I, pp 107, 108, and 109, referred to by Irvine, Army of Moghuls, p 278 Irvine thought that malchar might mean a trench, but the expression malchar lhud, "their own malchār," at top of p 109, shows that this cannot be so Also on p 107 we have the word malchar followed a line or two below by the word kumund, and as if the two were synonymous Grant Duff refers to the escalade of Tornā in a note at I, p 399 day of the capture was also Aurangzeb's birthday and the day of his accession, Khāfi K II 522 the first day of Farwardin account of a Māwalı being sent up to fasten a rope or ladder of ropes may be compared with the account of the taking of Singurh in Grant-Duff I 243

¹ Bamürcāl dawānī nishast text has dawālī, which does not seem to have any sense The BM MSS which I have consulted have also dawātī But the Massir 'Ālamgīrī from which the passage has been copied has at p 486 dawan (נפוט), and it is so also in the BM MS of the Maasır 'Alamgiri Add 19, 495 My friend Mr Irvine has suggested that dawani is right and that the phrase means to 1un, 1e, to make, a battery or entrenchment I think that this view is correct, for I find in Khāfī K I, 688, the phrase nagb dawandan twice used to mean the driving of a mine See also Maasır 'Ālamgīrī, 413, three lines from foot, the phrase murcal rawan sakht, and do 413, two lines from foot, the phrase murcāl dawīd The same murcāl dauānī occurs in Maasir III, 41, six lines from foot

Mawulee of Grant-Duff, I 224, and the word means an inhabitant of the Mawals or mountain valleys see id I 127 Grant-Duff says, "Both they and the Hetkurees possessed an extraordinary facility of climbing, and could mount a precipice, or scale a rock with ease where men of other countries must have run great risk of being dashed to pieces" In the embrasure) of the fort, and to make his mal, ie, lasso fast to the stones Five and twenty men got on the top of the lofty hill by help of this lasso and entered the foit. They raised the cry of victory The Khān and his brother 'Atā Ullah K and some others followed at their heels Hamidu-d-din K, who was waiting for his opportunity, on hearing this news fastened lopes on his waist like those who had gone before and got up. Many of the infidels who tried to oppose were slain. The others crept into the citadel and asked for quarter. The fort received the name of Fatūh-al-ghaib (marvellous victories), and Amān Ullah K received an increase of 500 with 200 dūāspa (two hoise) hoise. After that he received royal favours and did many brilliant feats He got promotion again and again, and after the victory of Wākinkera 1 he received drums in token of his good services After the death of Aurangzeb he hastened from the Deccan to Upper India along with Muhammad A'zim Shah and fought bravely in the battle with Bahādur Shah and was severely wounded He then surrendeted his borrowed life!

AMĀNAT K MĪRAK M'UĪNU-D-DĪN AHMAD

The forgiven Khān was by name Mīrak M'uīnu-d-dīn Ahmad Amānat Khān Khwāfī He was right-minded, well-principled, an acute perceiver of the truth, humble in disposition independent in soul, of a heavenly nature, and a holy blend, of excellent manners, and praiseworthy morals, a master of gentleness, harmoniously elevated, of an excellent countenance, and lofty genius, pure-hearted, magnanimous, an established pillar of trust and reliability, a solid foundation of generosity and bounty, of sound judgment, and right-thinking, hating little, loving much

The real home of his honoured ancestors was the city of Herat, the capital of Khurāsān His grandfather Mīr Hasan was annoyed for some reason or other and took the path of separation from his father Mīr Husain, who was one of the leading men of that city, and came to the township of Khwāf, which is a small tract in that kingdom, the inhabitants of which have been distinguished from early times for ingenuity and intellect Khwāja 'Alāū-

¹ Elliot vii, 377

d-dīn Muhammad, who was one of the principal men of Khwāf, had regard to old acquaintance with his ancestors, and received him with kindness and gladness, and took him into his house the light of greatness and nobility appeared on the forehead of his character, he gave him his daughter in maritage. In consequence, Mīn Hasan took up his abode there and became the father of a family Afterwards when the famous Khwaja Shamsu-d-dīn 1 Muhammad Khwāfī, the son and heir of the Khwāja aforesaid, entered the service of Akbar and obtained high rank and consideration, Mīrak Kamāl the son of Mīr Hasan, went off to India to his mother's brother (taghar) with his son Mīrak Husain, and spent his days in affluence and comfort. There too he married one of the daughters of the Saiyids of his native city 'Atā Ullah was the fruit of this mairiage, and in the Balkh campaign accompanied Prince Aurangzeb, and acquired respect and consideration On account of some reason, he separated from Prince Aurangzeb and became one of the king's servants, and was raised to the rank of 700 He was first bakhshī of the Ahadīs at Kabul and afterwards diwan of Patna In that place the lamp of his life was extinguished in the close of Shah Jahan's reign Mīrak Husam (the son by the first mannage) was distinguished during the reign of Jahangii for his skill and knowledge, and held high office In the 8th year he was employed in company with Prince Sultan Khuriam (Shah Jahan) in the campaign against the Rānā (of Udaipūi), and when Udaipūi was taken, and military stations were established in the Rānā's teiritory, Mīrak Husain was made bakhshī and record-keeper of Kombalmīi he became bakhshī of the Deccan, and after Shah Jahan's accession he became diwan of the Deccan From that day to thiswhich is more than a hundred years—this office has been hereditary in the family In the 8th year he received a present of Rs 10,000, with a robe of honour and a horse, and was sent on an embassy to Nazı Muhammad K, the rules of Balkh, in company with Payında² Be, the ambassador of the said Khān, with presents to the value of Rs 125,000. In the royal letter he was styled in eloquent language a Saivid of true race and of approved abilities On his jetuin from Türän, he was censuled for some jeason When he died his hens continued to be employed in the government service. Khan Dauran Nasiat Jang remembered the old intimacy and procured their advancement. The heir of the deceased Mirak Wuinu-d-din Ahmad was in the flower of his youth. After accouning the current sciences he entered the king's service and in the year 1050 1640, he was made bakhshi and historiographer of the province of Ajmere. After that it is probable that he went to the Deccan for service - Accordingly Sharkh M'arūf Bhakkarī writes in his Zakhīra-ul-Khwānīn, which was composed in 1060, 1650, "Mirak Muinu-d-din, the son of Mirak Husain Khwāfī-whose father and grandfather were higher than the sun for greatness and family—is perfectly endowed in this household (?) (darīn hauālī) with wisdom, knowledge, ability and calligraphy and conducts himself with honour in the Decean'. In the 28th year of Shah Jahan he was with Prince Dara Shikoh in the Qandahai campaign and after his return in the same year he was, m 1064, 1654, made diwan, bakhshi and historiographer of the province of Multan He spent a long time in that quarter and low, small and great, there beheld his truthfulness and honesty, and strength and counsel, and put the ring of devotion in then ears and behaved as his disciples. Up to the present day Mīnak Jīū's name is on the lips of the people there. At two los distance from the city he made a house and garden which became known as "Kūtila-i-Mirak Jīū" In the time of 'Ālamgīi he was made subahdar of Kabul and received the title of Amanat Khān

¹ He was a very distinguished officer and became diwan of the empire See Blochmann, 445

² It is Nābahar Be in Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, 104 Cf Khāfī K I 508-9

Though the conferring of titles by an author of bounty (i e, a kingly benefactor, etc.) depends upon the qualities of the nominee, and it behaves the latter to strive to live up to his title, yet this cannot be said in this instance, for in it the name and the person named were identical. Or rather the latter was a thousand times noblei and more valuable than the name. In the world of creation and existence no quality comes up to trustworthiness and honesty (amānat u dīānat). They are very precious and very rare. Wherever they bloom there is a spring-time of blessings. They are the source of lofty dignities and the clivic of fortune and happiness. In the world's market, merchandise is disposed of by the brokerage of honesty, and in life's garden the fruits of success are to be gathered from the tree of Trust (amānat).

¹ Kūtila or Kutili is a Hindustani word signifying a granaiy

² The sentence is obscure, and I am by no means sure that I have fully understood it,

In fine he was promoted in the 14th year of 'Ālamgīr to the rank of 1000 with 200 horse, and to the diwānī of the Khālsa in succession to 'Inayat K, and he received a crystal' inkstand When in the 16th year Asad K—who after the death of Ja'afar K. carried on the duties of the Viziership as deputy—withdrew his hand from affairs, Amañat K and the Diwān-i-tan,' in accordance with orders, put their own signatures and seals on the papers of their offices

Inasmuch as the thoughts of honourable men who have no mixture of hypocrisy or self-interest are engrossed by duty to God, and the welfare of their master, they have no fear of the blame of critics. At this time the Begams of the palace and the confidential eunuchs, who had audience of the king and were proud of their intimacy, out of base covetousness did improper acts and repeatedly made improper recommendations. As now there was no place for such recommendations, and whatever was profitable to the government and was to the advantage of the people of God was carried out without the instigation of any adviser, the edge of their sword did not cut. Of necessity they gut up their loins for annoyance, and as nothing stopped their intrigues they made use of the report of Abdu-l-Hakim the Peshdast. As in consequence

¹ Maasır 'Ālamgīrī 110, and Blochmann 412, n 1

² For tankhwāh The department of grants, Irvine A of M 39 For Asad K Asafu-d-daulah's temporary retirement see his biography I 311 The diwān-i-tan then was Kifayat K

³ See the Maasir 'Alamgīrī, 126, where it is recorded that "it was ordered that Amānat K, the diwan of the Khālsa, and Kıfayat K, the dıwānı-tan, should put their seals below the seal of the chief diwān and carry on the duties of the diwānī' This was in 1083, 1672-73 See also this quoted in Massiru-l-Umarā I 311

⁴ Literally "the nails of their digging were not stopped anywhere"

⁵ In the Maasir 'Alamgiri 144 it is mentioned that Amanat K resigned

of continual toil 1 Amānat K was disgusted and was in search of an excuse for resigning, he made use of this affair and in the 18th year presented his resignation at Hasan Abdal Though the king observed that the report of the Peshdast was no cause for resigning, Amānat would not agree As the marks of honesty and skill (in Amanat) had been impressed on the heart of the king, he immediately appointed him to the charge 2 of Lahore and its fort also was made Diwan of the province Though he declined financial work, yet the king ordered that his eldest son 'Abdu-l-Qādir should carry on the duties There, besides the buildings of Kawāfīpura neai the Chauk, he made a large building and baths which are famous throughout the world In the 22nd year, when the king was staying at Ajmir, Amanat was made 3 Diwan of the provinces of the Deccan and received a robe of honour that time till now this office has mostly remained with this family When in the 25th year Amangabad was honomed by the king's presence, the house of Nizām Shāh known as Sabz (green) Bungalow—which is at present the governor's house—was his (the king's residence) It belonged to Plince Muhammad A'zim Amanat K wished to buy the fort of Harsul, which is two kos from the city, and to make it his permanent 1 iesidence

the peshdasti of the Khālsa and was appointed to the charge of Lahore Then it says that Kifayat K, the Peshdast of the office of the Tan, was appointed to the peshdasti of the Khālsa in Amānat's room an account of Amanat K in Khafi K 261 and 376-78 In the latter passage great praise is given to Amant, but it is stated that he incurred the king's displeasure by remitting the poll-tax in a number of instances This act was brought to the king's notice by Rashid K, whom the Massir 'Alamgui calls the peshdast of the Khāfi K calls him the Diwan of the Khalsa and says he had a rivalry with Amanat Perhaps Rashid K is another name for 'Abdul-Hakīm There is however an 'Abdul-Hakīm named at p 266 of the M 'Ālamgīrī He may have been a descendant of the Mullā Abdu-l-Hakīm of Sialkote and have made a report against Amānat foi not collecting the niziya

l Sifārish, which has also the meaning of recommendations, and may refer to reports made by Amānat's enemies

² This must be the Amānat of Manucci I 159 and Catrou, who speak of him as being a great friend to the Christians But they are wrong in speaking of him as an officer of Jahangir's time. He was great grandfather of Shah Newāz the author of the Maasir U

³ Khafi K II 261

⁴ ba tarīk multān multan etymologically means "root-place, perman-

decided upon the residence of Malik 'Ambai which is close to Shāhganj (for Amānat). Amānat K was not content to hire it and so bought it from the government. Hence this too is known as the Kūtila (of Amanat?)

In the beginning of the 27th year when the king went to Ahmadnagar masmuch as his desire was to conquer Bījāpūr and Haidarabad the pious man (Amānat) thought it right to abstain from a war against Muhammadans and presented his paper of resignation—which he had (always) at his finger-ends. The acute king read his countenance and did not take him with him but left him in charge of Aurangabad. After some months of the year his spirit flew in 1095, 1634 to the gardens of paradise. He was buried south of the city near the shrine of Shāh Nūr Hamāmī Sanyid bihishtī shud. "The Sarvid became paradisarcal" gives the date 1095. In truth the word of Death in the case of such wakeful hearts which gather outward beauties and store up spiritual rewards and live for ever is but a customary phrase.

Verse 1

Never are the men of soul dead, nor will they die Death is but a name when applied to their tribe

The truth-knower Miyān² Shāh Nūr Hamāmī, who was a dervesh, who was master of perfection, frequently said "What men ask from us is possessed by this bābāī pīr (young saint?)' and then he would point to that heart-knower (shināsā dil) (Amānat)

Khāfī Khān, the author of the Lab-Labāb history who was a man of sincere speech and a seeker after justice, has stated 3 that a really honest man who does not think of his own advancement, and who regards the welfare of the people as of more importance than the profit of the government, and in whose administration

ent abode '' The meaning however may be that Amanat wanted to make his home in Harsūl just as he had formerly done in Multan

¹ This couplet is Fairi's and occurs in his elegy on Fath Ullah Shirazi

See above p 103 and the Akbarnāma III 564

² Shāh Nūr survived Amānat K, not dying until February 1693 (Beale)

³ Khāfī K II 261

no haim has been done to the person or property of a single individual, has, with the exception of Amanat K, been raiely seen or There were frequent instances of accountable collectors and impoverished landholders coming near to death in prison Such things only produced oppression and gave a bad name to the government He took a little in comparison with what was demanded from them, and fixed instalments for each person and Accordingly in Lahore on one occasion the then released them news-writers reported that there had been a loss of two lacs of rupis on this account. The king was displeased, but when he became acquainted with the facts of the case, he applauded In the Decean 1 also there was an old balance of ten or twelve lacs of rups debited against imaginary (saqīmu-l-hāl) ryots Every year ahadis and mansabdars were appointed They did not realise a single $d\bar{a}m$ of it and showed 2 a large amount as held in suspense (mauqūfāna) Similarly he by one stroke of his pen wrote off as remitted a large sum due from needy proprietors as peshkash (presents due by them to the king or his officers)

By chance 3 the king one day was plaising his honesty. Amānat said, "There is not another traitor ($\underline{kh}\,\bar{a}\bar{\imath}n$) like me, for sion Khāfī K has after them the word navishta, and apparently he means that Amānat wrote "tūmān nadānad," is a unrealisable, or 'not to be entered in the accounts," and so remitted these old and imaginary balances. It was an old custom in Bengal to make the ryots who remained, or the head man, responsible for the rents of ryots who had died or run away (palatoka), and I imagine that the same practice was followed in the Deccan old 377, where the conversation is given at greater length. The final treasury referred to by the king means the treasury in heaven. Khāfī K represents him as saying that Amānat looked after both his earthly and his heavenly treasure. The Maasir does not go on to say that Aurangzeb, though he forgave the

^{1 1}d 377

² This passage is obscure both in the text and in Khāfi Khān Judging from the sentence that follows I am irclined to think that the real meaning is that Amanat did not collect the money but wrote it off as irrecoverable (mauqūfāna) as remitted Observe that in Khāfi K there is a dash after minattandand (377, line 7) to indicate that there is a break in the The meaning however may be that the collectors did not allow the ryots any credit to: the current year for what they paid, but credited everything to these old and imaginary The Maasir in copying Khāfī K has altered his phraseology and omitted one or two important The words "tūmār nadārad" in the text and in Khafi K (377, line 8) seem to me to be a technical expres-every year I remit sums due by debtors to my master" The king observed, "I know that you are heaping up money for me in the final treasury"

In short the service which this great man performed for the State in a small office—for his rank was not more than 2000—was a strange one. There were many dealings which were contrary to humanity, and so though they were all royal orders, from piety and gentleness of heart he did not carry them into effect. On account of so acting contrary to the pleasure of his master he used to tender his resignation, but the righteous king had regard to his disinterestedness and honesty and passed over the matter without notice.

They tell that Mukhlas 1 Khān Bakhshī used to relate that Amanat K held a singular position in the king's mind. At the time when the king was at Aurangabad Prince M'uīzzud-dīn represented "Our workshops have for want of space been placed outside of the city, and in this rainy season they are becoming I ask that the mansions of Sanjai Beg deceased, whose bath is famous in that city, which have recently been escheated, and which the heirs have not yet quitted, may be given for the storing of our goods" The king therefore issued an order upon the relatives of the deceased No attention was paid to it petition of the prince was again brought before the king, and an order was given to Muhammad 2 'Alī the Khānsāmān—who had no equal or partner in respect of intimacy and influence (with the king)—that he should set some one over Amanat K to see that the building was delivered up to the plince's men The worshipper of right (Amānat) did not attend to this either. At last one day in a cortège, when both of them were in the retinue, Muhammad 'Alī K represented that although a sazāwal had been appointed to other remissions, censured Amanat for remitting the poll-tax (jezzya), and that in consequence Amanat refrained in future from remitting the poll-tax. See p 378 The Maasir has the phrase "end of the words" at the close of the abstract of Khāfī K as if it were a verbatim quotation

Perhaps a poet See Khāfī K II 381 But more probably the Mukhlas K of Maasıı III 566 who was Bakhshī of Balkh

² Son of Hakim Daud Taqarıab K III 625

make over the house to the prince (murshidzāda "his Master's son"), nothing had been done. The king turned to Amānat K, and he frankly said, "The place cannot be made over to the prince at this season of lightning and rain (barq u bārān). Where will Sanjar Beg's people find shelter and shielding (sir u sāya). I'm frightened for myself for I have a wife and children (kul u kuuare), to-morrow this day's case may be theirs". At the same time he tendered his resignation in order that such a task as this might be assigned to some one else. The king hung his head and was silent.

In his mode of life he had nothing in common with the rich, and had no acquaintanceship with the pursuits of the worldly. He was fond of learning and possessed the current accomplishments. He composed a treatise on the laws of Islam, which is a collection of the rules of the Law. He was a master of Shikasta and Nasta'līq writing. He had seven sons and eight daughters, and they all left large progeny. But the second son Wazārat Khān, whose poetical name was Guāmī, was pre-eminent for excellences. He had a poetical vein and is the author of a divān. This verse of his is famous

(Verse, see above in Gholām 'Alī's preface)

He had a son called Mīrak M'uīn K who died some time before his father and left no offspring. The accounts of the others, viz, Mīr 'Abdu-l-Qādir Dīānat K, Mīr Husam Amānat K. No. 2, and Kāzim K the direct grandfather of the writer of these pages, have been separately written. It is due to the good qualities of this great man that in this world of change, where in the twinkling of an eye great families become weak and contemptible, his children during four generations have up to the time of writing,

The phrase "to morrow," etc, may be compared with the Latin inscription often found in glaveyards, Hodie millioras tibi. Amānat was referring to the inhuman practice according to which an officer's property escheated to the clown. See Bernier on the subject in connection with Shah Jahan.

I am indebted to my friend Mr Invine for help in understanding this passage. I think that $\xi(z)$ here does not mean blind people but that is kuware must be a Deceani phrase for wife and children. Kul however may also mean household or domestics 1159, 1746, been Diwans of the Deccan and have filled other high offices with honour and credit. Such absence of misfortune is rarely seen in other families.

AMĀNAT KHĀN THE 2ND

He was Mīr Husam, the third son of Amanat K Khwafi account of his uprightness and ability he was the companion and friend of his father. After the latter's death he, as well as his brothers, became a favourite of the Khalīfa-i-Rahmān (the Vicai of God) Aurangzeb, and, though in small offices, was regarded as a confidant It was like "One of the blessings from the Barmecides," he inheriting all the respects that his father had and low of this family were treated with the favour shown to Khānazāds (children of the household) They say that one day the appreciative king appeared in public audience When the Khān (Amānat No 2) entered with his son the enclosure (sarāparda) a chōbdār (usher)—a set of men who for the most part deserve on account of their mordacity and mischievousness the rod (cob) and are fit for the gallows, seized the son's hand and kept him back. The Khān in his wrath paid no heed to the respect due to the place where he was, but turned round and seized that saucy fellow and went on and represented to the king sons of the house are to be insulted by fellows like this, what expectation have they of fame and honour in the king's service ? " The king out of respect to him dismissed the whole of the guard of that day

As the ability of the Khān made an impression on the king, when he, near the end of the 31st year, was at Bījāpūr, in the beginning of the 32nd year conferred on him his father's title and made him diwān of Bījāpūr. When in the end of the 33rd year (June 1690) he left the town of Badrī, which is 17 kos north of to four or five years out of employ He was not restored till the following year, 1160 Perhaps he never was formally dismissed

² A proverb See D'Herbelot s v Barmekian As pointed out by him,

the story is told in the Nigaristan See Bombay lithograph of 1829, p 39, it seq • Mausir A 317

⁴ This can hardly be the Bīdar of I G See Maasir A 335 Galgala is the Gulgulla of Grant-Duff I 378, and Türgal is the Tooigul of id 186 It

Bījāpūr, and came to Qutbābād Galgala belonging to Tūigal, 12 kos north of Bījāpūr and on the Kıshna, the Khān was raised from the position of diwan of Bijapur to that of daftardan-n-tan in the place of Hājī Shafī Khān In the 36th year he was made governor l of Aurangabad in the room of M'amūr K and had his rank increased to one of 1500 with 900 horse. In the same year he was summoned to court and given the office of biyutāti-i i ikāb (steward) on the death of Khwāja 'Abdu-r-Rahīm K At this time he was again appointed governor of the fort of Aurangabad was made matsadī of the port of Surat He managed matters there to the profit of the king and the comfort of the subjects, and got promotion In the 43rd year, 1111, 1699-1700, he died 2 He is buried outside that town near the city-wall He had four sons The first was Mir Hasan who married the daughter of Muhammad He is the father of the writer's mother Murād K Uzbeg died of plague in Galgala in the prime of his youth was Kamālu-d-dīn 'Alī K who is beloved by his cotemporaries for At the time of his praiseworthy character and right-thinking writing he manages the estates of Aurangabad which are the fief The second, Mîr Saiyid Muhammad Irādatmand K. of Āsaf Jāh ıs the son-ın-law of hıs uncle Dīānat K Mīr 'Abdu-l-Qādıı time of Aurangzeb he was appointed to the $biy\bar{u}t\bar{a}t\bar{i}$ of Aurangabad and in the time of Bahādur Shah was made diwān of Buihanpur The third is Mīr Saiyid Ahmad Niyāzmand K He was for a long time diwan of Berar and in the beginning of the present reign (Muhammad Shah's) went to Bengal Ja'afar K (Murshid Qulī) the Nāzım there out of love for his father welcomed him and made him superintendent of the fleet, which is the highest post in that province, and obtained for him from the court the title of Amanat K and an increase of rank After the death of Ja'afar K he was made fauidar of the estates in that province, and in the year 1157, 1744, he died The fourth was Mīr Muhammad Taqī 3 K who is is the Toragal of the maps. See Mr Irvine's article in Numismatic Supplement VII of ASB for 1907, p. 57. It is 36 m. S. Galgala and is on the Malprabha river, a tributary of the Kistna.

^{1 2}d 347 2 Maasir A 412

See Khāfī Khan II 666 68 The name is there, p 688, given as Muhammad Naqī The capture of Burhāndūr and the death of Mîr Ahmad the governor took place in the reign of married to the writer's full aunt. In the time of Bahādui Shah he was made bakhshī of Buihānpūi. In the catastrophe of Mīr Ahmad K the governor there who was killed in battle with the Mahrattas many of the matsadīs (clerks) were made prisoners. Every one of them sought to get deliverance from their clutches by craft and deceit. He from simplicity showed himself as in good circumstances and paid a large ransom. He did not approve of minimising his position. All his descendants are alive

(RĀO) AMAR SINGH

Eldest son of Rajah Gaj Singh Rāthoi. He began with a suitable office, and in the 2nd year of Shah Jahan he held the rank of 2000 with 1300 horse. In the 8th year his rank was 2500 with 1500 horse, and he had the present of a flag and an elephant. In the same year he was appointed, along with Saryid Khān Jahān Bārha to chastise Jujhār Singh Bandīla. When the fort of Dhāmūnī was taken, and Khān Daurān went inside, and Amar Singh and other leaders were outside, and waiting for the morning and the looters had entered and were occupied in looking for plunder, the ashes of a torch fell into the powder magazine under the fort, and the bastion was blown up. The pieces of stone mostly fell outside, and killed several of his companions. After returning from there he obtained the rank of 3000 with 2500 horse.

When in the 9th year the king went in person to the Deccan to put down the disturbance of Sāhū Bhonsla,—who, in spite of the Nizāmu-l-mulk's being imprisoned in Gwalioi, had laised up a boy from among the Nizam's relatives and was making a commotion,—and after crossing the Naibudda established his camp near the fort of Daulatabad, he made three of his officers leaders (of armies) and sent them off and he deputed Amai Singh to accompany Khān Daurān Bahādur. In the 10th year he came to

Shah 'Ālam (Bahādur Shah) in the year 1161, 1748 Khāfi K tells how one officer Sharafu-d dīn, the Biyūtāt (the Registrar or perhaps the Surgor) of the city, possed himself off pusician see so escaped for a ran-Bai Rs 1,200 Muhammad Naqī,

according to Khāfī K, who was a relative, was too honest or too dignified to do this, and so admitted his official rank and had to pay Rs 30,000 Khāfī K calls him baknshī and reporter (wāqa'nigāi) of the city of Burhānpūr court with Khān Daurān, and in the 11th year when 'Alī Mardān K made over the fort of Qandahai to the imperial servants, and there was a probability that Shah Safi would come in person to that neighbourhood, Sultan Shujā' was sent off there with a large force, and Amar Singh received a khilat, a horse with a silvern saddle, and a drum, and was made one of his companions wards, when his father died in that year, and the Raj and the succession went to his younger brother Jeswant Singh for reasons which have been stated at the end of the notice 1 of Rajah Gaj Singh, he received an increase of 500 horse and the title of Rao, and his rank became 3000 with 3000 horse. When in the 14th vear Sultan Murād Bakhsh was sent to Kabul for the second time, he was appointed to accompany him. After an order came for chastısıng Rajah Jagat Sıngh the son of Rajah Bāsū who had become rebellious he went off with the prince, and in the 15th year, when the Rajah in question had surrendered, and the prince waited upon his father, Amar Singh was also gratified by a reception In the same year, when a movement of the king of Persia towards Qandahar became known, and Sultan Dārā Shikoh was sent in that direction, he had an increase of 1000 and held the rank of 4000 with 3000 hoise and was appointed to accompany the prince As it then happened by Divine decree that the king of Persia died, the prince received orders to return, and Amar Singh came back and did homage In the 17th year in the end of Jamāda-al-awwal corresponding to 1054 25 July 2 1644, as he had been unable for some time to present himself on account of illness, he on convalescence came to the darbar After doing obeisance he suddenly drew his dagger and killed Salābat K Bakhshī, as detailed in the account of the latter On this catastrophe Khalīl 3 Ullah K and Arjan the son of Rajah Bethal Das Gau fell upon He struck Arjan two or three times with his dagger, and

¹ See Maasır II 225

² The Dutch clergyman Baldaeus says the occurrence was on 4 August 1644 in the afternoon, and that Amar Singh was offended because Salābat asked him why he had not previously paid his respects

³ Baldaeus says Galı (Khalıl?) K and the son of Rajah Betal Dās finished him. The king ordered Amar's body to be thrown into the river, and this offended the Rajputs

Khalīl Ullah K struck Amar Singh with his sword Arjan also struck him twice with his sword Meanwhile other men came up and finished him Though the king made inquiry into the origin of this uploar, nothing appeared except the long use of intoxicants aggravated by the illness of some days But before this there had been a dispute 1 about boundaries between his menwho were in his fief of Nāgor—and the men of Rāo Kain the son of Rāo Sūr Bhūrtīha² the jagırdāı of Bīkānīı—who had been appointed to the Deccan campaign—and his (Amai Singh's) business men had been killed Amai Singh had written to his men to collect a force and to attack Karn's troopers, and Karn learning this had written to Salābat K and asked for an Amīn (to settle the boundary) Accordingly Salābat K had reported the matter, and an Amīn had been appointed Perhaps, Amar Singh had looked upon this as siding with Kain and so committed the outrage

After this occurrence, Mīr Khān Mīr Tūzak, and Mulak Chand the accountant of the daulātkhānakhās, brought the body of Amar Singh, in accordance with orders, outside the vestibule (dillīz) of the khilwatkhāna (private chamber) and sent for his men, in order that they might take it to his house. Fifteen of his servants heard of the affair and laid hands on their swords and daggers, Mulak Chand was killed, and Mīr Khān was wounded and died on the following night. Meanwhile the Ahadīs and others came out and sent that rabble to hell. Six of the mace-bearers were killed and six were wounded. Not contented with this, a number of Amar Singh's servants resolved that they would go to Arjan's house and kill him. Balūn Rāthor and Bhāo Singh Rāthor, who at first had been servants of Amar Singh and his father and afterwards had become servants of the king, shared in this enterprise.

When this was reported to the king, he forgave the crew for

¹ Pādishāhnāma II 382

² See account of Rão Karn Bhūrtīha II 287

³ The story is told at length in the Pādshāhnāma II 380 et seq See also Tod's Rajasthan, Chapter V, Annals of Marwar Tod tells the story of Amar Singh, whom he calls Umra, being disinherited by his father, and also gives details of his outrage and death Tod and the Pādshāhnāma have Buloo or Balui instead of Balūn as in text their ignorance and ordered men to go and explain to them that if they wished, they could go to their homes with their families and Why should they ruin their house and honour? After the extent of their obstinacy was perceived, an older was given to Saiyid Khān Jahān Bārha and the men of the jilau (bodyguard) and to Rashīd K Ansārī—whose turn it was to be on guard—to go and kill them They opposed and fought as long as there was breath in their bodies, and then were slain Among the king's men, Saiyid 'Abdu-r-rasūl Bārha-who was a brave man-and Saiyid Ghulam Muhammad, son of Muhīu-d-dīn his brother, and five of his relatives were slain Amar Singh's son Rai Singh came and did homage in the 18th year and received the rank of 1000 with 700 horse In the 19th year he was appointed to accompany Prince Muiād Bakhsh in the affair of Balkh and Badakhshān, and in the 25th year he held the office of 1500 with 800 horse and accompanied Sultan Aurangzeb on the second occasion to Qanda-In the 26th year he accompanied Dāiā Shikoh, and in the 28th year he was appointed, along with S'aad Ullah K, to raze In the 30th year he received an increase of 200 horse

When the sovereignty came to Aurangzeb and the victorious army had reached Mathura, Rai Singh did homage and went with Khalīl Ullah in pursuit of Dārā Shikoh In the battle with Sultan Shuja' he was in attendance on the king. After the return to Ajmere he, in order to spite Maharaja Jeswant Singh, received the title of Rajah and a 10be of honour, an elephant and a female elephant, an adorned sword, a drum, and one lac of rupees, and received the rank of 4000 with 4000 hoise and was made head of the Rathor clan, and ruler of Jodhpur He was in the altamsh (reserve of the vanguard) in the second battle with Dārā Shikoh Afterwards he was appointed to the campaign of the Deccan and did good service along with Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh in attacking Siva Bhonsla's lands and in devastating the country of the 'Ādil In the 16th year, when \underline{Kh} ān-Jahān Bahādur Kokaltāsh was made viceroy of the Deccan, he was appointed to his van-In the 18th year, in the act of preparing for battle with 'Abdu-l-Karīm Mıyāna—who had drawn up his forces,—he fell ill and died Rāorāsapūra outside the city of Aurangabad was established by him After him, his son Indra Singh received a suitable mansab and became the leader of his native country, in the 22nd year, on the death of Maharajah Jeswant Singh, he received 1 the title of Rajah, a 10be of honour, a decorated sword, a hoise with golden trappings, an elephant, a flag, a togh In the 24th year he went with Sultan M'uazzam in and drum pursuit of Sultan Muhammad Akbai Afterwards he was for a long time appointed to serve under Fīrūz Jang, and in the 48th year had the rank of 3000 with 2000 horse. After Aurangzeb's death he went to A'zım Shah and was made an officer of 5000 Along with Zülfiqāi K he was appointed to meet Sultan Bīdāi Bakht who had, in accordance with an indication from his father, come to Ujjain but had no aimy with him India Singh however turned aside on the road and went home Har Nath Singh one of his grandchildren had come before this to the Deccan and received an estate in the province of Bihar in fief He died in 1190, 1776 Indra Singh's great-grandson Man Singh was a long time in the Deccan, and was going home when he was killed on the road by the Bhils

AMĪN K DECCANĪ

Son of Khān Zamān Shaikh Nizām In the battle fought by Muhammad A'zim Shah he and his half-brother Faiīd were the advanced guard (muqaddama-ul-jaish), and his full brothers Khān 'Ālam and Manawar were in the vanguard (haiāwal) He showed much valour and such as befitted his name and race. As some days of his life remained, he escaped without injury. They say that when Khān 'Ālam and Manawar K rushed against 'Azīmu-sh-shān they fell upon that prince's left, drove off the men in front of them and came to the rear. When they looked towards their own left, the prince's howdah came into view. They turned

¹ The bestowal of the title of Rajah on Indra Singh and his receiving the rank of 3000 zāt with 2000 horse, of which 300 were dūāspa, are recorded in the Akhbārs presented to the RAS by Colonel Tod in 1828. He is called in the Akhbār the Zamindar of Nagaur

² Khāfī K II 588 and Siyai M I, p 7 The prince meant is Bahādur Shah's son 'Azīmu-sh-shān—afterwards drowned in the Rāvī The word for howdah is bangala, and it appears from Khāfī K II 98 that this was the name of a kind of howdah which Aurangzeb had invent-round and with thirty troopers flew like moths (round a candle) in Bahādui Shah after the victory had consideration that direction upon Amin K, and though he had been on the opposite side, he. on account of his being the survivor of a brave family, encompassed Afterwards he made him faujdār of Seiā,1 him with favours which is an expression for the Carnatic of Bījāpūr It is a wide and rich territory As contiguous to that Sarkar was the territory of various zamindais, each of these paid tribute in accordance with his possessions Among them was the Mysorian, the ruler of Siliangpatan (Selingapatam), whose levenue is more than four krors of rupees There is no other zamindari in the Deccan which is equal to it for its equipments, extent of territory and abundance of treasure, or rather there is none which comes up to one-hundredth part thereof It was subjected to a fixed tribute faujdār of Serā used to collect more or less revenue according to his stiength, and, in the course of demanding an increase, things ended in a campaign Accordingly it happened in the time of the Khān (Amīn) that a large force was appointed under the command of the Dalawa, which is the same thing as Commander-in-Chief After a fight, and manful struggles on both sides, the Khān's men fled on account of the superior numbers of the enemy He himself with 300 brave men stood firm, and was near losing his life Suddenly, an arrow (or a bullet), from his hand killed the leader on the other side, and defeat became victory His authority was established Men of every quarter felt awe (hisāb bardāshtand) of him, and those who lived at a distance recognized his power and supremacy Afterwards the faujdārī of Kainūl was conferred on him, and in the time of Farrukh Siyar, Haidai Qulī K the chief Diwan of the Deccan procured for him the subāhdāiī of Beiai His Naib had taken possession and he was still in 2 Balkanda, which was his old estate, when news came of the approach of the Amīru-l-Umarā Husaın 'Alī K Out of shortsightedness and allo-

ed The battle referred to in the text is that of Jajau near Agra, which was fought 8th June, 1707, between Bahādur Shah and Azim Shah The latter was defeated and slain along with his two sons

¹ Serā or Chera, an old name for the southern part of the Madras Presidency See Chera in I G X, 192

² E Nānder and S Godavery

gance, the Khān delayed to go and welcome him After the victory over Dāūd K , the Amīru-l-Umarā sent one of his companions-Asad 'Alī K Jūlāq, whose grandfather was one of 'Alī Mardān's Turks-to take possession of Berai, but when the Khān submitted, it was restored to him When 'Iwaz K Bahādui was appointed from the court to that government, the Khan went off to the administration of Nander Owing to greed and injustice and at the instigation of the zamindais of pargana of Bodhan 1 appertaining to Nander,2 there arose an unjust quariel with the fiefholder, who was Mandhata 3 by name, and whose father Kānhojī Sukıyā was one of the Mahratta panj-hazārīs, and had performed explorts in the time of Aurangzeb Amīn K got him into his power by means of agreements and promises, and destroyed him Subsequently he, owing to the old quairel, sought to punish Jagpat Ilma (?) who had taken possession of Nirmal,5 and that proprietor, knowing of this, asked assistance from Fath Singh the adopted son of Rajah Sālrū who was the makāsdār 6 of that district Another circumstance increased the audacity of that wicked person (either Jagpat or Fath Singh) The account of it is as follows At this time the Mahratta peace had been made, which fixed the stain of a bad name on the Amīru-l-Umaiā, which will last till the judgment-day The agreement was that in the case of those estates where, on account of the strength of their position and the resistance of the landholders, the chaut could not be collected, the Amīru-l-Umaiā should render assistance As in the $t'\bar{a}l\bar{u}qs$ administered by the Khān not one $d\bar{a}m$ of the chaut had been collected in some places, even in the time of the height of the robbers' (the Mahrattas) success, the \underline{K} hān in spite of the letters of the Amīrū-l-Umarā would not lend himself to the disgrace 7 and altogether neglected to collect

7 Khāfi K II 789

¹ In Sarkār Telingāna, Jarrett II237 IG VIII 254

² Nānder is in the Nizām's Dominions, on the Godavery and N of Haidarabad

³ Possibly this is the name of a place, and the Manhat of Grant-Duff's map

⁴ The Sirkay family of Grant-Duli, T 29

⁵ Jarrett II 237 Neermal of Grant-Duff's map E Nander

⁶ See Grant-Duff I 80, 220 It was the title of a revenue officer

The province was taken from him and given to Mīrzā the chaut 'Alī Yūsuf K who was one of the brave men of the time Khān-whose authority had been diminished by the report that he had been superseded—went off to Bālkanda on the occasion of his daughter's marriage All at once Fath Singh and Jagpat came against him He looked to his lineage and glory and did not consider the number of the foe and went to encounter them with a few men As in this topsy-turvy world, success is twinned with failure, and fortune and misfortune come together, the Khān played away against these worthless fellows his amīrship and his many years of reputation, but at last escaped 1 and came to Bālkanda 2 After that, Saiyid 'Ālam 'Alī K Bahādur, when he was master of the Deccan, restored him to his province of Nander, and appointed him to the command of the right wing in the battle that he had with Nawab Fath Jang (Asaf Jah) The worthless fellow acted in an unsoldierlike manner and did not put his hand to the work and became a mere spectator and diew the line of erasure over the deeds of his ancestors Though after the victory Fath Jang sent him back to his t'alūqs, his position in hearts was lost and his reputation was gone. At the same time, as 'Iwaz K Bahādui was, on account of his rapacity (shaltāq), aveise to his retuining to Berar, he procured his being set aside, and Mutahawai K Bahādur Khweshgī's being appointed in his room As soon as he heard of this he went to Nawab Fath Jang—who had then gone towards Adonī,—but received no encouragement He returned and settled at the town of Parbanī,3 which was an estate in his fief and is twelve kos from Pāthiī In the mashrūt (1 e assigned) mahals of Nander he offered opposition to the col-Although the Khān aforesaid tiled to amend him yet he did not emerge from his ignorance and folly. At last he was arrested by him and remained in prison for a long time his son Muqarrib K —in whose biography 4 there has been mention made of these things—was promoted to service, he was by his

¹ Khāfī K II 790 He was wounded and made prisoner

² Balkonda of Grant Duff's map, E Nānder and S Godavari

³ In Sarkār Pāthrī Jarrett II. 236 The Parbhanī of I G XIX, 410

⁴ See Maasır III 796

intercession released, and villages yielding Rs 50,000 were settled upon him out of Bālkanda for his expenses, and he spent a long time in the charge ' of his son As he felt distressed by his control, he in the 6th year of Muhammad Shah came to Aurangabad and sought the help of 'Iwaz K Bahāduı and entertained hopes of recovering his rents and jagir At this time Asaf Jah came from Upper India, and the battle with Mubariz K took place From the necessity of the time he got fresh encouragement and bound the girdle of companionship on the waist of endeavour, and after remaining in the city (Aurangabad) for some time, making prepanations, he came out When from neverses and a succession of errors his senses and intellect had left him and he had become debased, he vainly thought of turning over a new leaf and by maiching in the evening and the night joined Mubaiiz K (in Haidaiabad), who had secretly 2 shaken the chain of promises and agreements. On the day of battle, without his having achieved anything, the figure of his life was, by the water of the enemies' sword, obliterated from the page of Time This happened 3 in the year 1137, 1724

AMĪNU-D-DAULA AMĪNU-D-DĪN KHĀN BAHĀDUR SAMBALĪ

He was one of the sharkhzādas of Sambhal which lies N E. the capital His lineage went back to Tamīm * Ansāiī He began his service under Jahāndāi Shah, and in the time of Fariukh Siyai he was made one of the yesāwals (state-attendants) In the time of Fiidūs Arāmgāh (Muhammad Shāh) he was promoted and made Mīi Tūzuk (master of the ceremonies) Gradually he rose to having the rank of 4000, and 6000 with 6000 horse, and had the title of l The text has dastnigar which means "needy" Probably we should read dastgīr, or else dastnigāh

² Probably this rather refers to the hopes held out to Mubāriz by Muhammad Shah

³ In the biography of the son Muqarrib K, Maasir III 796, it is mentioned that the father and son fought on opposite sides, and that the son had his father's head cut off The battle in which Amin K Deccani was killed occurred in the beginning of 1137, 10 October, 1724 Mubariz K was killed in the same battle

⁴ See D'Herbelot s v

Amīnu-d-daula, and the gift of the estate of Sambhal with fully ¹ three lacs of rupees of revenue He was a devoted gourmand (yār-bāshī) and a voluptuary In the same reign, after the departure of Nādir Shah from India, he died He made many houses, gardens and serais in his native country Among his sons, Amīnu-d-dīn K and Irshād K were distinguished ²

(MUHAMMAD) AMĪN KHĀN MĪR MUHAMMAD AMĪN

S Mu'azzam K Mīr Jumla Ardıstānī When the oppression of his father by Qutb Shah the ruler of Telang was stopped by the exertions of Prince Aurangzeb, he was released from prison and went to wait upon Sultan Muhammad who had been sent on in advance to that country He met Sultan Muhammad twelve kos from Haidarahad and was relieved of his fears In the 30th year of Shah Jahan he, along with his father, entered the imperial service When he came to Burhanpur he, on account of the rain and of illness, fell somewhat behind Afterwards he came to court and received a robe of honour and the title of Khān In the same year Mū'azzam (Mīr Jumla) K obtained leave to attend upon Prince Aurangzeb and to attack and devastate the country of 'Adıl Shah. He performed this duty well and Muhammad Amīn had the increase of 1000 personality, and his rank became 3000 with 1000 horse and he was ordered to act as deputy-Vizier till the airival of his father When in the 31st year Mū'azzam K, on account of certain things which were disapproved of, was deprived of the diwanship, Muhammad K also was inhibited from office his rectitude and ability had been impressed on the mind of Shah Jahan, he had an increase of 500 horse, and the gift of a decorated pen-case and was made Mīi Bakhshī in succession to Dānishmand K (Bernier's patron) who resigned his appointment

When Prince Aurangzeb arrested Mū'azzam K, who according to an order was going to court with his troops, and would on

l ba kāmal, which I suppose means this There is the variant bakābul

² This biography is signed Q. The Tazkira-ul-Umarā of Kewal Rām says that Amīnu-d-daulah died in the 19th year of Muhammad Shah's reign (1739)

no account put off his journey, and kept him under surveillance in the Deccan, Dārā Shikoh, on hearing of this, was convinced that the thing was done in collusion between the Khān and Aurangzeb and impressed this view on Shah Jahan Muhammad Amīn was suspected without cause, and Dārā having got permission to arrest him had him brought from his house and imprisoned After three or four days the king was convinced of his innocence and released him from the confinement in which Dārā had placed him Dārā's defeat, Muhammad Amīn, on the second day after the standards of victory had been unfurled, and when the huntingbox of Samogarha on the bank of the Jumna had been brightened by Aurangzeb's presence, hastened to pay his respects was graciously received, and obtained the rank of 4000 with 3000 horse In the same month he was confirmed in the post of Mīr Bakhshī When in the battle with Shujā', Rajah Jeswant Singh behaved treacherously and withdrew from Aurangzeb's army and went rapidly home, with the intention of joining Dārā, Muhainmad Amīn, after the battle and the return from there, was sent with a well-equipped army to punish Jeswant But as Dāiā—who was marching from Ahmadabad to Ajmere—had approached, Muhammad Amīn turned back near Puhkar (Pūshkar) and joined the king's army In the 2nd year his rank was 5000 with 4000 horse, and in the 5th year he had an increase of 1000 horse

When in the beginning of the 6th year Mīn Jumla died in Bengal, Prince Muhammad Mū'azzam visited Muhammad Amīn and administered consolations, and brought him with him to the king A robe of honour was bestowed upon him. In the 10th year the Yūsufzai tribe again assembled at Ohand—which is the mouth of the hill-country—and made a disturbance, and Muhammad Amīn was sent with a suitable force to chastise them. Though before the arrival of the Khān, Shamsher! K. Tarīn had defeated and punished the tribe, yet the Khān also entered their territory and devastated their country and then returned in accordance with the king's orders. Thereupon he was appointed governor of Lahore in succession to Ibiāhīm K. In the 13th year he was made governor of Kabul in succession to Mahābat K (the 2nd), and in the same vear Ja'afar K the Giand Viziei died, and Asad K cailled on some of the business as deputy. The king considered that only a first-rate officei could carry on the duties, and so summoned Muhammad Amīn to court. In the 14th year he came and was received with princely favours. But though he was famed for his business capacity and his ripe judgment, yet he had some defects and he accepted the Vizieiship on certain conditions which were altogether opposed to the king's disposition, and annoyed him by some of his objections and representations.

l Maasır A 61 and 'Ālamgīrnāma 1045, 1053, etc

As Fate had decreed that an evil day should come to him he obtained leave to go and make the settlement of Kabul. He received royal gifts, and among them was the elephant 'Ālam' Gumān with silver trappings. Inasmuch as the dyes' of arrogance produce nothing but yellowness to the face, and the wind of the moustache of concert only casts the dust of failure on one's fortune, and presumption causes joy to the enemy, and ends in failure, and haughtiness leads to contempt and a bad ending, the Khān in his self-will took all the materials of grandeur and magnificence with him, and thought to march from Peshawar to the capital of Afghanistan and to root out the turbulent Afghans

In the 15th year, on 3³ Muhanam 1083, 21 April 1672, before he had traversed the Khyber, though news had come that the Afghans on hearing of his design had closed the roads and were numerous as ants and locusts, he in his arrogance made no account of them and went on During the march, from want of care and from treachery, there occurred what happened in Akbar's time to Zain K Koka, Hakīm Abul-fath and Rajah Bīrbal. The Afghans attacked on all sides and shot arrows and threw stones. The troops got confused, and the men, the horses and the elephants fell upon one another. Some thousands fell from the

¹ Mentioned in the Tüziik Jehängiri

² baqamhāi gharūr Baqam is Brazil-wood, and the dye produced from it It also appears to be a name for the datura-plant, for bād ibarūt, see Bahār 'Ajam and Vullers, s v

³ Irvine, Manucci II, 200, note, gives on the authority of the T Muhammadī, 7 Muharram = May 6, 1672 NS, as the date It is also stated there that the son-in-law was killed on this occasion heights into abysses and were killed. Muhammad Amīn in his pride wished to sacrifice ¹ his life, but his servants seized his rein and led him away. Not thinking of his honour he hastened back in a miserable condition to Peshawar. 'Abdullah K his worthy son was killed in that imbroglio. The baggage was plundered and many men's wives were made prisoners. The young daughter ² of Muhammad Amīn and some of his ladies were released on payment of heavy ransoms.

They say that after this catastrophe the Khān wrote to the king that what fate had decreed had occurred but that if the task were again committed to him, he would amend matters The king asked for advice, and Amīr K (s Khalīl Ullah, Maasir J 277) said that, like a wounded boar. Muhammad Amīn would fling himself against the enemy whether it were feasible or not Accordingly, his rank which was 6000 with 5000 horse was ieduced by 1000 zāt and he was sent to be governor of Gujarat And an order was given that he should go there without presenting himself at court. He served there for a long time, and in the 23rd year when Aurangzeb was at Almeie, he was sent for and did homage He accompanied the Rānā to Udāipūr, and after receiving loyal favours took leave at Chitor In the 25th year on 8 Jumăda-al-akhırī 1093, 4 June 1682, he died in Ahmadabad Seventy 8 lacs of rupees, and one lac and 35,000 ashiafis and 1b1 ahīmīs, and 76 elephants and other properties were confiscated He had (i e he left) no son Saiyid Muhammad was his sister's son, and his son-in-law was Saiyid Sultan Karbalai, who was a leading Saiyid of that holy place He at first had come to Haidarabad The ruler there, 'Abdullah Qutb Shah, chose him for his son-in-law It happened that on the day the mairiage was to take place, Mīr Ahmad'Arab, who was the elder son-ın-law and had the management of affairs, and was the intermediary on this occasion, had words with the Saiyid, and this went so far that

Maasır A, 118

² Khāfī K II, 233

⁵ Maasır A 226, where it is said there were also 432 horses Manucci has a good deal to say about Muhammad Amīn and speaks of his great wealth See vol II, 196, et seq I do not know the value of the $ibr\bar{a}i$ $h\bar{\imath}m\bar{\imath}$ Presumably it was a Deceani com The Massir A, 219, gives 20 instead of 8 Jumāda the 2nd as the date of death that hapless Saiyid set fire to the furniture (preparations) and came away

Though Muhammad Amīn was proud and self-conceited, yet he was one of the unique ¹ of the age for honesty and truth. He strove after right-thinking. He had a powerful memory. In the end of his life, at the time when he was governor of Gujarat, he in a very short time became a Hāfiz of the holy volume. Consequently Aurangzeb called him Muhammad Amīn K Hāfiz. He was a bigoted Imāmiya. He did not admit Hindus to his privacy. If any of the great Rajahs, who could not be denied, came to see him, he afterwards had the house washed and the carpets removed, and changed his clothes.

(SAIYID) AMĪR K KHAWĀFĪ

His name was Saiyid Mīr and he was the younger biother of When Aurangzeb Shaikh Mīr after the first battle with Dārā Shikoh proceeded from Agra to Delhi and on the way arrested Murād Bakhsh, who had shown signs of presumption, and sent him to the foit of Delhi, he made Amīr K governor of the fort and presented him with a robe of honour and a horse, and gave him the title of Amīr K, a sum of Rs 7000, and made his rank 2000 with 500 horse In the first year of the reign he conveyed Murād Bakhsh to the fort of Gwalior and then joined When in the battle near Almere Sharkh Mir fell the royal army in the king's service, Amīr K obtained the rank of 4000 with In the 3rd year he was appointed, with a suitable force, to chastise Rão Kain, zamindar of Bikānīi, who in Shah Jahan's time belonged to the Deccan contingent, and had at the time of the contest between Aurangzeb and Dārā Shikoh left the Deccan without orders and gone to his native country. When he arrived at the borders of Bikānīi he brought Rāo Karn, who had respectfully appeared before him, to court In the 4th year he was appointed to the charge of Kabul in succession to Mahābat K and received a robe of honour, a special sword and dagger set with pearls, a Persian horse, a special elephant and had the rank of 5000 with 5000 horse, of which 1000 were two-horse and three-horse. In the 6th year after the return of the royal retinue from Kashmīr to Lahore he was summoned to court, and then after some time was allowed to go to his estates. In the 8th year he, the second time, came unattended to court and was received with favour and then returned to Kabul. In the 11th year he was removed from there and came to court. As he had resigned his office he took up his residence in the capital. In the 13th year corresponding to 1080, 1669-70, he died. As he was without sons, his brother Shaikh Mīr Khawāfī's sons were given mourning diesses.

¹ Maasır A, 219

AMĪR KHĀN MĪR MĪRĀN

Son of Khalīl Ullah K of Yezd Hıs mother Hamīda Bānū Begam was the daughter of Saif K and the daughter's daughter of Yemenu-d-daula Asaf K In the 29th year of Shah Jahan he had an increase of 500 with 100 horse and obtained the rank of 1500 with 500 horse and was made Mii Tüzuk In the 31st year when Khalīl Ullah K became governor of Delhi, he obtained the title of Mīi Khān and was appointed to accompany his father neign of Aurangzeb he, after his father's death, obtained an increase of rank and was made faujdar of the hill-country (Kohistan) In the 10th 2 year he was appointed to accompany Muhammad Amīn K Mīr Bakhshī on his expedition to chastise the insolent Yūsufzai The general sent him with a force to the neighbourhood of Shahbāzgarha, which is near Langarkot, and he plundered the villages of the Yūsufzar, and then he came to the plain 3 (fazāî) of (inside of) Koh Kaia Mār, and set fire to some other villages He returned to camp with much cattle In the 12th year he was appointed, in place of Hasan 'Alī K, to be

l Apparently Amír Khwāfi is the author of the history of 5 years of Aurangzeb's leigh described in Rieu 1, 265

² 'Ālamgīnāma 1045, 1057, etc, Maasır A 61

³ The passage is taken from 'Ālam-gīrnāma 1059 The Koh Karā Mār seems to be the Black Mountain of the expedition of 1868 and to be near Abbotabad

darogha of the mansabdars In the same year, on the death of Ilahveidi K 'Alamgīrī, he was made governor of Allahabad, and received a mansab of 4000 with 3000 horse, consisting of two-horse In the 14th year he was removed from his appointment and brought to court and for some reason he was for some days deprived of office. In the same year he was restored and was When in the 17th year he was nominated to treated with favour the faujdārī of Īiii le refused the appointment and in consequence was deprived of his rank and went into retirement 18th year (Maasii A 139) he again was received into favour and obtained the title of Amīr Khān and an increase of rank received 2 charge of the government of Bihar There he exerted himself in chastising 'Alam, Ism'aīl and other Afghans of Shahjahanpur and Kant Golah and seized them when they had taken refuge in a fort. In the 19th year he came to court and joined the expedition of Shah 'Alam Bahadur to Kabul

From a long time this country had been a house of turmoil from its occupation by Afghan tribes — Especially was it so in the time of Akbar — On every opportunity it rose into rebellion — The royal armies in order to root out these sedition-mongers repeatedly trod the land under their horses' hoofs — When it had been filled with revenge and slaughter, though many retried into obscurity, yet the sparks were not entirely extinguished, and the old state 3 of things revived — Śaīd K Bahādur Zafar Jang rooted out most of the thorns, and afterwards the army of Shah Jahan arrived at Kabul the capital and there was coming and going of the armies which marched to conquer Balkh and Badakhshān, and which also

¹ In the province of Agra, Jariett II, 187, Maash A 132 From his opinions being asked in the 15th year about Mir Jumla's son Muhammad Amin, it would seem that he was then in favour See Maash U III, 619

² Kānt Golah and Shāhjahānpur were not in Bihar but in Rohilkand Amīr K 's report about these is mentioned at p 146 of Maasir A, and his coming from Bihar is mentioned later, p 148 Foi Kānt Golah and Shah-

Jahanpur see Elliot Supp Glossary II, 167 Perhaps, however, the Afghans had fled from Rohilkand to Bihar and Bengal, and been there seized by Amir K, for it is mentioned that he sent them in with Ibiāhīm K who was coming from Bengal to court

o Maham kahna lang, see Vullers II, 928a, for explanation of term kahn lang, "res quae e loco suo exire vel moveri non potest" passed by this road for the Qandahar expedition On these occ sions the most of the Afghans abandoned their disturbances and placed the foot of respect under the skirt of obedience Many of the presumptuous who lived in their own land and did not submit their necks to the yoke of tribute became submissive 1 In short the affairs of that country took a proper shape and there was ostensible peace Afterwards when there was the rule of Aurangzeb, and the governors became slothful and fond of their ease, the Afghans again grew haughty and presumptuous, and became like a They were numerous as ants or locusts and swooped upon the land like crows and kites, for the imperial armies submitted to be plundered by those evil-doers, and the high officers when confronted with them simply allowed themselves to be 10bbed and killed, and made no opposition At last the loyal standards reached Hasan Abdal, and there was much planning thread ² of their dissensions could not be extracted After 1etuining to Lahore, Prince Muhammad, styled Shah 'Alam Bahadui, was chosen for the work The Prince either by his own right understanding, or from secret knowledge such as often inspires the fortunate, perceived that the settlement of this distracted country was implicated in the governorship of Amīr K, and wrote to court The Khān in the 20th year 1088 3 1677, on 4 to this effect Muharram, 21st February, was made governor of the province in place of 'Āzım K Koka Aghar (Aghuz?) K was in the vanguard, and a beginning was made by chastising the Afghans of Thereafter the army proceeded into the Lamghānāt Aghai (or Aghuz) K in that neighbourhood showed great activity in slaying Afghans and engaged in a close conflict with Imal 4 K who had taken the title of Shah and struck coins in his own name in the hills He showed his courage by standing firm, when his men took to flight He was nearly being killed, when some of his well-wishers showed devotion and seized his rein and brought him

[!] Lit "diew back their feet from then limit," that is, kept themselves within bounds

² Apparently a metaphor taken from the process of extracting the worm that produces the Delhi sore

³ Text 1008, but evidently it should be 1088

⁴ Khāfī K II, 233, 243, etc

out from that dangerous place Amīr K, after showing the strength of his army, by degrees practised such soothing and kindness towards those strangers to the kingdom of civility that the heads of the tribes gave up their savagery and wildness and visited him without any apprehensions. They settled accounts, and during his government of two and twenty years he never met with any disaster, nor submitted to any humiliation nor did any evil On 27 Shawal of the 42nd year 1109, 27th April 1698, he bade the world adieu He was attached to the Imāmiya (Shia) religion, and sent much money to the learned and prous men of He was builed in the capital in his father's tomb was an officer full of wisdom and sagacity. It would be good if the secretaries of the age and learned thinkers could take sketches of plans, wholesale or in part, from the maigin of his heart ingenuity of thought removed the wickedness of strife from the kingdom's conscience, and his index-finger detected the pulse of the age and grasped the vein 1 which puts sedition to sleep effective hands made the hands of oppressors surrender, and his active feet tripped up the feet of robbery He cast down the foundation of force He stripped off the wings of tyranny lofty fortune is a great possession! Whatever nursling he planted in the garden of his thoughts became a fruit-bearing tree ing appeared on the tablet of his projects but what was success-Nor did anything appear on the page of his hopes which did not take the form of fulfilment He so drew by the noose of kindness the Afghan leaders—who held their necks and heads higher than the heavens—that they became obedient, and he so captured by sincerity and friendship those savages that they voluntarily bound themselves to the saddle-straps of obedience By the magic of his right-thinking, the leaders of that tribe spread out the carpet of mutual dissension and fell upon one another Stranger still, every one of them sought to improve his affairs by taking the advice of Amīr K.

They say that at one time there were few of the Afghan tribes which did not rally round Imal Khān Every one in the

¹ rag-v-lhwāb-v-fitna See Vullers II, 49a, for this phrase

hill country took some days' provisions and presented themselves There was tumult and there was a great assemblage possible for the army of the subāhdār of Kabul to cope with this Amīr Khān was troubled and got 'Abdullah K Khweshgī, who was a leading man among the mansabdars and auxiliaries, and was famed for his dexterity and craft, to write a false letter to the chief of every tribe to this effect "We for a long time were waiting for some hidden good, and that the sovereignty might be transferred to the Afghans God be praised that our old hope has been realized But we are unacquainted with the disposition of the person who has been raised to the throne Write to us if he be fit for empire, then we too shall approach him for service with the Moghuls is a profitless thing " In reply they wrote praises of Imal Khān and uiged him to come in 'Abdullah K again wrote, "These qualities are excellent, but the finest thing in rule is justice and consideration for the subjects of every class In order to test him, be good enough to take the trouble to enquire how he will divide the territory among the tilbes if it come into his posses-If he be timid or partial, it will at once become evident" The heads of the tribes acted upon his counsel and sent a message to Imal K He was at a stand-stay as to how he should divide a small country among a great number On this account there was a schism among them Many of the ignorant and of the general public went off He was compelled to make a beginning of a division As of course he paid attention to his own set and favoured those who were nearer to him, the others raised a dis-Each of the leaders went off to his own country and wrote letters to 'Abdullah K' forbidding him to join

Amīr K 's wife was known as Sāhibjī, and was the daughter of 'Alī Mardān K Amīru-l-umarā (the famous maker of canals) She was a wonderful lady for her prudence and knowledge of affans She took part in political and financial matters and showed excellent sense in the conduct of business. They say that one night news came to Aurangzeb of the death of Amīr K Immediately he sent for Irshad K, who for a while was diwān of Kabul, and at this time was diwān of the Khālsa, and said to him that a heavy misfortune had occurred, viz the death of Amīr

K. A country which was prepared for any amount of tumult and disaffection was left ungualded, and it was to be feared that there would be a rebellion before another governor could arrive Irshad K insisted upon it that Amīr K was alive, who said he was dead? The king put the official report into his hands, and he replied, "I admit it, but the administration of that country is bound up with Sāhibjī As long as she is alive, there is no probability of a disturbance" Aurangzeb immediately wrote to that able administratrix, and told her to conduct affairs until the arrival of Prince Shah 'Ālam

They say that as the coming and going of governors in that turbulent country was not devoid of danger, it seemed impossible that the camp of a deceased governor could depart in safety Sāhibjī so concealed the death of Amīr K that there was absolutely no rumour of it. She got a person who resembled Amīr K to sit in an ayīnadār¹ palanquin and so make the journey, stage by stage. Every day the soldiers saluted him and took leave. When the cortège emerged from the hill-country, she performed the mourning lites

They say that till Bahādur Shah arrived, and he was a long time in coming, Sāhibjī made great airangements for the administration of the country. As most of the chiefs had come to mourn for Amīr K, she kept them honourably near her, and sent messages to the Afghans to the effect that they should act according to their customs and abstain from tumult and highway robbery, and not exceed their position. "Otherwise the ball and the field were leady (metaphor from polo). If I win, my name will remain till the judgment-day". They felt the justice of this, and renewed their oaths and promises, and did not in any way prove disobedient.

It was reported by trustworthy persons that when this chaste

¹ Lit "mirror-holding" Probably it here means a palanquin or litter provided with glass-doors. See Bernier II, 235, who says that takht-rauān or litters were furnished with glass-doors, II, p 235. As Grant-Duff

points out, there is a difference between a palanquin and a palki III, 79, n In the Maasir A, p 354, we have the phrase pālkī āyīna applied to a palki sent as a piesent by Aurangreb to his second son Muhammad A'zim Shāh lady was one day in the time of her youth passing along the narrow streets in her litter, a royal elephant, which was the premier one of them all, appeared, in the height of its pride, in front of her Though the guardians of order wanted to turn him, the driver would not be restrained, for his tribe is never without haughtiness, and the glory of the imperial equipage added to his arrogance He drove the elephant on, and though men put their hands to their quivers, the elephant put his trunk on the litter, and wanted to twist it and to tread it under foot ' The bearers threw the litter on the ground and fled That honhearted woman jumped out on to a money-changer's shop which was opposite the litter, got inside, and shut the door for some days was moved by Indian jealousy to displeasure, and wanted to separate from her, but Shah Jahan rebuked him and said, "She did a manly act, and saved her honour and yours the elephant had twisted her in his trunk and shown her to the world, how would her modesty have remained ?"

Amīr K had no children by Sāhibjī, and as she fully ruled him, he in great secrecy kept mistresses and had many children by At last this came to Sāhıbjī's knowledge, and she behaved kindly to them and brought them up Two years after Amīr K's death and after she had administered the affairs of Kabul she came to Burhānpūr As permission had been given to her to go to Mecca she sent off Amīr K 's sons to court and hastened to the port of Surat Afterwards, when Amīr K's property had been examıned, an order was sent that Sāhıbjī herself should come to court, but her ship had sailed before the order reached her she spent large sums of money at Mecca, the Sharīf and others treated her with honour The eldest son of Amīi K obtained the title of Mir Khān and the rank of 1000 with 600 horse, and was married to the daughter of Bahramand K Mīr Bakhshī In the time of Bahādur Shah he was appointed as deputy of Asafu-d-daula to the government of Lahore Another of his sons was M Jāfar 'Aqīdat K who in the time of Bahādur Shah was made governor of Patna, and afterwards bakhshī of Prince 'Azīmu-sh-shān The accounts of M Ibrāhīm Marhamat K and M Isāhaq Amīr K —who were more distinguished than their other brothers, and both of whom as well as Khadīja Begam, the wife of Rūh Ullah K the 2nd, were by one mother—have been written separately. The other sons did not attain so much fame. For instance there were Hādī K, who went to Patna when Maihamat was Naib there, and Saif K, who was faujdān of Purnia, and Asad Ullah K who on the recommendation of Nizāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jāh was made bakhshī of the Deccan

AMĪR KHĀN SINDHĪ

His name was 'Abdu-l-Karīm, and he was the son of Amīi K, son of Amīi Abū-l-qāsim¹ Nimakīn When his grandfathei became attached to Bhakkar in the time of his government he made his tomb there. His father also died in the province of Tatta and was buried beside his father On this account that country has been the birth-place and educational home of many of the family Hence the application of the word Sindhī they really were Saryids of Herat, as has been shown in the account of Amīi K 's ancestors Also in the biography of Amīi K deceased it has been stated 2 that he, like his father, had many Even at the age of one hundred he did not fail to Mīr 'Abdu-l-Karīm was the youngest of all his beget children As none but the sons of amīis and khānazādas (houseborn ones) is reckoned fit for the personal service of kings, and the passage to this is by being a khuāsī (personal attendant), 'Abdu-l-Karīm was at first a khuāsī and afterwards a leader of khwāsīs As promotion³ and exaltation were in his horoscope, he in the 26th year, when the city of Aurangabad had acquired the name of Khujasta Banyād by the king's advent, was made superintendent of the oratory Afterwards he had charge of the seven guards 4 (haft caukī) along with the care of the oratory

¹ Blochmann 470

² See above, p 173

³ See Blochmann 472 His first employment was apparently that of collector of the poll-tax for Burhān-pur, Khāfī K II, 278-79 See also id 338, where he is called Sharīf K and

spoken of as having collected the polltax with great severity

^{*} Blochmann 257 The guarding of the palace, etc, was apparently arranged by having seven changes of guards See Maasir A 240

the king desired to advance him, he was also appointed superintendent of the naggāsh-khāna 1 In the end of the 28th year he was found 2 in fault and was removed from the office of supermtendent of the oratory (jānamāzkhāna) In the 29th year when Prince Shah 'Alam Bahadur and Khan Jahan defeated the army of Abū-l-hasan, the ruler of Telang, and took the city of Haidarabad, Amīr K. was sent 8 (by Aurangzeb) with robes of honour and lewels to the prince and the leading officers Some other persons of note accompanied him. When they came within four kos of Haidarabad, Shaikh Nizām of Haidarabad fell upon them with a body of men Najābat K and Asālat K —whom Qulīj K the governor of Zafarabād 4 had given as guides—on account of the old association that they had with the enemy, joined him (Nizām) The jewels, the dresses of honour, and other things, and the merchandise, and the equipments of the men who had accompanied the party as if it were a caravan, were plundered 'Abdu-l-Karīm, who fell wounded on the field, was made prisoner and conveyed to Abu-l-hasan Four days afterwards he was conveyed from Golconda to the prince's camp near Haidarabad by men who then withdrew 5 themselves Muhammad Murād K hājib (chamberlain or perhaps here envoy) heard of this and brought him to his house and treated him kindly wounds were healed, he waited upon the prince, and conveyed the verbal messages he had been entrusted with On taking leave of him he went with Khān Jahān Bahādur who had been summoned to the Presence, and rubbed his forehead on the threshold of sovereignty During the siege of Golconda, as Sharif K, the Kioii of the camp-treasury, had been appointed to collect the poll-tax of four provinces of the Deccan, Amīr K was appointed to act as his deputy as treasury-kroit. At the same time he was Mansir A 255 "The picture gallery," but probably Aurangzeb did not allow of poitrait-painting. The paintings were probably illuminations to books. The author of the Massir I states in the same place that Amīr K was made accountant (mashraf) of the same office (naqqāshlhāna)

² 1d 261

^{3 1}d 268

⁴ Another name for Bidar, W N W Haidarabad It probably received the name of Zafarabād because it was taken in one day by Aurangzeb See Grant-Duff I, 156, and note

⁵ Maasır 'Alamgīrī 269

also appointed superintendent of Fines 1. In the 33rd year as a neward for his good service as Treasury-krorī, whereby he showed plenty and cheapness alongside of the scarcity and dearness in Haidaiabad, he received the title of Multafat K (the provident Khān) Afterwards, on the death of Khwāja Hayāt K, he was put in charge of the abdārkhāna² (stillioom) In the 36th year he was made superintendent of the pages (daroqha-i-khuāsān) on the death of Anwai K the son of Wazīi K Shahjahanī, and obtained a mansab of 1000 and became envied by his contemporaries for his intimacy and understanding of the disposition (of Aurangzeb). In the 45th year he had the title of Khānazād K, and after that had the title of Mir piefixed to that of Khanazad K, and in the 48th year, after the taking of Torna, he obtained the hereditary title of his father—that of Amir K At that time the king said, 'Your father Mit K, when he became Amit K, gave a lac of rupees as peshkash to Shah Jahan for the addition of the letter alif, what do you ofter?" He replied, "May there be thousands and thousands of life-sacrifices for the holy personality! My life and property are devoted to Your Majesty " Next day he presented the Koran written by Yāqūt 3 His Majesty said. "You have presented a thing which the world and all that is "therein could not equal in value" After the taking of Wakinkera he got an increase of 500 and had a mansab of 3000 end of Aurangzeb's reign he was his companion, and had no superior in companionship and in the confidence reposed in him. Night and day he was in attendance In the Maasir 'Alamgīrī it is stated * that at Devāpūr, three kos from Wakınkera, the king was attacked by illness, and this was so severe that he sometimes became delirious As he had reached the age of 90, men began to many letters to Amīr K Sındhī See Rieu's Cat I, 400b The Maasır A 507 says, "Three kos from Rahmānbakhsh Khaira" But this was the name given by Aurangzeb to Wākinkhera after its capture See Khāfi K II, 538 Wākinkhera is E S E Bijapur, and Devāpūr was near the Kistna

¹ Blochmann 131 See Maasır A 304 His business probably was to realize the fines imposed on the inhabitants of Bījāpūr and Golconda

² Blochmann 55

³ A famous calligraphist, but Yāqūt is also the name of a kind of writing

^{4 508} et seq Aurangzeb wrote despair, and the country was nearly being upset by the dread of what might happen

Amīr K used to tell 1 how one day at this time when the king was very weak he heard him saying under his breath —

Verse

When you have reached your 80th and 90th year, Many evils have you suffered from Time, When after that you attain the 100th stage, It is death in the form of life

"When this fell upon my ear I quickly said, 'Save Your Majesty, the Shaikh of Ganj (Nizāmī), May God's mercy be upon him! uttered these lines as a prelude to a couplet, which is this —

Verse.

Then, 'tis better that you remain joyful, And that in that joy you remember God

He said, "Repeat the lines" I did so several times, and he signed to me to give them him in writing. I wrote them cut, and he read them over. The Giver of strength gave him power, and in the morning he came out to the hall of justice. He said, "Your verse has given me perfect health, and conveyed strength to weakness."

The Khān was endowed with a quick intelligence and an excellent understanding. One day during the siege of Bījāpūr the king was carried in a litter (takht-rauān) to see a mound (damdama) which had been raised to a level with the battlements, and cannon balls from the fort were passing over the litter, when Amīr K, who was then superintendent of the oratory and had not yet become a person of consequence, made this impromptu line and wrote it on a piece of paper with a lead-pencil 2 (qalm-i-

¹ id 59 The lines come from the Khusrau and Shīrīn, near the beginning

² See Vullers, sv qalm, p 737, cols 1 and 2 M A 279

surb) and presented it, Fath Bijāpūr 1 zūdī mī shawad conquest of Bijapui will soon take place" 1099 (1688) The king received it as a good omen and said, "God grant that it be In the same week the fort was suijendered After the fort of Golconda was taken the chronogram was found (by Amir K) -Fath qua Gulkanda, mubārak bādā "The conquest of Golconda, may it be blessed " 1099 (1638) He was approved of by the king, and as he had the demerits of annoyance and presumption, he gave himself ans (lit he set the peak of the cap of presumption crookedly on the head of license), and though of low rank he bore himself head and shoulders higher than the leading officers He acquired such influence that the highest of them made en-When an order had been given that with the treaties to him exception of him who had had a palanquin given him from the imperial establishment, no one, either of the princes or of the officers entitled to travel in a palanquin, should enter the enclosure (gulālbār²), he, who was at that time termed Multafat

 $b\bar{a}d\bar{a}$ as the last word, whereas it should be only $b\bar{a}d$ as in Khāfī K 368, and in MA 300. This gives 1098, which is the correct date, as appears from the MA, pp. 298-99.

With reference to the litter or takht rawan of the text it may be noticed that the MA represents it as being carried on the backs of horses, p 278, unless indeed takht-rawan is used there rhetorically for a saddle Ordinarily a takht-rawan was borne by men See Bernier II, 235, and The date of the visit was 25 Shawal 1097, 4 September 1686, and Bījāpūr was taken on 4 Zılq'ada ın the 30th year of the reign 1097 = 12 September 1686 Golconda was taken on 24 Zīlq'ana 1098, or 21 September 1687

² The gulālbār was a red screen round the daulat-khāna or collection of imperial tents. The privilege referred to is mentioned in the Maasir A 354. For gulālbār or "red wall" see Blochmann 45 and 54, and Irvine

I The two chronograms seem to yield 1099 or 1687-88, but if so they are both wrong Bījāpūr and Golconda were not taken in the same Bījāpūi was taken fiist, and in the year 1097 or 1686, some time in The chronogram in the text October gives 'Abdu l-Karīm's correctly as stated in the Massir 'Alamgīrī 279, but I think the editors have made a mistake in reckoning the p of Bijapur as equal to b and consequently as representing the figure 2 There is no p in Arabic, and though p is often in abjad regarded as = b, this is not the case here If we deduct the p, we get 1097 the real date of the capture of Bijapur as shown in the MA and ın Khāfī K Possibly 'Abdul-l-Karīm, as he was writing extempore made a mistake in his count and forgot that though ha is the sixth letter of the Arabic alphabet, it counts 8 in abjad Golconda was taken in the following year 1098 or about September 1687 The chronogram in text wrongly has

Khān, and the Jumla-ul-mulk Asad Khān, were, shortly afterwards, allowed to enter in their palanquins. After that, permission was also granted to Bahramand Khān, Mukhlas Khān and Rūh Ullah Khān It may be gathered from this what his position was and what a place he had taken in the king's heart. He was also of surpassing trustworthiness. Agents I at his orders would send him the productions of every country at one-half or one-third of the real price. He took notice of this and privately made a full enquiry and ascertained what the price was. After the death of Aurangzeb he accompanied Muhammad 'Azım Shāh, but as he had no force he remained with the baggage in Gwaliyar Bahādur Shah became king and the officers of the former reign, whether loyal or the reverse, obtained promotion, Amīr K too was raised to the lank of 3000 with 500 hoise, but he had not the same intimacy not the same pomp. He felt helpless and accepted the governorship of Agra fort and retired into obscurity, and saved himself from seeing things that should not be seen K Khān-Khānān, who for worth and humanity was the unique of the age, gave him in consideration of his old pie-eminence the governorship of Agia Afterwards he was removed from this and confined to the government of the fort

When in the middle of the leign of Muhammad Fallukh Siyar weakness had clept into the management of public affairs owing to the predominance of the Salyids of Bālha, and there came a necessity for consulting the officers of Aurangzeb, 'Inayat Ullah K, Hamīdu-d-dīn K Bahādur and Muhammad Niyāz K all were again received into favour, and Amīr K also was summoned from Agra and made superintendent of the personal attendants. After i ahl rūzgār, which I think must mean here agents, though it may also mean workmen or men of business Presumably the goods were sent to him in his public capacity. His agents perhaps understated the price in order to gain his favour, or it may be that workmen and others sent him the goods under cost price, knowing that he would ascertain the real value and pay them accordingly. The text differs from the Blochmann MS and from I O 628. The text has dar parda qadaghan-ristr'āb where the MSS have tadyīn instead of qadaghan. I think however the text is right. The text has arz "price" but the MSS have āz "avarice" and they have 'hazīz' instead of hissas the deposition of the king and when the reins of power fell into the hands of the Saiyids of Bārha, Amīr K was made Sadru-lsadūr in the place of Afzal K They say that Qutbu-l-mulk (the elder Saryid) out of regard to his former eminence did not cease to honour him, and made him sit on a coiner of his own masnad this same time death called him None of his sons distinguished 1 themselves They were contented with their father's acquisitions, except Abu-l-Khan K, who, on account of his relationship with Khān 2 Daurān Khwāja 'Āsim, obtained the title of Khān in the reign of the deceased emperor and had a position $\{dastq\bar{a}h\}$ died in company with the Khān Daurān aforesaid Mii Abū-lwafā, the grandson of Zīyāu-d-dīn K the elder brother of Amīr K, became distinguished in comparison with his sons. In the end of Aurangzeb's reign he was honoured by being made superintendent of the Olatory The emperol was implessed by his ability and Accordingly, one day a report in cypher of Prince Bahādur Shah was produced before the emperor As the cypier was not known, the emperor made over his private memorandumbook to the Mīr and said, "We have entered in it explanations of two or three cyphers Compare them with this cypher and make out its meaning' The Mir by his eleverness and quickness brought out the meaning of the hidden cypher and wrote it out and presented it, and was applauded

A of M 199 Perhaps gulāl is Turki and means "red rose"

'ĀQIL KHĀN 'INAYAT ULLAH

Brother's son and adopted son of Afzal K Mulla Shukr Ullah His father's name was 'Abdul-l-Haqq, who during Shah

¹ One son, Ashraf, collected and published Aurangzeb's letters to his father See Rieu I 400b

² Maasır I 819 He was Amîru-l-Umarā and was wounded in battle with Nadir Shah and died of his wounds Mīr 'Abdul-l-wafā fell along with him This Khān Daurān is not mentioned by Beale in his list of Khan Daūrāns, but his death is des cribed in Γlliot VIII, 62 The emperor referred to as deceased is presumably Muhammad Shan who died in 1748

³ Maasir A, pp 459, 460 There we have the negative "du sih ramz nāwāzah" "two or three obscure cypheis" but I am not sure if this is right. The Maasir A adds that Vir Abū-l-wafā received the reward of a muhr weighing 50 muhis, Rs 500, and an increase of horse for interpreting the cypher!

Jahan's reign attained the rank of 1000 with 200 hoise and was called Amanat Khan He wrote naskh exceedingly well, and in the 15th year, as a reward for the inscription which he had written on the cupola (the Taj) of Mamtazu-z-zamani, received the gift of an elephant He died in the 16th year 'Aqil K , in the 12th year, was made 'Arz mukarrır (reviser of petitions), and afterwards received the title of 'Aqil K In succession to Multafat K he was made diwan of the Biyūtat and in the 15th year his rank was 2000 with 500 horse, and he had the appointment of Mīr Sāmān In the 17th year, when Mūsavī K died, he was made 'Aiz Waqāī of the provinces and of the department of presents which also had belonged to Mūsavī K In the 18th year he had an increase of 200 horse and the office of Aiz Waqāī of the provinces was given to Mulla 'Ala-ul mulk in his 100m. In the 19th year his iank was 2500 with 800 hoise. Afterwards, when, in succession to him, the office of Khānsāmān was given to Mullá 'Ala-ul-mulkī, he received an increase of 200 horse and was made 2nd Bakhshī, and Arz Waqā'ī of the provinces In the 20th year he was sent off with a body of troops to convey 25 lies of rupees to Ghorī to Shāh Beg K the thānadār there In the same year his rank became 3000 with 1000 hoise, and he had the gift of a flag the end of the 22nd year corresponding to 1059, 1649, at the time when Kabul was the halting-place of the standards of victory, he suddenly died He was versed in poetry and in accounts adopted daughter of Satī 2 Khānım—who had charge of the kıng's harem—was married to him

The said Khānim was descended from a Māzhindarān family, and she was the sister of Tālib ³ Āmulī who in the reign of Jahangir received the title of Maliku-sh-sh'aarār (king of poets). After the death of her husband Nasīrā, the brother of Hakīm Rukna of Kāshān, she by good fortune entered the service of Mamtāzu-zzamānī (Nūr Mahal, the wife of Shah Jahan). As she was adorned with an eloquent tongue, and a knowledge of etiquette, and knew house-keeping and medicine, she advanced beyond other servants

l Rısāla-ı-ın'aām Pādshāhnāma II, 373

³ Rieu 679b

² Pādshāhnāma I 151, 394, II 628

⁴ Rieu 603a

, and reached the rank of $muhrd\bar{a}i$ (sealer) As she knew the art of reading (the Qoian) and was acquainted with Peisian literature. she was appointed to be instructress to the Begam Sāhib (Aurangzeb's eldest daughter) and so attained to high distinction (lose to the sphere of Saturn, the seventh heaven) After the death of Mamtazu-z-zamānī, the king, who appreciated her merit, made her head of the Halem As she had no child, she after Tāliba's death adopted 2 his two daughters. The eldest was mairied to 'Āgıl K, and the younger to Zīā-ud-dīn, who was styled Rahmat K and who was the son of Hakīm Qutba, the brother of Hakīm In the 20th year, when the royal residence was Lahore, Ruknā the younger daughter-of whom the Khānīm was very fond-The Khānım went home and mourned for her died in childhed for some days After that, the king sent for her and placed her in the quarters that he had in the palace, and personally came to her there and administered her consolation She, after discharging the duties connected with the piesence 3 of the king, went to her appointed dwelling and surrendered her soul to God The king gave from the treasury Rs 10,000 for her funeral and burial, and ordered that her body should be kept in a temporary grave a year and odd it was conveyed to Agra and builed at a cost of Rs 30,000 in a tomb west of the sepulchre of the Mahad 'Alīya (Nür Mahal) in the Jilaukhāna Chauk (the square of the equipages?) A village yielding Rs 30004 was assigned for the expenses (of the upkeep) of the tomb

(RAJAH) ANŪP SINGH BADGŪJAR 6

He is known as Anī Rai Singhdalan Badgūjar is a tilbe of Rajputs His ancestors were zamindars. They say that his grandfather on account of poverty used to hunt deer, and live upon their flesh. By chance he one day in the jungle fired at what he thought was a tiger. He hit a royal $c\bar{\imath}ta$ which they had let loose

¹ Pādshāhnāma II 629

² She sent for them from Persia Pādshāhnāma II 630 See also Maasir U II 283, notice of Rahmat K

³ The duty of preparing Shah

Jahan's breakfast Pādshahnāma II 630 (Khūrāndīn māhazar khāsa)

⁴ Text 30,000, but it is 3000 in Pādshāhnāma II 629

⁵ Elliot's Supp Gloss I 38 "One of the 36 royal races of Rapputs"

at the deer, and which had secretly entered the jungle The bell. and golden collar enabled Anup Singh's grandfather to recognize that it belonged to the loyal establishment. He took off the trappings and flung the body into a well. Those who were looking for the cīta came to the well and gathered that this was the work of the Rajput who was always going about hunting They went to his house and got the bell and collar They also seized him and brought him before Akbar When he was told what had happened, he approved of his courage and marksmanship and took him into his service. On account of his love for shooting he gave him a suitable office His son Bīr Narayan also received a post and rose higher than his father When his son Anup came to years of discretion, he by his good service attained, in last years of Akbai's reign, the rank of head of the khidmatgārs who are called khwass He also discharged the same duties for a time during the leign of Jahangii In the fifth year of his leign Jahangir was one day engaged in pergunnah Bārī in hunting with leopaids (yoz) In the course of this, Anup Sing who was bringing on a party of the hunters learnt that there was a powerful tiger and went off towards it With the help of the party he surrounded it and sent word to the king Though it was the end of the day, and the elephants—which are necessary for hunting this dangerous animal—were not present, Jahangir, from his love for tiger-hunting, rode off to the spot. After seeing the tiger he dismounted and fired at it twice. As it was not badly wounded, it went to a low place and lay down. As the sun had declined and he was bent on shooting the tiger, and except Pince Shah Jahan, Raja Rām Dās Kachwāha, Anūp Singh, I'timād Rai, Hayat K K, superintendent of the abdaikhāna (wine-cellar), Kamāl Qarāwal and three or four khwāss, no one else was present, he advanced some steps and fired It happened that this time too no such wound was produced as would stop the tiger's spring In his rage the tiger rushed at the king, roaring and growling There was such a stampede of men that Jahangir was pressed the text has the word bara which to not know, but which the Maasir explains as meaning a number Apparently the word is $p\bar{a}ra$ for this occurs in the Tüzuk J 89, line 16 backwards and at the side, and after going back one or two paces He himself writes that two or three in their confusion trampled over his chest Meanwhile the prince fired, but without The tiger came upon Anūp Singh who was sitting down and holding the stand $(p\bar{a}ya)$ of the special gun in his hand He struck the tiger on the head with a stick that he had in his hand The tiger thiew him down At this time when the tiger's head was towards the king, Anup Singh put one hand into the tigei's mouth and rested the other on his shoulder The Prince on the left side drew his sword and wished to strike the tiger on the shoulder, but seeing Anup Rai's hand there, he struck the tiger on the loins Rām Dās also used his sword, and Hayat struck some blows with a stick The tiger left Anup and went off his hand, on account of the rings, had not been made useless. followed the tiger and struck him with a sword. When the tiger turned round, he struck him again on the face so that the skin of his eye-brows came off and fell over his eyes Meanwhile men assembled and at last disposed of the tiger 1. Anup got the title of Anī Rai Singhdalan, ie the subduer of the tiger, and an increase to his mansab When one day Jahangir for some reason blamed him he immediately drew his dagger and struck himself on the belly From that time his rank and influence increased Sometimes he was leader of an army In the 3rd year of Shah Jahan, when his father Bii Naiayan, who had a mansab of 1000 with 600 hoise, died. Anup Rai got the title of Rajah 10th year he died He had attained to the rank of 3000 with 1500 horse He also had some literature and skill in letter-writ-Jai Rām was his son Of him an account has been given

RAJAH ANURŪDHA GAUR

Eldest son of Rajah Bethal Dās When his father was made faujdār of Ajmere, he was made his deputy and took charge of the office In the 19th year of Shah Jahan, his rank was 1500 with 1000 horse, and in the 24th year he was given a flag

¹ The account of the affair is abridged from that in the Tūzuk, J 89, et seq Jahangir, p 90, says that an means in Hindi a leader and singhdalan means tiger-slayer See al-Iqbālnāma 46 etc

In the 25th year, when his father died, his rank was 3000 with 3000 cavalry, two-horse and three-horse, and he had the title of Rajah and the gift of a drum, a horse, and an elephant his father's death, he was made governor of the fort of Ranthambhūr Afterwards he was sent off with Plince Aurangzeb who was appointed for the second time to the Qandahar expedition When he returned in the 26th year, he was allowed to go to his fief and after that he went off with prince Dārā Shikoh to Qandahaı After coming there he went off with Rustum K Bahādui Fīrūz Jang to Bast In the 28th year he went with S'aad Ullah K Bahādur to raze Chitor and to punish the Rajah In the 31st year when Sulaiman Shikoh under the guardianship of the Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh was appointed to put down Shujā-who was doing futile things-he received the rank of 3500 with 3000 hoise-two-horse and three-horse-and went off with Sulaimān Shikoh After the accession of Aulangzeb he entered into service, and in the 1st year he was directed to accompany Muhammad Sultan who had been appointed to the affan of Shujā Meanwhile on account of some illness he stayed in Agra and went off while still ill After leaving the capital he died in 1069, 1659

$^{\prime}$ ĀQIL K MĪR $^{\prime}$ ASKARĪ

He was originally of Khawāf, and he was one of the Wālā Shāhīs (household troops). Twice, As it was one of the Wālā latter was prince place and Amangzeb. In the time when the was proceeds bent on was his second bakhshī. When the prince Tahan, Raja is was his second bakhshī. When the prince Tahan, Raja is was his second bakhshī. When the prince Tahan, Raja is was his second bakhshī. When the prince was his second bakhshī when the occasion Hayat rung from the Deccan to Upper India on the occasion Hayat rung from the Deccan to Upper India on the occasion the city. After Amangzeb's accession he came to court and the city. After Amangzeb's accession he came to court and received the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Wiyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Miyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Wiyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Wiyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Wiyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Wiyān leceived the title of 'Āqil K and was made faujdār of the Wiyān leceived the title of 'Āqil had an increase of 500 personality, and in the 12th year again went into retirement and received an annual allowance of Rs 12,000 He again became an object of favour, and in the 22nd year was made bakhshī-i-tan (superintendent of grants) in succession to Safī K. In the 24th year he was exalted by being made governor of the metropolitan province (Delhi), and was for a long time in that appointment. He died (lit went into the retirement of non-existence) in the 40th year, 1107, 1695-96. He had a disposition disposed to poverty and independence, and was of a steady mind. He did service in a stately manner, and was haughty with his equals

When Mahābat² K Muhammad Ibrāhīm was appointed to the government of Lahore, he asked for an order for viewing the fort and the royal buildings (of Delhi) His request was complied with and an order was issued to 'Aqil K in accordance therewith He wrote in reply that for certain reasons he could not send (nakhwāham talbīd) for Mahābat Firstly, a Haidarabad man was not a fitting person to see the royal buildings Secondly, the entrances to the houses were, out of precaution, kept closed, and the 100ms were uncarpeted. Nor was it right that they should be cleaned and carpeted for his inspection Thirdly, the behaviour which was expected from him ('Aqil) at an interview would not be displayed For every reason it was pieferable not to give him admission. After Mahābat came to the capital and sent a message, he absolutely declined (to admit him) The king too had regard to his long service and to his fidelity and loyalty, and overlooked his presumption and obstinacy, and entrusted the highest offices to him He was not without external perfections As he was devoted to the service of Shāh Buihānu-d-dīn Rāz Ilāhī—may the mercy of God be upon him! be adopted the pen-name of Rāzī³ His diwān and masnavī

^{1 1108,} according to Rieu Cat II 699a It is also 1108 in Massir A 883, from which the account in text of his manners is taken

Maasir, III 628 See the story in Maasir A 383 M Ibrāhim was a renegade

Rieu II 699a and Ethé I O Cat, pp 896-95 His muraqqa is an imitation of Jalalu-d-din Rumi's Masnavī Ethé, p 895, Sprenger Cat 543 and 123 Shāh Burhānu d-din belonged to Burhānpūr and died in 1083, 1672-73

are well known He regarded himself as unique for his capacity of explaining the niceties of the masnavī of the Maulānā of Rūm (Jalālu-d-dīn) He was of a liberal disposition and compassionate This verse is his. and he repeated it when Prince Aurangzeb went a-riding on the day of the death of Zainābādī

Verse.

How easy love appeared, how hard it was,

How hard parting seemed, what ease the beloved attained!

The prince bade him repeat the lines once or twice, and then asked him whom they were by 'Aqri replied,' They are by one who does not wish while in the service of his benefactor to call himself a poet'

'ARAB BAHĀDUR

In Akbai's time he was one of the officers appointed to the eastern districts, and he earned a good name by his bravery The pargana of Sasseram in Bihai was and useful service held by him in fief When the officers of that quarter stined up rebellion, he too threw the dust of disloyalty on his head and showed signs of sedition In the 25th year when Mozaffar K, the governor of Bengal, sent the goods of Khān Jahān Husam Qulī to court, and many soldiers and traders accompanied them, Muhibb 'Alī K —after the convoy had reached Bihai—appointed 2 one Habsh K to go with it with a body of troops hastened after the caravan, and when it had crossed at the Causă ferry, he laid hands on some elephants which had fallen After that he attacked Purokhotam, the diwan of the province,—who was collecting the soldiers in Baksar (Buxai), on a day when he was performing his devotions on the bank of the Ganges He defended himself, but was wounded and fell on the field, and died on the second day When Muhibb 'Alī heard of this, he came and fought with 'Arab and made him take

l See the story in Maasir I 792 in notice of the Khān Zamān Mīr Khalīl

² A N III 286

³ AN III 287

to flight. Afterwards, when Shahbaz K was sent off to that quarter from court, and came to the estates of Dalpat Ujjamiya, and after chastising him, placed Sa'adat 'Alī K in the fort of Kānt,1 a dependency of Rhotas, 'Arab, in conjunction with Dalpat, attacked the fort A great fight took place, and Sa adat 'Alī was killed while doing his duty, and 'Aiab wickedly drank' his blood and smeared some on his forehead! Atterwards, he joined M'asūm K Farankhūdī, and took part with him in two battles with Shahbaz K After he was defeated, he separated, and raised the dust of dissension in Sambal As the fief-holders there acted with concord and fought, he was defeated. He then went to Bihar and had an encounter with a force sent by the Khān 'Azim Koka and fled He hastened to Jaunpūi When Govardhan, the son of Rajah Todai Mal, was by Akbar's orders sent to punish him, he retreated into the hills. Afterwards he made his home in the hill-country of Bahraich and built a fort. He made this his refuge when he returned from plundering One day he had gone off on an expedition Kharak³ Rai the land-holder sent his son Dulah Rai against the fort 'Arab's gate-keepeis thought he was 'Arab and did not resist him The zamindar's people seized the accumulated property As they were returning, 'Arab lav in wait for them, and when they came up he scattered them Dulah Rai, who had remained behind, came up and defeated him 'Arab and two men with him fell into a place 4 the landholder followed them and put an end to 'Arab This affair occurred in the 31st year corresponding to 994, 1586 S Abū-l-fazl records 5 in the Akbarnāma that three days before this the Mīi Shikār,

In text But apparently it is the Kot of the Ain J II 157 See also Beames, JASB for 1885, p 181, who identifies it with Bijyaygarh, the fortin the Mirzapūr district so well known in connection with Chait Singh There is a Kantīt in Allahabad Sarkār, J II 161 Possibly some of the authorities have made a confusion between 'Arab Bahādur and 'Arab, which was another name for Nivābat K

² AN III 324

³ A N III 492

⁴ Jānībe AN III has jai "place," and there is the variant cāhī "a well"

b A N III 493 it is not mentioned there that Akbar was then at Chinhat Nor does it appear that there is a Chinhat or Chanhat in the Dūāb There was a Chanīwat in the Rechnan Dūāb, Jarrett II 320 The Tabaqāt A says 'Arab Bahādur was killed in pargana Sherkot Elliot V 453 Sherkot was in Sarkār Sambhal, Jarrett II 290

Arab by name, fell into the liver Bihat (the Jhilam) and that the king who was then in Chinhat (2) in the Dūāb said, "I have a presentiment that the days of 'Arab have come to an end'"

'ARAB KHĀN

His name was Nur Muhammad In the reign of Shah Jahan he obtained a mansab, and in the third year, when the city of Burhanpur was the royal residence, and three armies were sent, under the command of three leaders, to chastise \underline{K} hān Jahān Lodī and to devastate the lands of Nızāmu-l-mulk Deccanī, as he had taken Khan Jahān under his protection, he was appointed to accompany the 'Azım K After that he was appointed to the Deccan contingent, and in the 7th year, when Prince Shujā' came to the Deccan to take Parenda, and the Khān Zamān was sent in advance, he was left in Zafainagar with 500 troopers to guaid the noutes In the end of that year he had the title of 'Arab K and his rank was 1500 with 800 horse. In the 9th year, when the Deccan was the royal abode for the second time, and an army marched to chastise Sāhū Bhonsla, and to ravage 'Ādil Shah's country, he was sent with Khān Daulān and did good service in chastising 'Ādil K 's men In the 10th year his rank became 2000 with 1500 horse $d\bar{u}aspa$ and $sih\bar{a}spa$, and he was made governoi of the fort of Fathābād Dhāiwāi Afterwards he received an increase of 500 horse. In the 24th year he was given drums. Afterwards, when he had for seventeen years spent his days with honour in guaiding Fathābad Dhārwai, he in the 27th year, corresponding to 1063, 1653, went to Paiadise His son was Qil'adar K., and of him a separate account has been given

ARSLĀN KHĀN 1

Son of Ilahwardī K the 1st In the 5th year of Aurangzeb he was made faujdār of Benares in the place of Khwāja Sādiq Badakhshī In the 7th year he became faujdār of Siwistān in Sind in place of Zīyāu-d-dīn K and got the rank of 1000 with 900 horse, of whom 700 were two-horse and three-horse, and the title of Aıslān K (the Lion-khān) In the 10th year he was appointed faujdār of Sultanpur Bilehri and had the rank of 2000 with 800 horse which were two- and three-horse. In the 40th year he had an increase of 500. No more details of him have been received

¹ Maasır 'Alamgīrī, 82

ASAD KHAN MĀMŪRĪ.²

Son of 'Abdu-l-Wahāb K who had the poetical name of Ināyatī and was the younger brother of Mozaffar K Māmūrī He (Mozaffar) held a good position as an eloquent writer, and In Jahangir's time Asad was flist the governor of wrote a divan Qandahai Afterwaids, when Sultan Dawai Bakhsh's Khusiau became governor of Gujarat under the guardianship of Khān 'Azım Koka, he was made bakhshî thereof, and died there. Asad Khān loved soldiering. When he went with his uncle Mozaffar to Tatta he took into his service young men of the Aighūnia clan and distinguished himself by his courage He was also noticed by the sovereign and when Sultan Parvez went, under the guardianship of Mahābat K, in puisuit of the henapparent (Shah Jahan), he was one of the auxiliaries K, after coming to Burhanpur, put him in charge of Ilicpūr When the other officers and the mansabdars of the Deccan were appointed to help Mulla Muhammad (Laii) 'Adıl Shahi, he went with them Suddenly 'Adıl Shah (of Bijapur) received a great defeat in the battle of Bhātūiī,3 which was between Mullā Muhammad and Malık 'Ambai, and some of the imperial officers were made pilsoners Asad K by his activity got away from the battlefield and arrived at Burhanpur When Shah Jahan retuined from Bengal and proceeded to besiege that city, Asad 4 in conjunction with Rao Ratan defended it well. The prince had to raise the siege, and Asad was promoted by being made Bakhshī of the Deccan

They say that Khān Jahān Lodī, who became governor of the

l Variant Malhari Perhaps Bilehri in Oudh Jarrett II 174

² 'Mamūra 1s near Kabul Elliot V 316

³ Battle fought 5 kos from Ahmad-nagar in 1033, 1624 Iqbālnāma 236, Elliot VI 415 Mullā Muhammad was killed

⁺ Elhot VI 394, 395

Deccan after the death of Sultan Parvez, used to use up in honour of Fāzil K Āqā Afzal who was diwan of the Deccan, but did not use for Asad The latter was much displeased and would say, "He uses for a Mogul, and does not use for me who am a Saiyid" In the beginning of Shah Jahan's leigh he was removed from office and came to court, bringing with him 14 elephants as peshkash. As at the time of the siege of Burhanpur his men had used foul language in the presence of Shah Jahan's men he was much frightened, but as Shah Jahan was an ocean of kindness he received him well and comforted him. In the second year, he was made faujdār of Lakhī Jangal (in Sind), and with a personal allowance of 500 was made mansabdār of 2500 with 2500 horse. In the 4th year, 1041, 1632, he died in Lahore

ASAD KHĀN ĀSAFU-DAULA JAMLA-AL-MULK

His name was Muhammad Ibiāhīm, and he was the son of Zūl-fiqāi K Qaramānlū. He was the grandson of Sādiq K Mīr Bakhshī and son-in-law of Yemenu-d-daula Āsaf K. From his early years he was, on account of his personal beauty and external accomplishments, a favourite with Shah Jahan, and was conspicuous among his contemporaries. In the 27th year he received the title of Asad K and was made Master of the Horse, and afterwards 2nd Bakhshi.

When the throne of the Caliphate was adorned by the accession of 'Ālamgīr, he was encompassed by favours, and after having for a long time zealously served as 2nd Bakhshī, he was in the fifth year raised to the rank of 4000 with 2000 horse. In the 13th year after the death of the prime minister J'aafar K, he was made Deputy Vizier and received an ornamented dagger and two quids of pān from the king's own hands. An order was given that he should be styled the risāla 5 (dār) of Prince Muhammad ger I am not sure of the meaning

¹ Pād-hāhnāma I 197

Pädshähnäma I 288 Pädshähnäma I 397

^{*} M 1 103

E This is an obscure passage. It is taken from the Maasu 'Namgiri

^{103-4,} but the word for astrologer (munajim) is wanting there However the text is probably right, for at p 124 of the same work Dianat K is described as an unrivalled astrolo-

'Muazzam and that Dīānat K, the astrologer, should be made his sealer In the same year he was removed from the office of 2nd Bakhshī and in the 14th year made Mīr Bakhshī on the death of Lashkar K In the beginning of Zī-l-hajja of the 16th year Asad K resigned 1 the deputyship (of the diwānī) and an order was issued that Amanat K, diwan of the Khalsa, and Kifayat K, diwān-i-tan, should put their seals below that of the chief diwān, and carry on the affairs of the diwānī On 10 Shabān of the 19th year the Khān again received the ornamental ink-stand and obtained the great name of Grand Vizier In the end of the 20th year, when Khān Jahān Bahādur Kokaltāsh was censured and dismissed from the Deccan, the charge of the affairs there was bestowed on Diler K, until a subāhdār should be appointed Jumla-al-mulk, with a large army and suitable equipment, was sent to the Deccan, and arrived at Aurangabad when the occurrence of much tumult was reported to the king Shāh 'Alam was sent off to the Deccan as Nazım, and Asad K returned In the beginning of the 22nd year he waited on the king at Kishngarha 2 in the province of Ajmere When in the 25th year Aurangzeb proceeded to the Deccan to chastise Sumbhā Bhonsla (the son of Sivaji), who had given shelter to Prince Muhammad Akbar, Jumla-ulmulk was left in Ajmere with Prince 'Azīmu-d-din 3 in order that the Rajputs might not make a disturbance. After that in the 27th year he paid his respects at Ahmadnagar and, after the victory of Bijapur, he was made Vizier The chronogram is $Z\bar{\imath}b\bar{a}$ shuda masnad wazārat 1097, 1686 "The divan of the Viziership was of the word $ris\bar{a}la$, but think it is used for ris $\bar{a}lad\bar{a}r$ as at p 259 of Blochmann's $\bar{A}\bar{n}$. The fact that muhr is almost certainly used in the text and in the Maasir ' $\bar{A}lamg\bar{i}r\bar{i}$ for $muhrd\bar{a}r$ favours this view. See Blochmann's note 2!. The verb nawistan is used here to signify 'styled or called'' See a similar use in M. $\bar{A}lamg\bar{i}r\bar{i}$ 400, 1.9 from foot where we are told that the hall of Justice was now styled ($m\bar{i}nawisand$) the $diw\bar{a}n-i-maz\bar{a}lim$, and also Kh $\bar{a}\bar{i}\bar{i}$ K. II, 602, line S. It is noticeable that m the MA, pp 103-04, the verbs are in the plural, viz, nawīsand and bā-hand, instead of nawīsad and bāshad as in text Risāla or Risāladar probably means either Secretary, or keeper of diary IOMS Ethe 628 has nawīsand and bāshad

¹ MA 125-6

² MA 172 "Kishngarh is in Rajputanah, north east of Ajmer" Irvine 'Later Mughals," ASBJ for 1896, p. 152, note

^{*} That is, Prince Muhammad 'Azīm See Maşir 'Alamgīrī 212

adorned" After Golconda was taken he had an addition of 1000 hoise and arrived at the lofty rank of 7000 with 7000 horse the 34th year he was appointed to chastise the enemy on the other side of the Kistna (i.e., the south side) and to take the fort of Nandīāl otherwise Ghāzīpur, and to arrange for the government of the Bālāghāt of the Haidaiabad Cainatic After taking Nandīāl, he encamped in Cuddapah, which is on the borders of the An order was given to Prince Kām Bakhsh to take the As Rüh Ullah had been ordered to undertake fort of Wākınkera that work he proceeded towards Wākınkera to assist Jumla-ulmulk After the imperial army had arrived at Cuddapah, an order came in the 37th year that both forces should proceed to help Zūlfiqāi K, who was besieging Ginjee After coming there a disagreement arose between the prince and Jumla-ul-mulk account of certain matters. By the exertions of evil-disposed persons, this became vehement Jumla-ul-mulk, on the strength of the documentary evidence of some secret letters, which the prince had sent to Rāmāī² the governor of the fort by the instrumentality of some men who did not think of their latter end, wrote to the king and was authorized to keep Rão Dalpat Bundīla night and day in attendance on the prince and to put a stop to equipages and councils $(diw\bar{a}n)$ and to the coming and going of strangers At this time it was ascertained by spies visiting the foit that Kām Bakhsh, on account of his dislike of Jumla-ul-mulk, had decided upon going off to the fort on a dark night Accordingly Asad K, after consulting with Zūl-fiqāi K (his son) and other leaders of the siege-force, presumptuously entered the prince's quarters and put him under arrest He removed from Gingee, and in accordance with orders sent the prince to court He himself stayed for a time

l Nandbal in text it is Nandival or Nandial in MA 354 and in IG It is south of Kurnool

² Text has Rai only There is the variant Rāmāī, and this is supported by Maasīr A 356 which has Rāmāī Jahannamī "the hellish Rāmāī" He is the Rajah Ram of Grant-Duff I 301 He was a son of Fivali and succeeded to the throne after fumbhaji, id 371. It was from him that the English obtained the site of Fort St. David. For account of Kām. Bakhsh's intrigues, etc., see Maasir. A. 356, Khāfī K. II. 420, Elliot. VII. 348, and Grant-Duff I. 381.

in Sankar ¹ Afterwards, ² when summoned to the presence, many apprehensions about the painful case of the prince occurred to him On the day of his attendance when he came to the place of saluting Multafat K (Amīi K Sindhī), the superintendent of the pages, was standing near the throne and whispered, "There's a pleasure in pardoning which is not in revenge" The king said, "You have quoted aptly" He permitted him to do homage and treated him with favour

When Aurangzeb, in the 43rd year of his reign, after staying four years in Islampūrī commonly known as Bramapura,3 placed his world-conquering foot in the stirrup of a world-traversing steed with the laudable design of waging a holy wai and of taking the forts and devastating the territories of Sīva Bhonsla, in 1110, 1698—99, he left the holy Nawāb Zīnatu-n-nısā Begam (his daughter) there with the servants of the harem and appointed Asad K to guard them In the 45th year, at the beginning of the affair of Khelna,4 he was summoned to court and received the Fath Ullah K. Hamīdu-d-dīn K and title of Amīru-l-Umaiā Rajah Jai Singh were appointed to act under him in taking the fortress lofty as heaven (Khelna) After it was taken, as the Amīru-l-Umarā was feeble, a gracious order was issued that he should come out by a passage (1āhrā, a corridor) from the inside of the Hall of Justice-which had received by command the name of Diwan-i-Mazālim ("The hall of grievances")—and sit

Sankar The passage is taken from the Maasir A 364, third last line, where we have the statement that the Jumla-ul-mulk stayed, according to orders, in Nasratābād-Sakkar For an account of this mint-town see Irvine, ASBJ for 1893, p 264 It is Sagar of the maps and is in the Nizām's territory, and is WSW Haidarabad

² Maasir A 364—65 The line quoted by Multafat occurs in Badayūnī I 447

³ The Brimhapooree of Grant-Duff I 378, 391 It was on the Beema (Bhima) below Punderpur and N N W

Bijapur The text wrongly has 1010 instead of 1110 Sīva had been dead for 18 years when Aurangzeb made this expedition within a railing (kathara) at the distance of one cubit from the steps of the chamber (hujra) For three days he was to sit there, and after that he was to get a staff

⁴ Now Vishalgurh, Grant-Duff, I 62 note and 377 Maasir A, 445 It is in the Syahadri lange or Western Ghats and is S Sattara and W Panala, ie Banī Shahdrug The taking of Khelna is also described in Khāfī K II, 491

⁵ This is taken from the Maasir A 460, though the staff is not mentioned there. The chamber was probably Aurangzeb's private room

After the death of Amangzeb, Prince Muhammad Azım Shah also treated Asad K with honour and made him Vizier When the prince left Gwaliyai in order to fight with Bahādur Shah he left him there with the baggage and he also left there his full sister Zmatu-n-nısā Begam whom Bahādui Shah (afterwards) styled Begam Sāhib When the biceze of victory blew, by the favour of God, on the standards of Bahādui Shah, that mild sovereign had regard to Asad K's long service and his confidential position and summoned him to court Some courtiers said that he had been the leading partner in 'Azim Shah's affans replied,1 "If at that disturbed time our own sons had been in the Deccan, they would have felt themselves obliged to support their After he had presented himself he received the title of Nızāmu-l-mulk Āsatu-d-daula and was made Vakıl—who in former times was master of all affairs, political and financial-and was allowed to have his music played in the king's presence the king considered it a matter of the first importance to conciliate Mun'ım K the Khān Khānān—who had many claims to consideration and was Grand Viziei—and as it was proper 2 that the Viziei should stand at the head of the divan and present the papers to the prime minister (vakīl-i-matlaq) for signature, as other leading officers of departments did, and as this was felt by the Khān Khānān to be disagreeable, it was arranged that as Āsafu-d-daula was old and wanted comfort and repose he should go to Shahjahanabad (Delhi) and spend his days in peace, and that Zūlfiqār should carry on the duties of the Vakalat as deputy account of preserving the dignity of Khān-Khānān no other vakālat duty was attached (to Zūlfiqār) except that of using the vakālat seal which was to be put on grants and orders subsequent to the seal of the viziership Asafu-d-daulah five 3 times

¹ Khāfī K II 600

² Khāfī K II 601 See also Sıyaru-Mutakharīn I 15 and Irādāt K's 'Memoirs, p 46

⁸ Probably this refers to the fact that Bahādui Shah reigned for five years Or perhaps it means that his orchestra played five times a day

beat the music of success in the capital and possessed the materials of a prosperous life

When the sovereignty came to Jahandar Shah, and Zulfigar became supreme in the affairs of the empire, Asad K gave up the insigma of office. On the two or three occasions that he went to court his palangum was put down at the diwan-i-'amm and he sat near the throne. The King in conversation used to call him After Jahandar 1 Shah had been defeated and had fled from Agra he came to Asafu-d-daulah's house (in Dellu) and wished to collect a force and to make another attempt. Zulfigar too came 2 and was vehement about doing this Asad K who was an old and experienced man, of a good disposition and fond of repose did not agree and said to his son, 'Muizu-d-din is a drunkard and addicted to frivolity and low company and is unappreciative he is unfit to rule. How can it be right to support a man like this and to stir up slumbering strife again, and to cause evil to the country and rum to the world knows what the end will be! It is night that you and I should support whatever scion of the Timurids is fit for the throne? On the same day he arrested Jahandar and sent him to the fort He did not know that fate was laughing at his plans thought for the end and prudence for self-interest were the cause of the destruction of his son's life and the ruin of the honour and prosperity of his house! But as inquiries about Fate and perspicacity about the secrets thereof are not within human power, why should helpless man incur reproach and blame for such a purpose? The right 3 thing for the time and the best for the final that, seeing that the decrees of Fate cannot be known, man should not try to be too elever and incur blame by doing wrong in order that good may come. But perhaps the meaning is that as the decrees of Fate cannot be known one should not be blamed for being mistaken about them. The Blochmann MS has a different reading just before the passage "But they say, etc". It has goind instead of būd. "They say what he did was ex-

¹ Khāfi K II 725 Elhot VII,

² He arrived after the emperor This passage may be compared with the Siyar Mutakharīn Apparently both writers are following the same original Irādat K, Memoirs, p 95, says that the populace compelled Asad K to imprison Jāhandar Shah

⁵ I am not sure of the meaning of this or the preceding sentence I understand the passage as meaning result may be one and the same thing But people say that honour and a regard to reputation, or rather justice and humanity did not require that, when the king of India, with all his rights, and after granting so many favours, had come to his house in reliance upon him at such a time of misfortune, and consulted him about his plans, he should seize and make him over to his enemies to be evil-entreated. If he himself, from old age, was incapable of exertion, he might have let him go off with his followers. He would then have gone to whatever waste or wild his ruined fortunes led him. Nor would Asad K have pushed him further on the road he was going.

Be this as it may, when Muhammad Fariukh Siyai perceived that the distracted king and viziei had gone off to the capital he was afraid lest they should turn again and there be a new disturbance So he sent through Mīr Jumla Samarkandī comforting letters to father and son and soothed their troubled minds by flatteries and cajoleries They say that the Saivids of Barha did not share the king's counsels in this matter and did not know On the contrary, they felt certain that they (Asad about this and his son) would come to the battle-field Why would not they act in accordance with their own interests? They sent! them messages that they should enter into service through them, so that no harm might come to them As the managers of fate had a different intention, father and son were deceived by the false promises of the king, and did not trouble themselves about the Saiyids, but regarded the applying to them as a cause of loss to When Mīn Jumla heard of the Saiyid's message he hastily sent Taqairab K Shirāzī to Asafu-d-daula (Asad K), with the announcement that if they wanted to recommend themselves to the king they should be on their guard against joining Qutbu-lmulk and the Amīnu-l-Umarā They say that he even swore this on the Koran At any rate, when the king arrived at Bāia Pula,² Delhi, Asafu-d-daula and Zūlfiqār K went and with perfect pedient for the time and in agreement with the (probable) final result "

For a full account of Jahandar's flight to Delhi, and his capture by

Asad K, see Irvine's Later Moghuls, ASB J for 1896, p 204 etc

¹ Khāfī K II, 732

² ماری بله bāra pula This must be serenity waited upon him The king comforted them by presenting them with jewels and lobes of honour, and by gracious words, and then dismissed them He ordered that Zülfiqai K should remain in attendance on account of certain business daula perceived that something evil was going to happen and went to his house with a sad heart and inflamed eyes. On the same day they kılled Zülfiqāı ın the manner that has been described in his biography Next day Asad K was imprisoned and his house confiscated Nothing was left to him, but a hundred rupis a day were allowed him from the treasury for his subsistence the feast of the Accession they wished to send him jewels and a Husain Alī K Amīju-l-umajā desired that he 10be of honour might personally convey them They say that the Amīru-l-umarā paid his respects according to the old formula, and that Asad K also, according to old custom, when he was coming and going (mani-u-zahāb), laid his hand upon his (own) breast—and gave the pan with his own hands and dismissed him. In the 5th year, 1129, 1717, when he was 94 years old, he departed from this world full of sorrow Another Amīr of such a good disposition, so little injurious, and so patient, possessed of external beauty and of goodness, who treated his inferiors with kindness and gentleness, and was firm and dignified with his rivals, could not be found among his contemporaries From the beginning of his career he was successful and always threw double sixes into the cup of his desires Heaven—that deceitful dicer—played unfairly the last hand with him, and the doubling Cossack (qazāq-i-inqilāb) the Bāra Pool of Harcourt's Delhi, and Mr Keene's map, and which is described by the former as 'a large native bridge with eleven arches, paved with stone slabs. It is just beyond Humāyūn's tomb, on the high road to Bullubghur'. It is therefore to the south of Delhi (about four miles away). Bāra Pul might mean the twelve arches. Pul is a common name for a bridge. The bridge was built in Jahangir's time and is described and figured in Syed Ahmad's Asār Sanādīd, p. 27. It has only eleven arches For an account of Asad K and his son's presentation to Farrukh Siyar and of the murder of Zū-l-fiqār, see Irvine's Later Moguls, ASBJ for 1898, p 145, etc

1 This passage seems to be illustrated by the note to Siyaru-l-Muta kherin 1, 246 The old way of making obeisance was to place the hands over the navel, which, according to the translator, is higher up in natives, and Asad Ullah probably did obeisance in this way to the robes sent him made a two-horse ¹ attack upon the home of his peace when he was close to his goal. A morning of joy ne'er shone from a pitiless heaven that evening did not darken. Nor a sweet morsel ever tickled the palate which was not blended with a hundred poisons. Whom did the faithless one ever unite with that it did not cast away ². Wherever it sate, it soon rose up

Verse

Heaven soon repents of its bounties,

The sun bestows a cake 2 in the morning and takes it back at eve

Among the goodnesses of Jumla-ul-mulk they relate that when Aurangzeb in the 47th year, after the taking of the fort of Kandana known as Bakhshanda Bakhsh (the gift of the Giver) came to Mahīābād-Pūna to spend the rainy season, by chance the quarters of the Amīru-l-umaiā were in low ground, and the tents of 'Inayat Ullah K dıuān-ı-khālsa-u-tan were on high ground After some days had elapsed when the said Khān had put an enclosure round his female apartments. Amīru-l-umarā's eunuch Basant,3 who controlled his household sent a message to 'Inayat K to clear out as the Nawab's tents would be placed there Khān said, 'Good, but give time in order that I may find another place" The eunuch, a haughty Turk, replied by bidding him leave at once As 'Inayat was helpless he moved to another The king came to know of this, and sent a message to Jumla-ul-mulk through Hamīdu-d-dīn K Bahādur directing him to give the place to 'Inayat K , and to move and take another Asad K delayed a little, and an order was given that he should go to the quarters of 'Inayat Ullah and apologize that time it chanced that 'Inayat Ullah was in his bath ul-mulk came and sate in the diwankhana, and Inayat quickly

l Duāspa tākht General Briggs, in a note to Ferishta, says that the dūaspa or two-horse mode of attack is described by Malcolm in his history. The Turkoman robbers often took two 'orses into the field

² The sun's disk is often compared to a round cake of bread

 $^{^3}$ Nisbat in text, but see Maasir A , 475

Amīru-l-Umarā took his hand and brought him to his house (tent) and presented him with nine pieces of cloth and humbled l himself before him. He showed him kindness and friendship to the end of the interview and afterwards never showed any dislike or displeasure, but was more and more gracious Such men have existed under the heavens! They say that the expenses of his harem and for the purveyors of music and song were so great that his revenues did not meet them account of chronic haemorihoids he never sate on the ground if he could help it Always in his house he lay on a couch. Besides Zūlfiqār K he had a son named 'Inayat K by Newal Bāī, who was called Rānī He ('Inayat) wrote a good hand, and became superintendent of the jewel-100m and had a suitable mansab By order of the king he married the daughter of Abūl-Hasan of Hyderabad, but he fell into evil ways and became He got permission to go to the capital and there conducted himself improperly Continually there came complaints about him from Delhi There he died in the same condition His son Sālih K obtained in the time of Jahandāi Shāh the title of 'Itiqād K and a high rank His brothei Mīrzā Kāzim, by associating with dancers and convivialists, ruined his reputation, and by his evil ways opened the doors of disgrace on his career

ĀSAFU-D-DAULA AMĪRU-L-MAMĀLIK

He was the third son of Nizāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jāh His real name was Saiyid Muhammad In the life-time of his father he received the title of Khān and the name Salābat Jang Bahādur, and was appointed to the government of Haidarabad After his father's death when Nāsir Jang, the martyi, went to Pondicherry to suppress the rebellion of Mozaffar Jang, Salābat went with him After Nāsir Jang's martyrdom, he returned with l iqāmat goyān—words expressive, apparently, of earnest entreaty More probably the meaning is "gave him them, saying they were in honour of his visiting him," i e as his footing. The story is told at length in the Massir A, 475, etc

² Khāfī K II, 407, Abūl-hasan was the unfortunate king of Haidarabad and Golconda The marriagewas in 1103, 1692

Mozaffai Jang When, on the maich, Mozaffai Jang was killed by the Afghans, Salabat J sate upon the masnul, as he was older than the other brothers. He received from the emperor Ahmad Shah an increase of rank and the title of Asafu-d-daula Zaffai Jang Afterwards he received the title of Amiru-l-mama-Rajah Roghanāth Dās who was his minister, conciliated and took into service a body of hat-wearing Frenchmen who had come with Mozaffai Jang Salabat K came to Aurangabad in 1164, 1751, and attacked the country of the Mahrattas Afterwards peace was made and he came to Haidarabad. On the march Roghanath Das was killed by his soldiers and Raknu-ddaulah Saivid Lashkai K became his prime minister. In the second following year (1165) when Ghāzīu-d-dīn Fītūz Jang, his elder brot: as appointed to the government of the Deccan and cam to vulangabad along with the Malvattas, though he shortly afterwards died, the Mahrattas on the strength of his grants took most of Khandes and some parts of the province of Aurangabad His household affairs throughout his rule were dependent on the opinions of his officer- When the giant of the government of the Deccan was given from the emperor to his brother Nizāmu-d-daula Āsaf Jah-who had formerly been declared to be hen-apparent, and been invested with the duties of government—he was necessarily put into retirement. He died in pilson in 1177 1763, and a report spread that his guards had killed³ him

ĀSAF⁴ KHĀN KHWĀJA GHĪYĀSU-D-DĪN 'ALĪ QAZWĪNĪ

He was the son of Āqā Mullā dawāt dāi (inkstand-holdei), who, it is notolious, was in the time of Shah Tahmāsp Safavī

¹ In the time of Alamgir the 2nd (Gholam 'Ali Azal)

² At Balkee on 7 April 1752 Grant-Duff II 54 Siyaru-l M III, 324 and note On 13 Jumāda al akhirī 1165 (Gholam Alı)

³ He was imprisoned in July 1762 and was murdered on 8 Rabī-al-awwal

^{1177 16} September 1763 Grant-Duff II 167 The same date is given in the Khazāna 'Āmiā, Lucknow lith, p 71 He was imprisoned in the fort of Bīdar This biography may be compared with that in the Khazāna 'Amrā

⁴ Blochmann 433 and 369 He is one of the privileged courtiers. His other sons M Badī'u-zzamān and M Ahmad Beg became Vizieis of Peisia They say that he was descended from the Sharkh of Sharkhs Shihābu-d-dīn 1 Suhrawaidī, whose perfections it is unnecessary to describe, and whose lineage ascended to Muhammad, the son of Abū Bakru-ssādıq In Sūfism he (Suhrawardī) was allıed to his uncle S Najību-d-dīn Suhiawaidī He was a congelies of exotelic and esoteric sciences and was the Shaikh of Shaikhs of Bagdad He was the author of elegant treatises such as the 'Awarifu-l-m'uaiif (Scientiae scientiaium) In the year 633, 1235-36, or 632, he Khwāja Ghiyāsu-d-dīn 'Alī was distinguished for his eloquence and industry, and was not without vigour and courage When he came to India he had the good fortune to be the recipient of favours from Akbar and to be made Bakhshī the year 981, 1573, he took part in the nine days' rapid march to Gujarat and did good service in the battle with the rebels there who had besieged M Koka in Ahmadabad, and received the title of Asaf K At the time of the victorious return to the capital he was made Bakhshī of the province in order that he might co-operate with M Koka in improving the army. In the 21st year he was appointed with a number of other officers to the province of Idar, which is a dependency of Ahmadabad He was to clear it of rebels The zamındar Narain Das Rahtor presumptuously came out from the defiles to give battle, and there were great hand-to-hand combats The imperial vanguard gave way and M Muqim Naqshbandi, who was in command was killed, and a disaster was imminent. Asaf K and the leaders of the right and left wings redoubled their efforts, and the enemy was defeated In the close of the 23rd year Akbar sent him to Malwa and Gujarat in order that, having with the co-operation of Shihābu-d-dīn Ahmad K the Nazim of that place, brought the army of Malwa to submit to the branding regulation he might hasten to Gujarat He was, with the co-operation2 of Descriptions on process and non-section for process.

the Āsaf K II of Blochmann His daughter married Ghas Beg and be came the mother of Nür Jahan

¹ Beale p 360 col 2 He was born in 1145 and, and died in 1234 according to Beale See also Bloch mann's note, p. 433

² A N III 264

of Qulij K the governor, there to improve the conf was killed troops, and to ascertain their condition Asaf K 1, as he was duty in accordance with the royal orders and acted the emperor In 989, 1581, he died in Gujarat One of u-d-daula was Mīrzā Nūru-d-dīn When Sultan Khusrau was l-mamāand was placed by Jahangir for some days in the charge chated K, M J'aafar, Nûru-d-dîn, who was Āsaf K's cousin, wer had himself to Khusiau and kept him company and airanged whenever an opportunity offered he would have him release and made prosperous Afterwards, when Khusrau was made over to I'tıbar K the eunuch, Nüru-d-din took ınto hıs confidenc' a Hindu who used to visit Khusiau and gave a list to him of all the devoted followers of Khusrau In the course of five or six months nearly 400 persons had become bound by oaths that they would attack Jahangir on the road By chance one of the party got offended (with his comrades) and gave information to Khwaja Waisi Diwan of Prince Sultan Kharram The Khwaja immediately reported to the Plince, and he conveyed the news to Jahangir Immediately those doomed men were produced, and an order was given that Nūru-d-dīn, Muhammad Shaiīf, the son of I'timādu-ddaula, and some others should be executed The list of the names which had been obtained from the Hindu servant of I'tibar K was at the petition of Khān Jahān Lodī thrown by Jahangii into the fire unread Otherwise many would have been capitally punished.1

ĀSAF KHĀN MĪRZĀ QIWĀMU-D-DĪN J'AAFAR BEG

Son of Mīrzā Badī'u-z-zamān, who was son of Aqā Mullān Dawātdār (inkstand-holder) of Qazwīn I Badī-z-zamān was vizier of Kāshān in the reign of Shah Tahmāsp Safavī, and M J'aafar Beg along with his father and giandfather was one of the Shāh's courtiers In the 22nd year, 985, 1577, he in the prime of his youth came to India and waited upon Akbai in company² with

¹ See Khāfī K I 258 and Tūzuk J 58 The conspiracy was in the 2nd year and was discovered when J was in Afghanistan and returning from Kabul The account in text is mainly taken from the Iqbalnama, p 28 It appears that the plot had been going on for five or six months

² AN III 228

his paternal uncle M Ghiyāsu-d-dīn 'Alī Āsaf K Bakhshī, who had come to court after he had finished the affairs of Idar Akbar appointed him to the rank of 200 in the contingent $(dakhil)^{\perp}$ of Āsaf Khān. He was not pleased with the smallness of this appointment, gave up service and ceased to attend court. The emperor was displeased and sent him to Bengal, which was an unhealthy climate then and where criminals who were sent there did not survive

They say Maulānā Qāsım Kāhī² of Transoxiana, who was one of the old poets and lived in a perfectly free manner, met in with J'aafai in Agra and enquired about his circumstances When he heard his story he said "My dainty youth, don't go to Bengal" The Mīrzā replied What can I do, I am going in ieliance upon The jovial fellow said, "Don t go in reliance on Him is the same God who sent such a person as Imām Husain to the Karbala to be martyred" It chanced that when the Mīrzā arrived in Bengal, Khān Jahān, the governor, was ill, and after-Mozaffai K Turbatī then succeeded him wards died time had elapsed when the rebellion of the Qāqshāls and the turbulence of M'asūm K Kabulī raised the dust of disaffection in that country Things went so far that Mozaffar K came to the fort of Tanda and shut himself up there The Mīrzā was with him When he was seized many of his companions were held to ransom, but he by cleverness and plausibility escaped such demands, and came away and did homage at Fathpūi Sīkrī As he had gone away in contempt and failure and had again, owing to the guidance of good fortune, attached himself to the saddle-straps of fortune, Akbar approved of him and shortly afterwards gave him the rank of 2000 and the title of Āsaf Khān He was also made 3 Mīi Bakhshī in the 100m of Qāzī 'Alī, and was sent against the Rānā of Udaipui He did not fail to attack and plunder and to kill and to distinguish himself In the 32nd year

¹ B 231 and Irvine, Moghul Army, 160 B 411 following M'utamid, Iqbālnāma 4 makes the appointment one of bīsti, i e 20 And evidently the 200 of the Maasir is a mistake

 $^{^2}$ Badayūnī III 172 and B 566

The story comes from the Iqbalnama, p 5

³ Apparently he was made Mir Bakhshi in 989 when Akbar was on the way to Kabul See Tūzuk J 50 when Ism'aīl Qulī K Turkoman was censuled for leaving the passes open so that Jalālu-d-dīn Raushānī got out, Āsaf K was appointed to succeed him and made thanadar of Sawad (Swat) In the 38th year, 1000, 1592, when Jalāla Raushānī, who had gone to 'Abdullah K , the king of Tūrān, had come back unsuccessful and begun a disturbance in Tīrah, and had been joined by the Afrīdīs and the Orakzai, Āsaf K was sent from court to extinpate In 1001, 1592-93, he, in conjunction with Zain K Koka, chastised I Jalala and made his family prisoners together with Wahadat 'Alī, who was said to be his brother and other relatives and connexions to the number of nearly 400 persons, and produced them before Akbar In the 39th year when Kashmīr was taken from M Yūsuf K and given in fief (tankh wāh) to Ahmad Beg K,2 Muhammad Qulaī Afshāi, Hasan Aiab and Aimāq Badakhshī,3 Asaf K was sent off in order to divide the country properly among the fief-holders He reserved the saffron and the game for the exchequer and fixed the revenue at 31 lacs of karwars in accordance with the settlement of Qazi Ali, each karuar being estimated at 24 dams. After dividing the fiefs properly he in three days made the journey from Kashmir to Lahore 42nd year, when the territory of Kashmii became disorganized on account of the disputes among the fief-holders, Asaf K was appointed governor In the 44th year, beginning of 1098, he, in place of Rai Patr Das, was appointed to the Divani-kul (the whole diwani) and carried on the duties for two years in a consummate manner When in 1013,5 1604-05, Sultan Selīm (Jahangir) cast away the thoughts of rebellion, and on the occasion of condolences for the death of Miriam Makānī waited upon his father and was for twelve days shut up in the $ghusalkh\bar{a}na^6$ and then was treated graciously, and it was agreed that he should get

¹ Elhot V 467, Badayūnī II 388, A N III 640, etc

² Rlochmann's MS has Kabulı

Perhaps the Aimāqs of Badakhshan The original passage is AN III 654, line 33 There the passage reads 'Muhammadī Beg Aimāq of Badakhshan''

⁴ A N III, 661

⁵ AN III, 832

⁶ Private audience chamber, lit bathroom See Bernier The ghusal-khāna was another name for the diwān khāna khās See Gladwin's Persian Munshi, "Rules observed during the reign of Shah Jahan," p 51

the province of Gujarat in fief and give up Allahabad and Bihar which he had taken possession of without orders, the subahdārī of Bihai was given to Asaf K and he was laised to the lank of 3000 and sent off to govern that province When the crown came to Jahangu, Asaf K was sent for and made guardian of Prince Sultan Paiviz He was sent to chastise the Rānā,—a business which alose at that time—but on account of the rebellion of Sultan Khusrau he was recalled In the 2nd year, 1015, 1606-7, when Jahangii proceeded to Kabul, he was made Vakil in place of Sharīf K, the Amīru-l-umarā, who remained in Lahore on account of severe illness, and raised to the rank of 5000 and received a jewelled writing-case The leading men (danyādārān, see B 412, n 2) of the Deccan, especially Malik 'Ambai the Abyssinian, after the death of Akbar put forth the foot of audacity and wrested many of the estates in the Balaghat from the imperial The Khān-Khānān from insouciance and factiousness did not strive in the beginning to extinguish the flames, and allowed them to use high Afterwards, when he did attend to the matter, and asked for help, Jahangn appointed Sultan Parviz under the guardianship of Asaf Khan, and also sent, one after the other, great officers such as Rajah Mān Singh, Khān Jahān Lodi, the Amiru-l-Umaia, the Khan A'zım and 'Abdullah K each of whom was able singly to conquer a kingdom-but from want of guidance on the part of the prince, excessive wine-drinking, and plundering enterprises, the work did not go forward the contrary, on account of the treachery of the officers, every time that they led an aimy into the Balaghat it had to turn back with failure and disgrace In consequence of these oppositions Āsaf K's plans did not succeed At last, in the 7th year, 1021, 1612, he died there 1 "from natural causes" "A hundred regrets tor Āsaf Khān" gives the date 2 (sad haif z Asaf Khān, 1021 "One hundred regrets for Asaf K") He was one of the unique of the age He was supreme in every science, and complete in all knowledge His swift intelligence and lofty capacity were

He died at Burhānpūi at the age of 63 Tūzuk J 108 222 of translation

² M'utamid K in the Iqbālnāma, p 67, claims to have extemporized this chionogram famous He himself used to say, "Whatever I do not comprehend off-hand will turn out to be without meaning." They say he could read a whole series of lines at a glance. In eloquence, skill and the disposal of financial and political matters he was pre-eminent. He was adorned outwardly and inwardly. He had great power in poetry and in polite literature. In the belief of a number of persons no one has treated better than he the subject of Khusiau and Shīrīn since the days of S. Nizāmī of Ganj

(Verses 2)

They say he took much pleasure in flowers, and rosbeds and gardens and parterres, and planted seeds and seedlings with his own hands He frequently worked, spade in hand He had also gathered 3 together many women. In his last illness he sent away one hundred beauties 4 He left many children, male and female, but none of his sons distinguished himself Mīrzā Zain-l-'ābidīn attained the rank of 1500 with 1500 horse and died in the second year of Shah Jahan His son M J'aafar, who had the same name and takhallas as his grandfather, wrote good poetry. He had a passion for collecting animals in every season. There was great friendship between him, Zāhid Khān Koka and Mīrzā Sāqī,5 the son of Saif Koka, and Shah Jahan called them the "Three friends " At last he left his office and settled in Agra Jahan made him an annual allowance, and in the time of Aurangzeb it was increased He died in 1094, 1683 These verses are his

(Verses)

Another of Āsaf K 's sons was Suhrāb K In Shah Jahan's time he obtained an office of 1500 and 1000 horse, and then died Another was M 'Alī Asghar He was the one of the brothers who was the greatest voluptuary and least restrained He did

His poem was called the Nūrnāma and was dedicated to Jahangir
 Tūzuk, p 108 Rieu, Supp Cat 200

² See B 572 for other specimens

⁸ Cf Iqbālnāma, 67

⁴ Suhailī, the star Canopus, and perhaps a name for a beautiful woman J'aafai is frequently mentioned in the Akbarnāma See III, 304, etc Āsaf K was one of the continuators of the T Alfī, Rieu 1, 118 and Eadayūnī, Lowe, 329

⁵ Variant Shafi and in B

not keep his tongue in order, and often spoke without regard to time of place. In the Parendah expedition he created dissensions 2 between Shah Shuja' and Mahabat K, the Commander-in-After that he received an appointment in the affair of Jujhāi 3 Bandīla When the governoi of the fort of Dhamūnī 4 came out in the darkness of the night the soldiers entered it and commenced to plunder The Khan Dauran was compelled to enter the fort in order to stop them. A man called out from the south side that in one of the bastions a number of the enemy were to be seen 'Alī Asghar said, 'I'll go and seize them ' Though Khān Daurān dissuaded him, saying it was night and that it was not advisable in this kind of general confusion, when friend could not be distinguished from foe to go out, he did not listen but went off When he got to the top of the wall of the fort, suddenly the ashes of a torch which the plunderers had lighted in order to look for goods, fell upon a store of gunpowder which was at the bottom of the tower The whole bastion with eighty yards of wall on each side, which wall was ten yards thick, was blown into the air 'Alī Asghai' and some of his companions and the whole of the plunderers who were on the wall were The daughter of M'utamid K was in his house, but annihilated as the marriage had not been consummated, she was by the King's orders afterwards married to Khān Daurān

ĀSAF K known as ĀSAF JĀHĪ

He was M Abū-l-hasan by name and was the son of I'tımādu-d-daulah and elder brother of Nūr Jahān Begam After the Begam was married to Jahangır he received the title of I'tımād

^{1 &}quot;Near the Sina river on the route from Ahmadnagar to Sholapur" Elhot VII, 22 See also id 43

² The words are miyān Shah Shuja u Mahābat sangandāzīhā namūd, and Blochmann 413 translates "he created dissensions between Shah Shuja and Mahabat Khan" But though this may be the meaning, sangandāzī also means to be continually drinking, and possibly what is meant is that 'Alī Asghar was continually drinking in the company of Shah Shujā and Mahābat But we are not told anywhere that Mahābat was a drunkard

³ Pādshāhnāma II, 94

⁴ Elliot VII, 47 and 49, and Padshahnama II, 109

⁵ Khan Daurān No 2 of Beale

⁶ Pādshāhnāma II, 109, et seq

K, and became the Khānsāmān (steward) In the 7th year of Jahangir 1020, 1611, his daughter Arimand Bānū Begam, who is known as Mamtāz Mahal and was the daughter's daughter of M Ghryāsu-d-dīn Āsaf K, was married to Prince Sultan Kharram who was called Shah Jahan. In the 9th year he received the title of Āsaf K and had increases, one after the other, until he obtained the rank of 6000 with 6000 horse. At the time when there was the dust of trouble between Jahangir and Prince Shah Jahan, intriguers and evil-thinking persons suspected Āsaf K of favouring the prince, and alienated the mind of the Begam from a brother who was the pillar of the empire

Verse

When self-interest appears—wit goes into hiding A hundred veils spread from the heart to the eyes

As she considered him to be an obstacle to her designs, she had him removed from the court on the pretext that he should bring away the treasures from Agra. But as the prince (Shah Jahan) had arrived at Fathpūr, Āsaf K. did not think it advisable to remove the treasure from the blessed fort of Agra and turned back to go to court. He had not reached Mathura when the counsellors of the prince urged that at such a time it was not advisable to allow a leader like Āsaf K. to depart and that the neglect of such an opportunity was contrary to prudence. The prince—whose sole desire was to win his father's favour—behaved with the utmost moderation. Afterwards, when the prince turned back from confronting his father and turned his rein to Malwa, Āsaf K., in the 18th year, was appointed Governor of Bengal But when it became known that the prince had gone to Bengal, the Begam became apprehensive about the departure of her

¹ Nūr Jahān's marriage took place in the sixth year, not in the seventh, and on New Year's Day of 1020, corresponding to 10 or 11 March O S of 1611 See the Iqbālnāma 56 and Blochmann 509 Arjmand Bānū, the wife of Shah Jahan, was her niece,

her father being Nür Jahān's elder brother Arimand Banu's mother was the daughter of Ghiāsu-d-dīn Qazwīnī, the Āsaf K II of Badayūnī and Blöchmann 433 He was s Agha or Āqā Mullā Dawātdār

² Elliot VI, 384—85

brother 1 and had him turned back When in the 21st year, 1035, 1626, Mahābat K prevailed on the bank of the Jhilam, owing to Asaf's negligence and perfunctoriness, and got possession of Jahangir, Asaf K —who was the cause of all this disturbance saw after this ill-omened movement had taken place that his efforts had failed, and that it was hopeless to attain release from so powerful an enemy He was compelled to go to the fort of Atak, which was in his fief, and to take shelter there Mahābat K sent a body of troops under the command of his son M Bahrawar 2 to prosecute the siege with activity Afterwards he went himself and brought him out by promises and agreements and guarded him near himself along with his son Abū Tālib and son-in-law Khalil Ullah After he (Mahābat) became a fugitive from court he delayed to release Asaf, but after the king became urgent he remembered his oaths and promises and sent him to court At this time Asaf was made governor of the Panjab and also had the high office of Vakil conferred upon him that he obtained the rank of 7000 with 7000 horse In the year 1037, 1627, and 22nd year of Jahangir's reign, the king left the station of Rajaur on his way back from Kashmir On the road he asked for his accustomed cup, but when he put it to his lips, he could not swallow 3 Till he reached the next station he was in this state Next day, 27 Safr, he took the last journey (safr) There was a great commotion in the camp Asaf K ieleased Dawar Bakhsh, Khusrau's son, from prison and made him an imaginary king He did not believe in this, but they comforted him by strong oaths and he set out for the next station The Begam who wished Shahriyar to attain the sovereignty, wanted to imprison Āsaf K and Ā'zım K, the Mīr Bakhshī, both of whom were pillars of the empire and obstacles to her plans But though she sent people to summon her brother he made excuses and did not

¹ Text wrongly has barādarzāda Blochmann's own MS has only barādar, and this agrees with the source, viz Iqbālnāma 213 The meaning is, that Nūr Jahān was apprehensive lest her brother should collude with Shah Jahan, who was his son-in-law

His appointment to Bengal is noted at p 205 of Iqbālnāma, and it seems that he actually left to take it up

 $^{^{2}}$ At vol 111, p 409, he is called M Bihr $\bar{u}z$

³ Iqbālnāma 293

⁴ Should be 28=28 October 1637

go to her The Begam also followed with the body Āsaf K sent off from the station of Chingiz Hatī a Hindu named Banarasī, who was the accountant of the elephant-stables and was famous for his activity and swiftness, to wait upon Shah Jahan And as there was not time for writing he gave him a verbal message and his own signet-ring as a guarantee 1. That night was spent in Naushahra, and next day they came down from the hills and encamped at Bhimbar They made arrangements for conveying and shiouding the body and sent it on in order that it might be committed to earth in a garden on the other (i.e other than Lahore) side of the liver of Lahore (the Rāvī) which the Begam had made As every one, high and low, was convinced that all these proceedings were but a smoothing of the way for the sovereignty of Shah Jahan, and that Dāwar Bakhsh was nothing but a sheep 2 for the feast, they universally followed the orders of Āsaf Khān He, who was not sure about the Begam, did not drop from his hand the thread of caution and prevented people from visiting her Indeed, they say 3 that he brought her away from the royal quarters and assigned her a place in his own When they were within three kos of Lahore, Shahiiyai, who had lost his hair from the fox's disease (fox-mange, dau-s-salab, "alopecia ") and was blighted by syphilis, and had previously 4 hurried off to Lahore, gave himself the name of Sultan, and in the course of seven days, by expending seventy lacs of rupees, gathered together an army and sent it across the liver under the command of M Baisanghar, the son of Sultan Daniel remained in Lahore with 2 or 3000 horse and awaited the doings of destiny

Verse

"Expectant of what the heavens would reveal"

At the first encounter his aimy dispersed, and went off

¹ Elliot VI 437 and Iqbālnāma, 298 Banarasī accomplished the journey to Junair in the Deccan in twenty days

² gosfand qarbānī See Vullers s v and Khāfī K I 389

⁸ Khāfī K I 390 and Iqbālnāma

³⁹⁵ and Pādshāhnāma I 71 Elliot VII 6

⁴ He went off to Lahore, in hopes of being cured, before Jahangir's death, Khāfī K I 390

⁵ With Asaf and Dawar Bakhsh's troops Iqbalnama 296

Shahiiyai, when he heard of this dismal news, did not understand what was for his own welfare and entered the fort. With his own feet he threw himself into the net. The officers entered the citadel and put Dāwai Bakhsh on the thione. Fīrūz K, the eunuch, brought out Shahiiyāi, who had crept into a corner in the female apartments of Jahangii, and made him over to Ilahvaidī Khān. He took off the string of his (Shahiiyār's) waist and bound his hands with it and produced him before. Dāwai Bakhsh, and after he had performed the koinish (obersance) he was imprisoned and two days afterwards he was blinded.

When these events became known to Shah Jahan from the letters of bankers 2 (of Gujarat) he sent 3 off Khidmatpurust Khān Rezā Bahādur from Ahmadabad to 'Āsaf K. and wrote with his own hands that it would be well at this time, when the heavens were troubled and the earth was seditious, if Dāwar Bakhsh and other princes were made wanderers in the plains of non-existence Āsaf K on Sunday 22 Rabī-al-akhir, 21 December 1627 of that year, bound Dāwar Bakhsh and had the proclamation made in the name of Shah Jahan On 26 Jamada-al-awwal, 23 January, 1628, he brought him out from the prison of life and that the Polagi whom Oleanius saw was some other prince and per haps a son of Shahriyar Olearius's account is at pp 253, 256, and 257 His narrative is not quite satisfactory, for it disagrees with the native historians, but is to the effect that Jahangu left two sons The elder, he says, succeeded the father but soon after died, and then Shah Jahan usurped the throne The expression "elder" would make the reference be to Khusrau, but then it would be incorrect to say that he survived his father, for he died some five years Possibly Shahiiyai is before him He did succeed his father, or at least claimed to do so, and then was put to death He may have left a son Oleanius speaks of Polagi's being very young when his father died, but this does not fit Dawar

¹ Makhūl, lit was anomited with antimony Elliot VI 437 translates "blinded"

² Iqbālnāma 301 Sāhūkārān, Soucars See Wilson's Glossary

³ Iqbālnāma 303

Iqbalnama 303 has 22 Jamadaal-awal, 19 January 1628, as the day of the proclamation

⁴ The Iqbālnāma and Khāfī K describe Dāwar Bakhsh as having been put to death, and it is difficult to see how he could escape from Lahore, unless, indeed, Āsaf K connived at this But, as Elphinstone points out, Oleanus in his travels speaks of having seen at Qazwīn a Prince Polagī Polagī may be the same as Bolāqī which, according to Blochmann, was another name of Dāwai Bakhsh But I rather think that there has been some mistakes together with his brothers Garshasp, and Sultan Shahriyar, and Tahmūras and Hūshang, the two sons of Sultan Daniel. When Shah Jahan arrived at Agra and became sovereign of India Asaf K, together with the princes Dara Shikoh, Muhammad Shujā, and Aurangzeb-who were his grandchildren (daughter's children)—and the officers, came from Lahore and on 2 Rajab, 27 February, 1628, did homage Asaf received the title of Yemenud-daulah (right hand of the State) and was designated in correspondence by the name of uncle ('amm \bar{u} , paternal uncle) was made Vakil and had charge of the Azuk seal and had the rank of 8000 with 8000 hoise of the two-hoise and three-horse rank, a rank which no officer had hitherto received After this, when Yemenu-d-daulah had paraded before Shah Jahan 5000 wellequipped cavalry, he received the rank of 9000 with 9000 2 hoise and a jagir yielding 50 lacs of rupis. In the beginning of the fifth year he was sent off with a powerful army to chastise Muhammad 'Ādıl Shah of Bıjapur When he was encamped at Bijapur he stretched forth his aim to bind and to beat, and Mustafa K Muhammad A Ahmin, the son-in-law of Mulla Muhammad Lārī Khairit K, the uncle of Randaulah Khān, the Abyssinian. came out from the fort and made peace by tendering forty lacs of rupis and then returned to the fort Khawas Khan, the centre of affairs in Bijapur, on perceiving the desolation of the country and the want of supplies in the imperial army, exerted himself to semedy this They say that the scaleity was such that a pair of Bakhsh, who had a daughter married to Daniel's son Hūshang who was put to death in 1628 It was in 1637 that Oleanus saw Polagi calls him Dawar Bakhsh, and Polagi after all is not very like the name Bulāqī nor is it likely that Oleanius, who was a Persian scholar, would write Polagi instead of Bulaqi Either Polagi was another prince of the blood than Dawar Bakhsh or he was an impostor The last sugges tion is by no means an improbable one The author of the Iqbalnama could hardly be mistaken about

Dāwar Bakhsh's fate for he was probably in Lahore at the time At least he was with Asaf on the march there See Iqbālnāma 296, seven lines from foot

Taveinier also speaks of having met Sultan Bulāqī in Persia and of having eaten and drunk with him He adds that the prince had long wandered in India as a faquir and eventually had escaped to Persia II, 215 of ed 1676

¹ A small round seal B 52

² 2 horse and 3 horse, Padshahnama II, 258

shippers fetched forty rups and the shoeing of a horse ten rup is Yemenu-d-daulah was obliged to leave Bijapur and to proceed to Rai Bāgh and Mirach which were cultivated countries, and to plunder everything. When the rains arrived, he returned

They say that at this time Asaf K had a private meeting and A'zım K said, "The king now does not need you or me ' Asaf said, "The work of the State would not go on without you and me" This speech reached the king, and he disliked it. He remarked "His good deeds are remembered by us, but in future we must not trouble him with the affairs of the kingdom ' After those discourses, though the position was "Hold (the cup) awiy, but don't spill,"2 there was not a hairbreadth's difference in the respect with which he was treated. On the contrary, after the death of Mahābat K, he was in the 8th year made Khān Khānān and commander-in-chief In the 15th year, 1051, he died in Lahore of chronic dropsy They say he had a great liking for good eating His daily food came to a Shahjahānī man (maund) When his illness had lasted long a cup of vetch-water was enough for him "Oh the guef for Asaf Khan! Zihe afsos Asaf Khan gives the date 1051 1641. He was builed in the neighboorhood s of the tomb of Jahangn In accordance with orders a building and garden were prepared On the day that Shah Jahan visited him during his illness he, besides his residence in Lahore, which was valued at twenty lacs of rupis, and other houes and gardens ın Delhi, Agia and Kashmii, wrote down 2 krois 50,000 rupis in jewels and coin and in gold and silver, etc., and showed them to Shah Jahan in order that they might be confiscated. The king granted twenty lacs to his three sons and five daughters and gave the Lahore residence to Dārā Shikoh The rest was resumed

Āsaf Khān possessed something of every science. He was especially proficient in excognated matters, and so in the titles which were applied to him in the loyal books it was written

[!] Pādshāhnāma I 416, where it is written Maraj

⁹ A proverb meaning to do what is impossible. It is quoted by Badayūnī

^{3 &}quot;The tomb of Asaf K stands in line with the emperor's, but separated from it by an immense serai'. Keene's Agra, 37, note He died on 17 Sh'abān 1051 = 12 November, 1641 Pādshāhnāma II 257

"Light of the genius of the Illuminati (the Platonists), learned in the science of the Peripatetics " He was also an elegant writer and had a correct idiom. He was a good accountant and versed in business. He personally examined the accounts of the officers of the exchequer and of the other officers need of any guide in this. The expenses and disbursements of his establishment were beyond comprehension especially those which he incurred for the frequent visits to him of the king, the princes and the begams Besides the peshkashes and the presents which came to a large sum, what splendour there was in eating and drinking! And what ornamentation and decoration there were inside and outside! His servants too were of the best, and he looked after them. Like his father he was very gentle and affable. The sons and other relatives of this great officer who attained to high office in the State have been described in these pages, each in his own place, but Mamtaz Mahal his daughter, was married to Shah Jahan in her twentieth year and became pregnant fourteen times Among them, four sons and three daughters survived their grandfather. In the 4th | year of the 1eign, 1040, 1631 in the city of Burhampur, that chaste lady, whose age exceeded 39 years, immediately after giving birth to a daughter named Goharārā 2 Begam, experienced a change in her condition and signed that the king should be sent for He came in an agitated state and had a final interview in which he gathered the treasure of the period of separation On the 17th Zīq'ada, 7 July 1631, the Begam was builed temporarily in the garden Zamābād on the other side of the Taptī "May the place of Mamtāz Mahal be paradise" Jara Mamtāz Mahal jinnat bād gives the date 1040, 1631

They say that there was an exceeding love between the two noble spouses, so that Shah Jahan, after her death, for a long time abandoned coloured raiment and the hearing of music and the use of perfumes, and put a stop to feasts, etc For two years he shunned every kind of delicacy Half of the property left by her, and which amounted to more than a kior of jupees, was given to the Begām Sāhıba (the eldest daughter known as Jahānārā), and the other half was divided among the other children Six months after the death Prince Muhammad Shujā, Wazīr K, and Satī Khānim the Sadru-n-nisā (mistiess of the women), conveyed the body to Agia and builed it in a place 2 south of and close to, the 11ver, which had belonged to Rajah Man Singh and was now the inheritance of Rajah Jai Singh In the course of twelve years, a tomb, such as has no parallel in India, was erected at a cost of fifty lacs of supees Thuty villages belonging to the Saikār of Agia and pargana of Nagaicand,3 yielding annually one lac of rupees, and the collections from the shops and serais attached to the tomb, and which amounted to two lacs of rupees, were bestowed in mortmain (uaqf)

¹ See Pādshāhnāma I 384, and Khāfī K 1 459

² Called by some Daharārā, but Goharārā is the name in Pādshāhgāma, p 293 She is the Genorara Begam of Manncei, I, 227

⁵ Pādshāhnāma I 389 The chronogram was made by Bebadal Khān The tomb in which the body was temporarily placed was in the middle of a tānk, 1d, 386

ASĀLAT K MĪR 'ĀBDU-L-HĀDĪ

Mīr Mīrān 'Yezdī who, along with his father Mīi Khalil Ullah, left Peisia on account of oppiession in the second year of Jahangii and came to India, the abode of security Shah Abbās Safavī became alienated from the Mīr (Khalīl Ullah) and was very wrathful with him, so that the morning of the Mīr's prosperity ended in a gloomy night. As he was helpless he fled to a foreign land. When he took himself off, only half-alive, from the place of danger, he could not take his grandchildren 'Abdu-l-Hādī and Khalīl Ullah with him, on account of their tender age and the want of time. They were, therefore, left in Persia. When the Khān 'Ālam went on an embassy to Peisia, Jahangir, out of his great kindness and affection for the Mīr Mīrān, mentioned the children in his

¹ id, 493

² "It was laid in a spot in the garden, still pointed out, close by the mosque, until the mausoleum was ready for her reception" Keene's Agra, p 23

³ Perhaps this should be Nogarchin, the well known pleasure resort of Akbar But it is Nagarcand in the Pādshāhnama II, 330 There is a full account of the building at this place, and the names of the thirty villages are given, with the contribution fixed upon each of them

⁴ Pādshāhnama II, 528, 529

letter and spoke to the Khān 'Ālam about bringing them The Shah sent the two suffering ones to India, and after they had kissed the threshold their griefs were washed away

In the third year of Shah Jahan, Mīr 'Abdu-l-Hādī was the subject of favour and received the title of Asālat Khān his good qualities his loyalty and his zeal he became trusted, and in the 5th year was sent off along with Yemenu-d-daula to chastise 'Adıl Shah, and to devastate the country of Bijapur When they came to Bhālkī and besieged it, the gairison, after firing with guns and muskets during the day, evacuated the place during the darkness of night by going out at a place where there were no batteries Asālat K, who was prominent in this campaign, mounted on the top of the fort on a wooden platform under which pyrotechnic weapons had been left Suddenly, fire caught them, and Asālat K was blown up into the air along with the platform, and carried into a magazine. A part of his aim as well as of his face were burnt, but by God's protection he was not killed 1 In the 6th year he received the rank of 1,500 with 500 2 horse and was made bakhshī of the army which was setting out with Shah Shujā for the conquest of Parenda In that affair he so distinguished himself by his activity that Mahābat K, the 'commander-in chief, in spite of all the crookedness of his nature, had his attention drawn to him and made over to him the signing of receipts and orders, and made him his deputy When he came to court from that campaign in the 8th year he was appointed governor of Delhi in succession to Bāqir Khān Najmsānī with an increase 3 of 1,500 and 1,700 horse, an increase necessary for the management of the province, and made a mansabdar of 3,000 with 2,500 horse, and the gift of a flag, an elephant and a special robe of honour When Jagtā4

¹ Pādshāhnama I, 412

² Pādshāhnama I, Part 2, p 67, says 800 It also says he was made bakhshī of the ahadīs

³ Pādshāhnama I, Part II, p 87 The fact that he now had 2,500 horse shows that 800, and not 500, was the right amount above the zamindar of Mau became ungrateful and raised a presumptuous head, three armies, composed of 30,000 horse, were sent against him, and one of these was commanded by Asālat K. The Khān set about besieging Nūrpūr, and every day the besieged were more and more hard pressed. When the fort of Mau, which was Jagtā's chief reliance, was taken, the garrison of Nūrpūr fled at midnight, and that place was easily conquered. Afterwards, Asālat K went with other chiefs to take Tāragarha. This too was accomplished. In the 18th year he was appointed, on the death of Salābat K, to the high office of Mīr¹ Bakhshī

⁴ This seems an abridgment of the name Jagat Singh See Pādshāhnama II, 261 The Mau here mentioned is a hill state, and Nūrpūr was one of its towns. The expedition belongs to the 15th year.

When, the king determined on the conquest of Balkh, an order was given to the Amīru-l-Umarā, who was governor of Kabul. that during the interval before the arrival of the army he should get possession of as much as possible of Badakhshān (the beginning of February 1645), Asālat K and several mansabdārs and ahadis were sent off to Kabul in order that they might recruit active men from among the Caghata and other tribes in Kabul and in the passes (of Badakhshān) The Amīru-l-Umarā was to examine them and to assign mansabs to some, and to enroll the others among the ahadis They were also to acquaint themselves with the routes to Turan and to choose the easiest and to improve After Asalat had done these things he, in the 19th year, went from Ghorband in company with the Amīru-l-Umaiā and wished to make an attempt on Badakhshān When they came to Gulbihār ³ it appeared that the road was exceedingly difficult, and that provisions were unprocuiable With the approval of the Amīru-l-Umarā, Asālat K went off rapidly with 10,000 horse and eight days' provisions in order to attack Khinjan and Andaiāb crossed the Hindu 5 Koh and arrived at Andarab and captured guzashta, "crossed from India," but of course Asālat was then in Afghanistan and a long way out of India. The true reading is Hindu Koh as appears from the Pādshāhnāma II, 462, which is the original of the passage before us. There we have az kotal Hindu Koh guzashta, "having crossed the defiles of the Hindu Koh." See also Khafī K. I, 614

¹ Pādshāhnāma II, 385

² Pādshāhnāma II, 415, 416

³ Text Kulhar, but it really is Gulbihār a well-known place north of Kabul See Pādshāhnāma II, 462, eight lines from foot

⁴ Khinjan and Andarāb are in the north of Afghanistan towards Badakh-shān

⁵ The text has only az Hind numerous quadrupeds and other goods of the inhabitants. He then took with him the retainers of 'Alī Dānishmandī and of the summer-quarters of Karmakī, together with the Khwājazādas of Ism'aīl Atāī and Maudūdī, and Qāsim Beg. Mir of the Hazarīs of Andarāb, and returned with equal rapidity

When in this year Prince Murad Bakhsh was sent off to Balkh with a victorious army, Asalat was appointed to the centre (tarah)2 of the right wing. He went on rapidly in advance from Kabul and worked with zeal and energy in widening the difficult parts of the road 3 After the royal army had reached Balkh he together with Bahadui K Rohilla, pursued Nazr Muhammad K the rulei of He received Tūrān, and put to flight the vagabonds of the desert an increase of 1000 and was made a panyhazārī (5000) When the prince did not approve + of staying in the country, he turned back, and the government of the locality was made 5 over to Bahādur K and Asālat K To the former was entrusted the duty of extinpating the rebellious, while the business of the army and of the treasury and looking after the peasantry was committed to the latter In the end of the same 20th year 1057, 1647, Khūshī Labcaq, with 5000 almānān 6 (freebooters) horse, at the orders of Abdul-l-'Azīz K, the ruler of Bokhara, crossed (the Oxus) at the ferry of Kilif with the intention of making a raid on Daragaz (tamaiisk vale) and Shādmān which were the pasturage-ground of the quadrupeds of the imperial army Asālat K considered it his business to chastise those raideis, and so he went off swiftly and came up with them when they

¹ The word in text is alshām, for which see Irvine A of M 160 'Alī Dānishmandī is, I suppose, the name of a place or tribe. The text has تولائي توالق المناقبة أنه توالق المناقبة أنه توالق المناقبة أنه توالق المناقبة أنه المنا

² Irvine 227

 $^{^3}$ Pādshāhnāma II, 509 Asālat exerted himself to clear away the snow, 2d 513

⁴ Pādshāhnāma II, 558 Elliot VII, 70

⁵ Pādshāhnāma II, 560

⁶ Pādshāhnāma II, 654, 656 See Pavet de Courteille Dict s v and his translation of Bābur's Mem II, 363 n, and A N Trans I, 269 note Khāfi K II, 658, has Almanīān, Elliot VII 77 and 78 has Almans were driving off some of the cattle He attacked them like a Rustam and killed many and rescued the animals, and then pursued the remainder who had escaped the sword When night threw her dark pall he halted in Daragaz and for the purpose of renewing his ablutions threw off his doublet (chilta, lit fortyfolds) The wind caught him and he got fever, and returned to the city (Balkh) From this blow he lay powerless on his bed, and in the course of two weeks he folded up the carpet of Since as yet forty stages on the road of his life had not been passed, and he had performed noble deeds, the king lamented 1 his death and said if death had given him time he would have done still greater things, and have risen to high office Asālat K was famed for his good qualities and good life, and was the unique of the age for gentleness and modesty Harsh language never issued from his lips, and he never tried to injure anybody Courage in him went hand in hand with counsel 2 His sons were Sultan Husain Iftikhār K, Muhammad Ibrāhīm Multafat K, and Bahāū-d-dīn They have been mentioned in their own place. The last of them did not so much distinguish himself

ASĀLAT KHĀN MĪRZĀ MUHAMMAD

Son of Mīrzā Badīa' of Mashhad, who was one of the great Saiyids of that holy place His ancestors had been the guardians of the shrine of the holy eighth Imām 'Alī bin Mūsā—Peace be upon him and on his ancestors! The Mīrzā came to India in the 19th year and entered the service of Shah Jahan He received a suitable office, and the daughter of Shah Newāz Safavī was given to him in marriage. When in the 22nd year Prince Murād Bakhsh was made governor of the Deccan and went off there, Shah Newāz Safavī, who had been appointed to protect the coun-

¹ Khāfi K II, 660

² Asālat Khan died in Balkh on 22 Rabī-al-awal 1057, 17th April, 1647 He had attained the rank of 5000 with 4000 horse Pādshāhnāma, II, 720 Khāfī K. II 566 mentions a son of Asālat named Muhammad S'āīd Khālīl Ullah, the brother of Asālat went into retirement after his death Khāfī K. II 660, but afterwards returned to service try after the death of Islam K, was made vakil and guardian of the prince The Mīrzā on account of his marriage went with Shah Newaz, and at the prince's request, obtained the rank of 2000 with 1000 horse Shah Newaz made him general of the army of the Deccan and sent him against the ruler of Deogarha (afterwards Daulatabad) The Mīrzā at first was a great stickler for the etiquette of the Persian kings, and the imperial servants, who regarded themselves as his equals and as his fellow-servants, were much offended Afterwards he adopted Indian manners, and laboured to amend this dislike. As he had good sense, he soon conquered the country and brought things into order Afterwards Shah Newāz arrived and arranged Deogarha in accordance with the Mīrzā's recommendations When he returned to Burhanpur, he had a great gathering on account of the buth of a son, and brought Prince Murad Bakhsh and all the officers to his quarters and lavished gold When in the 23rd year the subahdārī of Malwa was given to Shah Newaz K, the Mīizā was appointed to that province and received the faujdūrī and fieldom of Manda-In the 25th year he was made faujdar of Mandu SOL the 30th year Prince Aurangzeb was ordered to devastate the terntory of 'Adıl Shah, the Mîrzā was appointed to go with him The work had not been finished when the times assumed another aspect and there was change and confusion in all the imperial territories The Mīrzā remained in the Deccan When Aurangzeb went off from Burhanpur to Agra he conferred on the Mīrzā the title of Asālat K and the rank of 4000 with 2000 horse and a togh (standard) and drums After the beginning of the reign he had an increase of 500 horse and was sent to the Deccan He conveyed Prince Muhammad Akbai, who was then a baby at the breast, and the ladies to the capital At this time he went into retirement, but in the 31d year he again became an object of favour and received the rank of 5000 with 3000 horse and was made faugdar of Moradabad in succession to Qasim K. In the 7th year he had an increase of 1000 hoise After that he had a severe illness and was for a long time indisposed. In the 9th year and end of 1079, 1669, he died His brother Mīr Muhammad arrived at court from Persia in the 14th year of 'Alamgii and received the rank of 1000 with 4000 hoise and the title of 'Aqādat Khan Kābulī Begam, the daughter of Rūh Ullah K the 1st, was given to him in marriage, and he soon afterwards died

ASHRAF KHĀN MĪR MUNSHĪ

His name is Muhammad Asghar, and he belonged to the Husaınī Saıyıds of Mashhad The author of the Tabaqāt Akbarī reckons him among the 'Arabshahi Saiyids, and probably there is not much difference between these two statements statement, however, that he was of Sabzawār is undoubtedly a He was skilful in letter-writing and in the niceties of writer's error words, and did not deviate a hair's breadth from correctness a calligrapher he was one who could write in seven styles specially skilful in the Ta'alīq and Naskh ta'alıq styles, in which he was unique of the age He reduced the science of j'afai (magic) into practice He was in the service of Humāyūn and obtained the style of Mīr Munshī. After the conquest of India he was made Mīr 'Arz and Mir Māl (Master of petitions, etc., B 257, and Master of the Privy Purse, B VI note) In the battle which Tardī Beg Khān had with Hemū Bagqāl (grocei), he as well as others took to flight He was implisoned by Bairam K along with Sultan 'Alī Afzal Khān, and afterwards went off towards Mecca In the 5th year, 968 (1560) he presented himself before Akbar when he was proceeding from Macīwāra to the Siwaliks to make an end of the affairs of Bairām K After that he was always treated with kindness and In the 6th year he received the title of Ashraf K on Akbai's neturn from Malwa He was sent off to Bengal along with Mun'im K. the Khān-Khānān He died in Gaur in 983 1 (1575-76) at the time of the pestilence there He attained to an office of 2000 He had a poetical turn and occasionally wrote The following are his verse

Verse

O God, burn me not with the fire of wrath, Light the lamp of peace in my soul's house, ¹ Text wrongly has 973, having copied the Mirat 'Alam See Blochmann, 389 n.

Graciously knit with the thread of pardon This robe of service 1 which has been torn by trespasses

He made the following chronogram on the reservoir which Maulānā ² Mīr constructed in Agra —

Verse

Mullā Mīr made on God's highway

A well to succour the poor and needy,

Should a thirsty lip ask the year of building

Say, "Take some water from the boon reservoir"

His son Mīi Mozaffar also obtained fitting rank during Akbar's reign and in the 48th year was appointed to the government of Oudh Husainī and Barhānī the grand-children of Ashraf K held small appointments in the time of Shah Jahan

ASHRAF K KHWĀJA BARKHŪRDĀR

Son-in-law of Mahābat K and one of the Khwājazādas of the Naqshbandī order They say that when Mahābat K married his daughter to the Khwāja, without informing Jahangir, the latter became angry and summoned the Khwāja to his piesence, and had him whipped with a thorny 3 scourge When

¹ This verse is quoted by Badayūni, III 182, and he has zindagī "life" instead of bandagī as in the text here Bandagī, however, seems more poetical

² Apparently the Mullā Mīr of Blochmann, 542, No 73 He was a physician He may also be the Mulla Mir Tabib of the Tabaqat, or he may be the Mulla Mir Kalan of the same book The chronogram is very in-By saying "Take some water" ābī, it means that 13, the abjad value of ābi, should be taken from the words baga-i-khair "The boon reservoir," the abjad value of If we deduct 13 which words is 987 from 987 we get 974, or 1567, which is the date of the making of the well

This biography seems to be one of those which was added to by 'Abdu-Hayy for the poetry does not appear in the first edition. Ashraf's takhallas was Haif "Alas". He is mentioned as a calligrapher in the Ain, Blochmann, 101

³ Khāfī K I 360 Elphinstone says he was beaten with thorns, but perhaps khārdār is merely a rhetorical epithet. It even seems doubtful from Khāfī K if there was any whipping, and perhaps what was done was that Barkhūrdār had a belt of thorns put round him and was sent with naked feet to prison. Apparently, however this is only Khāfī K's rhetoric Both the Tūzuk 401 and the Iqbālnāma 253 say the young man was Mahābat K joined Shah Jahan the Khwājah came with him, and entered his service. In the first year of Shah Jahan he obtained a commission of 1000 with 500 horse. In the 8th year he got a commission of 1500 with 800 horse, in the 23rd year by the increase of 700 horse his staffs (tābīnān) was made equal to his personal (zāt) allowance. In the 28th year of Shah Jahan he was appointed to the government of fort Ūsā (Owsa) in the Deccan and obtained the rank of 2000 with 2000 horse. In the beginning of the reign of Aurangzeb he received the title of Āshraf K. In the second year he was removed from the government of the fort above mentioned and came to court. The year of his death is not known

ĀSHRAF K MĪR MUHAMMAD ĀSHRAF

Eldest son of Islām K Mashhadī He possessed all spiritual qualities, and was noted for his comprising all the excellences of humanity When his father was Nazim of the Deccan he was appointed by him to take charge of Burhanpur When his father died he got an increase of 500 with 200 horse and obtained the rank of 1500 with 500 horse. In the 26th year he was made superintendent of the branding When in the 27th year Prince Dārā Shikoh went with a large army on the Qandahar expedition, Ashraf had an increase of 500 and was made diwan of the force with the title of I'timad K After that he was made superintendent of the royal library In the end of the 31st year, when the reign of Shah Jahan was nearly at an end, he was made diwan and bakhshī of the army of Sulaımān Shıkoh when that Mīrzā was appointed, under the guardianship of Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh, to act against Shujā' After the battle of Samugarh and the defeat of Dārā Shikoh, when the standards of 'Ālamgīr were raised for world-conquest, Ashraf separated from Sulaiman Shikoh's compamonship and went from Islāmābād-Mathura to do homage, and obtained an increase of rank At the same time when the royal army crossed the Sutlej in pursuit of Dārā Shikoh, Ashraf'was flogged, though neither speaks of thorns. He was the son of Khwaja 'Umr Naqshbandi, and the whipping was in the 21st year of the reign of Jahangir made governor of Kashmīr in the place of Lashkar K In the 10th year he received a robe of honour and was made diwan of the estate of Begam Sāhība (Jahānārā, eldest daughter of Shah Jahan) in the 100m of Rezavi K of Bokhara In the 13th year he obtained the rank of 3000 and was made Khānsāmān served in this employment for a long time and in the 21st year was Wāq'akhwān (historiographer) When in the 24th year Himmat K Mīr Bakhshī died, Ashraf became 1st Bakhshī and did good service On 9 Zilq'ada of the 30th year, 1097, 17 September 1686, the lamp of the life of that noble nature was extinguished He was adoined with peacefulness, piety and purity Inasmuch as he had a taste for Sufism, he made a selection from the Masnavī of the Maulānā (Jalālu-d-dīn) and had much pleasure in studying the poem. He also wrote 1 perfectly Naskh, Shikasta, T'alīq and Nast'ālīq High 2 and low made his shikast-writing their exemplar of good penmanship. He had no son

'ASKAR KHĀN NAJM SĀNĪ

His name was 'Abdullah Beg In Shah Jahan's reign in the 12th year he received a suitable lank and was made governor of the fort of Kālinjar Afterwards he joined Prince Dārā Shikoh and was made his Mīr Bakhshī In the 30th year he had the title of 'Askar K, and when, after the defeat of Maharajah Jeswant Singh, Aurangzeb marched towards Agia, he on the part of Dārā Shikoh had in company with Khalīl Ullah the charge of guarding the Dholpūr ferry, and on the day of battle he was in the vanguard At the second ³ engagement (the one at Ajmere) he was in the battery near Gaiha * Pathlī When Dārā Shikoh went off in confusion, and without announcement, to Gujaiat, 'Abdullah heard of this at the end of the night and obtained quarter from Safshikh K and joined him He was admitted into service and

¹ There is in the British Museum an album presented by him See Rieu's Catalogue II 778 There is also a reference to Ashraf in Khāfī K II 381

² Perhaps "Young and old"

³ Khāfī K II 73,74

^{* &#}x27;Ālamgīrnāma 313, where the bat tery, or entrenchment ($s\bar{\imath}b\bar{a}$), is called Garha Bethalī See also for name of entrenchment, id 326 received a robe of honour Afterwards he was enrolled among the auxiliaries of the Khān-Khānān Mu'azzam K and went to Bengal I In the 8th year of Aurangzeb he went with Buzurg Umed K to take Chittagong Nothing more is known of him

ĀTISH K HABSHĪ

One of the officers of the rulers of the Deccan. In the time of Jahangir he came to court and was promoted to a suitable After that, when Shah Jahan succeeded, he in the first year received the rank of 2000 horse, and in the third year, when the imperial army came to the Deccan, he received a reward of 25,000 rupees, and was chosen to accompany Shaista K in his expedition to punish Khān Jahān Lodī and the Nizām Shah After that he was entered among the Deccan auxiliary forces and ın the siege of Daulatabad in company with the Khān-Khānān Mahābat K , and afterwards with Khān Zamān performed zealous Afterwards he came to the Presence and in the 13th year received a robe of honour and a horse and 10,0002 rupees, and was made faujdār of Bhagalpur in Bihar In the 15th year when Shaista Khān, the governor of that province, proceeded against the zamindar of Palamau, he had charge of the right wing In the 17th year he came to court and presented an elephant as peshkash. It appears that he was again appointed to the Deccan, and that he came back in the 24th year and presented another elephant In the 25th year, 1061, 1651, he died

ĀTISH KHĀN JĀN BEG

Son of Bakhtān ³ Beg Rūzbihānī, who in the first year of Aurangzeb's reign was killed in the battle with Muhammad Shujā' Jān Beg became known to the king in his father's lifetime, and in the 21st year obtained the title of Ātish Khān In the 25th year he

^{1 &#}x27;Askar was at one time faujdār of Benares, 'Ālamgīrnāma 625 He was also in the Assam expedition, Khāfī K II 171, and went to Koch Behar, 'Ālamgīrnāma 948

² Pādshāhnāma II 180 has 2000

³ Khāfī K II 57 where it is suggested that the name should be Bākhtiyār, and 'Ālamgīināma 262, last line He was in charge of the artillery Rūzbihāni was the title of two Muhammadan saints became Mīr Tūzuk in the place of Salāh K. One of his brothers was Mansūr K, and for some time was Mīr Ātish (chief of the artillery) of the Deccan, and afterwards became governor of (the fort of) Aurangabad. The second was Yūsuf K, who in the time of Aurangzeb was faujdār of Qamainagai, ie Karnūl. In the time of Bahādur Shah he was made Nāzim of Haidarabad. It was he who put to death the sedition-monger Pāpiā. Their descendants are still in the Deccan

The brief account of Papra is as follows he was one of the low tradesmen 1 of Telingana In the time of Aurangzeb, when Rustum Dil K, son of Mukhtai, was the subahdar of Haidalabad, Pāprā killed his own sister, who was lich and thereby collected footmen (piadas), and having made himself a refuge on a mountain, he stietched out the hand of robbery and oppression over the travellers and the peasantry. The fauidars and landholders tried to seize him, and he hearing this went to Wankat (Venkat Rao), the zamındaı of pargana Būlās,2 in the sarkāi of Ilkandal, and became his servant. After some time he began there to practise robbery, and the zamındar having proof of this put him in prison. As the zamindar's son fell 3 ill, he was released along with the other prisoners, and having gone to the village of Shāhpūr in the pargana of Tāiīkanda (Narganda), sarkār of Bhunger (Bhonaghir), which was a rugged place, he associated himself with a turbulent person named Sarwā There he built a foit and openly practised attacking and plundering Rustum Dil K commissioned Qāsim K jama'dāi, who was faujdāi of pargana Kulpāk, which was in the neighbourhood of Shāhpūr, and strictly charged him to seize Pāprā In the battle Qāsim K was killed,

¹ Khāfī K says he belonged to the caste of the toddy-sellers, II 631 See Elliot VII 410 where he is called Pāp Rāī

² Būlās is Kūlās or Kaulās in Khāfī K II 631 It is marked on the maps as Kowlass and Kaulas, and is in the Haidarabad State, N N W Haidarabad and N Bidar Ilkandal is the Eilgundal of the map and lies

east of Kaulās Kaulās is interesting as being the place where 'Abdu-l-Hayy the son of Shah Newāz, and part author of the Maasir, died See Rieu, Cat I 342

³ The boy's mother released all the prisoners in hopes that thereby her son would get better Khāfī K II 631

and Sarwā having engaged in a foolish dispute with Pur Dil K, the jama'dār of his own piadas, about military matters, they fought a duel in which Sarwā was killed ¹ Pāprā was now supreme and set about building the fort of Tārīkanda He raided as far as Wārangol and Bhunger, and set open the gates of calamity for the inhabitants of that country.

Bahädur Shah after his victory over Muhammad Kām Bakhsh made Yüsuf K Rüzbihānī subāhdār of Haidai abad and issued strict orders for the seizure of Pāprā The said Khān appointed Dilawar K jama'dar with a suitable force, and the latter attacked Päprä at a time when he was piessing the siege of Kulpāk After a fight he defeated him and established a military station (thāna) in Kulpāk Meanwhile Pāprā's father-in-law's son had for a long time been imprisoned in Shāhpūr along with others, and was subjected to severe treatment. Except his wife, who every day brought him his food, no one was allowed to visit him By means of his wife, he procuied several files, and with them he cut his leg-nons and also those of some other prisoners, and on a day when Pāprā had gone out of Shāhpūr to fish, he came out of prison along with others, and killed the piadas who were guarding him, and also those at the gate, and took possession of the fort. On hearing of this Pāpiā became agitated and came near the fort, and a gun was fired from the top of the fort. As his brothers² had informed the zamindais of Kulpāk that this (the firing of the cannon) would occur, so as soon as the report was heard, Dılāwar K set off with a force When he came near Shāhpūr there was a great disturbance and fighting At last Pāprā was defeated and fled to Tārīkanda 3 When Yūsuf K heard this he first appointed 4

l Khāfī K II 633 says they were both killed Perhaps the meaning is not that they quarrelled about military matters, but that like soldiers they challenged one another Ferishta refers to the frequency of duels in the Deccan The text has jang īlang, Khāfī K has jang īlangī, and this is right, yakang being a Deccani word—one body Instead of Pur Dil Khān, which seems an unlikely title here,

IO MS 628 has Tabal "drummer" It also has ba jang yakang "in a duel"

² Barādarānash, but from Khāfī K it appears that the brother-in law told his wife to inform the zamindars Probably we should read barādar ba zan

Here spelt with a long ā.

⁴ Khāfī K II 641

M Alī his manager, and then went himself with a suitable force, and besieged Tārīkanda for nine months. Then he set up a flag¹ of truce (jhanda-i-qaul) to the effect that whoever came out of the fort would get a present. Pāpiā changed² his appearance and came out of the fort, but fell into the hands of the same brother-in-law and was airested. When they brought him before Yūsuf K. he divided him, limb by limb, and sent his head to court.

Verse 8

How well did the old farmer say to his son "Light of my eyes, you'll reap naught but what you've sown"

'AZDU-D-DAULA ĪWAZ K BAHĀDUR QASWARA JANG (Lion of Battle)

His name was Khwāja Kamāl and he was daughter's son of the sister of Mīr Bahāu-d'dīn of Samarkand His father, Mīr 'Īwaz by name, was one of the Haidaiī Saiyids, and 'Azdu-daulah was mairied to Khadíja Begam, the daughter of Qulīj * K Saiyid Niyāz K, his mother's brother held in the 47th year of Aurangzeb the rank of 1500 with 500 horse and the deputy-governorship of Bijapur After that monarch's death, when Sultan Kām Bakhsh went against Bijapur, he, on the ground of making some inquiries, delayed a while (saying that he would) join Kām Bakhsh later But without giving him notice he suddenly went off and joined A'zīm Shah Saiyid Niyāz K the second, who was his son and was mairied to the daughter of I'timādu-d-daulah Qamaru-d-dīn, was ripped open in the time of Nādīr Shah on account of his exhibiting some insolence 'Azdu-d-daula came

¹ Cf Khāfī K II 642

 $^{^2}$ id

³ This biography is marked Q, it being an addition by the author's son 'Abdu-l-Hayy It is abridged from Khāfī K II 630 et seq, and even the concluding verse is taken from there

The story of Pāprā is also told in the Ḥadīqau-l- 'Ālam of Abū-l-Qāsim

II 15 (hthograph) The verse is from

⁴ This is 'Abid Khwāja, the grandfather of the famous Nizāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jāh See Maasir II 872 and Khāfī K II 951, where it is said that 'Azdu-d-daulah was married to Fath Jang's, 10 Nizāmu-l-mulk's, aunt from Tūrān to India in the time of Aurangzeb, and by the influence of Khān Fīrūz Jang was given the title of 'Īwaz K and accompanied Fīrūz Jang, and in the province of Ahmadabad looked after his household. After Fīrūz Jang's death he came to court, and at first through the instrumentality of Mīr Jamla ('Abdullah, Maasıı II 761) he was attached to the province of Beiar in the time of Farrukh Siyar Afterwards as deputy of the Amīru-l-Umarā Husain 'Alī K (one of the Bārha Saiyids) he was made governor of the said province. He applied himself to the management of the province and displayed courage the 2nd year of Muhammad Shah, when Nizāmu-l-mulk Āsaf Jāh Bahādur went to the south from Malwa, he gathered the real meaning of the letters, and collected a proper force, and joined Āsaf Jāh in Burhanpur In the battle with Dilāwar 'Ali K, who made a violent attack on him and killed many of his men, though his elephant 1 turned back a little, he did not lose courage and was not lacking in jeopardizing his life battle with 'Alam 'Alī K he was on the right-wing, and after the victory—which took place near Aurangabad—he received the rank of 5000 with 5000 horse and the title of 'Azdu-d-daulah Bahādur Qaswara Jang (Lion of Battle), and was made substantive governor of Beiar Gradually he attained to the rank of 7000 with 7000 horse, and in the 2nd year when Asaf Jah addressed himself to the task of settling the Bijapui province, 'Azdu-d-daulah was left behind in Aurangabad as deputy Afterwards, when Asaf Jah according to the summons of Muhammad Shāh proceeded to the capital, he left the offices of the diwānī and the bakhshīship with 'Azdu-d-daulah and made him deputy with full powers After going to court when he (Asaf Jah) was ordered to chastise Haidar Quli K Nāsir Jang, who was making a disturbance in the province of Ahmadabad (Gujarat), 'Azdū-ddaulah was sent for by him and came with a force and for some time accompanied him, but at the stage of Jhābwa, a dependency of Malwa, he left him and obtained leave to go to his own estates In the battle with Mubariz K 'Imadu-l-mulk, he did good service, and afterwards, in the year 1143, 1730-31, he died of disease, and was builed at the shime of S Builhanu-d-din Ghailb (may God have mercy upon him!). He had a share of learning, and strove to put it into practice He behaved with respect to learned men, and with courtesy to faquits and pious persons. He used great excitions to put down the oppressors and to support the weak He was swift in observing the rules of justice and in inflicting He built the mosque of Shah Ganj in Aurangabad, punishment of which the chronogram is Khujasta! Banyad tank in front of it was made by Husain 'Alī K yet he widened The Haweli and Barahdáii which he made in that city are He kept a good and abundant table Of his sons, the eldest was Saiyid Jamal K, who in his father's lifetime attained to maturity and distinguished himself by courage in battles After the battle with Mubariz K he attained the rank of 5000 with 5000 hoise and was made his father's deputy in the government of Berar When Asaf Jah went to court and left Nızamud-daulah in the Deccan, and the Mahiatta disturbance increased more and more, he was appointed to the government of Berar and received the title of Qaswara Jang After the return of Asaf Jāh he went and sate with Nāsii Jang in the Rauza of Shāh Burhānu-d-dīn Gharīb, and he took part along with Nāsii Jang in the battle with his father Asaf Jah paidoned his offences and sent for him and confirmed him in his jagii He died in 1159, 1746 He left many sons The second son (of Azdu-d-daulah) was Khwāja Mūmin K who in Āsaf Jāh's time was made Naib-goveinoi of Haidarabad and Matsadī there. He did good service in chastısıng 'Alī K Qarāwal who was servant of Roghū Bhonsla For a time he was governor of Burhanpur, and in the time of Salābat Jang he obtained the title of 'Azdu-d-daulah and was appointed to be governor of Nandair At last he was contented with the jagir of pargana Pātwar ² Shaikh Bābū in Berai died some years ago He left a large family The third son was Khwāja 'Abdu-l-Hādī K who for a long time was governor of the

¹ Khāfī K II 879

^{1 &}quot;The auspicious foundation" The chronogram yields 1135, 1722-23

² Pātar Shaikh Bābū in Sarkār

Narnālah, J II 234, the Pātūr of IG XX, 76 It is in the Berars fort of Māhwar ¹ In the beginning of Salābat Jang's rule he was removed and afterwards restored and given the title of Zahīru-d-daulah Qaswara Jang He died some years ago He too left sons. He was a princely-minded man and of an awakened heart, and had much affection for the writer. The fourth was Khwāja 'Abdu-r-Rashīd K Bahādur Himmat Jang. The fifth was Khwāja 'Abdu-sh-Shahīd K Bahādur Harbat Jang. Both are servants of Nizāmu-d-daulah ² Āsaf Jāh

A'ZIM K KOKA

Known as Fedāī K Koka, his name was Mozaffar Husain and he was the elder brother of Khān Jahān Bahādur Kokaltāsh In the time of Shah Jahan he distinguished himself during his long service of H M by his rectitude and trustworthiness first he was danogha of the court of justice, and afterwards he was sent as ambassador to Bijapur to convey some presents to 'Adıl Shah In the 22nd year he had an appointment in the Tūzuk department In the 23rd year he was made bakhshī of the Ahadīs, and in the 24th year he had the rank of 1000 with 400 horse and was made bakhshi of the mansabdars of Kabul, and darogha of the artillery there In the 26th year he came to court and was made Mir Tüzuk After that he was made superintendent of the special elephants, and eventually of all the elephants In the 29th year he was made superintendent of the mace-bearers, and on the removal of Taibīyat K the post of Mīr Tūzuk was added to his duties He had an increase of 500 with 200 horse, and in the beginning of the 30th year he had the title of Fedāī Khān conferred upon him After that when Aurangzeb became the ruler, he was, on account of his fosterage relation, the recipient of royal favours, and when the king, in pursuit of Dārā Shikoh, halted at the garden of Agharābād³ near Delhi, he was given a drum and sent⁴ off

¹ The Mahur of Haig's Hist Landmarks, p 134

² The son of the original Nızāmu-lmulk Āsaf Jāh

³ N of Delhi and the same as Shālīmār, Irvine, JASB for 1904, 307 Text has A'zābād, and so has the Alamgīrnāma 145

^{4 &#}x27;Alamgīrnāma 148,

with the Amīru-l-umaiā Shaista K to dispose of the affair of Sulaiman Shikoh who had hastened from Lucknow and was seeking to join his father. The Khan (Fedai) went ahead of the Amīiu-l-umarā to Būriya 1 (?) and learnt that Sulaimān Shikoh wished to go with the assistance of Prithi Singh, the ruler of Sinagar, by the clossing at Hardwai to Lahore Fedāī travelled eighty los in twenty-four hours and arrived at Hardwai On account of his arrival, Sulaiman Shikoh was unable to cross and had to go to the hill-country, to Srīnagar 2 Fedai returned to court and obtained leave to go with Khalil Ullah K who had been appointed to pursue Dara Shikoh At the time when Aurangzeb came to Qasūr with the intention of proceeding to Multan, he was summoned to the presence, and on the death of Iradat K, the subahdar of Oudh, he was made faujdār thereof and of Gorakhpur After the battle with Shujā and his flight, he was appointed to assist 'Muazzam K Mīi Jumla and attached to Sultan Muhammad and directed to pursue the fugitive Shuja' When Sultan Muhammad in the very crisis of the struggle with his uncle became vexed by the supremacy of M'uazzam K. and joined Shuja', and afterwards repented and became an object of ridicule by returning to the imperial army, M'uazzam K, in accordance with orders, sent3 Fedāī with a body of troops to take charge of the prince and to conduct him to court In the fourth year he became Mir Ātish (superintendent of artillery) in succession to Safshikan K, and received a robe of honour

In the beginning of the sixth year the delightful country of Kashmīr was visited by Aurangzeb There was the Sambal tribe, which was a branch of the Afghan Niyāzī tribe, and it dwelt on the other side of the Indus In former times some of them dwelt in the village of Dhankot, which is known as M'uazzamnagar and is situated on this side of the river, and as they were

l The 'Ālamgīrnāma speaks of Būrıya and Sahāranpur The Mırātul-'Ālam has Bıharpūr Būrıya

² 'Ālamgīrnāma 166 It is in the Siwāliks

⁸ Maasır A 30

⁴ Perhaps the Samal of Bellew See 'Alamgirnāma 827 and Elliot IV 428—32 and 496, where they are called Sambhals

⁵ Jarrett II 401

⁶ Apparently Aurangzeb gave this

sources of wickedness and sedition the faujdars and governors had caused them to move from this side to the other. At this time this tribe, on account of their ignorance, trod the path of disaffection and crossed the Indus and took possession of the royal thana Fedai, who was on the bank of the Chinab with the artillery, was directed to uploot them, and he cleansed the country of the thoin of then existence He made a settlement of the land, and after making over the administration to Khanjar K, who had been appointed to the faugdārī thereof, he returned In the same year the king when he was returning from Lahore to the capital, halted at the hunting-place of Kānwādahan¹ and sent Fedāī to chastise the seditious people of Patna-Jālandhai who had raised up the head of disaffection. In the seventh year he was made a mansabdār of 4000 with 2500 horse. In the tenth year he was made fauqda, of Gorakhpur with an increase of 1500 horse, becoming a mansabdar of 4000 with 4000 hoise wards the subah of Oudh was added In the thirteenth year he came to court and was made subahdar of Lahore strange (gharīb) defeat happened at the station of Gharībkhāna² to Muhammad Amīn K the subahdāi of Kabul, Fedāī hastened from Lahore to Peshawar and arranged for the subjugation of the tract Afterwards he took part in the Jamu campaign When in the 17th year the king encamped at Hasan Abdal, Fedai was appointed to the government of Kabul in succession to Mahābat K and went off there with a suitable force and equipment With Aghai 3 (Aghuz) K in the van he endeavoured to chastise the evil-minded Afghans and fought his way by Bāzārak and Sehcoba from Peshawar to Jalālābād, and from thence to Kabul At the time of returning, the Afghans gathered together more numerous than ants or locusts and blocked the road There

name to the village 'Ālamgīrnāma \$28 Dhankot or Dhinkot, the Dinkot of Erskine, Babar's Mem, p 140, note 4, appears to have been on the east side of the Indus, as here stated, though the 'Ālamgīrnāma has anrūī instead of $\bar{i}n$ $i\bar{u}\bar{i}$ as in the Maasir variant Kānū wa Āhn, کیانوره حس

but in Ain, Peisian text I, it is Känüwähan Jairett II 319 has Kaon Wähan It was in the Bārī Dūāb

² "Between Peshawar and Kabul" Khāfī K II 232 Amīn K was son of Mīr Jamla It is mentioned in A N III 519 as a thāna

⁸ Khāfī K II 240

was a severe engagement. The vanguard became I disorganized and the bulk of the artillery and the baggage was plundered was near being a great defeat Fedaï kept the centre firm and he recalled Aghar K from the thana of Gandamak, and rearranged the vanguard Again there was a severe engagement at the difficult pass of Jalak 2 Besides arrows and bullets they rolled down from the tops of the hills stones big enough to carry away elephants, so that the position of the imperial army became critical Only by God's aid was there such brave fighting that at last the Afghans turned and dispersed. Fedai reached Jalalabad and set about building forts and establishing thanas admirable exertions for the destruction of that turbulent tribe and for destroying their villages He was lauded for his endeavours and received the title of Azim K Koka. In the 20th year he came to court and was appointed to the high office of the government of Bengal in succession to the Amīiu-l-umarā (Shaista In the 21st year, when the government of that province was assigned to Prince Muhammad A'zim Shah, he was nominated to the government of Bihai in succession to the Prince's agents The Khan was arranging to go there when on 9 Rabi'ul-akhir 1089, 21st May 1678, he went to the final stage 3 (died) (at Dacca) house is in Lahore, and one of the finest mansions there It was long the residence of the subahdais of that province son Sālih K, who obtained the title of Fedāī Khān, has been separately noticed His second son Safdar K 4 was the son-in-law (and nephew) of Khān Jahān Bahādur In the 33rd year of Aurangzeb when he was faujdār of Gwaliyar he died of a gunshot wound while attacking a fort side at Kidderpore (Khizrpūr), but that he died on 25th May 1678 before he had left Dacca. The date of his death given in the Maasir A 168 is 12 Rabūu-lakhir and not 9 as in the Maasir U, 12 corresponds with 24th May 1678 and so nearly agrees with the date given in the English records Fedāī is also mentioned by Manucci, II 197. 4 Maasir A 335,

¹ Khāfī K II 241 Aghar K was not then with the vanguard, but came hurriedly from Gandamak on being sent for

² id Chalak Perhaps it is the famous Jagdalak Pass

³ See for the English estimate of Fedāī K, Stewart's Hist of Bengal, 302, where it is said that Aurangzeb ordered him to leave Dacca and re-

A'ZIM KHĀN MĪR MUHAMMAD BĀQIR, OTHERWISE IRĀDAT KHĀN.

He belongs to the noble Sayids of Sava which is one of the old towns of 'Iraq The drying up of its lake 1 (buhaira) at the birth of the seal of the prophets—the peace of God upon him—is well known When the Mīi first came to India he was appointed on the part of Āsaf K Mīrzā J'aafar to be faujdār of Siālkot, Gujarat and the Panjab, and afterwards became his son-in-law, and so became known to Jahangir After that he got promotion through Yemenu-d-daulah Asaf K and became khānsāmān (steward) As in this service he showed loyalty and much economy he received much favour and in the 15th year was made governor of Kashmir From there he went to court and became Mîr Bakhshî After the death of Jahangu he was associated with Yemenu-d-daulah in the affair of Shahriyar, and did good service He waited upon Shah Jahan at Agra before Yemenu-ddaulah came there from Lahore He had an increase² of 500 and 1000 horse and he obtained the rank of 5000 both zāt and eavalry, and a drum and flag, and was confirmed in the appointment of Mir Bakhshi After that, at the request of Yemenu-ddaulah, he on 5th 8 Rajab, 2nd March 1628, at the beginning of the reign was made Viziei. In the second year he was appointed to the Deccan

When in the beginning of the third year, Burhanpur was visited by Shah Jahan, Irādat K had the honour of paying his respects and was exalted by having the title of A'zim K conferred on him. He was sent off at the head of three bodies of troops, composing 50,000 horse, to defeat Khān Jahān Lodī

I The Burhān Qāti' says that Sāvā had a small lake or stream (daryāca) which every year drowned a man, and that it dried up on the night of Muhammad's birth See also Yāqūt in Barbier de Meynard Sāvā lies between Rai and Hamadān, being 30 farsakhs from each It is SSW Tehran It is from this town that Yūsuf 'Ādil Shah of Bijapur took his name, which the Portuguese changed into Cabaio There is an account of Sāvā in the Nuzhat al-qalūb which C Scheffer has extracted in the Supplement to his translation of the Sīāsatnāma See p 185 It seems that the lake did not dry up, but flowed away underground and to conquer the territories of the Nizām Shah He had spent the rains in Dewalgaon and then encamped in Rampur on the banks of the Godavery and when it appeared that Khan Jahan had not come out of Bīi, he left his camp in Majlīgāon,2 made a night-maich and suddenly came upon Khān Jahān. When the latter saw that the road of flight was closed, and that he could not escape, he of necessity had to fight. But as many men of the imperial aimy had turned to plundering his baggage, the troops were out of order. By this opportunity Khan Jahan came out on to the hill and fought stubbornly. At last he took to Though it was difficult for him to e-cape from the clutch of so powerful an army when also Bahādur K. Rohilla and some Raiputs did then duty in exposing their lives, yet as the imperial aimy had maiched more than thirty los it had been exhausted and could not follow. After that Khan Jahan crept into Daulatabad, and Azım K set himself to punish Nizām Shah When he arrived within three kos of Dharwar he wished to attack the town and to leave the taking of the foit which was famous in the Deccan for its difficulty and for its abundance of munitions, and was on the top of a ridge and had on two sides streams which were not easily crossed, to another opportunity. The garrison employed themselves in discharging muskets and arrows, and the townspeople, who had brought then goods to the moat, took to aims in order to protect them. In consequence a number of men got up to the moat and carried off much plunder A'zim K with consummate courage came on foot to the moat at night and ascertained that in one place (in the wall) * there was a window (or door) which had been filled with stones and mortar were opened out by pick-axes and mattocks and filled with gunpowder it would be possible to get into the fort found that there were no sangandaz, b and that the methods of defending a fort were not observed He set his heart upon taking

² Pādshāhnāma I 159

³ Do 186, where the date given is 8 Rajab

⁴ Khāfī K I 424

¹ Rambhūri in Padshahnama I 321

² Kliāfī K 430 It is Maclīgāon in Pādshāhnāma I 321

³ Pādshāhnāma I 331, 339 Grant Duff III 118 and I G

⁴ Pādshāhnāma I 341

⁵ Embrasures or loop holes through which stones were discharged See Irvine, Army of the Moguls, 266

the fort When the garrison saw the skill and valour of the besiegers they withdrew from fighting and on 23 Jumāda-al-akhirī of the 4th year, 1040, 17th January 1631, Khān A'zım and the other officers entered by the little door Sidi Salm, the governor, and the family of I'tibar Rão, and the household of Shams, the uncle of Malık Badan, and the maternal grandmother of Nızām Shah, with all the establishments, were made prisoners booty was obtained The fort received the name of Fathābād and the charge of it was made over to Mīr 'Abdullah Rezavī A'zım K was raised to the rank of 6000 with 6000 horse the affans of the Nizām Shah ceased to be prosperous, and Mugariib Khān, his general, submitted to A'zim K and entered the imperial service in that year, the Khan A'zim came to the river Mānjarā in accordance with a message from Randaulah Khān of Bijapur to the effect that "if by your institumentality a pardon is obtained for the faults of 'Adil Shah I shall guarantee that he will never be disobedient again" By chance, one day, a party of the enemy made an attack and wounded and captured Bahādui K Rohilla and Yūsuf K of Tāshkend Many others of the royal troops were killed or captured A zim K proceeded to Citkūba,2 Bhālkī and Bīdar, thinking that he might amend matters On account of want of food and barley he had to return and cross the Godavery When it appeared that the Nızam Shah had come to the Balaghat with the intention of reconciling himself with the Bijapuris, and had gone towards the fort of Parenda, A'zım K hastened off in that direction, and As no grass was to be found within twenty kos invested the fort of the place, he turned back after failure and came to Dhārwar In the same year he came to the Presence in obedience to orders Shah Jahan said that in this campaign he had done two excellent things, viz the driving away Khān Jahān and the taking of the fort of Dhārwai, and that he had also committed two faults, for after Muqarrib K had submitted he should not have gone to Bīdai, and when Paienda could not be taken, why did he delay

ı Shaman ın Pādshāhnāma, I 343

² Pādshāhnāma I 356 Jitkopa

[•] Pādshāhnāma I 394 At p. 395 we have Nandar instead of Bīdar

there? The Khān acknowledged his mistakes, and as the affairs of the Decean had not been properly managed by him he was in the 5th year sent to the government of Bengal on the death of Qāsim Khān Javīnī There he¹ collected a good set of men, and there were many Persians among them. In the 8th year he was made governor of Allahabad, and in the 9th year he was appointed to Gujarat. As the wife² of Prince Muhammad Shujā', who was the daughter of M. Rustum Safavī, had died, A'zim K's daughter was married to the prince in the 12th year, 1049, 1639-40 Sultan Zainu-l-'ābidīn was the fruit of this marriage

A'zim K long governed the extensive territory of Gujarat, and in the 14th year marched against the zamindar of Jam who did not, like the other landholders, submit to authority arrived at Nawanagar, the zemindai's seat The Jam came to his senses and presented 100 Cutch horses and three lacs of mahmudīs and destroyed his mint where mahmūdīs used to be coined, and waited upon him He retuined from there to Ahmadabad. After that he was made fief-holder of Islāmābād Mathura and built a serai and quarter $(p\bar{u}ia)$ there After that he was made governor of Bihar, and in the 21st year he was summoned to take charge of He represented that he could not stand the cold of Kashmīr that region, and he was appointed to Jaunpūi in succession to M Hasan Safavī In the 22nd year, 1059, 1649, he died after attaining the age of 76 The chionogram of his death is A'zim Auliyā "greatest of officers," 1059, 1649 He was buried in a garden which he had made before the end of his government on the bank of the Jaunpur livel (the Gumti) The date of making ıt ıs Bıhısht naham bar lab āb jūī "I made a paradıse on the bank of a river," 1058, 1648

His sons attained high office, and they have been separately noticed They say that A'zim K had excellent qualities, but that

l According to the Riyā/u-s salātīn and Stewart he managed very badly in Bengal The appointment is mentioned in Pādshāhnāma I 444

² She died in the 7th year of the Du. Pādshāhnāma II 137 The sentence about the collecting a good set of men is abrupt and obscure, but it seems to be in all the MSS

³ Or is naham here ninth There are eight paradises, and perhaps the meaning is that this was the ninth

he was harsh in financial matters—During the sovereignty of the Timurid princes he did good service and from first to last lived with dignity and honour—Certainly he could not be without purity of disposition seeing that up to the present day—a period of nearly one hundred years—his descendants have always been distinguished. This work has a record of each of them

'AZĪZ KOKA M. KHĀN A'ZAM

Younger son of Shamsu-d-dīn Muhammad K Atga Of the same age as Akbar, and also his playmate. He was always his intimate and always an object of his grace and favour mother Jījī Anaga also held a close relationship with Akbar, who used 1 to show more affection to her than to his own mother Hence it was that the king always passed over the insolences of the Khān A'zam He used to 2 say "between me and Azız there is the link of a river of milk which cannot pass away " When the Panjab was taken from the Atga clan because they had been long established there, the Mīrzā was excepted and maintained in Dīpālpūr and other estates which he had long held When in the 16th year, in the end of 978, 1571, after Akbar had visited the shime of Farid Shakrganj-may his grave be holy!-which is in the Panjab Pattan, commonly known as Ajūdhan—and had made Dîpâlpûr his camp—he at the request of M. Koka, visited his residence The Mīrzā prepared a great feast and tendered abundant presents of Arab and Persian horses with golden and silver saddles, as well as strong elephants with hainess,4 and chains, golden vessels, seats, precious jewels, choice stuffs of every5

¹ For a similar remark about Hājī Begam, see A N III 77, line 12 The Maasir copies the Iqbālnāma, p 230

² For 'Azīz Koka see D 325, Baday ūnī III 280, Khāfi K I 201, Darbārī Akbari 750 and Jahangir's Memoirs Blochmann has "between me and Aziz is a river of milk which I cannot cross". But this is not intelligible and the Persian in the Massir is naturān guzasht and not naturānam. I think, therefore, the meaning must be that the connection cannot die out The Iqbalnama, however, 231, has namitawanam

[•] The T A has the 15th year, Ell V 336 but A Γ has 16th, H 363 The description of the entertainment is fullest in the Γ.A, and the Mansir has copied it

⁴ The TA has "gold and silver chains"

The I t. has stuff of Europe, Rum and China country, and was encompassed with unexampled favours He also presented valuable gifts to the princes and the ladies. The other officers, and the learned men, and indeed the whole of the camp, participated in his bounty Shaikh Muhammad Ghaznavī found the date of this banquet

Mıhmānān-ı-'Azīz 'nd 2 Shāh u Shahzāda (978) ''The Shah and Shahzāda nie 'Azīz's guests ''

The author of the Tabagat says there seldom has been such a splendid feast. In the 17th year when Ahmadabad-Gujarat came into Akbar's possession, the government thereof up to the Mahindrī was given to the Mīizā, and Akbai himself went off to take The rebels, that is to say, Muhammad Husain the fort of Surat M and Shāh M, in conjunction with Sher K Fulādī, finding the field left open to them, surrounded Pattan M Koka with Qutbu-d-din K and other officers—who had lately come from Malwa—hastened there and drew up in battle-array Though at first there was an appearance of defeat, yet at last the breeze of victory blew from the quarter of Divine power They say that when the right wing, the vanguard and the vanguard reserve (altamsh) could not resist and lost courage, the Mīrzā came forward with the centie and wished to make an attack in person. The veterans turned his iein saying that for the leader to make an attack was to cause dispersion among the troops, especially at such a time. The Mīrzā stood firm, and at last the enemy, many of whom had gone off in pursuit and had tuined to plunder, became disorganized and The Mīrzā returned victorious to Ahmadabad

When the king returned from the Gujarat expedition and came to Fathpūr on 2 Safr 981, 3 June 1573, Ikhtiyāi-ul-mulk—who had taken refuge in Idar—came to the neighbourhood of Ahmadabad and made a disturbance Muhammad Husain M returned from the Deccan and devastated the country about Cambay After that they joined forces and wished to take possession of Ahmadabad Though the Khān A'zam had a large

l AF calls the author of the chronogram Mozaffar Husain and says he was a servant of the Mīrzā, II 364

² Unless the alif of and be elided the chronogram is 979 See also A N II 363 The date corresponds to 1571 force, yet he did not see in it loyalty and singleness of mind. He therefore did not hasten to engage, but remained on the alert in the city, and busied himself in strengthening the fortifications. The enemy came in great force and besieged it, and began the battle of the batteries. The Mīrzā sent off expresses to the king, and begged for his coming

~ Verse

Sedition has raised its head and fortune is adverse

Verse

Save for the swift deeds of the Shah Nothing can remove this dust out of the road

Akbar sent some officers ahead, and proceeded rapidly himself on 4 Rabī-'al-awal of that year, 4 July 1573, with a few of his immediate attendants mounted on camels

Verse

The heroes were on camels, then quivers in their waist The camels (shutur) flew like ostriches (shutur murgh)

In Jālaur the officers of the advance joined, and in the town of Balsāna, five kos from Pattan, Mīr Muhammad K joined with the troops of that place Akbar divided the forces (among the leaders), which were in all 3000 horse, and himself remained in reserve with 100 horse. He advanced without delay and arrived within three kos of Ahmadabad, and sounded his drums and trumpets Muhammad Husain M came to the bank of the river to get information, and asked Subhān Qulī Turk who was in advance what army was it He said it was the royal standards. The Mīrzā said, "It is fourteen days to-day that trustworthy scouts left him (Akbar) in the capital if the king has come in person, where are the war-elephants?" Subhān Quli said, "They have spoken the truth. It is nine days since the king maiched. It is clear that the elephants could not come so quickly."

Muhammad Husain M became alaimed and left Ikhtiyāru-lmulk with 5000 horse to guard the gates so that the besieged might be debarred from exit, and himself engaged with 15,000 horse in drawing up the battle-array. At this time the imperial army crossed the river and encountered him. The imperial vanguard was nearly being defeated on account of the large numbers of the foe when Akbar himself fell on with one hundred horse and routed the enemy. Muhammad Husain M and then Ikhtivāru-l-mulk became the harvest of the sword. This has been described in the account of the Mīrzās.

Such rapid maiches as this have been told of former princes in books, as, for example, the rush of Sultan Jalalu-d-dīn Mankbarnī from India to Kirmān, and from there to Garjistan (Georgia), the conquest of Qarshī by Amīr Taimur Gūrgān, the taking of Herat by Sultan Husain M, the taking of Samarkand by Bābur Pādshāh. But it is not hidden from investigators that all these princes attacked under necessity or because they saw that there was negligence or scant opposition. Theirs was not the case of a king who could command two lacs of cavalry, and who voluntaily, in spite of his knowing the numbers of enemies and the leadership of a brave bahādur like Muhammad Husain M,—who had already wrought deeds in battle exceeding the power of contemporaries,—and this after a march of more than 400 current kos from Agia to Gujaiat. No such other story has been told since the creation ¹

In fine, after this victory, the Mīrzā got fresh life and came out of the city. He caught the dust of the royal army as if it was a salve for his waiting eyes. Next year, when Akbar went to Ajmeie, the Mīrzā came into the presence with delight. Akbar advanced some steps to meet him and embraced him

When the sons of Ikhtiyāiu-l-mulk Gujaratī had raised the head of sedition, he took leave from Agra. In the 20th year when Akbar had firmly determined upon introducing the branding of soldiers' horses, many officers refused to act. The Mīrzā was summoned to court in order that he might make the branding

I This is an eloquent passage, but it seems to me to contain an anacoluthon, and I do not understand the statement about M Husain's surpassing the deeds of contemporaries and think it must be intended to refer to Akbar Akbar's rapid march was long remembered as a great feat Captain Hawkins heard of it when he was at Agra and mentions it in his narrative popular But he objected more than anybody else The king, who loved the Mīrzā more than his own children, was displeased at this and for a while degraded him from the position of an Amīr, and confined him to the gaiden which he had made in Agia and was called the Jahānārā Garden In the 23rd year the Mīrzā was again an object of favour and was restored to his former But at the same period, the Mīrzā became a recluse on rank account of some unfounded suspicion that the king was unfavourably disposed towards him. When in the 25th year, 988, 1580, there occurred the rebellion in the eastern provinces and the killing of Mozaflai K the governor of Bengal, the Mīrzā, who had been made a Panjhazāiī, received the title of Khān A'zam and was sent off with a large force On account of the disturbances in Bihai, the Mīizā did not go to Bengal, but took proper measures for administering the country and for extirpating the rebels, and took up his quarters in Häjipur When in the end of the 26th year Akbar returned from the expedition to Kabul and came to Fathpur, Mīrza Koka waited upon him and was exalted by various favours. When in the 27th year Jabari, Khabīta and Tarkhān Diwāna came from Bengal to Bihar and took Hājīpūi from the Mīrzā's men and stirred up strife, the Mīrzā took leave in order to punish the Bihar rebels and then to address himself to the conquest of Bengal Though 1 before the arrival of the Mīrzā these rebels had got their deserts from the victorious army, and the rains began and the Mīrza did not advance, yet when the rains had ended, he, in the beginning of the 28th year, marched to Bengal along with the fief holders of Allahabad, Oudh and Bihar and easily took 2 Garhī, which is the gate of the country M'asum Kabuli-who was the head of the disaffected ingrates—came and encamped on the bank of the Kātī° Gang Though every day engagements took place, yet

¹ The sentence is rather obscurely worded, but the meaning is that Tarkhān Diwāna and others had been punished before the Mīrzā arrived It was his absence that had encouraged their attack on Hājīpūr See

Elliot V 427 and AN III 384, 387

² Garhī was taken before Mīrzā Koka arrived See A N III 399

³ Text Ghātī Gang See A N III 399 and variant also Elliot VI 66

the imperialists were alarmed at the rebels and did not venture to have a pitched battle Meanwhile a disagreement (hitherto they were united in rebellion) arose between M'asūm and the Qäqshāls, and the Khān A'zam arranged a reconciliation with the latter and took from them promises of good service was agreed that they should keep aloof from fighting (the imperialists), and should go to their homes, and from there join the imperial army M'asūm K grew bewildered and fled Khān A'zam sent¹ a force against Qatlū Lohānī, who in the confusion had prevailed over Orissa and part of Bengal himself wrote to Akbar representing the unhealthiness of the climate, and an order was given that the country should again be left to Shahbaz K Kambū who was approaching about this time, and that the Khān A'zam should return to his fief in Bihar the same year, when Akbai came to Allahabad, the Mīrzā arrived from Hājīpūr and did homage and obtained Garha and Raisīn In the 31st year, 994, 1586, he was appointed to conquer the Deccan When the army had been collected he set out, but the two-facedness and the ten-tonguedness of his companions created confusion, and Shihābu-d-dīn Ahmad K, who was the auxiliary, behaved treacherously on account of an ancient grudge Mīrzā fell into an evil way of thinking (became suspicious) and on account of ill-timed delays, and motives for dispersion, few soldiers were obtained The enemy, who had been alarmed, were emboldened and set off to fight The Mīrzā did not find himself strong enough to encounter them and retired and hastened to On the day of the New Year he found Elichpur undefended and sacked it and then marched to Gujaiat with much plunder The enemy were astonished at his retreat and hastily pursued The Mīrzā from alarm proceeded rapidly and did not turn his rein till he got to Nazrbar Though the enemy did not catch him, yet territory which had been taken was lost The Mīrzā went on rapidly from Nazrbar towards Gujaiat in older to collect The Khān-Khānān who was in command there showed great zeal and in a short time brought together a choice army

¹ Akbarnāma III 401

But owing to men's foolish ideas the enterprise miscarried the 32nd year the Mīrzā's daughter was married to Prince Sultan Murād, and there was a splendid feast. In the end of the 34th year the government of Gujarat was given to him as successor of The Mīrzā preferred Malwa and delayed to the Khān-Khānān At last in the 35th year he went to Ahmadabad go to Gujarat When Sultan Mozaffar with the help of the Jam, the zamindar of Kach, and the ruler of Jūnāgaih, stiried up strife, the Mīrzā in the 36th year came to that country, and inflicted a heavy defeat In the 37th year the Jam and the other zamındars submitted, and Somnath ctc -sixteen poits in all-came into possession, and the siege of Jünāgaih-which is the capital of the territory of Solath-was undertaken Miyan K and Taj K the sons of Daulat K, the successor of Amin K Ghori, surrendered, The Mīrzā gave each of them a cultivated and made over the fort jagir as an allowance, and devoted his energies to the seizing of Sultan Mozaffar—who was the thorn-brake of the rebellion He sent an army to Dwarka, whither Mozaffar had crept by the protection of the landowner thereof That landowner tried a fight and was worsted Mozaffar fled to Kach (Cutch) Mīrzā went there in person and proposed to give his (the rulei of Kach's) home to the Jām He submitted, and made over Mozaffar. They were bringing him to the Mīrzā when he withdrew to a retired spot on pretext of easing himself, and cut his throat with a razor which he had with him, and so died

When Akbai sent for the Mīrzā in the 39th 1 year, 1001, 1592-93, he became suspicious of some evil intention and went off to the Hijāz. They say that as he could in no way accept the prostration to the king (sijda), the shaving off the beard and the other innovations which had become established at court, but in opposition to them kept on a long beard, he perceived that going to the Presence would be disagreeable and so wrote excuses. At last the king wrote in reply, "You are making all these delays in coming, evidently the wool of your beard weighs heavily on you." They say that the Mīrzā also wrote sharp and sarcastic things about the matter of religion such as that "Your Majesty has put Faizī and Abu l-Fazl in the place of Osmān and Alī Well, whom have you appointed in the room of the two Shaikhs?"

¹ Should be the 38th year The Mīrzā sailed for Mecca in March, 1594, in the beginning of the 39th year A N III 638

In fine the Muza set? out on the pretext that he was going to attack the port of Diu, and then he made peace with the Franks, and at the port of Balāwal—which is near Somnāth—embarked on the ship "Ilāhā' with his six sons Khairam, Anwai, 'Abdullah, 'Abdul-Latīf. Murtaza and 'Abdul-l-ghafūr, and his six daughters and their mothers and one hundred servants. Akbai was much grieved, but favoured the Mīrzā's two elder sons. Shamsī and Shādmān by giving them rank and good jagirs. Shaikh 'Abdul-Qādir Badayūnī found the chronogram.

Verse

The Khān Āzam took the position of the righteous Though in the kings idea he went astray When I asked my heart the date of the year, It said Mirzā Koka went on pilgrimage (1002)

They say that he spent much money in the holy places, and showed much respect to the Sharits and leaders, and made over to the Sharif fifty years' cost of keeping up the blessed tomb of admired the Mīizā's going, but was disgusted by his return (see his vol III, p 282) and subsequent conformity to Akbar's innovations landed at Balawal on his return in November 1594 and presented himself before Abkar 24 days afterwards A N III 655, so that he was only away about eight months The statement in text that he returned in the beginning of 1003 is apparently not It was in the third quite correct month of that year The Iqbalnama 231 says that 'Azīz had to spend so much money at Mecca that at last he Badayūnī also fell into contempt says, Lowe 412, that A'zım Koka suffered much harm (āzār bisyār, "much annoyance") at the hands of the Sharifs

¹ See Khāfī K, who says it is better not to give all the Khān A'zim's remarks in extenso, and then proceeds to give the worst of them Mīizā Koka's original letter is given in the Darbār Akbarī, p 759 The author does not say where it is to be found, and his transcript is not always intelligible

² A N III 638 and Badayūnī, Lowe 400 04 The ship "Ilāhī" is apparently the "Divine" ship which went yearly to Mecca Akbar's letter to 'Azīz Koka when he went to Mecca is in A F's letters, Book I

³ The chronogram is given in Badayūnī II 387, but he does not say that he composed it, and the fact that le says (incorrectly) it makes the date one too many seems to show that he did not write it Badayūnī

the Prophet—Peace be upon him and his family He also bought cells ($hajarh\bar{a}$) and dedicated them to the holy buildings And when he got fresh news of the kindnesses of Akbar he traversed the ocean and landed at the same port (Balāwal), and reentered into service in the beginning of 1003. He was restored to his rank and his fief in Bihar, and in the 40th year was highly exalted by receiving the great post of Vakīl and the charge of the royal seal which Maulānā 1 'Alī Ahmad had engraved with the names of the sacred ancestors up to Timui In the 41st year the province of Multan was made his jagir In the 45th year, when he was in attendance on Akbar at the siege of the fortiess of Asır, his mother Bīca Jīū (Jī Jī) died Akbar took her bier on his shoulder and in his grief shaved his head and his moustache Though an endeavour was made to prevent others besides her sons from shaving they could not be forbidden A whole tribe of people did the same thing At the end of this year Bahadur K, the ruler of Khandes, submitted through the intervention of the Mīrzā and surrendered the fort As the Mīrzā's daughter was married to Sultan Khusrau, the eldest son of Prince Selīm, and who was sister's son of Rajah Mān Singh, these two pillars of the empire used great endeavours to promote the cause of Sultan Especially the Mīrzā—who loved him—used to say, Khusrau "I am willing that they (the fates) should convey the good news of his sovereignty to my right ear and should seize my soul at the left ear" During Akbar's deathbed illness springs were set in motion for the heir-apparency, but they were not successful breath of Akbar's life still remained when Sharkh Farīd Bakhshī and others joined Prince Selīm, who at an indication from the king and from apprehensions of the plots of his ill-wishers, shut himself up in his house outside the fort Rajah Man Singh came out of the fort with Khusrau with the understanding that he should take him with him to the province of Bengal The Khān A'zam got alarmed and sent his family to the Rajah's house with the instruction that he was coming too, but that it was necessary to carry funds, and that he had no porters The Rajah too made the same excuse. The Milzā was helpless and remained alone in the fort and looked after the interment and the funeral ceremonies. After that, Khusrau rebelled against his father in the first year of Jahangir, and the Mīlzā fell into disgrace as being his instigator.

They say that the Khan A'zam used to go to court dressed in his shroud and that he expected that they would kill him, but still he could not control his tongue. One night he had hot words with the Amīnu-l-Umaiā The king bloke off the meeting and took counsel in private. The Amīru-l-Umarā said that they should not delay the putting him to death Mahabat K said, "I don't understand discussions. I'm a soldier. I have a strong sword, and I ll strike his waist. If it does not divide him into two pieces, you can cut off my hand When the Khan Jahan Lodi's turn to speak came he said, "I am confounded by his good fortune, for wherever H M s (Akbar's) name has gone, his too has been bruited abroad I do not perceive any manifest indication of wrong-doing on his part which would make him worthy of death If you kill him, all the world will regard him as a victim" The king's anger was somewhat appeased by this remark, and at this moment Selīma Begam, the king's stepmother, called out from behind the purda, "Your Majesty, all the Begams are assembled in the Zenana for the purpose of interceding for M Koka will be better if you come there. Otherwise they will come to you" Jahangn was constrained to go to the female apartments, and at their expostulation to pardon his offences He also gave him his accustomed opium—which he had not taken—from his own special pellets, and dismissed him But one day at about the same time Khwāja Abū-l-Hasan of Turbat produced a letter which M Koka had written to Rajah 'Alī Khān, the ruler of Khandes, about Akbar in language which was not fit to be used

¹ Sharif K B 517

² See Khāfī K I 256 says the letter was produced by the librarian, i.e. Khwāja Abū-l-hasan Turbatī known as Ruknu-s-sultanat see Maasīr I 737 He is different from Āsaf K the brother of Nūr Jahān who was also called Khwājah Abul Hasan The incident of the letter is described by Kāmgai Husainī, B M MS Or 171, p 37 b See also Tūzuk Jahāngīri, p. 38, where it is said that Khwāja Abūlhasan found it in Burhanpur among Rajah 'Alī Khān's effects about any individual This had fallen into the hands of the Khwāja after the taking of Āsīr, and he had kept it to himself for some years. At last, he could keep it back no longer and produced it before Jahangii. Jahangii put it into the hands of the Khān 'Ā'zam, and he without hesitation began to read it aloud. Those present on every side abused and cursed him, and the king said, '' Even now the intimacy which 'Arsh Āshiyānī (Akbar) had with you restrains me, otherwise I'd lighten your shoulders of the builden of your head '' He deprived him of his rank and jagir and kept him under surveillance. In the 3rd year, the government of Gujarat was entered in his name, and his eldest son Jahāngīr Qulī K was appointed to guard the country as his deputy

When the affairs of the Deccan were not being brought to a conclusion owing to the discord among the officers, the Khan A'zam was sent there in the 5th year with 10,000 hoise Afterwards he petitioned from Burhanpur to have the affair of the Rānā committed to him He used to say that if in this wai he were killed, he would become a martyi 1 In accordance with his request he received the necessary equipment for the expedition When he began the work, he represented that the difficult knot would not be untied without the coming of the royal standards. Accordingly, in the 8th year, 1022, 1613, Jahangir came to Ajmeie, and at M Koka's request Prince Shah Jahan was appointed, though the centre of the work rested on the Mīrzā But on account of his partiality for Khusrau, he behaved improperly to Prince Shah Jahan, and so Mahābat K was sent to bring him from Udaipur to court In the 9th year he was made 3 over to Asaf K in order that he might be confined in the fort of Gwaliyai They have reported a saying of the Mīrza to the

¹ Tūzuk J 126, where the whole saying is given

² The text has omitted the preposition ba befere pādishāhzāda and so made it appear as if it was Shah Jahan who behaved improperly See Tūzuk J 126 for Jahangir's lengthy expostulation with the K A'zim, and also Elhot VI 338

³ Tūzuk 127-28, and Elliot VI 338
The Āsaf here mentioned is B's No
VI and Shah Jahan's father-in-law
Khāfī K I 280 He used to be called I'tiqād Khan and got the title of Āsat
K in the beginning of Jahangīr's 9th year, Tūzuk 127

effect "I never thought of using meantations" Āsaf K represented (to Jahangir) that "a certain person is practising meantations in order to destroy me". As solitude and the abandonment of animal food and sexual intercourse are conditions of success, and they are all present in a prison, an order was given that at meal-times exquisite dishes of fowl and partiage should be served up to the Mīrzā

Verse 1

When God wills, an enemy may be productive of good

After a year when he was released from prison they in the first place took a writing from him to the effect that he would not speak in the Piesence unless he was asked a question, for he had no control over his tongue. One night Jahangir said to Jahangīr Qulī K, "Will you become security for your father?" Jahangir Quli replied, "I am his surety for everything of him, but I cannot be surety for his tongue" When it was desired to notify to him his being confirmed in his appointment of Panjhazārī, Jahangır said to Shah Jahan, "When 'Arsh Āshiyānī (Akbar) wished to give the Khan A'zam an increase of 2000, Shaikh Farid Bakhshī and Rajah² Rām Dās weie sent to his house to congratulate him He was in the bath, and they waited at the gate for a watch of the day ($p\bar{a}s$, perhaps here an hour) wards, when he came to the audience-hall, he sent for them and heard their felicitations He sat down and put3 his hand upon He then said that he must arrange another meeting his head for their business, and dismissed them without any politeness or led to the Mīrza's getting better treat ment. For an instance of the belief in a prisoner's power of practising incantations see Iqbālnāma 267-68, where there is an account of an unfortunate Hāfi/ Mullā Muhammad of Tatta who was killed because he was supposed to be muttering incantations. See also the account of this Mullā's death in Maasir III 372. Apparently 'A/īz Koka's remark about his never having thought of using incantations was understood to mean that he had the power to use them, and that he had neglected to exercise the power

² Rajah Karan B 483

³ daste bar sir guzāsht Perhaps as a salutation, or perhaps as an indication that the audience was at an end Possibly it merely means that he fell into a reverie. In Maasir III 855, 1 6 from foot, the phrase dast ba sir guzāsht is used to express a salutation.

ceremony I remember this story, and it would be a shame if you, "Bābā," should have to pay your respects as his deputy and should have to stand and salute him for the purpose of confirming the Mīrzā Koka in his appointment"

In the 18th year M Koka was sent off as guardian and companion to Dāwai Bakhsh, the son of Khusrau, who had been appointed governor of Gujarat He died a natural death in Ahmadabad in the 19th year, 1033, 1624 He was unique for sharpness of intellect and fluency of speech. He was also exceptional for historical knowledge. He sometimes wrote poetry This verse is his

Verse 2

As I've not got happiness from name and fame, After this I'll throw a stone at fame's mirror

He wrote Nast'alīq exceedingly well. He was a pupil of M Bāqir, the son of Mullā Mīr 'Alī, and in the opinion of judicious critics he was in no way inferior for elegance of writing to the famous masters. In drawing up statements of claim (mudd'aa navīsī) he was deeply skilled. Though he was not an Arabic scholar, yet he used to say that in Arabic he was an Arab's slave-girl They say that in conversation he was unrivalled, and had a command of striking expressions. One of them was, "A man said something, and I thought it was true. He was vehement about it, and I began to doubt. When he swore to it, I knew it was a lie." One of his jesting remarks was, "A man who is well-off needs four wives—an 'Irāqī (West Persian) for companionship, a Khurasāni for housekeeping, an Indian for sexual intercourse, and a Transoxiana one for whipping so that the others may take

¹ Tüzuk J 395 If he was born in the same year as Akbar he must have been about 82 when he died

² Badayūnī III 281 sang bar shīsha zadan is a phrase for renouncing wine

³ The Maulānā Bāqır of B 103

⁴ I am not sure of the meaning The expression occurs in Iqbālnāma 230

 $^{^{5}}$ Apparently meaning that he had a colloquial knowledge of the language $D\bar{a}h$ -i-Arab is a proverbial expression for a person in wretched circumstances. See Vullers s v dah, I 807a. The Iqbalnama 230 has a different reading. It is in Arabic "I am a poor maid-servant ($d\bar{a}h$ ghan i-bam)" warning" 1 But he was at the head of all his contemporaries for sensuality, treachery and harsh language, and was exceedingly Whenever one of his collectors came before him. passionate if he immediately paid up the money for which he was regarded as accountable, he was liberated, otherwise he was beaten till the links of life were loosened If, after this, he survived, he was not further troubled, though lacs of rupees remained in his charge And there was no year that he did not shave the heads of his Indian writers one or two times They say that on one occasion many of them took leave to go and bathe in the Ganges. said to his Dewan Rai Duiga Das, "Why don't you go?" replied, "The Ganges-bathing of your slave is under your Highness's foot " On hearing this he stopped the practice of letting them go (to bathe) Though he was not regular in his prayers, he was a great bigot On this account he in no way gave in to the apostacies and impieties which the reigning king had adopted, and without reserve he detested and abominated them. He was absolutely not a time-server. In the reign of Jahangu during the vogue of I'timādu-d-daula's family he never went to any of then houses, not even to Nur Jahan Begam's door the opposite of what the Khān-Khānān M 'Abdu-i-Rahmān did, for he hurried to the house of Rai Govardhan, the Dewan of I'tımādu-d-daulah

As the subject of Akbar's apostacy has been mentioned, it is necessary to say something about it, though the matter is more notorious than the apostacy of Iblis (Satan). Though authors and news-writers of the time have, from fear of loss and injury to themselves, ignored the thing, yet some have made allusions to it, and Shaikh 'Abdul-l-Qādir Badayūnī and his like have written openly about it. Accordingly Jahangir ordered that the booksellers within the empire should not sell or buy the Shaikh's history. On this account the work is laiely 2 met with. The expulsion of the 'Ulamā, the introduction of the prostration and history of Badayūnī was more common in the booksellers' shops than any other!

¹ See Iqbālnāma 230 31, and B 327, where the translation is veiled

² See Khāfī K I 197 and Elliot V

⁴⁹⁷ According to Khāfī K, lc, the other customs, are clear proofs of Akbar's views. What more evidence can there be than that 'Abdullah K Uzbeg, the ruler of Tūrān, wrote to Akbar in language which would not be used to an ordinary individual—far less to a great king. In reply he wrote much that was sanctimonious and absolving and made excuses for himself by this verse

Verse

Of God they say he has a son,
Of the Apostle, they say he was a charlatan,
Neither God nor the Apostle has escaped
Men's tongues, much less I

This is recorded in the Akbarnāma and also in Shaikh Abū-l-Fazl's letters

But from consideration of the evidence it appears to the writer of these pages that Akbar did not lay claim to Divinity and prophecy-God forbid that he should! In fact, the king had not acquired the elements of learning, and was not in the least in But he was very intelligent and his undertouch with books standing was of a very high order He wished that whatever was consonant with reason should prevail Most of the 'Ulama, with a view to worldly advantage, took the course of assentation, and of flattery The advancement of Faizī and Abū-l-Fazl was due They indoctrinated the king with rationalistic and to this sophistical (safastīyy) principles and gave the appellation of Inquiry $(tahq\bar{i}q)$ to the severing of the cable of the observance of antiquity They styled him the "Assayer of the Age and the Mujtahid of the Time" As the abilities and learning of the two brothers were of such a high order that none of their contempolaries could grapple with them, they, who in origin were no better than the sons of a mendicant (darveshzāda) and were in indigence, all at once attained to intimacy and influence with the Envious people—of whom the world is ever full—and especially the rival mullahs who were desk-ridden (saqiqaband, and gave to their dislike and envy the name of "Defence of Faith"- set no limit to the lies which they circulated. There were no commotions which they did not excite From fanaticism and partizanship they sacrificed their lives and their fortunes May God have mercy upon them!

¹ Kahna B 468 has 'sorcerer'' 2 A N III 498 and Abūl Ferl's See Vullers II 929 Letters, Book I

The Khān A'zam had many children The eldest was Jahangir Quli K of whom an account has been given was Mīrzā Shādmān who in Jahangir's time received the title of Shād Khān Another was M Kharram who in Akbar's reign was governor of Jūnāgarh ın Gujaiat, which was his father's fief Jahangir's time he became known as Kāmal K and was appointed to accompany Prince Sultan Kharram (Shah Jahan) in the expedi-Another was M 'Abdullah who in Jahantion against the Rānā gir's time received the title of Sirdar K. The king had imprisoned him in the fort of Gwaliyar along with his father his father's release he too became an object of compassion Another was M Anwar who married the daughter of Zain Khān Every one of them obtained the rank of 2000 or 3000 2 Koka

'AZĪZ ULLAH KHĀN

S Yūsuf K S Husain Tukriyah, of both of whom accounts have been given 'Azīz Ullah was appointed to Kabul, and at the end of Jahangir's reign had the rank of 2000 with 1000 horse After Shah Jahan's accession, he was confirmed in this rank, and in the 7th year had the title of 'Izzat K and the gift of a flag. In the 11th year he held the rank of 2000 with 1500 horse, and in the same year as he accompanied S'aīd K Bahādur to the battle near Qandahar against the Persians in which the latter were defeated, he had an increase of 500 hoise. From Qandahar he went with Pur Dil K to take the fort of Bast. In the 12th year he received drums and was appointed to defend the forts of Bast and Girishk—which had been taken. In the 14th year his Nizāmu d-dīn says very little about M Koka in his notices of distinguished men. He states that at the time of writing he was in Mecca. He alludes briefly to his departure there. See Elliot V 466

¹ Apparently this is the M Nür of Jahangir's apocryphal Memoirs, Price, 42, who was put to death on a charge of homicide

² There is a good account of M Koka A'am Khān in Blochmann 325 The Darbār A has omitted him rank was 3000 with 2000 horse and he had the title of 'Azīz Ullah K In the 17th year 1054, 1644, he died (Q)

'AZĪZ ULLAH KHĀN

Thud s Khalīl Ullah K Yezdī After his father's death he received a suitable rank and the title of Khān In the 26th year Aurangzeb made him Mīr Tūzuk in succession to Muham mad Yār K In the 30th year when his brother Rūh Ullah K was made governor of the province of Bijapur he was made governor of the fort In the 36th year after Rūh Ullah's death his rank became 3 1500 with 600 horse Afterwards, he was 4 qūrbegī, and in the 46th year he was made governor of the fort of Qandahar (in the Deccan) in succession to Sirdāi K his rank became 1500 with 1000 horse Nothing more is known of him.

BĀBĀ KHĀN QĀQSHĀL

After Majnūn K Qāqshāl he was at the head of the Qāqshāl officers in Akbai's reign He distinguished himself in the campaign against Khān Zamān In the 17th year, 980, 1572, on the first expedition to Gujarat, Shahbaz K, the Mīr Tūzuk, was arranging 8 the troops when the tactless Turk (Bābā K) in his arrogance and presumption fell out with him and behaved rudely to him The King, in order to punish him and to correct other trangressors, ordered him to be severely chastised (sīāsat 'azīm). At the same period he, on account of his good service, became an object of favour After the conquest of Bengal, when the province of Ghorāghāt (in northern Bengal) was assigned in fief to the Qāqshāls, though, after the death of Majnūn, the headship was nominally with his son Jabārī Beg, yet the control was with Bābā K who was the greybeard (āgsigāl) of the tribe When there were disturbances on the introduction of the branding regulation the grasping clerks opened shops of

¹ Maasır A 222

² Do 282

³ Do 349

⁴ Do 461

^b The Maasır A 461 has Sazāwār

⁶ An uncle of Rūh Ullah, named 'Azīz Ullah, is mentioned at p 493 of

⁷ Blochmann 369

⁸ Akbarnāma II 371

avarice and covetousness and, owing to the neglect and connivance of the head officer, the subordinates taxed even the minutest things (lit priced the head of an ant) Accordingly Bābā K plainly said to Mozaffar K, who was the governor of Bengal, that he had given Rs 70,000 in presents to the officers and had not yet succeeded in having one hundred horsemen passed In fact Mozaffar paid no attention to rectify this When, on account of sımılar grievances M'asūm K Käbulī and others of the Behar fief-holders stirred up the dust of strife in the 24th year, Bābā K, who was seeking for his opportunity, with some jagirdars of Bengal entered upon rebellion. In the year 989,2 1581, they in concert with Khāldīn K shaved their heads, put on their caps³ and went to the city of Gaur which was formerly called Lakhnautī They several times fought with the imperial troops, and were always defeated At last they were reduced to become suppliants and to ask for quarter Though Mozaffar K heard of the disturbances in Behar he would not accept their apologies At last M'asūm K and other rebels left Behar on the approach of the imperial forces and joined the rebels of Bengal These two bodies recommenced disturbances and in the 25th year they seized Mozaffar K who had shut himself up in Tānda, and put him to death When for some time they were successful and things went (lit the wheel went round) according to their wish, they divided the territory and distributed titles and offices among themselves Bābā K took to himself the title of Khānkhānān, and gave himself the government of Bengal In the same year and in the midst of his success he was attacked by cancer (khūrah) 4 Every day two sirs of flesh was put into the

¹ A N III 291 It is not stated there that $B\bar{a}b\bar{a}$ K said this to Mozaffar

² It should be 987, for the rebellion broke out in the 24th year, and the 25th began in the first month of 988 See Elliot V 410 and A N III 291

³ The word for cap is $t\bar{a}qiya$, and Elliot V 415 renders this "high caps," but it rather appears that the $t\bar{a}qiya$ was a small cap, of the nature of a skull cap, worn under the turban or helmet See Vullers sv Ap parently the putting on of this cap was a sign of mourning for the death of Roshan Beg, or an indication that they were no longer in uniform, or in the king's service

⁴ Blochmann 369, n 3, calls it cancer in the face See A N III 321 Perhaps it was a form of lupus

ulcer to feed the maggots He used to say, "Faithlessness to my salt has brought me to this misery" In the same state he died

BAHĀDUR

Son of S aid Badakhshī who was for a time collector of the Sarkār of Tirhut In the 25th year of Akbar's reign when the Bihai officers raised the dust of sedition S'aid left his son on the estates and joined the rebels Bahādur spent the revenues of the crown-lands on the soldiers and hoisted the standard of disaffection, and struck coins and recited the Khutba in his own name. They say that this legend was put upon the coinage

Verse 1

Bahādui ibn Sultan, bin S'aīd, ibn Shah Sultan Pisar Sultan, pidr Sultan, Zihī Sultan bin Sultan Bahādui son of a Sultan, s S'aīd, S Shah Sultan The son of a Sultan, the father a Sultan, Bravo Sultan s Sultan,

When S'aīd at the request of M'asūm K Kabulī went 2 off in order to bring his son—that sedition-monger—to united action, Bahādur had the effrontery to put his father into confinement, and the father in a short time obeyed him. When Shāham K Jalāīr attacked Patna and was victorious, S'aīd fell 3 in that battle and Bahādur marched out of Tirhut and laid hold of many cultivated tracts. Sarkār Hājīpūr was in his possession, and he stretched out his hands everywhere. At last Sādiq K sent a force against him, and there was hand-to hand fighting. He lost his life there 4 in the 25th year corresponding to 988

¹ This couplet is quoted in Badayūnī, Lowe, 307, but the reading is different Bahādur is also mentioned in the Tabaqāt A where he is styled Bahādur 'Alī See Elliot V 426 It is not clear why this biography, which was added by 'Abdu-l Hayy, finds a place in the Maasir for it does not appear that Bahādur ever held office under Akbar His name does not occur in Blochmann

² See Akbarnāma III 306

³ Elliot V 417

⁴ There appears to be some mistake here Bahādur did not die till the 26th year 989, 1581, and he did not fall in battle but was put to death by Akbar at court He was

BAHĀDUR K BĀQĪ BEG

He was servant of Prince Dārā Shikoh, and by his good service and skill obtained a place in the prince's heart was more trusted than his contemporaries and livals tained the rank of 1000 with 400 horse and was made governor of Allahabad on behalf of the prince When he was engaged in settling that territory, he was summoned to court in the 22nd year, and appointed to the charge of Gujarat, and obtained the rank of 2000 with 500 hoise and the title of Ghairat K 23rd year he was raised from the position of being the prince's servant and placed among the king's servants and received the rank of 3000 with 2000 horse and was given a flag. When the prince undertook the charge of the affair of Qandahai and his eldest son Sulaimān Shikoh was appointed governoi of Kabul, the settlement of that province was assigned to Ghairat K the 28th year he by successive promotions obtained the lank of 4000 with 2500 horse and the title of Bahādur K While governıng Afghanıstan he was appointed to Daui, 1 Bānū and Naghz and chastised the Afghans there who seditiously did not pay the proper revenue, and he fixed upon them as their tribute one lac of But the government of Kabul was not properly conducted by him In the 30th year the government of Kabul was assigned to Rustum² K Firūz Jang, and the charge of Lahoie, which was in the prince's fief, was made over to Bahādur K In the year 1068, 1658, near the end of Shah Jahan's reign, his rank was increased by 500 horse and he was appointed as deputy for the prince in the province of Bihai, and was sent off with Sulaimān Shikoh who had been appointed to oppose Shujā' caught not by Sādıq but by Mīrzā Koka's servants, or rather he surrendered to one of them, Ghāzī K, who sent him to Hājīpūi See AN III 374, Elliot V 426, where his death is put into the 27th year, and Bada yūnī, Lowe, 307 The text says that it was M'asūm K Kābulī who sent the father S'aīd Badakhshi to admonish

the son But AN III 306 only says "M'asūm K," and it looks as if M'asūm K Farankhūdī were meant, as he had not then become a rebel A F adds that the father soon followed the son's lead

¹ See Jarrett II 393 and 398, note

⁶ Text has Daurnabū u Naghr

² Khāfī K I 755

Though the guardianship and the management were nominally assigned to Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh, in reality Dāiā Shikoh made Bahādur guardian and made him the person in power over the army When Sulaiman Shikoh after defeating Shuja' pursued Amīi K to Patna, and then on hearing of the march of Aurangzeb was returning in all haste, he on passing Allahabad heard at Karra of his father's defeat and became disheartened, and the Mīrzā Rajah and Diler K, as is the way of old servants, left 1 him Sulaimān Shikoh was helpless and wished to go to Delhi and to join his father by any possible means. Bahādui K. did not approve of this idea, and turned Sulaiman Shikoh's rein towards Allahabad There too2 he (Sulamān) could not abide, and after leaving his superfluous baggage and some of the ladies in Allahabad Fort he crossed the river at Kutal³ and wandered about on the other side in failure. At every stage his forces diminished, till at last he passed Laknaur⁴ and came to Naginah As at every ferry that he came to and tried to cross the Ganges at, the boats had been removed to the other side of the river, and he could find no means of getting across he went on from Nagīna⁵ with the idea that opposite Haidwār he might with the help of the zamındar there and the help of the ruler of Srīnagar (in the Siwaliks) perhaps get across He passed Moiadabad and came to Cāndī6 which is opposite to Hardwar and near the borders of Srīnagar, and sent people to the ruler of that country to obtain assistance He waited in expectation of a reply while the troops of Aurangzeb came against him He was obliged to fly and thought that the hill-country of Srīnagar would be an When he entered the hill-country and arrived within asylum

¹ Manucci I 284, 286

² 'Alamgīrnāma 171

³ Qu ⁹ Kotlā or Kotlah in the Sarkār of Karra West, J II 168 It may, however, merely mean a pass or ferry

⁴ Lucknow in text, and this agrees with 'Alamgirnāma 171, but Laknaur in Sambhal must be meant See Elliot IV 384, note and supp glos sary II 138 Nagīnah is also mentioned there, 136 It is Nadīnah in text and in 'Ālamgīrnama

⁵ Nadīnah in text It was in Sarkār Sambhal and is now in Bijnaur I G X 159, and Jarrett II 290

⁶ The hill opposite Hardwār 'Ālamgīrnāma 173

four stages of Simagar he was met by the ruler ¹ The latter said that his country was small, and could not support all Sulaimān's men, and that there was no road for elephants and horses. If he desired to take up his quarters in the country he must dismiss his soldiers and come to Srīnagar with his family and a few servants. At this time Bahādur K who had fallen ill after leaving Allahabad had a dangerous attack of disease, and lost the use of one eye, and was in fact reckoned among the dead. But out of fidelity and honour he did not wish to remain behind. Of necessity he had to separate from Sulaimān Shikoh, and when he came out of the hill-country he died ²

BAHĀDUR KHAN ROHĪLA

Son of Daryā K Daudzai In his father's lifetime he became known to Prince Shah Jahan for good service, and when his father became unfaithful and left the prince he only attached himself more firmly to Shah Jahan and departed not from his stirrup After the accession he was promoted to the rank of 4000 with 2000 horse and given the fief of Kālpī and sent off to punish the recalcitrants there. When in the first year of the reign Jujhār became a rebel and fortified himself in Undcha (Orcha), and armies marched against him from every side, 'Abdullah K Fīrūz Jang came with Bahādur K from Kālpī, which is east of that country, to the fort of Īrīj, every bastion of which rose up high as heaven, and displayed alacrity and zeal. The enemy attacked the heroes, and there was a hot fight. Bahādur and his followers went on foot, and keeping a rank-breaking elephant in front of

l Prithi Singh He afterwards delivered up the prince Khāfi K II 123 See also id pp 41, 42 Also 'Ālamgirnama 174

¹ id 42 'Ālamgīrnama 174

³ Pādshahnāma I 117

⁴ Do 191

⁵ Erich of the maps, Irich of the IG It is in the Jhansi district The Pādshahnāma I 247 says Bahādur came from the North, and so he would if he came from Kālpī, which is NNE of Erich

b file safshikan bar iū dāshta The phrase is taken from the Pādshāhnama I 247, five lines from foot There instead of bar ru dashta we have pesh dashta The Fakira of Kewal Rām I O MS 2685 also relates the incident It seems to say that it was a wild elephant that Bahādui drove betore him them, they ran to the gate, swift as the wind, and by the help of that Ahriman-like animal broke down the gate and quickly entered the fort. With the hly-white sword they turned the swarthy Hindus into the colour of tulips and painted a lose-dyed victory on the face of bravery. As a reward for this exertion and victory he got the honour of a kettle drum. After that he was appointed along with Azim K, the governor of the Decean, to extinate Khān Jahan Lodi - When the A'zım K made a rapid march and attacked Khan Jahan Lodi in Rajūrī Bīr the latter came out with a small body of 350 horse which was with him and marched off firmly and in good order, and whenever the imperial forces came near him he turned back and drove them off by aichery When he came to the hill of Rajūrī Bahādur Rohilla quickly arrived there and entered into conflict with Khan Jahan's brothers son Bahādur? K. who held the rank of 1000 and was distinguished for courage Bahadui Rohilla displayed great valour so that it seemed like the story of Rustam and Islandiyar But at last owing to fewness of companions he was brought into difficulty, and dismounted (or was unhorsed) and went on like a moth, continually hurling himself against the fire of the sword

They say that when he fell on the ground with two wounds from arrows on his face and side, his opponents wished to cut off his head, and that he cried out "I am the memorial and son of Daryā Khan and a house-born one of you". The Khan Jahān forbade his men to kill him. After that when the A'zim Khān in the 4th year after taking the fort of Qandhār' encamped on the bank of the Mānjarā with the design of attacking Bhālkī and Chatkoba, he directed that at the time of encamping and till the tents of the troops were put up on the ground assigned to them, each corps and some officers should remain on guard by turns, for the distance of a los from the camp, until the men had

l Pādshāhnāma I 321, where it is said to be 24 Los from Machlīgāon

² See Pädshähnäma I 323, and Khāfī Khān I 432 There were two Bahādurs and they were on opposite sides The Bahādur K who fought with Bahādur Rohilla was Khān Jahan's biother's son

 $^{^5}$ This rhotoric is taken from 1511 \overline{a} 171 $^{\circ}$
⁴ Pädshähnäma I 377

gathered firewood and straw. On the day of Bahadur's turn, (to collect forage) as there was no sign of the enemy, he had east away the thread of caution and was seated with a few men at a greater distance from the camp. By chance there was a village near there, the men of which gave battle in order to protect their cattle and other property from the camp-followers heard of this and hastened with other officers 1 (and men?) who were not more than 1000 in all, to render assistance. Randaulah K 'Adılkhanı with all the rabble made an attack, and the officers opened the hand of courage and fought. When the contest became critical they dismounted, and their minds were bent upon sacrificing their lives Shahbaz K, who was one of the officers of 3000, spent the coin of life and Bahadui K and Yusuf Muhammad K of Tashkend became senseless from wounds The enemy carried them off and imprisoned them in Bijapur When Yemīnu-ddaulah in the 5th year was appointed to devastate the 'Adilshahi territory and came to Byapur 'Adıl Shah released' both of them Bahādui paid his respects at court and had his dignities increased and was the recipient of royal favours. He was appointed again to Qanauj and its appurtenances Bahādur proceeded to chastise the rebels of Malkūsah 4 who are conspicuous above the other recalcitrants in that country for violence and numbers there, whether peasant or soldier, goes without weapons so that even the cultivator at the time of ploughing has his loaded gun fastened to the plough and his match burning. On this account they do not fully apply themselves to agriculture. At this time they were gathered together in Birgāon, which was the strongest of their places, and had revolted and absolutely refused to pay their rents Relying on God's aid, he at once fell upon those

¹ See Pādshāhnāma I 380 and Khāfī Khān I 458 There appears to have been some confusion in the MSS The statement that the officers were not more than 1000 seems odd, and the words in brackets in the text are not in I.O MS 628 The Pādshāh nāmá, p 380, five lines from foot, says there were not more than one thousand horse with Bahādur and his companions

^{2 1}d 415

o id II 87

⁴ Malkousah of Supp Gloss II 90 See also J II 185

wicked men and a wonderful battle took place Bahādur placed the shield of God's protection above his head and came to the gate The rioters were not slow to meet him. At length there was a hand-to-hand fight, and after many were killed the rest of them took flight, and Bahādui after destroying the place returned to his residence A victory was gained over the seditious such as never before had happened in that country After this, he distinguished himself in the pursuit of Rajah Jujhāi Singh Bandīla He was in the vanguard of 'Abdullah K Fīrūz Jang and Khān Daurān Bahādur When that wretch left Garha and Lānjī and came to the country of Chanda, Bahadui, who was following at his heels, sent on his uncle Neknam with a few men, as he himself had had an illness (chūn kotta 1 dāsht) in order to check his flight Juhar on perceiving his boldness turned round and attacked him, and Neknām fell fatally wounded 2 along with seven others Meanwhile Bahādur K came up along with Khān Daurān and attacked Jujhai's main body, and the latter scattered like the "Daughters of the Bier" (the stars of the constellation of the Great Bear) As 'Abdullah K Fīrūz Jang neglected 4 to extirpate Champat⁵ Bandīla, Bahādur K was sent off in the 13th year to the fief of Islamabad 6 in order to put down that sedition-monger But interested people did not permit this, and impressed the emperor with the idea that it was not advisable to convert Bandalkand into a Rohilkand He was soon removed that he gave proof of courage in the affair of Jagta7 and the

¹ Koft means a blow It may also mean an illness of some sort as koftan1-dil is given in Vullers as meaning palpitation of the heart, and a kind of disease

² Zakhmhāi munkir Munkir is one of the angels who examine the spirits of the departed. The phrase, which occurs also in Pādshāhnāma II 691, line 10, means mortal wounds. The account of Neknām is in Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, p. 113. There is however a Neknām K. mentioned in Khāfī Khān I 649, as alive in 1056, and in association with Bāhādur

³ The account of the campaign against Jujhār is contained in Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, 106 et seq, and in Khāfī K I 509 et seq

⁴ Pādshāhnāma II 193 et seq and Khāfī Khān I 578

⁵ Pādshāhnāma II 136, 193, 221, etc He was a connexion of Jujhār and a supporter of his son Prithīrāj

b This was a Sarkār in Bandalkand, and among the estates included in it were Īrīj, Bhander and Panwār See Pādshāhnāma II 307

⁷ The Jagat Singh of the Pādshāhnāma II 247, etc

taking of Mau His companions under the superintendence of their leader made a ladder of the slain and ran up to the batteries of the foe On that day 7002 Afghans among his fol-In the 22nd year he was appointed to guard lowers were killed Multan, and as during the cold weather harvest (fasl 1abī) he was without a jagir, an order 3 was given to the diwani clerks that they should allow his salary (talab-i-aoia) to be set off against the demand In the Balkh campaign he was in the vanguard of Murad Bakhsh's army and distinguished himself by his courage When the prince came to the foot of the Tūl pass—which was the boundary between the empire and the territory of Badakhshān-Asālat K with the imperial pioneers (bīldār) and some thousand labourers, whom the Amīru-l-umarā 'Alī Mardān K had collected from the districts ($bal\bar{u}k\bar{a}t$) of Kabul, was appointed to clear the road of snow as far as the Serar-Bala (the upper serar) for the distance of one los and the height of two loyal yards, and for half a kos and in some places for about $2\frac{1}{2}$ kos to the Serai Zer (the lower seiai) which is towards Badakhshān, and to make to beat down the snow so that horses and camels could pass As this work was not completed by them (the pioneers), Bahādur K and Asālat K set all then troopers and foot soldiers to remove the snow and open out the road The soldiers used all then efforts and dug up the snow and scattered it on the side of the roads with their hands and aprons By the energy of Bahādur Khān a road two yards wide was made for the distance of one kos where there was much snow When the prince (Murād Bakhsh) cast the shadow of his arrival there, Nazi Muhammad

¹ Pādshāhnāma II 270

² id id

³ Khāfī K I 683 The allowances which Bahādur should have got as a jagirdar but which he did not get as he was without one, were to be set off against the demand for the spring harvest of Multan

⁴ Copied from the Pādshāhnāma

II 513 See also Khāfī K I 623 This refers to the expedition against Badakhshān and is anterior to the Multan incident. The march and encounter with the snow occurred in 1055, 1645, and in the 19th year, while the grant of Multan was in the 22nd year 1057. The Tūl Pass is referred to in Jarrett II 399, 400.

K, the ruler of Tūrān, pretended that he was going to Bāgh 1 Murād to arrange for a banquet and hastened off to Shaburghān? At an indication from the prince, Bahādur K and Asālat K followed him About 3 10,000 Uzbeg and Alaman horse who had gathered round Nazr Muhammad K went off with their families and properties to Andakhūd on the approach of the imperial army, being afraid of being plundered and made prisoners Nazr Muhammad K with a small force prepared for battle and engaged at the distance of four kos from Shaburghān As soon as the encounter began and when scarcely had the sound of conflict reached his men's ears, they gave up and took to flight Nazr Muhammad became helpless and turned his rein and went to Andakhūd, and from there he went to Khurasan Though Bahadur K had received an increase of rank, yet at this time, which was that of pursuit and when it was certain that with a little exertion 4 Nazr Muhammad K would have been made prisoner, this brave officer purposely robbed himself (of his opportunity) Either the sluggishness of his companions affected him or there was some other cause which prevented him from finishing the work And this impression became fixed in the mind of the emperor When Prince Murād Bakhsh was disinclined to stay in that country and left it without permission from Shah Jahan and proceeded to Kabul, the government of Balkh and the guarding of the country fell upon Bahādur along with Asālat After Prince Muhammad Aurangzeb Bahādur had cast his shadow over that country, Bahādur K was in the vanguard and performed feats of valour in battle with the Uzbegs who were more numerous than ants and locusts At the time of retreating from the country the rearguard was under his charge and he underwent much toil in bringing off the camp When he reached the pass of Panjshīr⁵ which is two stages from the Hindu Koh and is a

¹ Pādshāhnāma II 539

² The Sapurgan of Marco Polo, 90 m west Balkh

³ rd 550

⁴ Pādshāhnāma II 553

⁵ Text Tankshīr كُون This is the well-known Pass of Panjshir in northern Afghanistan referred to in the Ain A'barī II 399 and note 3 A note to text of the Maasir says that in some copies of the Akbarnāma (by which is meant the Ain) the word is defile which is difficult to traverse, it began to snow, and this continued the whole night and till two par (midday) of the next day With a hundred difficulties the remainder of the camp and of the soldiers were taken through the Pass this time on account of the excessive snow a halt of twenty four hours was made The narrow-eyed Hazāras (referring to their Mongolian origin) opened out their eyes from the lust of robbing and the baggage and attacked the people of the camp Bahādui K with the help of fortune repulsed them every time When the army got into the Hindu Koh Pass he halted for one day in order that all those who had fallen behind might join, and after that he himself crossed. Owing to the difficulties of the road, the sharpness of the an, and the abundant snow, there were lost on the march from first to last 10,000 men, or nearly half of the force and all the quadrupeds Much property too remained under the snow When Bahadui 1 K came to the head of the Pass, Zū-al-qadr K who had charge of the imperial treasure was obliged to halt on account of the exhaustion of the Bahādui unloaded his own camels and those of others, whatever remained, and put treasure on them The rest he divided among the hoises and camels (mules) of the soldiers He also contended with the Hazāias and entered Kabul fourteen days after the Prince

Though Bahādui K had made great exertions in the campaign, yet owing to the representations of some people, Shah Jahan became impressed with the idea that he had been remiss in the matter of pursuing Nazr Muhammad K and in assisting S'aïd ² written Tang Shīr But in Bib Ind ed of Ain I 590, and 595, the word is written Panjhīr with the variant Panjshīr See the account of the crossing in Khāfī K I 676 See also Elliot \ II 82 for a translation of the Shah Jahannāma of 'Inayat K The pass is there called Nek Bihār (?) Apparently the author of the Maasir got his account of the crossing of the Pass from the work of Muhammad

Wāng, as the son does not mention 'Inavat Ullah's work among the sources

¹ Khāfī K I 677 678

² Seo Khāfī K I 663 and Pādshahnāma II 691-692 S'aīd K was wounded and his sons were killed. The supineness of Bahādur is commented on by the author of the Pādshahnāma, do 692

Muhammad at the time of the Uzbeg victory Therefore, in spite of all the hardships and afflictions he had undergone, he was de prived of Sarkārs Kālpī and Qanauj, which were his fief and for twelve months of the year yielded a return, they being confiscated 1 to the crown $(kh\bar{a}lsa)$, in heu of thirty lacs of rupees which were claimed by the government This made him grieved at heart In the 23rd year he was appointed to the Qandahar expedition along with Prince Aurangzeb In the siege of that strong place he set up a battery in front of the Mālūiī (variant Mālw'a) Gate, and on 19 Rajab 1059, 19th July 1649, he by reason of asthma emerged from the fenced city of life The prince and Jumla-ul-mulki S'aīd Ullah K gave fitting office and allowances to every one of his followers, who were 2000 horse in number, who was fit for service, and kept a number on their own establishment Other officers took the rest Shah Jahan raised his eldest son Dılāwar,2 who was 15 years of age, to the rank of 1500, and gave offices to each one of his six other sons. All his property, except the elephants, was relinquished to his sons They say that his zeal and loyalty in the king's service were so great that they quite removed from Shah Jahan's heart the cloud which had been caused by his father's crooked ways They say that Bahādur K always lamented that he had not had his revenge on the Bijapuris, and that as long as he lived the shame of this affair appeared on his face. 'Azīz K Bahādur was one of his sons who in the 49th year of Aulangzeb distinguished himself at the siege of Wākinkīra On account of this the title of Chaghatai 3 was graciously accorded to him

I See statement repeated II 42 m the account of Diler K I am not sure of the meaning, and I have not access to the authority for the statement. If it refers to the 22nd year it is opposed to Khāfī K I 683 which states apparently that Bahādur received the charge of the province of Multan, and that his pay for the time he was without a jagir, was to be set off against the government demand The affair of S'aīd K occurred in 1056, in the 19th or 20th year of the reign, and probably Bahādur was punished by being deprived of his jagir at that time and recompensed in the 23rd year

² Dalīl in Khāfī K I 695

³ According to Kewal Ram the title was given to Bahadur himself

BAHĀDUR KHĀN SHAIBĀNĪ.

His name was Muhammad S'aīd, and he was the brother of Khān Zamān 'Alī Qulī K He was one of the Panchazārīs (5000) of Akbar At the time of Humāyūn's expedition to India, he received the territory of Zamīn Dāwar After some time, he out of an evil disposition got the idea of taking Qandahar, and sought to succeed by dint of stratagem He did not succeed, and when he failed, he collected some vagabonds and prepared for Shāh Muhammad K Qılātī, who was guarding the fort battle on behalf of Bairam, saw that help from India was far off, and so strengthened the fort and applied for help to the king of Persia At his request an army of Persians came and suddenly fell upon He made a stout resistance, but was not successful and had to fly As he could not remain in the district he, in the second year of the leigh, and when Akbar was besieging Mankot, presented himself at court in a shame-faced fashion. recommendation of Bairam K, his offence was pardoned, and he obtained Multan as his fief in the 100m of Muhammad Qulī Birlās In the third year Bahādur was appointed along with many other officers to conquer Malwa At the same time there occurred the downfall of Bairam, and the latter recalled him in order that he himself might take possession of that territory But afterwards he abandoned this idea Bahādui came to Delhi and on the recommendation of Māham Anaga was appointed to the high office of Vakīl A few days had not elapsed when Etawah was made his fief, and he obtained leave of absence In the 10th year, when Khān Zamān his eldest brother became rebellious, he was sent along with Sikandar K. Uzbeg to Sarwāi, in oider that he might come to Upper India by that route, and make a/disturb-On this account Akbar appointed a force under Mīr ance Though Bahādui made submissions M'uızu-l-mulk of Mashhad and said that his mother had gone to court with Ibrāhīm K Uzbeg, and had obtained forgiveness for his and his brother's offences, Mīr M'uīzu-l-mulk would not agree and came forward to Though Sikandar K who was with Bahādur turned to flee, Bahādur fell upon Mīr M'uızu-l-mulk's centre, and Shāh

Budagh K, who was one of the soldier-like officers, was made prisoner, and the Mīr was defeated As Bahādur's and the Khān Zamān's offences had been pardoned, this act of his was not inquired into But as the pardon was conditional 1 on the Khan Zamān's not crossing the Ganges so long as Akbar should be in that quarter, and as at the time when Akbar visited Chunār, 'Alī Quli neglected this condition, and crossed the Ganges, the king was angry and made a rapid march against him. He issued an order to Ashraf K, who was in Jaunpur, to imprison Bahādui's Bahādur heard of this and made a rapid expedition to Jaunpur and took the fort He implisoned Ashraf and released his own mother, and plundered Jaunpur and Benares, and then went off on the return of the king But once more on account of the pardoning of the Khān Zamān's offences, and the entreaties of M'unim K, Akbar did not direct his attention to suppress the immoderate conduct of Bahādur At last in the 12th year 974, 1566-67, he, along with his brother, with utter want of decency or gratitude entered upon a contest with Akbar When Bābā K Qāqshāl fell upon the army of Khān Zamān, Bahādur K faced him and overthrew him Suddenly his horse was struck with an arrow and reared, and Bahādur was thrown When his men saw this, they dispersed, and the brave men of the imperial army Wazīr Jamīl Beg, who was then an officer of the attacked him rank of 700, wickedly and avariciously took something from him and let him go Just then another man came up, and placed him in pillion on his horse and brought him to the king said, "Bahādur K , what evil did we do to you, that you have made all this commotion and strife?" Bahādur replied,2 "God is to be praised for whatever happens!" Perhaps his disloyalty had not yet been entirely extirpated, otherwise he would have expressed his repentance At the importunity of well-wishers an order was given to Shahbāz K to cut off his head

¹ A N II 265

² A N III 294, and Badayūnī, Lowe 99 The Darbār A 222 understands Bahādur to have meant that he praised God for giving him a sight of the emperor Probably Bahādur merely implied that whatever was, was right

He had a poetical vein and wrote verses. This dries (b. him

That saucy tyrant took another stone, As if to war with me the wounded one

BAHĀDURU-L-MULK

They say that his real native country was the Panjab After serving the kings of the Deccan for a long time he came to Akbar's court, and became his servant. In the 43rd year he took the fort of Pūnār² in the province of Berai That fort is on a hill and has a river on three sides which is never fordable After that he distinguished himself in various battles In the 46th year when he was left with Hamid K to guard the country of Telingana, Malik 'Ambar brought an army from the country of Barīd and stirred up strife They in the pride of their valour opposed him with a small force and a battle took place on the bank of the Mānjarā By the fatefulness of heaven they were defeated and Hamīd K was made pusoner Bahādur³ by great efforts crossed the river and gained a place of safety the 8th year of Jahangir he obtained the gift of a flag In the 9th year he was distinguished 4 by increase of rank and the gift of an elephant He died at the appointed time They say that this line was engraved on his signet

Verse 5

Whoever is a good friend is a valuable pearl (Bahādur)

ynening is by

l These lines with a difference in the first line are quoted by Badayūnī III 240, in his account of the Khān Zamān who had the takhallas of ul tan See also Darbār A 227

² Panār of Ain J II 227 and 233 In A N III 743 it is Pūnā The Paunār (Pownār) of the I G XI 119 It is in Wardha district and on river Dhām I G new ed xxiv 368

⁸ A N III 796

⁴ In the 10th year of Jahangu, Tuzūk 139, he was raised to the rank of 3000, and 2300 horse

⁵ Apparently the point of the line is that it is a play on the name of the owner of the signet Bahādur seems here to be taken as a Persian word and to mean a precious pearl, or simply anything valuable Perhaps it should be "Whoever is the acceptable friend of anyone is a precious pearl"

BAHĀDUR K UZBEG

His name was Abū-n-Nabī, and he was one of the nobility of In the time of 'Abdu-l-mumin K he attained to high office and was made governor of Mashhad When 'Abdu-l-mumin was killed, Bāqī K (the rulei of Tūrān) tiled to conciliate Bahādur, but he got free by pretending that he was going on a pilgrimage to Mecca and came to India In the 48th year he entered 1 into Akbar's service, and received suitable rank and the present of a jewelled waist-dagger After the accession of Jahangir he received 2 Rs 40,000 for expenses and went off with 57 officers to assist Shaikh Faiid Muitaza K who had been appointed to pursue Sultān Khusrau In the 5th year he was made faujdār of Multan in succession to Taj K In the 7th year he obtained a mansab of 3000 with 3000 horse and the title of Bahadur K, and was, on the death of M Ghāzī, appointed 3 to the government of Qandahar Afterwards he got successive increases and attained 4 the rank of In the 15th 5 year he pleaded defective eve-5000 with 3500 hoise sight and resigned the appointment of Qandahar They say that when the approach of the king of Persia's aimy was bruited abroad, he out 6 of carelessness could not make up his mind to remain (?) and so distributed two lacs of rupees among the royal clerks as bribes, and left the place After that he obtained a fief in the Agra province and was prosperous. When Shah Jahan's standards moved from Ajmere towards Agra he came? forward and did homage Nothing more is known of him

BAHARJI, LANDHOLDER OF BAGLANA 8

His ancestors held this territory for 1400 years They regard themselves as descended from Rajah Jai Cand Rāthoi who was

¹ A N III 820, and 839 He is there called Abu-i-Baqā

² Tūzuk J 28 ³ Tūzuk J 109

⁴ It is mentioned under the 11th year of the Tüzuk 162, that he got an increase of 500

⁶ Tūzuk 323

⁶ The sentence is obscure Apparently it means that he was afraid to stay, and so left, but sent two lacs of rupees to the clerks at headquarters to secure a favourable representation of his case

⁷ Pādshāhnāma I 82

⁸ J II 251, Elliot VII 65 Khāfī K I 561 Pādshāhnāma II 105.

Rajah of Qanauj Whoever ruled this country was called Baharji. In former times they coined money As it was between Gujarat and the Deccan, the ruler served whichever side was strongest After having long been tributary to Gujarat, the rulers of Khandes came to prevail owing to their proximity. In the year 980, 1572, when Gujarat came into Akbar's possession, and the royal standards were planted in the delightful spot of the blessed port of Surat, Baharjī submitted and produced 1 M Sharafu-d dīn Husain (afterwards) the king's brother-in-law, who had rebelled and had entered Baharjī's territories with the intention of going to the Deccan, and had been imprisoned there In consequence Baharjī was treated with favour After this the ruler of Baglāna always submitted and paid tribute, and when necessary made his appearance when summoned by the viceroys of the Deccan As Baglana on one side adjoined Gujarat, and on the other Khandes, and was in the middle of the imperial territories, Prince Muhammad Aurangzeb in the time of his first viceroyalty appointed Muhammad Tāhii, who received the title of Wazīr K, with Mālojī Deccanī, Zāhid K Koka, and Saiyid 'Abdu-l-Wahāb of Khandes, to conquer Baglana After a siege, the fort of Mulher which was the capital was taken, and Bahaijī sent his mother to make a reconciliation, and after making a treaty he in the 12th year (of Shah Jahan) surrendered the fort and waited upon the prince (Aurangzeb) Shah Jahan made him an officer of 3000 with 2500 horse and at his request assigned to him as his dwelling-place pargana Sultanpur, which had been lying waste since the time of the famous famine in the Deccan The territory of Baglāna was included in the province of Khandes Rāmgīr,3 which is a district of Baglana, was likewise taken out of the possession of Sūm⁴ Deo, the son-in-law of Baharjī penditure on it exceeded the income, Baharjī received it back, and Rs 10,000 was fixed as the annual tribute After Baharjī's death Shah Jahan converted his son Bairam 5 Sah to Muham-

¹ A N III 29

² In 1630-31, Pādshāhnāma I 362, Elhot VII 24.

³ Rāmnagar in Pādshāhnāma II

^{109 4} Pādshāhnāma II 109

⁵ Khāfī K I 564.

madanism and gave him the title of Daulatmand K, and the rank of 1500 and the pargana of Pūnār Khandes (Paunār) as $in'\bar{a}m$ in lieu of Sultānpūr He lived into the reign of Aurangzeb and in that town (Paunāi) elected splendid buildings of which vestiges still remain

Verse

From the marks of broken gates and walls

The signs of foreign (or of Persian) princes are visible

Baglāna is mainly a hill-country. Its length is 100 kos and its breadth 30 ¹ On the east are Gālna and Nandaibāi. West is Sorath. North, Tiplī (Rājpīplah) and the Vindya range. South, the Sambha² range on the top of which are Nāsik and other places. Formerly it was rated at 3000 horse and 10,000 infantity. It had two great cities Antāpūr and Cintāpūr. At present there are not many villages. It had seven forts of note, and all were hill-forts. Two were especially famous, Mulher (Muleir of the maps) known as Aurangarh with a town one kos off. The river Mosan³ flows 60 kos west of Aurangabad. Sālher is called Sultāngarh and is the loftiest of forts and summits.

Verse

For Sälher is the son of high heaven, In height he is as tall as his site

Other places are Hatgarha, Jülher, Besül, Nāniya and Sālūta This country is well watered and has abundant orchards and various kinds of crops. It has abundance of mangoes and choice rice which is the best in the Deccan. In the time of former rulers the collections were ten lacs of rupees. Six and half krors of dāms were its fixed revenue. As it had been devastated by famine

¹ Pādshahnāma has 70 for the breadth, 1e length from N to S But A N III 30 has 30

² So in text, but the variant Sahyā-chal is right, the range in question being the Sahyādri hills of the IGXII 137 old edition

³ Mus or Mos in text, but variant has Mosan IG VI 192 has Mosam It is a tributary of the Girnā which flows into the Tāptī

⁴ See Pādshāhnāma II 106, which has Hātgarha, Pepūl (qu Bhusāwal), Bāùna and Sālūda

⁵ See Khāfī K I 561 562 who speaks from personal knowledge and the repeated matchings of troops the revenue after the conquest was fixed at four lacs of rupees. At present Rs 11 000 has been deducted from this also in the offices. The parganas were in old times reckoned at 32, and of these 27 have now been included in three or four estates. Also the villages of this country which are in the hill-tracts towards Jawār (Jawhār?) yield little and are in the possession of the Bhīls.

(I'TIQAD K MĪRZĀ) BIHNAN YĀR

Son of Yamīnu-d-daulah Khān-Khānān Ásaf K of an independent disposition, of a careless nature, and a lover of comfort and pleasure. He spent his life in a delightful manner and had a sufficiency of the means of enjoyment not deal with armies or marching. In perfect tranquillity and freedom from care he spent his days and nights. When he was Mīr Bakhshī he continually by feigning illness abstained from waiting on the royal stirrup, and spread the carpet of ease and Sometimes he went to the Decean to visit his brother Shaista Khān, and sometimes, on the same pietext, he went oft to Bengal Many of his sallies and expressions are on the tip of people's tongues From a regard to the merits of his ancestors and to his connection with the royal family both Shah Jahan and Aurangzeb excused him from many of the disagreeables of service and strove to make him comfortable. In the 10th year of Shah Jahan he held the rank of 500 with 200 horse his father's death he got an increase and was always treated with kindness In the 19th year his rank was 2000, with 200 horse, and in the 22nd year it was 3000 with 300 horse and he had the title of Khānzāda Khān In the 25th year he returned from the Deccan, where he had been to visit his brother Shaista Khān, and entered into the loyal service In the end of the same year he had the rank of 4000 with 500 hoise and the family title of I'tiqad K which his father and uncle had both held And he was made Mīr Bakhshī As frequently, he on the plea of l $Samt \ jaw\bar{a}r$ Perhaps "the villages in the neighbourhood of the hill country"

illness was unable to carry on the duties, he in the 26th year at the time when the king was retuining from Kabul to the capital begged, when the army reached Lahore, to be allowed to halt for a while and to adopt remedies This was granted and a yearly allowance of Rs 60,000 made him satisfied he got well, he in the 27th year attended court and was out of kindness restored to his former rank and service. In this service he continued till the end of the 30th year without covetousness or selfish designs in perfect independence and freedom from care, and gathered the treasure of a good name After the battle with Dārā Shikoh at Samogaiha, which is a famous huntingplace, he had the distinction of entering into the service of Aurangzeb In the 5th year he got the rank of 5000 with 1000 horse and received royal favours In the 10th year he obtained a flag and took leave to go and see his elder brother (Shaista K) who was then governor of Bengal He stayed a long while in that country, and spent his time in enjoyment In the 15th year, 1082, 1671, he died 1 May God have mercy upon him! He was a very honest man and free from anxieties. He was pious and had a perfect love for the poor

They say that one day he had gone off into the lanes without ceremony to see an enthusiast. As this was contiary to the diginity of an Amīr the emperor asked him by way of rebuke, "Were any of the king's servants with you?" He replied, "One was there—this ashamed one (lit this black-faced one), all the others were servants of God." His son Muhammad Yār K was also the unique of the age for his good qualities. He has been noticed separately. His daughter Fātima, Begam was the wife of Muftakhir K the son of Fakhi K Najm-sānī. In the end she found favour with Aurangzeb and became Sadru-n-nisā, "Mistress of the Harem."

BAHRĀM SULTAN

Third's Nazr Muhammad the ruler of Balkh. As some account of Nazr Muhammad has been given at the end of the biography of Khusrau Sultan (his second son), and his final fate has been mentioned in the biography 1 of 'Abdu-r-Rahmān Sultan, it is necessary to give in this place some account 2 of He and his elder brother Imam Quli K were his ancestors the sons of Din Muhmmad K commonly known as Yatim Sultan and who was s Jānī Sultan, s Yān Muhammad K, who was the cousin of Haiim K, the ruler of Urgani, the capital of Khwar-When the country of Shei 8 Khan (i e Astrachan) had been taken by the Russians from his ancestors,4 Yar Muhammad came away in a destitute condition Perhaps he was influenced by the improper conduct of Hājim towards himself Anyhow, when he came to Transoxiana Sikandar K (i.e. Iskandar) the father of the famous 'Abdullah K perceived that he was a young b man of ability and lineage, and gave him in marriage his daughter (Zahra Khāmm) who was the full sister of 'Abdullah K fruit of this union soon appeared in the person of Jānī K had five sons, viz Dīn Muhammad, who was the eldest, Bāqī Muhammad, Wali Muhammad, Pavinda Muhammad Sultan and All these five brothers submitted 7 to 'Abdullah K Alīm Sultan and passed then days in Tun, Qaiq and other countries of Quhis-

¹ In Bengal, Wassir A 114

¹ See Massir I 767 and II 812

² Copied from Pādshāhnāma I 216-217

³ This seems to be a mistake for Hashtar Khān or Hajj Tarkhān, i e Astrakhan at the mouth of the Volga It is Hashtar Khān in the Pādshahnāma I 217

⁴ Text ābāish "his ancestors," which seems to have no sense here, for Astrakhan was taken from Yār Muhammad himself, who was then an The Pādshāhnāma l c has amālish "his hopes," and the sentence seems to mean that Yār Muhammad fell from his hopes of power and sway and had to come in a destitute condi tion to Transoxiana This was in 975, 1567 Desmaison's Abū-l-Ghāzī, p Hājim Tarkhān is frequently mentioned in that work khan dynasty is known as the Jänids

It came to an end, according to S Lane Poole, in 1554, p 229 Yar Muhammad's genealogy is given in Vambèry's Hist of Bokhara 305, n 2

It was Jānī Beg the son of Yār Muhammad who received in marriage the daughter of Iskandar, and sister of the celebrated 'Abdullah K See Howorth, Part II, 744 Vambery's Bokhara 305, and Stanley Lane Poole's Muhammadan Dynasties, p 274

⁶ So in Pādshāhnāma According to Vambèry, p 306, he had only three—Dīn Muhammad, Walī Muhammad, and Bāqī Muhammad

⁷ Az qıbal 'Abdullah Khan, "under hıs suzerainty "(")

⁸ Qām m Pādshāhnāma It hes between Yezd and Herat, Blochmann 591 It is the old capital of Kohistan and is the Kayin of the maps

tan (for Kohistan) Alim Sultan died there When there came a rupture between 'Abdullah K and his son 'Abdu-l-Mümin, the brothers had regard to their obligations to 'Abdullah and did not submit to 'Abdu-l-Mūmin When the latter became ruler of Tūrān, he got rid of all his relations, whom he suspected of good conduct and propriety, and so raised smoke ($d\bar{u}d$ which also means sighing) from his own family $(d\bar{u}dm\bar{a}n)$ He also proceeded to act badly to Yai Muhammad K and drove him out from Balkh, and he seized Jānī K and imprisoned him The brothers sounded the drum of opposition in Khurāsān, and behaved presumptuously As it chanced, in the year 1006,1598, when 'Abdu-l-Mümin was marching with a large aimy from Bokhara with the intention of attacking Khurāsān he was killed one night by an airow shot by an Uzbeg who was grieved for the sorrows of the afflicted and was Din Muhammad regarded the coin of opportunity as a great treasure and placed the cap of joy on the apex of fortune He came to Herat and took possession of it, and appointed Walī Muhammad to the charge of Meiv As there was great commotion throughout Tūrān, every head (si) was a sida (leader) and every door (dar) was a caucus (darbār) and the Uzbegs being without remedy agreed to his supremacy in Khurā-He established his power in Heiat and had the Khutba recited and coin struck in the name of his grandfather Yar Muhammad K Yāi Muhammad I after being turned out of Balkh had gone to India, and waited upon Akbar and been treated with After some time he took leave to go on pilgrimage roval favours and had come to Qandahar, when the heavens caused this trampling upon dominion Din Muhammad K had not yet moved some

Jarrett III 86, n Apparently it is the Ghaein of Macgregor's Khurāsān II 148

¹ This account of Yār Muhammad is copied from the Pādshāhnāma But it disagrees with Vambèry who says that Yār Muhammad (of Astrakhan) died soon after his arrival in Transoxiana Nor is there any mention of a Yār Muhammad Sultan's coming to India in Akbar's time Perhaps the Yār Muhammad of Pādshāhnāma I 217 is not the tather of Jānī Beg and grandfather of Dīn Muhammad But see infra in this notice. The "trampling upon dominion" referred to is the death of 'Abdu-I-Mūmin which took place in 1598 (1006)

steps towards the accomplishment of his wishes when Shah 'Abbās Safavī who was waiting for an opportunity of extricating his hereditary territories, equipped an army for battle and came to Herat Some well-wishing and far-sighted people said to him (Din Muhammad) that it was not advisable to make a disturbance about Khurāsān which for a hundred years had been the territory of the Persians, and of which a part was in his (Din M's) posses-The proper course was to propose friendship to the king of Persia, and to arrange the affairs of Turkistan, which was his old and hereditary possession and was without a fitting head subduing that country he might without objection, if he were able to do so, address himself to the conquest of Khuiāsān Dīn Muhammad K at the instigation of warlike young men for whom the pleasures of the government of Khurāsān had not lost their taste, and also because in the time of 'Abdullah K , and of the confusions in Khurāsān, war had been successfully made against some of the officers of that country, thought that the contest would be an easy one At the Rabāt Panyān near Pul Sālār, which is four farsakhs (leagues) from Herat, an engagement took place There was a great battle 1 and the Uzbegs were defeated Nearly 5 or 6000 of the best men in the army were killed, and Din When he came to Mārūcāq weakness over-Muhammad fled powered him on account of his wounds, and his companions laid him down in a cornei in order that he might get repose Some say he took refuge with one of the servants of the soldiers in a tent He was not recognized and was ill-treated by the men, and when they did recognize him they were flightened of reprisals and so put him to death Payinda Muhammad Sultan went to Qandahar, and Shāh Beg K 2 the governor there imprisoned him and sent him to Akbai He made him over to Hasan Beg 3 Shaikh Umarī who was going to Kabul, and he made him

¹ Vambery, Hist of Bokhara, p 306 AN III 803, where Dīn M is apparently called Hāshim K See also 'Alam Arāī, lith, p 392 The Hāshim K of the AN is apparently a mistake for Yatīm Sultan or Yatīm

K, which was another name for Din Muhammad ² Blochmann 377

³ Do 454 Hasan Beg is the man who afterwards joined Khusrau and was put to death with tortures by Jahangir over to Qulij K the governor of the Panjab After one year he died in Lahore Wali Muhammad K came away from the battlefield with 30 to 40 servants without knowing what had become of his elder brother Din Muhammad and hastened to Bokhara There he joined Pir Muhammad K who was one of the relatives of 'Abdullah K, but whom 'Abdu-l-Mūmin had not put to death as he thought I him an opium-eating dervish because he always spent his time in opium-shops (koknār khānhā) in poveity and wretchedness, but who had afterwards been seated on the masnad of When at that time Tawakkal K Qazzāq on finding that Türān Transoxiana was destitute of a powerful rulei led an army against ıt, Bāqī Muhammad (a son of Jānī K) distinguished himself in the battle, and received from Pir Muhammad the government of Bāqī Muhammad after behaving obediently for some time perceived that he was fitter for rule than Pir Muhammad and conceived the idea of being sovereign and called him-He also marched out from Samarkand to take Mıyānself Khān Pir Muhammad was made miserable and restless by this news and came to Samarkand with 40,000 horse Bāqī Muhammad craftily had resort to supplications, but though he tried to clear himself it was of no avail. When he found himself helpless he opened the gates of contest and one day he came out of the fort and fell upon Pir Muhammad's centre and defeated him He was wounded and captured and was immediately put to death by Bāqī Muhammad's order Bāqī M then proceeded to Bokhara and sate upon the throne of rule By ability and courage he also brought under his sway Balkh and Badakhshān Yār Muhammad his grandfather, who was still in Qandahar, on hearing this news gave up the thought of going on pilgrimage and proceeded to Tūrān. Bāqī M welcomed him with honour and seated him on the masnad, and had the khutba recited and coin struck in his But when after two years he perceived that his grandfather was eager to advance, his sons 'Abbās Sultan, Tarson Sultan, and Pir Muhammad Sultan who were not by the same mother as Jānī K, he deprived Yār Muhammad of power, and placed his father Jānī K in his room After this when Yār Muhammad K. and Jānī K died, Bāqī M recited the khutba and struck coins in his own name and his power rose as high as the Pleiades, and the vault of Orion When he died in 1014, 1605-06, Walī Muhammad succeeded to power He made over Balkh, Andakhud and their appurtenances—which were on this side of the Oxus—and which during his brother's time had belonged to him (i.e. Bāqī M) to his brother's sons Imām Qulī and Nazr M Sultan who were the sons of Din M K They for a long time were obedient to their uncle, but at last they on account of their youth and the instigation of ignorant companions became disobedient and took the road of rebellion They made 1 their honoured uncle suspected in the matter of religion on account of the coming and going of the Persian ambassador, and induced most of the Uzbeg officers to have an aversion to him At last Khwāja Abū Hāshim the Khwāja of Dahbīd, and Muhammad Bāqī Qalmāq who governed Samarkand on behalf of (az qıbal) Walī Muhammad K, and Ilangtosh Be Atālīq who was there as his (Walī's) auxiliary, and who had been vexed by the evil conduct of Wali Muhammad, recited the Khutba and struck coin in the name of Imām Qulī and summoned him from Balkh He with his brother Nazr Muhammad crossed the Jaihūn (Oxus) and wished to come to Samarkand by the route of Koh-1-Tan 2 Walī M on hearing the news gathered together an army from Bokhara and blocked their path When they came near, as Imam Quli had not power to fight, he stirred up questions and brought forward charges Wali M too wished that things should not come to fighting Suddenly, by accident, one night two or three boars came out of a reed bed ınto Walī's camp People made a noise and came out of their tents and proceeded to fight with them There was a great outcry that Imam Quli was making a night attack, and people assembled in Wali M's enclosure No trace could be found of him, as he out of suspicion against his own people had withdrawn himself with some persons that he trusted Crowds of men joined the two brothers Some are of opinion that these nocturnal rumours did not spring from mean and riotous fellows. Rather Walī M's chief officers who from unfaithfulness and avarice had shut their eyes to their obligations to their master and looked at his failure as their success raised the cry of a night attack and turned the face of hope to his enemies. However this may be, Walī M after being for some time a spectator of the catastrophe went off to Bokhara in complete mortification and despair. There too he did not see his way to settle, and went off with failure to Persia.

^{1 &#}x27;Alam Arāī, p 381, where he is called Pīr Muhammad Sultan

¹ See 'Alam Araī, lith 589

² Pādshāhnāma I, p 219, line 2

Imām Qulī having received unexpected good fortune hastened to Bokhara and sate upon the masnad, and gave Balkh and Badakhshān to Nazr M K Ai Khānim was the daughter of 'Ibād Ullah Sultan, younger brother of 'Abdullah K, and was first mairied to 'Abdu-l-Mumin After his death she came into the possession of Isham K Qazzāq, after that she was married to Pir Muhammad K, after that to Bāqī M K, after that to Walī M K She was famed among the Uzbegs for good looks and beneficent influence (? yamn qadam)? When Walī M was going to Persia, he, on account of want of time, had left her in Cārjū fort on the bank of the Jarhūn (Oxus) Imām Qulī now sent for her and wished to cohabit with her, but as she did not agree, he laid his hand on the skirts of the Qāzī and the Mufti and sought for subterfuges No one would come forward to help But one Qāzī who was worldly gave his religion to the winds and gave a decree to the effect that as Walī M K had shown a heretical disposition and gone out of the Muhammadan circle his wives were husbandless 3 That audacious (Imām Qulī) and incontinent one took in marriage the undivorced wife of his living uncle, a thing which is not allowed in any religion

Walī M, who had come to Ispahan, was welcomed by Shah Abbas the 1st, and although he ignorantly interviewed the Shah from on hoiseback, the Shah behaved with gentleness and cor-

¹ Vambery I, c 311 See also account of the uproar caused by the boars in the 'Alam Arāī, 590

² Possibly it means "graceful figure"

o M'uallaq, literally suspended See Lane 2137, col 2, "a woman whose husband has been lost to her, neither having a husband, nor divorced" diality and did not forsake the rites of hospitality. The chronogiam was Āmada pādshāh Tūrān, "Airived Tūrān's king " 1020 1611 Though the Shah mereased his affectionateness and heartmess Wali M remained depressed and did not expand After some time when a musical entertainment came to an end, and political questions fell to be discussed, the Shah said year the Turk (Rūmī) has come to Tabriz I must dispose of him, next year I shall myself accompany the Khān and establish him on his ancestral throne ' The Khan said ' 'Delay and processtination won't do As yet the power of Imam Quli has not been established. The help of the Qizilbashes will be an object of horror to the Uzbegs ' By chance at that time, letters came from the Uzbeg chiefs whose unfaithfulness had made him an exile full of repentance for the past, and of service and devotion for the future By urgency he got leave from the Shah and proceeded to Bokhaia After six months, which were spent in going and coming from Persia, he came to Tūrān, and with the help of some of the officers, who were pentent for what they had done and wished to repair it, he got possession of Bokhara without a Imam Quli fled from Bokhara and came to Qarshi There he left Ar Khānim and came to Samarcand Wali M the pride of success and from a distracted disposition set about taking vengeance (on his enemies), and without getting together a suitable force he trusted to the words of recalcitrants and traitors and proceeded against his brother's sons. The two parties came Many of the to blows at two farsakhs (leagues) from Samarcand leaders turned away from fighting and withdrew to the rear could not bring himself to incur the disgrace of flight but attacked Imam Quli with 2 or 300 of his own men and was wounded They lifted him up and brought him before Imam Qulī, who immediately ordered him to be put to death 3 Thus the sovereignty of Türän became established in Imäm Qulī without a partner or rival, while the government of Balkh and where several chronograms are given

¹ Walī Muhammad left Tūrān in 1019, but met Shah Abbas in the beginning of 1020 'Ālam Arāī 592,

² 1d 593

³ Vambèry 321 Alam Arāi 599

Badaklıshan fell to Nazı M After thuty-five years of sovereignty he (Imām Qulī) in the year 1051, 1641, became blind and the affairs of the country fell into confusion Nazi M shut his eyes to his obligations towards his brother 1 and set before himself the seizure of Samaicand and Bokhaia Though the Uzbegs were so pleased with Imam Quli's excellent behaviour that they unam mously said that though eyesight (basārat) was gone, foresight (basīrat) was apparent, and that in spite of his blindness they were pleased with his rule, yet as Imām Qulī was from the bottom of his heart willing that Nazr M should take 2 his place, they were obliged to bring him to Samarcand and to recite the khutba Nazr M sent him off by the route of Peisia to the in his name holy place though he wished to travel by India and did not permit any of his ladies to accompany him, not even his beloved Ai He also laid hold of all his accumulated treasures Imām Qulī in great distress and in company with Khwāja Nasīb, Nazr Beg Taghai (uncle by mother's side), Rahīm Beg and Khwājah Mīrak Diwān—about 15 persons in all, Uzbegs and slaves—set out, and after interviewing Shah 'Abbās the 2nd and receiving his hospitality, went off to the Kaaba He then proceeded to Medīna, and there he died 3 and was buried in the Baqī' cemetery 4

As the establishment of Nazr M on the throne, the commotion of the Uzbegs and the coming of the armies of India to that country (Transoxiana), have been fully detailed in the accounts of Khusrau Sultan the 2nd, son of Nazr M, we now proceed with our nairative. When Prince Murād Bakhsh ailived at Balkh in the month of 1st Jumāda 1056, June 1646, Bahrām Sultan, Subhān Qulī Sultan and some great men and nobles of Balkh entered be the victorious camp. The prince sent Asālat K the Mīr Bakhshī to bring them in, and Amīru-l-umarā 'Alī Mardān K received them at the door of the diwānkhāna. The prince treated them with much respect and placed them on the right

l He was only his half-brother Vambèry 318 See account of Imām Qulī and Na∠r M in Pādshāhnāma II 252, etc

⁴ Lane's Dict 235b

^b Pādshahuāma II 536

hand of the masnad on the state carpet (sozanī) He showed them various kindnesses, and then dismissed them in order that they might go and exert themselves for the comforting of the Khān They were to tell him that every kind of aid and service in chastising the malcontents and factions would now be translated from intention into deeds, and that until the settlement of the Khan, the victorious army would not set then feet on the skut of repose. As the fortune of Nazi Muhammad had come to an end, a groundless suspicion took possession of him, and he announced that he was going to prepare a banquet for the prince, and went off to Bach Murad He took some jewels and ashrafis along with him and fled with his two sons Subhan Quli and Qutling Sultan. When this news reached the prince he directed Bahadur K. Rohilla and Asalat K to pursue him, and occupied himself in making arrangements for the country and for confiscating the Khan's property Twelve lacs of supees worth of jewelled vessels, etc., and nearly 2500 mares, were received into the royal establishments. Though the amount of his accumulations which he had himself placed in chests, and the details of which were written in his own hand and left by him there, and the keys of which were always kept by him were not found, yet from the verbal statements of the clerks it appeared that his treasures amounted to seventy lacs of tupees in money and goods. None of his ancestors had had as much In the disturbance of the Uzbegs and Alman, and the time of flight and confusion, a little was spent and much was plundered The revenue of Balkh and Badakhshān and the whole of Transoxiana and Turkistan-which were in the possession of the two brothers-according to a copy of the registers, including the regular land revenue and the miscellaneous receipts, the payments in money and in kind the mcreases² and the tithes amounted to about one kioi and twenty

¹ Horses and mares, Pādshāhnāma II 540

² Cf II 814 in the account of 'Inayat, and also Pādshāhnāma II 542 The expression in text is jamī' Lhirāj of II 814 The Pādshāhnāma le puts the total revenue of Nazr M's kingdom at about one kror of shāhrs, le khānis, which was equal to 25 lacs lacs of khānis—which is the currency of the country, and which came to 30 lacs of rupees. Of this, 16 lacs of rupees were received by Imām Qulī K and 11 by Nazi M

In the month of Jumāda-al-akhn, in the beginning of the 20th year of the reign of Shah Jahan the khutba was recited in his (Shah Jahan's) name in the city of Balkh Bahiam and Abdu-1-Rahman, the sons of Nazi M., together with Rustum the son of Khusiau Sultan-all three of whom on account of want of information had not accompanied Nazi M and had remained behind in the citadel of Balkh with his household-were, together with the wives and daughters of the Khan kept under surveillance and sent off to the Presence When they came to Kabul, Saivid Jalal Sadru-s-Sadūi received them at the avenue (khiyābān) and conducted them to the Presence Bahrām Sultan received the rank of 5000 with 1000 horse and Rs 25 000 m cash and other favours and was always treated with respect, and spent his time in tranquillity. When Nazi M was again established in his hereditary territories his connections in obedience to summons went off in the 23rd year to Balkh Bahrām Sultan could not withdraw his heart from the pleasures and delights of India and was unwilling to go to Tūrān, and spent the rest of his days in India in the enjoyment of a suitable pension, and lived on till the reign of Amangzeb

BAHRAMAND KHĀN

He was Mī Bakhshī and his name was 'Azīzu-d-dīn His father Mīrzā Bahrām was the 4th son of the well-known Sādiq K, who was the sister's husband (yazna) of Yeminu-d-daulah Asaf K When Sādiq K died M Bahrām, who was of tender age, received the rank of 500 with 100 horse. After that he had of rupees—I he ertetā' spoken of here and in the account of 'Innyat Ullah are the increases to the revenue of fected by Nazr Muhammad's careful management and greedy ways—See Pādshāhnāma II 542, where it is mentioned that Nazr Muhammad increased his revenues, whereas Imām Qulī allowed his to deteriorate

¹ Şādiq K Mīr Bakhshī, Maasır-ul Umara II 729-31

² Brother of N

ür Jah

än and father of Mumt

äz Mahal

not much promotion but was sometimes daroghah of the goldsmith's office and sometimes steward. He had the rank of 1500 with 300 horse When his elder brother Umdatu-l-mulk J'aafar K was made governoi of Bihar he also was appointed to that province When in the 3rd year it was arranged that Sularmān Shikoli, the eldest son of Dārā Shikoli, should be mairied to his daughter, he was summoned from Patna, and Shah Jahan gave jewels and ornaments to the value of one lac of supees as a marriagepresent After that he lost his eyesight and lived for a long time in retirement in the capital He had two sons, 'Azīzu-d-dīn and Sharafu-d-dīn The first obtained in the 10th year of Aurangzeb the title of Bahramand K As he possessed ability and rectitude he performed his duties well and there were few services in which he was not employed He was promoted from being daroghah of the elephant stables to be bakhshī of the Ahadīs, and then became Master of the horse (akhtabeqī) In the 231d year he was made $M\bar{\imath}\imath$ $\bar{A}t\underline{\imath}\underline{sh}$ (artillery-officer) in the room of Salabat K, and in the same year Almere became the abode of the king. While the Khān was on the other side of the Ānā Sāgor and had his lodging in the gaiden, he happened to be sitting in the shade of a tree when there was a stroke of lightning, and the Khān jumped and fell into the tank For some time he was insensible In the 24th year he became Master of the Ceremonies (Mīr Tūzuk), and after that he, in succession to Lutf Ullah became daroghah of the ghuslkhāna After that when the imperial retinue marched to the Deccan, and encamped at Ahmadnagar, the Khān, who besides being a good office-man, was a capable leader, was appointed to attack the banditti When in the 28th year his father died in the capital, Ashraf K the bakhshī-ul-mulk went by orders and brought him to the Piesence, where he was comforted by receiving an orphan's 10be of honour Asad K the Jamla-ul-mulk, as he was the sister's son of the deceased, received a nīma astīn (tunic) which the king was wearing the 30th year after the battle of Bijapur, Bahramand was 2nd bakhshī in succession to Rūh Ullah K, who was raised to the post of 1st bakhshī When the Jumla-ul-mulk Asad K was sent off to take the fort of Ginjī, Bahramand was made viziei

In the 36th year he was, on the death of Rūh Ullah, made 1 Mīr Bakhshī, and had the 1ank of 4000 with 2000 horse Afterwards he had the rank of 5000 with 3000 horse

During this time he went several times against the enemy and in the 45th year when Marwangarha,2 which is two kos from Khatānun, was taken by the excellent exertions of Fath. Ullah K Bahādui, and its neighbourhood became the imperial camp a large aimy was sent under the command of the Khān Bakhshī-ul-mulk (1 e Bahramand) to take the fort of Nandgarha, which is known as Nāmgarha, as also the foits of Candan⁸ and Mandan, which were known as Miftah (the key) and Maftuh (opened) He with the help of Fath Ullah K took all three forts in a few days and then returned In the 46th year, after the taking of the fort of Khelna, he died on the 5 Jumādá-al-akhir 1114, 16 October 1702 As the daughter of Jumla-ul-mulk Amīrul-umaiā Asad K was married to him, Prince Kām Bakhsh, in accordance with orders, removed her from her sorrow and sent 6 her to court, where she was comforted Bahramand had no son daughter was married to Muhammad Taqī K Banī Mukhtār, and her son is the present Bahramand K who has been described in the biography of $D\bar{a}r\bar{a}b^{7}K$ Another daughter was married to Mīr K , the eldest son of Amīr K deceased This marriage took place after Bahramand's death Mir K had in Aurangzeb's time the rank of 1000 with 600 horse In the beginning of Bahādur Shāh's reign he was for some time governor of Lahoie as deputy of Asafu-d-daula Afterwards he was the governor of the fort of Kālinjar, which is a celebrated fort in the province of Allahabad

To sum up Bahramand K was an officer possessed 9 of gravity and modesty, a master of dignity and firmness, of a pure

¹ Khāfī K II 407

² Qu Wardāngarha M 'Alamgīrī, 442

³ Do The Kahāwan of Kliāfī K II 490, and Elliot VII 370

⁴ Chandan and Wandan Elliot VII 370, note They are N Sattara of Maasır 'Alamgīrī 442

⁵ Khāfī Khān II 491 The three forts were Nandgir, afterwards called Namgir, Candan and Wandan Maasır A 444

⁶ M 'Alamgīrī 461, where the date given is 25 Jumād-al-akhir The death was from paralysis

⁷ M A 461

⁸ Maasir, II. 40

⁹ M A 161

disposition and good morals, and also pleasant and affable. In his latter days he had an impediment in his speech. They say that when in the Deccan campaign he had become Mīi Bakshī and a great officer, he often said that if the king would give him leave of absence for one year to Delhi he would give a lac of impees as Peshkash (present). His companions said to him, "Are not the society of the emperor and the respect of the public worth the pleasures of Delhi?" He replied, "True, these are great blessings, but the joy would be if I could go to my own city and be my own master (shahryār). Nothing can be pleasanter to the vain soul than that in the place where I was seen in my former condition, I might be beheld in my present circumstances."

BAIRĀM KHĀN KHAN-KHANĀN 1

He was separated by three intermediates from 'Alī Shukr Bahārlū who belonged to the great Turkman tribe of the Qarāquīnlū At the time when this tribe was in its glory and there were such chiefs as Qaiā Yūsuf and his sons Qarā Sikandai and Mīrzā Jahān Shāh who were rulers of Arabian Persia and Azarbaijān, 'Alī Shukr held the territories of Hamadān, Dīnawar' and Kurdistan, and up to this day those countries are known as the possessions of 'Alī Shukr His son Pīi 'Alī Beg came to Hisār Shādmān at the time of Hasan (Uzzun Hasan) the king of the White Sheep who contrived to extirpate the Black Sheep, and was for a while with Sultan Mahmūd Mīrzā, and then went off to He fought a battle with the ruler of Shiraz and was At the same period he fell into the hands of the officers of Sultan Husam Mīrzā and was put to death After that his son Yār Beg left Persia in the time of Shah Ism'aīl Safavī and came and settled in Badakhshān From there he went to Amīr Khusiau Shah in Qanduz, and on the termination of the latter's authority he with his son Saif 'Alī Beg, who was Bairām K's

¹ B 315 Darbār A 157 Elliot V 215, note 1 A N trans I 381 Bairām was the fourth descendant of 'Alī Shukr

² Described in Burhān Qātī, Appendix, as a large city of Persian Iraq It is in NW Persia and lies NW Hamadan See J III 82, note This part of the account seems taken from the Haft Iqlim

father, became the servant of Babur Bairām K was born in Badakhshān, and on his father's death went to Balkh and acquired learning In his sixteenth year he entered the service of Jinnat Ashiyani (Humayun) and grew daily in the shadow of his favour, till at length he became his companion and an Amīr hazarded his life in the disaster of Qanauj and went towards Sambhal There he was received with kindness by Raja Mitr Sen, who was one of the important landholders of that country, in the town of Lakhnur When Sher Khan heard of this news, he sent for him and had a meeting with him on the road to Mālwa K rose up and embraced him He sought to attract him by enticing words, and iemarked, "Whoever acts sincerely does not err" Bairām answered, "So it is, whoever acts sincerely shall not go astray" Near Burhanpur he after a thousand difficulties and with the help of Abū-l-qāsim governor of Gwaliyar made his escape and went off to Gujarat On the road Sher Khan's ambassador, who was coming from Gujaiat, heard of him and sent men and had him and Abu-l-qāsim—who was of distinguished personal appearance—arrested Bairam K out of high spirit and courage objected, saying, "I am Bairām K" Abu-l-qāsim out of gener-"This is my servant, and he wants to devote himself osity said for me" They withheld their hands from him and so Bairam K escaped and went to Sultan Mahmūd in Gujarat Not recognizing Abu-l-qāsım, they put him to death Sher K used often to say that "When Bairam K said, Whoever is sincere, shall not go astray,' I perceived that he would not arrange matters with us " Sultan Mahmūd Gujaratī also tried to win him, but Bairām would He took leave to go on pilgrimage and came to the blessed 1 port of Surat and from there he went to the country of Hardwar 2 With the idea of serving Jinnat Ashiyani he took the road to Scinde and on 7 Muharram 950, 13 April 1543, at the time when Humāyūn had returned from the country of Māldeo and was in the town of Jun-which was on the bank of the Indus

¹ So called as the pilgrims' port

² See Akbarnāma translation I 382, note 4 All this part of the account of Bairam is taken from Abul Fazl

and was remarkable for the number of its gardens and streams By chance on the day that he came to Jun he had to appear on the battle-field before he could pay his respects to Humāyūn, for the latter's forces had a fight with the Arghūnīans Bairām took part in the fight and fought bravely so that the soldiers thought he was a heaven-sent ally When it appeared that he was Bairām K there came a cry of joy In the expedition to Persia he was the best and most faithful of servants. The king of Persia also admired his abilities and loyalty. As that sovereign sometimes feasted with Humāyūn for the sake of enjoyment, and sometimes had a hunting party with him, he, one day, when there was a display of polo and of tilting (qabk andāzī), gave him (Bairām) the title of After the return from Persia he was sent with a letter of royal advice and a firman of favour to Mīrzā Kāmrān sidered within himself that it would not be right to present the two rescripts to Kāmrān who would doubtless be sitting, and whom it would be difficult to induce to pay the respect of rising up to receive them He therefore took a copy of the Koran in his hand and tendered it as a present. The Mīrzā stood night up out of respect to the volume, and just then Banam presented the two documents When Humāyūn after taking Qandahar made it over to the Persians according to the promise he had made to the Shah and decided upon conquering Cabul, it became necessary to have a place of safety for his family and domestics Accordingly he took Qandahar by force from the Persians, and made it over to Bairam K and wrote to the Shah a letter of apology saying, "Baırām K is the trusted servant of both of us We have made over the fort to him "

When in the year 961, 1554, some make-bates spoke to the king untrue things about Bairām K, he came to Qandahai and ascertained that the reports were false. He treated him graciously, and Bairām became in the expedition to India the best of all the leaders and was a forefighter in battle, and was victorious Especially, in the battle of Macīwāra, when with a few men he attacked a numerous army of Afghans and defeated it. He obtained the paiganas of Sirhind, etc. in fief, and received the lofty titles of Yār Wafādār (the faithful friend), Barādur Nekū-siyar

(well-conditioned brother) and Farzand S'aādatmand (auspicious son) In the year 963, 1556, he was made the guardian of Prince Muhammad Akbar, and was appointed to suppless Sikandar K Sūi, and to manage the affairs of the Panjab In the same year on 2 Rabīu'-l-akhu, Friday, 14 February 1556, when Akbar sate upon the thione in the town of Kalānūr, Baiiām was made Vakīlu-s-sultanat He had the control of affairs, and had the title of Khān-Khānān and was styled in correspondence Khān Bābā. In the year 965, December 1557, Selīma Sultan Begam, whom Humāyūn had promised to Bailām, was given to him in marriage She was the daughter of Mīrzā Nūiu-d-dīn Muhammad, and the niece (half-sister's daughter) of Humāyūn M Nūru-d-dīn was the son of Alāū-d-dīn Muhammad who was the son of Khwāja Husain known as the Khwājazāda of Caghānīān, and who was greatgrandson of Khwāja Hasan Attāi, who was the immediate son of Khwāja Alāū-d-dīn who was the successor (khalīfa) of Khwāja Nagshband The daughter of Shāh Begam, the daughter of 'Alī Shukr, the great-great-grandfather (text, third grandfather) of Bairām, who was in the household of (i.e. was married to) Sultan Mahmūd the son of Sultan Abū S'aīd, had been married to the Khwājazāda It was on account of this connection that Bābur gave his daughter Gulbarg 1 to M Nūru-d-dīn, and for the same reason was this marriage made. The Begam (Selīma) had a poetical vein and wrote under the name of Makhfi (concealed) This verse of hers is famous

Verse

In my passion I called thy lock the "thread of life", I was wild and so uttered such an expression

tory, and which is one of Col Hamilton's MSS in the B Museum, that Selīma was really 76 when she died, she having been born in Shawwāl 945, so that she was some three years older than Akbar The chronogram of her birth is khūshhāl, which yields 945, 1538-9 See ASBJ for 1905 and TūzukJ tians, p 232, and note 6, p 509

I Jahangir, Tüzuk 113, calls her Gulrukh See Akbarnāma translation II 97, 98, and note Selīma is şaid by Jahangir to have been sixty years of age when she died in 1021, or 1611 If so, she must have been a child of six when she was married to Bairam in 1557 It appears, however, from a note by Mīrzā Muhammad in a MS of Kāmgar Husain Ghairat K's his-

After Bairām's death Akbar himself mariied her She died in the seventh year of Jahangii

Good God! In spite of this proximity, solidarity, influence, and all that wisdom, experience, abundant loyalty, and devotion, some marks of the caprice of fate appeared upon the tablet of manifestation, so that the disposition of Akbar became alienated from that great man In fact strifemongers who were full of envy, out of spite and self-interest, exaggerated matters (lit made one a hundred) and perverted the feelings of the young monarch Also flatterers and overturners of houses altered the nature of the aged Amīr, so that he did not pay Akbar the deference that was due to him For instance, one day Bairām was taking an airing on the river Jumna, and one of the royal elephants rushed into the water and made for Bairam's boat Though the driver by great efforts got him under control, the Khān Khānān suspected something, and was much disturbed The king, out of consideration for him, sent the driver to him, and Bairam without paying regard to court-rules, put the driver to death The king was much displeased, and determined to free himself from his minister Accordingly, he in 967, 1560, left Agra on pretence of hunting and went off to Delhi When he arrived there he summoned the officers, and, on the recommendation of Māham Anaga, Shihābud-dīn Ahmad K was appointed to the charge of affais Khān Khānān wished to present himself, but Akbar sent him a message that he could not see him at this time, and that it would be better for him not to come Some are of opinion that the king did go off in order to hunt, and that when he came to Sikandaiābād ın the Delhı dıstrıct, Māham Anaga ınstıgated hım to gallop off to Delhi to wait upon his mother Miriam-Makānī no cloud then on his heart with regard to Bairam K though sinful and envious people were trying to produce such a feeling, and said things to him with this object, and Adham K and his mother were especially active in this respect. But as the idea of Bairam K's unsulled loyalty was firmly rooted in the royal mind such representations had no effect But as has been said-

Verse 1

Whenever rivals are regarded with favour I assure them that words have their effect

The strifemongers, who had their opportunity, at this time implanted ideas of alienation. In short Bailam himself from a right conception of the situation sent the insignia of office along with the principal officers to court and asked permission to go on pilgrimage Afterwards at the whisperings of some evil-disposed persons he proceeded to Mewāt When it was reported that the royal army had gone in pursuit of him, all the king's servants left Bairām, and he sent the tumān-togh, the standard, the drum and other insignia of office to court by his sister's son Husain Qulī He wrote to the officers who had been told to pursue him that he had withdrawn his hands from everything, and asked why they tormented him He had for a long time desired to visit the holy shrines, now the thread of the accomplishment of his desire had fallen into his hands The officers were obliged to return As Rai Māldeo the Rajah of Jodhpūr was on the road to Gujarat (1 e his lands lay on the way) and was on bad terms with Bairam, the latter went from Nagor to Bikanir Rai Kalyān Mal landholder of that place came before him with loyalty and gave him hospitality. At this time a report alose that Mulla Pir Muhammad had come from Gujarat and had been ordered to follow Stufemongers stirred up Bairam, and by exciting him to resistance made him turn back to the Panjab Owing to the deceitfulness of foolish talkers he removed the veil from his actions, and set his face towards the Panjab He busied himself in collecting men, and wrote to the various officers, "I intended to go to the Hijāz, but when it became known that Māham Anaga

Ine is perhaps honorific for the king or minister concerned. The verse is also quoted again in II 568, where $\bar{\imath}ns\bar{a}n$ is incorrectly substituted for $\bar{\imath}sh\bar{a}n$ See note to translation of life of Shihābu-d dīn.

I These lines are quoted by Ferishta but in the first line he has nihayat instead of 'inayat See Newal Kishore's lith, p 248 It is, however, 'inayat in a MS of Ferishta and it seems to have the negative nist in the first line. The "them" in second and others had perverted the royal mind and were plotting my ruin, it occurred to me that I should first punish those evil-doers and then proceed on the blessed pilgrimage, and also that I should lay hold of Mulla Pīr Muhammad Shirwānī, who has now obtained a flag and has been appointed to expel me "

In short all these things having irritated him he became overpowered by wrath, and could not restrain himself. Strifemongers too got their opportunity and aggravated his disposition still more. When the rebelliousness of the Khān-Khānān became manifest, Akbai sent on the Atga Khān in advance and also set out himself from Delhi At that time the Khān-Khānān was scheming to take Jälandhar When he heard that the Atga Khān was coming, he advanced to meet him. After a severe engagement he was defeated and took refuge in Talwara-a strong place in the Sivalik hills-with Ganesh the Rajah thereof the report of the arrival of Akbar's army reached the hill-country, his men came out of the fort and fought. They say that in that encounter Sultan Husain Jalair of the king's army was killed, and that his head was cut off and brought to the Khān-Khānān burst into tears and said, "My life is not worth my being the cause of the killing of such men" In great grief he sent his slave Jamāl Khān to HM and begged forgiveness of his offences Akbar sent Mun'ım K with other officers into the hills in order that they might assure him of safety and bring him into the In Muharram of 968, October 1560, the 5th year of the reign, Bairam came into the camp, and all the officers received him with honour When he came before Akbai he had a handkerchief (rūpāk) round his neck and he flung himself at the king's feet, and wept greatly Akbar with consummate graciousness embraced him and removed the handkerchief from his neck quired after his health and bade him be seated according to the established custom (i e on his right hand) He also presented him with a glorious robe which he himself was wearing and gave him leave to visit the holy shrines

When he came to the city of Pattan in Gujarat, which was formerly known as Nahrwā'a, he remained there for some days in order to rest his cortège. At that time Musā Khān Fūlādī was governor of that city, and a number of Afghans had collected Among them, one Mubārak K Lohānī, whose father about him had been killed in the battle of Macīwāra, cherished the idea of re-Also the Kashmītī wife of Selīm Shāh was in the caravan with her daughter by him She intended to go to the Hijāz, and it was arranged that the daughter should be married to Bairam's The Afghans were also displeased at this On Fuday 14 Jamāda-l-awwal, 31 January 1561, Banām went boating on the lake which is the recreation-ground of the city, and is known as the Sahas Lang, because there are a thousand idol-temples on its When he was disembarking from the boat that savage represented that he had come to pay his respects, and during the interview he struck him with his dagger and killed him Khān-Khānān uttered the kalma Allah Akbar and departed from this world and obtained the martyrdom which he had long prayed for, and had begged from the men of God They say that for years he had never omitted to shave and bathe on Wednesda 's in accordance with the intention of martyrdom, and that on care such occasion a simple-minded Saiyid, who had heard of this, said'uhim as he left the assembly, "We shall repeat the fatiha with th, intent that the Nawāb obtain martyrdom 'Bairām smiled ar't said, "Mīr, what kind of sympathy is this? I desire martyrdon^o but not so soon as this "

Upon the occurrence of this catastrophe every one of his se^S vants ran off, and Bairām lay there in blood and dust. A numbe' of Faqīrs took up his bleeding body and committed it to the earth in the tomb of Shaikh Hisām—who was one of the great Shaikhs there. Afterwards the body was, by the care of Husain Qulī K, buried in holy Mashhad. Qāsim Aislān of Mashhad made the chronogram of the event. They say that he, a long time before the occurrence, had been warned of it in a dream and had made the verses.

¹ This is stated by Abul Fazl but seems unlikely The girl must have been several years older than Bairām's son, for her father died in 1554.

whereas 'Abdu-r-Rahīm was not born till the end of 1556

² It was on a Wednesday that Muhammad bathed for the last time

Verse

When Banām donned the ihiām to visit the K'aaba His purpose was effected by his martyrdom on the way In truth a spirit uttered the chronogram "Muhammad Bairām was made martyr" (968) (Shāhīd shud Muhammad Bairām)

His body was removed to Delhi, and in accordance with his will it was taken to Mashhad in 985, 1577. Bairām was greatly skilled in poetry. He composed brilliant odes and made fitting insertions in the poems of the masters. He collected these and gave them the name of dakhliya. They say that when Bairām was in Qandahai Humāyūn wrote this quatrain.

Verse 2

O thou friend of my saddened heart, How thy sweet nature is well-balanced! I'm never at any time without thought of thee, But what sadness hast thou in thought of me?

bururām replied —

of his i enco

that

Ja Ak the

Pr

Verse

O thou who art incomparable shade (protector), Greater than any praise I can offer thee, When thou knowest how it passes without thee Why ask, "How feelest thou, when parted from me?"

They say that one night Humāyūn was conversing with the Khān, and that the latter became mattentive. The king said, "We are addressing you" The Khān woke up and said, "My king, I was attending, but I have heard that in waiting upon

I I am not sure of the meaning The verb dārad is wanting in the text after ghara, but occurs in a variant and seems required. Also it is found in Ferishta from whom the passage is borrowed. Bairām's odes were composed in honour of 'Alī

² Humāyūn is said by Ferishta to have sent this quatrain to Bairām at Qandahar after the taking of Kābul, and Bairām is said to have written the quatrain which follows in reply See Darbār A 163-64 As the first word of the fourth line of Humāyūn's quatrain Ferishta has aya "come" instead of ama" but"

³ Badayūnī III 192

princes one should have heed to his eyes, and when serving dervishes should have heed to his heart, and in presence of the erudite should guard his tongue, and so I was thinking that as all three personalities were collected in your Majesty, which of them I should observe" The king was pleased with this extempore pleasantry and praised him

The author of the Tabaqat Akbari writes that twenty-five of Bairām's servants attained the rank of 5000 and received flags The truth is that Bairam was adorned with ability, and drums excellence, probity, vigour, genius, and generosity, and was strong of heart and profound He was devoted to the house of At such a crisis when Humāyūn was removed before his empile was stablished and the prince was young and inexperienced, and all the territory except the Panjab had been lost, and when the Afghans were numerous and were raising the standard of empire, and in every hole and corner, waiters upon events were beating the drum of opposition, and the Chaghatai officers who were not well affected towards staying in India were advising a departure to Kabul, and Mīrzā Sulaimān had seized his opportunity and recited the Khutba in his own name in Kabul, Bairām, by the sole influence of his courage, firmness, and excellent arrangements, made the stream which had left its course return to its channel, and re-established the sovereignty Akbar also by many favours and attentions entrusted the management of affairs to him in order that he should carry out what he thought proper, and should not pay heed to any one else, and be without fear of He also quoted this verse. censure

Verse

Grant a loving friend, and let both worlds be foes

When the power of the Khān Khānān became greater day by day, the thorn of envy broke off in the hearts of others. Envious persons mixed up calumnies with truth, made one into a hundred, and so alienated the king's disposition. The Khān-Khānān also, in his might and grandeur, gave no consideration to others and did not take them into account. He was suspicious of them and thought that they would soon take up a new position towards him (?) Even after his downfall he had no real intention of rebelling As soon as he received the king's message, which was conveyed by Mīi 'Abdu-l-Lātīf Qazvīnī, he sent the insignia of office to H M and showed a desire to go to the Hijāz mongers on both sides did not allow him to do this ponents wrote to the landholders on the route that they should not allow him to pass through in safety, and his associates urged him and said, "Men who are of no rank have leagued together to overthrow you and so are having recourse to intrigues, and are seeking to cast you, in spite of all your lights, into contempt and misery 'Tis better to die with honour than to live with disgrace" In this way they succeeded in luining him, according to the saying (nulta) "Presumption and the love of glory bring a man to evil days and cast him into dangers and sorrows" Hence it is that the love of the world is the head of errois

Verse. 1

Ambition is the ruin of the brain 'Tis the property of a hood to extinguish a candle

BAIRĀM BEG TURKAMĀN

He was Mīr Bakhshī in the time when Shah Jahan was a prince, and was then one of his principal officers. He held high office and had the title of Khān Daurān. When the prince on account of the treachery of Rustam K. Shighālī turned back before Sultan Parvīz and crossed the Narbada, he took the boats to his own side and made the ferries strong with cannon and muskets, and left Bairām Beg in charge on the bank of the river, and hastened off to Burhanpur. When Mahābat K. arrived with Sultan Parvīz at the river-bank he proceeded to engage Bairām Beg. There was a battle of guns and muskets on both sides, and when Mahābat K. saw that crossing was difficult, he had recourse to craft. He wrote to the Khān-Khanān M 'Abdu-r-Rahīm

AND THE RESIDENCE OF THE PARTY
¹ Sir u barg is a phrase meaning the brain, and also pride Exaltation is like putting a hood (kulah), i.e. an extinguisher, on a candle through Rão Ratan, and set in motion the chain of peace Khān-Khānān too expostulated with Shah Jahan, and requested (of Jahangir) were not conciliated by him, his ('Abdu-r-Rahīm) sons might be put to death (by Shah Jahan) He added strong oaths to these representations When the sound of peace was spread abroad, the guarding of the ferries was neglected and Mahābat K clossed the liver at night before the alrival of the Khan-The Khān-Khānān too forgot all his promises and joined the imperial army Banam Beg was obliged to go to Burhan-After that in the expedition to Bengal when Shah Jahan was at Baidwan, Sālih Beg, the biother's son of Āsaf K Ja'afar who was fauldar there, in spite of the weakness of the fort, shut himself up in it 'Abdullah K proceeded to besiege him and reduced him to extremities so that he came out and was imprisoned by Shah Jahan's orders The Sarkar of Bardwan was given in fief to Baıram Beg and he was sent off to administer it the prince, after subduing Bengal, went to Behar and took possession thereof, Bairām Beg came from Bardwan and took charge of Behar After that, the prince encountered the imperial army at Benaies, and Wazīr K was appointed to the charge of Behar, and Bairām Beg was summoned to the Piesence One day when Sultan Parvīz had sent his bakshī Muhammad Zamān across the rivei, Bairām Beg Khān Daurān was ordered to seize an opportunity for attacking him He from pride and arrogance did not regard Muhammad Zamān sufficiently and attacked him with a few men at the confluence of the Jumna and Ganges and was He sacrificed his life His son Hasan Beg escaped wounded from the field of battle wounded and also died after a few days

BĀLJŪ QULĪJ SHAMSHER KHĀN

Brother's son and son-in-law of Qulīj K Jānī² Quibānī In the 8th year of Jahangir's reign he obtained the rank of 1000 with 700 horse. In the 9th year he attained the rank of 2000

l Pādshāhnāma I 124

² Said to be the name of a tribe See B 35 and Badayūnī III 188 with 200 horse, and was appointed to Bengal Afterwards he was for a long time stationed at Kābul, and in the first year of Shah Jahan's reign had the rank of 2000 with 1500 horse When after the death of Jahangir, Nazr Muhammad K the ruler of Balkh came with an army to Kābul, and the dust of commotion rose high, he (Nazr) sent a threatening message to the king's men who were in the city, but they out of loyalty refused to listen, and Bāljū Qulīj who was among them, impressed his fidelity more than ever on the mind of the king In the 2nd year he at the instance of the governor Lashkar K marched with a force against The Uzbegs out of tenor abandoned the Zohāk and Bāmīān forts and fled In the 31d year he in company with S'aīd K distinguished himself in chastising Kamālu-d-dīn Rohilla, the son of Raknu-d-dīn, who in the time of Jahangir had been laised to a mansab of 4000 and afterwards had out of a seditious mind been lifting the head of presumption in that country 2 He received a mansab of 2500 with 1800 horse and the title of Shamsher K the 4th year the thānas of both parts of Bangāsh were entrusted to him, and he had a mansab of 3000 with 2500 horse His son Hasan 5th year corresponding to 1041, 1631-32, he died K received a mansab of 800 with 300 horse and 'Alī Qulī his brother had a mansab of 900 with 450 horse and died in the 17th year of the reign of Shah Jahan

BĀQI K CELAH QALMĀQ

One of the trusted slaves of the king By a happy horoscope and good service he had a place in the heart of Shah Jahan In the 6th year he obtained the rank of 700 with 500 horse, and in the 9th year he had the rank of 1000 with 1000 horse. In the 10th year he got an increase of 1000 zāt and 1000 horse and his rank became 2000 with 2000 horse, and he was given a flag, a horse, l Pādshāhnāma I 20 It is Bālcū there Bāljū does not seem to be mentioned in the Tūzuk I He is called Bālkhū in Pādshāhnāma I 183

² id 311 The country was Pesha-

That is Upper and Lower Bangash The term Upper and Lower Bangash occurs several times in the Maasir, e.g. II 239.

and an elephant and made faujdār of Catia which is a pargana belonging to Orcha in Bandelkand When this territory was taken from Jujhar Singh and became imperial property, that pargana which contained 900 villages and yielded eight lacs of revenue, and was adorned by ample territory and abundant rivers, was made Khālsa and received the name of Islāmābād² At this time Bāqī K was made the faujdār thereof, and distinguished 3 himself by putting down the malcontents of the country When Campat Bandīla the servant of Rajah Jujhār Singh made, after the death of the latter, his son Prithiral the instrument of sedition, and plundered the villages of Orcha and Jhansi, 'Abdullah K. Fīrūz Jang was made the jagirdai of Islāmābād, and appointed to extupate Campat When he came there he wished that Bāqī K, who had already exerted himself in chastising the wretch, should personally march against the recalcitrants The Khān from love of work promised that if 'Abdullah lent him his troops he would finish the affair Firūz Jang out of indolence did not go himself but turned back, and Bāqī K in the 13th year made a rapid march and took the rebels unawares Campat with great difficulty saved himself, and Prithīrāj was captured In the 17th year Bāqī K was made darogha of the ghuslkhāna and afterwards he was made governor of the fort of Agra In the end of the 27th year he died on his fief of Bārī 4 which belongs to the province of Agia, and his jagir became crown-land His sons Sirdar K and Bāqī K were distinguished in the reign of Aurangzeb, and have been separately noticed They say that Bāqī Beg in the beginning of his career was kotwāl of Lahore which was then in the fief of Yemenu-d-daula Āsaf K On behalf of the latter, Bābā 'Inayat Ullah Yezdī, who was a trusted servant of Āsaf K, was the governor, and as he did not esteem Bāqī K he engraved on his ring the words "The work is 'Inayat's and Bāqī is a pretence"

¹ Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, p 277 Catra or Jhatra was formerly in Sar kār Irij Jarrett II 188 Orcha is written in text as Andcha

² Khāfī K. I 454.

⁸ Pādshāhnāma II, 136, and 193

⁴ Jarrett II. 182

⁵ Kār b'ınayat ast u bāqı bahāna

The words pun upon the meanings of 'inayat and $b\bar{a}q\bar{\imath}$, the first meaning favour, and the second, remainder

BĀQĪ KHĀN HAYĀT BEG

Younger brother of Sudar K Kotwal In the 23rd year of Aurangzeb he received the title of Hayat K In the 28th year he received the charge of the palace-guards (amānat-r-haft caukī)1 in succession to Mīr 'Abdu-l-Kaiīm Afterwards he was made darogha of the ghuslkhāna of Muhammad M'uazzam commonly known as Shah 'Alam When during the siege of Bijapur the disposition of the king suspected the prince of disloyalty and was unkind to him, and ordered his advisers such as Mümin K Naım Sānī, the darogha of the artillery, Multafat K, the 2nd bakhshī, and Bındrāban Dıwan, to be expelled, the prince did not take waining but during the siege of Haidaiabad carried on a correspondence with Abū-l-hasan, with whom he had previously All his endeavours in this respect were that the had relations knot (of the siege) might be untied by his hand, and that his father might connect the taking of the fort with his name wishers and envious persons represented these excellent endeavours in a bad light and alienated the king's affections from One day the king in his private chamber examined 1 Hayāt K 2 about this affair, and though he strongly asserted the prince's innocence, he did not produce any effect. The king ordered that an intimation should be conveyed to the prince to the effect that Shaikh Nizām Haidarabadī would on this night make an attack on the camp, and that the prince should put his servants in the front parts of the camp, in order that they might resist the attack, and that when his men had gone off in that direction, Ihtimām K Kotwal would guard his tents Next day, which was the 18th Jumāda-al-akhir of the 29th year of the leign, the prince came to the Darbai in accordance with orders, accompanied by Muhammad M'uızzu-d-dīn and Muhammad 'Azīm (his sons) At this time the king was seated in the hall of state After he (the prince) had sat for some time the king said, "Certain matters have been mentioned to Asad K and Bahiamand K -go into the Oiatory and have a conference with them " The prince was helpless and had to go Asad K asked for his arms and said, "You must spend some days in quietness" He was then conducted to a tent which had been set up close by They say that at the time of takıng hıs arms M'urzzu-d-din meditated doing something else (i e he thought of resisting) but that his father looked sternly at him, and that thereupon he subsided The imperial clerks took possession in the twinkling of an eye of the insignia of office The king left the hall of audience and came to the female apartments cried "Alas!" and laying his hands on his knees said, "I've reduced to dust the labour of forty years" After this catastrophe as Sırdaı K, the elder brother of Hayat K, was a favourite, the Khān also was not censured, and became a zealous servant Afterwards he received his father's hereditary title of Bāqī K and in the 48th year obtained the rank of 2000 and in succession to Kāmgār K was made governor of the fort of Agra, which is for strength distinguished from all other forts. On this account it is reckoned above all the other forts in India, and the royal jewels and treasures are preserved in it. After the death of Aurangzeb, Bāqī K determined with himself that he would give the keys of the fort, and the treasures, to whomsoever among the heirs of the kingdom should arrive first These treasures consisted of ashrafis and rupees and surplus 1 presentation-pieces, besides uncoined gold and silver in the shape of vessels, and amounted, according to a statement (qaul), to nine krors of rupees, and according to rumour (revayīt) to thirteen kiors Though the idea was that Muhammad A'zam Shah would be the first to arrive, yet as the writers of the book of destiny had inscribed it with the name of Bahādui Shah, it came about that the latter came first, and the former last Muhammad 'Azīm (Bahādur Shah's son) who had been dismissed from the Government of Bengal was travelling with the intention of coming to the Presence (of Aurangzeb), on hearing the news (of his death) he came to Agra by relays of horses Bāqī

¹ Blochmann 257

Professor Dowson renders the words rupnya gharībnewāz as presentationmoney, Elliot VII 389, and this seems to be right Khāfī K goes on to say that the gharībnewāz ashrafīs and

l u 'urfī u gharībnewāz The passage seems to be copied from Khāfī K II 568, four lines from foot, but the word urfī which I have conjecturally rendered as "surplus," does not occur

K refused to give up the fort and alleged the compact he had made with himself The prince erected batteries, and some cannon-balls reached the Begam's mosque (Jahānāra's) At last the prince saw that the attempt was vain and withdrew his hand from battle, and entering the gate of conciliation sent Bāqī K's petition and compact to his father Meanwhile Bahādui Shah's standards had traversed a great distance and reached the capital (Delhi) On hearing the news he increased his speed and reached Agra, and Bāqī K delivered up the keys of the fort and the treasure, and congratulated Bahādur Shah on his accession was rewarded by princely favours Bahādur Shah rapidly took four krors of rupees from the treasury and made presents to the princes and nobles according to their rank. He also paid the old servants their wages and gave two months' pay to the new seivants, and gave something to the female department, and something to the poor and needy, and spent two krois He left Bāqī K as before in charge of the foit He died in the beginning of Bahādur Shah's reign He had many sons and and sons-in-law

BĀQĪ MUHAMMAD KHĀN

Foster-brother of Akbar and elder brother of Adham K. His mother was Māham Anaga, who was closely connected with the king (Akbar) At the time when the reins of power were in her hands she celebrated Bāqī Khān's marriage, and the king rupees, for he mentions both, weighed up to five hundred tolas So I suppose that the pieces meant are those which were struck at coronations, etc, and distributed The word 'urfi, which the Massir has added, means, I suppose, accumulations of these coins, or surplus remaining over after distribution An enormous gold piece. above 70 ounces in weight, of Shah Jahan's time is described in Richardson's Dict, ed 1806, under the word Sikka, by Sir Chailes Wilkins same or a similar coin is figured in the JASB for January 1883, p 2 was a 200 mohur piece In the Maasir text there is a conjunction between urfi and gharībnewāz, but the Blochmann MS has not this and it seems better away A variant to the text omits it Gharībnewāz is perhaps used as a synonym for the Arabic word nisār Mr Gibbs points out that Tavernier mentions the distribution of large gold coins

The word lhazāin in text means both treasures and treasuries. According to Abul Fazl, Blochmann, p. 14, Akbar had twelve separate treasuries.

1 The prince was not the heir, as his father was alive out of his affection for her, came to the entertainment Bāqī K obtained the rank of 3000, and from Badayūnī's history it appears that he died in the 30th year of the reign in Gaiha Katanga, which was his fief

BĀQIR K NAJM SĀNĪ

This family goes back to Yār Ahmad of Ispahan He (Yār Ahmad) first gained a name for rectitude and ability when he was in companionship with Mīr Najm Gīlānī, the Vakīlu-s-sultanat of Shah Ism'aīl Safavī When Amīr Najm died, the Shah made over the bridle of affairs to Yār Ahmad and gave him the title of Najm Sānī (second star), and raised his rank above that of all the other officers

Verse

Najm Sānī who had no second in the two worlds

They say that his magnificence and grandeur were such that nearly two hundred sheep were daily used for his table $(sh\bar{\imath}l\bar{a}n)$ and that a thousand dishes of excellent food were his daily por-On marches forty strings of camels cairied his kitchen. the Transoxiana campaign, though he was marching rapidly, thirteen silver caldrons (deg) were used in cooking. When his magnificence and greatness had got to such a pitch, and he had become arrogant and proud, he was appointed to conquer Tūiān. The Shah sent him to assist Bābur who had left that country on account of the predominance of the Uzbegs, and had applied for aid to the Shah Najm Sānī crossed the Oxus and set himself to commit massacre and lapine The Uzbeg princes barricaded themselves in Ghajdawan and prepared for battle Qızılbāsh officers, who were insincere and treacherous, prosecuted the siege negligently Consequently Amīr Najm planted his foot firmly, and made great efforts and was made prisoner In the year 918 (1512), Ubaidullah K Uzbeg put him to death

They say that the father of Baqir K was for a time diwan of l Badayūnī, Lowe 351 It really was the 29th year see AN 436 The date of his death was early in September, 1584 See also Blochmann 381

By heaven's decree he underwent deprivation and Baqir K came to India in great distress. As he was a youth of merit he became enrolled among Akbai's servants and obtained the rank of 300. Some say that in the time of Jahangu he came from Persia and that he was made a day-servant 1 and received the rank of 200 with 5 horse. By chance Khan Jahan Lodi came to court, and asked the king who the young man was told the whole story of Najm Sānī Khān Jahān represented that it was a pity that with such a record his rank should be so small, and accordingly he was promoted to 900 with 30 horse As his horoscope was fortunate they mairied him to the daughter of Khadīja² Begam the sister of Nūr Jahān Immediately the gates of power were thrown open for him He obtained a mansab of 2000 and the government of Multan with the fauidari of the 'Alam Khan' river By his ability' and industry he produced great tranquillity and took presents (peshkashhā) from the Bilūcīs, the Dudayān, and the Nāhai who form another world between Multan and Qandahar, and became possessed of much money and goods Bāquābād-Multan was named after him Jahangn out of great affection called him farzand 'child' In the time when Shah Jahan was a prince, he became governor of Oudh He came with a well-equipped army to the Presence, and received praise and compliments. In the end of Jahangu's reign he was made governor of Oussa, and there too he distinguished himself In the 4th 7 year of Shah Jahan he led an army to l vūz malūzamat The Rouzmpar (rūzēnadār) of Bermer

² She was wife of Hākim Beg, Maasir I 574

³ Text الم علم علم الله أن علم الله أن ab 1-'Alam Khān Apparently this is the Shah Alam river mentioned in I. G XIV, 247 It is the southern branch of the Kabul river the IO MS No 628 and also Blochmann's MS have awāz-i-kardānī, "The report of his skill," and this seems more probable the Dadi tribe is meant IO MS 628 has apparently Daud Khan Daudzai is named as a tribe in J II 402

⁶ Variant Tähar and so in IO MS Perhaps it should be Näghar, J II 402 More probably it is the Nazhari or Tazhari tribe of Baluchistan mentioned in J II 337, and note

⁷ It was the third year Padshahna ma I 332, etc See also id 373, Elliot VII 17

Khairapāra, two kos from Chhatardawār, which is a defile between Orissa and Telang and is so nairow that if a small body of musketeers or archeis took possession of the pass it would be impossible to get through On the other side of Khairapāra at the distance of four kos is the foit of Mansurgarha which Mansur, a slave of Qutbu-l-mulk, had built and called by his own name Bagir neglected nothing in the way of lavaging the country When he came to the fort he fought bravely and defeated and drove off the enemy When the garrison beheld his courage and vigoui they got flightened and begged for quarter and delivered up the fort He remained for a time in the province of Orissa His father whose condition had been changed by his great age and who lived with his son died there In the 5th year on account of his behaving badly and unjustly to the inhabitants of Orissa, he was 1emoved2, and when he came to court in the 6th year he was made governor³ of Gujarat After that he was made governor of Allahabad, and there he died in the 10th year and beginning of 1047 (1637)

He was unequalled for courage and he was the first of his age for military skill. He was deeply skilled in archery. Jahangir has written in his diary that "One night Bāqir K in my presence placed a slender white glass in the light of a torch and made something of wax of the size (qadr) of a fly's wing and stuck it on the (top of the?) glass. Above it he put a grain of rice and above that a pepper-corn (fulful). With the first arrow he shot away the pepper, with the second the rice, and with the third the wax, without ever brushing the glass".

They say that Bāqır K delighted much in hearing the sound of a trumpet, because Rustum used to listen to it, and he had a well-equipped orchestra (naubatkhāna) One day Hakīm Ruknāi 6

I Apparently it is the defile men tioned in the Tūzuk I, p 302, by which Shah Jahan entered Orissa

² ibid , 430

^{8 1}bid , 451

⁴ ibid, Part II, pp 274 and 295

⁵ This apocryphal story is told in Price's version of the Memoirs, p 93

Apparently the author of the Maasir, or his son, considered the work authentic Cf Elliot VI 279 The pepper corn was probably "long pepper," ie a chillī The fly's wing might be a butterfly's wing The story is not in the authentic Memoirs

⁶ Pādshāhnāma I, Part II. 349

Kāshī came to see him The trumpet was sounded in his presence and the Hakīm said, "Nawab Salāmat, Hail to the Nawab Rustum sometimes listened to the trumpet" Bāqir K was much skilled in prose and poetry and in calligraphy He composed a diwān The following is an extract (Seven lines follow)

M Sābai, his eldest son, died in the beginning of his youth The account of his second son Fākhir K 1 has been separately given

BASĀLAT K M SULTAN NAZR

He belonged to the Caghatai tribe of Arlat His father Muhammad Yāi was a native of Balkh and came to India in the time of Shah Jahan, and was emolled among the mansabdāns M Sultan Nazı was boın in India and after coming to years of discretion obtained an office and attached himself to Muhammad A'zım Shāh At last he was the prince's agent and remained After the death of Aurangzeb, Muhammad A'zım-Shah gave him the rank of 3000 and the title of Salabat K and made him darogha of the diwān-i-khās He was wounded in the battle with Bahādur Shah and fell upon the field Afterwards he joined Bahädur Shah and received the title of Basālat K and was made Bakhshī of the Rısāla (troop of cavalry) which was known by the name of Surtan 'Alī Tabār 2 At the time of returning from the Deccan he was retired on its being found that the pay (of the soldiers) was left in arrear and that the men of the risāla were in evil case. In the time of Jahāndār Shah he was, by the exertions of $Z\bar{\mathbf{u}}$ -l-Fiqāi K, confirmed in his mansaband former jagir In the time of Farrukh Siyar, Husain 'Alī K remembered old associations and made him bakhshī of the force which had been appointed to chastise the Rajputs, and took him Afterwards, in the march to the Deccan, accompanied Husain 'Alī K In the year 1167, 1754, he was killed ın the battle with Dāūd Panī near Burhanpur, and was buried in

Ethe, I G Cat 858 Rieu II 603a and 688a His poetical name was Masih I do not see the point of his remark

Maasır III 26

² Household troops Cf Irvine, 40 and 44

his estate in the Sanwāia quarter of that city—He was famed for his friendliness, and he was also very well spoken—His eldest son had the name of M. Haidar—By the help of Husain 'Alī he got his father's office of bakhshī—After the deaths of the Saiyids he went into retirement—His second son, who was called by his father's title was a companion of Āsaf Jāh—The writer has seen him He had two sons who are still living and who hold small offices and Jagirs—(Q)

BARKHŪRDĀR 1 (M Khān 'Ālam)

Son of M 'Abdu-1-Rahmān Duldai whose ancestois long served the Timuride family His forefathers had from the time of Timur been Amirs, generation after generation 1-Rahmān's) great grandfather Mīr Shāh Malık was one of the great officers of Timur, and was always renowned for his rightmindedness and loyalty M Barkhūrdār held up to the 40th year of Akbar's reign a mansab of 250 In the 44th year when Dalpat Ujjaini 2—who was one of the contumacious in the province of Bihar—was released from prison and obtained leave to return to his home, the Mīrzā, out of revenge for his father's having been killed in battle with that landowner, fell upon Dalpat in the fields with some followers, but Dalpat escaped ordered that the Mīrzā should be bound and sent to Dalpat, but this was remitted at the intercession of some courtiers, and he It chanced that he was much engaged in the was imprisoned service of Sultan Selīm, and after the accession as he was much skilled in the duties of chief huntsman he was made Chief Falconer (qūshbegī) In the 4th year he became known as Khān 'Ālam, and when in the 6th year 1020, 1611, Shah 'Abbās Safavī, the king of Peisia, sent Yādgāi 'Alī Sultan Tālish to offer condolences for the death of Akbar, and to congratulate Jahangir on his accession, Khān 'Ālam was in the 8th year sent back with Yād gār 'Alī as envoy As the Shah had gone to Azarbaijan to attack the Turks, \underline{Kh} ān ' \overline{A} lam was desired to stay for some time in Herat and $Q\bar{u}m$

¹ B 512 and 465

⁹ Dalpat belonged to the Dumraon family

³ AN III 758

They say he had many men with him, viz 200 falconers and huntsmen and 1000 of the trusted servants of the king account of his long stay he sent most of them back from Heiat In the year 1037, 1627-28, when the Shah returned to Qazwīn the capital, Khān 'Ālam who had with him 700 or 800 servants, arrived at the city with ten powerful elephants with gold and silver trappings, a number of beasts of prey, and war-horses, birds, including birds that talked, Gujaiat cattle, ornamented chariots ' and palanquins All the principal officers came out to welcome him, and brought him to the S'aādatabad garden Next day the Shah had polo and tilting (qabaq andāzī) in the S'aādatabad plain Khān 'Ālam paid his respects, and the Shah showed him much honour and observed that "as between us and the noble king Jahangir there is the relationship of biotherhood, and as he has called you brother, the brother of a brother is also a brother" Thereupon he embraced him in brotherly fashion Khān 'Ālam wished to present one of the presents each day The Shah wished to go to Mazandarān foi zangūl² hunting, which is specially piactised in that country and for which the time was now passing Accordingly he produced the special rarities on one day, and the other things were made over to the Biyūtāt (the housekeepingdepartment), in order that the Shah might inspect them gradually The Shah was so captivated by his company that if it was all written down it would be taken to be exaggeration In the excess of his graciousness he used to call him Jan 'Alanı (life of the world) and could not spend a moment without him If by day or night it chanced that he did not come, the Shah would without ceremony go to his quarters and show him still greater favour day³ when he had taken leave of the Shah and made his quarters

¹ gardūnhā Is this a mistake for the Karkadan (rhinoceros) of the 'Ālam Arāī? The same book speaks of deer as among the animals

² Shikār zangūl Zangūl means a bell or a rattle, and the reference may be to the kind of hunting called Ghantaharah, B 292 The 'Ālam Arāī, Tehran ed, p 663, 32nd year of reign, says it is a kind of boar-hunting, shikār gurāz Can zangūl be connected with Latin singularis—French sanglier?

⁵ Khāfī K I 300 Perhaps this re fers to the day when Khān 'Alam took his final leave of the Shah and went outside of Ispahan The apologies the Shah made were in case he had un-outside of the city the Shah came to him on foot and made apologies

Certainly Klian 'Alam performed his mission well and spent much money and acquired a great name Sikandar 1 Beg Munshī, the author of the 'Alam Arāī history, writes that he saw the pomp with which Khān 'Ālam entered Qazwīn, and that he heard from credible people that from the beginning of the Safavī dynasty no ambassador had come from India or Turkey with such splendour Nor was it known if any had come so grandly in the time of the Khosioes of of the Kayanian dynasty Khān 'Ālam returned from Persia in the beginning of the year 1029, 1620, which was the end of the 14th year of Jahangır and at a time when the king was going for the first time to Kashmii (as king) Khan 'Alam appeared then before the king in the town of Kalānūr² and paid his res-The king from excessive graciousness kept him for two days and nights in his own bedchamber and gave him his own blankets As a reward for his having accomplished the embassy he raised him to the rank of 5000 with 3000 horse strange that Shaikh 'Abdu-l hamid of Lahore has written in the Pādishāhnāma Shahjahanī that Khān 'Ālam was wanting in eajolery and tact, and so did not conduct the embassy well does not understand why he has so written, and what his authority was

When the sovereignty came to Shah Jahan, Khān 'Ālam was laised to the rank of 6000 with 5000 horse and received a flag and a drum, and was made governor of Bihar in succession to M Rustum Safavī As on account of excessive addiction to koknār (opium) he could not transact business, he was removed in the same year In the 5th year, end of 1041, 1632, when Shah Jahan returned to Agra from Burhanpur, Khān 'Ālam paid his respects On account of his great-age and his addiction to opium the King excused him from service, and allowed him a lac of jupees a year. He spent intentionally failed in any of the duties of hospitality Compare Tüzuk J 284, etc

¹ Tuzuk J 285

² 'Ālam Ārai, account of 32nd year,

p 662 As B remarks 513, the author of the Pādshahnāma says Khān 'Ālam was a failure as an ambassador Khāfi K I 299, 300, says he did excellently his days with tranquility and comfort in Agra, and died a natural death. He had no children. His brother M 'Abu-s Subhān was faujdār of Allahabad and did his duties well. Afterwards he was appointed to Kabul and was killed in a fight with the Afrīdīs. His son Sherzād K Bahādui was full of courage. He fell in the battle of Sahīndah fighting against Khān Jahān Lodī on the king's side. The author of the 'Alam Arāi writes that Khān 'Ālam ieceived from Jahangii the title of 'brothei,' but this is not mentioned in the Indian histories, nor is it commonly reported. But as the Shah mentioned this at the interview, as has been related above, it appears to be genuine for without inquiry the Shah would not have said such a thing. But God knows!

(Rajah) BĀSŪ.

He was the zamındaı of Mau³ and Pāthān (Pathankot), which is a tract in the Bārī Dūāb in the Panjab and near the northern When the inevitable event (the death) of Humayun disturbed the world, and the somnolent seditions awoke in every quarter, Sultan Sıkandar Sūr, who had crept into the defiles of the Panjab hills, and was watching for his opportunity, raised the head of rebellion Bakht Mal, who was then the chief of the tract, raised the head of influence, and was prominent in exciting He joined Sultan Sikandar and strove to support him Afterwards, in the 2nd year of Akbar, when Sikandai was besieged in the fort of Mankot, and the distressed condition of the garison became more apparent every day, masmuch as it is the way with most of the zamındars of India, to abandon the path of straightforwardness, and to watch every side and join whoever is the stronger and is being victorious, Bakht Mal acted in accordance with zamindari wiles and joined the royal aimy After the fort had been taken and Sultan Sikandar had withdrawn, and the city of Lahore had become the halting place of the imperial standards, although severity towards those who have come in be not approved of, even though they have yielded out of necessity, yet Bairām K took into consideration his seditious spirit, and judging it light to destroy him, put him to death, and appointed his brother Takht Mal in his room When the proprietorship of the tract came to Rajah Bāsu, he always trod the path of obedience, and performed good service. When Akbar, after the death of M Muhammad Hakim and the taking possession of Afghanistan, perceived that the settlement of the Panjab was the important matter and fixed upon that province as his residence, Rajah Bāsū from shortsightedness and foolish thoughts proceeded to be sedi-Accordingly, in the 31st year Hasan Beg Shaikh 'Umarī was sent against him His orders were to punish him if he did not listen to advice When the royal army came to Pāthān (Pathankot in Guidāspur) the Rajah was roused from slumber by a letter from Rajah Todar Mal and came to court with Hasan Beg Afterwards, in the 41st year he brought over and submitted many of the landholders to his side, and again became disobe-Akbar gave Pāthān and its neighbourhood in fief to M Rustum Qandahaıı and sent him off to chastise Bäsū was also sent with him to give assistance But the two leaders did not act together and so the work was not accomplished Rustum was recalled and Jagat Singh, the son of Rajah Mān Singh, was appointed The loyal servants made promises of working in harmony and addressed themselves to the task They invested the fort of Mau, which was famous for its strength, and was Fighting went on for two months, and at last Bāsu's residence In the 48th year when news of his recalthe fort was surrendered citrancy was brought, another army was ordered against him Jamīl Beg, the son of Tāj K, was killed by his (Bāsu's) men After that the Rajah attached himself to Prince Sultan Selīm, in order that by his representations he might obtain pardon for his Again he became turbulent, and in the 49th year, when the prince for the second time submitted to his father, he came with him in the hopes of his intercession But, on account of dread, he remained on the other side of the river Before the

¹ B 514 Tūzuk J 158 This was in Jahangir's time, 1025=1616, and when Khan 'Ālam had been appointed ambassador to Persia

^{2 &#}x27;Ālam Ānaī 662, top line

³ Jarrett II 319

Singh was Rajah Man Singh's brother's ² Akbarnāma III. 833 son according to the statement there, Mādhū the plince had spoken for him, Akbar sent Mādhū Singh Kachwāha to seize him. He got news of this and fled. When Jahangir came to the throne he received the rank of 3500. In the 6th year he was sent off to the Deccan, and in the 8th year he died, 1022, 1612. His sons were Rajah Sūlaj Mal and Rajah Jagat Singh. Both of them have been separately noticed.

BĀZ BAHĀDUR

His name was Bayazīd and he was son of Shujā'at K who was generally known in India as Sajāwal K When Sher Shah took Mālwa from Malū K who has known as Qādn Shah, he made Shujā'at, who was one of his officers and of his clan, the governor of that country In the time of Selīm Shah he went to the Presence, and after some time he became displeased and went back to Mālwa Selīm Shah led an army against him, and he took refuge with the Rajah of Düngarpür At last Selim Shah summoned him to his presence by making promises and oaths, and kept him under surveillance, and distributed Mālwa among his officers After that, in the time of 'Adlī he again got possession of Mālwa and wished to recite the khutba and to coin money in his own name In the year 912, 1555, he died a natural death, and Baz Bahadur succeeded him In 963, he defeated most of his opponents and hoisting the umbrella over his head recited the khutba in his own He brought the whole of Malwa in subjection to himself and led an army against the extensive country of Garha defeated by Rani Durgavati, who was the ruler of that country, and did not attempt to retrieve himself, but occupied himself in pleasure and dissipation He let the foundation of his power go to the winds and waves, that is, he became so addicted to wine and music that he made no difference between night and day, and gave heed to nought except these two things

Physicians have prescribed wine according to fixed quantities and seasons with reference to the bodily frame and certain consti-

but it appears from Blochmann 437 that Mādhū was Rajah Bhagwān Dās's son and consequently Mān Singh's brother — Jahangir also speaks of Madhū as being his wife's brother

¹ Tuzuk 123 He died at Shahabad in Rajputana

tutions, and pludent and wise persons have sanctioned music at the time of care and melancholy—such as are produced by engrossment in worldly matters, with the object of recruiting the faculties, but have not approved of making these two things the great objects of life and of ever sacrificing to them precious hours for which there is no exchange Baz Bahadur who was himself the teacher of the age in music and melody, employed all his energies in collecting dancing guls (pātarān) They were all famous over the world for music The head of the troop was named Rup-They say that she was a "Padmini," which is the first class of the four kinds of women, according to the division made by Hindu sages, that is, the class which is compounded of excellent qualities Baz Bahadui was wonderfully attached to her, and continually wrote Hindi love-songs about her, and emptied his heart for her Stories about their love and beauty are still upon people's tongues

In the sixth year, 968, 1560-61, Adham K and other officers were sent to conquer Mālwa Bāz Bahādur had made a fortification two kos distant from Sārangpūr, which was his capital, and he showed fight His men were vexed and did not show alacrity At last there was a stubborn battle, and he was defeated had left some trustworthy men with his women and dancing girls in order that if news of his defeat should arrive they should put them to death as is the custom of India, when his defeat was known, some were put to the sword, and a large number were wounded, and still had some flickerings of life, while others were yet untouched The imperial army came to the city and there was not time to kill the rest Adham K got possession of everything and made search for Rūpmatī, who had been severely wounded But when this news ("naghma" melody) came to her ears her fidelity grew ardent and she quaffed the cup of poison and manfully died for love of Bāz Bahādur

When the government of Mālwa was taken from Bāz Bahā-

^{1 &}quot;Padmin is incomparable for her beauty and good disposition, and is tall of stature. Her limbs are perfectly proportioned, her voice soft, her speech gracious though reserved, and her breath fragrant as the rose She is chaste, and obedient to her husband '' Jarrett III, 243 dur and given to Pīr Muhammad Shii wānī, Bāz Bahādui, who was wandering in the jungles between Khandes and Mālwa, collected an army and came forward to fight He was again defeated by Pīr Muhammad and took refuge with Mīrān Mubārak the ruler of Khandes, who gave him his army On this occasion he again opposed Pīr Muhammad, who after taking Bijagarh hastened off with a few men to plunder Buihanpui and was returning laden with booty As fate would have it Pir Muhammad was defeated, and in his flight and confusion he was crossing the Narbada separated from his horse and was drowned, and the fief-holders of Mālwa lost heart and went off to Agra Bāz Bahādur agam became securely possesed of Malwa On hearing of this occurrence, 'Abdullah K Uzbeg, who was one of the great officers, was sent off along with a number of other officers, in the 7th year, to conquer the country Baz Bahaduı gave way before the arrival of the imperial army and fled At the sound of the pursuit of the victorious aimy he threw himself into the mountain-defiles, and spent his days in wietchedness For some time he went to Bahaijī the landholder of Baglana, and from there he went to Gujarat to Cingez K and Shei K Gujaratī After that he went to Nizāmul-mulk in the Deccan, and being unsuccessful everywhere, he took ıefuge with Rānā Udai Singh In the 15th year Akbai sent Hasan K Khazāneī to make him hopeful of favour and to bring him into At first he received the rank of 1000, and finally got the ıank of 2000 zat u sawāi (personal, and cavalıy) Bāz Bāhadur and Rūpmatī both sleep 1 on a 11dge in the middle of the wide lake of Ujjain

BEBADAL KHĀN SAIDAI GĪLĀNĪ

He was a good poet He came to India in the time of Jahangir and became one of the king's servants, and was included in the list of poets. In the time of Shah Jahan he on account of his sagacity and skill received the title of Bebadal (Incomparable) Khān, and was for a long time darogha of the goldsmith's office

Rüpmatī, there is nothing to show the fact at present.

Through the kindness of Captain Luard I have ascertained that if Baz Bahadur was ever buried beside in the royal establishment. The jewelled throne—known by the name of the Peacock-throne—was finished by him in the course of seven years at the cost of a kror of rupis, or 333,000 tomans of Persia, or four krors of the khānī comage of Transoxiana. As a reward he was weighed against gold. In fact so valuable and adorned a throne was never seen in any other age or race, nor at the present day is there anything like it

Verse

No second to it has come to view However many side-glances 1 have been thrown

When by the revolutions of Time various kinds of costly jewels had been gathered together in the royal jewel-chamber, it occuired to Shah Jahan in the beginning of his reign that the sole object of collecting such eye-pleasing larities was to add lustie to the sovereignty and therefore they should be so made use of that both sightseers might share the beauty of these products of the mine and ocean, and also that a fresh glory might be added to the After reserving the private jewels which were in the Sultanate females' appartments, and which were of the value of two krors of supees, it was ordered that jewels to the value of eighty-six lacs of rupees should be selected out of the jewels in the store-rooms, and which were nearly three krois of rupees in value, and made over to Bebadal Khān so that with them and one lac of tolahs of pure gold, corresponding to 250,000 misgāls, the value of which was fourteen lacs of rupees, he might make a throne three and a quarter yards (gaz) long, two and a half yards broad and five yards The inside of the canopy was to be chiefly of enamelled work and with a few jewels, but the outside was to be inlaid with rubies and cornelians and the canopy was to be supported by twelve emerald-coloured pillars On the top of the canopy there were two (?) peacocks made of jewels, and between every two (?) peacocks there was a dirakht (tree, the bouquet of Tavernier) set with rubies, diamonds, emeialds and pearls In order to ascend to the throne there was a stair of three steps which was adorned with lustious jewels. The middle one of the cleven jewelled balustrades (takhta) which went round the throne in order to retain the pillows, and which is the one on which the king iests his aim, carried jewels worth ten lacs of iupees, and among them was a suby! the price of which was one lac of rupees Shah 'Abbas Safavī had sent it as a present to Jahangir and the latter had given it to Shah Jahan as a reward for his conquest of the Deccan At first the names of Amir Timui, M Shahiukh and M Ulugh Beg were engraved on it Afterwards when by the revolutions of Time it fell into the hands of the Shah (of Persia) he had his own name cut upon it Jahangir had his own name and that of Akbar engraved on it, and afterwards Shah Jahan had his own name engraved on it At the New Year's feast of the 8th year, 3 Shawal 1014, 12 March 1635, he sate upon this incomparable throne Hājī Muhammad K. Qudsī 2 made the chronogram

¹ Ahwal lit "squints"

Aurang Shahinshāh 'Ādil " The thione of the just Shahinshah," 1043, 1633-34

He also wrote a masnavī in praise of the throne, of which the following is a verse

Verse

If Heaven approached to the throne-foot It would give Sun and Moon as guerdon ³

Behadal K also wrote 134 couplets, every first line of twelve couplets gave the date of the king's birth, every first line of the 32 following couplets gave the date of the Accession, and every first line of the remaining ninety couplets gave the dates of the expedition from Agra to Kashmīr which took place in 1043, 1633-34, of the return to Agra, and of the sitting on the peacock throne The following famous quatrain is also a production of Behadal

Quatrain.

That which was your throne majestic as heaven Was the ornament of your justice over the world

¹ See Tūzuk 202 Another ruby worth a lac is mentioned in Khāfī K I 293

² Rieu II C48b and Ethé 845

³ nūnamāi Present to a bride on unveiling

Thou wilt last as long as God exists

For substance is ever accompanied by its shadow

In the beginning of the reign of Aurangzeb the Peacock Throne was by orders of the reigning sovereign still more adorned by Amīnā at a cost of a kioi of rupees. In the year 1152, 1739 when the great Shāhinshāh Nādu Shah filled the capital of Shah jahānābād with glory by his power, he took away the throne from the king of the time as part of the spoils of India.

BEGLĀR KHĀN

His name was S'aad' Ullah and he was the son of S'aīd K

Caghatai of Akbai's time. He had all the advantages of an Amīr's son. He was famed for personal beauty, the strength of his limbs, and pleasant speech. He surpassed his companions in skill in polo and in military aptitudes. In the lifetime of his father his gained a name for reliability. In the 46th year Akbai gave M 'Azī Koka's daughter in marriage to him. He had a lofty mind and behaved like a prince in matters of etiquette, and was always in quest of fame When his father died he, though his rank wa small, did not dismiss his father's servants

In the beginning 8

I For Tavernier's description see vol II, pp 241, 242, ed 1676 speaks of only one peacock account in the Massir is copied from the Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, pp 78, See the translation in Elliot VII This translation has been useful to me, but the description is still somewhat obscure According Elliot's version there were two peacocks on the top of each pillar Though Tavernier speaks of only one peacock, I think there were two for Bernier speaks of two, II 53, ed The peacock-throne was first used at Agra In my father's History of India, II 705, a representation is given of a jewelled peacock which was one of the ornaments of Tipu Sultan's throne See also Keene's Delhi, p 19 The total cost of the materials of the throne according to the Pādshāhnāma was a kror o rupees, that is one million sterling Tavernier's account of the dost, p 245 as stated by his informanta, is muc greater and presumably include workmanship, etc He saw it after Aurangzeb had spent an additions kror of rupees on it, but sull tw krors are far less than the 107 thousand lacs mentioned by him Accord ing to Beale, Bebadal is probably sobriquet of the poet Abū Tāļib Kalīm Elsewhere he calls Saidai Saidai Gīl ānī and says his poetical hame wa See pp. 106 and 344 Saida is the Mulla Shaida of Riek Cat III 1083a and I 251a But if Shaida lived till 1080, 1669-70, he must have been a very long-lived man

² B 331

³ Tüzuk 96 It was in the 6tl year

Jahangir's leign he obtained the title of Nawazish K When in the 8th year, 1022, 1613, Ajmere became the residence of Jahangu, it was perceived that the remedy for the long-standing trouble of the Rānā, which had not been brought to a conclusion, lay in appointing Prince Shah Jahan to the task Begläi K i was his assistant When Udaipūr, the Rānā's residence, was occupied by Shah Jahan, Nawazish K and some other officers were sent to Kambhalmīr, which was in the hill country, and there was such a want of grain that a sīn of it could not be had for a supee universe of men gave their lives for want of bread. At this time the Khān in his zeal and generosity shared his food every day with a hundred others As he had no money, he sold his dishes of gold and silver and expended the proceeds When dissension broke out between Jahangii and the heir-apparent, and love became hatred, and the dispositions of both parties were turned towards strife, the imperial retinue proceeded with a small force from Lahore in order to collect troops on arrival at Delhi Nawāzish K also zealously came to the Presence from his fief in ujarat and did homage As such times were tests of the jewel Glowalty, he war ". of loy as the recipient of a thousand congratulations and was the subject of favours He was appointed to accompany 'Abdullah K who was in charge of the vanguard of the army It happened that as soon as the imperial army and Shah Jahan's men encountered one another, 'Abdullah K in accordance with a secret treaty galloped off and joined the prince was ignorant of what was beneath the surface and thought that the urging on of the horse was for purpose of battle some other officers and followers fought bravely and acquired fame He became more and more an object of favour and for courage received the title of Beglar K He obtained the faujdarī and the fief of Sorath and Junagarh, the rank of 20002 with 2500 horse, and hoisted the flag of glory He stayed long in that country with honour and respect, and after the accession of Shah Jahan

¹ Ir the 8th year he got an increase of 500 horse so that his rank became 2000 personal and horse Tūzuk J

² In the 15th year of Jahangir he obtained the rank of 3000 with 2000 horse

though he received an increase of 1000 zāt, yet in the same year he was removed, and in the third year, 1039, 1630, he died. He was buried in Sirhind in his father's tomb. After him, none of his family became distinguished

(RAJAH) BETHAL DAS GAUR

They say that formerly Marwar and Meywar were in the pos session of this tribe (the Gam tribe) before they came to be held After the latter became victoby the Rathor and Sisodia tribes rious, several pargamas of those districts remained in the possession Bethal Das was the second son of Rajah of the Gaur tribe Gopāl Dās Gaur who, at the time of the return of Sultan Khairam from Bengal and of his coming to Burhanpur, was governor of the fort of Asi After that the prince summoned him to his presence and put Sudai K in his place. At the siege of Tatta he with his son and hen Balaiam bravely sperificed then lives Bethal Das came from his home to Junan, and entered into service Shah Jahan had ascended the throne he obtained the rank of 3000 with 1500 hoise, the title of Rajah a flag and a house with a gilded saddle, an elephant, and a present of Rs 30,000 wards, he was sent under Khān Jahān Lodī to chastise Jujhār Singh Bandila In the 2nd year he was sent off, along with Khwāja Abū-l-hasan in pursuit of Khān Jahān Lodī keenness of his zeal he did not wait for the commander but went off like a whirlwind Near Dholpur he came up with Khan Jahan After the manner of the Rapputs he disand engaged him mounted and behaved with gallantiy, and received several As a reward, he received an increase of 500 horse, and the present of a dium. In the third year, when the king came to the Deccan and sent three armies, under three leaders, to chastise Khān Jahān Lodī and to devastate the country of Nizāmu-l-mulk, he was sent off along with Rajah Gaj Singh, and did good service in the battle against Khān Jahān Lodī

As his and his father's fidelity had been witnessed by the king, and he was desirous of becoming the governor of a fort—without which the title of Rajah did not carry influence—he was made governor of the fort of Ranthambur in place of Khān Celā the sixth year he was made faujdar of Ajmere in succession to M. Mozaffar Kırmānī Afterwards, he was appointed to the Deccan ın attendance on Prince Muhammad Shujā' and did good service at the siege of Parenda As the foit could not be taken, and the prince was summoned to court, he in the 8th year, after coming to court, was sent to Ajmere In the 9th year, when the king came to the Deccan and sent three armies under three leaders to chastise Sāhū Bhonsla, he was placed in the contingent of Khān Dauran When out of great liberality, the country of Dhandera had been given to his brother's son Sīv Rām, and the latter had gone with a body of troops and driven out Indarman the zamindar, the said zamindar collected a force and retook the territory from Sīv Rām Thereupon, in the tenth year, the Rajah was sent with a force—of which the leader was Mut'amid K —to set the territory free After he came there he erected batteries over against the fort of Sehia The zamindar got hard pressed and waited upon Mut'amid K, and the Rajah came to court and received the rank of 4000 with 3000 horse and the territory of Dhandera as his home. In the 11th year when the king was going to Lahore, he was made the governor of the fort of Agra In the 12th year, he, by orders, conveyed treasure from Agra to In the 14th year he, on the death of Wazīr K, was left in charge of Agra, and in government of the fort.

In the 16th year, after the arrival of the royal retinue at Agia, he received the rank of 5000, with 3000 horse, and in the 19th year his rank was 5000 with 4000 horse. He was now sent in the vanguard of Prince Murād Bakhsh to take Balkh and Badakhshān. After Balkh was taken, when the Prince became discontented and returned to court, and S'aad Ullah K. went off to settle the country, he in the 20th year came to court with the persons left behind by Nazr Muhammad. In the 21st year, when the king entered the newly-erected buildings of Shahjahanabad, his rank was 5000 with 5000 cavalry of which 1000 were two-horse, and three-horse, and was appointed to Kabul. In the 22nd year he came to court and another 1000 of the cavalry of his contingent were made two-hoise and three-horse. In company with

Prince Aurangzeb he distinguished himself in the battle with the Persians, which took place during the siege of Qandahar When the fort could not be taken, he came with the prince to coult in the 23rd year He obtained leave to go home, and he died there in 1061, 1651

As he was noted for his fidelity and loyalty, the king grieved for his death, and favoured those whom he had left behind eldest son was Rajah Anurūdha, of whom a separate account has The second was Arjan who became known to Shah Jahan during his father's lifetime On the day when Rāo Amar Singh killed Salābat K in the king's presence, he behaved bravely and struck Amar Singh twice with his sword In the 19th year he was appointed with Prince Murad Bakhsh to the Balkh campaign In the 21st year his lank was 1000 with 700 horse, and in the 22nd year he had an increase of 100 horse, and in the 25th year, after his father's death, he had an increase of 500 with 700 horse and was appointed to Qandahar in attendance on the prince In the 32nd year he accompanied Maharajah Jaswant Singh to check the advance of the Deccan army, and was appointed to Malwa In the battle which took place between the Maharajah and Prince Amangzeb near Ujjain, Arjan behaved bravely and sacrificed his life third son was Bhīm, who after his father's death received a proper rank and who fought well at the battle of Samogarha on the side of Dārā Shikoh and came near the $q\bar{u}i$ of Prince Aurangzeb, and The fourth was Harjas, who entered into service in the was killed After the Rajah's death the ten lacs of rupees time of Aurangzeb which he had left were divided as follows, six lacs, and also goods, to Rajah Anurūdha, three lacs to Arjan, Rs 60,000 to Bhīm, and Rs 40,000 to Harjas Girdhar Das the younger brother of the Rajah was, in the 9th year of Shah Jahan, after the killing of Jujhār Singh Bandīla and the capture of the fort of Jhānsī, made In the 15th year he had the rank of 1000 with governor thereof 400 horse, and in the 22nd year he had an increase of 1000 horse After the Rajah's death his rank was 1500 with 1200 horse was appointed to the siege of Qandahar and in the 29th year he was made governor of the fort of Agra in succession to Siyādat K, and had the rank of 2000 with 1200 horse. In the 30th year he was made faujdār thereof in addition to his governorship and had an increase in his contingent of 800 horse. In the battle of Samogarha he was in Dārā Shikoh's vanguard, but it appears from the 'Ālamgīrnāma that he was also actively employed during the reign of Aurangzeb

I Maasir II 276

(RAJAH) BHAGWANT DĀS 1

Son of Rajah Bihāia Mal Kachwāha He distinguished him self at the battle of Sarnāl in 980, 1572, when Akbar after the conquest of Gujarat made an onset with 100 troopers on Ibrāhīm Husain Mīrzā He was rewarded with a flag and a drum He also did good service in the nine days' expedition to Gujarat and thereafter was sent by way of Īdai to the Rānā's country, in order that he might put down the rebels there The Rajah brought all the landowners of Budhnagar and Īdai into the highway of good service, and had an interview with Rānā Kīkā and brought his son Amr Singh to court. In the 23rd year, when the jagirs of the Kachwāha family were placed in the Panjab the Rajah was made governor of that province. In the 29th year his daughter was married to Prince Selīm (Jahangir)

Chronogram

The Moon and Venus were conjoined (993)

Akbar personally went to the Rajah's quarters, and the latter gave a splendid feast, and produced the bridal present and tribute which came to a large sum. They say there were strings of Persian, Arab, Turkish, and Cutch horses, together with 100 elephants, and many male and female slaves. Abyssinian, Circassian and Indian. The dower was two krois of rupees? The king and prince were conveyed in litters, and on the whole road rare cloths were spread. In the year 995 (on the 4th August 1587), Sultan Khusrau was born of this marriage. In the 30th year the

¹ B 333

The TA and Badayuni say it was tankas, ie dams

Rajah was made a panjhazārī, and in the year in which Kunwar Man Singh was appointed to the Yusufzai affaii, the Rajah was made governor of Afghanistan He formed some unfitting desires and the king recalled him The Rajah repented and had recourse to entreaties, and his apology was admitted But when he crossed the Indus and came to Khairābād he was seized with madness, and they brought him back to Attock A physician was feeling his pulse, and the Rajah drew his (the physician's) dagger and stabbed himself The king's physicians were appointed to treat him, and after a long while they cuied him. In the 32nd year he and his tribe had a jagir in Bihar, and Kunwar Man Singh was sent to look after that country In the beginning 1 of 998, 1589, he died in Lahore. They say that when Rajah Todai Mal was cremated, he When he came to his house he vomited 2 and had an was present attack of strangury After five days he died One of his good works was the building of a Jāma's masjid in Lahore where many men collect and say their prayers on Fridays

(RAO) BHĀO SINGH HĀRĀ

Son of Satr Sāl who had a place in Dārā Shikoh's vanguard at the battle of Samogarh, and bravely lost his life Bhāo 4 Singh in the first year of Aurangzeb came from his home to court, and did homage. He received the rank of 3000 with 2000 horse, the gift of a flag and a drum, and the title of Rāo with the zamindari of Bundī, etc., which had belonged to his ancestors. In the battle with Shujā' he was appointed to the king's artillery which was in front. When Shujā' had fled, he, in company with Prince Muhammad Sultan, was appointed to pursue him. Afterwards, when the prince's army had passed Bīrbhūm 5 on the way to Bengal, l Apparently both officers must have died in the end of 997, for Akbar got the news at Kabul in that year or very early in 998

² A N III 570 The word is istfar $\bar{a}gh$, and perhaps it means "overstrained himself"

³ The Jam'a Mosque in Lahore was built by Aurangzeb in 1674 It seems unlikely that Bhagwān would build a mosque He erected a famous temple to Harī Dev at Mathurā, Growse, 304

^{4 &#}x27;Ālamgīrnāma 231 Satr Sāl is the Chuttar Sāl of Tod who describes his death in battle

⁵ 'Ālamgīrnāma 498 The Rajputs left because they had heard false

Bhāo Singh left the prince without leave and returned He was appointed to the Deccan, and in the third year in company with Shaista K the Amīru-l-umarā he was engaged in the siege of the fort of Islamabad 1 or Cakna, which had been constructed by Malıku-t-tajār the general of 'Alāu-d-dīn Ahmad Shah Bahmanī, who had been appointed to conquer the Konkan The garrison fell into difficulties, and by Bhão Singh's intervention made over Afterwards when Sharsta K was removed from the Deccan, and Maharajah Jaswant Singh stayed in that quarter to punish Siva, Bhāo Singh also remained with him As Rāo Bhāo's sister was married to the Maharajah, the latter sent for her from her native country in order that she might make friendship between them, but Rão Bhão Singh was faithful to his salt and did After the airival of Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh at the Deccan, he made campaigns along with him In the 9th year he went with Diller K. against the zamindar of Chanda² (in the Central From the Naskha Dil Kushā 1 it appears that he was Provinces) for a long time in Aurangabad He had formed an intimacy with Sultan Muhammad M'uazzam In the 21st year corresponding to 1088,4 he died

As he had no sons, the rule of his native country fell to the grandson⁵ of his brother Bhagwant Singh, who was called Anurūdha Singh and was son of the Kishn Singh whom Sultan reports about the result of the battle of Almer with Dara Shikoh of the 'Alamgirnama mention is made of one Kamāl Afghan the zamındar of Bīrbhūm This would seem to indi cate that the Bengal Bīrbhūm was meant, for an Afghan family did get possession of that zamindari about See Hunter's Rural Annals of Bengal, App F, where a Kamāl K is mentioned At p 496 of the 'Alamgırnāma Bīrbhūm is spoken of as a village and at 458 as a station Apparently the geography of the 'Ālamgīrnāma is vague Mīr Jumla did try to take Shuja' in the rear by rching via Bishanpur, etc ti. ard's Bengal, 269 The rains obliged Mir Jumla to return to Rajmahal Perhaps the defection of the Rajputs also contributed to this

l Elliot VII 262

² 'Ālamgīrnāma 1023

⁵ Rieu's Cat I 271a It is a book of historical memoirs relating to the Deccan, and was translated by Jonathan Scott, and published under the title of a "Journal kept by a Bondela officer" The author was Bhīm Sen Kāyath

^{4 1677} Tod says he died in 1682 in Aurangabad

⁵ The Maasir A calls Anurudha grandson of Bhāo, p 227 But Tod agrees with the Maasir Umarā, which perhaps he has copied

Muhammad Akbar had summoned when he was governor of Ujjain. and who had been killed with a dagger on account of insolence After his death his son Budha Singh was raised to the leadership, and was for a long time in the contingent of Bahādur Shah in When after the death of Aurangzeb there was disagreement between Bahādur Shah and A'zım Shah and the former was victorious, he received the title of Rām Rajah, a mansab of 3500 and the zamındarı of Mümīdāna,2 and Kotah—which (Kotah) belonged to Rām Singh the grandson of Mādhu Singh Hārā, who had been killed along with A'zim Shah There arose a quarrel between him and Bhīm Singh his (Rām Singh's) son After his death, his son Umed Singh for a time ruled and then left the property to his At the time of writing Kishn Singh⁸ his grandson holds the property

(RAJAH) BHĀRATHA BANDĪLA

Grandson of Ram Cand who was (the elder) son of Rajah Madhukar As Jahangir had a special regard for Bit Singh Deo, in the end of the year of his accession, 'Abdullah K went' rapidly from his fief of Kālpī on the day of the Dusseiah to Undchah (Oorcha), and arrested Ram Cand, who in that rugged place was showing the appearance of sedition, and produced him before the king, in chains, in the second year The king removed his chains and gave him a robe of honoui and made him over to Rajah Bāsū who was to take security from him and let him go From that day Undehah belonged to Rajah Bu Singh Deo In the fourth year Rām Cand's daughter⁵ entered the royal harem, at his re-When he died, his grandson Bharatha received in the seventh year a suitable rank and the title of Rajah presumption which Mahābat K showed on the bank of the Bihat (Jhelam) and his subsequent flight to the Rānā's country,

¹ Mangir A 161, which says that a quarrel arose at the time of putting on the robe of honour, and that Kishn Singh killed himclf This was in 1088, 1677 Tod in his account of Bundi says Kalin was put to death by Aurangzeb

⁵ Called by Tod Bishn Singh

⁴ Tuzuk J 39, where Ram Cand is called the son of Nand Kuar (Nandkūmar) 'Abdullah Undehah on the Dus reah day also b 487-88 Bir Singh · as R7m Cand a younger broth r ^{&#}x27; Idruh J 77.

Bhāratha was one of the officers whom Jahangir appointed to pursue him, and who halted at Ajmere Meanwhile the aspect of circumstances changed Jahangir departed to another world, and the standard of Shah Jahan brightened Ajmere Bhāratha hastened to serve him and received an increase of 500 troopers so that his rank became² one of 3000 with 2500 horse, and he had the gift of a flag and a horse. In the first year he became³ faujdār of Etawah and its neighbourhood-which was crown land —and after some time had 4 the present of a drum. In the second year he went with Khwāja Abul-hasan in pursuit of Khān Jahān Lodī, and in the third year was appointed, along with Rāo Ratan Hādā, to conquei Telingāna Afterwards, he had an increase of 500 horse and did good service, along with Nasīrī K , in the siege of Qandhar in the Deccan When the garrison got into difficulties, they, at his recommendation, surrendered b In the fourth year he came to court and received an increase of $500 z\bar{a}t$ and had altogether the rank of 3500 with 3000 horse Afterwards he was appointed to guard the borders of Telingana In the 6th year he took the town of Waklū16 (2) together with the family of Bolā, who, along with Sīdhī Miftāh; held the town on behalf of the rulers of the Deccan When this news reached Shah Jahan, he 1 aised his rank to 4000 with 3500 hoise. In the 7th year, when the court was at Lahore, the news came that the Rajah had died in the year 1043, 1633-34, in Telingāna His son was Rajah Deb Singh of whom an account has been given

(RAI) BHOJ 8

Younger son of Rai Surjan Hādā (pronounced Hārā) his father attached himself to Akbai, he too always did good seivice, and was the object of special favour. In the 22nd year of the reign the fort of Bundī was taken from Dūdā his eldei brother and given to him After that, he was for a long time

¹ Pādshāhnāma I 82 2

Do

³ D_0 191

Do

⁵ Pādshāhnāma, 377

⁶ It is Diklūr in Pādshāhnāma I

⁷ Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, p 13 included in the contingent of Kunwar Mān Singh and did brave deeds in the battles with the Afghans of Orissa. Afterwards he was appointed to the Deccan along with S Abu-l-fazl, and always distinguished himself. After Jahangir's accession, the king desired to maily the daughter of Jagat Singh, the son of Rajah Mān Singh. Rai Bhoj, who was the maternal grandfather of the lady, objected, and this displeased Jahangii, who resolved to punish him on his return from Kabul. In the same year, which was the second of the reign, and corresponded to 1016, 1607, he loosed the thread of his life (committed suicide?) Up to the 40th year of Akbar's reign he held the rank of 1000. They say that the daughters of the Rahtoi and Kachwaha families have entered the harem of the house of Timur, but that the Hādā tribe has never consented to such an alliance

(RAJAH) BIHĀRA MAL²

Son of Piithī raj Kachwāha In this tribe there are two sections—Rajāwat and Shaikhāwat Bihāiā Mal belonged to the Rajāwat section, and was settled at 'Amber, which is a dependency of Ajmere and is east' of Māiwār Though it is inferior to Māiwār in extent, it is superior in productiveness. He was the first Rajput who entered into Akbai's service. After the death of Humāyūn, when disturbances arose on every side, Hājī K, a slave of Sher Khan, also became seditious and besieged Nāinaul which was in the fief of Majnūn K Qāqshāl. The Raja at that time was friendly with him, and from goodness and right-thinking he interposed and took amicable possession of the fort, and procuied an honourable departure for Majnūn. After Hemū had been slain, and the report of Akbar's fortune had become current, Majnūn Qāqshāl represented the choice fidelity of the Rajah, and an order

¹ B I c says he committed suicide Tod in his chapter on the Annals of Haravati (reprint II 521) says Rai Bhoj died in his palace at Bundī, but does not say he committed suicide The expression in the Maasir is ambiguous Rai Bhoj's grand daughter was married to Jahangir in the third year, 1608, Tūzuk J 69 Rai Bhoj had a distinguished son, Rāo Ratn, who received the title of Sarbuland Rai See Maaşir U II 208

² B 329, where the name is spelt Bihārī

³ Text has "west" Probably this is a printer's error was sent for his appearance. The Rajah paid his respects in the end of the first year. On the day of taking leave, when the Rajah and his sons and other relatives had been clothed in robes of honour and presented, the king mounted on a furious (mast) elephant. As the elephant was furiously moving from side to side the people everywhere dispersed, but when it can to where the Rajputs were, they stood still. This pleased Akhar greatly, and he graciously said to the Rajah that he would cherish him

In the sixth year, when Akbar was proceeding to Ajmere to visit M'unu-d-dīn's shrine, it was represented to him in the village of Kalālī by Caghatai K that Rajah Bihājā Mal-who was distinguished for intelligence and courage, and who had waited upon him in Delhi-had become apprehensive and taken refuge in the hills because M Shaifu-d-din Husain the governor of Ajmere had, at the instigation of Sūjā the son of the Rajah's elder brother Pūran Mal, led an army and had fixed a sum of money as tribute, and had seized Jagnath the son of the Rajah, Raj Singh the son of Askaran and Kangāi the son of Jagmal, who were the brother's sons of the Rajah, and wanted to seize 'Amber which was the Rajah's ancestral residence From appreciation of his ment the king sent for him, and his brother Rupsi appeared at the station of Deosah along with Jai Mal his son, who was the headman in that neighbourhood, and did homage In the town of Sanganii the Rajah himself appeared with most of his relatives and was graciously The Rajah, from his good sense and foresight, wished to emerge from the clowd of landowners and to be enrolled among the special intimates of the court, and so expressed a desire that his daughter might enter the Haiem The king assented, and the Rajah took leave to accomplish this affair, and at the time of Akbai's return he sent his daughter, with all ceremony, to the royal palace at the station of Sāmbhar He himself, his son Bhagwant Das, and Kunwar Man Singh the son of the latter, waited on the king at the station of Ratan 1 Akbar honoured

I This apparently should be Rantanbhur Man Singh was only the

adopted son of Bhagwant Bihārā Mal's daughter became the mother him more than all the other Rajahs and Rais of India and bestowed high dignities and offices on his sons and grandsons and on his tribesmen and made them the pillars of India. The Rajah was raised to the rank of 5000 and dismissed to his home, while Rajah Bhagwant Dās and Kunwar Mān Singh together with many of his other relatives attended the king to Agra, and rose by degrees to high honour ¹

(RAJAH) BIKRAMĀJĪT 2

His name was Patr Das and he was a Khatii by caste At first he was accountant of the elephant-stables of Akbar He received the title of Rai Rayan, and afterwards attained to high In the 12th year at the siege of Citūi he, along with Hasan K Cagatai, looked after the royal battery In the 24th year he was made diwan of Bengal in partnership with Mir Adham the 25th year when the rebels killed Mozaffar K. and imprisoned Pati Das, he cleverly managed to escape, and was for some time afterwards employed in the province. In the 31st year he was made diwan of Bihai In the 38th year he was sent off to take the fort of Bandhu-which was one of the strong forts of the age, and where, on the death of Rām Cand Baghīla and his son, the men of the place had set up the grandson who was of tender age After besieging it for eight months and twenty-five days the garrison surrendered from want of food, and the fort was In the 431d year he was made Chief Diwan,3 and next year he was removed from that post and sent off to the fort of In the 46th year he received the rank of 3000 In the 47th year, when the slaying of S Abu-l-fazl by Bir Singh Bandīla was reported to Akbar, an order was given that Patr Das should exert himself to extirpate that evil-doer, and not give up until he sent his head. He in repeated combats fought bravely and of Jahangir For account of the marriage, etc see AN II, p 240, etc of translation

¹ It would seem that Bihārā Mal died about 1569, for in 1570 a monument was erected at Mathurā, to the memory of his widow who committed Sati Growse, Mathurā 148 There is also a temple at Mathurā to Harī Devī which was erected by Rajah Bhagwān Dās, do 304

² B 469

⁸ AN III 741 and 758

was sent for his appearance. The Rajah paid his respects in the end of the flist year. On the day of taking leave, when the Rajah and his sons and other relatives had been clothed in robes of honour and presented, the king mounted on a furious (mast) elephant. As the elephant was furiously moving from side to side, the people everywhere dispersed, but when it ian to where the Rajputs were, they stood still. This pleased Akhar greatly, and he graciously said to the Rajah that he would cherish him

In the sixth year, when Akbar was proceeding to Ajmere to visit M'uinu-d-dīn's shime, it was represented to him in the village of Kalālī by Caghatai K that Rajah Bihārā Mal-who was distinguished for intelligence and courage, and who had waited upon him in Delhi-had become apprehensive and taken refuge in the hills because M Sharfu-d-din Husain the governor of Ajmeie had, at the instigation of Sūjā the son of the Rajah's elder brother Pūran Mal, led an army and had fixed a sum of money as tribute, and had seized Jagnath the son of the Rajah, Raj Singh the son of Askaran, and Kangār the son of Jagmal, who were the brother's sons of the Rajah, and wanted to seize 'Amber which was the Rajah's From appreciation of his ment the king sent ancestral residence for him, and his brother Rūpsī appeared at the station of Deosah along with Jai Mal his son, who was the headman in that neighbourhood, and did homage In the town of Sanganii the Rajah himself appeared with most of his relatives and was graciously The Rajah, from his good sense and foresight, wished to emerge from the crowd of landowners and to be enrolled among the special intimates of the court, and so expressed a desire that his daughter might enter the Harem The king assented, and the Rajah took leave to accomplish this affair, and at the time of Akbar's return he sent his daughter, with all ceremony, to the royal palace at the station of Sāmbhar He himself, his son Bhagwant Das, and Kunwar Man Singh the son of the latter, waited on the king at the station of Ratan 1 Akbar honoured

I This apparently should be Rantanbhur Man Singh was only the

adopted son of Bhagwant Bıhārā Mal's daughter became the mother him more than all the other Rajahs and Rais of India and bestowed high dignities and offices on his sons and grandsons and on his tribesmen and made them the pillars of India. The Rajah was raised to the rank of 5000 and dismissed to his home, while Rajah Bhagwant Dās and Kunwar Mān Singh together with many of his other relatives attended the king to Agra, and rose by degrees to high honour ¹

(RAJAH) BIKRAMĀJĪT 2

His name was Patr Das and he was a Khatri by caste At first he was accountant of the elephant-stables of Akbar He received the title of Rai Rayan, and afterwards attained to high rank In the 12th year at the siege of Citur he, along with Hasan K Cagatai, looked after the royal battery In the 24th year he was made diwan of Bengal in partnership with Mir Adham the 25th year when the rebels killed Mozaffar K and imprisoned Patr Das, he cleverly managed to escape, and was for some time afterwards employed in the piovince. In the 31st year he was made diwan of Bihar In the 38th year he was sent off to take the fort of Bandhu-which was one of the strong forts of the age, and where, on the death of Rām Cand Baghīla and his son, the men of the place had set up the grandson who was of After besieging it for eight months and twenty-five tender age days the garrison suriendered from want of food, and the fort was In the 43rd year he was made Chief Diwan,3 and next year he was removed from that post and sent off to the fort of In the 46th year he received the rank of 3000 47th year, when the slaying of S Abu-l-fazl by Bir Singh Bandīla was reported to Akbar, an order was given that Patr Das should exert himself to extirpate that evil-doer, and not give up until he He in repeated combats fought bravely and sent his head of Jahangir For account of the marriage, etc see AN II, p 240, etc of translation

¹ It would seem that Bihārā Mal died about 1569, for in 1570 a monument was erected at Mathurā, to the memory of his widow who committed Sati Growse, Mathurā 148 There is also a temple at Mathurā to Harī Devī which was erected by Rajah Bhagwān Dās, do 304

⁻ B 469

³ AN III 741 and 758

they after a siege of fourteen months and odd days sued for quarter and surrendered the fort

The fort is famous for its strength. It lies in the hill-country north of Lahore The belief of the landholders of the Panjab is that no one but God knows when it was built During all this time it had never passed out of the hands of one tribe. No stranger's hand had ruled over it Among Muhammadan Sultans, Sultan Fīrūz Shah went with all his grandeur to take it When he found that this was impossible, he had to be content with an interview with the Rajah of it, and to withdraw his hand. They say that the Rajah took the Sultan and a number of his followers inside the fort to a feast The Sultan said to the Rajah that it was indiscreet to introduce him to the fort of he and his followers were now to attack him, what could he do? The Rajah made a sign to his men, and immediately crowds upon crowds of aimed men came out of ambushes The Sultan became apprehensive, but the Rajah represented that nothing but obedience was in his mind, but still it was right to take precautions No Delhi Sultan had ever succeeded after this in taking the fort Akbar, with all his appetite for conquest, and length of reign, did not succeed in taking Kāngia, though the country adjoined his dominions. Once when the Rajah of it had become an object of censure, Akbar made over the country to Rajah Bīrbar and appointed an aimy under Husain Qulī K Khān Jahān, the governor of the Panjab. While he was pressing the siege, there arose the rebellion of Ibrāhīm Husain Mīrzā. The Khān Jahān was compelled to make peace with the Rajah and to go after Ibrāhīm. After that, Rajah Jai Chand, the loid of the fort, showed proper respect for the emperor by continually sending tribute, and doing homage.

In the beginning of the 26th year, 990, 1582, when Akbar was marching towards the Indus, he went to see the wonders of the temple of Nagarkot, which has from old time been a place of pilgrimage. At the first stage Rajah Jar Chand did homage

¹ According to Shams Sīrāj's history, 188, the Rajah surrendered the fort See also Elliot III 317

When Akbar halted for the night at the town of Desüha, which was in Rajah Bīr Bar's fief, the spiritual form, of which strange stories are told, appeared to him in a dream. She rehearsed the greatness of the emperor, but warned him against his intention. In the morning he related his dream and turned back. His followers, who had been wearied by the difficulties of the road, and the suggedness of the defiles, but had been afraid to make any remonstrance, were greatly delighted at his change of plan

When Jahangii came to the throne he resolved to take Kāngra and in the first place sent Shaikh Farīd Murtaza K, who was the governor of the Panjab, to take it. He died before he had accomplished the task, and Rajah Sūraj Mal was appointed to the undertaking. As everything has its appointed time, that scoundrel went the other way about. Meanwhile by the auspiciousness of the Prince the heir-apparent, and the excellent measures of Rajah Bikramājīt, the long-standing knot was unloosed, and in the 16th year Jahangii visited the foit and introduced Muhammadan rites there

The fort is situated on the top of a lofty hill, and has 23 bastions and 7 gates. Its inner circuit is one kos and 15 tanābs. Its length is a quarter kos and two tanābs, and the breadth is more than 22 tanābs, and less than 15. Its height is 114 cubits. There are two large tanks inside. The temple 2 of Mahāmāya is near the city, and is known as Duigā Bhavānī. It is regarded as a representative of the deity. Pilgrims come to it from a distance and obtain their hearts' desire. A strange thing is that in order to obtain their wishes they cut their tongues, and that some of them have their tongues restored in a few hours, and others, after one or two days. Though physicians regard the tongue as capable of regrowth, yet its restoration in so short a time is very extraordinary. In the legends they call the goddess Mahādev's wife (viz Mahāmaya), and the learned of the sect represent his energy by this name.

They 3 say that on seeing the evil she had done (to her husband) she committed suicide, and that her body fell in four places Her head and some of her members fell towards Kam-1ā1 in the northern hills of Kashmīi, and this place is called Sāradā 1 Other portions fell neai Bījāpūr in the Deccan place is called Tuljā Bhavānī The place to the eastward where portions fell is called Kāmākhya The place where portions remained on the original spot (of the suicide) is called Jalandhari This is the place (near Kangra), and near it flames burst out Some places burn as if they were tallow, and this is called Jālāmukhī It is visited by pilgiims, and they throw various things into the flame and draw favourable omens from this On the top they have built a lofty dome, and there is a great assemblage of people Apparently it is a sulphur mine, but the common people regard it as a miracle Even Muhammadans gather there, and some of them take part in the spectacle

¹ Taken from A N III 348

² Taken from Ain, see Jarrett II 312

³ Jarrett II 313, n 2

Some say that when Mahādev's wife ended her life, he out of excessive grief carried the body about for a while cohesion of the members was dissolved, portions fell in various places They worship at each place in proportion to the dignity of the member that fell there As the breast fell there (at Kāngra), that is regarded as the holiest of the places that a stone which the infidels used to worship was removed by the Muhammadans and thrown into the river Afterwards a cheating brahman showed another stone as that one Afterwards, the Rajah, either out of simplicity, or from cupidity-for much was obtamed from offerings—set up this stone in the village ın histories that when Sultan Fîrūz Shāh came to this neighbourhood he heard that the brahmans had from the time when Alexander Zū-I-Qarnīn came there, set up an image of Naushāba and worshipped The Sultan took the image and sent it to Medina into the highway in order that it might be trodden under foot. Ferishta² relates that there were in this temple 1300 books written by brahmans of old times Sultan Fīrūz Shāh sent for the learned men of the sect and had portions translated Out of these

¹ Text has an alif as the first letter, but the name is Sārada, or Shārada See Jarrett l c For Tuljā Bhavāni see I G XXIV, 52

² Newal Kishore's lithograph, Part I, p 148.

abstracts 'Izzu-d-dīn Khālid Khānī who was a poet of the time—composed a book in verse on the science of omens, etc., and called it Dilāīl Fīrūz Shāhī — In truth, it contained much about practical and theoretical sciences

When Rajah Bikramājīt, after the taking of Kāngra, joined, with a well-equipped force, Shah Jahan in the 15th year, news came that the Deccan rulers had, on hearing that Jahangir had gone off to Kashmīr, become refractory, and extended their feet beyond their proper limits. Especially, Malik 'Ambar had done this, for he had taken possession of the territories of Ahmadnagar and Berar. The imperial servants, who were gathered together in Mahakar, had contended with the enemy, but from want of provisions had gone to Bālāpūr, where too they could not maintain themselves. They had gone to Burhānpūr and joined the Khān Khānān. The enemy had attacked the imperial dominion and besieged Burhānpūr. As the settlement of the troublous Deccan depended upon Shah Jahan, he went off there with the great officers in this year of 1030, 1621.

After Shah Jahan had reached Burhanpur, five armies of 30,000 cavalry were dispatched to put down the rebels, under the command of Dārāb K, 'Abdullah K, Khwājā Abu-l-Hasan, Rajah Bikramājīt, and Rajah Bhīm Though Dārāb was nominally Commander-in-Chief, yet in reality the whole 'management was in the hands of Rajah Bikramājīt The Rajah marched in eight days from Burhānpūr to Khirkī—which was the residence of Nizām Shah and Malik 'Ambar-and thoroughly destroyed that city. When Malik 'Ambar saw destruction in the mirror of his situation he approached the Rajah with representations of repentance and humility It was agreed that lands of the value of 14 krors of dams out of the lands of the Deccan which remained in the possession of the Deceanis should be given up, together with lands which were imperial property, to the imperialists, and that 50 lacs of rups should be paid as tribute from the 'Adilshāhī and Qutbshāhīs, and that the Rajah should return with all the troops to the town of Tamainī (?) and encamp there

¹ Khāfī K., I 317.

⁹ Cf Khāfi K. I. 322.

Rajah in accordance with Shah Jahan's olders built near that town and on the bank of the liver known as Khalak Pūrnā a very strong fort and called it Zafrnagar. He spent the lainy season there

When Shah Jahan had settled the Deccan, time played another game The particulars are that when Nur Jahan got complete sway and had control of political and financial matters, and nothing but the name of king remained to Jahangir, she fell athinking that if Jahangu's long illness ended in his death, the empire would become Shah Jahan's Though he was perfectly friendly to her, how would be permit her to exercise all this power? Therefore she mained the daughter that she had by Sherāfgan to Sultan Shahiiyai, the youngest son of Jahangir, and set about patronizing him She became hostile to Shah Jahan and turned Jahangır's feelings that way also So he was sent for to court for the affair of Qandahar When he came to Mandu he wrote to his father that on account of the mud and slush of Malwa it was advisable to remain in Mandu till the end of the rains. As the Shah of Persia had to be opposed, it was necessary to collect equipments, and he asked that fort Ranthanbhur might be assigned for the haiem and for the families of the officers Also that the province of Lahore, which was on the road to Qandahar, might be given to him in fief in order that he might have facilities for collecting provisions, etc He also asked that until the termination of the expedition he might have the appointment and removal of officers

The Begam, who was all powerful, represented these requests as improper and made Jahangir believe that the prince's design was to take possession of the empire. She so worked upon Jahangir that he assigned the Qandahar expedition to Shahriyār, and took away the fiefs that Shah Jahan had in Upper India, and summoned his officers to court. Though Jahangir perceived the evils of these orders he could not help doing what pleased the Begam. He did whatever she said. At last it came to fighting. On the one side Jahangir left Delhi, and on the other side the prince came to Bilūchpūr. There were only ten kos between them. The prince's confidants represented that things had got beyond a peaceful settlement, Jahangir would not be quiet. The prince's army was better in quantity and quality than the emperor's, and they should engage. The prince replied that he could not behave so presumptuously, and in a way that was displeasing to both creature and Creator. If H M were defeated and he obtained the victory, what advantage would he get from such a sovereignty? And what pleasure would it give him? His only desire was that the evil advisers and stirrers up of strife might be punished.

At last it was arranged that the prince should turn aside to the left to a distance of 4 or 5 kos and halt in Kotlah which is in Mewāt, and that three forces under the charge of Dārāb K, Rajah Bikramājīt and Rajah Bhīm should attack and devastate the country round about the imperial camp, and so prevent the coming in of supplies Possibly, this would lead to peace When Āsaf K on behalf of the king came in front of the prince's troops, with 'Abdullah K. in the vanguard, the latter had previously said that when an encounter took place, he would join the prince's troops No one knew of this except the prince and the Rajah 'Abdullah in accordance with the agreement urged on his horse, and the Rajah perceiving this went to Dārāb K to inform him Suddenly Nawazish K, son of S'aid K Chaghatai—who was in the imperial vanguard—thought that 'Abdullah was making a He too urged on his horse and his contingent with the Rajah who was coming back with four or five men from seeing Dārāb He hastened to oppose Before assistance came up a bullet struck his temple and he gave up the ghost Both sides withdrew from fighting and returned to their own place Rajah had attained the rank of 5000 personal and horse, and there was no greater officer than he in the prince's service His brother Kunhar Dās was his deputy in Ahmadabad

(RAJAH) BĪR BAHĀDUR

Son of Bahrojī Sirkār (?), which is a section of the tribe of Dhangar His ancestors lived in the neighbourhood of Anagundī ¹

¹ Vijaynagar or Hampi in the Bellary district on the banks of the Tungabhadra, and which was formerly a seat of kings. It chanced that they had to move from there and come and dwell in villages near Bijapur. Bahrojī in consequence of his connections with Nīma! Rajah Sindiah—who had obtained an important office and extensive fiefs—received in the time of Nizāmul-mulk Asaf Jāh a suitable office and the fief of pargana Pālam in the province of Bīdar, and entered into service. When he died, Akājī his eldest son took his place and gradually attained to the rank of 7000 and the title of Rajah Bīr Bahādur, and got additional fiefs. In 1190, 1776, he died. He was acquainted with the Persian tongue and was skilled in poetry, and in duhara (dohra), which is an expression for rhyme in the language of the men of the Duāb. After him his son Sadharm and his nephews divided the hereditary properties, and continued in service. (Q)

(RAJAH) BĪRBAR²

His name was Mohesh Das, and he was a brahman and a bard $(b\bar{a}dfarosh)$ In Hindī such a person is called a Bhāt This set of men are the panegyrists of the wealthy Though Mohesh Das was without means and was in distressed circumstances, yet he was a congeries of eloquence and understanding By his abilities he became a favourite with his contemporaries, and when by his good fortune he entered into Akbar's service, he became by his wit and humour one of the favourite companions, and gradually took the lead of all the other intimates As he was skilled in the composition of Hindī verses, he received the title of Kab Rai, which resembles the phrase Malıku-sh'aara (kıng of poets) When in the 18th year the king was displeased with Rajah Jai Cand, the Rajah of Nagarkot, and imprisoned him, his son Budh Cand, who was young in years, assumed the position of his father's representative and entered on the path of rebellion The king presented the territory to Kab Rai, who had a fief there, and issued an order to Husain Qulī K, the Khān Jahān and governor of the Panjab, to the effect

I Text Tima But the word is Nima It seems to be a family name and is used by Tod in his Annals of Meywar Khafi K. has the word several times in his second volume, in the Bib Ind ed it is written Nībā ² B 404

that he should march there with the officers of the province and take Nagarkot from Budh Cand and give it to Kab Rai He also conferred on the latter the title of Rajah Bīrbai, ie the biave Rajah, and sent him off there

When the Rajah came to Lahore, Husain Qulī K and the fief-holders led an army against Nagarkot and besieged it. By chance, just when the garrison had got into difficulties, the disturbance of Ibrāhīm Husain M broke out, and as the suppression of it became the pressing work of the hour, the taking of the fort had to be put off. On the recommendation of the Rajah, Husain Qulī had to be content with receiving a tribute of five mans of gold from Budh Cand, with reciting the khutba and having coins struck in Akbar's name, and with laying the foundation of a mosque in front of the gate of the fort of Kāngia. When in the 30th year 994, 1586, Zain K Koka was appointed to chastise the Yūsufzai—who are a large tribe in the hill-country of Bajaur and Swād—he after ravaging Bajaur came to Swād, which hes to the north of Peshawar and east of Bajaur, and is forty kos long and 5 to 15 kos broad, and has 40,000 householders, and punished it

As the army was wearied out by traversing the defiles, he asked the king for reinforcements S Abu-l-fazl in his zeal and devotion begged to be placed on this service, and Akbar cast lots between him and Rajah Bīrbar As it happened, the dice gave the name of the Rajah After he was appointed, Akbar, out of caution, sent after him an army under the charge of Hakīm Abū-l-fath. When both leaders had entered the hill-country, although there was a dislike between the Kokaltāsh and the Rajah, the former prepared a feast and invited the new arrivals The Rajah displayed resentment and ill humour The Koka exercised self-restraint and went to see the Rajah, but when they consulted together, the Rajah, who was also previously on bad terms with the Hakīm, spoke with flippancy and rudeness, and ended with contumely and abuse

In fine, the mist of dissension arose between them, and each, from envy, tried to discredit the other's opinion. At last, on account of presumption and discord it came to their entering the defile of Balandī without proper arrangements. The Afghans overwhelmed them from every side with stones and arrows. In the confusion, men, horses and elephants got mixed, and a large number of men lost their lives. Next day they made an ill-concerted march, and in the darkness they got entangled in defiles, and many were killed. Rajah Bīrbar also fell

They say that when they came to Karākar some one said to the Rajah that the Afghans intended to make a night-attack, and that if he could get through the defile—which was less than three or four kos long—the danger of the night attack would be at an end. The Rajah without informing Zain-K. Koka, started off at the end of the day, and the whole army followed him, and what was to happen, happened. A great defeat befel the royal army, and nearly 8000 men with some officers and notables were killed in those two days. Though the Rajah tried all he could to get out, he was killed.

Whenever any one in his ingratitude and incognition of what is light treads the path of calumny instead of rendering thanks, he soon is pierced by the thombiake of the results of his actions They say that the Rajah whilst traversing these mountains was continually frowning in his heart and his brow, and would say to his confidants that the times seemed out of joint that he should have to accompany the Hakim and assist the Koka in traversing He did not hills and deserts What would be the end of it all? perceive that the furtherance of his master's projects and the carrying out of his commands was the main thing and the source of good Though it might be a cause of dissatisfaction, it was evident that Zain Khan, on account of his fosterage and rank, was the superior, and that the Rajah had only latterly attained the But his presumption was caused by his companionrank of 2000 ship and intimacy with the king

They say that on receiving the news of Bīibar's death, Akbar refrained for two days from eating and drinking, and the letter of sorrow which he wrote to the Khān-Khānān 'Abdu-r-Rahīm, and which appears among S Abul fazl's letters, shows what a place the Rajah had in the king's heart, and how close his connection with him was Accordingly, after expressions of praise, and mention of his loyality, he says, "Alas, a thousand times, that the wine of this wine-cellar has become lees, and that this sugarcane has become poison. The world is a deceiving and thirst-producing mirage, and a station full of heights and hollows. Crapulousness follows the drinking at this feast. Some obstacles have prevented me from seeing the body with my own eyes so that I might testify my love and affection for him."

Verse

"What heart is there that bleeds not for this sorrow, Whose eyes are not blood-shot from this grief?"

In fine, Rajah Bīrbai was among the singular of the age for liberality and generosity, and was famed for his gifts. He had perfect skill in music. His poetry and distiches i are well known. His takhallas was Baramba i (i). His eldest son i had the name of Lāla, and he received a suitable mansab. Owing to bad behaviour and self-indulgence he exceeded his income. When this was not increased, he took into his head to live in a free and easy manner, and in the 46th year he obtained permission to leave the court.

(RAJAH) * BIR SINGH DEO BANDĪLA

Son of Rajah Madhukar From the first he joined the service of Prince Sultan Selīm, and attached himself to his fortunes When he showed audacity in slaying Abu-l-fazl, Akbai repeatedly sent troops against him. In the 50th year it was reported that he with a few followers had gone off to the wilds, and that the royal troops were pursuing him. When Jahangir came to the throne,

¹ Text duhaza, but should be dohara or dohra

² The Darbār A 295 says that many people say his takhallas was Burhiya Badayūnī, Lowe, 164 has Brahman Dās, but the Persian text II 161 has Birham Dās, and it may be noted that a section of the Bhāts is called Birmbhāt Elliot, Supp Glossary, I 18 The editors of the Maaṣir give the variant Barhana "naked"

³ There was another son, Har Har Rai, who is mentioned in the 48th year, A N III 820, as having brought a letter from Prince Daniel from the Deccan There is a long notice of Bīrbar in Darbār Akbarī, p 295 et seq, and there is also a Hindustani pamphlet about him It seems that he was a native of Kālpī There is a tradition that his daughter was one of Akbar's wives

⁴ Blochmann 488, etc

Bir Singh Deo was laised in the first year to the rank of 3000. In the 3id year he was appointed with Mahābat Khān in the affair of the Rānā, and received a khilat and a horse. In the 4th year he went with Khān Jahān to the Deccan, and in the 7th year his rank was 4000 with 2200 horse. In the 8th year he hastened from the Deccan to join Sultan Khuriam, who had been appointed to chastise Rānā Ami Singh, and again came to the Deccan. In the 14th year, when the prince aforesaid went to the Deccan, he distinguished himself in battle with the Deccanis, when he had under him 2 or 3000 cavalry and 5000 infantry. When a disagreement occurred between Jahangii and Sultan Khuriam (Shah Jahan) Bii Singh came to court with a well-equipped force, and in the 18th year accompanied Sultan Paivez in his pursuit of Sultan Khuriam.

When in the end of Jahangii's reign, things assumed a different aspect, and there was much intriguing, Bir Singh, with the help of bribery extended his power over the estates of the neighbouring zamindars and acquired a wide and feitile territory acquired such power as scarcely any other of the Rajahs of India had attained to In the 22nd year, corresponding to 1036, 1627, he died The idol temple in Mathurā which was converted (2) by Aurangzeb into a mosque was built by him As Jahangii had been impressed 1 by his good service, he, from indifference, preferred pleasing this villain to observing the glorious Law, and gave him permission for building this idol-temple of a wretched religion. spent thirty-three lacs in making it strong, and especially in decoration and ornamentation 2 He also made in Undcha (Orchha) lofty buildings which for size and oinamentation surpass all others Especially there is an idol-temple by the side of his palace which is very lofty and grand A large amount of money was spent on There are the tank Shersagar, which has a circumference of 5½ royal kos, and the tank of Samandarsāgar, which is twenty kos word refers to the filling of the temple with idols. The account of the destruction of the temple is taken from the Massir A 95

¹ The good service was the killing of Abul Fazl See Maasir A 95, 96 for an account of the building of the mosque

² Parkārī, or purkārī Perhaps the round, in the pargana of Mathurā 1 In this estate there are nearly 300 large tanks. He had many sons. Among them were Jujhār Singh and Pahār Singh, of both of whom accounts have been given BIYĀN K.

He was a Fārūgī Shaikh and like the Fārūgīs of Khandesh he was styled Khān He attained to the rank of 2500, and held a fief in the Deccan, and entered into service He had the manners of a dervish, and his disciples speak of his extraordinary He had an old friendship with Saiyid 'Abdullah K. customs Qutbu-l-mulk (the Barha Saiyid) When in the year 1129, 1717. the Amīru-lumarā Husain 'Alī K proceeded from the Deccan towards Delhi in order to seize Farrukh Siyar, he was ill, and in the year 1130, 1718, he died and was buried in his own abode in the quarter of Fazilpūra in the city of Aurangabad His eldest son obtained his title His second son Muhammad Murtaza K. gained high rank and was made governor of the fort of Bīdar a pious man and one contented with fate He was a good friend He died in 1189, 1775, and is buried outside Haidarabad near the Fath gate (Q)

BURHĀNU-L-MULK S'AĀDAT K

His name was Muhammad Amīn, and he belonged to the Mūsavī Saiyids of Nīshāpūr At first he had the rank of 1000

A 96, has been described by Taverniere, II, p 403, Chap XII It seems to me that Taverniere's description applies better to the temple of Govind Das in Brindāban He seems to speak of it as an old temple, and not one less than 50 years old It was dedicated to Kesava Deva (Krishna) Glowse's Memoir on Mathura The site is now occupied by Aurangzeb's mosque, Growse, id 127 The Maasir A calls it the temple of It would seem that Keshav Rai some of the idols were saved and taken to Nāthdwāra in Meywār, Growse, Possibly Mathurā in text is a mistake for Jhatra or Chatra

¹ This must be a pargana in Bandelkhand In the history of Bandelkhand, ASBJ for 1962, p 114 it is stated that Bir Singh constructed the tanks of Bir Sagar and Barwa Sagar, and many others, in all 52 Bir Sāgar is in Orcha, 12 m SSE Orcha, and Barwa Sagar 18 12 m E Jhansı It seems probable that the Mathurā of text is a mistake for Maraura which is a pargana of Jhansi Mr Silberrad mentions a pargana Moth in Jhansi which may be what is Bir Singh built a great palace at Datia, id 114 The temple which Bir Singh built in Mathura and which Aurangzeb destroyed in 1670, Maasir and was enrolled among the Wālā Shāhīs (household cavalry) of Farrukh Siyar After the accession of the latter he was, by the instrumentality of Muhammad Ja'afar,—who then had the title of Tagarrib K. and was Khānsāmān, and in the beginning of the reign was, when there was a famine, also made in addition krori of the market (gang),—made his deputy-knoni Afterwards he was made faujdār of Hindaun Bīāna—which is a turbulent place and obtained a name for energy by his chastisement of the contumacious and seditious there He received an increase of 500. When Agra became the encampment of Muhammad Shah, he came there and joined him with a good force Together with Muhammad Amīn K Bahadūr he was an important sharer in the killing of Husain Alī K, and in the subsequent commotion of Ghairat K and other friends of Husain 'Alī he fought and distinguished himself As a reward he received the rank of 5000, 5000 horse and the title of Bahadur, and the grant of a flag and a Afterwards in the battle between Muhammad Shah and Sultan Ibrāhīm, leldest son of Sultan Rafī'u-sh-shān, whom Qutbul-Mulk (Saıyıd Abdullah the elder of the Bārha brothers) had raised up (as emperor), after the assassination of Husain 'Alī, Burhanu-l-Mulk was a leader and fought well After the victory he was raised to the rank of 7000 with 7000 horse and had the title of Burhānu-l Mulk Bahādur Bahadur Jang and was made Subahdār of the capital (Agra) When Cūrāman Jāt, who had been one of those brought forward by the Saiyids of Bārha, was killed2 in this battle by the imperialists, and his sons had strengthened their forts and raised the head of arrogance, Burhānu-l-Mulk was appointed to chastise them But as they had thick jungles and governor of Oudh in succession to Rajah Gīrdhar

l See Siyāru l Mutākherīn (reprint) I 186 Burhān received the insignia of the Fish for his conduct in this battle Sultan Ibrāhīm's title apparently was Rafī'u-l Qadr See Scott's History of the Deccan II 179 The Hadīqau-l-Aqālīm, p 384, says he was made governor of Agra in 1101, 1690 (but there must be a mistake in the figures here) and that he was made

² Perhaps this statement is due to wrong pointing of the text. In the notice of Churāman I 545 it is not said that he was killed in the battle, and though Beale says he was, the statement seems incorrect. See Elliot VIII 360

strong keeps, they were not punished as they deserved. Afterwards he was removed from his subahdārī and made darogha of the Headquarters' artillery—to which a daily salary was annexed (?)—in addition to the government of Oudh 1 He became renowned in that province for having a large army and park of aitillery and from his binding and killing the rebellious In the 21st year of Muhammad Shah, corresponding to 1151, 1739, when Nadir Shah came to India and the emperor went to Karnāl to engage him. Burhānu-l-Mulk had fallen behind, but by long marches he brought himself on As his baggage was behind and on the load. the Peisian aimy, on learning this, made a rapid movement and fell on it As soon as Burhanu-l-Mulk heard of this, he, in spite of the prohibition of the emperor and his advisers, acted hastily and went off to fight with the Persians with the force that he had with him They turned back and he went in pursuit, and then they joined with other troops and turned round and assailed him He was wounded, and by chance the elephant of Nisar Muhammad K Sher Jang his brother's son was mast and ian at his elephant, and drove it into the Peisian army There was no means of stopping him so that Burhānu-l-Mulk was made prisoner that he became an opportunist and impressed upon Nādir Shah the weakness of Muhammid Shih, and it was agreed that he should cause the giving of a large sum from the capital. After that an arrangement was made between Nadir Shah and Muhammad Shah, and Burhānu-l Mulk was ordered to go with Tahmāsp K Jalair to Delhi Accordingly he hastened there and arranged a lodging for the Shah in the fort On 9 Zi'-l-hajja, 9th March 1739, both kings came to the city and on the night of the 10th, 1151, 10th March, Burhānu-l-Mulk³ died of his former wounds

¹ Tophhāna i Hazūr Probably this has the same meaning as the phrase tophhāna i rikāb for which see Irvine's Army of the Moghuls, p 134 Apparently both phrases meant the light artillery which attended on the emperor The original of the words "to which a daily salary is annexed" is ke rūz talab mokarrarī ast I presume that the words refer to the office of superintendent of the artillery and not to the government of Oudh

² The Siyāi M says he became disgusted by hearing that he had been superseded, id I 313

³ See Beale, s v S'aādat K where some additional particulars are given He was the son of M Nāṣir and was fact, he was an energetic officer and was bold and good to the people. He left no sons. His daughter was married to Abu-l-Mansūr K (Safdar Jang). A separate notice of him has been given

BUZURG UMED KHĀN

Son of Shaista K 1 In the beginning of Aurangzeb's reign he was raised to a suitable mansab and was appointed along with his father, to obstruct Sulaiman Shikoh who wanted to cross the Ganges and join Dāiā Shikoh (his father) Afterwards he got the title of Khān and in the flist year of the reign, when the imperial aimy, atter defeating Shujā', proceeded to Ajmere to confront Dārā Shikoh, he came with his father from the capital and gained the In the 7th year he had the rank of 1000 with bliss of service 400 horse, and in the 8th year, when the port of Chittagong was conquered by his efforts, he obtained the rank of 1500 with Chittagong is on the boilders and is contiguous to the territory of the zamindar of Arracan who belongs to the Magh tribe The subjects of that zamindar were always attacking the imperial possessions when they had an opportunity, and committing plunder and carrying off prisoners After Chittagong was originally a merchant See also Elphinstone Sir Henry Lawrence, in an article on Oudh in the Calcutta Review for 1845, denies that he was ever a merchant The Siyar l-Mutakherīn says nothing about Būrhan's being wounded or of his diing of his It speaks of him as Saadat K and says he died of a cancer in his foot, I 316 There are several notices of Burhānu-l-Mulk in Elliot VIII There is also an account of him in the Hadıqau-l-Aqālīm under the article Nīshāpūr, p 383 of Newal Kıshore's lithograph It says he began his career as a servant of Mubarizul Mulk Sirbaland K named Buzuigumedpui. The fullest account of the taking of Chittagong is in the 'Ālamgīrnāma, p '40, etc. A Captain Moore* (?) is mentioned in connection with the victory, pp 948 and 952. Chittagong was taken in 1665. There is a translation of the 'Ālamgīrnāma account of the taking of Chittagong in the translation of the Riyāzu-s-salatīn, p 228, etc.

I Kewal $R\overline{a}m$ says he was the third son

² Khāfī Khan II 188 A large pargana in the Bakarganj district is ^{*} Captain Moore, as my friend Mr Irvine has suggested to me, is probably Captain Mor, ie Chief (aptain See Danvers' Portuguese in India, II 371, where it is mentioned as a title of Francisco Pereira da Silva Buzurg Umed took Chittagong in January 1666 See two valuable articles by Jadu Nath Sarkār in ASBJ for June 1906, p 257, and June 1907, p 405 conquered, it was included in Bengal. In the 30th year he was made governor of Allahabad in succession to Himmat K, the son of Khān Jahān Bahādur Kokaltāsh. Afterwards, he was made governor of Bihar. In the 30th year corresponding to 1105, 1694, he died. They say he was of a very haughty disposition. Musavī K Mīrzā Mu'izz whose pen-name was Fitrat, and who was the son-in-law of Shah Niwāz K Safavī, and was a learned man and a good poet, was made diwan of Bihar during Buzurg Umed's governorship, and went there. On the day of his first interview, as there was a small water-basin in the portico of the governor's house and it had running water, the Mirza without thinking put his hands into it, and rinsed his mouth once or twice. The governor was offended at this uncouth proceeding and reported against him to the Presence, and to gratify him Musavī was removed from his appointment.

(RAJAH) CABĪLA² RĀM NĀGAR

The Nāgar is a branch of the Brahman caste, and they chiefly live in Gujarat Cabīla Rām was the brother of Dayā Rām, and both were revenue-servants on the establishment of Sultan Azīmush-shān Dayā Rām, after some time, died, and Cabīla Rām became faujdar of Karra-Jahānābād When Muhammad Farrukh Sivar, in order to claim the sovereignty and to fight with his uncle Jahandar Shah, marched from Patna, Cabila Ram first³ joined with Sultan A'zzu-d-dīn, the son of Jahāndār Shah, and afterwards he came with some lacs of rupees from the collections of his t'alūgs and with a suitable force and joined Muhammad Fairukh Siyar In the battle he was opposed to Kokaltash K and did good service, and after the victory he received the rank of 5000, the title of Rajah and the office of Diwan of the Khālsa As this post, which is subordinate to the viziership, was given him without the approval of Qutbu-l-mulk the vizier (Saiyid 'Abdullah), it became a cause of disagreement between the king

¹ For Mūsavī's biography see III 633 See also Sprenger's Cat 109 and 408 Fe died in 1106 The Tazkira Huşainī 253 has a short notice of lum

 $^{^2}$ Caplain text See Irvine, Λ S B J for 1898, p 156 and note

 $^{^{$}}$ See Irvine, A S B J for 1896, 185, etc

and the vizier, and there were long arguments between them about it At last he received the government of the capital, and afterwards he was made governor of Allahabad, and went off In the beginning of the reign of Rafiu'-darjāt when seditious men raised to the sovereignty in Agra Nekū Siyar the son of Sultan Muhammad Akbar, it was reported that Cabila Ram wished to join him. But as he was on bad terms with the zamındar of his own province he could not arrive After Nekū Sıyar had been got hold of, Husam 'Alī K sought to punish Cabīla Before he set out, Cabīla Rām suddenly died in the first year of Muhammad Shah's reign, corresponding to 1131, 1719 After him his brother's son Girdhar, who was the son of Daya Bahādur, and was called his chief swordsman (Mīr Shamsher) attended to the collecting of troops and the putting in order of the fortifications of Allahabad Though an aimy was sent against him, under the command of Haidai Qulī K, vet at last, by the mediation of Rajah Ratan Cand, he received the rank of 5000 with 5000 horse, the title of Rajah Girdhai Bahādui, and the chaige of the province of Oudh, and went off there When the Saiyid's downfall arrived, he came from Oudh to court and did homage In the 7th year he was made governor of Malwa in succession to Asāf Jāh, and in the 9th year when Holkar came to Mālwa from the Deccan and stirred up stife, he opposed him and was killed in 1139, 1727 Till the arrival of another governor his sons took charge of the defence of the city of Ujjain

(KHĀN¹ 'ALAM) CALMA BEG

He was the son of Hamdam Koka, the foster-brother of M Kāmrān By his fortunate horoscope he became a favourite with Humāyūn and was made his table-attendant. When in the year 960, 1553, Kāmrān was blinded he made from the bank of the Indus the request to go to the Hijāz. Humāyūn went with a number of his intimates to take leave of him. The Mīrzā after paying his respects recited this verse.

But this fitle seems to belong to another Khan 'Alam B 512

¹ B 375, 378, and Badayūnī III, 385, who calls him M Barkhūrdār

Verse.1

The fold of the poor man's turban brushes the sky
When the shadow of a monarch like thee falls on his head.

Later on, this verse rose to his lips-

Whate'er comes on my life from thee is cause for thanks, Be it shaft of cruelty or dagger of tyranny

The king, who was a world of compassion and gentleness, showed sympathy, and bade him adieu Next day he ordered that all his servants who wished to do so were permitted to accom-No one volunteered Those who had boasted pany the Mīrzā of their love for him abandoned him Humāyūn said to Calma Beg Koka who was attached to his court "Will you go with him or will you stay with me?'' He, though he was in service at the court and enjoyed the king's favour, piefeired fidelity to temporal pleasure, and said, "I see that it is right for me that I, at this dark time and clouded nights of solitude, should be in the Mīrzā's service '' Humāyūn highly approved of his fidelity and gave him leave, and made over to him the money and effects which had been settled upon for the Mīrzā, and sent him to the When the Mīrzā died, Calma Beg obtained his desire of serving Akbar, and soon attained to the rank of 3000 and got the title of Khān 'Ālam

When in the 19th year Akbar, at the request of the Khān-khānān, who had been besieging Dāūd Kararānī who had hoisted the flag of claim to the countries of Bihar and Bengal, came to that neighbourhood and perceived that the taking of Hājīpūr, which is a foit over against Patna, while between them there rolls with great violence the Ganges with a breadth of about two kos, was necessary to the conquest of Patna, he appointed a force under the command of the Khān 'Ālam to go by boat He went up stream towards the Gandak, and in spite of a rain of cannon from the fort he disembarked and entered on the arena Many of the enemy were killed in that man-testing fight, and the fort

¹ See A N translation I, 606 The first couplet is imitated from the Gulistan, III 19

The Khān 'Ālam was the object of thousands of thanks and praises When in the same year Bengal, which was ın Dāūd's possession, was conquered without a battle and Dāūd went to Orissa and there displayed airogance, the Khān-khānān went to extupate him, with the Khān 'Alam in the vanguard On 20 Zī-I-q'ada 982, 3rd March 1575, there was an engagement at Takrūī (Tukaroı), a dependency of Orissa The Khan 'Alam, on account of being in the prime of life and of his excessive courage, dropped the thread of deliberation, and galloped too far A body of archers exerted themselves against him. The Khānkhānān got angry at this recklessness and spoke roughly and made him turn back His men had not been properly drawn up when Gujar K, who was the head of the hostile army, and whose swift elephants had their heads, necks and trunks diessed up with black Yāk tails and the skins of wild beasts so as to inspire terror, The horses of the imperial vanguard were frightened at arrived this extraordinary spectacle and fled The Khān 'Ālam, who was mounted on a veteran hoise, remained firm and behaved with courage and slew many of the foe Suddenly his hoise reared on account of a sword-cut and Khān 'Ālam was thrown remounted, and then a mast elephant came and flung him to the ground The Afghans crowded round him and finished him They say that before the battle he said, "Something tells me that I shall yield up my life in this engagement I am confident that my devotion will be told to the king " He had a poetical vein and wrote poetry Hamdamī was his pen-nome This verse is famous

Quatrain 1

O thou, why rum your white beard,
You pull out white hairs one by one, but the whole shows
'(white)

a num. You surrendered your youth to folly, paying hist, boots not now to pluck out your beard

¹ B 375, 378, and L 385, who calls him M Barnard us of the famous verse of Rochester which Goethe

(RAJAH) CANDAR SEN

He belonged to the Mahratta tribe and had the title of Jādūn His father Dhanājī Jādūn was one of the influential leaders who accompanied Sambhā Bhonsla He was always attacking and plundering countries with a large force. Accordingly, his name is mentioned in the notice of Rajah Sāhū Bhonsla. After him, Candar Sen obtained great influence among the Mahiattas some reason he became discontented, and in the reign of Muhammad Fariukh Siyai, he, on the recommendation of Nizāmu-l mulk Asaf Jah,—who had become governor of the Deccan for the first time,—entered the royal service and obtained the rank of 7000 together with Bhalki and other estates in Bidar He served with In the Panemahala 1 t'alūq—which is an expression 4000 horse for the parganas of Angūr (?) Maknahal, Amarcativa, Karīcor and Ūdmān, which are five estates in Sarkār Mozaffarnagar alias Mulkhair in the province of Muhammadabad Bidar, which were in his fief-three kos from the liver Kishna-he built a small fort on the top of a little hill and gave it the name of Candaigarha Asaf Jah had much consideration for him After his death, in 1156, 1743, his son Rajah Rām Cand took his place, and had the rank of 7000 and the title of Maharajah But on account of his addiction to wine, and neglect of business, his soldiers were always in want of their pay. In the time of Salabat Jang most of his estates were resumed on account of his injustice, and again for some reason they were restored Sometimes he applied himself to service and sometimes he neglected his duties
In the time of the heir-apparency of Nizāmu-d-daula Āsaf Jāh-when the aimy of Islam had entered the Mahratta country, and there was daily fighting—he colluded with them and at night went off with a body of troops As he was of a changeable disposition, and wicked, and was devoid of understanding, he did not acquire their confidence either, and after some time was imprisoned in Daulatabad. By the mediation of some persons he was released and after expressing repentance for his crimes he came before Nizāmu-d-daula

¹ This is not the Pancmahal of the IG This Pancmahal a lay in Bidar and west of Hyderabad

Āsaf Jāh. He was confirmed in his rank and fief When at last he did improper actions, confidence in him was lost and Āsaf Jāh put him under surveillance and shut him up in the fort of Golconda There he died He left two sons who obtained a small fief out of the hereditary possessions

(MIRZA) CĪN¹ QULĪJ

Son of M Qulij Muhammad K of Akbar's time He was learned and excellent He studied under Mulla Mustafa of Jaunpur and read the current books He was adorned with many good qualities, and was very liberal Nor was he wanting in courage and greatness of heart He advanced far in administrative matters and for a long time was faujdār of Jaunpūr and Benares say that he was skilful in entertaining, and that his assemblies were so delightful that they inspired desire to centenarian ascetics when they beheld them When his father died in the reign of Jahangir, his younger brother M Lahorī,2 who was his father's favourite and had been brought up with excessive kindness, but whose disposition was enough to leaven a whole world with petulance and turmoil, and whose navel-strings had been cut in devilry, joined him No long time had elapsed before his disordered brain had made him stretch out his hand against the king's territory. In Jaunpur he raised the head of presumption, and became notorious for sedition So far was this that M Cīn Qulij was killed in consequence of his wickedness, and his property confiscated They say that it took the clerks a whole year to make out lists of his property

In the year 1022, 1613, when Jahangir was in Ajmere, Mullā Mustafa, who was one of the learned men of Jaunpūr, was summoned to the presence with the intention of censuring him for his teaching of the Mīrzā Mullā Muhammad of Tatta was the spiritual teacher of Āsaf Khān, and on account of the profundity has learning was an intimate friend of that noble Khān He

¹ B 500, - nk J 148

² Qu The M 7 of Lahore

Frest Jah He Abul Hasan, elder brother of Nūr Jahān, and Shah Jahan's father-in-law B 369 For Mullā Muhammad, see Maasir III 369 entered into disputations with the Mullā and carried them on for a week without interruption. When he became acquainted with Mullā Mustafa's erudition, he interceded for him and saved him from calamity. The Mullā resolved to go to Mecca, and after that he went to his native country and died

M Lahori was a terrible specimen of the Divine Wrath, and full of wickedness He had no good quality He was a hideous lump of flesh, and his pleasure was confined to hearing the sound of the whip It was necessary that he should hear it all day long He never paused for an instant in his ill-treatment of God's people He used to bury his servants alive that they might bring him tidings of Munkir and Nakīr! When they opened the grave afterwards, the victim was found dead. In the lanes and the bazaar he rode over men's shoulders, and on account of his father's high position no one ventured to complain When his father was governor of Lahore he one day heard there was a wedding in a Hindu's house, and he went there and carried off the bride by force Whenever her kinsfolk complained to the father, he, in spite of his learning and piety, which made him regard himself as the mujtāhid of the time, was so overcome with fatherly affection that the reply he gave was that "it is just as if you had made a good connection with us" When M Cin Qulij was involved in his wickedness, M. Lahorī was seized and brought to court He was imprisoned for a long time At last he was released and received a daily allowance He lived at foot of the Darsan (window) of Agra on the bank of the Jumna and kept a number of pigeons He lived by begging and passed his time in misery and suffered the retribution of his evil deeds until he died.

Of the sons and relatives of Qulīj Muhammad K there were M Cīn Qulīj, Qulīj Ullah, Bāljū Qulīj, Banām Qulīj, and Jān Qulīj Most of them had suitable appointments

¹ Cin Qulij's father See B 354, and 501, and Tuzuk J 148, where as remarked by B, the story is told differently The account of M Lahori,'s character is borne out by Father Pinheiro's letter quoted by General

Maclagan, ASBJ for 1896, p 99 Pinheiro says that one of Qulij K's sons (doubtless M Lahori) ordered a man who was going through the bazaar to be hung merely that he might see how it was done!

CŪRĀMAN¹ JĀT

The Jats are a proud and seditious tribe Plotting is then profession and their hearts are stony. Though they live in the land of Pannah 2 under the pretext of being agriculturists, and have populous habitations and strong 5 forts, yet they have always practised thieving and lobbery from the environs of Agra to the borders of the province of Delhi Repeatedly have the imperial faujdārs become the victims of those rioters and have thrown away the com of them lives For instance, in the time of Shah Jahan, Murshid Qulī K Turkmān, the faundār of Mathurā, Mahāban and the Kumaon hills, was killed by a musket-shot while attacking one of the strong villages of that country banditti have often been chastised by the imperial troops, and have given their honour and their lives to the winds of destruc-But after some time one of the tilbe again laised the hand of violence from out of the skirt of sedition and reared the standards of insolence by plundering the highways. In the time of

¹ The author treats c and j as the same letter

² Sarzamīn i-pana A variant gives Patna, and M Alamgīrī, p 93, 2nd last line, has sarzamīn i-Patna The Jāts belonged neither to Patna in Bihar nor to Pannah in Central India, and it is clear from the passage in the M 'Alamgīrī that some place near Mathurā and in or near pargana Sa'īdābad in that district is meant, and it is also clear that that passage is the source of the statement in the text examined two MSS of the Maasir 'Alamgīrī and also two N'SS of the Maasiru-l Umarā, in the B M, but they do not altogether clear up the difficulty What they seem to have is Battiah, or Bettiah or Battih Perkins, who translated the Maasir 'Alamgīrī for Sir Henry Elliot, has Tabīa, but I can find no such place, and I think it is clear that the first letter is a P or a B The Maasir A that the Kokıla Jāt was a leading man of the village in question and that he was the cause of the killing of 'Abdu-n-nabī and of the devastation of pargana Sa'ıdābād Now 'Abdu n nabī was killed at Sahora, a village of the Mahaban pargana, Growse, pp 36 and 151 See also Maas r 4 83 where it is written Sora or Sahora the word intended is pattī, a village or share for there are many pattis in Mathurā see (rowse, p 340 also possible that the word is Mathura, there being not much difference in متهرا and در and Persian writing between It may be no ed here that Curaman was the son of Bhajja

Text, razih, but rasina seems to be the true reading

⁴ Bādshāhnāma II 7 and K K I 552 The occurrence was in the 11th year of the reign, 1657 Apparently the fight was in pargana Jadwār, Sambhal sarkār, J II 290 and Supp Glossary II 157 For an account of the Jāts see Supp Glossary I 130

Aurangzeb, Kūkla I Jāt by name, by his insolence and turbulence became the terror of the countryside He plundered and burnt the town of S'aīdābād² near Mathurā 'Abdu-n-nabī K, a famous fauidai of that place, attacked, in the 12th year (of Aurangzeb), the village of Sūra3—which was the abode of the miscreants—and sent many of them to annihilation In the battle a bullet caused his death, and he attained martyidom Aurangzeb sent off from the capital Hasan 'Alī K Bahādur to be faujdār of Mathurā and gave him a brave army and a park of aitillery. The Khan by his courage and excellent dispositions made that rebel, as well as his companion Sangī (text Sankī), prisoners and sent them to court The royal wrath caused both of them to be cut to pieces. limb by limb, while the son 4 and daughter of that scoundrel (Kūkla) were made over for their upbringing to Jawāhir K Nāzir The daughter was given in marriage to Shāh Qulī cela, a wellknown officer, and the son got the name of Fazil and became a hāfiz (reciter of the Qoran) In Aurangzeb's opinion no other hāfiz was so much to be relied upon

When the royal standards went off to take the forts of the Deccan, this seditious tribe seized the opportunity afforded by the sloth of the officers who laid their heads within the collar of comfort, and wrapped their feet in the skirt of perfunctoriness, and at once severed the chain of obedience, and stirred up a tempest of evil, and, under the leadership of one called Rajah Bam, oppressed many of the parganas and plundered caravans and travellers. Leading members of society were imprisoned and disgraced. The honour of bahādurs trickled into the dust of contempt, and sūbahdārs had to prostrate themselves before this impudent fellow. Of necessity Prince Bīdār Bakht and Khān

¹ M 'Ālamgītī 93

² M 'Ālamgīrī, pargana S'aīdābād 'Abdu n-nabī built the Jama' Masjid at Mathurā in 1071 or 1660-61 See Murray's Handbook to Bengal, 269 \ccording to Tiefenthaler 'Abdu-n-nabī was a convert from Hinduism

⁵ M 'Alamgiri 83, where there is the variant Basahrah It really is

Sahora in pargana Mahāban, E of the Jumna See Murray's Handbook to Bengal, 270

⁴ M 'Ālamgīrī, 94 For dahhtarān read dakhtar-i-ān

⁵ M 'Alamgīrī, 311

⁶ Lit Had to draw a line with their noses

Jahān Bahādur Zafi Jang were appointed from the Deccan, and they took much trouble and made great exertions On 15 Ramzān,1 4th July 1688, in the 32nd year, that wailike bandit received a gunshot wound and became a resident in hell, and the countryside was cleansed of his contumacy and violence head was sent to court After that, in the 33rd year, 16 Jamadaal-awwal² 1100, 26th February 1689, the fort of Sinsinī, 3 which was the residence of that miscieant, was taken from the hand of the infidels by the exertions of the fortunate prince (Bīdār Bakht, nevertheless the crew was not extirpated Reports of their oppression were continually brought to the emperor In the 39th year the eldest son of the Caliphate. Bahadui Shah, was appointed to chastise them And after that, Cūrāman renewed the When Shah 'Alam and A'zım Shah joined in battle, this evil-minded one collected a number of robbers and kept near the two armies and was prepared to plunder the vanquished soon as the defeat of one party was reflected in the mirror of his observation, he opened the hand of plunder and carried off goods He also laid 4 hands on the treasure and jewels, and in a moment got possession of what his predecessors had not acquired in a lifetime When Bahadui Shah, after returning from the Deccan, came to Ajmere, to punish the Gūiū (the Sikhs), and the line of march passed near their houses, Cūrāman made his appearance and removed the stain of contumacy from his coun-He was ordered to accompany Muhammad Amīn K Cīn Bahādur who had been appointed to proceed in advance against Afterwards, he bound up the waist of service and accompained 'Umdatu-l-mulk the Khān Khānān who was besieging the Gūrū in Lohgarha near the Barfī Koh 6 (snowy mountains) among difficult hills Afterwards, when the sovereignty was changed, and the ruler became suspicious, he, in his own native

¹ M 'Ālamgīrī, 311'

² do 334

³ Text Sansīnī "A village situated between Dīg and Kumbher" Elliot VIII 360 It is called Sansī in do VII 532

⁴ Khāfī K II 668

⁶ Khāfī K II 669

⁶ See Elliot VII 424 where it is stated that Barfī Rajah is a name given to the Rajah of Sirmūr See Khāfī K II 673

country, returned to his old ways and increased more and more in insubordination and contumacy, and by devastation and plunder produced insecurity and ruin up to the capital

In the time of Farrukh Siyar, Rajah Dhīrāj (Rajādhīrāj) Jai Singh Siwāī led an army against him, and Saiyid Khān Jahān the maternal uncle of Qutbu-l-mulk (one of the two Saiyids of Bārha), went off to assist with a proper force The rebel shut himself up When after a year's siege and after severe in the fort of Thun engagements he got into difficulties, he begged pardon from Qutbul-mulk, and asked for an increase of rank, and promised tribute. Though the Emperor was unwilling, yet in spite of his dislike, he (Qutbu-l-mulk) contrary to the wish of the Rajah (Jai Singh) persisted, 1 and summoned him, and gave him a place beside himself. The emperor was helpless and ordered that he should be received into service He was not again admitted to an audience, but by the favour of Saiyid 'Abdullah K he was raised to a high rank and was elevated from the low position of a robber to the zenith of Amīrship He strengthened the chain of unity and concord with the Saiyids of Bāiha and gave himself out as one of the loval and devoted adherents At the time when the Amīru-l-umarā removed the sovereign and set off to the Deccan, and Qutbu-l-mulk hastened to the capital, Cūrāman enrolled himself among the Amīrul-umarā's companions After that brave leader was killed, Cūrāl man stayed for some days in the Imperial army in a hypocriticamanner and wished to set fire to the Imperial powder-magazine, or else to drive off the artillery-bullocks He did not succeed on account of the carefulness of the officers and the arrangements made by the Head of the Artillery When Qutbu-l-mulk approached the Imperial army with the intention of giving battle, the scoundrel stole some sets of camels and three elephants and left the Imperial camp and joined Qutbu-l-mulk On the day of the battle he made great attacks upon the Emperor's baggage, and as his men held possession of the river-bank, he allowed neither friend nor foe to quench their thirst Whoever approached the water was destroyed The men who were assembled on a

¹ Siyar M I 106, 107 and Elliot VII 533

Jahān Bahādui Zafi Jang were appointed from the Deccan, and they took much trouble and made great exertions On 15 Ramzān, 4th July 1688, in the 32nd year, that wailike bandit received a gunshot wound and became a resident in hell, and the countryside was cleansed of his contumacy and violence head was sent to court After that, in the 331d year 16 Jamadaal-awwal² 1100, 26th February 1689, the fort of Sinsini, 3 which was the residence of that miscieant, was taken from the hand of the infidels by the exertions of the fortunate prince (Bīdār Bakht, nevertheless the crew was not extupated. Reports of their oppression were continually brought to the emperor. In the 39th year the eldest son of the Caliphate, Bahadui Shah, was appointed to chastise them And after that, Cūrāman ienewed the disturbances When Shah 'Alam and A'zim Shah joined in battle, this evil-minded one collected a number of robbers and kept near the two armies and was prepared to plunder the vanquished soon as the defeat of one party was reflected in the mirror of his observation, he opened the hand of plunder and carried off goods He also laid 4 hands on the treasure and jewels, and in a moment got possession of what his predecessors had not acquired in a lifetime When Bahadui Shah, after returning from the Deccan, came to Ajmeie, to punish the Guiu (the Sikhs), and the line of maich passed near their houses. Cūrāman made his appearance and removed the stain of contumacy from his coun-He was ordered to accompany Muhammad Amin K Cin Bahādui who had been appointed to proceed in advance against Afterwards, he bound up the waist of service and accompained 'Umdatu-l-mulk the Khān Khānān who was besieging the Gürü in Lohgarha near the Baifi Koh (snowy mountains) among difficult hills Afterwards, when the sovereignty was changed, and the ruler became suspicious, he, in his own native

¹ M 'Ālamgīrī, 311

² do 334

o Text Sansīnī "A village situated between Dīg and Kumbher" Elliot VIII 360 It is called Sansī in do VII 532

⁴ Khāfī K II 668

⁶ Khāfī K II 669

⁶ See Elliot VII 424 where it is stated that Barfi Rajah is a name given to the Rajah of Sirmur See Khāfi K II 673

country, returned to his old ways and increased more and more in insubordination and contumacy, and by devastation and plunder produced insecurity and ruin up to the capital

In the time of Farrukh Siyar, Rajah Dhīnāj (Rajādhīrāj) Jai Singh Siwāī led an army against him, and Saiyid Khān Jahān the maternal uncle of Qutbu-l-mull: (one of the two Saiyids of Baiha), went off to assist with a proper force. The rebel shut himself up When after a year's siege and after severe in the fort of Thun engagements he got into difficulties, he begged paidon from Qutbul-mulk, and asked for an increase of rank, and promised tribute. Though the Emperor was unwilling, yet in spite of his dislike, he (Qutbu-l-mulk) contrary to the wish of the Rajah (Jai Singh) persisted, 1 and summoned him, and gave him a place beside himself The emperor was helpless and ordered that he should be received into service. He was not again admitted to an audience, but by the favour of Saiyid 'Abdullah K he was raised to a high rank and was elevated from the low position of a robber to the zenith of Amīrship He strengthened the chain of unity and concord with the Saiyids of Bāiha and gave himself out as one of the loval and devoted adherents At the time when the Amīru-l-umarā removed the sovereign and set off to the Deccan, and Qutbu-l-mulk hastened to the capital, Cūrāman enrolled himself among the Amīrul-umarā's companions After that brave leader was killed, Cūrāl man stayed for some days in the Imperial aimy in a hypocliticamanner and wished to set fire to the Imperial powder-magazine, or else to drive off the artillery-bullocks He did not succeed on account of the carefulness of the officers and the arrangements made by the Head of the Artillery When Qutbu-l-mulk approached the Imperial army with the intention of giving battle, the scoundrel stole some sets of camels and three elephants and left the Imperial camp and joined Qutbu-l-mulk On the day of the battle he made great attacks upon the Emperor's baggage, and as his men held possession of the river-bank, he allowed neither friend nor foe to quench their thiist Whoever approached the water was destroyed The men who were assembled on a

¹ Siyar M I 106, 107 and Elliot VII 533

sandy hill by the bank of the Jumna were all plundered by him, so that even the office-papers (daftar sadārat) were looted tivity and insolence were such that the Emperor himself took a bow into his hand and shot arrows at him twice or thrice musketeers also discharged then muskets at him. When signs of defeat showed themselves, he went round and round in the neighbourhood of the camp by the route of Delhi, and fell upon the vanguished Wherever his hand could reach he took what was left After the rope of his life was severed? by the traction of death, Muhakam Singh and others of his sons made disturbances by means of their strong forts. With the fire of injustice and oppression they burnt up everything (lit the dry and the wet) dat K Burhānu-l-mulk the governor of Agra used all his energies to chastise them, but his sword did not cut, and the strength of his arm could not uploot the thorn. The Emperol sent Rajah Dhīrāj with officers and artillery against them The Rajah first attended to cutting the jungle, and with the help of the Moghul and Afghan heroes took two or three fortlets In less than two months—during which there were many fights and night-attacks on both sides—he made the position of the besieged difficult At this 4 time Badan Singh, one of their cousins, on account of quarrels and disputes about property, separated himself and joined He showed him the way to take the foit, and they at the Rajah once lost confidence, and set fire to their own powder-magazine The fort was taken possesson of But no trace was found of the treasures which were everywhere famous When the zamindari was by the Rajah's recommendation given to Badan Singh, Muhakam Singh also chose submission, and by the instrumentality of Mozaffar K the brother of Khān Daurān came to Court and made many efforts As he did not succeed, he from that time made his castle (badnā) and his home at Deeg Up till now he has not withdrawn his foot from the circle of obedience, and he makes a

¹ Elliot VII 541

² Beale says Cūrāman was killed in battle between 'Abdullah and Muh Shāh, but this seems a mistake Apparently he eventually committed sur-cide See Elliot VIII 360, and Siyar M 239, also Elphinstone 614

³ That is Jai Singh Siwai the founder of Jaipur See Beale, p 193

⁴ Khāfī K II 945 Elliot VII 521

show of service Accordingly, in 1150, 1737-38, when Asaf Jah Bahādur went forth to punish Bājī Rāo, he (Muhakam) sent one of his relatives together with a suitable force His men fought well in the Bhopal-Mālwa battle Though in order to pieseive their rank and name as royal servants they have left off their old habits of robbing and stealing, yet they have carried violence so far that the territory from within five los of the capital (Delhi) to one fourth of the province of Agia belongs to them as zamindari and jagii and as farm When they relinquish them (the farms) they give them to tiyuldars, and they take without any subterfuge, abundant toll (ıāhdāıī) from comeis and goers No one ventures Good God! the subahdars do not impute all this to complain bad management and disgrace to themselves The business of the sovereignty of India has come to a standstill

When Badan Singh went to his place (i.e. died) in the end of Muhammad Shāh's reign, his son Sūraj Mal surpassed i his ancestors in violence and proceeded to lay hold of the estates in the environs (of the capital) and seized the exchequer lands, and people's From the city of Shahjahanabad to Bhadawar, 2 and from the estates of the Kacwāhas to the bank of the Ganges-which on the other side belonged to the Rohillas—he passed by nothing, and took most of the parganas in the Doab, and in the year 1174, 1761, he also took possession of the fort of Agra At the time when the reigning sovereign Shah 'Alam was obliged to stay in the provinces of Bihar and Allahabad, Süraj Mal became offended with Najīb K (Rohilla) on account of estates on the borders and led an army against him A battle took place near Shahjahanabad, and although the Khān had but a small force, yet the arrogance and presumption of Sūraj Mal worked for him, and he suddenly stretched him on the dust of destruction The short account of this affair is that Sūraj Mal came forth with a small party to watch his own men who had been appointed to surround Najib K., and was going along incognito At this time a jam'adār of the Khān's companions, who recognized Sūraj Mal, fell upon him with a hundred young men of his brethien and put an end 1 to him. After him, his son Jawāhii Singh took his place, and in order to redress matters led a force against Delhi and made a commotion for a time. At last peace was made through the instrumentality of Mulhār Rāo Mahiatta. In the year 2—he began to behave ill to Rajah Ānīi, 3 and a battle ensued in which he was defeated After him, his brothers took the place of their ancestors. M. Najaf K. Bahādur prevailed over them and rooted them out. One of their descendants holds a small property

¹ Literally, advanced beyond his ancestors' pillow

² Apparently Bhadaurā a native State in Gwalior, I G VIII 21

³ In December 1763

(RAO) DALPAT BUNDĪLA

S Rāo Subh Kain s Bhagwān Rais Rajah Bu Singh Deo They say that Benares is the native place of this clan, and that an ancestor came from there and took up his abode in Khairagaiha Katak and received the title of Khairwāi. A long time ago, one Kāsī Rāj—the 24th ancestor of Rāo Dalpat—lived in the tract now known as Bundīlkhand, and paid his devotions to Bindeshwaiī Devī. On this account he received the name of Bundīla. When in the reign of Shah Jahan, the headship of the clan came to Rajah Pahār Singh, Aurangzeb at the time he was prince, and had charge of the Deccan, sent a letter (nishān) to Subhakain along with money and summoned him, and gave him the rank of 1000. In company with Saiyid Abdul Wahāb of

¹ Sıyar Mutākharīn IV 32, Elliot VIII 363

² The year is left blank but is 1182 or 1768 Elliot VIII 364-65

o He is called Rajah Mādhū Singh s Rajah Jai Singh in Elliot VIII 364 After his defeat Jawāhir was assassinated in Agra Jawāhir's brother Ratan Singh succeeded him, and he too was assassinated by a Hindu impostor who pretended that he was an alchemist The victories of Najaf K over Sūraj Mal's descendants are recorded in Elliot VIII 366, etc

⁴ Third s Bir Singh, JASB for 1902, p 115, where the name is spelt Bhagwan At p 103 id it is stated that before the rule of the Bundilas

there were Gharwar Kshattrīs who were Sūraj-bansīs by descent, who ruled in Kāshī, that is Benares

b The Bindhāsni or Durgā of the JASB article, p 104, where see the legend Kāsī Rāj is there called Jagdās or Pancham (the fifth son) See also Pogson's Hist of the Bundelas, pp 6-8 Apparently Khairāgarha Katak is Khairāgarh in the Central Provinces, IG XV 207, and the title Khairwār is Gaharwār See VA Smith, JASB for 1881, pp 1 and 3

⁶ The text omits the words ba uttrfāq "together with" and so makes the introduction of 'Abdu-l-Wahāb's name here unintelligible

Jūnagarh—who for some time had taken up his abode in Burhanpur—he was engaged in the conquest of Baglāna, and that country came into the imperial possession. In the beginning of the 32nd year of Shah Jahan, the prince (Aurangzeb) proceeded to the capital to inquire after his father's health, and when he came to Ujjain, he fought a battle with Maharajah Jeswant Singh

In it Subha Kain performed feats of valour and was wounded He also behaved equally well in the battle with Dārā Shikoh After the battle with Shujā' he was sent away to pursue and chastise Campat Bandīla Afterwards he was appointed to the Deccan, and in the affair of Bijapur he was in the Mīizā Rajah's left wing In the 10th year he quairelled with the Mīrzā Rajah and came to court, and was appointed to serve along with Muhammad Amīn K, the governor of Kabul But as his companionship with the Khan was not agreeable to him, he in the 11th year was summoned to court and appointed to the Deccan aimy He always did good service in battle, and in the 19th year, when the army, under Dilei K, had an engagement with the Deccanis, he and his son Dalpat were in the rearguard 20th year he fell ill, and he left Dilei K and went to Bahāduigarha-where his quarters were-and died in the 21st year Dalpat attained in the 11th year to the rank of 250 with 80 horse, and after some time he got $300 \ z\bar{a}t$ and horse, and after his father's death obtained 500 zāt and hoise He conciliated his father's servants by good treatment In the 22nd year he quarrelled with Khān Jahān Bahādui, the governor of the Deccan, and came to court, and afterwards he went back to the Deccan with Ā'zım Shah In company with Hasan 'Alī K 'Ālamgīrshāhī he went into the Konkan and did good service in battles 23rd year his rank was 600 with 600 horse duāspa (two horse), and in the 24th year he had the rank of 700 with 700 hoise, and in the 27th year when he, along with Ghāzī-u-d-dīn K, was bringing grass to the army of Muhammad A'zım Shah which was besieging Bijapur, he displayed courage in resisting the enemy, and his rank was raised to 1500 with 1500 horse, and he had the title of Rão In the 30th year when Imtīyāzgarha alias Ūdnī (Adoni) fell into the royal possession, his rank became 2500 with 1500 horse, and he received the gift of a drum and was made governor of the fort of Udnī (Adom) In the 33rd year he resigned this charge and came to court. After this, he was sometimes employed in bringing treasure from Aurangabad and sometimes in convoying caravans from that city to the camp. On the route he frequently chastised the foe. In the 31th year he was appointed to the contingent of Prince Kam Bakhsh, and when this prince attacked Wākinkera he took excellent charge of the rearguard and with the prince he in accordance with orders hastened to Ginji-where Zūl-fiqāi K was, and where coin was scarce -- with coin and other Zul-fiqui K placed him on the right wing. In the 14th year his rank was 2500 with 2500 horse, and in the 17th year it was 3000 with 2700 horse, and in the 19th year it was 3000 with 3000 horse After Aurangzeb's death he came to Upper India in company with Muhammad A'zim Shah and attained to the rank of In the battle which took place with Sultan A'zīmu-sh-shān he fell in the vanguard. After his death Bihārī Cand and Prithī Singh, his sons, disputed in their native country the possession of the property Meanwhile Ram Cand, his eldest son, who was in Satara, airived When the army of Bihāiī Cand also came forward, he retreated and went to court and joined when Bahādur Shah had halted near Ajmere When no one attended to him, he hastened to his native country and prevailed over his brothers Afterwards he came to Lahore and waited upon Bahādur Shah In the time of Muhammad Shah he was appointed to go with the 10yal army against Bhagwant Singh the Zamindai of Karia Jahānābād, and fell bravely in that battle. The remainder of the clan entered into the royal service, but the Mahrattas took possession of most of their estates At the time 2 of writing, an army of the hat-wearers (English)—who came from Bengal with the design of reaching the port of Surat-had stayed for some time in their country and worked much havoc there

As mention 3 has been made of the Feringhi hat-weaters, it is

¹ Rieu Cat I, 271 b

² This biography is by 'Abdu-l-Hayy The expedition referred to must be that of Colonel Goddard in 1779

³ Much of this account has been necessary to give some account of the doings of this tribe merly, they, with the permission of the rulers, inhabited the seashore and lived like subjects The port of Goa was their seat of In the time of Sultan Bahādui of Gujarat they got government a permit (qaul) by wiles and made two strong forts called Daman and Basī (Bassein) They brought a tract of country into cultivation Though its length was 40 or 50 kos, yet the breadth was not more than a kos or half a kos They cultivated the skirt of the hills and raised valuable products such as sugarcane, pineapple and rice They also made much money by planting many cocoanut and betel-nut trees Their current coms were ashrafis,1 which were silver pieces of the value of nine annas and struck after the European fashion, and lumps of copper which they called buzung One falūs is four buzungs They do not do any harm to the peasantry, and they have assigned a separate quarter for the Muhammadans But if any of the latter die, they educate² his children in their religion

When these facts came to the knowledge of Aurangzeb, M'aatbar K the Faujdār of Gulshanābād and son-in-law of Mullā Ahmad Nāītha, in accordance with orders, attacked them (the Portuguese) and made some of their men and women prisoners. Upon this, the Captain of Goa made a petition with all humility to the King and his courtiers to this effect. "We are your unpaid servants for preventing the wickedness of the priates of the sea, if you do not approve, we shall leave the land, and live upon the abridged from Khāfi K IJ 400 et seq See also vol I 11, p 468 See Elliot VII 344 Bassein appears to have at one time belonged to Gujarat See Bayley's Gujarat, p 20

¹ For an account of the Portuguese comage see Whiteway's Rise of Portuguese power, p 67, etc Ashrafis which were five-sevenths silver and two-sevenths copper were comed by D Luis d'Ataide in 1578 Buzurg is perhaps a corruption of bazaruco see Whiteway 1 c 68 and Hobson-Jobson, art Budgrook But it is not improbable that the word is bazarg "linseed "Buzung has been corrupted in Mahratta into Budrukh, so it or bazang may have become in English Budgrook

² Khāfī K I 469

[&]quot;In Baglana near Junar" Elliot VII 337 It is frequently mentioned in Khafi K M'aatbar is mentioned in Khafi K II 402 He was of the Naitha clan ocean" Then offences were thereupon forgiven, and an order was given to M'aatbar K to release the Feringhi prisoners Afterwards the King was offended by the Feringhis' plundering the ship Ganj 1 Siwāī—which was the largest ship belonging to the port of Surat,—and again an order was issued for chastising them. But owing to the subterfuges of the officials this was not carried out They (the English) inflicted injuries 2 (10q-u-10sha dawānīda) and guded up then lons to extupate the French, who after the time of Nasir Jang the martyr appointed one of their leaders to accompany Mozaffai Jang and were in the Deccan till the time of Āsafu-d-daulah Amīi u-l-Mamālik (Salābat Jang, 3rd s of the Nizāmu-1-Mulk) The English took possession of the Haidarabad Carnatic (Arcot), and afterwards they abolished the emperor's sway in Bengal, and also got possession of the province of Bihai grees they have now become the predominant partners in the provinces of Allahabad and Oudh They have established poits3 from Bengal to Arcot and the Tul Konkan, of the Deccan, and have also seized the port of Surat They have taken possession of Sīkākul (Chicacole) and other Sarkārs of Haidarabad At this time they have, at the instigation of Raghū Nāth Rāo, become involved in a quarrel with the Mahrattas and are making a disturbance in Gujarat O God, assist the followers of Muhammad May the peace of God be upon him and on his family!

⁴ Goa is a long way to the south of Junair It was the Portuguese of Damān, etc., that were attacked by M'aatbar See Khāfī K II 403 The date was 1103-1691-92

DĀNISHMAND ⁵ KHĀN.

He was Mullā Shafīā of Yezd He spent a long time in Persia in acquiring knowledge and excellence After he had acquired

l Text Gaj Siwāī But it is Ganj Siwāī in Khāfī K II 421, where there is an account of the taking of the ship It had sailed to within 8 or 9 days of Surat when it was attacked and taken by an English ship The Portuguese had nothing to do with this The year according to Khāfī K was 1105-1693-94 See Elliot VII 350

² The sentence is obscure The account agrees in its wording with

Elhot VIII 392 Perhaps the phrase there "who are ever in thirst for their blood" is the rag-u resha dawā-nīda of text For this phrase see Vullers II 96

³ Banadar Perhaps here means "factories"

⁴ The Tul Konkan is described in Khāfi K II 113 as the part of the Konkan which belonged to the 'Ādil Shah of Bijapur

⁶ Bernier's patron

the current seiences both rational and traditional, he in order to obtain a maintenance in an honourable way took a sum of money from Persian merchants on the arrangement of a participation in profits and came to the spacious land of India which is the capital of profits for the owners of hopes, and the possessors of desires He stayed for some time in the Imperial camp and accompanied it from Agia to Lahore and from thence to Kabul turn of the Royal retinue from Kabul he went to the port of Surat with the intention of returning to his native country. As his star was rising, and his fortune advancing, the extent of his wisdom and excellence became known to Shah Jahan. An order was issued directing the officers of the port to send him to court by the guidance of fortune donned the garb of pilgrimage to the world's throne and on 9 Zi-l-hajja of the 24th year, 23 November 1650 opened the gates of his own success by kissing the threshold of dominion

As the merit and ability of this man who was worthy of the royal favour again became impressed on H. M., who was a pation of the wise he was raised to the rank of 1000 with 100 horse, and an order was given that the peshkash of Sunday' for a year should be given to him. Afterwards his rank was increased, and in the 29th year he was made 2nd bakhshi in succession to Lashkar K, and he received the title of Danishmand K crease of 500 with 200 horse and so received the rank of 2500 with 600 horse. In the 31st year his rank was raised to 3000 with 800 horse, and in succession to l'tique K he was made Mir Bakh-In the same year he resigned the office, and lived retired in Shahjahanabad (Delhi) In the 2nd year of Aurangzeb he was again encompassed by royal favours and received the rank of 4000 In the beginning of the 7th year his rank was with 2000 horse raised to 5000, and in the 8th year he was Sūbadār 4 and guardian of the fort of Shahjahanabad In the 10th year he was made Mīr Bakhshī in succession to Muhammad Amīn K, and received a

¹ According to M 'Alamgiri 257 he was for a long time at Ahmadnagai as a trader

² Khāfī K I 703

Bernier I 67 He resigned because he did not approve of $D\overline{a}r\overline{a}$ Shikoh

⁺ Bernier I 249 and also 289 decorated writing case When in the 12th year the victorious standards of Aurangzeb went to Agra (mastaquiru-l- khilāfa) the charge of the capital (dāru-l-khilāfa, i e Delhi) was added to his office of Mīr Bakhshī, and he was sent to perform this work. In the 13th year 10 Rabī'-al-awal 1081, 18 July 1670, he died

This excellent Amii was one of the learned men of the age and was distinguished for his good sense and right thinking After him up to the present day, no one has been found who united learning with Amīrship. They say that when he entered the royal service he was directed to argue and dispute on scientific subjects with Mulla 'Abdu-l-hakim of Sialkot, who for learning and wisdom surpassed the wise men of old A better scholar than he was not to be found in India, and his wise comments on a number of influential books are a clear proof of this. There was a long discussion between these two learned men about the conjunction wau (in the phrase2) "Thee do we worship, and of Thee do we beg assistance" The very learned Staad Ullah K, who was in learning a master (dar'ılm 'alam būd ''ın erudition an ensign") was the umpne, and in the end the two were adjudged equal that day he was a favourite with the emperor and became an Amīr As to what they say that in the end of his life he became inclined to the learning of the Franks, and repeated many of the paradoxes3 of that set, it is improbable, when we consider his learning and excellence

DĀRĀB KHĀN

S $Mu\underline{k}ht\bar{a}r\,K$ of Sabzawāı Younger brother of Shamsu-d-dīn $Mu\underline{k}ht\bar{a}r\,K$ At the time when Prince Aurangzeb proceeded from

There is a portrait of Dānishmand in an album in the B M, Rieu II 779, No 38 Even Aurangzeb grew tired of Muhammadan learning and administered a striking rebuke to his old preceptor Mullā Sālih see Bernier and Manucci II 29 Apparently the Mul lā Sālih, referred to by Bernier, is the man mentioned in Pādshāhnāma II 624 and described as belonging to Badakhshān He also may be the Hakīm Sālih K of Maasir A 130

¹ M Ālamgīrī, 105

² Koran I 4 I do not know the point of the dispute There is an account of 'Abdu-l-Hakīm in the Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, p 340

³ Cr Bernier II, 134, who says that he used to discourse with Dānishmand about the discoveries of Harvey and Pecquet, and the philosophy of Gassendi and Descartes See also id II 209 These discussions took place early in the sixties and nearly twenty years before Dānishmand's death

the Deccan towards the capital in order to seize the sovereignty and to overthrow Dārā Shikoh, who on account of the illness of Shah Jahan had taken possession of the affairs of the empire, Dārāb received leave to depart as one of the auxiliaries of the Deccan When Aurangzeb became successful, Dārāb in the very first, and before the accession, received the title of Khān and was appointed to the charge of the fort of Ahmadnagar In the end of the second year he was relieved and came to court, and in the 9th year he was made Qarāwal Beg (chief huntsman) in succession to Faiz After that, he was also made superintendent of the spe-In the 13th year he was made superintendent of the Ghuslkhāna in succession to 'Abdulla Khān, and after that he was made Master of the Horse in succession to Rüh Ullah that he was made governor of Ajmere In the 19th year he came to court from there and in succession to Multafat K was mide He was also made 1st Mīt Tūzuk Head of the Artillery 22nd year he was sent with a suitable force to chastise the Raiputs of Khandila and to throw down the idol temples there When the Emperor came to Ajmere, Dārāb attacked that abode of disturbance and destroyed the idol temples of Khandīla, Sanaula, etc Three hundred odd Rajputs stood firm in their obstinacy, and not one of them escaped In the same year the 25th Jamāda-al-awal 1090, 24th June 1697, he died He had three sons and one daughter The eldest, Muhammad Khalīl, had the title of Tarbīyat K and of him a separate account has been given The second, Muhammad Taqī, married the daughter of Bahramand K bakh-His son was known as Min (or Mubin), and after his father's death received the title of Muhammad Taqī K, and in the 48th year was married 2 to the daughter of Shaista K, the son of Shaista K (the Amīru-l-Umarā) Aurangzeb was very fond of him the time of Bahadur Shah he received the title of his maternal grandfather Bahramand K In the time of Jahāndār Shah when the office of vizier came to Zū-l-fiqāi the Amīru-l-umarā, and the management of all affairs was in his hands, Muhammad Taqī, on account of his relationship, was made a Panjhazārī (5000)

I Maasir A 221, Maasir U I 457

of the business of the viziership was transacted by him. When by the bad trading of the old workmen of the sky in the market of the world, the shop of Jahāndāi Shah's power went to pieces, and another kind of goods came into use, the said Khān was chastened by having his wealth and property seized and his mansab and jagir taken from him. But again by the help of the Amīru-lumarā Husain 'Alī K, he was saved from these enveloping waves of calamity and brought to the safe shore of the Deccan. In Aurangabad he lived for a time in the dwelling (hawelī) of Sultan Mahmūd (Aurangzeb's son), near the 'Ambarī tank, which Aurangzeb had given to the deceased Bahramand

When the government of the Deccan came to Asaf Jah, he respected the Khān's family and spoke to him with much consider a tion, and gave him the government of citadel which yielded noth-For 15 or 16 years he lived there ing except retirement ent, a son occupies his place, and lives in the fort which is but a ruin The aforesaid Khān was even in this position a pleasant companion $(hh\bar{u}sht'a\bar{a}m)$ The third son is Kāmyāb K who was married to the daughter of Matlıb K He left a daughter who in the time of Farrukh Sıyar was married to Husain 'Alī K But the daughter of Dārāb was marued to Mīr Lashkar who was a descendant of Mīrzā Haidar Safavī Her eldest son, Askhai 'Alī K, was foi a long time governor of the fort of Dharap (Dharab) in the Deccan which for strength and solidity has been called Daulatabad the Asaf Jah, out of regard to his family, kept him in his presence and made him clerk of his jagus and dīuānī. At present he has some government work He is an old man, may God forgive him!

DĀRĀB ĶĦĀN MĪRZĀ DĀRĀB 1

Second son of the Khān-Khānān Mīrzā 'Abdu-r-Rahīm He was always with his father and distinguished himself in the campaigns Especially did he distinguish himself in the famous battle of Khiikī when he assisted his elder brother Shah Newāz K, and was honoured by obtaining increased rank. When in the 14th year of Jahangir his brother Shah Newāz died, he received the rank of 5000 zāt and horse and in the place of his brother became governor of Berai and Ahmadnagar. In the 15th year when Malik 'Ambar broke his promises and treaty, and stretched out his arm against the Imperial territories, thinking the expedition of the Emperor to the distant country of Kashmīr a good opportunity, most of the officers left their stations (thānahs) and collected near Dārāb. Khanjai K, the governor of Ahmadnagar, took refuge in the fort, and Dārāb having equipped his forces proceeded towards the Bālāghāt. 'Ambar's banditti (bargīān) every day prowled round him and there were repeated fights, in all of which the evil-fated foe was defeated and slain

¹ B 339 There is a portrait of Darab in the B M, Rieu II 780

One day Dārāb took with him well-mounted cavaliers and attacked the enemy's quarters, and a great fight ensued He was victorious and returned to camp with much booty After that, the enemy so bailed the coming in of coin that the tloops were reduced to distress, and Dārāb was compelled to leave the defiles of Rohankheia and to come down to Bālāpūr to encamp When the tyranny of the Cossacks of the Deccan proceeded so far that they crossed the Narbada and plundered the estates in Mālwa, Prince Shah Jahan again was sent to the Deccan, and in the 16th year halted at Burhanpur The victorious army attacked and devastated the Nızām Shāhī territory up to the Godavery, and sacked Khirkī which was the residence of Malık 'Ambar One day before the army anived, he had crept into the fort of Daulatabad along Malık 'Ambar was compelled to sue with the Nizāmu-l-Mulk for peace and agreed to pay fourteen knows of dams for the estates adjoining the imperial territories, and fifty lacs of rupees as tri-In the 17th year the Prince in accordance with his father's summons left the Deccan for the Qandahar campaign in company with the Khān-Khānān and Dārāb

When juggling Time started another game and there occurred a cloud between the Emperor and the Prince to such an extent that there was marshalling of forces and contention, the Prince, from a recognition of duty, ild not confront the Imperial army and turned aside Rajah Bikramājīt—who was his chief supporter—faced the Imperial army along with Dārāb — As it chanced, in the melée the Rajah was killed by a musket-shot, and the army became disorganized Dārāb could not maintain his ground, turned back and joined the Prince.

When Shah Jahan was constrained to send the Khān-Khānān from Burhanpur to Mahābat K for the purpose of coming to terms, and that old man washed the roll of loyalty and fidelity in the waters of forgetfulness, and joined the enemy, Dārāb with the children and grandchildren of the Khān-Khānān were imprisoned When Bengal came into Shah Jahan's possession and he aimed at the conquest of Bihar, he again received Dārāb into favoui and made him Governor of Bengal, but kept with himself as hostages Dārāb's wife, one daughter and one son, and his nephew When the prince after the battle of the Tons I (near) Benares proceeded by the same route back to the Deccan, he sent an order to Dārāb to proceed quickly to Gaihī (Teliagarhi)-which is the gate of Bengal-and to join him Dāiāb, from want of iectitude, saw the affair in another light, and wrote in reply that the land-holders had combined and were besieging him, and that he could not come Though the misbehavious and oppression of the landholders were true, yet he by not joining acted with dilatoriness and contrary to loyalty The prince was compelled to withhold his hand from him, but in his displeasure he made over his young son and his nephew to 'Abdullah K To a madman a suggestion is enough (2) and so 'Abdullah cruelly put both of these innocent ones to death Afterwards, when Sultan Parvez and Mahābat K heard of this they sent strict orders to the zamindais of Bengal to refrain from interfering with him and to send him to them When in the end of the 19th year Dārāb joined Sultan Parvez's army, an order of Jahangır came to Mahābat to the effect that there was no sense in keeping such a worthless fellow alive, and that he should quickly send his head to court Mahābat was bound by the order and immediately had his head cut off and dispatched

Shahīd pāk shud Dārāb miskīn

"The wretched Dārāb became a pure martyr" is the chrono-

¹ The Tons is a tributary of the Ganges It flows northwards and joins the Ganges on the right bank and in the Allahabad district

gram (1034, 1625) They say that Mahābat K had the head wrapped in a napkin and sent it to the Khān-Khānān—who was his prisoner—as a melon—The Khān-Khānān on seeing it said, "True, a beautiful melon" Dārāb was a young man of excellent qualities a piudent leader, and a biave man—No other did such feats as he in the Deccan—But his horoscope was unfortunate—He left the side of Shah Jahan, and was driven out by the Imperial side, so that his end was miserable

DARBĀR K

His name was 'Inayat, and he was the son of Taklū' K, the storyteller $(qissa-\underline{kh}w\bar{a}n)$, who was distinguished in the service of Shah Tahmāsp Safavī as a storvteller, and was a favourite with When his son came to India, he entered the service of Akbar in his hereditary capacity and became a companion received the rank of 700 and the title of Darbāi K In the 14th year, after the taking of Ranthambhor, and when the king had gone to Ajmeie to visit the shrine of M'uīnu-d-dīn, Darbāi K. took leave on account of sickness and came to Agra after arriving there As Akbai liked him much, he was greatly grieved at his death Darbāi K, from excessive fidelity and worship of his master, made a deathbed will to the effect that they should bury him at the feet of the king's dog-over which a dome had been erected-because in former times this dog had, from perfect fidelity, always abode at the king's threshold too used occasionally to take notice of this dog When the dog died, the king lamented the circumstance, and Darbar K erected 4 a building and buried the dog under the dome In accordance with his will be was buried under the dome

Good God! How far affection for the world carries us! And how many efforts and flatteries are used in such matters! To speak of the king's dog and to admit into one's mind thoughts of

¹ tarbuz shahīdī There is a play on shahīdī which means both martyred and beautiful

² B 464 where, and also in Persian text of Ain I 227, it is Takaltū

³ Akbarnāma II 339

⁴ A F does not say that Darbar erected the tomb, 1 c 339

world-worship at such a time when one should be occupied with one's God, and concentrate one's thoughts on Him! If it was hypocrisy, woe for him when they show him at the Resurrection along with the dog, and if it was devotion. God forbid that it should be so. Yet the end of things is obscure and God's mercy is wide!

Though Akbai did not possess fully 2 the aits of reading and writing, yet he occasionally composed verses, and was versed in history especially was he well acquainted with the history of India. He was very fond of the story of Amīr Hamza which contained 360 tales. So much so that he in the female apartments used to recite them like a storyteller. He had the wonderful incidents of that story illustrated 3 from beginning to end of the book and set up in twelve volumes.

Each volume contained one hundred folios, and each folio was a cubit (211ā) long. Each folio contained two pictures and at the front of each picture there was a description delightfully written by Khwāja that Ullah Munshī of Qazwīn. Fifty painters of Bihzād-like pencil were engaged, at first under the superintendence of the Nādhru-l-mulk Humāyūnshāhī Sarvid thī Judāī of Tabriz, and afterwards under the superintendence of Khwāja

It would seem from AN II 319 that Akbar was in the habit of passing by or visiting Darbār's tomb and that the latter's son Deo Sultan—who presumably was mad or violent—was found lurking there with an evil design. He was soized and imprisoned, and died in confinement

At p 332 of Elliot V it is stated that Akbar went into Darbar K's dining-hall after his death. Apparently the correct translation is that he attended the funeral-feast (majlis-it'aam)

¹ See Blochmann's remarks on this subject

² Khatt u sawād lāmal nadāsht Perhaps the meaning is "did not at all possess these arts"

³ The illustrations are referred to in the Ain B 108 It is said that there were 1400 illustrations, but if there were twelve books each of 100 folios and two pictures on each, there would be 2400 Hamza was Muhammad's uncle For an account of the "Story of Hamza" see Rieu II 760b Both Mir Sayyıd 'Ali and 'Abdu-s-Samad are mentioned in B 107 word in AF and in the Massir for illustration is majhs The Ain also uses the word moza Perhaps maylis is pleonastic for it is followed in the Maasir by the word taswii a specimen of 'Abdu-s-Samad's work in the Bodleian The reference to Akbai s listening to the story of Hamza is A N II 223

⁴ Author of a history of Akbai Rieu 922b

⁶ Text has khudāmī, but the vari ant Judāī is right See B 590

'Abdu-s-Samad of Shiiaz No one has seen such another gem nor was there anything equal to it in the establishment of any king. At present the book is in the Imperial Library

DARYĀ KHĀN ROHILLA

Of the Daudzai tribe At first he was a servant of Murtaza K Shaikh Farid Afterwards he became the servant of Shah Jahan during the time when he was prince In the fight at Dholpur with Sharīfu-l-mulk the servant of Sultan Shahriyai he distinguished himself, and acquired reputation When Ibiāhīm K Fath Jang, the Governor of Bengal, opposed the prince and was besieged in his son's tomb one los from Akbarnagai (Rajmahal), the fleet was in Ibrahim's hands and without boats the Ganges could not be crossed Daiyā K and 500 Afghans crossed by an unknown ford pointed out by the Teliya (the oilman) Rajah, and when some ten or twelve horses had not reached the other side Ibrāhım came to oppose them Daıya K stood firm and fought When 'Abdullah K -who wished to cross at the same place-saw this, he drew iein and went off to another ford. Ibiāhīm K sent off Ahmad Beg K after him to help his men, and when the prince learnt this, he directed Rajah Bhim to take 'Abdullah K with him and join Daiyā K But before they arrived Daryā K had twice attacked and defeated the enemy But as he was on foot he could not pursue them

When Ibrāhīm K learnt that Ahmad Beg had been defeated, and that Rajah Bhīm and 'Abdullah K had joined, he diew up his forces and opposed. When his companions could not resist the shock of the brave men and fled, Ibrāhīm and a few more were killed. The prince rewarded Daryā K with a lac of rupees and some elephants out of the spoils of Bengal, and when he left, Bengal and Bihar came into his possession. 'Abdullah K and Daryā K went off to Allahabad in advance, and in the first place surrounded the fort, and afterwards encamped at Mānikpūr on the bank of the Ganges. 'Abdullah K summoned Daryā K to assist him. Daryā K delayed to do so, and a disagreement arose between them. Meanwhile Mahābat K and Sultan Parvez arrived at the bank of the Ganges. Daryā K asked 'Abdullah for the fleet and the artillery in order that he might strengthen the fords and prevent the Imperial army from crossing 'Abdullah purposely delayed compliance, and their mutual disagreement injured their master's business. Daryā K, who in addition to the arrogance produced by victories was a continual drunkard, did not properly secure the fords, and Mahābat procured boats and crossed elsewhere Daryā K was obliged to join 'Abdullah and -Rajah Bhīm who had assembled in Jaunpūi, and from there they went to the prince's camp at Benares There it was agreed that they should give battle at Kankera 1-which was not devoid of strength—and keep the liver Tons2 in front of them. After a fight, when victory was declaring itself on the side of the Impenalists, the new servants of Darya K -who were disgusted with his ways-fled without fighting, and Daiya K-who was the leader of the right wing of the vanguard-also withdrew After that he in Junair unfaithfully left the prince's service and joined Khān Jahān Lodī, who was the governor of the Decean. He was not contented with this infidelity, but also stirred up Khan Jahan Lodi to rebellious thoughts After the accession, he, by a thousand supplications and submissions, obtained service and received 3 the rank of 4000 with 3000 horse His fief was assigned to him in Bengal, and he was appointed to go with Qasim K the governor of that province Afterwards he received in fief the pargana of Banādar (?) etc in Khandes, and was ordered to the Deccan campaign

At the time when Sāhū Bhonsla, at the instigation of the Nizām Shah, was stirring up strife in Khandes because the Khā Zamān, the governor of that territory, had gone off to take the

¹ Sarzamīn Kankerā Possibly it means rocky ground but more probably it is a misreading. The Iqbālnāma which is apparently the source, has, p 232, "the jungle of Kanpat," and there is the variant Kantīt for which see B 425 Probably Kantīt is right

² A tributary of the Ganges It flows N E and joins the Ganges in the Allahabad district on the right bank

IG There is also a Tons which is a tributary of the Jumna, but this is not the one here meant

³ Khāfī K I 401 He afterwards had an increase of 1000 horse Pādshānāma I 300

⁴ Pādshāhnāma I 226 It is mentioned there that he got a fief in the Deccan, but the name is not given At p 251 1d his fief is called Bashāwada fort of Bir from Saiyid Kamal the Nizam Shahi, Darya K came from his fief with lightning-speed to Sāhū and chastised 1 him and drove him out of the country When in the 3rd year the city of Burhanpur became the residence of Shah Jahan in order that he might uproot Khān Jahān Lodī, Daryā K came from his fief and did homage At that very time, he remembered friendship and tribal connection and fled, and joined Khān Jahān When Khān Jahān was defeated by A'zım K the Viceroy of the Deccan, and went off to Daulatabad, Daiyā K came by the Pass of Chālīsgaon? to Khandes and lighted the flames of devastation When 'Abdullah K was appointed to chastise him, he returned to Daulatabad, and at the same time he went off with Khān Jahān with the intention of stirring up strife in Uppei India, and came to Malwa he could not stay there on account of the pursuit by the imperialists, he went off, and when he came to the Bundīla country, he had a fight with Bikiamājīt the son of Rajah Jujhār Singh Daryā K was in the rear, and in the madness of drunkenness he took no account of Bikramājīt and unhesitatingly attacked him, In the melée a bullet reached him and he was killed about 400 Afghans were also killed. In the 4th year, 1040, 1630. 31 his head was brought to court at Burhanpur

DASTAM KHAN.3

Son of Rustam of Turkestan, and one of the Sih hazārī (holders of mansab of 3000) of Akbai His mother Bībī Bakhyah Begī was connected with Māham Anaga, and had access to the seraglio Dastam was brought up in the service of Akbar In the 9th year he was appointed, along with Mii M'uizzu-l-mulk to pursue 'Abdullah K Uzbeg, and in the 17th year he was among the auxiliaries of Khān Ā'zim Koka and was appointed to Gujaiat In the battle with Muhammad Husain Mīrzā he did good service and be-

l Pādshahnāma I 251

² Chālīsgaon is a subdivision of the Khandesh district—It was at the foot of the Sātmāla range—IG—X—127

³ B 398 and 620 It would appear from Bayazid Biyat's Memoirs, ASBJ for 1898, that Dastam's mother's name was Takhta Dastam is mentioned in the 7th year as having accompanied Akbar on his expedition to Paronkha, AN II 164 At p 177 of do his mother is called Najība Begam came distinguished Afterwards he came with the Khan A'zim and waited upon the Empeior In the 22nd year the sarkar of Rantambhoi was put into his fief and he was made governor of Ajmere After being for some time there he turned his attention to putting down the rebellious and to heartening the oppressed In the 25th year Üchlā, the son of Balbhadar, and Mohan, Sūr Dās and Tīlūksī, the brother's sons of Rajah Bihāia Mal, came without the Rajah's I permission from the Panjab to the town of Luni, then native place, and took to evil courses Dastam, in order to observe the respect due to the family of the Kachwahas, engaged in giving them advice At this time an order His mildness increased their turbulence came from Court to treat those recalcitrants with a mixture of promises and threats, but if they did not listen, Dastam was to punish them. He in his haste cast aside the thread of plan and went forth to fight with them without having gathered an aimy The three nephews were killed, but Ūchlā-who was the leader of the malcontents—took refuge in a field of millet (2 jawai) Suddenly he came out, calling "Dastam Khān," and engaging him wounded him severely with a spear Dastam, in spite of such a wound, killed him with his sword, and then fell to the ground. His men set him on horseback, and as long as the fight endured he continued encouraging them, until at last the rest of the wicked fellows took to Their houses were plundered Two days (vūz duwam) afterwards he died in 988, 1580 As he was energetic, disinterested, and tactful, Akbar regretted his death, and in comforting his mother said,2 "He was (only) separated from us for three years of his life, from you he was separated for many years Consequently his departure is harder upon us"

D'AŪD KHĀN

He, Bahādur K and Sulaimān K weie sons of Khizr K Panī At first he (Khizr) was a merchant, and afterwards by the

¹ The AN III 326 says nothing about the Rajah's leave

² Apparently Dastam and Akbar had met when the latter was only three years of age, and presumably therefore when he was at Qandahar or Kabul with his uncles, and the two must have been together ever since His mother perhaps ceased to attend Court when Māham Anaga died There influence of Bahlol K 'Abdū-l-Karīm he became a sirdar took part with Bahlol in the imprisonment of Khwas K. Afterwards Bahlol nominally appointed him to assist Shaikh Manhājwho along with the Deccanis had gone off before this to chastise Sīvā, but in reality in order that he might arrange for the killing After Khizi K had joined him, he one day of the said Shaikh invited him to a feast When the Shaikh came near Khizr's tent. the latter came out to welcome him, and the Shaikh, who knew his design, was beforehand with him and killed him, and then joined the army Bahlol, on hearing this, brought an army against the Deccanis and there was a great battle At last the Deccans made an alliance with the ruler of Haidarabad and joined D'aud K was then in the fort of Naldrug The Khanhim Khānān Koka, the governor of the Deccan, conciliated him, and in the 18th 1 year of Aurangzeb he became a servant of the king and received the rank of 4000 and the title of Khān His brothers and other relatives received suitable rank and Naldrug was taken for the government, and Zafarnagar in Berar was assigned to him as a residence

In the 26th year, after the imperial army had reached the Deccan, he with his brother Sulaiman and his uncle Ranmast—who was called 'Alī and in the 7th year of Aurangzeb had entered the imperial service and obtained the rank of 1500 and gradually risen to the rank of 5000 and the title of Ranmast Khān—had the good fortune to do homage In company with the other two he was attached to the retinue of Sultan Mu'ızzu-d-dīn and was sent off to Ranmast K got the title of Bahādur K, chastise the Mahrattas He was appointed, along with Rūh Ullah K and became famous to the seige of Wakinkera, and in the 34th year was killed in the batteries by a musket-ball from the fort His son Umi K, who afterwards had the title of Ranmast K, took up his abode in Ranmastpūra in Aurangabad On his death several sons remained. but at the time of writing none of them is alive D'aūd K obtained distinction by being attached to Zū-l-fiqār K. and performed

ıs a reference to Dastam ın Jahangır's Tüzuk, p. 256

¹ This apparently should be the

²⁰th See Maaşır Umarā I 802 which gives 1677 as the date feats in the seige of Ginji and in battles with the foe. In the 43rd year he was made Naib-faujdar of the Carnatic-Haidarabad-which was substantively held by Zū-l-fiqār, and in the 45th year the fauldari of Carnatic-Bijapui was added to this. In the 48th year he as deputy for Muhammad Kam Bakhsh was made governor of Haidarabad, and in the 49th year-when the king came in person against the fort of Wakinkera -he was summoned from Ginji and did good service in the seige of the said fort (Wakin-He behaved bravely and was treated with favour in con-After Aurangzeb s death he took part with Zū-l-fiqār in the battle against Kam Bakhsh In the 3rd year of Bahadur Shah, he as Zū-l-fiqār's deputy held the government of the Decean with the exception of Khandes, Beiai and the Payanghat the death of the Khān-Khānan he was made governor of Burhanpur and the Berai-Payanghat In Burhanpur his sister's son Bayāzīd K was Naib, Hīrāman Bakseria was the manager, and in Beiar another sister's son, who was called 'Alawal K, had the deputyship

When Muhammad Farrukh Siyar became sovereign, D'aŭd K was appointed to the government of Gujarat When the government of the Deccan came into the hands of Husain 'Alī K Amnu-1-Umarā, he proceeded thithei (the Decean) At this time D'aud K, in accordance with the king's directions, came from Gujarat to Burhanpui, and though after crossing the Narbada the Amīru-l-Umaiā proposed an amicable arrangement, it did not take place Outside the city of Burhanpur, in the 3rd year, D'aud K with a small force proceeded to oppose and behaved with Rustum-like courage, and drove on his elephant and broke the ranks. In that battle, in the year 1127, 1715, he was killed by a bullet from a Zambarak (camel-gun) and died without offspring But Bahādui K and Sulaiman K—who were his full brothers—did imperial service along with their elder brother The second one in the 51st year obtained the lank of 2000, and after the death of Aurangzeb was a companion of Muhammad A'zım Shah wards, when Bahādur Shah sat on the throne, he was made, in the 1st year, governor of Burhanpui, and in the 2nd year, after the king came to Burhanpur, as the ryots complained of his oppiession, he was set aside After Bahādui Shah's death he joined Azımu-sh-shān and on the day of the battle with the other princes in 1123, 1711, he was killed Except daughters' sons he left no offspring The eldest of these was Ibrāhīm K. After his uncle's death he had the title of Bahādui K, and in the 49th year he ie ceived suitable rank and the gift of a drum. When in the time of Aurangzeb the deputyship of the government of the Deccan came to Dāūd K, he (Bahādur) hecame Naib of Haidarabad, and ın the time of Muhammad Farrukh Sıyaı—when Haidai 'Alī K became Dewan of the Deccan—he was made faujdar of Qamarnagar alias Karnūl In the beginning of the reign of Muhammad Shah he, in accordance with orders of HM, came with Mubārik K and was killed in 1136, 1774, in the battle against Nizāmu-lmulk Āsaf Jāh His sons weie Alif K and Randaula K former was made faujdar of Qamarnagar, and the latter got a jāgir and lived with Āsaf Jāh Both died, and Bahādui the son of Alıf was made faujdar of Kaınul, an appointment which he held for a long time When the hat-wearers of Pondicherry made a night attack on the camp of the martyred Nāsir Jang, and discipline got out of hand, the said martyr, thinking that Bahadur was on his side, went towards his detachment (misl) which was the left wing As Bahādui K was in league with the enemy he knowingly and intentionally martyred him by shooting him. in 1164, 1750 He then formed an intimacy (sahbat kok) with Hedayat Mahīū-d-dīn K (Mozaffai Jang, grandson of Nizām-ulmulk) and assumed triumphant ways Though the leader, on account of prudence, temponsed, yet after the army had reached Raicoi neai Cuddapah he became impatient and the dislike became public. In the end there was fighting and the leader was wounded by an arrow and Bahādur was killed by a bullet verse is excellent

Verse.

Everything that succeeds in the world When it comes to the top, it fails No success remains in perfection, When the book is finished, the page is turned. At the time of this writing Ranmast K alias Manawar K the half-brother of Bahādur K is faujdār of Kainūl. He is a friend of the writer 1

D'AŪD KHĀN QORESHĪ

S Bhīkan K, who was one of the Shaikhzādas of Hisār Fīrūzā and was a chief and confidential servant of Khān Jahān Lodī the fight at Dholpūi, which took place between Khān Jahān and the loyal troops. Bhīkan flung away the coin of his life D aud entered into the service of Prince Dara Shikoh, and obtained influence with him by his courage and good qualities In the 30th year he was made faujdāi of Mathūia, Mahāban, Jalesar and other estates which on the death of S'adullah K became the prince's He also had charge of the road between Agıa and Delhı with fief 2000 horse In the same year he at the request of the prince received the title of Khān In Dārā Shikoh's first battle he was in the vanguard with Sataisāl Hāiā His brother S Jān Muhammad was killed Afterwards, when Dāiā Shikoh fled before Aurangzeb, he left D'aud on the bank of the Sutlej at the ferry of Talwan 2 which is a well-known crossing. Afterwards he fortified the further bank of the Beas in order to hinder the pursuit At last when Dārā Shikoh lost courage and fled from Lahore towards Multan, D'aud K, in accordance with orders, burnt and sunk the boats, and then joined Dārā. He went with him everywhere till he separated from him at Bhakar and went off by Jasalmīr to his native country of Hısār Fīrūzā As hıs experience and ability were wellknown he received from Aurangzeb a robe of honour On the return of the royal standards from Multan to Delhi he came and did homage and received the rank of 4000 with 3000 horse the battle with Shujā' he had command of the right wing of the reserve After Shujā''s defeat he was sent off with Muazzam K (Mīr Jumla) to pursue him towards Bengal When he came to

I This life was written by 'Abdu-l-Hayy In the life of Nāsir Jang in the 3rd vol it is stated, p 855, that the Nawab was shot by Himmat K and another person who is not named The occurrence was on the 19th

November 1750 Elliot VIII 391 There is an account of Nāsir Jang's death in the first vol of Orme's History

² Jarrett II 316, ın Sarkar Lahore.

Patna he was made governor thereof, and his rank was increased by 1000 horse, duāspa and sihāspa (two horse and three horse) When M'uazzam K in his pursuit of Shujā' had gone from the direction of Makhsūsābād (Muishedābād) to Akbarnagar (Rajmahal) D'aud was ordered to cross the river Ganges with his contingent and the auxiliaries, and to proceed to Tanda, which was the residence of the enemy, so that Shujā' might be pressed on two sides left his brother's son as his deputy in Patna and went off afterwards joined M'uazzam K and assisted in disposing of the business. When Shujā' left the imperial domains D'aūd retuined to Patna and addressed himself to chastising the sedition-mongers The zamındar of Palāwan (Palamow)—which is forty kos to the south of Patna, and the confines of which are 25 kos distant from that city—was always insolent, and the territory had strong forts, difficult roads and much jungle Relying upon these features he behaved presumptuously, and at this time he raised the standard of obstinacy and delayed to pay tribute The Khān, in accordance with orders, proceeded to conquer the country began by taking the forts on the borders, by relying upon which the zamindar used to oppress the imperial territories. the ruler was overcome with fear, and begged with contrition that the amount of the tubute should be fixed, and that he might be pardoned, D'aud did not listen to him, and in the 4th year marched to the territory with a well-equipped force Batteries were erected near the fort of Palāwan and there was hot fighting came from the Emperor to give the ruler quarter, and to make over the territory to him on condition of his submission and of his The miserable fellow stubbornly adhered to his embracing Islam paganism and D'aūd by successive engagements airived at the wall of the fort Though from the great strength of the place it was not thought that it could soon be taken, yet by secret (Divine) aid the heroes reached the fortification 1 of the wall and carried it The position of the garrison became difficult, and the zamindai fled by night After this victory, the Khan stayed some time in the country to settle it and to strengthen the forts. He then left Mankli K there-who had, by the Emperor's orders, been made fauidar of Palawan—and returned to Patna 1 After that he came to court and was appointed to the Deccan along with Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh to punish Sīvā Bhonsla. His iank was made 5000 with 4000 hoise, of which 3000 were two-hoise and three-hoise At the same time he was made governor of Khandes, and an order was sent that he should leave one of his relatives with a body of troops in Burhanpur and address himself to the duty assigned to him After taking the foit of Roimal he, during the siege of Purandhar, was sent by the Miza Rajah with 7000 horse to devastate Sīvā's country He burnt the villages and hamlets appertaining to Raigarha, and the dependencies of Kundana, and devastated many towns and then returned with his victorious troops wards he, with the right wing of the Mīrzā Rajah's army, ravaged the territory of Bijapur and fought several battles with the 'Adil Shāhī troops In the 9th year he was removed from the government of Khandes and was summoned to court In the 10th year he was sent off as governor of Beiar, and after that he was again governor of Burhanpur In the 14th year he waited on the Emperol and was made governor of Allahabad The date of his death Hamīd K his son had a great name for courage and always served the Emperor He died in the 25th year of Aurangzeb.

¹ Hisār-i-shahrband The expression comes from the 'Alamgīrnāma, pp 658 and 659.

DAULAT² KHĀN LODĪ

He belonged to the Shāhū tribe, and at first was in the service of Khān A'zim M 'Azīz Koka As he had an abundant share

¹ There is a full account of D'aūd's campaign in Palamow in the 'Ālam-gīrnāma 648 et seq There is a notice of D'aūd K in Manucci I 308 and 317 The campaign of Palamow is also referred to in the Massir A 37, and in Khāfi K II 129 The campaign began in the third year of Aurangzeb, 1070, D'aūd having begun his march against Palamow on the 22nd Sh'abān of that year (23rd April 1660), 'Ālam-gīrnāma 649 last line, but Palamow was not taken till the 4th year, 1071, December 1660 There is an abstract by Blochmann of the account in the 'Alamgīrnāma in the ASBJ for 1871, p 124, etc., and in the same journal for 1874, p 240, there is a letter from Colonel Dalton describing a large picture of the taking of Palamow It is preserved at D'aūdnagar in the Gya district of bravery and skill, the Khan A'zim, at the time of the marriage of his sister to 'Abdu-r-Rahīm's Bairam K, made over Daulat to him and said that if he wished to rise high and to get his father's title he should keep this man near him and cherish him long time Daulat accompanied M 'Abdu-r-Rahīm and did excellent He was a predominant partner in the Gujarat victory, in reward of which the Mīrzā got the title of Khān-Khānān. famous things in the Tatta and Decean campaigns He had attained the rank of 1000 in the Khān-Khānān's contingent, when Prince Sultan Daniel made him his own servant and gave him the When that Prince went from Ahmadnagar to congratulate his father on the taking of Asīr, he left Daulat to help M Shah-Rukh who had been appointed to guard that territory (Ahmadnagar) In the end of the 45th year, 1009, 1600-01, he died 1 of colic in Ahmadnagar He was one of the bravest men of Akbar was always apprehensive of his courage and daring, and they say that when the news of his death came he said, "This day Sher Khān Sūr has departed from the world" are wonderful stories told of Daulat K

² B 502

They say that when Shahbaz K. Kambū in the year 986, 1578, in the 24th year of the reign, was appointed to chastise the Rānā, he made very strict arrangements about the order of march and some of his servants went ahead, and all the mansabdars and servants came along with the $q\bar{u}r^2$ The $yes\bar{a}wal\bar{a}n$ (lictors) were so strict that they would not allow one horse to be in front of another by so much as an ear One day, the Khān-Khānān—who was also among the auxiliaries—was riding alongside of Daulat K Daulat came out of the line and did not heed the prohibition of At a sign from Shahbāz K —who had many hastithe yesāwals nesses—his brother 'Abdal K spuried on his horse and struck The latter drew his sword Daulat's horse on the nose with a stick and struck such a blow on the buttocks of Abdal's horse that it Shahbāz told his men to seize Daulat fell to the ground say that on that day Daulat Khān showed great activity, and did The Afghans, wonders, and boldly went ahead of the troops

¹ A N III 785

however, joined (with him) in making an onset. The Khān-Khānān in order to discharge himself of his obligation (to produce Daulat K?) sate at the entrance to Shahbāz K's quarters till evening. Shahbāz came out and embraced the Mīrzā, and permitted him to go to his lodging. Next day the Khān-Khānān brought Daulat K to Shahbāz's quarters and apologized for him Shahbāz gave Daulat a horse and a robe of honour and said, "Be you the protagonist (Imām "fugleman") of the army and ever lead the way "1

They say that when Shaikh Abu-l-fazl came to the Decean as general manager, he one day in an assembly where the Khān-Khānān was, said apropos of something, that the Indian sword was written about in books, but that he had never seen it. Daulat suspected an allusion, and flourished his sword and said, "This is an Indian sword, if I strike your head with it, it will go through?" The Khān-Khānān laid hold of his arm and put him out. The Shaikh was much disconcerted, and afterwards the Khān-Khānān by much importunity brought Daulat to the Shaikh's quarters and begged pardon for Daulat. The Shaikh rose up and embraced him, and gave him an elephant and a robe of honour and said that he had no allusion in his mind.

Stranger still is the story told in the Zakhīra-ul-Khwānīn that when prince Damel was displeased with the Khān-Khānān he in the heat of youth hinted to one of his blackguard-intimates that when the Khān-Khānān came, he should give him a push in the side so that he should fall from the fort of Burhanpur, which lies on the Tapti Accordingly, one day they did this to the Khān-Khānān, but he kept his footing. His turban however fell off The prince

no fighting on the first day, and the meaning is merely that Daulat insisted on going on in front and that his brethren—the Afghans—made a tumult and prevented the ushers or lictors from arresting him Apparently the incident belongs to the 23rd year of Albai's roign, 986, 1578 See Blochmann, 400, and Maasir, II 592

I The story is not well told, there being too great an effort at brevity, Apparently Daulat K broke his arrest and distinguished himself in the battle He was an Afghan, and the Afghans supported him. As he was the khān-Khānān's servant, the latter was responsible for him, and so sate at Shāh bāz's gate in order to get pardon for Daulat. Perhaps, however, there was rose and took the Khān-Khānān's hand and begged his pardon, on the ground that it was the result of drunkenness. Daulat put out his hand and took off the prince's turban and put it on the Khān-Khānān's head and took him home. But the story is improbable and is not consonant with facts, for at that time Daulat was in attendance on the prince, and not a companion of the Khān-Khānān. So it cannot be accepted by those who investigate

Among Daulat's sons Mahmūd became melancholy and eventually mad Remedies made him a little better. In the 46th year he went out to hunt and got separated from his companions Near the town of Pāl¹ he had a fight with the Kolīs and was killed Another of his sons was Pīrai who had the title of Khān Jahān Lodī. A full account of him has been given elsewhere

DAULAT KHAN MAYĪ

He is commonly known as Khwās Khān Mayī is a section of the Bhatti² tribe which make their livelihood in the Panjab by zamındarı, and by robbery He was the servant—nūmālbanlān (handkerchief-holder)—of Shaikh Faiid Murtaza K As in early youth he was very beautiful, whenever he came into the presence of Jahangir, the latter looked favourably upon him After the Shaikh's death he received a suitable rank, and as his horoscope contained advancement, he in a short time attained to greater ıntımacy and to the title of Khwās Khān, and was made superintendent of the mansabdars of the Jilau (retinue) who are trusted houseborn servants, such an office as his is only given to confidential men When Shah Jahan became king, he, in the year of the accession, received the rank of 2500 with 1500 horse, and as he was not devoid of energy and courage, he distinguished himself in the fight at Dholpur with Khān Jahān Lodī and fell wounded on the field His courage and alacrity were impressed on the mind of Shah Jahan, and his rank was increased

¹ There was a Pāl in Khandes on the boilders of Malwa, J II 222, but probably this is the Pāl in Kathiawar A N III 802 wrongly has Māl

Elliot, Supp Gloss I, 37 Mayi is the Mavī of Elliot, Supp Gloss I 99, who makes it a section of the Gujar tribe A note to text suggests that the word is Mati There was such an Afghan tribe See J II 403, n 2, 6th year his rank was 3000 with 2000 horse, and he received the title of Daulat Khān In the same year he was appointed to accompany Prince Shujā' to the seige of Parenda When he had advanced beyond Burhanpur, he was by Mahābat, the commanderin chief's arrangement, appointed to Ahmadnagar with 3000 horse, in order that he might chastise Sāhū Bhonsla and attack his native country of Chamārkūnda

In the 8th year in Muhairam 1045, 1635, he was made 2 governor of Sind in succession to Yūsuf Muhammaa of Tāshkend the 9th year he arrested 3 the false Baisangai and brought him to That trickster was an obscure person who gave himself out as the Baisangar who in Shahiiyai's battle was the leader of the latter's army, and who after fleeing to the fort of Kaulas' in Telingana died a natural death. The pietended Bāisanqai went to Nazr Muhammad K the ruler there wanted to make him a relation by marriage (khweshi, son-in-law?), but as his claims did not prove to be true the connection did not take place Then he went to Persia, and though Shah Safi did not admit him to his presence, he showed him some favour. From thence he went to Bagdad and Asia Minor (Rūm). After a long time, willingly and unwillingly, the hand of death seized his collar and brought him to Daulat K arrested him and sent him to court and he was put to death In the 20th year, Daulat received the rank of 4000 with 4000 horse, and was appointed in succession to S'aïd K to the government of Qandahai In the end of the same year he received the high rank of 5000 zāt and horse, suddenly evil fate became unkind and prepared for him the materials of ruin

In Zi-l-hajja of the 22nd year, December 1648, Shah 'Abbās the 2nd, ruler of Persia, addressed himself to the siege of Qandahai It was the depth of winter so that on account of the quantity of snow it was unlikely that help could arrive from India Though

¹ Pādshāhnāma I, Part II 36

² Pādshāhnāma I, Part II 101

³ Do 206

⁴ N N W Haiderabad N Bidar Abdu-l-Hayy, the second author of the Maasir, died there

⁵ Pādshāhnāma I, Part II 207 Can this be the man whom Olearius and Tavernier saw in Persia and took to be Bolāqī?

⁶ Elhot VII 88 et scq

the governor of the fort was vigilant in the matter of receipts and expenditure, yet he, from a confused mind, so neglected prudence that he did not make secure the towers which Qulij K had made For Qulil K had in the time of his government the foresight to build towers on the top of the hill Cahal Zīna (forty steps) from which guns and matchlocks could be fired into the fortifications of Daulatabad ¹ and Māndū The Persian musketeers took possession of them, and proceeded to fire from them One day the Shah For three watches the rode out in person and animated the fight flames of contest blazed, but he was not successful and turned But a number of liverless men threw the dust of disloyalty on the head of fidelity and shamelessly said to the governor that as the roads were closed, on account of the quantity of snow, there was no hope of speedy help alliving, and that it was evident from the energy of the Persians that the fort would soon be taken After the taking, they would lose their lives and their children would be made prisoners Daulat K, who should have quenched these flames by the water (ab, lustre) of the sword, from want of heart and worthlessness did not remember the verse

Verse

Whenever it is right for you to inflict a wound (i.e. an operation),

You'll do no good by laying on a plaster and replied by counsel and admonition Naturally this had no effect. But Shādī K. Uzbeg was the forerunner of all in the path of disloyalty and sent messages to the Shah

When at this time the fort of Bast was taken from Pur Dil K, and he was covered with contempt, Daulat K lost still more of the courage in which he was deficient and sent 'Abdu-l-Latīf, the diwān of Qandahar, to get a safe-conduct $(am\bar{a}n-n\bar{a}ma)$ which

¹ Treffenthaler I 75 says that Shah Jahan surrounded Qandahar with an earthen wall and also put walls to the forts of Doltabad and Mandur (evidently these were names of forts near Qandahar) The passage in text is taken from Wāris's continuation of the Pādshāhnāma BM MS Add. 6556, p 413b Daulat left the towers or forts unoccupied, and the Persians took possession of them See Elliot, id 90

was the seal of his condemnation, along with 'Alī Qulī K the brother of Rustum K, the Peisian commander-in-chief 'Alī Qulī had brought a message from the Shah to the effect that he should not labour to cause more bloodshed and disgrace to himself and others. Daulat K himself made a pietence of sending men to clear out the fort on the top of the hill, but as his heart was not in it, there was no good result

Though they say that if this spiritless man had by the guidance of right-thinking gone with a body of men to that strong position and waited there till the arrival of help, no harm would have come to him or his men, yet in the opinion of good judges it would have been impossible for him to hold out there 2 for three months-when Plince Aulangzeb allived with the learned S'aad Ullah K on 12 Jumāda al-awal, 14 May 1649, at the foot of the fort I admit this, but he from cowardice did not regard his honour which men regard as above price, and to keep which they sacrifice property and life Daulat K chose the perpetual disgrace of disloyalty and want of spirit which would not be removed from him till the day of judgment On 9 Safr 1059, 12 February 1649, he came out with his goods and his companions and much importuned 'Alī Qulī K to relieve him of the burden of doing homage to the Shah If this was inevitable, he begged that there might be no delay in his dismissal 'Alī Qulī having learnt both his wishes introduced him to the Shah in the gaiden of Ganj 'Alī K known as Bagh Ganj, and at the same hour he got permission He came there with a world of shame and loss to go to India As his faithlessness and ingratitude left no room for excuses, he saw that the door of intercession was shut in his face, and with a sad heart chose the corner of contempt, until the rest of his life was completed

In truth there is no question about his want of leadership and littleness of courage, for he surrendered a strong fort—which had five powerful defences to it, 4000 swordsmen and archers, 3000 skilled musketeers and two years' supply of materials, includ-

¹ Probably the word is baruftan and not baraftan

² Presumably this refers to the occupation of the Cahal Zīna hill

months He preferred a fleeting life to eternal fame though a number of persons threw in at night arrows bearing information to the effect that the Persian army was in great distress from the want of hay and coin, and that their cattle were dying and that help would soon come from India. If he stood firm for another month, the enemy would retreat without gaining their object. But this lost one had no fortitude. By the strength of misfortune (bedaulat) he gave to the winds the fortune (daulat) of many years of his life.

(RAJAH) DEBĪ SINGH BANDĪLA

Son of Rajah Bharatha After his father's death in the 7th year of Shah Jahan he attained the rank of 2000 with 2000 horse and the title of Rajah In the 8th year he was appointed, along with Khan Dauian, to punish Jujhar Singh, and received a drum After Undcha (Oicha) was taken—which formerly had belonged to his ancestors, and in Jahangir's time had, in oider to please Bir Singh Deo, been taken from them, and given to him—it was given to Raja Debī Singh, and he remained there He also became the head of the Bandīla clan Afterwards, when the king came to Undcha (Orcha) and proceeded towards the Deccan, he, in the 9th year, came to court and was sent to Saiyid Khān Jahān Bāiha who had been appointed to devastate the Bijapur territory He did good service there In the 10th year he, at the request of Khān Daurān, received a flag and a drum In the 19th year he in attendance on Prince Murād Bakhsh went on the expedition against Balkh and Badakhshan, and repeatedly performed brave actions, and on many occasions had hand to hand combats with the Almanan In the 22nd year when the fort of Qandahar came into the possession of the Persianshe again went, with Prince Aurangzeb, to take that fort battle with the Persians he stood firm, and fought bravely A third time he went to the same quarter with Dāra Shikoh he returned in the 28th year he was made faujdār of Bhilsa in

¹ Khāfī K I 6 8, who only speaks of one man's having given such information and of one arrow having been shot in

² The writer puns on his name

Malwa, and in the 30th year he went with Muazzam K Mīi Jumla to Aurangzeb in the Deccan In the 31st year he was summoned to court and was sent off with Maharaja Jaswant Singh-who was appointed to Malwa-to hold Aurangzeb in check As the Divine decree had gone forth for his preservation the Maharaja appointed him on the day of the battle to protect the camp In the course of the battle when Sultan Muiad Bakhsh rushed upon the royal (1 e Shah Jahan's) camp and this caused agitation and confusion, he out of foresight submitted to the prince and joined him the prince's recommendation he entered Aurangzeb's service, and after Murād Bakhsh's arrest he received a robe of honour wards when his zeal was made known through the \underline{K} hān Dauiān Saiyid Muhammad, his rank became 2500 with 2500 horse the second battle with Dāiā Shikoh he was made faujdār of Bhilsa in succession to Rajah 'Alam In the 3rd year he was appointed to chastise Campat Bandīla—who was being rebellious in the province of Malwa-and in the 10th year he was sent off to assist Shamsher K who had been appointed to chastise the Yūsufzais. In the 13th year he was appointed 1 to the contingent of Muhammad Amīn K, the governor of Kabul. When he came to the Khyber, that Khān was defeated After that, there is no further account of Debī Singh Outside of Aurangabad to the westward inclining to the south is a quarter which bears his name

DĪĀNAT KHĀN

He was Mīr 'Abdu-l-Qādir and the eldest son of Amānat K Khawāfī He was a man straight in conduct, weighty of speech, magnanimous and sedate He was distinguished for honesty and truthfulness, and for soundness of judgment and prudence He became known during his father's lifetime, in the reign of Aurangzeb, and his ability and justice adoined the age When his father was conducting the affairs of the Deccan, he had charge of the buildings of the city of Aurangabad When Aurangzeb came there, an order was given for renewal of the city-wall, the circuit of which was a thousand yards which is equal to two royal kos was undertaken under the superintendence! of Ihtimam K, the Kotwal of the army As the king was anxious that the work should be done quickly. Dianat undertook to do it in four months, and finished it by an expenditure of three lacs. After his father's death the king having been impressed by the excellent services of the deceased, took into consideration the position of all those who were connected with him, and especially provided for Dianat, who was the eldest and best of the sons, and increased his allowances As his younger brother Mir Husain had chiefly come under the notice of the king, he had his father's title, and the other was styled Dianat In the 34th year he was made diwan of the Deccan on the death of Mūsāvī K Mīrzā M'urzz When in the 43rd year his brother Amanat K the 2nd, who was the superintendent of the port of Surat, died, Dianat was appointed to the office received an increase of 500 and had the rank of 2000 management of the affairs of the poit was not approved of by the king. and he on account of his dissatistaction summoned him to court Afterwards he was made diwan of the Decean, and the water that had flowed away returned to its old channel (i e he was received again into favoui) After Aurangzeb's death, Muhammad A'zim Shah confirmed him in the same appointment, and left him in Au-1 angabad

¹ Maasir A 104 There is an account of M Amīn's defeat in the Khyber in Manucci II 199.

How can the power and influence of the Diwans of those days be described? They could make grants (tankhwāh) up to 99000 dams (1s 2475) under then own signature, and whenever they cording to the Mirāt two royal Los were equal to 3½ ordinary ones Compare Khāfi K I 488 where a description of the Daulatabad fort is given, and is stated that the circumference of the hill is 5500 dara Shahjahani which are equal to 1 kos, 10 jarīb (bighas)

According to Rosen's Persian grammar zira' and zar are different, the first meaning a cubit, and the second The Massir here then may be taken to mean yards

¹ Massir A 224 It was in the 26th The text and apparently all the MSS have "one thousand gar'a," 1 e cubits, but surely the words dama ash "its circumference" are a mistake for daura shash and the number of cubits should be 6000, which would more nearly approach to two kos, though even this falls far short of the number of cubits required, for according to the Mirātu-l'Ālam a royal Los contains 5000 zara' or cubits We ought, therefore, to have 10,000 gar'a

wanted they could from time to time add to such grants. As the grants of jagirs were not valid without the signature of the emperor of the prime minister (Nāzim-i-kull), and as with the exception of Khān Fīrūz Jang—who was stationed in Berar—there was no higher officer in the Decean (than Dīānat the Diwan), whenever a necessity alose, the lists of the grants of fiefs were brought to him (Dīānat) and that high officer entered the word "unexpectedly presented" on the deeds and signed them

When Bahādui Shah came to the Deccan, the diwānī thereof was nominally assigned to Muishid Qulī K., and Musāvī K. Mīrzā Mahdī was appointed his deputy until he should arrive from Bengal Afterwards, when Dīānat waited upon the king, he was received with much favour, and as the king designed to visit Haidarabad and the overthrow of Kām Bakhsh, he left some revenue-debtors (2) in the strong fortiess of Bīdar, and appointed Dīānat to guard that territory When Bahadui Shah returned from the Deccan to Upper India, Dīānat,—who had chosen Aurangabad as his home—was put in charge of the fort and citadel thereof and spent his days in ease and comfort. Afterwards, when Muishid Qulī came into the Presence from Bengal, he did not wish to undertake the duty (of Diwan of the Deccan) as his heart was in Bengal. On account of former good offices, the deceased Khān b

l Grants were made both of money and of land Compare Bernier who says his patron's grant was nagdī (cash)

² The whole paragraph is obscure, and I am not sure of the meaning in several places. I think that it must be Dīānat, the diwan to whom the grants were brought, and not Khān Fīrūz Jang, i.e. Ghāzīu-d-dīn K Firūz Jang, the father of the famous Nizāmu-l Mūlk Asaf Jāh of the Deccan, for he was at a distance and moreover he was not the prime minister. The expression ghair mutaraqqab occurs at vol III, p. 853, and that of nā mutaraqqab at 1, p. 6, and I think that the words after it are ba sanad namūda "showing on the grant" but it may be that they are basand namūda "contenting himself with this" There is a biography of Fīi ūz Jang at II, 872 I should mention, however, that my friend Mr Irvine is of opinion that the grants were submitted to Ghāzīu-d-dīn

³ He is mentioned in Khāfi K II, 396

⁴ Asāmī Mahal The expression is a curious one and I am not sure of the meaning Perhaps it means "ladies of the harem"

b The words "deceased Khān" are obscure and I am not certain that they refer to Murshid Qulī From the biography of Dīānat K the son it ap-

(Murshid Quli?) exerted himself to have the diwani conferred again upon $D\bar{\imath}$ anat

When the sovereignty acciued to Muhammad Fariukh Sivai the Diwānī of the Deccan was given to Haidai Qulī K Khurāsānī Before he anived, Dianat had died He had a share of learning and excellence The great book of the spiritual Masnavi (by Jalālu-d-dīn Rūmī) was read in his assemblies as a blessed thing His son was Dīānat K the 2nd, of whom a separate account has been given Among his daughter's sons, the one whom he loved most was Saiyid Amānat K, the son of his eldest daughtei, who was known as Aijmand K His father was Saiyid Atāī mad his father was from Tūrān haiyid Ahmad was of high genius and was associated with poetry and eloquence For some days he was his grandfather's deputy After that he became acquainted with Haidar Qulī K 1 and held the faujdāiī of Bīr In Gujarat he held the government of Pıtlād² on behalf of Haidai Qulī time before this he was appointed by Asaf Jah to the collectorship of Andūi 3 which is one of the known estates of Bīdai fortune and the disease of catalact (nazūl mā, 4 lit. descent of water) which prevents one from seeing without spectacles, he was confined to his house In this unemployment and idleness he became fond of alchemy and acquired a good knowledge of its technicalities from reliable books But success in it is a hidden treasure and is not to be found in diuggists' shops, and it is a matter of "The bounty of God He causeth to come to whom He chooseth "

DĪĀNAT KHĀN (son of the above).

His name was Mīi 'Alī Naqī, and he was the worthy son of Mīi 'Abdu-l-Qādīr Dīānat K By his straightness and honesty he was the equal (lit the second of two) of his honoured father. In pears that it was Zūl fiqār who procured the reappointments of father and son

¹ Text 'Alī but the variant is right

² J II, 253

^{3,} Qu ? Indūr in Sarkār Talingāna,

II 237, or perhaps Induri in Sarkar Kalam, J II 235

⁴ Nazūl 1-āb means hydrocele, but here nazūl-1-mā must mean cataract Apparently Dīānat had not access to spectacles He was the author's grand-uncle.

the discharge of his duties in the king's service he did not take the road of hypoclisy or connivance From the beginning of his years of discretion he was his father's deputy and acted as Diwan of the province of Aurangabad His father was Diwan of the Deccan and so abode in the royal camp Dianat also held the substantive office of the Biyūtāt of the city (charge of the public buildings) In the time of his youth he experienced an awakening and had a desire for devotion By a fortunate guidance he embraced the service of that knower of spiritual and temporal mysteries Miyan Shah Nūr, who was a dervish without vanity and who passed his time in asceticism and in trust in God Dianat was his devoted At the same age, he by the virtue of his association with that saint kept free of forbidden pleasures, and followed some of the pure ways of the sect When that illuminated (nūrānī) Pīr died, Diānat spent a large sum in the building and repairing his tomb, and made endowments of land, etc At the present day, in the decay of the once flourishing city, there is no other shime which is visited by far and near Besides the days of his and his successors' anniversaries, and on other days also, there is an assemblage of high and low, like what occurs on the Akhir Char Shambah2 When any poor person came to visit the of the month of Safr shrine he (Dīānat?)3 used to put two falūses into his hand in order that he might go and bathe at the public baths, and so he used to be called Shah Nür Hamāmī (the faqīr of the bath)

They say that this saint never told any one his family or tribe, or birthplace, or profession, but it was gathered from his words, and was inferred, that he was the son of a rich man of the east country (real Bengal or Bihar). His disciples agree that his life was prolonged beyond the natural limit. Stranger still, he never told to what order he belonged. In fact he never said a word about either $p\bar{n}$ (master) or disciple. He instructed and advised the sincere and his associates. After his death his order became current. The Khān appointed Saiyid Shihābu-d-dīn—who was

¹ He died on 2 Feb, 1693 (Beale)

² The last Wednesday of Safr and the day when Muhammad bathed for the last time. Hughes' Dict of Islam from Bihar, and for a long time had served Shah Nūr—to be his successor. After him, his sister's son Saiyid S'aad Ullah succeeded him. At present his (Sāed Ullah's) son Saiyid Qutbu-d-dīn known as Mjyān Manjhalī is the representative. In the flower of his youth he is ascetic and awakened, and acquainted with the traditional and rational sciences, especially is he adorned with humility and good dispositions.

³ Perhaps the saint himself is meant.

In fine, during the reign of Aurangzeb the Khān held the diwänship of Bidar and afterwards that of Bürhanpur and had increase of rank and the title of Khān When Shah came to the Deccan with his victorious army, Dianat waited upon him and was graciously received as he was a man of powerful frame and fine physique, of quick apprehension and clever, and acquainted with most of the sciences, and in every respect was of an original and inventive mind, pressure was put upon him to make him stay at court—which is The Khān on account of love for his the source of advancement birthplace had no liking for pomp, and could not bring himself to 1emain in attendance Some shortsighted persons from obliqueness of vision and eironeous notions brought a charge of alchemy against him They even represented this to the king The real facts are that the vapours of quicksilver or sulphur never touched his brain, nor did the odour of sulphur' or lead reach his nostrils But sometimes for the sake of sport and in order to excite wonder he would by legerdemain $(tandastih\bar{a})$ put a rupee into a fold of paper, remove the rupee to another place and show men the paper, and then produce the rupee At first sight the spectators were astonished This sort of thing got noised abroad and was the cause of his being arrested And so Bahādui Shah, at the time of

I Mis u risās, but there are different readings and the expression "smell" of copper and tin, or lead, does not seem appropriate The variant "ās" "ashes" is supported by many MSS and is probably right For risās B M 21, 470 has nahās "bronze" Cf chapter on the Origin of Metals, B 38 A. F' says that sulphur and quick-silver were the only component parts of "the seven bodies," and that quicksilver was called the mother of the bodies, and sulphur the father of the bodies. Also that risās was supposed to be silver in the state of leprosy, and quicksilver, silver in the state of apoplexy, and that an alchemist could heal them!

returning from the Deccan, took him with him by compulsion and brought him to near Ujjain - It chanced that at this time Murshid Qulī K M Hādī-who had come from Bengal and been taised to dīwāni of the Deccan—was seeking to resign his new appointment as his heart was attached to Bengal, and was trying to gain his desire Zül-fiqar K the Amīru-l-Umara gave, by the breath of kindness, new life to that hankerer after his native land (Dianat) by nominally appointing his father-who was spending his days in guarding the citadel of Aurangabad, and in spite of the Khān-Khānān-who was the chief cause of the supersession-procured Dianat's release from court by making him his father's deputy, and so made him happy by enabling him to return to his native country. In the beginning of Farrukh Siyai's reign he came to court Haidai Alī K of Khurasan the diwan appointed to the Deccan, who had no equal in influence, met him in Agra and in accordance with royal orders took him back with himself. He had groundless! apprehensions in his mind At the same time his father died and Nawab Nizāmu-l-Mulk Fath Jang (Asaf Jah) the Nazim of the country sent a recommendation that Dianat should have charge of the citadel This was granted and he was appointed After that the Amīru-l-Umaiā Husain 'Alī K in accordance with an agreement with his brother Saiyid 'Abdullah K entrusted the dīwānship of the Decean to Dīānat, and treated him with much honour and favour and conferred on him the title of Dīānat K

When that high officer had determined on returning to Upper India he took Dīānat, who had been removed from office, willing or unwilling, with him—After the destruction of Farrukh Siyar, he gave him the dīwānship of the Khālsa and the rank of 4000 Inasmuch as Dīānat had lived from the early youth in Aurangabad which, on account of its proximity to the royal camp, had no effective governor (hāris), and Dīānat also enjoyed special consideration on account of his father being in attendance at court, and used to spend his days in much security and independence, l Perhaps the meaning is that Hai dai 'Alî thought Diānat had come to Agia to supplant him.

² Zıyau-d-din had been appointed in his room Maasir, III 37

he had not submissive ways, not the understanding of people's dispositions Now he was obliged to study how to please the man in power (Siidar), but he took no pains to conciliate their Rajah Ratan 1 Cand—who had established himself in environment the hearts of both the leaders (the Saryids)-was offended at this, and set about defeating him. At length, the minds of both the leaders became prejudiced against Diānat by Ratan Cand's calumnies At that time Nawab Fath Jang (the Nizāmu-l-Mulk) had disposed of 'Alam 'Alī K, 2 and as he had now to deal with the faction of the Amīiu-l-Umaiā, he was using all his endeavours to collect money and soldiers For these purposes he wished to get by compulsion a sum of money from the rich Some well-meaning counsellors had regard to the lawfulness of inflicting private loss for the public gain and restrained him from vexing the commonalty and suggested the confiscation of Dianat's property, as he had been long suspected by the populace of having treasure and buried wealth Owing to the emergency of the times his eldest son was put under surveillance, and the gates of investigation were thrown open When nothing was found lying claimants set about excavating disused wells, and the result was that the dust of disgrace was spiinkled on the heads of the tale-bearers gold and silver, jewellery, and the household utensils of his own and of his near connexions, the total value of which was Rs 70,000, nothing was got except disgrace and a bad name (to the infor mants) The strange thing (tunfa) was that as the Amīi u-l-Umarā had taken a dislike to him, he regarded the commotion as a plot between the two (Fath Jang and Dīānat)

The Khān himself used to relate how "One day when the news came of the death of 'Ālam 'Alī K, I was asked (by the Saiyid) as to what should be done to amend matters. I said, 'There's a Hindustani proverb that when one's hand has been caught under a stone, it should be withdrawn slowly.' Here the very head of the Nawab (Husain 'Alī's) has been caught, for his

¹ He was 'Abdullah K 's diwan and had great influence The Siyar M I 66 says, he had originally been a shopkeeper honour is caught there! Now an order should be quickly sent giving the vice ovalty to the Nizāmu-l-mulk in order to conciliate him, and his amendment and punishment should be left until an opportunity occurs " He (Husain Alī) gave a glance at Rajah Ratan Cand and smiled saidonically and said, "I have sent money to the east (for recruits?) From here to the Decean there will be relays upon relays of carriage (?) There will be 12,000 torch-bearers and I will not halt even to take breath, and I will make no distinction between night and day ' The Khan said," The might and majesty of the Nawab is greater than this, but if you go so fast, how much of an army will accompany you, and what strength will remain to men and horses " He frowned and said, "To die is the perfection of soldiering " It is a hopeless case when a leader proudly 2 utters words like one who has lost his senses, and so the Khān answered, "When you have determined on a thing, trust in God "

² The Amīru-l Umarā's brother's son, killed in battle with the Nizāmu-l-Mulk in 1132, 1720

In fine, after the overthrow of the Saivids, he was favourably treated by 'Itimādu-d-daula (Muhammad Amīn K) and was sent off to the Deccan to take up the hereditary office of the Diwani He waited upon Fath Jang and was encompassed with favours When that great officer went to court to take up the Viziership, he entrusted to Dianat the care of his estates He increased more and more in his appreciation of Dianat and made him cheerful by restoring the money that had been confiscated, and moreover apologised for what had taken place The Khān said, "It was a subject for thanksgiving, not for complaining, for it (the plundering) had been a means of allaying a suspicion of wealth that had existed for many years Otherwise God (only) knows what kind of raging tyiants I might have fallen among, and how far they might have gone" After that, as his disposition was naturally self-opinionated and independent, he did not

¹ This alludes to the fact of Husain 'Ali's families being in the Deccan and exposed to the Nizāmu l Mulk's attack See I 333

² Text jurāat, but the reading of a BM MS jabiūt seems preferable. The text is wrongly pointed, making it appear as if this last sentence was part of Husain 'Ali's speech. But it really is a reflection of the author.

consort with 'Izadu-d-daulah 'Iwaz K the Naib Subahdai of the Deccan, and it was a case of "Hold aslant and don't spill"

When Nawab Fath Jang returned from Upper India, and there was an intention of giving battle to Mubariz K, the Khan, who could not be controlled when speaking the truth, and knew nothing about timeserving, without hesitation ascribed rebellion and falsehood to his own side, and spoke of the rights of the other side Consequently, it was reported that he belonged to the opposite party and he was nearly meeting with a great mis-The mildness and easy-going of the Chief (the Nizāmul-mulk) protected him, and after the victory he was merely deprived of his fief and office, and for a long time was confined to Again, Āsaf Jāh became kind to him and wished to restore him to his fief and office, but 'Izad-u-d-daulah from the old enmity opposed this and withheld the Nizām from befriending Though he behaved with independence and nonsolicitation and did not beg or importune, yet the anxieties of unemployment and vacancy at last made him ill In the month of Rajab 1141, Jan -Feb 1729, he died Though he was reported to be hard and rough, and did not in the king's business behave meicifully or with regard to relations and did not open wide the gates of praise and consideration for the world at large, yet for truth and honesty he was the unique of the age He did not take trouble about the preserving of dignities and the proper forms of address, but he secretly and clandestinely gave charities to the poor and Though he had but slightly studied the current sciences, vet he had studied rules of conduct and ethics, especially the commentaries of the Sūfīs, and could speak accurately about them He abstained from forbidden things But he did not much regard external observances, nor did he consort much with ecstatic Shaikhs He was spoken of publicly and privately for his great appetite' Though he did not eat so much, yet he was fond of dainties, and relishes with fruits and sweetmeats He was of a powerful frame and had a vigorous appetite. He was a skilful marks-

¹ See B 192 and note 1

² Kasıat ıshtihā Perhaps " numerous appetites," or "passions" is man with the gun and bow and was very fond of and much versed in hunting, in shooting at a target and in polo At Kandhilawhich is a village three kos from the city—there was a meadow of Zamu-l-abidīn K Khawāfī which was famous. He bought it and made a garden, and planted cocoanut tices. Time did not befriend his desire, though he wished to spend much money on it At present there are many flourishing cocoanut tices there eldest son was Mīrak Muhammad Taqī¹K who was unequalled for gentleness and friendliness. He was an exquisite companion He was for a long time charged with the buildings of Aurangabad After his father's death he was kindly treated by the Nawab Āsaf Jāh, and was made diwan of the Decean, and had the title of Wazārat K and the rank of 2000 In the 16th year of Muhammad Shah a madlike and poverty-stricken mansabdar one night without any reason attacked him with a sword. He hit him He was wounded, but the wound soon healed on the nose from that day there was a disturbance in his disposition and he went now to the other extreme He kept bravoes (mardam lhānajang) and cherised improper ideas, and gave himself up to destruction

Though his mature understanding and discernment were inconsistent with such vain thoughts, yet fate prevailed. He took to soldiering and leadership and became on behalf of the Nizāmud-daula Bahādur (Nāsir Jang)—may his fortune endure!—master of the army and went off to Dharūr and Dhārāsīn? He left the path of safety behind him and without having resources for independence and without power or influence, took up with every wicked wretch, nor did he understand the infamy of those people

At this time he, in Rīnāpūi, entered the service of the aforesaid Nawab, who aspired to the government of Haidarabad. It chanced on the ³ 16th Zi-l-hajja 1151, 16 Maich 1739 (it was the day), when the Shahīnshah Nādir Shah came to Delhi and ordered a general massacre, a soldier who was doomed to die behaved

l Perhaps this should be Nagī

² Dhārasıyūn, Elhot VII, 55, 50 m N F Sholapur

³ The meaning is that it happened on the same day, not that there was any connection between the two-things with violence and drew his dagger. One of the spectators was beforehand with him and killed him. A number of soldiers who were tribesmen and relatives of the slain man, rose up to fight, and some rioters entered Mīrak Taqī's tent and in the twinkling of an eye cut him to pieces with a hundred swordcuts. He did not know about this and had no suspicion, and did not lift his hands, and died a victim. Two youths who were not connected with him bravely fell in that turmoil. None of his friends or servants exerted themselves. Nor was any help given by the leaders who had assembled

It looked as if they had all wished for this thing What they wished, happened It is said that at his death all memory of the flavour of his energies and the sweets of his companionship departed from the hearts of his friends He (i e Dianat Mir 'Ali Naqī, the father) had many sons His second son, Mīr Muhammad Mahdī K., is dead He was pure of heart and an orthodox and God-fearing man, and was prudent in business, and he was also charitable When the diwani of the Deccan fell to his full brother the martyred Wazārat K. (Mīrak Taqī), he was put in charge of the buildings In the 15th year of Muhammad Shāh he died in his 37th year He left scars on the hearts of the sincere At the time of writing, another son, Mir Muhammad Husain K, is an object (lit vessel) of favour with Asaf Jah and is exalted by the hereditary diwānī and the diwānī of the establishment of Asaf Jāh. He maintains in perfection the honesty (dīānat) which he obtained by inheritance 1

DĪĀNAT KHĀN QĀSIM BEG

An Amīr of the reign of Jahangir, and one who became acceptable to him on account of his tact and diligence. After the advancement of I'timādu-d-daula, Dīānat spoke improperly about him in the king's presence and so was placed in the charge of Asaf K. Abu-l-hasan, in order that he might place him in the fort of Gwalior which was in his charge. After some time he was

I The length of this notice is accounted for by the fact that Dīānat Mīr

^{&#}x27;Alī Naqī was the son of the author's granduncle released 1 at the request of I'timādu-d-daula In the 8th year he was appointed reviser of petitions ('arz mokarıı) In the 11th year he was removed from that appointment and sent with Prince Sultan Khurram to the Deccan Nothing more is known 2 of him

DĪĀNAT KHĀN HAKĪM JAMĀLĀ KĀSHĪ

In the first year of Shah Jahan he was made diwan of the establishment of Mamtazu-z-zamānī (the Queen), and in the 4th year his rank was 1000 with 250 horse and he had the charge of the dīwānı of the Panjab ın succession to Mīr 'Abdu-l-Karīm he showed marks of trustworthiness he in the 5th year had the title of Dianat K and an increase of 150 hoise, and received the dıwānī, amīnī and faujdārī of Sarkār Sırhınd ın succession to Rai Kāsī Dās In the 9th year he had an increase of 200 horse, and in the 11th, after the fort of Qandahar had come into the royal possession, and Prince Shujā' had been appointed to Kabul in expectation of an attack by Shah Safī, the king of Persia, he was sent with the prince as diwan of the army In the 12th year he was appointed to the service of the "Branding and Verification" in succession to 'Āqil K 'Inayat K In the 14th year he received a robe of honour and a horse, and the diwani of Aurangabad, the Bālāghāt of Berar, and of the country of Telingāna which had been conquered In the 17th year he received an increase of 500, and in the 18th his rank was 2,000 with 7,000 horse In the 21st year when the dīwām of the Subahs was entrusted to the Rai Raiyan he came to court After that Prince Murad Bakhsh had shown himself displeased with the Rai Rayan, Dīanat K was in the 22nd year made diwan of the four provinces In the 27th year after being relieved of that charge he came to court and was made diwan of the establishment of Prince Muiad Bakhsh - After wards when the well-wishers of Aurangzeb had their desires fulfilled, he had court service, such as the Superintendentship of the Branding In the 8th year of Aurangreb he was made diwan of

Tozuk J 149 This was in the 10th year He was made reviser of the petitions in the same year, do 150

[&]quot; He came from Agia and waited on Jahangir in the 17th year, and he was pardoned and restored to his former rank, Tüzuk 3.55

the Biyūtāt, and in the 9th year he was removed from that employment and in the 16th year corresponding to 1083, 1672, he died His sons Dev-āfkan, Sher-āfkan and Rustum received mourning robes of honour. The first of them was made in the 24th year Superintendent of the "Bianding and Verification" and had the title of M'utamid K. The other two also obtained suitable mansabs

DĪĀNAT KHĀN

Muhammad Husain Dasht Bayazi The Dasht 2 Bayaz 15 one of the nine tracts of the country of Qohistan He was one of the nobles of that country and was the unique of the age for his knowledge of history By the guidance of good fortune he entered the service of Shah Jahan in Junan and was admitted to intimacy and influence On the day of the Accession he received the rank of 2,000 with 800 hoise, and a piesent of Rs 8,000 When, after the death of Jahangu, Khān Jahān Lodī, the governor of the Deccan took some steps which indicated insincerity towards Shah Jahan, or rather which were repugnant to royalty and fidelity, the latter, though, owing to the necessity of the time, he issued orders for his being confirmed in his government, and rank and fief, yet he made many inquiries about his actions For Khān Jahān had taken away Mālwa from Mozaffar K, who was the governor thereof, and had laid hold of it, and all the leaders of the Deccan auxiliary forces were devoted to him, and the Nizām Shāh was his partizan because he had surrendered to him (the Nizām) the territory of the Bālāghāt (above the passes) Shah Jahan feared lest he might rebel, and in the first year of his reign he appointed Dīānat K —who had a reputation for sound judgment and good sense—to be wāqa'navīs 6 (Recorder) of the Deccan, and gave him

¹ Maasir A 121, where it is said that Dianat was famous for his knowledge of astrology

¹ The white plain It was a d strict of the Qohistan of Khurāsān, towards Afghanistan The Qohistān begins at the frontiers of Herat and extends to Nahavand and Hamadan (Yāqūt Barbier de Meynard)

³ Pādshāhnāma I 119, where the present is stated as Rs 7,000

⁴ Pādshāhnāma I 76 See also the biography of Khān Jahān Lodī I 716

⁵ Pādshāhnāma I 205, where it is said that he wa also made Bakhshī secret instructions to make himself acquainted with the secrets of Khān Jahān's heart and to ascertain what his projects were and to report them After Dianat arrived at Burhanpur he, from his perfect skill in physiognomy and his wisdom, wrote strongly to the emperor to the effect that the distuibing and rebellious acts of this man (Khān Jahān) were the result of his suspicions, and that in reality he was in great fear and had lost heart. He could not originate such projects (of rebellion). Shah Jahan might in full confidence invite Khān Jahan to court, for there was no likelihood of any disturbance in the country. On receiving this report Shah Jahan gave up his apprehensions, and removed Khān Jahan from the Deccan and made him governoi of Mālwa And he made Dīānat governor of the fort of Ahmadnagai In the beginning of the 2nd year he had an increase 1 of 500 $z\bar{a}t$ and 700 horse the 3rd year Burhanpur became the residence of Shah Jahan his rank was increased to 2,500 with 2,000 horse. In the same year, 1040, 1630-31, he died 2 in Ahmadnagai.

DILĀWAR K BAHĀDUR

He was Muhammad N'aīm, the third son of Dilāwai K 'Abdu-l-'azīz, s Mīr 'Abdu-l-Hakīm, s Mīr 'Abdu-l-Rahīm, s Maulānā Kamāl of Naishāpūr, who was brother of Maulānā Jamāl, the grandfather of 'Inayat Ullah K As it happened, Maulānā Kamāl came from his native country and settled in Lahore, and died in the year 1011, 1602-3 His tomb is outside of the city in the Serai of Hājī Siyāh Mīr 'Abdu-l-'azīz at first was the servant of Dārā Shikoh When he turned his face towards serving Aurangzeb, he gave out his name as being Shaikh 'Abdu-l-'azīz In the 17th year he had the title of Dilāwar K and gradually rose to the rank of 2,000 and then died Muhammad N'aīm on account of his being connected by mariage with 'Inayat Ullah K, was called by lacs of hūns According to the Pādshāhnāma I 76 it was Sipahdār K who refused to surrender the fort, and apparently this was before Dīānat had come to the Deccan

¹ Pādshāhnāma I 258

² Pādshāhnāma 320 Khāfi K I 429, who says that it was Diānat who refused to give up the fort of Ahmadnagar when Khān Jahān Lodi sold the country to the Nizāmu-l-Mulk for six his father's title and in the beginning of Muhammad Fairukh Siyar's reign went to the Decean in company with the Nizāmu-l-mulk 'Āsaf Jāh, who was Nizām of the Decean. Afterwards Husam 'Alī K Amīru-l-Umarā had him appointed faujdār of Raicor. After that he addressed himself—in company with Mubāriz K who was his wife's sister's husband—to do battle against Āsaf Jāh. After Mubāriz was killed, he was made a prisoner and for a long time was an associate of Āsaf Jāh. He obtained the rank of 5 000 and in 1139, 1726-27 he died. He had a poetical vein and had a good talent. Nusrat was his tal hallas. This couplet is his:—

Verse

The evelashes are not closed the beloved is without a veil. How can one sleep in the mansion of the Sun?

Of his sons the eldest was Muhammad Dilāwai, Muzaffarud-daula Bahādur Intizām Jang — He was in the time of Nizāmu lmulk Āsaf Jāh, faujdār of Seiā — After some years, when that taluq came into the possession of the Mahiattas, he went to Nizāmu-daula Āsaf Jāh and became Bakhshī of the provinces of the Decean and was friendly to the writer of these lines. The second was Dil Dilāwar K who was faujdār of Biswāpatan, a dependency of Seiā — He afterwards came before Nizāmu-l-mulk Asaf Jāh, and was made head of the artillery of the Decean — He died in 1166, 1753 — Both had children

DILĀWAR KHĀN KĀKAR

His name was Ibrāhīm At first he passed his days as a companion of M. Yūsuf K Rezavī. By good fortune he distinguished himself in Jahāngir's presence in the affair ⁸ of Akhīrāj and Abhī-

¹ Sprenger's Cat, p 525 The diwan is in ASB library No 136, No 1432, p 116

² The preposition az is omitted in text, but occurs in a B M MS

³ See the account in the Tūzuk J, p 12, and the travesty of it in Price's Jahāngīr, pp 37, 38 The disturbance occurred on 27 Sha'bān 1014, 25 December 1605 Akhīrāj was s Bhagwān Dās, and Abhīrāj, or Abhī Rām, was his son The disturbance was caused by Akhīraj's three sons proposing to join the Rānā Jahangir ordered their arrest, and while endeavouring to carry out this order, Ibrāhīm received nine wounds

This occurred in the public courtyard of the palace, and Ibrahim received several wounds. This service was the cause of his advancement, and he was given a suitable rank. In the beginning of Jahangn's reign he was sent off to act as governor of Lahore He had reached the town of l'anipat when he heard of the rebellion He crossed his family over the Jumna and of Sultan Khusrau went off to Lahore on the wings of speed and reached the fort before Khusiau He strengthened the bastions, etc., and when Khusran came to the city he found the gates closed Khusran set about the siege and the collection of troops, and the fire of contention raged within and without. As the imperial army was in pursuit of him and he saw that the taking of the city was difficult, he raised the siege. Dilawar did good service and his devotion was rewarded by royal favours. In the 8th year he was appointed to accompany Prince Shah Jahan in the campaign In the 13th year, 1027, 1618, he was made govagamst the Rānā ernor of Kashmīr on the removal of Ahmad Beg K Kabulī and behaved gallantly in conquering the territory of Kishtwai which is distant sixty los from the city of Kashmii (Srīnagai) to the south

The short account of this affair is as follows. In the 14th year of Jahangii Dilāwar K resolved to conquer the country by means of 10,000 horse and foot. As there were difficult defiles and passes, which were impassable for horses, he left the horses in Kashmīr (Srīnagar) except a few which were kept as a precautionary measure. The soldiers mounted the hills on foot and fought stage after stage till they came to the river, where there was an engagement. The ruler of the country lost heart when 'Alī Cak,'s who claimed to be hen to Kashmīr and had taken protection with him, and was making a disturbance, was killed, and took to flight. He crossed the river and halted in Bhadarkot which was on the other side. Though the brave men tried to cross by the bridge the l Kathra, which I suppose is the Hindustani word katra Here it must mean courtyard, for Jahangii states that the affray took place in the sahn of the public daulat khāna Price's account makes the three Rajputs to be crushed by elephants, but perhaps this refers to treatment after death

² Tūzuk J 294 and Iqbālnāma 141

³ Should be Abıya or Iba?

⁴ Bahandarkot in T J

resistance was such that they could not do so. When some days had elapsed, the Rajah craftily sent a message to make peace Dilawai K did not listen to him and excited himself to cross the river. At last, one day Jamal K, his eldest son, crossed the swollen niver with a number of others by swimming, and engaged the enemy The latter broke down the bridge and fled, and Dilawar repaired it and crossed his troops and established his camp in From the river in question to the Cinab—which is a great support of theirs-there is the distance of two bowshots, and on the bank (of the Cinab) is a high hill which is difficult to get over In order to cross the river on foot they take three ropes and between two ropes they place planks of the width of a cubit and fasten one end of the rope to the top of the hill and the other on the other side of the river. They also put two other ropes one vard higher (as handrails) The foot-passengers put their feet on the planks and take the upper ropes in their hands and so cross, descending from the top to the bottom. This kind of bridge is called by the hill-people zība! They had placed musketeers and archers at every place where they thought an attempt would be made to make a rope-bridge. Dilawar K. made rafts and tried to cross men by them. As the current was very strong, the rafts went to the bottom and sixty 2 men were drowned For four months and ten days every attempt that was made to cross ended in failure

It happened that one night Dilāwai's son Jalāl, under the guidance of a landholder, crossed with safety at a place where the enemy did not think that he could cross, and fell upon the Rajah and sounded the trumpet of victory. Many were killed, and the rest saved their lives by flight. One of the soldiers came up to the Rajah and was about to kill him when he called out that he was the Rajah, and was made prisoner. Dilāwai crossed and came to the capital of the country, which was three kos distant. He took the Rajah with him and produced him before Jahāngīr in the 15th year near Bārahmūla, which is the gate of Kashmīr. He received various favours and was made an officer of 4,000 with

¹ Zampa in T J and Iqbanama The jhola of the I G VIII 65 (old edition)

² Tūzuk, 68 men

3,500 horse He also received a present of a lac of rupees, being the revenue of the conquered territory for one year

The custom in Kishtwar is that the Rajah does not take rent for land. From every house he takes each year six sastī, which was a com of the Kashmīr rulers 12 sastīs make a rupee, and m accounts fifteen sastīs, 1e ten 1upees, are reckoned one royal muhr The saffron is superior to that of Kashmir and Rs 4 are taken from the buyer on each manī sīr 2 (برسر مدى) which is equal to two sīr, Jahāngīrī The chief income of the Rajah is derived from fines which are imposed for small offences, and come to His total revenue is about a lac of rupees a large sum tankhwāh (assignments) are 1,000 zāt with 1,000 horse. As the Rajah was not devoid of dignity, an order was given that his sonswho in the time of the war had been placed with the neighbouring landholders—should be sent for, in order that the Rajah might be delivered from perpetual imprisonment, and might spend his days in peace He obeyed and was treated with favour

After a while Dilāwar died a natural death His eldest son Jamāl K, was, in the time of Shah Jahan, appointed to accompany Mahābat K During the siege of Daulatabad, high words passed in the divān on account of some matter, and Mahābat K. said that whoever showed slackness in the king's business would be shippered Jamāl K diew his sword and aimed at his head. Mīrzā Jaafar Najm Sānī, who was seated behind him, jumped up and caught Jamāl in his arms His (Jamāl's) son, who was of tender age, finished the Mīrzā with a dagger. The Khān Zamān (Mahābat's son) acted with alertness and knocked down Jamāl, and with another stroke he finished the son. They say that Mahābat K was seated, and that in that position he said "Both sons did well!" The second son of Dilāwar was Jalāl K, of whom an account has been given

¹ Sanhasī in T J, 297 It is the silver sāsnū of J II 354, and note 2

² The IO MSS of Tūzuk have ek man, and both they and Saiyīd Ahmad's text have the "Indian sīr" and not the Jahāngīrī sīr as here and in the Iqbālnāma, p 146

³ Jamāl's death took place in the 6th year Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, 313 Mahābat was referring to the conduct of Jamāl's son, and of his own son Khān Zamān The story of the fight is not told in the Pādshāhnāma

DILER K. 'ABDU-R-RAUF MIYANA.

Great grandson of Bahlūl K. Miyāna, who attained to royal favour in the time of Jahangii and received the rank of 2,5001 with 1,000 horse. In the second year of Shah Jahan's reign, when Khān Jahān Lodī became suspicious and fled he too joined the Nizāmu-l-mulk of the Decean and obtained service with him some time he opposed the imperial troops and behaved per-Afterwards he joined Adil K of Bijapur and became In the 7th year he displayed audacities (shokhīhā) in the siege of Daulatabad. After his death Abdu-i-Rahim his son obtained the leader-hip, and when he died, his son 'Abdu-l-Karīm obtained the leadership and the title of Bahlūl K. As the rulei of Byapur was a child, and the power was in the hands of others Abdu-l-Karīm engaged in collecting men of his own tribe and obtained much sway. In the 9th year of Aurangzeb's reign, when Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh was appointed to devastate the Bijapur territory 'Abdu-l-Karim was one of the leaders of the opposing army, and had frequent battles. In the 17th year Khan Jahan Bahādur Koka was the governor of the Deccan, and Khwas K Habshi was the minister of Sikandar 'Adıl K and acted in concert with him and came to the bank of the Bhimia From the other side Bahādui Kokaltāsh came, and there was an interview between the two, and the daughter of Khwas K was married to Nasīrī K, the son of Kokaltash. After that both of them returned to then dig-Bahlūl K cherished treacherons feelings towards Khwās nifies K and wished to seize him on the road He came to know of this, and set off at night to Bijapui Afterwards, when Bahlūl arrived near the city, he came out to welcome him, as he did not abandon the part of magnanimity Bahlul took advantage of his opportunity and put him under airest 8 After that he was prosperous Hostility came between the Deceanis and the Afghans and they came to blows. Some of the Deccanis joined the imperial troops and many went to the ruler of Hardarabad When he heard of the

The Pädshähnäma I 182 speaks of Bahlül's receiving the rank of 4,000 with 3,000 horse See also id 289

² Khāfī K II 191

³ Fryer speaks of Bahlūl's putting Khwās K to death He also says that Sikandar's legitimacy was doubted ımpıısonment of Khwas K, Bahadur Kokaltash, ın accordance with Aurangzeb's orders, collected a large army and came to the Between him and Bahlūl K 'Abduplaces bordering on Bijapur 1-Kaiim a contest and fighting took place There were many en-In the 20th year when the Kokaltash was summoned to court, the management of the Deccan was made over to Diler K The two (Bahlūl and Dilei) agreed with one another, as being of the same tribe and marched against Haidarabad battles took place between them and the Deccans who had come on the part of the ruler of Haidarabad Meanwhile Bahlūl K fell ill and died, and his son 'Abdu-i-Rauf became the leader in the 29th year Amangzeb proceeded to the siege of Bijapur Sikandar 1 'Adil K willing or unwilling made over the city and 'Abdu-1-Rauf also kissed the threshold and received the rank of 6,000 with 6,000 hoise and had the title of Diler K He2 for a long time discharged the work of the king's service under Khan Firuz Jang, and in the 48th year had the rank of 7,000 with 7,000 hoise. After the death of Aurangzel he ostensibly sought to join Muhammad Kām Bakhsh and went and settled in the estates of his own faujdārī of Sānwar and Bankāpūr-which is a Sarkār in Bijapui Aftei his death his brother 'Abdu-l-Ghafāi K obtained the faujdāiī and fief of the said Saikāi, and after him, his son 'Abdu-l-Majīd K , who, during the government of the maityred Nāsn Jang received the title of Satuat Jang (power of war), succeeded to the estates by inheritance When the Mahiattas became supreme in the Deccan several parganas of the property came into their hands in lieu of chauth (exaction of 1th) A little remained At the time of writing, his son, 'Abdu-l-Hakīm, lives by these second son of 'Abdu-1-Rahīm Mīāna was 'Abdu-n-nabī K , who held Cuddapa, etc in Haidarabad as his fief and faujdārī. After his death his son 'Abdu-n-nabī Kor (the blind?) got the property After him his brother 'Abu-l-Muhsin K, alias Mūca Mīān—who afterwards got the hereditary title—obtained the appointment and was for a long time manager of affairs 'Abdu-l-Majīd K', the son of 'Abdu-n-nabī Koi, put him under restraint, and himself took charge. He fought with the Mahrattas and was killed. His son 'Abdu-l-Halīm took his father's position, but the Mahrattas prevailed and took possession of half of the property under the claim of chauth. At the time of writing which is 1193 (1779), Haidar 'Alī K overrain his t alūq and made him prisoner. He took possession of the entire estates, and whatever else he possessed

¹ Khāfi K II 322 He surrendered in the beginning of the 30th year

² Maasır 'Alamgīrī 481

Ikhlās K 'Abu-l-Muhammad s 'Abdu-l-Qādn s Bahlūl K the elder, was cousin of Bahlūl K 'Abdu-l-Karīm He in the 7th year of Aurangzeb joined the imperial army and received the rank of 5,000 and the title of Ikhlās K In the 11th year when Dāūd K Qoreshī pursued Siva, he with a few men joined in the battle and was in the vanguard He was wounded and fell to the ground It appears from the Maasir 'Ālamgīrī that he was alive' up to the 21st year

(SAIYID) DILER KHĀN BĀRHA

One of the officers of the time of Jahāngīi He held the faujdāiī of Baioda When in the 18th year there arose the cloud of dissension between father and son, and Shah Jahan appointed 'Abdullah K to the government of Gujarat, and his eunuch's entered the city of Ahmadabad, Saif K alias Safī K—who had partial charge of the city—showed courage and took the city from the eunuch's possession, and induced Dilei K to take the side of loyalty After the king's death, when Shah Jahan marched from Junan and crossed the Narbada, he came before all the auxiliary officers of the province, and did homage. In attendance on the royal stimup he came to the capital, in the first year of the reign had the rank of 4,000 with 2,500 horse, and the gift of a robe of

¹ Khāfī K II, 191-192, where he is called Abu-l-Majid See p 191, two lines from foot But see also p 196 where Abu-l Muhammad is spoken of as in the imperial army According to the Massir A Abu-l-Muhammad got the title of Ikhlās K and the iank of 5,000 with 4,000 horse in the 12th year, p 81

² Abu-l-Muhammad Bijapuri is mentioned in the Maasir A 171 as being made faujdār of Oudh in the 22nd year. He is mentioned again in the 36th year id 351

 $^{^3}$ Wafādār by name, Tūzuk J , 362 Safī K was married to a sister of Mamtāz Mahal honour, a decorated dagger, a flag and a drum, and an elephant He was allowed to go to his t'alūqs In the third year, when the king came to the Deccan, he came from Gujarat to court, and received an increase of 500 horse. Together with Khwāja Abu-lhasan of Turbat he was sent off to take the country of Sangamnīr! In the 4th year he was appointed from there to serve in the contingent of 'Azim K, who was in the neighbourhood of Paienda Afterwards he was given leave to go to his old taluqs, and in the 6th year, corresponding to 1042, 1632-33, he died Saiyid Hasan, his son, came to court, and had an audience, and received a rank suitable to his position and was treated with favour 30th year his rank was 1,500 horse Another son, Saiyid Khalīl, had the rank of 500 with 200 hoise It was Dilei K who sent the white 2 elephant which was placed in the royal stables in the 2nd year of the reign Khwāja Nizām, a meichant, who was a trustworthy trader and known for the largeness of his traffickings, had received from his agents a small elephant aged about 15 or 16 On account of leanness and immaturity it had no decided When he went off in some direction for the purpose of trade, he left this elephant on the Khān's fief, as there was friendship between them After twelve years, when it had come to maturity, its colour became white with a tinge of ied sent it for the king, who approved of it and gave it the name of Gajpatī (elephant-loid) This is Tālib Kalīm's quatiam about it

Verse

May his white elephant sustain no injury
Whoever beholds it is enraptured with it
When the world's lord goes out upon it, you'd say
"Tis the sun emerging from a white dawn"

and was Shah Jahan's poet-laureate The allusion in the first line of the quatrain is to the evil eye. The place that Khwāja Nizām went to, after leaving the elephant with Diler, was Pegū, whither Jahāngīr had sent him to purchase rubies

Pādshāhnāma I 300 Elliot VII 10 Sangamnīr is the same as Sangameshwar

² This account, including the quatrain, is taken from the Pädshāhnāma I 267 For Tālib Kalīm see Beale s v Abu Tālib Kaiīm, and Rieu II, 686 a He was a pative of Hamadān

After Diler K's death his son Saryid Hasan came to court and received a suitable mansab. In the 28th year he was made faujdār and fiefholder of the Sarkār of Godrah in Ahmadabad (Gujarat) In the 30th year his rank was 1,500 with 1,500 horse After the expiration of the 31st year he accompanied Prince Murād Bakhsh, who, at a suggestion from Aurangzeb, had started from Ahmadabad When Murād Bakhsh was imprisoned, Saryid Hasan received the title of Khān and was sent off to Gujarat Another son, Saryid Khalīl, held a mansab of 500 with 200 horse

DILER KHAN DAŪDZAI²

His name was Jalal K, and he was younger brother of Baha-When in the 21st year Shah Jahan became disdui K Rohilla appointed with Bahādur K., in spite of his good services and achievements in the Balkh and Badakhshan campaign, because of his negligence and delay in the pursuit of Nazr Muhammad K, and of his indifference and slackness³ in rendering assistance to S'aīd K in the seven days' fight with the Uzbegs, he confiscated Saikārs Qanauj and Kālpī, -which were in his fief, -and were fertile throughout the whole year Shah Jahan confiscated them in satisfaction of the government demands against him-which amounted to nearly thirty lacs of supees—and gave the faujdari of them to Jalal K His rank was 1,000 with 1,000 horse and he had the title of Diler K and the present of an elephant dually rose in consideration and in the 30th year he was appointed to the Deccan along with M'uazzam K Mīr Jumla in order that he might, in attendance on Prince Aurangzeb, devastate the territory of 'Ādıl Shah

One day during the seige of the fort of Kalyān the prince drew up his forces and marched out to engage the enemy. The sons of Bahlūl K`Miāna who were in the hostile vanguard engaged the imperial vanguard. Diler K who was at the head of that force joined in the fight, and though he received sword-blows yet

IJ II 257, the Godhrah of Bayley's Gujarat

² The text and several MSS have Dad or Daozai

³ See Pādshahnāma II 692, and Khāfī K I 686, etc 1

as he had armour and a cuirass, he suffered no haim After that. when the armies were sent for (by Shah Jahan at Dārā's instigation) he also appeared at court, and in the 31st year received the He went with Sulaiman Shikoh to oppose Prince favour of drums Muhammad Shujā' who had foolishly become disobedient to his father and had advanced from Bengal and had laid hands on many of the imperial properties When the two forces came near one another in the vicinity of Benaies, Shujā', who was always subject to sensual pleasures, and was exceedingly careless, and knew nothing about planning and reflection was terrified and fled Without attempting to fight he behaved in a childish manner and got on board a boat and fled towards Patna Sulaimān Shikoh pursued him, and Diler K in honour of this victory received an increase of 1,000 with 1,000 horse, and had the rank of 3,000 with 3,000 horse Afterwards, when Sulaiman Shikoh at the summons of his grandfather and father proceeded to return from Patna, as rapidly as possible, he in the village of Kaira received the news of the defeat of Dārā Shıkoh and his flight towards Lahore disconcerted him, and Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh-who had been made his guardian and manager of the aimy-separated from him Sulaiman Shikoh in his distress summoned Diler K and asked his He made his companionship conditional on proceeding to Shahjāhānpūr—which Bahādur (his elder biother) had settled, and was the native country of the Afghans-and engage I that there Afghans and other soldiers would be collected and that then anything that was advisable would be done Sulaiman Shikoh agreed When Rajah Jai Singh heard of this and perceived that Diler K from rawness and mexperience had not distinguished between his loss and gain and had made a wrong throw, he, out of friendship and the love he had for him, gave him good advice and withheld him from a wrong intention which could only have the result of injuring his home and clan He made him join him in the design of going to Aurangzeb When next day Sulaimān Shikoh, in l Opci Mr Ellis has pointed out to me that this is a Mongolian word and apparently should be obcin It is given in P de Courteille's Dict as opcin The original meaning is the complete skin of an animal The word is used by Bābur, e.g. Hydarabad MS f 113b accordance with the airangement, prepared to return to Allahabad, Diler K ¹ made an excuse and remained at the stage with Rajah Jai Singh. On this account the royal servants ceased to accompany Sulaimān Shikoh. Dilei K, three or four days before the Mīizā Rajah waited ² upon Aurangzeb between Selīmpūi and Mathura, received an increase of 1,000 with 1,000 horse, so that his rank became 5,000 with 5,000 horse. Hence it appears that after the defeat of Shujā', when his rank was 3,000, he had received another 1,000

In short, Diler K, together with Shaikh Mīr, was sent off from Multan to pursue Dārā Shikoh. In the battle of Ajmere 8 when Dārā Shikoh made a wall from side to side of the defile, and made a strong bulwark in front of him, and placed on it here and there guns and muskets, etc., the troops of Aurangzeb could not make an impression on the entrenchments until success showed itself from a hidden quarter. Dārā Shikoh sent some men to repulse the men of Rajah Rājrūp towards the Kokila 4 hill.

This body of men (Dāiā's) boldly advanced beyond the entienchment and engaged the enemy. Dilet K mounted his horse and on the right wing took the artillety and his troops and made an advance. After him Shaikh Mīt mounted his horse on the left wing and joined him. The two leaders together attacked the entienchments of Shāh Newāz K, and there was a hot engagement. These two brave men entered the entrenchment and drew the sword of vengeance. Shaikh Mīt was killed and Dilet K made great efforts and was wounded in the arm by a bullet. Meanwhile other troops came up and Dāiā Shikoh lost courage and fled. After that Dilet K was appointed to assist Muāzzam K Mīt Jumla who made splendid efforts in driving out Shujā' from Bengal. In that contest—which was a testing-ground of bravery—Dilet performed such feats as obliterated the memory of Rustum and Isfandyāi.

When in Sh'aban (April 1659) of the 2nd year Mūazzam K.

¹ Compare Manucci I 284, and 'Ālāmgīrnāma, 170, etc

² 'Ālamgīrnāma 130-31

³ There is a full account of the three days' fighting near Ajmere in the 'Ālamgīrnāma, 318, etc

⁴ Kokılapahārī, cuckoo hill ? See Ā'lamgīrnāma, 320, brought his army to the bank of the river from Mahmūdābād with the intention of crossing the Mahanadi which is two los from there, and it was found that there was a better crossing below at Bagla 1 Ghāt—the enemy, who had made batteries on the other side, proceeded to discharge cannon, etc Diler K, in the first place, entered the river along with other leaders on elephants and they were fired upon by the enemy in that position Some of the brave men were killed and many were wounded, and a number turned back As there was deep water on each side of the ford, stakes had been put down on each side to mark the ford time, owing to the crossing of the aimy, the water became troubled, and the sandy bottom shifted so that some vere carried into the deep The stakes too did not remain in their place. On this account many of the infantiv and cavalry were drowned Fath K. the son of Diler K, was one of these When the \underline{K} hān had crossed, he drove off the enemy and got possession of all their guns Shujā' was drīven away, Diler was in M'uazzam K s vanguard in his conquest of Assam and did great deeds in chastising the worthless Assamese In every place he was an associate of victory When the royal forces crossed the Brahmaputra, which is one of the famous rivers of that country, they came to the fort of Shamlagarha² That is a strong and sky-high foit. To besiege it was beyond the powers of the masters of lofty designs

^{1 &#}x27;Ālamgīrnāma, 544, 549 and Khāfī The Mahanadī of the text is the Mahananda of the IG XVI It is a tributary of the Padma or 433 Baglaghat is frequently mentioned in the 'Alamgirnama which gives a most detailed account of Mir Jumla's campaign against Shujā' p 514 it states that Baglaghat is five Los from Malda (10 old Malda) was on the Mahananda Mahmūdahad is mentioned in the 'Alamgirnāma, pp 547 and 548, and is stated there to be three kos from Baglaghat It therefore cannot be the Mahmūdābad which was the head-quarters of the Mahmūdābād Sarkār and was on the Madhumati and the eastern frontier of Jessore RASJ for 1896, p 188 Looking at the original, viz the 'Alamgīrnāma, p 518, it does not appear that the Mahananda was two kos from Mahmūdābād, but that Baglaghāt was two kos below Mah mūdābād

² This is the fort called Bhimgar in Khāfī K II 444 It is Simlagarh in the 'Ālamgīrnamā, p 704 The description in text of the fort is taken either from the same work, p 705, etc, or from the Tārīkh Ashām, ie Fathiyah 'Ibratīyah by Shihābu-d-dîn Tālish Simlagarh is the proper name of the fort, ASBJ for 1872, pp 71, 72 of vol 41 It was taken on February 26 1662 inhabited it were safe from the stone-throwing of the calamities of fortune and the catapults of the heavens! On both sides of the fort there were broad and high walls On the south side these extended for four kos and ended at a hill which raised its head to the sky On the north side the wall extended for three kos as far as the raging liver already mentioned (the Brahmaputra) walls were provided on the inside with bastions and battlements. and without there was a deep moat Every place had been fortified with guns, $b\bar{a}dl\bar{i}\eta$, and muskets, etc. In that area were nearly 300,000 wallike Assamese leady to lesist. As the beleagueling of the whole fort was impossible, Diler K, in accordance with the opinion of the Commander-in-chief, established a battery opposite the largest bastion, and fighting went on inside and outside Every cannon-ball that reached the bastron and wall, on account of the strength of the fort, only made a little dust of it rise up, and no sign appeared of the wall's being broken or of the battlements falling The country too was sugged 2 and terrible, for in former times great Indian armies which had set out to conquei this country had been overthrown and slain by the treachery of this tribe, and not one of them had escaped from the whirlpool. The Commander-in-chief nevertheless directed an attack against but the text wrongly has $as\bar{a}m\bar{i}$ instead of $ash\bar{a}m\bar{i}$

¹ A kind of cannon See Invine A of M 129 and Bahar 1-'ajam sv where a stanza of Mullā Tughrā (Rieu 742a) is quoted See also Ghiasu l-loghāt s v and Pādshāhnāma I 506 where it is said to be the synonym for a gainal or elephant gun It is there spelt The Ghiāsu l-loghāt says it badālīca is a Turkish word The word also occurs in the 'Alamgirnama, p 705 According to Meninski the word is commonly written as patlanghaj and means a pop gun or reed trumpet "Tubulus ex sambucino ligno, quo pueri strepitum cient '' See also Baibier de Meynaid's Turkish-French Dict, who says it comes from patlamaq, "to explode" The statement about the nearly three lacs of Assamese comes from the same source.

² Text qalb u khatırnāk, "rugged and fearsome," but the original, in the 'Alamgirnāma 707, has qalb khaturnāk "terrifying to the heart" also specifies the fact that Indian armies had been twice lost there treachery consisted in the night attacks of the Assamese The account of the treacherous Assamese camp followers is taken from the 'Alamgirnāma 708 Husain Shah and Sulai man Kararani had previously attempted to conquer Assam and there was also an unsuccessful attempt by 'Abdu-s salīm in Shāh Jahan's reign See also Mr Gait's paper ASBJ for 1893, p 280, and his history of Assam, Calcutta, 1906, pp 41 and 88

one of the walls, and Diler K, with some valiant men, was appointed to the task

By chance one of that tribe who had lived for a long time in the imperial territory and at this time was numbered among the units (ahad) of the camp, in his craftiness became full of malice under the guise of loyalty represented that he knew the nature of the ground and its real condition If they would accept his guidance, he would bring the royal troops to a place whence an attack could easily be made At the same time he sent a message to the besieged that they should collect in a certain place, which was the Dilei K proceeded at night according to the most difficult of all guidance of this rascal At dawn he reached a place where was a moat full of water, and which was difficult and where there was a large collection of the enemy At once the discharge of many thousand guns darkened the an, and there was a shower of powder-pots ($huggah\bar{a}$ - $b\bar{a}i\bar{u}t$) from the battlements so that the earth Diler K, in his great courage, never thought of turning back, but drove his elephant into the water of the moat, and when his followers beheld such bravery on the part of their chief they also pressed on A hot engagement took place, a great many of the armies of Islam were wounded, and a number lost then Five bullets reached Dilei, but on account of his armour he was not wounded. Many bullets were stopped in his elephant and his howdah 1 The brave Khān and some others reached the foot of the fort and got to the top of the wall, and fought with the enemy Afterwards his men got in by the gate and in other places and unfurled the flag of victory The infidels were overcome and fled out After the death of Mīr Jumla the Khān came In the 17th year 2 he was sent off with Rajah Jai Singh to extirpate Sīvā Bhonsla who had established himself in the Deccan and was making a disturbance by brigandage. When the Rajah m the 8th year set himself to take the forts of Sīvā and went off from Poonah to take the forts of Purandhar and Rumal (Rudar-

¹ Hauza The 'Ālamgīrnāma 711 has khauza, "wading," evidently a misprint

² Khāfi K , II 178 Elhot VII 271

māl), Dilei K, who was in the vanguaid, passed through the defile of Sānwar¹ and was about to encamp near those places, when suddenly a hostile aimy made its appearance and there was a fight. The enemy could not stand the shock of the horses and fled to a hill on the top of which the two forts were. Dilei K fought on and came to the hill, and killed many and set fire to the town which was in the waist of the hill and was called Mācī,² and then proceeded to besiege the forts

When the garrisons of the two forts discharged cannon and muskets, the Khān did not withdraw but bravely came near the fort of Pūrandhar and hastily erected a battery When some time had passed in besieging the two forts, one bastion of the fort of Rūimāl (Rūdarmāl) was thiown down 3 by the repeated blows of cannon-balls, and Diler K uiged on his men and got to the top of this bastion The besieged asked for quarter, and Sīvā who perceived that the energy of the assailants would soon result in . the taking of Purandhai, where many of his relatives and officers were shut up, made acquaintance with the Rajah and had an interview with him, and presented the forts as tribute Diler K was still at the foot of the fort, the Rajah sent Sīvā to him, and he after the interview presented him with two4 horses with gold trappings, and decorated accoutrements, and two sets of nine pieces $(t\bar{u}q\bar{u}z)$ of silks After this work had been completed Diler K acted in the vanguard of the Rajah in devastating the territory of Bijapur and so punished the 'Ādil Shah When he finished that work he and many other leaders were summoned 5 to court on account of the affan of Shah 'Abbās the 2nd who was meditating the despatch of an army to the borders of India Khān went off rapidly and had crossed the Narbada when by the decree of fate the ruler of Persia died, and the flames of distuibance were extinguished Diler K, on receipt of an order, pro-

¹ Should be Sāsūr or Saswad 'Ālamgīrnāma 889

² 'Ālamgīrnāma 890

^{3 &#}x27;Ālamgīināma 892

⁴ See 'Alamgīrnāma 904 The text has 200 but the real number of horses was only two, du sir having been wrongly read as du sad See also Khāfi K II 182 The two horses, or at least one of them, were Arabs All the MSS however seem to have 200 ceeded with a number of officers to Canda and Deogarha. Mānjī Mullār ¹ the landowner of Cānda, came before him in humble fashion and promised ² a kror of rupees as a fine in each and goods, and presented to Diler K as a thank-offering five lacs of rupees. He also agreed that he would pay every year two lacs of rupees as tribute and that he would dismantle the fort of Mānikdrug which was one of the strong forts on his borders.

⁵ Do 974, 975

When in the course of two months 77 lacs of rupees had been realized as tribute, and the arrival of eight lacs more in the course of two months more, and twenty lacs of arrears had been promised within three years, the zamindar, who was ill and infirm and whose estate was in a bad condition, was allowed to depart with Ram Singh, his younger son and representative As Kaukab Singh, the zamindai of Deogarh, who was debited with fifteen lacs of supees for past years, also became submissive, three lacs of supees were imposed upon him as fine and one lac was fixed as his annual tribute. At this time an order came to Diler K, stating that it was desired that the Bijapur territory should once more be devastated, and that he should repair to Aurangabad and place himself under the orders of Prince Muhammad M'uazzam so that whenever the signal was given he might be ready for the work His deeds in the Deccan are on the lips of high and low In the battle which Khan Jahan Kokaltash fought with the Bijapur troops on the other side of the Bhīmia, Diler K was in the vanguard and did great deeds, and was applauded by friend and foe

They say that there was such a market of contention on that battlefield that for some kos the trunks of elephants and the heads of men served for polo-sticks and balls!

Verse 4

From the trunks of elephants and the heads of wailiois The whole plain was stiewn with sticks and balls

¹ Ālamgīrnāma 1025, last line

² Do 1025 The five lacs were perhaps a present to Diler in gratitude for his mediation

⁸ Kok Singh in 'Alamgīrnāma 1027, and in Maasir A 60

⁴ These lines and two more are quoted in Khāfī K II. 236 See ac-

Afterwards when the day became disastrous for the royal troops they retried in good order, but the march which in advancing on the Bijapur troops had occupied four or five days on the back of elephants and horses, occupied three weeks in the retreat As the fort of Salher which belonged to Baglana had fallen into the hands of the enemy Dilei proceeded I to take it, but in spite of his efforts he did not succeed and the had climate of that district caused many deaths He was obliged, by orders of HM, to retuin without effecting his purpose In the 18th year he presented himself at court, and in succession to 'Abid K', he was made governor of Multan In the 19th year that province was given in fief to Muhammad A zim Shāh The Khān came to court and was sent off to the Deccan campaign When in the 20th year the Khān-Khānān Bahādui, the governor of the Deccan, was censured, the charge 2 of the country was made over to Dilei in order that he might carry on the duties till the arrival of the governor the 21st year a severe engagement took place with the Haidaiabad troops A servant who was sitting behind on the elephant was killed by a locket and the fire of the locket fell into the Khān's collar and had to be extinguished by the water in a goat-Many on both sides were killed on that day In the 23rd year he by his excellent efforts took the fort of Mangalsirpa 4 (?) from the possession of Sīvā Bhonsla In the 26th year 5 when Aurangzeb came to Aurangabad, Dilei was appointed, along with others, to the Bijapur campaign, but remained at court till the arrival of Muhammad A'zım Shāh At this time he fell very ill and in the beginning of the 27th year 1094, 1683, he died 6

count of fight, Elliot VII 293 Khāfī K puts the battle into the 16th year 1083 Apparently the verse refers to the explosion, which according to Khāfī K destroyed many of the royal magazines The battle was really a great defeat for the Imperialists Islām K, Rūmī, whom Fiyer calls the Bassa of Mesopotamia, was killed, and according to Fryer his head and that of his son were stuck up on the walls of Bijapur

¹ Khāfī K , 248, 249

² Do, II 247

³ Maasir 'Ālamgīrī 165 The engagement was with the Golconda troops

⁴ Mangalbīda ın Maasır A

⁵ Do, 228

⁶ Khāfi K II 279 and Maasır A 237 Khāfi K puts the occurrence into the 25th year, and the Maasır A puts it into the end of the 27th year, 1094

Although it is commonly reported that Aurangzeb perceived in him some indications of presumption and arrogance, and ordered him to be poisoned, yet it appears on investigation that this statement is not true

Some reliable authorities say that his brother's son put an end to him by changing the pills (of opium) that he was accustomed to But Aurangzeb had a higher opinion of Diler's courage, etc than he had of the military qualities of any other person They say that when he was with Shah 'Alam in the Deccan, the latter wished him to join him and to raise the flag of rebellion Dilei K refused The dissatisfaction on both sides ended in displeasure and Diler K went off rapidly to court The prince hastened after him When Dilei had represented that the prince had vain thoughts, and that he had left him and come on a pilgrimage to HM, just then the prince's representation arrived, to the effect that this turbulent Afghan wanted to rebel, and that he had gone after him to punish him Aurangzeb was much troubled on receiving these two statements, and went several times to the privy (matawazzā) As Himmat K had been blought up with Aurangzeb from early years and was very intimate with him $(dosh\ u\ kin\bar{a}i\ b\bar{a}dsh\bar{a}hi\ b\bar{u}d)$ and used to speak very freely to him, he said to the king, "All this is not true, why is your Majesty so agitated?" The king got angry and said, "I'm not troubled about Shāh 'Ālam, the difficulty is lest they have colluded together If there be an army with Dilei K at the head of it, I do not see any one who can oppose it but myself, so if ever I have to deal with him, the battle will be a double-headed 2 one" 2

In short, the Khān was a man of great physical strength, and they tell wonderful stones of his strength and appetites. He had

¹ Khāfī K says, II 280, that it was reported that 'Āzam Shah came se cretly at night to visit Dilei, and that Bahādur Shah reported this to Aurangzeb, and that Diler thereupon took poison. The Maasir says, Diler never was defeated, but surely the battle with the Bijapurīs mentioned in the biography was a great defeat He, however, was not in supreme command then As recorded in text supra, Fath K, who apparently is different from Fath M'amūr, was drowned in the Assam campaign great sway over his tilbe and was always victorious. By the favour of time and the might of his star, from the beginning to the end of his life, he was at the top of fortune. He never received any buffet from fate, nor suffered any disgrace or contempt. His sons were Kamālu-d-dīn and Fath M'amūr. The latter was killed in the battle of the batteries at Bijapur.

² $D\bar{u}$ sti $d\bar{a}rad$, a phrase meaning doubt, and treachery Bahar 'Ajam.

DĪNDĀR KHĀN OF BOKHARA

His name was Saiyid Bahwa,2 and he was connected with After Mahābat K had become guilty of Murtaza K. of Bokhara presumption and had fled from the Presence, Dindar was appointed to the pursuing army, which halted at Ajmeie At this time Jahangir died, and Shah Jahan's retinue came to Ajmere had the bliss of doing homage, and in the first year had a mansab of 2000 with 1200 horse and the title of Dindar K and the gift of a robe of honour, a decorated dagger, a flag and a horse, and was made faujdāi of the Mīyān Dūāb In the 8th year, when the king retuined from Lahore to the capital and Islam K was sent to chastise the rebels of the Mīyān Dūāb, Dīndār was directed to accompany him Afterwards, in the same year, he was sent off with Prince Aurangzeb who had been appointed to chastise Jujhār After some time he died in 1045, 1635-36 Singh Bandīlā

(RAI) DURGĀ SĪSODIA

He was a Candrāwat, and his native country was pargana Rāmpūr, a dependency of Chitor In the 26th year of Akbar's reign he was sent with Sultan Murād against M Muhammad Hakīm In the 28th year, when M Khān was appointed to put down the Gujarat rebels, he went with him and did good service In the 30th year he was appointed to the Deccan along with Khān

¹ Maasu A 237

² Text Bahūda, but this is a mistake as shown by Maasir III 451, and by the Tūzuk J 281 and 282 Dīndār was governor of Delhi in the 14th year of Jahāngīr

³ B 417

⁴ J II 273 where it is called Islāmpūr, otherwise Rāmpur It is on the Chambal and is also called Bhānpūra (city of the Sun) See Tod's Annals of Mewai Rai Durgā is mentioned in Price's Jahangir, page 34, and in the Tūzuk J 63

'Ā'zīm Koka In the 36th year, when Sultan Murād was appointed to the government of Malwa, he had an honoured place in his retinue Afterwards, he went with the prince to the Deccan and did good service. In the 45th year Akbar sent him with a force to search for Mozaffar Husain M. Khwāja Waisī had arrested the Mīrzā and brought him to Sultānpūr. Rai Duigā came there and took him to court. In the same year he was appointed along with S. Abu-l-fazl to Nāsik. At the same time he heard of a disturbance in his home and took leave and went off there. In the beginning of the 46th year he rejoined. After a month and a half he, without obtaining leave, went off home. Up to the 40th year of Akbar's reign he held the rank of 1500, and he died in 1016, 1608, in the second year of Jahāngū s reign.

It is mentioned in the Jahangirnama, written by the king himself, that he was one of the confidential servants of Rānā Pratap He served Akbai for more than forty years and obtained the rank of 4000 He lived to the age of eighty-two Canda had, in the beginning of Jahangir's reign, the rank of 700 Gradually he attained to high rank and had the title of Rāo Daudā, his grandchild, was appointed, in the third year of Shah Jahan's reign, to accompany Azim K in the affair of Khān Jahān Lodī, and in the same year he had an increase of 500 with 500 horse, and so had the rank of 2000 with 1500 troopers and the gift of a flag But when the brunt of battle fell upon the rearguard, he gave way After that, he was appointed with Yemenu-d-daula to chastise 'Adıl K, and afterwards he was included in the contingent of Mahābat K Khān-Khānān who had been appointed to the government of the Deccan In the 6th year, during the siege of Daulatabad, when Mūrārī of Bijapur came to the assistance of the garrison, and there was fighting on every side, and several of his relatives were killed, he attempted, in spite of the general's prohibition, to bring away the dead bodies The enemy saw their

I Tuzuk J 63 But the statement there is that he had been a confidential servant of Rānā Udai Singh Pratāp's father) and that he died in his ninth decade, i.e. between eighty and ninety. The 19th in Tūzuk must be a mistake for 9th opportunity and surrounded him. As he could not escape, he dismounted and fell bravely along with some others. The king, in appreciation of his services, sent his son-who was at home-a robe of honour and conferred on him the rank of 1500 with 1000 horse and the title of Rão He took part for some years in the Deccan campaigns along with Khān Zamān Bahādui. When he died of illness and left no son, his place was taken by his father's uncle's son Rup Singh, the son of Rup Mukund, son of Rao Canda who had come to court in the 17th year in the hopes of favour received the rank of 900 zāt and horse and the title of Rāo, and the pargana of Rāmpūr which was called Islāmpūr and was in the saikār of Chitoi, was assigned to him in fief In the 19th year he was sent off along with Sultan Murād Bakhsh to the Balkh In the battle which took place in the 20th year with campaign Nazı Muhammad K, the ruler of Balkh, under the command of Bahadūi K Rohilla and Asālat K, he was in the vanguard After struggle and striving, when Nazr Muhammad K was defeated and fled, Rup Singh was raised to the rank of 1500 with 1000 horse

Inasmuch as the prince was distressed by the coldness of the climate, and the large numbers of Uzbegs and warlike Almānān who fled in battle and then immediately returned and fought, he begged of his father that he might come to court, and that another servant might be appointed to that country Some of the Rajpūts returned without orders from Balkh and Badakhshan and came to Peshawai, and among them was Rāo Rūp Singh When this was reported to Shah Jahan, he was displeased and sent an order to the officials at Atak not to let them cross the niver Afterwards, when Sultan Aurangzeb was sent off to that quarter, Rūp Singh ieturned along with him and in battles with the Uzbegs fought in the van and distinguished himself wards he returned to India with the prince, who had been ordered to come back In the 22nd year, he accompanied the prince to Qandahai, and according to the old practice he was placed in the van, and distinguished himself in the battle which Rustum K and Qulij K fought with the Persians His rank was raised to 2000 with 1200 horse In the 24th year he died As he had no son, Amr Singh and other grandchildren of Rão Cānda came to court with Rão Rūp Singh's contingent, and Amr Singh, who was a fitting representative, received from the king the rank of 1000 with 900 horse, the title of Rão, and the gift of a saddle with silver mountings, while his brother received a suitable rank, and Rāmpūr—the ancestral home—was made his and his brother's fief—In the 25th year he received an increase of 100 horse and went off with Sultan Aurangzeb who had been appointed to Qandahar for the second time

In the 26th year he was attached to Dārā Shikoh who had been appointed to this same expedition In the 27th year, at the request of this prince, his rank was made 1500 with 1000 hoise In the 28th year he was appointed to the Deccan In the 31st year he was summoned to court and was appointed to Mālwa along with Maharaja Jaswant Singh, in order that he might obstruct the advance of the Deccan army When Aurangzeb's army arrived and the forces were drawn up, Amr Singh was in the vanguard At the time of fighting, his heart gave way and he fled to his native country After that he acknowledged Aurangzeb and was appointed along with Prince Muhammad Sultan to pursue Out of folly he did not stand firm, and on hearing con-Shujā' tradictory news from court, turned back on the march without receiving leave from the plince After that he was appointed to the Deccan and in company with Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh was energetic in service. In the 11th year he was killed at the foot of Salher fort, when the enemy fell upon the loyal troops, and his son, Muhakam Singh, was made prisoner After some time he paid a ransom and was released He came to Bahādui K Koka, who in that year was governor of the Deccan, and received increase of rank and the title of Rāo He served for a long time 33rd year, Gopāl Singh, the son of Muhakam Singh, came from his home of Rāmpūr and energetically entered upon his heieditary He had sent his son Ratan Singh to his home to make arrangements (about supplies), but the latter behaved with self-will and did not send money for his father's expenditure Gopāl Singh complained to the king, but it was of no avail In the 42nd year Ratan Singh by means of Mukhtār K, the governor of Mālwa, embraced Muhammadanism and received the title of Muslim K.¹ and was made ruler of his native country—Gopāl Singh separated from the prince Bīdār Bakht and took refuge in the Rānā's country—His fortune did not advance in his native country—In the 46th year Gopāl Singh Candrāwat came to court and was made governor of the fort of Kaulās²—In the 48th year he was removed and joined the Mahrattas—But Muslim K, in the beginning of the reign of Jahāndār Shah, together with Amānat K, Khwāja Muhammad—who had been made governor of Mālwa and had arrived at Sārangpur—prevented him from entering on his property and opposed him in battle—As his companions were displeased with his acts and words they abandoned him, and he was killed by a bullet

EKATĀZ³ KHĀN 'ABDULLAH BEG

S Mansūr Hājī of Balkh who was an able and experienced man, and one of the officers of Nazī Muhammad, the rulei of Balkh and Badakhshān The Khān (Nazī M) sent him in the 12th year (of Shah Jahan's reign, 1050—1640) with some presents on an embassy to Shah Jahan Mansūr ieceived from the latter a present of Rs 50,000 4 and other gifts and obtained permission to return His sons (Muhsin and 'Abdullah) accompanied him, and received suitable gifts and returned home. When by the exertions of Prince Murād Bakhsh, Badakhshān and Balkh came into the king's possession, and Nazī Muhammad became a vagabond, the Hājī had charge of the government and port of Termiz. From soundness of Judgment he sent his sons Muhammad Muhsin 5 and 'Abdullah Beg to wait upon the Prince, and expressed his devotion to the court. At the same time a comforting letter and a robe of honour arrived from the Prince, being conveyed by one

¹ See Tod's Rajasthan, Annals of Mewar, Vol I, C XIV, pp 421 and 424 of Calcutta reprint See also id note to p 280

² The Kowlass of the maps It is N N W Haiderabad

³ Or Yakatāz One who fights singly, a monomachus.

⁴ It is 25,000 in Pādshāhnāma II 153 Shah Jahan received the embassy in Kabul The sons also got Rs 5,000

⁵ Mansūr in text, but see Pādshāhnāma II 545

of the confidential servants, and S'aādat K , the grandson of Zain K Kokaltāsh, was sent to take charge of Termiz Mansūr made 1 over the fort to the Khān (S'aādat) and joined the Prince proxy2 the lank of 2,000, 1,000 horse was conferred on him and he was made Sadr of Balkh His sons too received suitable rank At the same time his eldest son Muhammad Muhsin paid his respects (Afterwards) in the 21st year he received the rank of 1,000, 400 horse, and the title of Khān and was appointed to Bengal There he died in the 23id year from long-continued drinking 'Abdullah Beg came from Balkh in the 21st year and received a robe of honour and a present of Rs 5,000 In the 24th year his rank was raised to 1,500 with 500 horse In the 27th year he was made Mīr Tūzuk and had the title of Mukhlis K and had the rank of 2,000, 800 horse In the end of Shah Jahan's reign he was appointed to Mālwa along with Maharajah Jeswant Rajah had been told by Dārā Shikoh not to peimit the governors (Aurangzeb and Murād) of the Deccan and of Gujarat to advance, if they were marching to court, the Rajah blocked the way seven kos from Ujjain, when Aurangzeb had crossed the Nerbada and was advancing to the capital A great battle took place Mukhlis K, with a number of Tūrānī soldiers, was in the vanguald When the Rajput leaders were slain, the Rajah accepted the disgrace of flight and retired with his wounded men, and many of the imperial officers saved their lives by flight Mukhhlis with another body of men separated himself from the others, and by the guidance of good fortune joined Aurangzeb

As before this, and at the time of staiting the victorious standards, the title of Mukhlis K had been conferred on Qāzī Nizāmāī Kaiarūdī³(²), 'Abdullah ieceived the title of Ekatāz K. and the rank of 3,000, 1,500 hoise, and a present of Rs 20,000 After the battle of Kahjwāha—when Shujā' was defeated, and

¹ Pādshāhnāma II 545

² Charbana Meaning that the recipient was not present when the increase was conferred Pādshāhnāma II 555 At this time Muhsin received the rank of 500 with -00 horse

Is Karırūdī in Pādshāhnāma II 540 Is Karārūd the Karā Sū or Black river of Armenia which is one of the sources of the Euphrates? If so, it should be spelt Qarā went off to Bengal—Ekatāz accompanied Prince Sultan Muhammad in pursuit of him When Prince Sultan K in a shortsighted manner joined Shujā', M'uazzam K, who was the commander of the expedition, after the end of the rains, encamped at Belghatta,1 24 kos from Akbarnagar (Rajmahal) behind a deep stream, and built two bridges at a distance from one another of half a kos On the further side of the bridges he erected batteries and provided them with cannon Shujā' in the month of Rabīu-l-ākhir of the 2nd year, December 1658, came to oppose, and there was a hot engagement of cannon and muskets When he saw that the bridge opposite M'uazzam K 's camp was plentifully supplied with artillery he set off with Sultan Muhammad in the van to the other bridge 3 Ekataz K and his companions with the intention of repulsing him came to the battery 4 on this side of the river M'uazzam K, on hearing this, sent Zulfiqar K with a body of Aghuzān⁶ and Rūzbahānīs to their assistance On the side of Shujā', Maqsūd Beg called Qidrāndāz (fateful marksman) and Sarmast Afghan were killed, and on the other side Ekataz K 6 and his younger brother were killed A number more were slain and many were wounded

^{1 &#}x27;Ālamgīrnāma 519, etc

² Do 520, top line, "beginning of month"

³ It was higher up the tributary of the Ganges (Bhagirathi) and on Müazzam K's right, 'Ālamgīrnāma 520

⁴ Id where the word is bamūrcāl, "to the battery" and not merely mūrcāl as in text

⁵ Text (a) [2] 'A'zān, but a variant gives (a) and this agrees with the Alamgīrnāma 521, top line I believe the proper spelling is Aghuzān or Oghuzān after the eponymous Turanian hero and ancestor Oghuz The Rūzbahānīs are presumably followers of the saint Rūzbahān the elder, of Egypt, Khazīna Asfīyā II 12, and who died in 584 a H, 1188 There is another saint of the name, known as

Rūzbahān the younger, or Rūzbahān Shīrāzī, who died in 603 A H, 1209-10 See Khazīna Asfiya, II 253, but if the Aghuzān were Turanians, it is not likely that Persians would be sent with them, especially as Ekatāz was a Turanian See Irvine, JASB for 1896, p 197, note 1, and the Safīna Auliyā 176 and Ethe IO Cat, p 307 The Shirāzī Rūzbahānī is described in Nafhatatū-l-Uns, Newāl Kishore lith, p 162

⁶ According to the 'Alamgirnāma 821, two full brothers of Ekatāz were killed along with him The Maasir 'Alamgiri mentions two other Ekatāzes, father and son, several times The elder of these two went on a mission to Bokhara and Balkh and returned after four years, p 149 He died in 1091, 1680, pp 194—95

FAIZ ULLAH KHĀN

At his father's death he was ten years S Zähid K. Koka Shah Jahan out of regard to his position and from appreciation gave him the rank of 1000 with 400 horse Though ostensibly he was entrusted to his paternal grandmother Hūrī Khānim 1 yet in reality it was the Nawab Begam Sāhib who looked after In the 24th year he had the title of Khan, and he gradually had increase of rank and held the office of 2000 with 1000 horse In the 28th year he manned a daughter of the Amīnu-l-Umarā ('Alī Maidān K) The king in his kindness ordered the Jumla-ul-Mulk S'aad Ullah K to bind on his head a chaplet of In the 31st year he became Master of the Horse in succession to Subuland K. After the defeat of Dājā Shikoh he joined Aurangzeb and had an increase of 1000 with 500 horse. At the same time, in succession to Nawazish K, he was made Qaiāwal Beg (Chief Huntsman), and icceived an increase of 500 with 500 horse. In the 7th year his rank was 4000 with 2000 horse, and in the 9th year he resigned and went into retirement Afterwards, he again desired to enter service and was made Qushbegī (Chief Falconei) In the 13th year he was made faujdār of Sambal Moradabad, and for a long time served in that capacity He came to court every year, and received much favour and then went to his fief after taking the permission of the king zeb was especially fond of him, apait from the fact that he was a khānazād (belonging to the household) He, too, was much attached to Aurangzeb and waited upon the Begam Sāhib last he got elephantiasis, and was carried about by an elephant Whenever he came to court, he was unable 2 to enter the Darbar He paid his respects from the equipage In the 24th year, 1092, 1681, he died at Moradabad He³ was a good and independent man, and did not concern himself about worldly affairs, nor did he

l The Hūrī Jān of Pādshāhnāma, II 434 She was the nuise of Jahānārā Begam, ahas Begam Sāhib

 $^{^2}$ Probably because there was a prohibition of Jahāngīr's against diseased persons being admitted to the Presence

³ Taken from Maasır A 210 Faız Ullah was ten when his father died in 1055, or 1645, so that he was about 46 when he died pay court to anybody He only kept company with birds and strange beasts and reptiles, of which specimens were brought to him from countries and ports. They say there were few animals, wild or tame, known or unknown, which were not in his collection. Even fleas, mosquitoes, moths, and lice were kept by him in wooden and copper vessels and cherished by him. In spite of these peculiarities, he was esteemed by persons of merit. None of his sons was distinguished

FAIZĪ FIYĀZĪ (SHAIKH ABU-L-FAIZ)

Elder son of S Mubārik of Nāgor who was distinguished among the enudite of the time for austerity and piety. One of his ancestors came out of Yemen (Arabia) from among the recluses and courageously traversed the world In the 9th century AH (1495–1592) he settled in the town of Rel¹ in Sewistān (Sindh) In the beginning of the 10th century Mubank's father came to Hindustan and settled in the city of Nagor As he had no living child, when the Shaikh came into being in 911, 1505-6 he called him When Mubarik came to years of discretion, he proceeded to Gujarat and became a disciple of the preacher Abu-l-fazl of Kāzarūn and of Maulānā' Imād of Lār, and acquired much knowledge from the learned men and the great Shāikhs of that country In 950, 1543-44, he came to Agia and lived there for fifty years, and devoted himself to learning and spent his days in poverty and He was distinguished for his reliance upon God contentment In the beginning of his career he was so zealous² against forbidden things that he would not pass by a street where music was going But at last he became so fond of it that he himself practised music and ecstatics Many contradictory dispositions have been In the time of Selīm Shāh he associated himself ascribed to him with Shaikh 'Ālāī the Mahdavī, and was charged with Mahdī-ism What censures did he not receive from the learned! In the beginning of Akbar's reign-when the Caghatai officers were most in-

¹ See B's biography of AF The text has $\bar{\imath}l$ U! It was S Mūsā who came there Mubārik's father was S Khizr See J III 418 Apparently the family removed to Agra on account of Sher Shāh's warfare with Māldeo J III 421 note fluential—he showed himself as connected with the Naqshbandīs Afterwards he joined the Hamadānī Shaikhs. When afterwards the Persians thronged the couit, he adopted their views. Accordingly he was reported to be a Sh'iā. He wrote a commentary (on the Koran) called the Manba'u Nafāīs-ul-'Uyūn (the source of the fountains of excellence), and resembling the Tafsīr Kabīr 1 (the Great Commentary), in four volumes. He also wrote the Jawāmi-ul-Kilam (the collection of significations). The document about Akbar's Ijtihād—which was attested by the learned of the time—was drafted by him, and he wrote below it. "This is a matter of which I had been in hopes for several years." They say that at last he by the exertions of his children obtained a mansab (office), though Abu-l-fazl has written that in the end of his life he suffered from weakness of sight. He died in Lahore in 1001, 1593. The chronogram was Shaikh Kāmil! "The perfect Shaikh" (1001).

² B XIX and 490

S. Faizī was born in 954, 1547 By his acuteness of intellect he acquired a competent knowledge of all the sciences. He was especially skilled in philosophy (hikmat) and Arabic, and he had mastered medicine and treated the sick gratuitously. At first he was hampered by straitened circumstances. One day he went with his father to S. 'Abdu-n-nabī Akbai's Sadi, and represented their condition and asked for a hundred bīghas of land for their support. The Shaikh on account of his bigotry found fault with him and his father for being Shī'as and contemptuously turned them out of the assembly. Upon this Faizī had the courage to seek to introduce himself to the reigning sovereign. Several times those who had the right of audience had mentioned to the king his learning and eloquence. In the 12th year, when Akbar proceeded to take Chitor, he signified a desire for the production of the Shaikh. As his contemporaries, especially the teachers, had

¹ The Tafsīru-l-Kabīr is stated in Hughes's Diet of Islām, p 522b, to be an authority among the Shī'ahs, and to have been composed in thirty volumes by Saiyid Muhammadur-Rāzī in 606 A H He also says it is of authority among the Sunnīs D'Herbelot says the most esteemed commentary is that by Thālebī

² He died in the end of 1001, and on August 5, 1593 He was 88 years old, having been born in 1505 I do not find that Mubārik ever held any office Nor do I find A F's making any allusion to his loss of sight It is Badayūnī who mentions the fact Blochmann XIX

³ AN II 304

an ill will against his family, they represented that this call of favour was one of censure, and impressed on the governoi of Agra that perchance his father would hide him. He sent some Moghuls to suddenly surround the house. It chanced that Faizī was at that time not at home. In consequence there was alaim. When he came, he accepted the summons and set about leaving. As the gates of income were closed, there was a difficulty, but at last the pupils made matters easy. After an interview, he was made the recipient of favours and was exalted by intimacy and companionship. Vengeance was taken upon 'Abdu-n-nabī who was deprived of his office and rank and exiled to the Hijāz. At last he was ruined in property and life

As the Shaikh was an excellent poet, he in the 30th year received the title of Maliku-sh-sh'uarā, and in the 33rd year he wished to make the arena of the Quintet (Nizāmī's) the field of his abilities. In competition with the Makhzan Asiār he wrote the Maikiz Adwār (Centre of Circles) in 3,000 couplets, and, in competition with Khusrau and Shīrīn, Sulaimān and Bilqīs, and in the place of the Laila and Majnūn, the Nal Daman, which is one of the old Indian stories. Each of these consisted of 4,000 couplets. In the metre of the Haft Paikār he wrote the Haft Kishwar, and in the metre of the Sikandarnāma the Akbarnāma. Each had 5,000 couplets. In a short time he commenced five poems but could not bring himself to finish them. He would say it was time to erase life's record, not to beautify the lofty portico of fame

In the 39th year Akbar urged him to complete his poems, and an order was given that he should finish the Nal Daman In the same year he finished it and presented it But as for a long time he was fond of solitude and had taken the road of silence, in spite of the king's efforts he did not finish the Quintet In the beginning of his illness—asthma—he had said

Verse.

See what cruel sorcery Heaven hath wrought! The bild of my heart twittered! from its cage,

¹ Shabāhangī Lard, "Behaved like a nightingale"? Perhaps we should render "sounded the dawn"

That bosom which could contain an universe Is straitened to emit half a breath

And in the time of illness he often said this

Verse

Should the whole world come into one's grasp 'Twere not good that an ant's leg should grow lame

On 10th Safi 1004, 5th October 1595, and the 40th year of the reign, he died Favāz 'Ajam (wondrous bounty) is the chronogram Foi years he used the pen-name of Faizī Afterwards he called himself Fayyāzī He himself said

Verse 1

Before this, when I coined words
Faizī was written on my signet,
Now that I am an expert in Love
I'm Fayyāzī from the ocean of Bounty (Fayyāz)

The Sharkh composed ² 101 books One strong witness to his talents is the commentary called the Sawātā-ul-Ilhām, "Rays of Inspiration," which is without dotted letters. Mīr Haidar, the riddle-maker, found the date of completion (1002) in the contents of the Sūrah Ikhlās, and received Rs 10,000 as a reward for this (chronogram). Faizī also wrote the Mawāridu-l-kilam, "Stages of Words," without using any dotted letters. The learned

¹ B 549 and Badayūnī III 007, who gives the lines as part of a palinode which Faizī composed in praise of the Prophet in 1003 Abu-l-Fazl states they occur in the Nal Daman, and this is correct. See the conclusion to that poem

² This statement is apparently taken from the Mirātu l-'Ālam, but if the latter's authority was Bada yūnī, it seems to me that Badayūnī's words are capable of another interpretation. See Badayūnī III 306 and editor's note. See also Darbār Akbarī, pp. 368, and 377 (top. line). Apparently what Badayūnī says is that in

Fairi's library there were 101 copies of the Nal Daman Abu l-Fazl has an account of his brother's works in the third volume of his letters, and what he says is that his brother had written 40,000 lines (bait) in prose and verse of The Sūrah Ikhlās is a famous chapter of the Koian and is No 112 It begins, "Say God is one God". There are only three veises and the abjad value of the words in them is 1002, 1593-94. The Darbār Akbari remarks p 376, that the bismillah has to be omitted. But then this is not part of the three verses.

men of the age objected that up to the present day no one of the eminent writers had—however great was their devotion ($wal\bar{u}$) "Love or Devotion")—written a commentary (on the Koran) without dotted letters. The Sharkh said that when the holy creed (Kalima-i-tayiba)—which was the foundation of the Faith—was without dots, what other proof did they want?

They say that among the property left by the Shakh were 4,300² choice books. They were confiscated by the government. The Shakh by his learning and excellences became prominent at court. He was appointed to teach the king's sons. He was also sent on an embassy to the rulers of the Decean. He never had more than a 400 mansab. S. Abu-l-fazl, though he was the younger brother, rose to become an Amīr. While Faizī was alive, Abu-l-fazl attained the rank of 2,500. In the end he arrived at the highest rank. Many adduce the following verse as evidence that Faizī led Akbar to become a non-worshipper.—

Verse

Observe how appropriate gifts are distributed by Fate to each—

The muioi to Alexander, the sun 3 to Akbai,

The former showed his own face in the muror,

The latter displays God (Haqq) in the sun.

Though there is no doubt that the great luminary and glory of the world is one of the greatest marks of God's power, and that the arrangement of the evil world depends on it, yet the mode of glorification—which is not the way of the followers of Islām—and the words of Abul-l-fazl imply such a view (as is alleged against him)

His brilliant verses and odes are universally known He wrote a couplet about wine

¹ The creed Lā Ilaha etc

² 4,600 according to Badayūnī III

⁸ By manipulating the letters in a certain way, Faizī showed by abjad that the letters of $A/t\bar{a}b$, the sun, and Albar yielded the same number, viz 223 See AN translation I 65

Veise 1

Why, O sword of Love, cut the hands · if you'r just Better cut the tongues of the reprovers of Zulaikha

FĀKHIR KHĀN.

S. Bāqır K Najm Sānī. In the third year of Shah Jahan, at the time the latter was in the Deccan, he presented a decorated pardala² (a belt²) and some jewels as the tribute of his father who was governor of Orissa He received a suitable rank his father's death he got an increase and had the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 horse Foi some time he was, on account of a fault, without an office or fief In the 21st year he was confirmed in his old rank, and got the title of Khān and the office of Mīr Tuzuk in succession to Nawazish K On account of some improper acts he was for a time excluded from doing homage the 27th year, at the request of Dārā Shhikoh, he was restored to his rank In the 29th year he received an increase of 500 the battle of Samogara he commanded 3 Dārā Shikoh's left wing, and afterwards fled to Lahore When the standards of Aurangzeb adoined Agra he paid his respects He was deprived of his mansab but lived in the capital on a pension He was alive up to

Fairi is not speaking of material wine, and therefore should not be censured But the passage is, to me, obscure

¹ Compare the verse in B 558, text T 240, top of page and the note There is an elaborate notice of Fairī in the Darbār Akbari, p 359, etc Apparently the verse was intended as an answer to Fairī's critics. Abuilfail's preface to Fairī's works is in vol III of his letters. There is a biography of Fairī in Blochmann's Ain translation, p 490. See also ASBJ for 1869, p 137 note

On referring to the passage again I am not sure that what the author of the Maasīr says is that Faizī wrote a poem about wine (bar mai), and think the allusion may be to the versestranslated by B at p 559 These are in praise of spiritual or mental wine, and perhaps the couplet about Zulaikha is quoted by the author to indicate that

Parda la ² Pādshāhnāma L 315 does not occur in our dictionaries From Kämgär Husaini's Maagir Jahangīrī BM MS Or 171, p 163a, Rieu's Cat, 257a, it is clear 'that pardala is something connected with a sword, for there we have the expression pardala-See also id, pp 98 and ı-shamsher I believe that pardala is a belt and variant of the Hindustani word partal, a belt or strap In Khāfī K. I 337, the sword is spelt partala, the expression being partala-1-almās, "a diamond belt" It was a present from Shah Jahan to his father the 23rd year of the reign and then died. His son, Iftikhar by name, held up to the 30th year of Shah Jahan the rank of 700 with 120 horse. When Aurangzeb succeeded, he in the 5th year got the title of Mafakhin K. In the 9th year his rank was 1,000 with 150 horse. He was the son-in-law of Asad K.

^{3 &#}x27;Alamgirnama 96

⁴ id 236

FARHAT KHĀN.

His name was Mihtai Sakāi and he was one of the special attendants of Humayan. When in the battle with M Kamian, the treacherous officers joined with the latter, Beg Bābāī of Kulāb came from behind and struck Humāyūn with a sword stumbled, and Fathat K came up and put him to flight Humayun marched from Lahore to Sulind to encounter Sikandar Sür, Farhat was made Shiqdar of Lahore When Shah Abu-l-M'aālī was appointed to the province, he, without any orders, removed Farhat, and appointed his own men. Afterwards when Prince Akbar was sent there, Farhat joined him and was received with favour During the reign of Akbar he was made fiefholder of the township of Kūrā 2 When H M was returning from the eastern districts, he halted at Farhat's house and was entertained at a banquet In the battle with Muhammad Husain M near Ahmadabad he did good service When M Muhammad was made prisoner and asked for water, Farhat became indignant and struck him on the head with his hands, saying "According to what law should a rebel like you get water?" The king blamed him and gave the Mīrzā drink out of his own flask. In the 19th year he was sent to take Rohtas This is a strong fort and has cultivation and springs on the top of the hill sufficient to supply the gainson When some days had elapsed an order was issued to Mozaffar K, who at that time had been appointed subordinate to Farhat in order that his pride might be broken, to chastise the Afghans who were making a disturbance in Bihai, and he (Mozaffar) was made an object of favour Farhat commanded the left wing in

¹ B 441

² This is Corah of the old Regulations See J. 167 where it is spelt

Korarah It is in the Allahabad district, and is the Karā of the I G XIV 416

Mozaffar's battles with the Afghans When Gajpatī Rajah made a disturbance in Ariah, which was Faihat's fief, Faihat did not judge it proper to encounter him and took refuge in the foit (of Ariah) When his son Farhang K heard of his being besieged, he went off to help him Active swordsmen hamstrung his horse He dismounted and fell, fighting bravely Faihat's fatherly affection was moved on hearing of this, he came out of the foit and was killed like a loyalist. This occurred in the 21st year, 984, 1576-77

(IHTISHĀM K IKHLĀS K SHAIKH) FARID FATHPŪRĪ

Second's of Qutbu-d-dīn Khān Shaikh Khūbān 2 By the end of Jahangn's reign he had attained the rank of 1,400 with 400 In the first year of Shah Jahan he had an increase of 500 with 200 horse, in the 4th year he had an increase of 200 horse, and in the 5th year he had the rank of 2,000 with 1,200 horse the 8th year he had the rank of 2,500 with 500 horse and was attached to Aurangzeb's army which was appointed to chastise Jujhār Singh Bandīla In the 9th year at the time that the king was in the Decean, he was sent off with Shaista K to take the forts of Junan and Sangamnīr After the taking of Sangamnīn he remained there as thanadar In the 11th year he went off with Asālat K to subdue the rebels of pargana Candwār 3 In the 15th year he distinguished himself at the taking of Mau and afterwards went with Prince Dāiā Shikoh to Kabul At the time of leaving he was presented with a flag
In the 18th year he was appointed to the charge of the province of the capital and had the rank of 3,000 with 1,500 hoise In the 19th year he went with Prince When the Murād Bakhsh to conquer Balkh and Badakhshān Prince retuined from there, and Bahādur K Rohilla had set out

¹ A. N III 169 The biography does not notice that Farhat was one of the two men who threw Adham K over the terrace A N II 175

² Jahangır's foster brother kılled by Nür Jahan's first husband (Beale) Maasır III 66

³ Pādshāhnāma II 21 and Khāfī K I 552, have Jadwār and it is so also in the Ain J II 290 It is in Sarkār Sambhal from Balkh to punish the Almanan, Ihtisham was left in charge of the city.

⁴ Khāfī K I 619

In the 22nd 1 year when it was reported that he on account of excessive jealousy had delayed to join Rajah Bethai Das who had been appointed to Kabul, he was deprived of his rank and jagir and placed among the pensioners ($lashkar-r-d^{\epsilon}u\bar{a}$) In the 31st year he received favours and obtained the rank of 3,000 with 2,000 hoise and was appointed to serve under Prince Sulaiman Shikoh who had been ordered to encounter Muhammad Shuja' He was appointed to the governorship of Patna and received the title of In the first year of Aurangreb he was appointed among Ikhlās K the auxiliaries of Khān Daurān who had been appointed to take As the title of lkhlas K had been bestowed on Allahabad Ahmad Khweshgi, he got the title of Ihtisham K After the battle with and flight of Shuja', Ihtisham was with (Prince) Muhammad Sultan and displayed bravery in the Bengal campaign In the end of the 6th year he came to the presence, and did hom-In the 7th year he was appointed to the Deccan along with Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh After the taking of Poonah he took up his abode there as thanadar. In the 8th year corresponding to 1075, 1664-65, he died Shaikh Nizām his son, after the first battle with Dārā Shikoh, was raised by Aulangzeb to the rank of 1,000 with 400 hoise

(SHAIKH) FARĪD MURTAZA KHĀN BOKHĀRĪ

It is said in the Iqbālnāma² that the Shaikh was a Musavī Saiyid This is somewhat strange, for the Bokhara Saiyids are descended from Jalāl Bokhārī (Makhdūm Jahānīān)—may his grave be holy, and he was seventh in descent from Imām Hamān 'Alī Naqī Alhādī—may Peace be upon him—They say³ that his fourth ancestor Saiyid 'Abdu-l-Ghaffār of Delhi left his descendants the injunction to give up subsistence lands (madad m'aāsh) and to adopt the military profession—In fact, the Shaikh early entered Akbar's service, and by his excellent loyalty and service became a

In Khāfī K I 683-84, there is an allusion to his punishment. He was made a dav-pensioner (rozīnadār)

² Kāmgār Husamī also says so

³ Price's Jahangir, p 23

favourite and grew intimate and trusted. His ability, address and courage made him famous In the 28th year, when the Khān 'Azam returned from Bengal on account of the uncongenial climate and came to Bihai, and the military dispositions were made by Wazīr K, Qutlū Lohānī had prevailed over Orissa and was practising insuboidination and opplession and had added to his possessions some Bengal estates. It was airanged that Shaikh Faiid should interview him in a certain place, and settle conditions of peace. The deceiver did not appear at the appointed interview The Shaikh I from his good intentions and simplicity, listended to some glozing tongues and proceeded towards his quarters Qutlu came forward with fawning and meditated that as soon as the men had gone to their repose he would seize the Shaikh and conceal him and make use of him as a hostage for his own designs The Shaikh perceived this and at the beginning of the night sought to return

There were no horses left in the nlankhāna (stables) and the road had been blocked in some places. A hot fight ensued, and the Sharkh got upon his own elephant. By a wonderful fate the elephant became unruly and went off on the wrong road. The Sharkh came to a stream and was seeking for a ford, when suddenly a number of men arrived and shot arrows and wounded him. The Sharkh flung himself down and went off, while they thought he was still in the howda. Meanwhile a servant came and put him on his horse and brought him to the camp. The proposed peace failed and Qutlū had the disgrace of fraud, and in successive fights had to traverse the desert of unsuccess.

¹ A N III 406

⁹ The story is told here as in A N 406, but Nizāmu-dīn, Elliot V 429 and Badayūnī, Lowe 333, tell it differently According to them Qutlū did not behave badly. It was Bahādur who did so See also Stewart's Bengal 177. The story is also told in Nūru-l Haq's Zabdu t tawārīlh which is specially devoted to the glorification of S Farīd. But the account there, p 215b and 216a of BM MS Add 10, 580, makes no mention of Bahādui. It says that Farīd took 300 horse with him, that many of the borses were removed and that 5,000 or 6,000 Afghans lay in ambush. Saivids Shāhū and Abdullah Latīf were killed. The aftair took place in the Buildwan district. Qutlū was defeated afterwards and went off to Jhārkand.

In the 30th year the Sharkh attained the rank of 700, and by the 40th year he had arrived at the rank of 1,500. He became Mīr Bakhshī. Having become a bakhshī he acted like a Vizier and for some years he on account of the incompetence of the diwan drew to himself the charge of the diwān-i-tan which is part of the diwan's office, and distributed jagns to those who sought for assignments (tankhwāh). After! the death of Akbar, two good services were performed by the Sharkh which raised him above his peers, or rather above all the officers and pillars of the empire

The first was that when Jahangu at the time he was Prince behaved independently in Allahabad and conferred titles and mansabs and distributed fiefs. Akbai increased the dignity of Jahangn's son Khusrau so that men thought he was the henapparent After the Prince (Jahangii) came to the Presence, he was not devoid of turbulence (shortsh dimāgh) The Emperor delayed and dissembled As the Prince's (Selīm's) men had gone off to Gujarat-which had recently been 2 assigned to him as his fief (tiyūl)—the Emperor intimated to him in his illness that he should confine himself to his house, outside of the fort, lest the party of the opposition should make a disturbance Mīrzā Azīz Koka and Rajah Man Singh were, on account of their relationship with Sultan Khusiau, plotting to make him ruler, and placed the gates of the fort in charge of their own men The Khiziī gate they made over to Shaikh Faiid in co-partnership with their own men Farīd-who had the control of the army-was annoyed and came out of the fort and saluted the Prince, and congratulated him as The Amīrs heard of this and crowded in from every Akbar was still breathing when Rajah Man Singh was won over by being confirmed in the government of Bengal Jahangii

¹ The Massir does not refer to Farid's victories in Kashmir, for which see the Akbarnama and Zubdu-ttawarikh, MS 235, etc

² It is stated in ASBJ Numismatic Supplement for 1904, p 68, that Selim never was governor of Gujarat Perhaps this is technically correct, but the passage in text shows that he bad connections with the province

The Mirāt Ahmadī, lith ed, p 193, also states that Selīm received in the last year of Akbar a grant of a lac of rupees out of the collections of the port of Cambay He may therefore have had sufficient influence in Guja rat to issue Selīmī coins at Ahmadabad in the last year of his father's reign came into the fort and ascended the throne and the Shaikh received the title of Sāhibu-s-saif-u-al galm (master of sword and pen) and received the rank of 5,000 and the high office of Mir Bakshi

The second was when flatterers and foolish talkers put thoughts of empire into Sultan Khusiau's head. In the first year of his father's reign, 1014, 1606, he on 8 Zī-l-hajia, 6th April, fled by night and went plundering from Agra to Lahore The Sharkh pursued him with a number of officers and Jahangu himself followed close at his heels The Amiru-l-Umara Sharif K and Mahābat K —who had enmity with the Shaikh—represented that the Shaikh was intentionally delaying He did not intend to seize Khusrau Accordingly Mahābat K came from the king, and spoke idle words The Shaikh did not move from his place and gave an answer corresponding to his loyalty Sultan Khusiau heard of the arrival of the Sharkh at the Sultanpur river and withdrew from the siege of Lahore With 12,000 troopers whom in these few days he had gathered together he turned to encounter ! Farid The Shaikh with an inferior force went to meet him and crossed the Beas and engaged A severe battle took place The Saryids of Bārha and Bokhara distinguished themselves and devoted their Sultan Khusrau after many had been killed fled to the desert and the Shaikh went on a plain beyond the battlefield and encamped

On the same day two or three hours after night Jahangir came up on the wings of swiftness and embraced the Shaikh. He passed the night in his tent, and he, at the request of the Shaikh, made that spot, which belonged to pargana Bharronwal, a pargana, and gave it the name of Fathābād and presented it to the Shaikh He also gave the Shaikh the title of Murtaza K and gave him the government of Gujarat In the 2nd year the Shaikh sent from Gujarat a ruby of Badakhshān—of which the stone and the ring and the setting were all out from one prece of ruby and which weighed one misqāl, (15 surkhs) and was of very fine water and

¹ Gladwin calls the battlefield Gowind wal

 $^{^2}$ See Tūzuk J , p 63. A mışqāl ıs said to be one-sıxtı of an ounce $\,$ A surkh is the same as a ratī, viz the seed of the Abrus precatorius. For the complaints of the Gujarat people against Farīd, see Tūzuk J, 73.

colour—as a present It was valued at Rs 25,000. As the people of Gujarat were tormented by his brother's ways and manners, they complained, and he was summoned to the presence and in the 5th year was made governor of the Panjab In the year 1021, 1610, he was appointed to the affan of Kāngra which belongs to that Province In the town of Pathān in 1025, 1616, and the 11th year of Jahangn, he died His tomb is in Delhi in the cemetery of his ancestors. In accordance with his will a building was erected. The chronogram is $D\bar{a}d$, $hh\bar{u}rd$ building (1025, 1616) "He gave," he took little." All he left came to one thousand ashiafīs

The Sharkh was adorned with outward and inward excellen-Bravery and bounty (shujā'at ba salhāwat) were united in him His universal liberality opened the door of abundance in the face of mankind No one who approached him saw the face of disappointment in the mirror of his thoughts. On his way to the darbar he distributed garments (qabā), blankets, sheets, and shoes to the poor passers-by He distributed small gold and silver coins with his own hand. One day a dervish received alms from him seven times The 8th time he whispered to him, 'Hide what vou have taken seven times so that other dervishes do not take it from you" Monastic persons (ahl khānqāh), pious persons, needy persons and widows received fixed allowances daily or yearly, both in his piesence and privately, without sanads or parwanas were many subsistence-tenures in his fiefs The children of those who had been in his service had all fixed monthly allowances and they sported, as if they were his own children, in his arms appointed masters to teach them In Gujarat he had the names of the Saiyids-male and female-written down, and gave from his own establishment wedding-clothes for their children. He even put money in deposit for those who were in the womb ingly, whoever after that came into existence, got wedding expenses from that money But he gave nothing to panegviists or singers. He founded many hostels and serais In Ahmadabad he established a quarter called Bokhara He built the mosque and cemetery (Rauza) of Shāh Wajhīu-d-dīn, and in Delhi he left

Farīdābād with buildings and a tank In Lahore too he established a quarter, and a great bath in the market-place there is his The Sharkh three times a year gave grand dresses to the king's servants with whom he had to do, and to some he gave nine things (tuquz) To his own servants he gave yearly a khilat, to the footmen a blanket, and to the sweepers ($hal\bar{a}lk\underline{h}\bar{u}i$) a pair of shoes This was his custom all his life, as long as he lived he did not grudge it To some of his companions who also had jagiis he gave a lac of rupees a year. He kept 3,000 selected and wellhorsed troopers as his contingent. From the time of Akbar to the reign of Jahangii he never entered a dwelling-house (of his own) He was always in the advance-camp 2 (peshkhāna) There were three watches and every day 1,000 (?) persons (troopers?) were Five hundred were entertained and to another 500 portions were sent He paid his soldiers with his own hands He did not grumble at the crowd of men and the noise and confusion

They say that an Afghan named Shei Khān was one of his best servants. He took leave from Gujarat and went to his home and stayed there five or six years. When the Shaikh was appointed to the Kāngia campaign, he came to the town of Kalānūi and paid his respects. The Shaikh told his bakhshi Dwaikā Dās to give him the man's account in order that he might send the money to his family. The bakhshī wrote out his account and gave it to the Shaikh for the insertion of the date. The Shaikh got angry and said, "He is an old servant. If for some reason he has come late, how has our work suffered?" He made out his account from the date that his salary had been entered on the establishment and paid him Rs 7,000!

Good God! Though there is the same interchange of night and day, the same movements of the planets and revolutions of

¹ The Zabdu-t tawārīkh speaks of Farīdabād as being four far akhs from Delhi MS 249b Farīdābād is S Delhi See Proceedings ASB for 1873, p 197 The inscription there given shows that Farīd was a Saiyid Ahmad of Bokhara See Blochmann, 620, and I G XII 51

² On referring to the MSS the reading peshkhāna is doubtful

MS Add 65-6 has fard chilirah, "the statement of his appearance," ie his descriptive ioll, and this is probably the true reading. See Irvine A of M, 47

the spheres, yet at this portion of Time this land is without such men. Perhaps they have gone to some other country!

The Shaikh had no son He had one daughter, and she died Muhammad S'aīd and Mīr Khān were his adopted sons childless and they spent then days in pomp and pride, and lived extrava In their presumption they paid no regard to the imperial dignity Not to speak of their conduct to Amīrs, they would even pass before the pharoka (emperor's window) of the palace on the Jumna with many torches and lamps They were often forbidden, but it had no effect. At last Jahangii signified something to Mahābat K He told Rājī Saiyid Mubārik of Mānikpur-who was his confidential servant-to get 11d of them quietly One night Mīi K was ieturning from the Daibāi when Saiyid killed him, and was himself wounded by him The Shaikh (Farid) brought a charge of murder against Mahābat K He in the presence of the emperor brought forward positive proof (baiyīna) by trustworthy (?) witnesses that Muhammad S'aīd (the other adopted) had killed Mīr Khān, and that he should exact retalia-The Shakh from the nature of the assembly tion from him understood what was the real object 1 of the allegation and said nothing but withdrew from the prosecution

(MĪRZĀ) FARĪDŪN² KHĀN BĀRLĀS

S M Muhammad Qulī K Barlās On his father's death he was graciously treated by Akbar and received a suitable rank. In the 35th year of the reign he accompanied the Khān-Khanān 'Abdu-r-Rahīm on the Tatta campaign and distinguished himself When the country of Tatta (Sind) was conquered he in the 38th year accompanied Jānī Beg to court. In the 40th year his rank was 500. When Jahangir came to the throne he, in the second year, received a fief in the province of Allahabad and had the rank of 1,000 zāt u sawār (personality and hoise). In the 3rd year his rank was 1,500 with 1,300 hoise, and afterwards it was increased

[!] Asl mudd'aā The real meaning of the allegation that Muhammad S'āid was the murderer Perhaps asl here means root and refers to Jahan-gir

² B 342 and 478

to 2,000 l horse In the 8th year he was attached to Sultan Kharram (Shah Jahan) and employed in the campaign against Rānā Amr Singh Afterwards he died la The appreciative sovereign gave his son Mihr 'Alī the rank of 1,000 with 1 000 horse

FATH JANG KHĀN MĪYĀNA

His name was Husain K and he was one of the leading officers of the 'Adıl S dynasty Though he was not nearly related to Bahlūl K Mīyāna, yet he by birth and ability was one of the distinguished men of Bījāpūi. As the household servants of the 'Adıl Shah dynasty did not consider their king, but were independent and squabbled with one another, the affairs of the kingdom fell into decay and hostile desires increased Aurangzeb had long ago determined upon uplooting the Qutb Shah and 'Ādil Shāh dynasties, and when he was obliged to visit the Deccan as king, his old designs were confirmed Fath Jang from foreseeing the end of things, and by his good fortune came to the royal threshold and in the 26th year did homage in the citadel of Aurangabad By the king's order, Atish K Rüzbahani received him at the door of the Ghuslkhāna, and Ashiaf K. Mīr Bakhshī advanced as far as the terrace He received the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse, a flag and a drum, and the title of Fath Jang K and a present of Rs 40,000 and so became the envy of his contempo-His brother and other relatives received suitable robes of honour and offices

At the same time a wonderful occurrence took place Prince Muhammad 'Ā'zim Shāh—who had taken leave to go to Bījāpūr—was summoned to the presence from the bank of the river Nīrā 'One day when he came near the city on horseback, suddenly Fath Jang's elephant got violent and rushed at the head of the party (faug) and came near the Shah He (the Prince) discharged an

¹ In the 5th year his rank was 2,000 with 1,500 horse Tūzuk J 83 In the 7th year he was raised to 2,500 with 2,000 horse Tūzuk 112

² He died in the 9th year at Udaipūr Tūzuk 131

⁸ Maasır A 230

⁴ River in the Poonah district Lat 184 N Lon, 7413 E It now feeds a Canal arrow at him, but he came nearer, and the Prince's hoise became The Prince dismounted and faced the elephant unmanageable and struck it on the trunk with his sword Meanwhile the men of the escort who had been dispersed, killed the elephant by fatal When the Prince was appointed to the Bijāpūr expedition, Fath Jang became one of those attached to him battle of the batteries there he distinguished himself and became decorated with wounds Afterwards he was made governor of the fort of Rāherī, and served there for a long time He had several engagements with the banditti (the Mahiattas), and in one he was Sambhā treated him with respect and brought him made prisoner There he died He was a quiet man, devoted to his Among his sons—most of whom died during his lifetime— Qudrat Ullah was faujdāi of Tālīkoth In the 50th year Tālīkoth (Talikot I G XXIII, 214) together with the government of Bijāpūr was made over to Husain Qulij K Bahādur The said Khān (Qudiat Ullah) was made faujdāi of Mahkai, in the Beiai Bālā-In his time the enemy (the Mahrattas) fell upon the town Among his brothers, Yasın K was thanadar of and plundered it Karar I (also known as Māndgāon, in Beiai) and held faujdārīs in In the time of Bahādui Shah, Puidil K Afghan superseded him Quarrels arose between them about the collections and ended in battle, and Yasın K was killed

FATH JANG K ROHILLA

His father was Zechanah K, the brother of Usmān K. Rohilla, who for a long time was one of the Deccan auxiliaries. Though his rank was small, he was much trusted and respected. In the 13th year of Shah Jahan he was made faujdār of Khāndes, and distinguished himself in that office by the introduction of approved regulations, and by looking after the Rohillas. In the 30th year he (Usmān) died a natural death. His rank was 1,000 with 800 horse. Zechanah K also was distinguished for courage. Fath K surpassed his father and uncle, and by his energy and courage he, in the time of Shah Jahan, obtained his uncle's rank. In the 26th year he was made faujdār of Tundāpur in Khāndes-which is the mouth of the Bālāghāt—and after that was made faujdār of Copra 1 in the same province His rank became 1,000 with 800 horse They say that he had very pleasant manners and that in spite of the smallness of his rank he was an eminent Amir, and that his establishment was on a greater scale than his position He was a man of an open brow and one who had a liberal hand Though he was not without eloquence and knowledge, his gentleness and humility were such that if he happened to fall in with a low person $(p\bar{a}c\bar{i}, qu p\bar{a}j\bar{i})$ he would go to his house and show such amiability as surprised people He was unrivalled for the way he looked after his clan, and as a commanding officer (dar tumandārī) He bore the burden of assisting his brother and nephews-who were all distinguished for courage—and he served well Prince Aurangzeb when he was governor of the Deccan In the campaign when the fort of Badrū 2 Kalyān was taken by the imperial officers, the Prince sent him and Mīr Malik Husain Koka against Nīlanga which they quickly took When the Prince proceeded to Upper India to take the sovereignty, Fath K with his brothers and sonsın-law accompanied him, and after leaving Burhanpur he got the title of Khān After the battle with Maharajah Jeswant he received the title of Fath K Jang K and the gift of a flag and drum and the rank of 2,500 with 2,500 horse In the battles with the claimants to the sovereignty he and his brothers distinguished themselves After the battle of Khajwa he was appointed to accompany M uazzam K, the Khān-Khānān, ın his pursuit of Shūjā' and did good service in that general's vanguard In the end of the year of the Accession, the Khān-Khānān proceeded from Akbarnagar (Rājmahal) to Sūtī³—which is fourteen kos further on

¹ J II 225 The Chopda of I G λ 327

² Perhaps this should be "the forts of Bidar and Kalyān," and the incident may refer to the 31st year of Shah Jahan See Elliot VII 124, etc

³ The text has Sūlī, and Jahāngīrnagar instead of Akbarnagar 'But a reference to the 'Ālamgīrnāma 406 shows that the place is Sūtī or Sooty in the N of the Murshidabad district and that it is Akbarnagar, and not Jahāngīrnagar, which was 14 los away Sooty is on the Bhagirathī, which is mentioned in the Maasir III 542, in connection with Sūtī See also Stewart, Hist of Bengal, 271, who speaks of Mīr Jumla crossing at Sooty than Akbarnagar—and he sent some brave men in boats to the other side of the river where the enemies' batteries were some had landed, a battle took place, and some war-boats of the enemy fought a naval battle Many returned unsuccessful brother Hayāt known as Zabardast K —who was with a number of his companions in a boat-wounded and killed many, and he got a gunshot-wound 2 and two wounds with arrows and then escaped from the enemies' boats Shahbaz and Sharif, brothers of the Khān, and Rustūm and Rasūl, his nephews, and a number of his connections and followers were in another boat They had not all landed when the enemy attacked them Shahbāz was killed by an elephant, and Rustūm and Rasūl and others were killed were wounded and made pusoners. Afterwards, when the \underline{Kh} ān-Khānan appointed Mukhlis K. to the faujdārī of Akbarnagar, he left him there along with Zabardast K and Fath K After the business of Shujā was finished, Fath K came from Bengal to the pre-As his heart was inclined to service in the Deccan, he became an auxiliary in that country $\ \ $ In the Bījāpūr campaign he in company with Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh had command of the left wing

When he approached Bījāpūr Sherza K Mahdavī and Sīdī Ma'saūd came into the imperial territory and stirred up commotion. By chance, at that time, Iskandar, who was called Salābat K and was the brother of Fath Jang, had come to within four kos of Parenda with the intent of joining the Rajah. Sherza K with 6000 troopers fell upon him. He guarded his honour and did not think it fitting to turn back from them and with 40 troopers of his own followers they acquired fame by sacrificing their lives. Every one of his brothers was distinguished for his courage. He held pargana Jāmeza in Khāndes in fief. He took the

See also 'Alamgirnāma 504 where it is stated that Sutī is about 14 kos from Akbarnagar on the way to Jahangirnagar and that Mir Jumla encamped there and erected batteries on the river-bank, etc

^{1 &#}x27;Alamgirnāma 505, etc It was in May 1659 Mir Jumla's men crossed over the river to take a fort, but were surprised and defeated From p 501 of 'Ālamgīrnāma it appears that Shujā's battery was on a chur or island in the river

² 'Ālamgīrnāma 508

⁸ The variant Jāmnīya agrees better with J II 225 which has Jāmner I G XIV 50

maqaddamī (headship) of most of the districts and made the village Paiparī his residence. It is eight kos from Fardāpūr and on the way to Burhānpūr. He laboured to develop it, and his sons established themselves there. Up to the end of Aurangzeb's reign his son Tāj K was alive and preserved his authority. After him preeminence ceased. It is about ten years that the village has gone out of the possession of the family as a jagir owing to their want of prudence. But they hold possession as zamindars. His son-in-law Ilāhdād K took up his residence in the town of Manglaui Shāh Badra-d-dīn. He erected a very lofty gateway to his house. His descendants live there

FATH KHĀN

Son of the famous Malik 'Ambar, the Abyssiman his father's lifetime he was distinguished for courage and generosity After his death he became the administrator for the Nizāmshāhī family and left no power to Murtaza Nizām Shah the 2nd The latter was instigated by turbulent men, and arrested Fath K and sent him to Junair They say that by the help of a woman who was a bracelet-maker (chūrīgar) he with a file got iid of his fetters and escaped He joined his army and went off to Ahmad-The Nizām Shah appointed an aimy, and in the battle that ensued Fath K was wounded and made pusoner imprisoned in Daulatabad Nizam Shah after some time ascertained that Muqaiib K, a Turkish slave, who was chief swordsman (Mīr Shamsher) and had been made general in the room of Fath K, and Hamīd K. Abyssınıan, the Vakīl us-sultanat, were not conducting affairs properly, and so he made Fath K vakil and commander-in-chief as before They say that Fath K on this occasion was released by the instrumentality of his sister who was the mother of the Nızām Shah, and that he from this time adopted the dress of a soldier (?) After the death of Hamid K, he obtained the control of affairs

In fine, he got a hint from past occurrences, and set about cultivating the 'Ambaiī Abyssinians, and made them his friends As he perceived that his release from prison had been the result of necessity, and that he would be imprisoned again whenever that perfidious one had recovered heart, he anticipated matters and in 1041, 1632, imprisoned the Nizām Shah, giving out that he was insane, in the same manner that his father (Malik 'Ambar) had kept him in confinement 1. Also on the first day he put to death twenty-five of the old, leading officers He reported to Shah Jahan that he had imprisoned the Nizām Shah who from short-sightedness and wickedness was opposing the (imperial) The order in reply was that if this statement was true he should cleanse the world of the Nızām's presence had him put away 2 and gave out that he died from natural causes He appointed in his 100m Husain, a boy of ten years of age When he again reported what had occurred, Shah Jahan demanded the elephants and jewels, etc of the Nızām Shah in spite of his obedience and submissiveness, delayed to send them Accordingly Wazīi K was sent off in the fifth year from Burhānpūi to take Daulatabad Fath K huiriedly sent his eldest son 'Abdur-1-Rasūl with the jewellery and elephants, which were valued at eight lacs of rupees J'aafar K received him and brought him to do homage In this way Fath K escaped the king's anger As Fath K carried on the administration without any partner, 'Ādīl Shah of Bījāpūr wished to get 11d of him and to take possession of Daulatabad He sent a large aimy under Faihād K Fath K wiote to Mahābat K, the governor of the Deccan, that his father's will stated that the office of sweeping the courtyard of the Timuride Plinces was better than the Bījāpur dominion, and begged him to come before the arrival of the 'Ādil Shah forces This circumstance has been detailed in the account of Mahābat K When the latter arrived from Burhānpūr, Fath K, whose words and acts did not agree, was led away by the flatteries of the Bījāpūr leaders and was besieged (by Mahābat)

When provisions ran out, he soon had recourse to supplications and surrendered the fort on conditions. He went off with

¹ Cf Elliot VII 29, and Pādshāhnamā I 395

² Khāfî K I 461, and Pādshāhnāma I 402

³ Khāfi K I 467 There were 30 elephants, 9 horses and jewels See Pādshāhnāma I 411

Mahābat K along with the boy Nizām Shah and the dependants of that family which had ruled the country for 145 years bat without any apparent cause broke the treaty and imprisoned Fath K in Zafarnagar, and confiscated his goods In accordance with orders, Islam K, who had been removed from the government of Gujarat, came to Burhanpur and brought the ruined family to the presence The Nizāmu-l-Mulk was imprisoned in Gualior, but Fath K was treated with favour The conferring upon him of high office was under consideration when, perhaps in consequence of a wound to his head which had affected his brain, improper expressions were used by him, and he fell out of favour But his property was restored to him, and he got two lacs of rupees a year as an allowance He lived in retirement in Lahore for a long time with ease and comfort till at last he died a natural They say he held much converse with people of Arabia, and used to give them money His brother Cingīz entered into service before him in the second year and attained the rank of 2,500 with 1,000 horse and had the title of $Mans\bar{u}r$ KMany of his relatives received suitable offices.

As Malık 'Ambar was not a royal servant, his biography does not come into this work, but as he was one of the leading men of the age, some account of him cannot be avoided He was a Bijā-He and other bold Abyssinians became servants of the Nizām Shah and he became distinguished for courage and ability. When Queen Chand Sultan was put to death in 1009, July 1600, by the swords of some meffecting Deccanis, and the fort of Ahmadnagai came into the possession of the Emperor Akbar, and Bahādui Nizām Shah was made prisoner and confined in the fort of Gwalior, total weakness fell upon the Nizām Shah dynasty, which had been declining since the time of Burhan Shah of the effective officers remained in authority, and Malik Ambar and Rājū Mīyān Deccanī raised the standard of power had control from the boundary of Telang to within four kos of Ahmadnagar, while the second had power from the north of Daulatabad to the boundaries of Gujarat and in the south to within six los of Ahmadnagai. Murtaza Nizām Shah the 2nd, who was the son of Shah 'Alī held the fort of Ausa (Owsa of I G) and some villages for his expenses As each of these two leaders wished to conquer the other's land, they were constantly contending with one another In the year 1010, 1601-1602, there was a severe battle 1 in the neighbourhood of Nander between Malik 'Ambar and M Ing the son of 'Abdu-r-Rahīm, the Khān-Khānan, and Malık 'Ambar was carried off from the field wounded The Khān-Khānān, who knew his designs, rejoiced and made peace, and Malik 'Ambai too considered this a gain and had an interview, and made a treaty with the Khān-Khānān As he had been often defeated by Rājū, he now, with the help of the Khān-Khānān, defeated him and brought Murtaza Nizām Shah into his power and kept him under surveillance in Junair After that he led an army against Rājū and made him prisoner and took possession of his country As in Upper India the contentions of Prince Sultan Selīm, the death of Akbai and the rebellion of Sultan Khusrau quickly followed one another, Malik 'Ambar was able at his ease to increase his power, and he collected numerous soldiers, and took possession of most of the Imperial The Khān-Khānān on account of the necessity of the times had to submit to this When the power of Jahangir was consolidated, armies were repeatedly appointed Malik 'Ambar was sometimes defeated, and sometimes victorious, but did not cease to oppose Afterwards, when Shah Jahan, the heir-apparent, was sent to the Deccan and all the rulers of the Deccan submitted to him, Malik 'Ambar made over most of what he had acquired to the imperial vakils and stood firm in the path of obe-He continually carried on disputes with the 'Ādil Shahis and the Qutb Shāhīs and was repeatedly victorious He received money as tribute (n'albandī) In 1035, 1626, he died a natural death at the age of eighty He was buried in the Rauza of Daulatabad between the shrines of Shah Muntajibu-d-din Zarbakhsh and Shāh Rājūī Qatāl There is a lofty dome and a wall In spite of all the revolutions a tract is set apart to the present

¹ This was Irij's first victory over Malik 'Ambar, and occurred in 47th year of Akbar's reign See Akbarnāma III. 815, and Maasir U II 645 His second victory was near Khirkī in the 10th year of Jahangīr See Tūzuk, translation, p 312, and Elliot VI 343 day as In'ām land which supplies lamps and oil. In military acts and in statesmanship and right judgment he was unique. He had thoroughly mastered the method of qazāqī fighting which in the Decean is called bargīqii, and kept the evil-doers and vagabonds of the country in oider. He laboured much in protecting the peasantity and in the advancement of agriculture. In spite of all the commotion and turmoil, for the Moghuls and the Deceanis were always fighting, he developed the village of Khirkī, five kos from Daulatabad, which is now known as Khujastabanyād-Aurangabad, and made tanks, gardens and lofty buildings there. They say that in the distribution of charity and other good works, and in the administration of justice and the relief of the oppressed, he was very strong. He patronized poets. A certain poet has said in praise of him—

Verse

There was Bilāl,² the servant of the Apostle of God, After 1000 years there came Malık 'Ambar

FATH ULLAH KHWĀJAGĪ

Son of the Hājī Habīb-Ullah Kāshi (of Kāshān) who, on account of his business-capacity and sagacity, was sent to the port of Goa in the 20th year of Akbai to bring the railties of that place. He returned to court with the cuitosities in the 22nd year. Abu-l-Fazl says in the Akbarnāma that one of the most remarkable things he brought was an organ. The said Hājī died in the 39th year. Khwājagī Fath Ullah was one of the servants of Akbar, and was an intimate of his. In the year that the king made a rapid expedition to the shrine at Ajmere, he was sent off to bring Qutbu-d-dīn K Atga, and an order was given that he should bring him by the Mālwa route in order that by sending skilful men, he might, by exciting hopes and fears, induce the ruler of Khāndes to send Mozaffar Husain M. He came there

¹ Copied from Iqbālnāma 271 See Elliot VI 428

² Bilāl, like Malik 'Ambar, was an Abyssinian

³ AN III 146

⁴ A N 228 Hājī Habīb died on 1 Khurdād 1002, May 1594 His son is referred to by Blochmann, 499 and acted according to orders, and dexterously went himself along with the envoys to Burhānpūr After that he went off to the Hijāz without orders. He afterwards repented of this and came back along with the Begams who had gone on a pilgrimage and returned. In the 27th year he was pardoned at their intercession and did homage.

⁶ Do 250

In the 29th year he was appointed 2 to watch the Bengal officers who on account of bad health were neglecting the king's business In the 30th year when the Khān A'zim Koka had been appointed to the Deccan he was made bakhshī of the army and accompanied him In the 37th year he was sent off with S Farid Bakhshī to put down Yādgāi, the cousin of M Yūsuf K, who had tuned up the stiam of sedition in Kashmīr In the 45th year, when the loval standards were at Burhanpur, he was sent with Mozaffai Husain M to take the foit of Lalang When Mozaffar, on account of the insanity in his disposition, absconded, he with the troops reached the fortress, and the garrison from want of provisions suitendered the keys He made an agreement with some of the Khāndes soldiers who were desirous of proving then obedience and brought them to court At last he in the same year obtained leave to go to Nāsik When he came near the fort of Gālna, S'aādat K, the talūqdār, who had long entertained the wish to enter service, came and waited upon him, and surrendered the fort In the 48th year he, at the request of Prince Sultan Selîm, who was living gloriously in Allahabad, obtained 4 the rank of 1,000 and was attached to the Prince After the accession of Jahangir he was made Bakhshī

FATH ULLAH KHĀN BAHADUR 'ĀLAMGĪRSHĀHĪ

His name was Muhammad Sādiq and he was one of the Saiyids of Khost which is a district in Badakhshān He was an old, experienced soldier and at the head of distinguished swordsmen

¹ A N III 386 He came back with Gulbadan Begam's party and suffered on the journey with her

² Do 440

³ Sahat but the variant sahabat "companionship" is more likely

⁴ A N III 824 [p 13

⁶ Rogers' translation of Tuzuk,

In the beginning he was in company with Khān Fīrūz Jang and was raised to a mansab under the crown He became famous for his courage and single-fighting. In the 27th year when $\underline{K}\underline{h}$ an Fīrūz Jang, as a reward for his repeated onsets and his hard contests with the Mahrattas, received the name of Ghāzīu-d-dīn Khān Bahādui instead of that of Shihābu-d-dīn, Fath Ullah, who had distinguished himself in those battles, received the title of Sādiq He spent a long time as a follower of Khān Fīrūz Jang and did good service He received the title of Fath Ullah K Afterwards he left Fīrūz Jang and became the recipient of 10yal favours He was always employed in patiolling the country and in chastising the Mahiattas In the 43rd year after the king had resided for four years in Islāmpūrī he moved out to take Sambhā's The Khān showed alacrity in taking forts by raising batteries and driving mines In the siege of Satāra, which is situated on the ridge of a mountain, whose head 1 rises to the Pleiades (Saryā) while its root descends beyond the Earth (Sarā), he made under the captaincy of Rüh Ullah K another battery2 opposite the fort-gate In his energy and boldness he came near the door of the fort and wished by the blow of an iron fist to destroy it The awe caused by him, and the fear of other batteries, which had come near, made the fort surrender He was also a predominant partner in taking the fort of Paili which was in extent and height the equal of Satāra When Satāra had been taken, Fath Ullah was appointed to act in the vanguard in taking Aurangzeb himself accomplished the journey in three days and pitched his tents in front of the fort-gate Fath Ullah paid no regard to the strength of the fort, but exerted himself to laise batteries and to place guns on the crest of the hill, and did the work of years in a few days He placed a battery under a long and broad rock which sloped down opposite the wicket-gate

I Massir A 413 The allusion to the I leiades may refer to the popular but apparently erroneous etymology which makes Sātāra mean seven stars See I G XXII 129

² AN III 415

³ Elliot VII 367 "Six miles south-west of Sattara" The des cription of the capture is taken from the Maasir A, p 424, etc For Parli see I G XX 5

(darīca) of the fort, but it was very difficult to get over this rock If this lock could be gained possession of, the capture of the fort would be very easy The Khan with a body of men came out upon the rock and in that field which extended up to the darīca of the fort he attacked the garrison with the sword They could not resist and ran to the darica The Moghuls followed close behind As the Khan had not determined upon entering the fort, he wished that he should come out upon the rock, and establish his men there, and bring up a gun and demolish the wall strengthened the darīca and raised a typhoon of musket-fire and threw bombs from the top of wall. They also set fire to a quantity of gunpowder which, in anticipation of such a day, they had laid down in the exit from the fort - Faqīr Ullah K, the grandson of Fath Ullah, and some 67 others were killed As there was no shelter on the rock the troops could not remain there came down and took up then old position But the tumult of the fight had put fire into the souls of the infidels, and the smoke of their conceit evaporated They cired for quarter, and in the course of 12 months in the 44th year the fort was taken chionogiam² was Hazā Nasi Ullah, "This is God's victory" the fort was one of the works of Ibrahim 'Adıl Shah who had founded it in 1035, 1626 and he made use³ of the term Nauias to everything which was new, it was now called Nauras Tāiā The Khān received an increase of rank and obtained leave to go to Aurangabad to recruit his followers He came to the presence at the time of the siege of Parnāla and it was ordered that on one side Tarbīyat K Mīi Ātish should raise a battery and Fath Ullah on the other under the leadership of Pince Bīdār Bakht, and with the aid of Mun'im K should make a second approach (sība) He in the course of one month cut through the stony ground as if

^{1 &}quot;60 or 70", Massi A, 427

² This yields 1112, 1700 The text says nothing about the heavy rains which made the siege difficult and led to a famine

³ The Maasir A instances the book called Nauras which was a treatise on music by Ibrāhīm 'Ādil Shah to which

Zuhūrī wrote a pieface (see Rieu Cat 741), and the city Nauras-i-Ibrāhīm founded by Ibrāhīm See also Gorçin de Tassy Litt Hind vol II 4 and III 349 Apparently there were nine Ras according to Ibrāhīm, so perhaps Nau stood both for "new" and for "nine"

it were easier than earth, and made a road to the wall so that road-makers were astonished. The besieged became frightened and asked for quarter. He received the title of Bahādur and his reputation increased.

When the 10yal aimy moved from Paināla towards Kahtāwan 1-where there was a harvest and abundant (apparently this is the meaning of the name) provisions—to establish a camp, he was sent to take Daidangaiha which is two kos from that village The gainson out of fear of him left the fort empty and thought themselves lucky to have saved then lives The fort received the name of Sādıqgarha² (Maasıı A , 143) from being associated with From Kahtawan a force was sent to take Nandgan and $_{
m him}$ Chandan and Mandan, under the leadership of the bakhshiu-l mulk Bahramand K In a short time the garrisons of all three had no resource except to surrender or flee. The first was called Girū. the second Miftah, and the third Maftah In the 15th year the 10yal standards moved from Sadiggarha towards the fort of Khelna-which was the head of all the hillforts and surrounded by difficult jungles In a few days the aimy arrived there account of the stony ground, and the steepness of the paths, and the num erous hollows and ravines, it was difficult for the army to proceed, especially as there was a space of four los, the difficulties of which had frightened people, but by the excitions of Fath Ullah and the labours of hatchet-men and stone-cutters, all the aspenties were made easy. The Khān was presented with a special quiver, and under the command of the Amīru-l-Umarā Jumlau-l-mulk (Asad K) and the companionship of Hamīdu-d-dīn K, Mun'ım K and Rajah Jai Singh, he was appointed to the siege On the same day he took the nidge from the enemy and established a battery there. Next day another ridge came into possession and guns were placed on it Great efforts were made to extend the batteries and saps With labours like those of Far-

Apparently this is the Khatao of I G XV 265 Foi Dardan Garha the Maasir A has Wardan Ghara

 $^{^2}$ He had also the name Muhammad Sādıq, M $\,A$, 443

See Maasir A, 449, line 3

⁴ Text $balj\bar{a}r$, perhaps a mistake for $m\bar{u}lj\bar{a}r$ See III 363, line 6 But bal or buljar seems to be also in use

hād, passages were made in the hill until they reached the waist of the bastion

Adıts were driven in vallous directions Gold was scattered all day, and Fath Ullah himself worked along with the labourers As from the fort, stones 2 of 100 and 200 maunds weight were thrown down continually, suddenly a stone came on the broad 100f (takhta) and broke it The Khān was knocked over by the blow, which fell upon his head—and went rolling down to a deep cavity He held on to a litter 3 (kajāwa) which had fallen down were raised by the men, and the dust of despan covered the face of everyone They brought him up senseless, and after a long time he recovered His head and chest were so damaged that he was confined to bed for a month He then returned to his work, and was considering how he might change his plan and make an attack from the side of another bastion when the taking of the fort was accomplished by the excitions of Prince Bīdār Bakht Khān Bahādui ieceived the present of a jīgha (a turban ornament), and the addition of "Alamshāhī" to his titles

Though the deeds and good services in the taking of forts and the extripation of foes which the \underline{Khan} Bahādur performed were such as others did not show, yet Aurangzeb on account of policy

l Text dhābha See Maasir A 455, where the expression used is dhāba bastan Dhāba is apparently the Hindustani word given in Forbes as meaning a terraced roof

² Matwāla, "a drunk man," apparently slang for one of these rolling stones

^{*} Maasir A, 455, and Khāfī K II 497 The description in the latter is more minute Khāfī K had already stated II p 496, Elliot VII 371, that camel-saddles (kajāwaha) and baskets were filled with earth and rubbish and even with the heads etc of men and quadrupeds, and their contents used in raising the earthworks or peihaps the covered approaches Fath Ullah was in his eagerness working along with the labourers when an enormous stone fell on the top of the work It struck the $kaj\bar{a}wa$ which Fath Ullah had got hold of, and both he and it were hurled down. He was saved by the $kaj\bar{a}wa$, to which he clung, being caught by a tree. He had been struck both on the head and the leg and foresight did not reward him in a suitable manner. The king knew him to be a leader full of courage and daring. One day he represented that if 5,000 troopers were given to him, he would undertake to extirpate the Mahiattas from the Decean. The king said that first he would require to have in readiness another leader like him with 5,000 horse. For these reasons the Khān did not wish to remain at court. He begged several times to be appointed to Kabul which was his native country. In the 17th year he received the rank of 3,000 with 1,000 horse and vent off to Kabul In the 19th year the thanadari of Longarha in that province was given to him, in succession to Allah Yai K, with an increase of After the death of Aurangzeb -when Bahadur Shah moved from Peshawai with the other auxiliary officers of the province—an order was sent, summoning the Khan, who had gone to his home. Near Lahore it was reported that Eath Ullah K. had withdrawn himself in spite of the order. The Prince remarked that Jan Nisar K —who in courage was not inferior to Fath Ullah would arrive with a large force in Agra, should the Khan not come He died in the beginning of Bahādur Shah's reign. He was a thorough soldier. He was plainspoken and rough of tongue One day on account of his having done something which dis pleased Aurangzeb, the latter sent him a message of reproof by an eunuch He said in reply that a man of perfect understanding when he came to eighty years of age, lost his reason and sense "I am a mere soldier and am a hundred leagues off from God, and am become the dregs of ciention. I am needlessly lingering on this stage" When the cunuch represented to him the impropriety of his language, he replied in humble and apologetic language self to a worn-out soldier who had lagged behind the others on the march and was uselessly staying on the abandoned stage (marhala) Perhaps Khudsiqāhī means Khudsawār, a headstrong or obstinate person Cf "Superfluous lags the veteran on the stage—', where stage may mean station

⁴ ghalat andāz, "to revolve, as a millstone". The passage is taken from the Maasir A, 456, but the word dīgai, "another", after buri has been omitted. According to the Maasir A, 455, the ornament he got was a sarpech, and it was given to him on his return to work after his illness. The Maasir A 456 says the credit of taking Khelna was really due to Bīdār Bakht. It gives the date of the conquest as 10 Zī l-Hajja 1113, 27 April 1701

¹ Khāfī K II 498, where the word ing is different The sting of the remark was that it applied to Aurangzeb who was even older than Fath Ullah Instead of "a hundred leagues (farsakh) from God," Khāfī K has "a hundred stages from Reason" Apparently Fath Ullah compared him-

(AMIR) FATH ULLAH SHĪRĀZĪ

He was the unique of the age in theoretical and practical sciences. Though he gathered abundance of knowledge in the schools of Khwāja Jamālu-d-dīn Mahmūd, Maulānā Kamālu-d-dīn Shiiwānī, Maulānā Kaid, and Mīr Ghiyāsu-d-dīn Mansūr Shīiāzī, yet the rank of his knowledge rose higher than thems 'Allāmī Abu-l-fazl's says, '' If the old books of science were lost, he could have laid a new foundation, and would have had no need for those that had gone ''

Verse 4

He was at once at the top of knowledge by the vigoui of his intellect

And a glory to intellect by the splendour of his knowledge

'Ādıl Shah of Bījāpūi by a thousand efforts brought him from Shīrāz to the Deccan and made him his prime minister (vakīl-1-matlag) After 'Adıl Shah's days were ended, Fath Ullah came in the 28th year, 991, 1583, by the summons of Akbai to Fathpui The Khān-Khānān and Hakīm Abul-l-fath received him and intro-He was treated with royal favours and in a short time was made an intimate companion He was appointed to the office of Sadr, and received the daughter of Mozaffar K Tarbatī in marriage. It is stated that he attained to the rank of 3,000, and that at the New Year's feast of the 30th year he was made Amīnu-l-mulk 6 An order was issued that Rajah Todar Mal should conduct financial and political matters in accordance with the Mīr's opinions and should complete the old transactions which had not been scrutinized since the time of Mozaffai K drew up sundry regulations tending towards the improvement of the finances and the amelioration of the peasantry and these

¹ Text wrongly has Jāmalu

² The Akbarnāma III 401, from which this account is taken, has Maulānā Ahmad Kaid

^{3 1}d , 1d

⁴ This couplet cones from Faizī's elegy, AN III 563

⁵ 'Adıl Shah, who was the husband of Chand Bībī, was killed by a boy in 988, 1580 The statement in text that Fath Ullah came to court in the 28th year is wrong He came in the 25th year as stated in the AN III 401

⁶ AN III 457

were accepted In the same year he received the title of 'Azdu-ddaula (arm of the State) and was sent off to advise Rajah 'Alī K, the ruler of Khāndes He returned unsuccessful and joined the Khān A'zım who had been appointed to attack the Deccan and to chastise the rulers thereof As he behaved badly to Shihābu-d-din and the other auxiliary officers, affairs did not progress satisfactorily, and the Mīr after receiving much vexation went off in the 31st year to the Khān-Khānān in Gujarat

They say the Mīr had got leave in order to arrange the affairs of the Deccan As A'zım K Koka and Shıhābu-d-dīn were not on good terms, Rajah 'Alī K, on observing the hypocrisy of the officers, united the Deccan army under himself and prepared for battle Though the Mir tried to bring him round, he was not successful He was helpless and went to the Khān-Khānān in Gujarat That too did not succeed in order to get his assistance there he came to court In 997, at the time of the return of the king from Kashmir, he remained behind in the city on account of illness Hakīm 'Alī failed in his treatment of him. Badayūnī says that as he was himself a physician, he did not follow Hakīm Misrī and tried to cure his fever by harīsa, and died He died in the monastery of Mīr Saiyid 'Alī Hamadānī By the king's orders his body was removed from there and buried on the top of the Koh-1-Sulaiman, which is a delightful spot The chronogram is $Firishta\ b\bar{u}d$ (he was an angel) Akbar was much grieved at his death and 2 said, "The Mir was at once our Vakil, philosopher, physician, and astronomer Who can comprehend the extent of our sorrow? If he had fallen into the hands of the Franks and they had wanted the whole of my treasures in exchange for him I should have made an excellent profit by such trafficking, and have thought that splendid jewel to be very cheaply purchased."

Verse 3

The world-Shāhinshāh's eyes were filled with moisture at his death.

Sikandar shed tears of sorrow when Plato left the world.

¹ B 33n and 60

³ This couplet is part of the poem ² AN III 558 on Amīr Fathullah's death by Faizī

Sharkh Farzī wrote a splendid ode as an elegy upon him, which these are some verses

Verse

Men of soul die not, not shall die

Death is but a name when applied to this easte,

Body is but a vesture over the spirit-frame

When it grows old the old-destroying heaven removes it

Tis a weight on life! and a mist o er joy,

A clothing of the strong with old garments

But? he (death) is generous in this famine year of liberali

In that he giveth the poor garments not grown old

It is mentioned in the Tabaqat (Akbari) that in addition a Amii Fath Ullah's having no equal in Persia or India, or rather the habitable world in all the sciences he was skilful in continuous and mysteries. He made a mill which worked of itself argiound flour, and a mirror which showed strange figures near a hand and far off and a wheel which cleaned twelve gun-barre

See Baday uni II 270, 71, but Badayuni does not quote the other lines given in the Maasir They are however to be found in the AN III 564

¹ A N III, 564 has hubūb "Love" in place of hayāt "Life"

² The two last lines are obscure They may refer to death, or to God The verses form part of Faizi's elegy on Fath Ullah and Hakim Abu l-Fath See AN I c where 200 lines of the elegy are given, and also Badayūni, Lowe, 382 Badayūni also notices Fath Ullah in III 154

³ See Tabaqāt A lith p 38s, and the translation in B 275, note 1 "He constructed a millstone which was placed on a cart It turned itself and ground corn" The Darbārī A 681 says the mill was moved by wind, but probably this is a wrong guess. The mill was worked by the motion of the wheels, and so A F writes,

Blochmann 275, "When this carriag is used for travelling, or for earrying loads, it may be employed for gring corn". A F ascribes the invention, and also that of the machine for gun cleaning, to Akbar see B 27 and 115

Ther 4 Text pur (or par) mīshud is the variant bar, but the Tabaqa reading is sir But probably all thes readings are wrong, and we should read burghu or burghu, a Turki word meaning a conkscrew, etc It is evi dent from Plate XV in the Ain tha the machine was a wheel worked by bullock which caused twelve, or 1 may be sixteen, brushes to cleans The passage about the gun-barrels Possibly the the mirror is obscure meaning is that Fath Ullah constructed a magical mirror which enabled him to foretell the king's approach, etc See Badayūnī III 154 used there حر ادقال The phrase ar isgāl

Badayūnī writes that the Mīr was so worldly that in at once spite of his high rank he did not withhold himself from teaching He would go to the houses of the officers and teach children their children elementary knowledge, and did not preserve his dignity In the royal retinue he would put a gun on his shoulder, and a bag at his waist and run like a footman, and in athletic sports he was a Rustum It is also notorious that the Mir in spite of his science and attainments used to say with reference to the king that if he had not entered the service of that adorner of plurality and chooser of unity, he should not have taken the road to a knowledge of God The Mīr established the Divine Era in the year 992, 1584 For a long time the king had wished to introduce a new year and month into India, for the Hijra era had become impracticable on account of its age, and its commencement was a day of rejoicing to enemies and of sorrow to friends account of the crowd of conventionally learned men's considering that eras are associated with religion, the change did not take The Mir and others like him who had embraced the Divine Religion made this era their foundation, and orders were issued to the provinces in order to introduce it. It was based upon the new Gürgānī tables, and Akbar's accession 1 was made the commencement The year and month were solar and intercalary days were done away with

FAZĀĪL KHĀN MĪR HĀDĪ

Eldest son of Wazīr K Mīr Hājī the diwān of Plince Muhammad A'zam Shah He was possessed of lofty talents and excellent character and had acquired accomplishments and excellences from Sharkh 'Abdu-l-'Azīz of Agra He held a high place in the estimation of the prince In the beginning of the 27th year and at II, 315 and which Mr Lowe translates by "discovering treasures" seems to mean the science of mechanics lit "the drawing of weights". See Steingass sv jan where jarrigaqil is defined as the science of mechanics. In Wollaston's English-Persian Dict 'ilm-i-jarr-i-saqil is given as the translation of "the science of mechanics"

l This is not correct The era began with the New Year, l Farwardīn, which followed the accession, there being about a month between the two when Prince Muhammad 'Azam went for the first time to the Bījāpūr campaign, the king became for some reason displeased with the Mīr, and Ātish K Rūzbihānī was sent to the Prince's camp to bring him to the presence He was first put in charge of Rūh Ullah K (the 2nd) and afterwards put in charge of Salābat On 25 Ramzān of that year, 7 September 1683, he was in accordance with orders confined in the fort of Daulatabad After that, he went to Agra by order, and there spent his time in retirement and in instructing pupils. At last his good fortune returned and he was restored to favour He was summoned to the presence and kissed the threshold The robe of Mīr Munshīship was given to him and he was made Superintendent of the In the 44th year he was put in charge of the household (Bīyūtāt) in the room of Khudābanda K and afterwards was in addıtıon made deputy-Khānsāmān On 6 Zī-l-q'ada of the 47th year, 1114, 13 March 1703, he died

By his ability and extensive learning he was the unique of With reference to himself he used to say,2 "Here is the man, what is the work (required)," and the king used to say about him that he carried on the duties of deputy Khānsāmān in such a way as to make the house bright When he was in charge of the secretariat, he one day represented (to the king) that in the Hindi language and Hindî mode of writing there was no letter H and that although the letter A was included among those letters which had been entirely abandoned in the Hindi language, yet in place of it and of 'ain and hamza they had a letter which they employed at the beginning, middle, and end of words But of the twelve vowels which they make use of, and make the foundation of their compounds there is one which they call $k\bar{a}n\bar{a}$ and which they employ at the end of words This in form and in pronunciation is the letter Alif At the beginning of Islam (in India), translators and Persian writers, from ignorance, made this alif into an For instance, they wrote, for Bangalā and Mālwā, Bangalh

¹ Maasır A 237 He is there called Muhammad Hadi and the son of Mir Khan.

² Maasır A 471

(and Mālwh) The king, who was all-knowing, and was acquainted with Hindī, approved and ordered the officials of the department to write such words with $alif^1$

Mīr Murtaza K, the Kbān's daughter's son, was a discreet youth and had a military turn. He was a memorial of the family For some time he was in company with Mubāriz K, the governor of Haidarabad, and was faujdār of Mīdak in that province Afterwards, he served Nawab Āsaf Jāh, and had charge of the collections of Īlkandal and led a force against the zamindar of Shamsī—which is commonly known as Kālā Pahār. He behaved with activity and approached the fort alone. A bullet pierced his breast and he died ² They say that as he had embezzled much money of the government, he committed ³ suicide

FĀZIL KHĀN

He is Āqā Afzal of Ispahan and came from Persia to India He became connected with Shaikh Farīd Murtaza K. The Shaikh advanced him on account of his knowledge and good judgment, and gave him a fixed allowance of a lac of rupees a year. Indeed the Shaikh, who was an ocean of genius and liberality, and a fountain of appreciation, gave many persons annual allowances of a lac of rupees or of Rs. 80,000. For instance, he gave Rs. 80,000 to Amīr Beg, the brother of Fāzil K. When the government of the Panjab was made over by Jahangir to the

¹ I am indebted to Dr Grierson for an explanation of the word kana He informs me that "it means the perpendicular stroke of a Devanāgarī consonant and also, specially, the form which long a takes when non-The word is in common use in reference to handwriting" It is curious that the word does not occur in ordinary dictionaries though it does in Molesworth's Mahratta Dict The passage in text is taken from Khāfī K Π 399 Aurangzeb's orders do not seem to have been carried out for we generally find Bengal and Mālwa written with a final h

² Ika u khabāza gardīd Variant īk dū khiyāra BM MS Add 6566 has janāza "a corpse" See the note at the end of the biography of 'Abdul-Qawī where the same phrase occurs. The words as given there I 229 are ba kadū khiyāra gardīd "made him like a striped pumpkin (?), reduced him to pulp?" The expression really is taken from the inscription put by Prince Daniel on his favourite fowling piece, and means that he became a corpse

³ Literally, gave himself to be killed

Sharkh, the latter made Aga Afzal his deputy. The latter ably carried on the duties. After the Sharkh's death, the province was assigned to I'timādu-d-daula, and he too left as before, the deputyship to Fazil whose reputation increased more and more After that he was made diwan of Sultan Parviz, and he received from court a suitable mansab and the title of Fazil K Sultan Parvīz under the guardianship of Mahābat K, was appointed to pursue the heir-apparent (Shah Jahan), Fazil was made the bakhshi and recorder of his army. In the 20th year he received the rank of 1500 with 500 horse, and the gift of a horse and an elephant, and was made diwan of the Decean Out of opportunism he became mixed up with Khan Jahan Lodi, the governor of that province, and shared in his political and financial schemes. When Jahangu died Shah Jahan, who at that time was in Junau in the Deccan, sent Jan Nisai K with a firman confirming him in the government of the Deccan to Khan Jahan, and mentioned that he was coming by that route K, whose brother was in the service of Sultan Shahriyar (as diwan), perverted 2 Khan Jahan's judgment, and said, "The officers at the court have placed Dawar Bakhsh on the throne, and Shahiiyai is beating the drum of sovereignty in Lahoie, and is giving much gold to the soldiers. Most of the great officers suspect that if Shah Jahan succeed to the thione he will exact vengeance You are head of a clan and have a large number of adherents, and the cream of the royal army You can become the servant of whoever ascends the throne of India has now regarded your claims as a servant of so many years' standing as non-existent and vesterday appointed Mahābat, in spite of his mountains (hoh-koh) of crimes, to your post and has given him the title of Commander-in-chief in supersession of you These words made an impression on Khan Jahan in spite of his wisdom, and he sent³ away Jan Nisai K without even giving

¹ Iqbālnāma 299

² Rai dazdīda "stole the judgment" or robbed Khān Jahan of his judgment

³ Iqbālnāma 300 where the author speaks of having heard the story from Jān Nisār

hım a wrıtten answer Shah Jahan abandoned the Burhānpūı route and proceeded to Agra viâ Gujaiat

When Shah Jahan was established on the throne and the more urgent matters had been disposed of, an order was issued summoning Khān Jahān and Fāzil to court Fāzil separated from Khān Jahān at the Handia ghāt of the Narbada and came on ahead of him At that time the imperial forces had been appointed to act against Jujhār Singh Bandīla, and Shah Jahan proceeded rapidly as far as Gwahor When the Khān arrived at Narwar he was, according to orders, imprisoned, and his goods confiscat-For some time he remained in strict confinement time when Khān Jahān was admitted to an interview, Fāzil's 1 elease was fixed at a lansom of six lacs of lupees Many officers assisted him according to their ability, and Khān Jahān gave him a lac of tupees For a time he remained under censure and was deplived of his office and his dignity. Afterwards he was given the fief of Baroda In the 9th year when Shah Jahan was returning from Daulatabad to the capital, he summoned Fāzil, and he set off rapidly from Gujarat and did homage at Burhanpür He was again made the subject of favour, and received the title of I'tımad K and the dıwanı of the Deccan In the 15th year he was made diwan of Bengal and of the establishment of Prince Shuja', the governor of that province He died there in the 21st year He held the rank of 1500 with 600 horse His son M Dārāb was a man of sense, and was always employed in the king's service

FĀZIL K alias MULLĀ 'ALĀU-L-MULK TŪNĪ (1 e OF TŪN)

In physical science and in mathematics he was one of the first of the age, especially in the science of astronomy. In addition to abundant learning and other excellencies his deportment was a model for the wise. In the 7th year of Shah Jahan he came from Persia to India and attached himself to Nawab Āsaf

In the Hestiangabad district on the left or south side of the Narbada I C v 309, old clitton

Jah (Nui Jahan's brother) who was a congeries of knowledge. He spent his days in his company, and when that excellent Amīr died, he in the 15th year entered the royal service and received the rank of 500 with 50 horse.

When one of the companions of 'Alī Maidān, who was skilled in excavation-work brought water from near the source of the Rāvī, a distance of 48½ kos, to Lahore, at the cost of a lac of rupees but the water did not sufficiently irrigate the gardens of that city another lac was made over to the engineers spent Rs 50,000 on repairs, but still the work was not right Mulla 'Alau-l-Mulk, who understood about hydrostatics as he did about other mathematical sciences, kept five kos of the canal intact and excavated thirty more, and so brought abundant water In the 16th year he was made druan-r-tan and in into Lahore the 19th he was first made superintendent of the examination of petitions and afterwards the high post of Khānsāmān was added to this. As before the conquest of Balkh and Badakhshān he extracted from astronomy the knowledge of the conquest and reported to HM, he, after the conquest, received the rank of 2000 with 400 horse. In the 23rd year he got the title of Fazil K. and in the 28th year received the rank of 3000

When on 7 Ramzān 1968, 30 April 1658 and in the 32nd year of the reign, Dārā Shikoh fled from the battle with Aurangzeb, and the victorious prince made two marches from the battlefield and encamped at the Nūi Manzal Garden which is near Agra, Shah Jahan sent Fāzil K as an envoy to Aurangzeb and gave him both verbal and written instructions. The gist of them was that "by Divine decree what was hidden had been made manifest Submission to the Divine decrees is an element of self-knowledge and of knowledge of God. As he had recovered from a severe illness and in fact had had a second life conferred on him, the ardours of affection had risen high and he desired that he might soon be comforted by an interview." Fāzil K who in his

¹ Ba āb tarāzū shmāsa būd This explains the phrase jangtarāzū in the account of Jahangir Qulī, p 514 of

vol I Tarāz \bar{u} seems in both cases to be a pleonasm The expression jangta $r\bar{a}z\bar{u}$ occurs in vol III, p 191 purity of thought and good intentions was a friend of both parties, spoke soothing words and carried back to the king the intelligence that the prince was eager to wait upon his father But after he had gone, several officers advised the prince otherwise, and when Fazil again conveyed checiful messages to Aurangzeb he found that things had assumed a different complexion, and though he made representations, they were of no effect Aurangzeb fully believed in the wisdom and loyalty of Fazil he appointed him to look after Shah Jahan and also put him in charge of the buildings In the 2nd veni of his leign he gave him the rank of 4000 with 2000 horse and entrusted to him the writing the orders which had concern with the diuan-i-kull and the He also sent him with some messages to Shah chief viziei Jahan In the 4th year he came to court and produced some jewels and ornamented vessels belonging to Shah Jahan

In the 5th year he was raised to the rank of 5000, and in the 6th year at the time when the king visited Kashmīi, Ragha Nāth the superintendent of the affairs of the diwani died. The Khan 1 besides possessing all the sciences, rational and traditional, had good judgment and tact and was worthy of the high office of viziei On 11 Zī q'ada 1073, 7 June 1663, he was appointed there-As the heavens are envious of the success of able men, that Khān full of perfections had a disease of the stomach after entering on his duties. In the short time the illness became severe As his age had passed the sixtieth station by several stages and had reached the boundaries of the seventieth, his old constitution Treatment and medicines had not strength to resist the disease were of no avail On 27th of the same month, 24th June, which was the 17th day of his viziership, he died, and his body, in accordance with his will, was conveyed to Lahore and builed in a garden which he had made for the purpose They say that some days before he became vizier he said "I am arriving at the viziership, but age wont allow me (to continue)"

I The text begins a new paragraph here, thereby affecting the sense The word vizier used in the sentence does not occur in all the MSS It was to

Ragha Nāth, who is called Rajah in the MSS, that Fāzil succeeded See Khāfī K II 175

Verse

The cherished hope arrived, but of what avail, There is no hope that past years will return

They say that most of the judgments (astrological) which Fazil K diew from astrology about Shah Jahan and Aurangzeb They say that he had also predicted the mury which happened to Aurangzeb's foot in Khwäspur at the close of the 40th year He did not attach weight to the opinions of anyone in councils and did not consider 2 anyone to be deserving of notice in comparison with his own abilities They say that one day Shah Jahan went to inspect the canal which was called Bihisht (Paiadise) which had been newly dug, and had reached Shah Jahanabad (Delln) S'aad Ullah K was with him and in the course of conversation several times used the word nahar (canal) and pronounced it, in the ordinary way, with a middle fatha by way of confecting him said, "Say nahr, with a sulūn (lest) in the middle "S'aad Ullah in reply quoted the verse, "Verily God will prove you by the river (ba nahar) Fazil K unjustly and amogantly said, "I suppose this is a quotation from an Arabian The king observed, "Apparently then, the Qoran is inferior poetry " Fazil K remained silent

As he had no sons, after his death his brother's son Burhānuddīn, who had just come to his uncle from Persia, was promoted to a suitable rank. A separate account of him will be given

FĀZIL KHĀN BURHĀNU-D-DĪN

Brother's son of Fazil K Mullā 'Alau-l-mulk of Tūn When his uncle was near death, he came fresh from Persia When the

¹ Khāfi K II 476, but it should be the 43rd year The mistake, however, is Khāfī K's See II 176. There was also an inundation in the 40th year, Elliott VII 361, but the one in which Aurangzeb met with an injury to his foot, and got, as Khāfī K says, the hereditary lameness of Timur (Sāhib Qiian), occurred in the 43rd year See Elliot VII 369. The stream was the Man The accident occurred 37 years after Fazil's death, and in 1698 (1110)

² ba nazr namī āward See this phrase used in Khāfī K I 338 I 12

³ Sūra II v 257 The point was that Fāzil was not aware that the quotation was from the Qoran

⁴ Maasu A 47

uncle died, as he was sonless, Amangzeb-who was appreciative of loyalty and a connoisseur of the jewel of devotion-made Burhanu-d-din a subject of favour and by giving him a robe of honour divested him of the garments of sadness. He gave him the rank of 800 with 150 horse. Burhanu-d-din had many spurtual excellencies and was very reverent and free from vice was also able and practical, and trustworthy. The king soon increased his rank and gave him the title of Qabil K. In the 18th year when Muhammad Sharif, munshi of the superintendent of the posting office and the Secretariat (daru-l-in-ha), the brother of Abu-I fath Qābil K, the old munshi Wālā shāhī, was raised to the title of Qabil K on account of his connection (with the former Qabil K), Burhanu-d-din received the title of I'timad K In the 22nd year, when the king decided to go to Armere he was made diwan of Delhi, and after that he became diwan-i tan the 32nd year he was made Khān-sāmān (major domo) of the royal establishment in succession to Kämgär K, and had an increase of 500 with 100 horse so that his rank was 2,000 with 400 horse and he had the gift of a jasper argrette $(kalg\bar{\imath})$ same year he had the title of Fazil K Afterwards, he had an addition of 500 with 100 horse, and in the 41st year he resigned the office of Khān-sāmān and in succession to Abū Nasi K, the son of Shaista K Amīi-l-Umaiā, he was made governor of In the 44th year it was ordered that he should as Kashmīı deputy of Muhammad Muāzzam have charge of Lahore He did not agree and petitioned to be allowed to come to court He was sent for, but when he reached Burhanpur he died in the year 1112, 1700-01

His son 'Abdu-i-Rahīm after his father's death came to court, and in the 47th year was put in charge of the household, and had the title of Khān and an increase of rank. The king observed that Fāzil K Mullāu-l-mulk and Fāzil K Burhānu-d-dīn had many claims on him, and that he would cherish this Khānāzād (household-born one). In fact that young man possessed aptitudes, and if life had been granted him he would have risen high, but after a few days he bade adieu to youth and life. As no one remained of the line except Zīyāu-d-dīn, the brother's son and son-m-law of Fāzil K Buihānu-d-dīn, he was sent for from the diwānī of Chīnāpatan I and was promoted and had the title of Khān and was put in charge of the household. In truth, the good services of ancestors are with appreciative masters, not less than an elixir for their descendants! The Khān also served for some time in the household in the reign of Bahādur Shah. Afterwards he became diwān of Bengal

When in the time of Muhammad Fairukh Siyai, Mīi Husain 'Alī K, the Amīru-l-Umarā, was made governor of the Decean and had the power of dismissing and appointing officers, he on arriving at the Deccan appointed his own men and did not give possession to any who came from the court This increased the king's Complaint was made about this to 'Abdullah K, the displeasure He apologized and objected (denied the fact 2) Qutbu-lmulk At last it was airanged that the appointments of Diwan and Bakhshi-which were highest of all-should be made from the court Accordingly Zīyāu-d-dīn K was made diwān of the Deccan in succession to Dianat K, the grandson of Amanat K, deceased, and the bakhshīship, on the death of 'Abdu-1-Rahmān K , the son of 'Abdu-1-Rahīm K s Islām K Mashhadī, was given to Farl Ullah K, the brother of the deceased Both came together to Aurangabad The Amīru-l-Umaiā in oidei to iemove the bad name and the common report that he did not allow the nominees of the court to act, permitted Zīyāu-d-dīn-who had relations with Quthu-l-mulk and on account of whom the latter had written strongly—to enter bupon his duties. He did not show favour to the other who was not free from turbulence Afterwards, the said Khān4 came to Delhi in company with the Amīiu-l-Umarā When Fariukh Siyar fell from power, it appeared that he (Zīyaud-din) carried on correspondence with the emperor He lost his influence and at the same time died.

¹ This is probably the Chinapatan in Mysore, 34 miles from Bangalore

² Inlān namūd Perhaps denied that he had any hand in the matter

³ Khāfī K II 790 says he had no real power

⁴ Zīyāu-d-dîn See Khāfi K 797

FĀZIL KHĀN SHAIKH MAKHDŪM SADR

He was originally of Tatta At first! he was secretary to Muhammad A'zim Shah In the 23id year of Aurangzeb—when Qābil K Mīr Munshī, the brother of Abū-l-fath Qābil K Wālā Shāhī, was for some reason a subject of censure—he was given the service of the dāru-l-inshā (the secretariat, lit house of letters) and the rank of 500 with 30 horse and the gift of a gold-embroidered turban (chīra), and a kamarband, and a jāma kamlhāb (a gold-embroidered vest) On the death of Sharīf K in the 26th year he was made Sadi-i-kull (chancellor) In the 28th year he got the title of Fāzil K and was given a jasper inkstand. In the 29th year he was, in succession to Khidmat Khān, made superintendent of petitions in addition to his other employment. In the 32nd year corresponding to 1099, 1688, he died of the plague which was prevalent in the royal camp

(MĪR) FAZL ULLAH BOKHĀRĪ

A Sayyıd of Bokhaia Aftei he came to India he by good fortune obtained a suitable office, and became a favourite of Jahangir and was made an Amīr He became a leading officei and was much regarded by the king He developed a taste for art, and the wind of alchemy entered his head. Whenever he heard of an alchemist in India or found an inquirer into that, he courted him and spent much money. They say that the 'aml qamarī' came into his hands and that he made silver when he wanted it. He coined it in his house, and spent it on the pay of soldiers and for household expenses. On account of his labour and energy he had nearly acquired the aml shamsī (the art of making gold) but death did not permit this. He rolled up the goods of existence, but he performed some wonderful things. For instance he exhibited mercury in such a manner that one

¹ Maasir A 191 The office which he obtained is there merely styled Khidmat-1-insha The rank he obtained is said there to have been 500 with 300 horse. He is also said to have received a dagger and rupees

^{2,000,} and to have afterwards risen to the rank of 1,500

² The moon-art, 1 e the art of making silver, the art of making gold being 'aml shamsī grain of it increased virile power ten times. His son Mīr Asad Ullah alias Mīr Mīrān was the son-in-law of Tarbīyat K Bakhshī When Prince Aurangzeb was appointed for the first time to the government of the Deccan, Asad Ullah was by Shah Jahan's orders made his bakhshī. When the Prince went off on the Balkh expedition, Asad Ullah for some reason remained behind. Afterwards, he was made faujdār and fiefholder of Haringāon and Chopra in Khandes and served there for a long time. He had the rank of 600 with 600 horse.

When the Prince for the second time held the government of the Deccan in the 31st year and marched against 'Abdullah Qutb Shah, the ruler of Hardarabad, and besieged Golconda, the Mir was stationed in the southern battery Afterwards, when there was a proposal of peace by paying a kror of rupees as tribute, and giving the ruler's daughter in marriage to Sultan Muhammad, the eldest son of the Prince, the men of the battery were for bidden to extend the mines or take other offensive measures Asad Ullah came out of his battery in full security, and was walking about when a $zamb\bar{u}iak$ (a small cannon) was discharged at him, and he was killed As he was an old favourite he received the name of Mīr Asad Ullah the martyr, and after the Accession his sons—small and great—all received appropriate favours of his descendants was Jalālu-d-dīn K, who was bakhshī of the army of Prince Muhammad A'zım Shah, and governor of the fort He was treading the field of advancement when death Another was Mīr Yahīa who married the did not give him time daughter of Sir Buland K Mīr Bakhshī His son Mīr 'Īsā K was long governor of the forts of Candaur and Sangamnīr his death, his daughter's son was the qila'dar. Another of the sons of Mīr Asad Ullah—the one who was borne by the daughter of Tarbīyat K --was Mīr Nūr Ullah Saiyid Nūr K known as Bāghamār (the tiger-slayer) who was always faujdār of Thālner and other parganas of Khāndes, and also was a qıla'dar had a small rank he possessed property and fortune and magnifi-

¹ ek dāna birinjī, a grain, the size of a rice-grain.

² Jarrett II 224, 225 IG III 457 The Chopda of IG

But on account of his audacity he was often censured and In spite of this, as he was a khānizād (house-boin one) whatever he wrote about public matters was approved Accordingly, when Prince Muhammad Akbai absconded and having passed near the country! of Awas came to Khandes, Khan Jahan Bahadur, who had hastened on to arrest him, when he had got near him, halted until S Akbar withdrew to the hill-country of Bag-No one had the courage to write this except Nur Ullah He wrote to the king, and brought Khan Jahan under censure His full brother Mir Rahmat Ullah was married to the granddaughter of Khān Daurān Lang His son Mīr N ramat Ullah was mairied to the daughter of Amanat K Miiak M'uinu-d-din K There was another son, and many grandsons Pargana Bīr in Sarkāi Gālna was as it were the fief of his sons for a long time Then residences were there From the beginning of the sway of Nawab Āsaf Jāh it was confiscated, and they went off to other towns and villages If by chance any remain he lives in solitary fashion

FEDAI KHĀN

He was Mīi Zaiīf by name and he was a servant of Shah As Shah Jahan had a great fancy for collecting horses, he sent² Fedai along with the Peisian ambassador to buy Peisian As he did not bring a hoise which Shah Jahan's critical mind approved of, he represented that if he were allowed to visit the mainland of Aiabia and the countries of Rum, he could buy special hoises and so be relieved from his disgrace. Accordingly a friendly letter was sent with him to the Sultan of Turkey along with a decorated dagger of great value, so that if at any time he should meet with the Sultan he might be able to make use of the In the 10th year, he left Bandar Lahari (in Scinde) document and came to Hijāz After he had visited the holy places, he went to Egypt and from there to Mausul, and saw Sultan Murād \underline{Kh} ān who was about to take Bagdad The Sultan received the letter with respect and asked in the Tuikish language why Fedai had

¹ Cf I 805, where the country now is spoken of as the hills of Sultanpur Awas is Aväsgarh, Barwānī, Central

India See IG VII 90 It is N Khandes and on 1 bank Narbada ² Pādshāhnāma II 184

undertaken this long journey Fedai explained the reason and tendered the decorated dagger as a present The Sultan was pleased and said that the arrival of an ambassador and a dagger from a great king at this time was an omen of victory Next day Fedar presented on his own beharf one thousand pieces of cloth The Sultan inquired about Indian armour Fedai had with him a valuable shield and he said that arrows or bullets could not pierce The Sultan was astonished and shot an allow against the shield with all his force, but it did not traverse it He gave 1 him 10,000 qui ūsh (piasties) which are worth Rs 20,000, and said that he would allow him to depart after the affair of Bagdad had been finished, and that he might now go to Mausul and buy what things he wished Afterwards, when Sultan Murad had taken by toice Bagdad from the Persians, he returned to Mausul and gave Mī Zarīf leave to depart, and sent the reply to the letter by Arslan Aqa along with a well-moving Aiab horse with a saddle set with diamonds and a robe sewn with pearls after the fashion of Mir Zai if in company with the said ambassador embaiked on a ship at Basra (Bussoiah) and landed in Scinde

When in the 13th year he came to Lahore, he proceeded quickly to Kashmīr, where the king was, and did homage. He produced before the king 52 horses which he had purchased and two horses which the Sultan's armour-bearer (his host) had presented him with as among the best in Turkey. He received much praise for his good service, and obtained the rank of 1,000 with 200 horse and the title of Fedar K. He was also made Master of the Horse in succession to Tarbīyat K. At the same time he was appointed to the government of Laharī Bandar. He had reached the first step of fortune's ladder when unkindly time poured the brackish draught of misfortune into his mouth. In the 14th year, and in the beginning of 1051, 1640, the cup of his life was filled to

FEDAI KHĀN

His name was Hedāyat Ullah There were four brothers, each of whom by force of ability and courage became during the

¹ Pādshāhnāma II 186

² Do do 196 ³ Do do 201

⁴ Do do 229 He died at Laharī

Bandar

reign of Jahangir masters of power and influence and attained positions of trust The first was M Muhammad Taqī who in the beginning of Jahangir's leigh was appointed to accompany Mahabāt K in the affair of Rānā Amr Singh As his head was full of pride and his tongue abusive, which is the worst of faults, he conducted himself badly with the troopers, and they joined together and at the station of Pūr Māndal assembled 1 at the pubhe hall of audience (?) The second, M 'Inayat Ullah, who was famed for his skill and piudence, and was unrivalled in the art of accounts, became the diwan of Sultan Paivez, and transacted all the business in a masterly manner. But he disgusted people by his severities, and submitted to no one. In the end he fell from office They say that when his appointed time (to die) came he went to the prince and begged pardon for his faults and recommended his children When he came back to his house he died The third was M Ruh Ullah He was a distinguished and handsome youth and a first-class polo-player He was also an excellent He was a favourite servant of Jahangir, and had a position A wonderful thing was that at the time when the king was halting at the fort of Manda, Rah Ullah was sent with a brave army to chastise the recalcitrants of the neighbourhood When he came to Jītpūr, the Rajah of that place received him and came out of the city and brought him under a tree, and sent for the materials of an entertainment Suddenly a black snake came out of the tree and the Mīrzā called out Mār mār (strike the snake) One of his companions thought he was ordering the Rajah to be killed, and so wounded the Rajah The Rajah on seeing this quickly and dexterously struck 2 the Mīrzā and with one blow put an⁸ end to him (lit made him the same as a biei) The army

¹ Māndal was a place in the Sarkār of Chitor, J II 274 The text has sin diwān gushtand Perhaps we should read siyah for sir as diwān siyah kardan mean "to rebel or resist" See Vulleis s v and Behar 'Ajam Perhaps, however, sir diwan may mean "maddened" Sir-diwān also means "the open diwan" and may mean that the troopers flocked to the court-house or diwan to complain

² The story of Rūh Uliah's death is told very differently in the Tūzuk J, pp 193-91 The occurrence belonged to the 12th year See Rogers' translation, p 391

⁸ Text īha u khibāza sākht? There being without a leader fled and the Rajah appropriated the goods and withdrew into the mountains. Afterwards his country was overrun by the imperial forces and he was punished. The fourth was M. Hedavat Ullah who was the voungest of all. At first he was Min Bahr and had charge of the flotilla. He became the vakil of the famous Mahābat K. and was for a long time attached to the court and a recipient of royal favours.

As Mahābat K patronized him, he in a short time became an Amīr But on the oceasion of Mahābat's disturbance he on account of fidelity to his salt and his devotion (fedawat) did not fail to expose his life. The account of this is that when Jahangii was encamped on the bank of the Ihilam, and the officers from neglect and perfunctorine shad crossed over the bridge with the whole of the camp nothing remained on the other side of the river except the royal quarters. Mahābat, who was watching his opportunity, took possession of the toyal quarters. Fedar K heard of the disturbance, and as the bridge had been buint he devotedly flung himself into the river opposite the royal quarters. Some of his companions were carried downstream by the force of the current and drowned, and others escaped I half-alive to the shore of safety He himself with seven troopers emerged and made manful efforts Four of his companions were killed, and he saw that the thing would not succeed and that on account of the pressure of the enemy he could not reach the emperor Like a stone which has struck against an non wall and rebounds, he with the same activity tuined round and recrossed the river. Next day when the Amīrs in conjunction with Nūr Jahān Begam plunged into the river in order to subdue the rebel (Mahābat) they could not is the variant chdū hhiyūra sahht, "made him into two half cucumbers"? The phrase is evidently the same as that used at I 229 in the account of the killing of I'timād K alias 'Abdu-l-Qawī As there, it cannot mean that the victim was cut in two Evidently, I think, the words are taken from Prince Daniel's verse about his favouite gun which he called janāza or the bier Jetpūr or Jītpūr seems to be the place of that name in Kathiwai and which is still the seat of a Rajah See Jariett II 258, where it is placed in Sarkāi Sorāth

¹ Elhot VI 425 has "through the coldness of the water were unable to proceed". But the time was April and the original speaks of the force of the stream's overturning the men, not of its coldness advance on account of the attacks of the Rajputs, and ictied Fedai K with a body of men clossed an allow-flight further down the stream and drove off the enemy. He came to the quarters of Sultan Shahriyār, where the king was. As there was a tumult of horse and foot within the enclosure he stood at the entrance, and shot allows so that his arlows were coming near the royal throne. Mukhlas K. stood in front of the king and made himself a shield against the arrow of fate. At last Fedai K after making efforts for a long time gave; Ātā Ullah, his son-in-law and two of three mansabdārs, to be killed, but could not reach the king. He hastened to Rohtās and took his family and went to Giljhāk Nandana! which is near the hill of Kāngia, and obtained security (for his family). As Badr bakhsh Janūha (Janjūa) the zamindai of that paigana was loyal, Fedai left his belongings (i.e. his family, etc.) there and hastened to India (Hindustan in text)

When in the 22nd year of the reign Mukairam K, the governor of Bengal, was drowned in his boat, Fedar K was appointed governor (in 1627), and it was fixed that he should pay into the general treasury five lacs of rupees as peshlash to the emperor and five lacs as a present to the Begam (Nūi Jahan), or altogether ten lacs. From that time the peshkash of the governors of Bengal was fixed. After the accession of Shah Jahan he was raised to the rank of 4,000 with 3,000 horse. In the 5th year, he had a flag and a drum, and in the same year he received the fief of Jaunpūi Afterwards he was made faujdār of Gorakhpūi. When 'Abdullah K, the governor of Behar, addressed himself to subdue Pertāb the Ujjainyī, Fedar K, in his zeal, hastened to assist him though he was not ordered to do so, and took part in the capture of Bhojpūr which was Pertāb's capital. They say he was a lover of soldiers and had Afghan servants. Nor was he without haughti-

¹ Iqbālnāma 265 and Tūzuk J 406
It is Band in text Girjhāk was in the Sind Sāgar Dūāb, J II 324 It is the Jalālpūr village of I G XIV
15 Cf De Laet who says, p 266, that Fedai went to Rhokestan (qu Registan) in the deserts of Thombal (qu Jambhal) to Rajah Ghomanaw

² Tūzuk 419 and Iqbālnāma 291. The notice does not mention that he was removed from Bengal on the accession of Shah Jahan See Stewart's Bengal, 239

ness which was part of the character of the brothers. They say that when he was removed from Bengal, and came to court a crowd of people complained against him that he had taken large sums from them rightly or wrongly. As they made a claim for rediess to the court, the clerks sent him a message that the case had been instituted and that he should answer it. He took his dagger in his hand and said that the answer to the complaints was the point of his dagger, and that it was an absurd notion that he would come there. They should be careful of imagining such a thing When this was reported to Shah Jahan he passed it over and favoured him more than ever. In the 13th year when Zarīf got the title of Fedai K, he received that of Jan Nisai K. In the 14th year he sent two elephants from his fief to the presence When Zaiif K died in that year, he received again his old title In the 15th year he came from his fief and did homage, and in the same year he joined Dārā Shikoh who had been appointed to Kabul on there being a probability that the ruler of Persia would attack Qandahar After his return he was allowed to go to his fief of Goiakhpūi In the 19th year he again came and did homage, and when after the death of Rajah Jagat Singh, intimation was given to Muishid Quli that he should take the fort of Tārāgaih (neai Ajmere) Fedai K was also appointed to execute this undertaking Though Murshid Quli had taken the fort before Fedai K's arrival, yet he made it over to Fedai when he came After a petition came from Fedai K the fort was made over to Bahādui Kambū Fedai died in the same year, some time afterwards 1

FEDAI KHĀN MUHAMMAD SĀLIH

He and Safdar K Jamālu-d-dīn were sons of A'zım K Koka In the 21st year of the reign of Aurangzeb when Azım K after being removed from the government of Bengal came² to Dacca and died (in May 1678) the king sent mourning dresses to each of nor of Bengal and probably he died before leaving it See Stewart's History of Bengal, p 302 He was on his way to Bihar Maasir A, p 168

l A note to text at p 17 mentions several entiles about Fedai in the history called 'Amal-1 Sālih, but they are not important

² Dacca was his residence as gover them The first attained a suitable rank in the lifetime of his father, and got the title of Khān In the 23rd year he succeeded Salābat K as superintendent of the elephant-stables the 26th year he was made Bakhshi of the Ahadis in succession to Shihābu-d-dīn K In the 28th year he was made faugdār and diwan of Bareilly, and afterwards had the faujdain of Gwalion In the 38th year he had his father stitle of Fedar K and on the death of Shaista K he was made faujdar of Agia After that he was for some time governor of Bihar. In the 44th year he was made faujdār of Tilhut and Dalbhangha and had the lank of 3,000 with 2,500 hoise The second son obtained distinction by becoming the son-ın-law 1 of Khān Jahān Bahādur Kokaltāsh and had a good rank and the title of Khān In the 27th year he had the title of Safdar K, and afterwards he became faujdār of In the 33rd year he attacked a fort belonging thereto and was killed by a bullet

$F\bar{I}R\bar{U}Z\ K$, the eunuch

One of the trusted servants of Jahangu After that monarch had departed to the other world, and when Asaf K Abu-l-hasan had raised Bulaqi, the son of Khusrau, to the thione and had fought with Shahriyār, and Shahriyar—bereft of sense—had come to the capital and ciept into the palace, Fīrūz, at the instance of Āsaf, entered the palace and brought out Shahiiyār with violence and made him over to Asaf In the first year of Shah Jahan's reign Fīrūz entered into his service and was promoted to his former 1ank of 2,000 with 500 horse. In the 4th year he had an increase of 300 hoise, and in the 8th year his rank was 2,000 with 1,000 In the 12th year his rank was 2,500 with 1,200 horse In the 13th year he had an increase of 500, and in the 18th year, at the feast for the recovery of Begam Sāhıba, the Emperor's eldest daughter—who had been burnt by a spark from a lamp falling on her dress, and had for a time lain on the bed of sickness—his rank became 3,000 with 1,500 horse In the 21st year, 18 Ramzān

 $^{^{\}rm l}$ He was also his nephew. His death is mentioned in the Massir A , p $\,335$

1057, 7th October 1647, he died He had charge of the palace, and he was respected and honoured in Shah Jahan's service A garden which he made on the bank of the Jhilam is famous for its beauty

(MĪRZA) FŪLDĀ²

S Khudādād Barlās The meaning of the word barlās is 'courageous and of gentle birth'' The whole clan of Barlās is derived from Iiadam cī 4 who is the first person who bore the title of Barlās He was son of Qācūlī Bahādur, who was the eighth ancestor of Amīi Timur Sāhib Qirān and the twin brother of Qabal K , the third ancestor of Cingez K

The Mīrzā's ancestors had served the Timurid family, generation after generation. When 'Abdullah K, the ruler of Tūrān, by bestowal of presents upon Akbar pulled the chain of friendship, he wrote in terms of amity and suggested an expedition against Persia and that they should join together and take Khurāsān and Fārs from the dynasty ruling there. Akbar out of generosity and gentleness sent in the 22nd year M. Fūlād—a young man adoined with talents and tact—as an ambassador, together with some of the rarities of India. In reply to the letter he said b that the Safavī family was related to the Prophet, and should be respected, and that he did not consider a difference in customs or religion a reason for attacking a country. He also said that old associations with the family withheld him from attacking it. And as 'Abdullah had not mentioned the Shah of Persia with respect Akbar wrote rebuking him and gave him good advice.

Verse

The wise do not call him great Who speaks contemptuously of the great

l Presumably this is the Nāzir or chief eunuch referred to by Manucci I 220 But Manucci seems to misrepresent what Bernier said See Pernier's first chapter The words describing his office are nizārat mashkūī and mean specially the superintendence of the female apartments

² B 206

B 341, note l A N translation I
 178 and 190 n l Barlās is said to be also the name of a province near Samarkand

⁴ Text Barūmjī, or Barū Mahī There is the variant Irād Mahī

⁵ AN III 211

The Mīrzā after performing his embassy returned to India, and did good service under Akbar. As in this tribe the Turklike i ignorance and turbulence which are innate in them exist even after mixing with the world, and the receiving of education, especially in the matter of religion, for they call bigotry and obstinacy the defending of Faith, M. Fūlād in the 32nd year and beginning of 996, January 1588, killed Mullā Ahmad of Tatta—who was one of the erudite of the age—by inflicting on him a fatal wound, and through Akbar's justice, brought upon himself capital punishment

The buef account of this is as follows. When Akbai had reached the elevation of 'Peace with all' and had proclaimed universal toleration in the matter of religion every sect indulged its tenets without any apprehension, and every one worshipped God according to his own principles without molestation Ahmad, like many other learned men, was a firm believer in the Imāmī ieligion, and loudly inculcated it. Owing to his idiosyncrasy he treated of it in an immoderate manner M Füläd was a bigoted Sunnī and nourished hatred in his heart for Mulla Ahmad and watched for an opportunity to kill him. One midnight he and one of his companions lay in wait in a dark lane and sent off a man disguised as a royal servitor (chāwash) to summon Mullā Ahmad On the way they attacked him with swords and cut off half his arm (from the elbow) The assailants thought they had cut his head off and went3 off, by a lane The Mulla, in spite of so severe a wound, took up his aim and came to the house of The chronogram of the catastrophe is Zihc khan-Hakīm Hasan jai-i-Fūlād "Bravo, the dagger of Fūlād (oi, of steel, 996) ' The night patrol found out the two assailants but though they bore marks of the murder they did not confess Akbai sent the $\underline{K}\underline{h}$ ān- $\underline{K}\underline{h}$ ānān, \underline{A} saf K, and S Abu-l-fazl to the Mullä to inquire He described what had happened into the matter stripped M Füläd and his companion of the robe of life and had

¹ Sharārat turkāna

² A N III 527 and Badayūnī, Lowe 376

³ par gam kanān, lit 'losing their feet'' It is a phrase for doing something without reckoning the cost of it Vullers I 88a. The attack took place in the end of December 1587 or beginning of January I588. Mulla A was on horseback them tied to the foot of an elephant and taken through the whole enty of Lahore. Though the chief persons of the Sultanate sought to have the murderers released, it was of no avail. The Mulla too after three or four days rolled up the carpet of life. They say that S. Faizī and S. Abu-l-fazl set a guard over the Mulla's tomb, but that as at the same time the royal camp was moving to Kashmīr, the city-rabble took out the body and burnt it

As the story? of the Mulla is not without strangeness, a short account of it is added. His ancestors were Fārūqī Hanīfīs in religion and his fither was Qazi of Tatta and a Reis of Seinde ms youth an Arab a pious wanderer, come from 'Iraq to Tatta and stayed for some days in the neighbourhood of the Mulla conversation with him the Mulla become acquainted with the principles of the Imamiya religion and took an affection for that creed This became notorious. Though in his youth he withdrew from ordinary branches of knowledge and gave himself up to teaching, yet, as it was not possible to acquire certain sciences in Tatta, he in his 22nd year became a Calendar and went off on his travels When he came to Holy Mashhad he studied the Qoran and the Imāmīya traditions and the rules of asceticism under Maulānā Mzal of Qāin. He also went to Yezd and Shiraz and studied under Mulla Kamalu-d-din Husam Tabib and Mulla Mirza Jan and learned all the rules and the Sharh Tajrid with the commentaries (rules of asceticism) In Qazwin he had the good fortune to enter the service of Shah Tahmasp When Ism'ail the 2nd became sovereign and proclaimed Sunnism, the Mulla hastened off to Arabian 'Iraq and the holy places (Mecca and Medina) He made the acquaintance of many learned men, and profited thereby After that he came by sea to the Decean and entered the service of

¹ Akbar did not go to Kashmīr till the 34th year

² As pointed out by Rieu I 11s there is an account of Mullā Ahmad's career in the Majālisu-l Mūminin The passage may be found in Hājī Ibrāhīm of Tabriz's lith edition of that work, p 245 Ahmad is there called the son of Nasr Ullah Ahmad himself told his story to the author of the Majālis and ascribed his conversion mainly to one M. Hasan who came to him from Ormuz in consequence of a dream. According to the Majälis it was Naqīb K. who read from day to day to Akbar what had been written of the T. Alfī. The Majälis, p. 216, says, Akbar smiled on receiving the Mullä's reply, the point of which was the innuendo that the killing of Usmān was a good thing as it cleared the way for 'Alī's becoming Caliph.

Qutb Shah the ruler of Golconda In the 27th year, he came to Fathpui Sikrī and got admission to the court of Akbar He was employed in writing the Tārīkh Alfī which is a history of a thousand years of Islām He wrote with acumen the account of events up to the time of Cingez K, and comprised them in two volumes When he was killed, Asaf K Ja'afai continued the work up to They say that Mulla Ahmad read to Akbar what he had written, and that when he came to the history of the third Caliph (Usmān) he went into details about his muider and the causes thereof Akbar was fatigued by the length of the narrative and asked why the Maulavi had made the story so long Without hesitation and in the presence of the Tūrān officers and magnates, Mulla Ahmad represented that his story was the "Martyrs' Garden' of the Sunnis, and could not be shortened On account of these words it was widely reported that he (Ah mad) was a Shī'a S 'Abdu-l-Qādır Badayūnī has related in his history that he once saw the Sharkh in the bazaar, and that some 'Irāqīs spoke in his (Badayūni's) praise Mullā Ahmad said "The light of heresy (taiafz) is manifest in his forehead" Badayuni a nswered "Just as the light of Sunnism is visible in your countenance "1

(SHAIKH) GADĀβ KAMBŪ

S Shaikh Jamālī of Delhi who was disciple and successor of S Samāu-d-dīn Saharwaidī His (Jamāl's) name was Jalāl and his pen name was Jalālī, but at his Pīr's suggestion he took the pen name of Jamālī In the begginning of his career he was a companion of Sultan Sikandar Lodī, and he held a high position on account of his knowledge and excellences He was also a poet His verses are very tasteful This is one of them

$Verse^3$

The dust of thy street is the garment on my body

That too has a hundred cracks down to the skirt from my tears

¹ Badayūnī, Lowe 327

² Badayūnī III 76, do I Ranking 429 and 455, also Darbār A 770

³ See Badavūnī, Ranking 429 The Darbār Akbarī 771 says that Jamālī quoted these lines at his introduction

As the Shaikh was not devoid of faqīiship and dervishship he went off to the Hijāz After that he came to Herat in the time of Sultan Husain M He had interviews with Mīr 'Alī Sher, and associated with 'Abdu-1-Rahmān Jāmī—may his grave be holy, when he retuined to India he made acquaintance with Bābur and was much appreciated by Humāyūn The latter visited his dervish-cell several times In the year 942, 1535–36, he died The chronogiam is Khusrau-1-Hind $b\bar{u}da$, "He was the sun of India" (or "he was the Khusiau of India) The Siyāru-l-'Ārifīn was written by him.

He was builed in old Delhi in the Zainī tomb which is by the side of the mosque which his son Gadāī built. They say he composed an ode in plaise of the Prophet and that several plous people have received from His Highness (Muhammad) the good news of his acceptance of this veise

Verse 4

Moses fainted at one ray of thy glory, Thou beholdest with a smile the Almighty Himself

S Gadāī also had a pleasant wit and acquired excellences and the possession of the cuirent sciences. He also composed and recited Hindī songs. He lived with comfort and good fortune in Gujarat. When in the time of the predominance of Sher K, Barrām chose exile and went to that province, the Shaikh treated him well and was generous to him. When the fates had put the control of India into Bairām's hands, the Shaikh, in the year of Akbar's accession, came from Gujarat and by means of Bairām to Jāmī The point of them was that he appeared before Jāmī almost naked and covered with dust After repeating the lines, he shed a flood of tears, and as they coursed down his body they made fissures in his garment of dust There is a notice of Jamālī in the Khazīna Asfiyā II 84, and one of his pīr Samāu-d-dīn at p 74 Jamālī died when accompanying Humāyūn on his expedition to Gujarat

¹ Amīr Khusrau was a famous poet, but as he too was of India, the Khusrāu of the chronogram would seem to mean the sun

² See Rieu's Cat I 354

³ Perhaps the tomb where one Zamu-d-dīn was buried The tomb and mosque are described in the Aṣār Sanādīd Nos 58 and 59

⁴ The verse is quoted in the Khazīna Asfiyā I 84, and it is stated there that Muhammad appeared to Jamālī and expressed his approval of the above verse

entered into the King's service and was made 1 Sadr (chief ecclesiastical officer—chancellor). He managed so well with Banām that the latter transacted no political or financial business without taking his opinion. The Shaikh used to put his seal on the back of ordinances.

He was let² off the salutation (taslīm) and in assemblies took precedence of all the well-born Saiyids. His greatness was such that he paid his respects to Akbar without dismounting. But the man-throwing wine of worldliness soon cast him down, and pride which destroys old fortunes, quickly destroyed this new one. When Banām's power decayed Gadāī separated from him at Mewāt and waited on the King. As high and low were convinced that the Shaikh was the source of all the mischief, and that he had led astray Bairām K, the pillars of the empire adjudged him to be deserving of condign punishment and did not fail to accuse him. But Akbar in his perfect kindness was gracious to him and treated him with favour. But the old honour and position did not remain. In 976, 1568-1569, he died in Delhi

(RAJAH) GAJ SINGH

S. Rajah Sūraj Singh Rāthor In the 10th year of Jahangir he did homage along with his father, and on the latter's death he in the 14th year attained the rank of 3000 with 2000 horse and the title of Rajah His rank gradually increased, and in the 18th year when there was a marshalling of armies between Jahangir and Shah Jahan, and Sultan Parvīz was appointed to the Deccan along with Mahābat K and others, Rajah Gaj Singh was also appointed to accompany the prince In the end of Jahangir's reign he with Khān Jahān Lodī,—who had crossed the Nerbudda and taken possession of some of the estates of Mālwa—came to Mālwa When the renown of Shah Jahan filled the world, he separated from Khān Jahān and went to his own country After the arrival

¹ Badayūnī, Lowe, 22

² See Akbar's Firmān, trans AN II 161

³ AN III trans 132

⁴ Badayūnī, Lowe, 124 The chro-

nogram yields 976 Badayūnī, III 76, says Gadāī left Bairām near Bīkānīr He adds that Gadāī after his return to Delhi continued to be honoured of the royal retinue at Agra, he in the first year of the reign did As his father was the King's maternal uncle 1 he was homage presented with a special khilat, a decorated jamdhar (dagger), a phūlkatāra (a kind of dagger), an adorned scimetar, and was confirmed in the rank of 5000 with 5000 horse—which he had held in Jahangir's time—, and had the gift of a flag and diums, a hoise from the special stable, with a gilded saddle, and an elephant from In the third year as Shah Jahan had determined the special herd upon punishing Khān Jahān Lodī—who had raised the standard of rebellion and had fled and gone to Nizāmu-l-Mulk Bahri (i e falconer) and there made himself secure—and upon chastising the Nızāmu-l-Mulk and on plundering his $t'al\bar{u}qs$, he left the capital for He chose three aimies under three distinguished the Deccan leaders, and gave the command of one of them to the Rajah and sent him off along with A'zim K, the governor of the Deccan He was to go and trample down the Nizām's teiritory and not slacken in chastising Khān Jahān Afterwards, in the 4th year, when Yemenu-d-daula was sent off to waken up 'Adıl Shah, he was appointed to the vanguard After returning from there, he went to his native country, and in the 6th year came to the impe-He again had the present of a horse with a gilded rial threshold In the 10th year, he was allowed to go saddle and of a khilat home. In the 11th year, he came to court with his son Jaswant Singh and performed the kornish In the end of the same year on 2 Muharram, 1048, 6th May, 1638, he died He was distinguished from the other Rajahs by his connection with royalty and his numerous troops, etc. The customs of the Rathors are different from those of the other Rajputs, for that child succeeds whose mother the father has loved most, though he may be younger first the head of the Rathors had the title of Rao, but afterwards when Udai Singh by entering the service of Akbar had the title of Rajah, it was airanged that the other members of the family should have the name of Rāo (From the above-mentioned family custom) it happened that on the death of Udai Singh,

¹ Shah Jahan's mother was Jodh Bai, daughter of the "Fat Rajah,"

Udaı Sıngh Süraj Sıngh was her brother

Sūraj Singh, though he was younger than his brothers, succeeded to the title of Rajah Similarly the emperor presented Jaswant Singh with a khilat, a jamdhai (dagger) a mansab of 4000 with 4000 horse, and the title of Rajah in accordance with his father's will, and gave him a flag, and drums, a horse with a gilded saddle, and an elephant Amr Singh, the elder brother of Jaswant, who had been sent to Kabul along with Prince Sultan Shujā', had an increase of 1000 horse and a mansab of 3000 with 3000 horse and the title of Rāo A separate account has been given of both

GANJ 'ALĪ KHĀN 'ABDULLAH BEG

Elder son of 'Alī Mardān K the Amīi u-l-Umarā In the 26th year of Shah Jahan he received the rank of 1000 with 500 horse, and in the 28th year he had the increase of 500, and in the 29th year he had the increase of 100 horse. In the 30th year his rank was 1500 with 800 horse In the 31st year when his father died, his rank was 2500 with 1500 horse. Afterwards he accompanied Sulaimān Shikoh against Prince Shujā' When there was a change of affairs, and the heavens advanced Aurangzeb, he came 1 to the court and entered into service. In the 1st year he had the gift of drums and went with Khalīl Ullah in pursuit of Dārā Shikoh Afterwards the title of Ganj 'Alī was confeired on him and he took part in the battle with Shuja' and in the second battle with In the 9th year his rank was 3000 with 2000 hoise Dārā Shikoh and he was entered among the auxiliaries of Kabul He was promment in battle against the Afghans of the Khaibai,3 but further particulars of him are not known 4

(RAI) GAUR DHAN SŪRAJ⁵ DHWAJ

He was an inhabitant of Khārī on the Ganges, and they say

¹ Khāfī K II 33

² Do do 65

³ Apparently the battle of 6 May, 1672, in which Muhammad Amin K was defeated

⁴ He was named after his grandfather who was Governor of Qandahar, and was accidentally killed there See note to 'Alī Mardān There was a garden at Qandahar known as Ganj 'Alī

⁵ Sūraj Dhwaj "The Sun-standard" is a subdivision of the Kayasth caste (Irvine) See also Elliot, Supp

that in the beginning of his career he sate at the door of the Cutcherry and copied out papers, thereby making three or four pice (tankas) a day He wanted to acquire a biass inkstand, but could not manage it After some time he, during the diwanship of Khwāja 1 Abu-l-Hasan Turbatī, came to the Khwāja in company with Haikarn² an inhabitant of Kampilä Batalī (or Patali) with the desire to get service at court The Khwājah looked at them and said, "Harkain knows book-keeping, but he appears to be a thief, and Gaui Dhan is a fool "He signed a paper giving the first is 30 a month, and the second is 25. When the diwanship came to I'tımādu-d-daula, Gaur Dhan got 1s 50 a month and was made bakshi of the menial servants (shāgird pesha) Afterwards he got the title of Rai, and the diwani of I'timadu-d-daulah was followed by his being emolled in the loyal establishment day his influence increased, and gradually he became the centre of affaus for all India

Even the Khan-Khānān Commander-ın-chief became an applicant 3 at his house

In the expedition to Gujarat, when 4 Jahangir went upon the sea, Rai Gaur Dhan was one day going to his house from the daibār, when at the instigation of Shaifu-l-Mulk the bakhshī of I'timādu-d-daula's establishment, a person struck him on the aim with a sword—It produced no effect, and from that day his reputation rose higher—Though 'Asmat Begam, the wife (mother of Nūr Jahān) of I'timādu-d-daula, disliked him, he did not sustain

Gloss I 305 There are 12 branches of the Kayasths See also Crooke's "Tribes of the NWP" III 191 It seems that Khārī, otherwise Gordhannagar, is in the district of Etah and in the tahsil of Aliganj West of Patālī there is a village called Duvānnagar, which may be that founded by Gaur Dhan (Information given by Maqbūl Ahmad through Mr Irvine)

¹ Maasır I 737 Abu-l-Hasan was Dıwān of the Deccan ın Akbar's tıme He was afterwards a high officer under Jahangır See Maasır I 737

² Apparently the author of the work mentioned in Rieu 530 and translated by F Belfour Kampilā, properly Kāmpilā, was in Sarkār Kanauj, J II 185 It is famous in connection with the Kūrūs and Pāndūs, See I G XIV 328 It is in the Farrukhabad district. It is also mentioned in Jarrett II 282, though wrongly spelt Rampilā

³ See biography of 'Azīzkoka I 691

⁴ In the 12th year of his reign, 1617 T Jahangir 208, Iqbālnāma 106, and Elliot VI 354 The incident of the wounding is not mentioned in the current histories.

any diminution of rank After the death of I'timādu-d-daulah he became manager for Nür Jahān Begam In the disturbance of Mahābat K who was an enemy of this family, Gaur Dhan out of opportunism sided with him Mahābat made over to him all affairs, in gross or detail, and he, out of wickedness and ingratitude, shared in wishing ill to and in slandering his benefactors and disclosed their wealth and hidden treasures He thereby disgraced himself before the world Afterwards when the commotion subsided, Asaf K imprisoned him, and after a while he died wife performed sati along with his body. He had no children He made his birthplace of Khārī like a city by making pucka enclosures, lofty buildings, roads and bazaais, and gave it the name of Gaur Dhannagar He also rebuilt and put in order the dwelling houses there He also signed over the rents thereof as endowments to the craftsmen there He established there every kind of artizan, and formed studs of cows, buffaloes, mares, camels, goats, and sheep near his home on the bank of the Ganges, like the studs (īlkhīhā) in foreign countries (Wilayat, Peisia?) Much milk, curds and butter were produced, and on the road to Lahore he established serais and spacious tanks

In Mathura, on this side of the river (i.e. the side opposite the town of Mathurā), he built a large temple in a place called Gaur Dhannagar. In Ujjain too he constructed a tank and a temple. In fine he, in search of a good name, introduced several usages, and left good rules that they might be a memorial of him in this old staging-house (the world). In punishment for his ingratitude his goods were confiscated to the Āsaf Jāh i establishment. The water in his tanks dried up, his serais became deserted, and his home, Khārī, was assigned to Shujā at K Bārha as a fief. No trace remained of his wealth or herds

Verse

No sign of wine-jar $(\underline{kh}am)$ or of wine taveln $(\underline{kh}am\underline{kh}\bar{a}na)$

¹ Perhaps this means "the imperial establishment"

² I can find no notice of this interesting man in Keval Rām, and apparently he is not remembered in his native town

(MIR) GESŪ OF KHURĀSĀN

One of the Saiyids of that country At Akbai's Court he became an object of trust on account of his good services and was made Bakāwal Beg (superintendent of the kitchen)—an office only conferred on trustworthy men When Muhibb 'Alī K the son of the Mīi Khalīfa addressed himself to the siege of Bhakar, and the garrison became haid-pressed,—as has been stated in Muhibb 'Alī's biography,—Sultan Mahmūd, the ruler there, represented to Akbai that what had passed, had passed, and that now he was willing to suirender the fort, but that there was enmity between him and Muhibb 'Alī, and that he had no confidence in him He begged therefore that one of Akbar's servants might be deputed Akbai deputed Mīr Gesū When he came there, Muhibb 'Alī's men blocked his path, and he was nearly being made piisoner Khwāja Muqīm of Herat, the father of Khwāja Nizāmu-d-dīn Bakhshī (author of the Tabaqāt)—who had gone there as Amīn by his sound counsels restrained Muhibb 'Alī from improper con-The garrison, who had been waiting for the Mīr, surrentention dered the keys in accordance with Sultan Mahmūd's agreementwho had died before the Mīr's arrival—in the 19th year, 982, 1574-Such a cultivated country came into his possession Muhibb 'Alī K in his foolish covetousness did not withdraw his affections from the country, and things between them ended in dispute and contest

When Akbar heard of this, he sent Tarson K as governor of the country, and when his brethren came there, Mīr Gesū—who had tasted the sweets of rule—became presumptuous and wanted to strengthen the fort. But a consideration of the final end of things restrained him from this wrong notion. He withdrew and went off to kiss the threshold. Afterwards he held the faujdārī of Mirtha 1 and of the Delhi districts which are the best in the Dūāb

As he always had disputes with his servants about their pay, and both parties had only regard to their own interests, there arose a quarrel between him and the soldiery in the 28th year,

¹ A N III 414 But Delhi is not mentioned there

991, 1583, in Mirtha He turned some ignominiously out of their quarters, and in the morning, which was the 'Id of Shawwal 8th October, 1583, he came, flown with wine, to the 'Idgah Some of the hypocrites approached him with a petition, and he abandoned discretion and abused them They broke out into rebellion, and the Mir in his wrath set fire to their houses rose up against him, and his companions behaved with cowardice His 1 days came to an end and the rebels wickedly reduced his body to ashes Akbar was angry on hearing of this, and capitally punished many of them His son Mīr Jalālul-d-dīn Mas'aŭd—who held a suitable rank-died in the third year of Jahangir, and his mother, when he was dying and his case was hopeless, took opium and died one or two hours after her son It is common in India for wives to enter the fire when their husbands have died, but that a mother should sacrifice her life on account of her son is something unusual But, in fact, the conditions in the two cases ("Jalal's mother and the Hindu widows) are not the same it often happens that the widows sacrifice themselves on account of the custom without being moved by love Hence it is that on the deaths of Rajahs ten or twenty men and women cast themselves into the fire

GHAIRAT KHĀN

He is Khwāja Kāmgār, biother's son of 'Abdullah K Bahādui Fīrūz Jang In the 3rd year of Shah Jahan his rank was 1000 with 400 horse, and when in the 4th year Khān Jāhan Lodī came from the Deccan with intent to make a disturbance and, after the killing of Daryā K, his sole desire was to obtain safety and to get away even with ignonimy, 'Abdullah K was in the vanguard of Saiyid Mozafai K Bārha and did not cease from following him Khān Jahān was helpless, and fought and lost some of his relatives and then fled On this occasion, Kāmgār in com-described as having happened in the beginning of 1014, i.e. the first year. The Iqbalnama 33 mentions another case where a daughter took poison on the death of her father.

¹ Mir Gesū is noticed in Blochmann 421 His end is described in A N III 414 The son's death and the mother's suicide are recorded in the Tūzuk J, p 67, Roger's translation, 142 But the occurrence is there

pany with his uncle distinguished himself When Khān Jahān got away from Kālınjar, he went 20 kos further and stopped at the bank of the Sahında pond As he had no hope of escape. and was tired of life, he faced the vanguard of the royal army in the beginning of Rajab 1040, 24 January, 1631, dismounted, and with a few followers engaged in fight Before Saivid Mozaffar arrived, the Saiyids with a few brave men cut him and his followers to pieces Afterwards, 'Abdullah K came up, cut off the heads of Khān Jahān and his son 'Azīz and of Īmal K and sent them to court with Khwāja Kāmgāi (Here part of Khān Jahān's biography is repeated). Khwaja Kamgai was rewarded with a robe of honour, a horse an increase of 500 with 200 horse, and the title In the 10th year, he got an increase of 1000 and of Ghanat K 1200 horse and his rank became 2500 with 2000 horse and he was made governor of the province of Delhi in succession to Asalat K In the 12th year the building of Shahjahanabad was entrusted to him In 1048 he made the necessary excavations and in 1049, 9 Muhairam, 2nd May, 1639, he laid the foundations

For four months more he laboured strenuously at the work and then he was appointed to Scinde He proceeded thither and died in the 14th year there in 1050, 1640-41 The Jahāngīrnāma²—distinct from the Iqbālnāma of Mua'tmad K—is by him He has written many things which Mua'tmad K has passed over on account of his sycophancy Especially he has described at length Jahangir's rebellion in the time when he was prince

GHAIRAT KHĀN MUHAMMAD IBRĀHĪM

S Najābat K and a distinguished servant of Shah Jahan He received the rank of 800 with 400 horse, and when Aurangzeb proceeded from the Deccan to visit his father, and Najābat accompanied him, he (Ghairat) gradually rose to the rank of 2000 with 1000 horse and received the title of Shujā'at K After the battle with Mahaiajah Jeswant Singh and the first battle with Dārā Shikoh his rank became 5000 with 5000 horse, and he got the title of Khān 'Ālam When the king pursued Dārā Shikoh as far as Multan and then returned, the charge of Multan was given to Lashkar K, but as he was in Kashmīr, Ghairat remained there in charge till his arrival Afterwards he was removed from there, and in the second battle with Dārā Shikoh was attached to the 10yal sturrup. After that, he was for some 1eason 1emoved from office, but in the end of the second year, he was laised to the rank of 3000 with 2000 horse In the third year, he got the title of Gharrat K and returned to his old position In the 9th year, he was sent along with Muhammad M'uazzam to Kabul on account of reports about the movements of the Persian king and he received an increase of 500 horse In the 10th year he, along with the above-mentioned prince, waited on the king and when the prince went to his own government of the Deccan, Ghairat K went with Afterwards he was faujdāi 1 of Jaunpūi and in the 23rd year he was removed and came to court Along with Sultan Muhammad Akbai (Aurangzeb's son) he went against the Sīsodia and Räthor tribes who were becoming turbulent in that year

When the prince at the instance of the Rajputs became rebellious and came forward to contend with his father, Ghanat was his associate. When the prince fled, Ghanat went off to Shah 'Ālam who sent him to court. On this account, he became an object of anger and was put in charge of Ihtimām K, in order that he might look after him in the Akbarī² buildings (²). He was imprisoned there for a long time, and in the 43rd year, he was released and received the rank of 3000 with 2000 horse and the faujdārī of Jaunpūr. A brother of his, Muhammad Qulī by name, in the 26th year of Shah Jahan had the rank of 1000 with 400 horse and went with Dārā Shikoh to Qandahar. In the 28th year he was made superintendent of the elephant stables, and in the 30th year he was made Mīr Tūzuk and had the title of M'ata-

¹ Maasir A 170 He was struck by lightning and injured in the leg Six people were killed.

² Mahalāt-Akbarī Maasır A 205 Does the phrase mean Agra?

⁸ Maasır A 405 The text has gharbāna rahār yāfta, as if he were secretly released But in the Maasır

A from which the account is taken the word gharbāna qualifies the appointment, i e mansab, and means that he received the appointment without coming to court The Maasir A says his father Najābat had the title of Khān 'Ālam

qad K In the 31st year he had the rank of 2000 with 2000 horse, of which 800 were two and three horse. He also had the faujdārī and the fief of Bahraich in Oudh In the 10th year of Aurangzeb he had the faujdārī of Sultanpui Bilehri Afterwards he was for some reason censured and removed from his rank In the 12th year he was given the rank of 2000 with 2000 horse and the office of superintendent of the yilau (retinue, or grooms) Another brother, Muhammad Ism'aīl K, before Aurangzeb's time, had the rank of 1000 with 500 horse, and in the 2nd year had the title of Khān

One of Najābat K 's grandchildren was called Bahrawar K In the 29th year of Aurangzeb he was made deputy of Muhammad A'zım Shah ın the province of Mālwa on the death of the Rai Raiān Mulūk Cand Afterwards he had the title of Najābat K and was made governor of Burhanpur and fauldar of Baglana In the 47th year he had the rank of 2000 with 500 horse, and in the time of the power of A'zim Shah he was made governoi of In the reign of Muhammad Farrukh Siyar, Husain 'Alī K Amīlu-l-Umarā when near his end² (2) confined him in the fort of Mulher to which he had been appointed Two sons of his remained One was Fathyāb K who for a long time was the hereditary governor of Auranggarha alias Mulher In 1156, 1743, he went with 'Abdu-l-'Azīz K Bahādur-who had received a grant of the government of Gujarat from Muhammad Shah-to that On the way a battle took place with the Mahrattas and he was martyred His son had his title and for a time held a At the time of writing he serves this man and that man The second, Faizyāb K, was a dissolute man (yārbāsh) ⁸ He is dead

GHĀLIB KHĀN BĪJĀPŪRĪ

At first he was a servant of 'Ādıl Shah of Bījāpūı, and was governor of the fort of Parenda which belonged to the province

¹ Text Malharī, but there is the variant Bilehrī and this agrees with 'Ālamgīrnāma 1057 and with Jarrett II 174 It was in Sarkār Audh

² Bar sır dādān 'amal

³ See Forbes' dictionary, s v.

of Aurangabad which was then subject to 'Ādīl Shah. In the 3rd year of Aurangaba he became suspicious of 'Ādīl Shah and addressed himself to Shaista K, the Amīru-l-Umarā, and made' over the fort to the imperial government. As a reward he received the rank of 4000 with 4000 horse and the title of Khān, and became one of the officers of the Deccan. In the 9th year he in company with the Mīrzā Rajah Jai Singh set about chastising the Bījāpūrīs and did good service in taking Kadhī² in the village of Dhūkī belonging to Bījāpūr. Nothing more is known of him

GHAZANFAR KHĀN

S Ilawardi K He was long separated from his father and served at the court of Shah Jahan He obtained more honour than his brothers—with the exception of his elder brother M He was first appointed to the post of Tūzuk 16th year he was made superintendent of the artillery, and the Kotwāl of the camp In the Balkh expedition Prince Murād Bakhsh sent Khalil Ullah K —who had been appointed to the charge of the left wing of the reserve—from Chārīkār to take the forts of Kahmard and Ghorī The Khān sent Ghazanfar with a force as advance-guard against Ghori He along with Qubad K Mii Akhor attacked the fort and bravely dismounted and set himself to take it Meanwhile the rest of the aimy came up and the governor had to surrender In the 22nd year he was made superintendent of the elephant-stables and received the rank of 1000 with 500 horse, and the title of Khan Afterwards he was deprived of his rank on account of delay in his proceeding to Bengal In the 27th year he was made an officer of 1000 with 800 horse and the faujdar of the Duab Suddenly a great and tusked elephant came from the slopes of the northern hills to pargana Chaurāsī³ ın the Sarkār of Saharanpūr The Khān 1eported the circumstance, and huntsmen and elephants, etc., were sent there. The Khān caught the elephant and produced it before the king and received the title of Khās Shikār. In the 28th year the above service and the looking after the buildings of Mukhlaspūr were taken from him and given to Husain Beg K. It happened that in the 30th year Muhammad Ibrāhīm the son of Asālat K. was appointed to inspect the buildings of Mukhlaspūr, and reported that the work was not being carried on according to the original plan. Accordingly the Khān was again appointed to the faujdārī of the Duab and had an increase of 200 horse and was sent off quickly in order that he might complete the buildings in a proper manner.

¹ Maasır A 33, 'Alamgīrnāma 596

² 'Ālamgīrnāma 1007 where the fort is called Galīnī and the village Dohokī Ghālib is also mentioned at p 1009

³ The Jaurasi of Jarrett II 292 and Elliot Supp Glossary II 128.

Let it not be concealed that on the bank of the Jumna near the foot of the northern hills which are near the hills of Sirmur, at a distance of 47 kos from Delhi, there is a village known as Mukhlaspūr and which is a dependency of Saharanpur It has a good climate and many other advantages. It can be reached from the capital by boat in seven days In the 28th year an order was given to erect lofty buildings there, and in the 30th year these were completed at a cost of five lacs The king (Shah Jahan) visited the place and gave it the name of Faizābād The villages of the pargana yielding a revenue of 30 lacs of dams were annexed to it In the battle with Dara Shikoh the Khan was on the right wing When Aurangzeb became victorious, most of the sons of Ilahwardi were treated with favour either on account of their ability, or in order to conciliate their father who was with Shujā' Ghazanfar in the beginning of the reign was made fauldar of the Duab, and in the end of the 2nd year he was made in succession to Mukarram K Safavı, faujdar of Jaunpur In the 7th year he was made governor of Tatta (Scinde) in succession to Qubād K and had an increase of 500 with 1000 horse and so had the rank of 3000 with 3000 horse, of which 1000 were two horse and three In the 10th year in the end of 1077, 1667, he died a natural death at Tatta His brother Hasan 'Alī K, who was

J See 'Alamgirnāma 849 for an account of Mukhlaspür

² This seems taken from 'Alamgīrnāma 1048, but does not quite agree with the original There it is Ilahwardī the elder brother of Ghazanfar, who is described as faujdār of Moradabad, while the younger brother is called Arslān K and not Islām K.

faujdār of Moradabad, and Islām K, his younger brother, who was faujdār of Siwistan, and also his sons and other relatives, received (mourning) robes of honour.

(MĪRZĀ) GHĀZĪ BEG (TARKHĀN)

S M Jānī Beg Tarkhān the ruler of Scinde When M Jānī died in Burhanpur in attendance on Akbar, the latter encompassed M Ghāzī, in his absence, with favours and restored the country to him, and he sate upon the masnad of his ancestors and enjoyed much prosperity Khusiau K., the Circassian, who had for a century been the vakil of the family, and was a master of contrivance, had another idea in his head. Akbar sent S'aïd K with his son S'aid Ullah K to arrange the affairs of the province, and the Mīrzā had the good sense to come to Bhakar and wait upon In company with him he at the age of 17 paid his respects to the emperor Scinde remained as before When Jahangir came to the throne, M Ghāzī's horoscope was fortunate, and the province of Multan was added to his possessions the title of son (farzand) and the rank of 7000 When Husain K Shāmlū, the governor of Herat, besieged Qandahar, the Mīrzā was appointed with suitable force Afterwards he was made governor of Qandahar There he behaved well against the strifemongers of Persia, and carried on a correspondence with Shāh 'Abbās They say that the Shah sent him robes of honour several times In the year 1018, 1609, he died in his 25th year after a The chronogram is Ghāzī (1018) Men suspected few days' illness Latīf Ullah Bahāī K —who was the Mīrzā's companion and vakil, and whose father Khusrau K the Circassian was disliked by the Mīrzā (Ghāzī Beg) M Ghāzī was very fond of the society of literary men, and himself composed poetry. Wagārī (steadiness) was his takhallas

They say that there was a poet in Qandahai who had this tells the story of how Akbar wanted to poison M Ghāzī, but inadvertently took the poisoned pill himself The story is no doubt untrue

¹ But see note 3 The alleged poisoning is referred to in the T Tähiri. There Latif Ullah is called Latif Ullah Bai Khān De Laet, whose history was published in 1631, sobriquet and that the Mīizā bought the title from him by giving him Rs 1000, a robe of honour and a horse, on account of its association with his father's takhallas, which was Halīmī (mildness) The Mīrzā was unequalled as a singer, and player on the tamboūi He could play all instruments Mullā Murshid wrote about this

(Verse)

They say that in Qandahar the Mirza's assemblies were full of distinguished men such as Mullā Murshid Yazdjardī, Tālib Āmalī, Mīr Ni'amat Ullah Asilī and Mullā Asad the story-tellei They say that when Faghfūrī Gīlānī iesolved to come from Persia to India and come to Qandahar, the Mīrzā treated him with great favour Other distinguished men, especially Mullā Murshid and Asadī, inserted verses (dakhlhā) in his poems. He was annoyed and went off to Lahoie without taking leave. The Mīrzā was vexed and wrote him a letter. He also caused Mullā Murshid and Asadī to write excuses, and he begged him to return. Faghfūr wrote excellently in reply

(Verse) 2

The Mīrzā, like his father, was much addicted to wine. He spent days and nights in drinking. And he had made an arrangement with procuresses that they should bring him a virgin every night. He never saw their faces again. Hence it was that for a long time every bad woman in Tatta claimed to have had dealings with the Mīrzā 8

GHĀZĪ KHĀN BADAKHSHĪ.

His name was Qāzī Nizām He studied the sciences under Mullā 'Isām, and was the unique of the age in traditional and year, 1021 If so, the chronogram Ghazī must be wrong See also Rieu 950a where the date given is II Safr 1021, 3rd April, 1612 The Tārīkh Tāhirī has a good deal to sav about Ghāzī Beg It says he was 16 when his father died, ie in 1008, or 1600 The Akbarnāma puts the death into January 1601, 13 Bahman 1009 A N III 783 M Ghazī died at Qandahar, and must have been about eight and

l See Tazkıra Husaını, and Sprenger's Cat 391 He was in the service of Prince Parvez Mulla Murshid is mentioned in id 508

² The lines are very satirical The Mīrza is compared to a carcass contended for by two vultures, etc

³ B 363 Rieu I 292b Tūzuk J 109 and Iqbālnāma, 67 As pointed out by Blochmann, the Tūzuk, p 109, puts M Ghāzi's death into the 7th

rational knowledge He was also a pupil of Shaikh Husain of Khwārazm He acquired a thorougher knowledge of Sufism As he was possessed of great ability he became an Amīr At first, he was an intimate companion of M Sulaiman, the ruler of Badakhshān, and was one of his chief officers He received the title of Qāzī Khān In the year when Humâyūn died, and M Sulaimān took advantage of his opportunity and besieged Kabul, Mun'im K defended it He sent off messengers to India to obtain help, and when the siege had lasted a long time the Mīrzā sent Qāzī K. to him with a deceitful message The Khan kept the Qāzī for some days, and every day entertained him sumptuously, and produced many fruits such as the Badakhshānīs were unacquainted with The Qāzī was convinced that the taking of Kabul was an impossibility, and came out and told M Sulaiman that the attempt to take Kabul was like hammering cold non The Mīrzā was compelled to make peace and to return to Badakhshān After that the Qāzī left Sulaimān and came to Kabul where he was respectfully treated by M Muhammad Hakīm, who made him a companion In the 19th year (of Akbar) he went off to India and paid his respects to Akbar at Khānpūr¹ when the latter was returning from Jaunpur He received a waist-dagger, a decorated sword, a 10be of honour, and a present of ps 5000, and was made Parwanci (writer of orders)

As he had great tact he soon was encompassed with royal favours, and obtained much influence, and was raised to the rank of 1000. When he had distinguished himself in battles, he received the title of Ghāzī K. In the 21st year he accompanied Rajah Mān Singh and in the battle with the Rānā (at Goganda) he commanded the left wing. When the enemy made an onset and many of the imperialists gave way, Ghāzī K. turned back and joined the vanguard, and fought manfully ². Afterwards he was in the fief of Oudh and distinguished ³ himself in putting down the Bihar twenty See Rogers' translation of Tüzuk, p 223 The Beglärnäma, Elliot I 291, also gives 1021 as date of death

¹ A village in Jaunpur Sarkar, J II 163 According to AF III 108,

Ghāzī K joined Akbar at Gūna or Kūna But see Badayūnī, Lowe 185 ² Badayūnī, Lowe 237, A N III

³ AN III 324

rebels In the 29th year, 992, 1584, he died in Ayūdya (Faizābād) at the age of seventy. He was the author of important books. Shaikh 'Allāmī² (Abu-l-fazl) has written that his courage made illustrious his wisdom and that his sword exalted the dignity of his pen. Though sunk in the field of ordinary learning, he worshipped along with the pure Sufīs, and so, though outwardly fettered, he achieved liberation. He always had a weeping-eye and a burning heart. They say that he was the first person who introduced the sigdah (prostration) in the presence of Akbar. There is a joke about this to the effect that Mullā 'Ālam Kabulī—who was one of the learned men of the time—said, '' Alas that I did not invent this

It appears from the authors of books that in the old religions the practice was to lay the forehead in the dust before the chosen ones of faith and the foreiunners on the path of certainty, not out of worship but from submission and humility. Thus the angels performed the size to Adam, and the father and brothers of Joseph did so to him This method became current in former times under the guise of salām When the lamp of other religions was extinguished by the effulgence of the sun of Islām, the salām and the joining of hands were substituted for this who was the founder of sovereignty and world-rule, and the author of many regulations and customs-introduced various kinds of homage He ordained the placing of the palm of the hand on the top of the forehead and the lowering of the head, and gave that the name of koinish, ie the head, which is the life of sensation and reason, was taken by the hand and made supplication, and made itself prepared for obedience Also the palm4 of the hand was laid on the ground and slowly raised, and then the man stood up and laid the palm of the hand on the top of the This Akbar called the taslim Upon 5 taking leave, or head

¹ Text wrongly has 990 The day of his death was 15th July, 1584

² A N III 436 See also Bada yūnī III 153 who mentions the books he wrote

⁵ B 158

⁴ The Am has "the back of the right hand" B 158

⁵ Taken from the Am B 158 B translates 'but only one on all other occasions, when salaries are paid, or presents are made'. For Akbar's prohibition of the sydah in public darbar see B. 159 and note presentation, or upon receiving a mansab, a jagn, or a diess of honour, or an elephant, or a horse, the rule was to make three tas $l\bar{\imath}ms$, on other occasions of liberality, or of distribution of favours, he was satisfied with one taslim Afterwards, at the instigation of worldly men and flatterers, he introduced the sigdah but apprehending the public censure he stopped the practice in the public darbar, and made it only to be performed in private and by his special For whenever an order was given in private for an intimates officer to sit down, he performed the sindah And in the time of Jahangu, from carelessness and want of thought, this evil custom When Shah Jahan ascended the throne—God be plaised for his energy !-the first 1 order that he gave was the prohibition of the sijdah, as it was unfit for any but Deity K the commander-in-chief represented that it was necessary for the distinction of ranks that the reverence to the king should be different from that practised towards the other servants of God If for the sijdah the zamīnbos were substitued, the positions of servant and master and of sovereign and subject would be fixed Accordingly, it was ordered that both hands should be placed on the ground and that salutation should be made with the back of the hand As the $zam\bar{\imath}nbos$ resembled the sijdah, the emperor abolished it in the 10th year, and ordered a fourth taslim in lieu there-In return for favours which were granted in the Presence, or in absence, four obeisances were to be made For Salvids, Ulamā and great Shaikhs, they were to pay the authorised salam at the time of giving homage, and to recite the fātiha at departure

Mīr Husāmu-d-dīn was the bulliant son and representative of Ghāzi K It is well known that he was one of the great Shaikhs In the time of Akbai he attained the rank of 1000 and was appointed to the Deccan There he became intimate with the Khān-Khānān Suddenly, in his youth, the tumult of the Divine companionship seized him, and he was drawn away by attraction (jazba) He said to the Khān-Khānān, "A desire to forsake the world has taken possession of my soul If you'll not let me go, I shall become mad. Write to H M. and send me to Delhi in order that I may spend to rest of my life at the shrine of the Sultan of great Though the Khān-Khānān was urgent with him to give up the mad idea, he would not be forbidden Next day he stripped himself naked, and smeared mud and clay on his body, and went about in the streets and lanes When the thing was reported to the king, he gave him leave to retire to Delhi For thirty years he lived in complete abstinence and observance of the law Though he had acquired all the sciences, he laid them all aside He occupied himself in meditating on the Qoian and in the practice of Sufism From Khwajah Baqi Billah of Samarkand, who was born in Kabul and died in Delhi, he received permission to guide travellers (on the path of prety) He died in 1043 1633-34 His wife was a sister of Abu-l-fazl By order of her husband she gave to the poor such gold and jewels as she had and cleansed her skut from the defilement of worldliness They say that every year she sent Rs 2,000 for the expenses of Shah Husāmu-d-dīn's monastery

¹ B 213 N Mahābat K's long given in the Pādshāhnāma I III et speech and the orders thereupon are seq

GHĀZĪU-D-DĪN K BAHĀDUR FĪRŪZ JĀNG

His name was Mīi Shihābu-d-dīn and he was the son of Qilīj K Khwāja 'Ābid In the 12th year he came from Tūrān, and entered the service of Aurangzeb and received the rank of 300 with 70 horse They say that one day Subhan Quli K the ruler of the country (Tūrān) came to see the melon fields and that Mīr Shihābud-dīn said to Khwāja Y'aqūb Jūībārī and Rustum Beg Atālīq, "My father has called me to India, but the Khan does not give me leave" As a suitable time had occurred these two good men went to the Khān and procured leave for him The Khān sent for him, and pronounced the fātīha, and said, "Go to India, you will become a great man". It happened that such good fortune attended him that the might and dominion of the princes of Balkh and Bokhara were nothing in comparison to it. In the 23rd year, when the royal standards were displayed in order to chastise the Rānā of Udaipūr, no news was forthcoming about Hasan 'Alī K Bahādur 'Ālamgırshāhī who had gone into the hill-country in pursuit of the Rānā At midnight the king sent for Mīr Shihābu-d-din-who was on guard then-and sent him off to get news He went off at once without making inquiries about the nature of the country or regarding the dangers of the road, etc., and after two days brought and presented a report from the Khan. This good service was the cause of his promotion and he received the title of After that he was sent off to Snohi to Khān and other favours put down Durgā Dās and Sotak! and other turbulent Rāthor-As they had leagued with Prince Muhammad Akbar and were leading him astray, the prince sent Mirak Khan-who was a servant known to the king-to the Khan and made promises and requests that the latter would join him. The faithful Khan travelled 60 kos with Mīrak in two days and came before H W and was approved of He was made superintendent of the examination of petitions, and when the king came to the Deccan in the 26th year, the Khān was appointed to punish the rebels near Junan absence he was made superintendent of the mace-bearers in succession to Mukairam K, and Saivid Ughlan was made his deputy As he in hard conflicts defeated the Mahrattas, he in the 27th year received the title of Ghāzīu-d-dīn K Bahādur. In the 28th year, he was sent off to take the fort of Rāhīrī-which was the abode of Sambhā—and he at once (bārī) set fire to it and killed many of the infidels He received the title of Firuz Jang and the gift of diums When, during the siege of Bijāpūi, there was scarcity and famine in the camp of Plince Muhammad A'zim Shah so that to stay there seemed impossible, Khān Firuz Jang received the dignity of the Fish and was sent there with abundant stores Suddenly he fell upon 6000 infantry Paidabā Nāīk the zamindar of Sakrıya⁵ (?) had secretly sent stores for the relief of Bījāpūr and put them to the sword, and brought tranquillity to the camp of the prince Aurangzeb set down the taking of Bījāpūi to him The chronogram was Sadd Sıkandar gırıft, "He took Sıkandar's " rampart" (1098—1687) With his own hand Aurangzeb wrote

¹ Variant Sonk and so in Maasir A

² Maasır A 199

³ Maasır A 265

⁴ Maasır A 265 Paid Nāik See Elliot VII 377

⁵ The real name is Sagar, 15 m N E Wäkinkera

⁶ Sıkandar was the name of the young king of Bījāpūr

⁷ Khāfī K II 322

the sentence for the record writer and sent it to be inserted in the records, viz, "It was taken by the help of the son (farzand) void of duplicity, Ghāzīu-d-dīn K Bahādur Fīrūz Jang " After that he took the fort of Ibrāhīmgarha alias Īkar which afterwards received the name of Firuzgarha He did good service in the siege of Haidarahad and was wounded After it was taken he was raised to the rank of 7000 with 7000 horse Afterwards, he took the fort of Adoni, which received the name of Imitivazgarha, after severe fighting, from Sīdī Mas'aud Bījāpūri who was one of the high officers of 'Adıl Shah, and in the 32nd year added it and its territory to the imperial domains. In the same year he went off from Bījāpūr to extirpate Sambhā As plague broke out and many who escaped from death lost their intellects, their eyes, their ears or their speech, the Khān too lost his eyesight Though he in accordance with precedent 1 did not come into the Presence yet there was no change in his leadership. In the 42nd year Santā the robber, who had defeated the armies of Islām and had slain or made prisoners of royal officers, and who had fled after the taking of Ginjī, and gone towards Satāra, was, on account of an old grudge, defeated thoroughly by Dahīnā Jādū, and was wandering about in a miserable condition. By chance Nagoba² Mıyan a Mahratta out of enmity cut off his head He wanted to take it to Dahina Jadū, but on the way it fell into the hands of Fīrūz Jang's troops The Khān sent the head to court along with Khwāja Bābāī Tūrānī who, in reward for his good tidings, received the title of Khūsh Khabar Khān Fīrūz Jang received a thousand thanks and praises In the 43rd year he was appointed to the affair of Islāmgarh alias Deogarha, and took it After that he was appointed to guard the residence at Islāmpūrī At the time that the victorious imperial standards returned from the taking of Khelna to Bahādurgarha,3 there was a review of the army which

¹ It was an order of Jahangu that blind men should not come before him

Nāgoji Manai in Ellio VII 360 where the story is told at length according to the narrative of Khāfi K

³ Also called Bırgānw, Khāfī K II

⁵³⁹ and Elliot VII 383 and note Presumably Ghāzīu-d-dīn did not personally appear at the review on account of his blindness. The passage is taken from the Maasir A 468

Fīrūz Jang had drawn up and sent off from his quarters. It covered four measured los

They say that no general ever made such a display of troops He also presented every kind of peshkash. After the king had looked at them, he confiscated much of the artillery and wrote 'a letter of reproof to Prince Bīdār Bakht, saying, "You with double allowances have not such an establishment of guns, etc. as Fīrūz Jang has. He has all the things that he should have, or rather that he should not have "In the 48th year Fīrūz Jang pursued Nīma Scindiah as far as Mālwa, and underwent great fatigue. He received the title of Sipah Sālār (commander-in-chief). But for some reason the expedition was stopped. At the time of Aurangzeb's death he was in the province of Berar and stationed at Elichpūr. Though he had much loyalty and many connexions with Muhammad Ā'zim Shah, yet that prince on account of innate pride did not cultivate him, and did not take with him so great a leader.

They say that when Muhammad Ā'zım Shah left Ahmadnagaı after ascending the throne, Zūlfiqār K waited upon him in the neighbourhood of Aurangabad He asked him to state what was proper to be done Zūlfiqār iepresented that the proper course was to follow the example of Aurangzeb and to leave the womenfolk in Daulatabad, and he also pointed out that the king's men were very badly equipped They should be given two months' pay from the treasury in the seraglio in order that they might provide themselves with materials for the campaign. Also that the march should not be by the pass of Fardapūr, but by Dewal Khiyāt (?) so that Fīrūz Jang might join them. The prince, who was, as it were, mad with arrogance, replied that to leave the women would be proper if he had an adversary like Dārā Shikoh He knew M'uazzam's nature, and had ieliance on his own men. The king s (Autangzeb) men had nothing to do except to give good wishes and to be safe. Why should he leave the straight road for the sake of a blind man? What help would come from him? In fact, if we regard outward circumstances, a great mistake was made, and there was much want of planning in not taking a leader like Fīrūz Jang with him. He would have been a bond of union. Especially would all the Moghuls and Tūrānīs have followed him. When Muhammad Ā'zim Shah crossed the Narbada he wrote to Fīrūz Jang that he should come from Berar to Burhanpūr and stay there.

¹ Maasir A 469 This was in the 46th year

¹ Text 8th year, but apparently the 48th is meant See Maasir A under that year, p 483 Khāfī K II 456 mentions a pursuit by Fīrūz Jang of Scindiah in the 42nd year

³ The Deola Khatra of Jarrett II 205 Said by Jarrett to be the Ketamá of the maps Perhaps it is Deulghāt Fardapūr is near the Ajanta Caves

After the accession of Bahadui Shah he was made governor of Gujarat, and in the fourth year he died a natural death in Ahmadabad His body was conveyed to Delhi and buried near the Ajmīrī gate in the tomb and khānga which he had made was easily first among the officers of Turan He was of a pleasant disposition and dignified, victorious, and a master of tactics His good fortune was wonderful In former reigns it has rarely happened that princes have kept a blind servant at the head of He was of sound judgment and always occupied then aimies himself with great things While, marching, or in the council 100m, he preserved the same rules and regulations. As to what is reported, namely, that the king became acquainted with some of his secret desires and hinted to the physicians at the time of his eye trouble that they should deprive him of his eyesight, it does not bear the mark of truth Aurangzeb was very cholene and vin-If he had found any such designs in Fīrūz Jang, he would not have left him in such glory Fīrūz Jang's good intentions had become impressed on the king's mind So much so was this that when at the last, Fīrūz Jang repeatedly showed connivance and slackness in the matter of punishing the Mahrattas and some one out of enmity represented the matter to the king, he in reply wrote. "Alas for Khān Fīrūz Jang that he should have come from such a state to this and that it has come to pass that he has been accused of favouring infidels (Kafran N'aamat, also disloyalty) which is like being twice an infidel "

¹ Khātī K II 681 He died in 1122 or a D 1710

At first, in accordance with the commands of the king, he mailled the daughter of the very learned S'aad Ullah K. After her death he successively married two daughters of her brother Hifz Ullah K. alias Mīyān K. He had no children by either of them.

(AMĪRU-L-UMARĀ) GHĀZĪU-D-DĪN K BAHĀDUR FĪRŪZ JANG

Eldest on of Nizāmu-l-Mulk Āsaf Jāh and full brother of Nāsii Jang His real name was Mīi Muhammad Panāh He was the son-m-law of Qamaiu-d-din K, viziei His father left him in early years at the court of Muhammad Shah, and there he grew up He was first the bakhshi of the ahadis In the year 1153, 1740 when his father, who had been made Mīr Bakhshī on the death 2 of the Khān Daurān, went to the Deccan, he became his father s deputy in that high appointment (of Bakhshī) On his father's death S'adāt K was in the time of Ahmad Shah Mīi Bakhshī for nearly three years Afterwards that office and the title of Amīiu-l-Umarā were conferred on Ghāzīu-d-dīn After the martyrdom of Nāsu Jang his heart inclined towards the Deccan By chance, at the time that the ambassador of the Duirānī Shah had arrived, Safdar Jang at a hint from the king took with him Mulhai Rão Holkar by the promise of a large sum and Before he came, Jāvīd K had agreed to the mescame to court sages of the Shah and had sent away the ambassador lang was perplexed? and did not know how to pacify Holkar. The Amīr-ul-Umarā made an arrangement with Holkar and got him to agree to the subahdari of the Decean being established in the name of the Amīru-l-Umarā (i.e. himself) and to his (Holkar's) coming to insist on payment of the stipulated sum. Accordingly he left for the Deccan with the title of Nizāmu-l-Mulk After-

The Khan Dauran Khwaja Asim was killed in 1739. See Maasir I 822. Ci Sivaru M. III 327. Chaziud din arranged with the Vizier that if he would give him his patents for the viceroyalty he would satisfy the Mahrattas' demands.

I this biography may be compared ath Mr. Irvin 's notic ASBJ for 80s, p. 163. Irvii Janzdo I on 8th Decoler. It is curious that this compared do s not mention that by the hear with he was the father of New out Mall. As Jah.

wards a sanad of the province of Khāndes for the Mahrattas was executed by him with his own seal, and then with the hope of their helping him, he in the height of the rains traversed the mud and slush of Mālwa and reached Burhānpūr Afterwards he came to Aurangabad and halted for seventeen days. Then he suddenly died ¹ He had eaten and gone to repose himself when he came out and vomited and died, in 1165, 1752. He was imbued with learning, and at the end he had plucked up a spirit. His son is Ghāzīu-d-dīn K. the 3rd, who had the title of Imādu-l-mulk and of whom a separate account has been given

(RAJAH) GOPĀL SING GAUR

His ancestois held the zamindāri of Andarkhi (?) in the province of Allahabad, and were servants of the Orcha Rajahs grandfather Bihar Singh was killed by Mulūk Cand the manager of Malwa-who acted for Muhammad A'zım Shah-in the time of Aurangzeb, because he was a source of sedition Mulūk Cand cut off his head and sent it to the emperor After this, his father Bhagwant Singh, the son of Bihar Singh, was also killed in battle by Mulūk Cand His family left their home Gopāl Singh accompanied Nizāmu-l-Mulk Āsaf Jāh When he returned to the Deccan from Upper India with the intention of giving battle to Mubariz K, Gopāl distinguished himself on the battle-day, and after the victory received a suitable rank and a fief, and the charge of the fort of Qandhar in Bīdar-which is a distant place and is a strong In the time of Shah Jahan it was taken from the Deccans by Khān Daurān. Since that time up to the time of writing, the fort has been mostly in the possession of himself and his descendants He died in 1162, 1749

After his death, though Dalpat Singh his eldest son died in his lifetime, there remained other sons, of whom the eldest was

¹ Siyaru-l-W III 329 He died in October, 1752, and according to Grant-Duff II 62, he was poisoned by his stepmother, the mother of Nizām 'Alī See also Sīyaru-l-M III 324, note There is an account of Ghāzīu-

d-dın in the Khazana 'Āmrā, pp 49, 50 Newāl K ed He died on 7 Zī Hajja 1165, 5th October, 1752 Chulām 'Alī's account has been reproduced in Maaşir III 883 so that there are two lives of Ghāzīu-d-din

Kuar Bishan Singh, yet at his own wish the foit and the hereditary jagir were assigned to Ajai Cand his second son Narpat Singh the third son, who was Ajai's full brother, was joined with The first got his father's title, and became distinguished, and in the battle which took place with Roghanath Rao on the bank of the Southern Ganges 1 he was with the Nizāmu-d-daula Āsaf Jāh He stood firm and was killed His eldest son held the hereditary fort and at the time of writing has the title of Rajah. Gopāl Singh Hindūpat Mahindar His two other sons Rajah Tej Singh and Rajah Padm Singh held mansabs and fiefs, and afterwards held the fort of Kaulas in the province of Haidarabad The second gradually attained to the high rank and title of Maha-For some time he was appointed to manage the Sarkar of Bīr, and afterwards he held the government of Nāndair in the province of Bidar, and the governorship of the fort of Mahwar in He died two or three years ago His sons Kuar Durjan Singh and Judha Singh attained suitable mansabs and fiefs, and are in service

HABSH KHĀN

Sīdī Miftāh Abyssinian was one of the old servants of the Nizām Shāhī dynasty, and was honoured and trusted by that family He was for a long time governor of the fort of Ūdgīr which is a very strong fortress and built of stone and lime. When from the beginning of the reign of Shah Jahan the territory of the Nizām Shah was trodden by the imperial armies, gradually all the forts and estates were conquered by the imperial servants and the dynasty was altogether ended 'Ādil Shah of Bījāpūr, in order to get possession of Ism'aīl, his brother's son, who was imprisoned in Ūdgīr, made use of every stratagem and endeavoured by craft to win over Sīdī Miftah, but failed

This Ism'aīl² was the son of Darvesh Muhammad the eldest son of Ibrāhīm 'Ādil Shah, and the sister's son of Muhammad Qulī Qutbu-mulk When Ibrāhīm 'Ādil Shah was on his deathbed (in 1626) he showed his testament (or perhaps explained his wish) to Daulat a Kalāwant (musician) slave, whom he fully trusted and whom he had made governor of the fort of Bījāpūr, to the effect that his second son Muhammad should succeed him. When Muhammad ascended the throne, he blinded Darvesh Muhammad, and the wives of the latter secretly sent Ism'āīl, who was then six years of age, to Nizām Shah in order that he might be safe from the clutches of his enemies. Nizām Shah, for fear lest the coming of Ism'aīl should become known and the 'Ādil Shah be displeased, did not see Ism'aīl but sent him to Sīdī Miftāh. He kept him in prison for ten years, and without submitting to 'Adil Shah he made strong the fort and maintained his independence

¹ Text Gang Kafn but the variant Dakhin Gang, 1e the Godavery, is preferable

² Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, p 219

In the 9th year, the month of Moharram of 1046, 1636, the Khān Daurān Bahādur set labout besieging the fort, and when the mines had been driven near the fort, the garrison lost courage Sīdī Miftāh became alarmed and sent a message to Khān Daurān to the effect that if they would include him among the royal servants he would surrender the fort Khān Daurān accepted his request, and then he brought forward other wishes which were not suitable and commenced fighting

They say that during the siege many of the materials of the defence had been expended and so Sīdī Miftāh devised a plan. To Khān Daurān he proposed submission and a desire to enter service, and appointed a day for waiting upon him. Meanwhile he opened the gates of the fort so that his men frequented the royal camp and brought back to the fort what they wanted. On the day appointed for submission he closed the gates and made war Khān Daūran then contrived to set fire to a mine which had been carried to the foot of the sher hāyī bastion. Though the stability of the citadel was not much affected, yet Sīdī Miftāh had the foresight to see that there was no help but to submit, and come out to the commander. After a siege of three months and odd days, he suitendered the fort and made over Ism'aīl the grandson of 'Ibrāhīm Ādil Shah

Pādshāhnāma I, Part II, pp 218 This was the Khān Daurān No 2 of Beale, and his name was Khwāja Sābir See Maagir U I 749 and 754

² The name for an outwork See Elhot VII 23 and the Bahār 'Ayam 182, col a

Sīdī Mıftāh obtained from the emperor the rank of 3000 with 1500 two-horse and three-horse troopers, and the title of Habsh Khān (the Abyssınıan K) and was treated with favour. He also received a good assignment (tankhwāh) He was always enrolled among the auxiliaries of the Deccan, and the governors of the Deccan never failed to honour him He too, though his figure and manners were strange, was of great physical strength and was not devoid of refinement He was very fond of learned men and men of piety, and helped them, and spent money on deserving persons was also a zealous servant In the 29th year Prince Aurangzeb, the governor of the Deccan, appointed him and all the other leaders of the Deccan, to accompany M Khān the governor of Berar, against the zamındar of Deogarh And when the prince proceeded to Golconda in the 30th year, Sīdī Miftāh took pait in the affair and did He had much faith in Bābā Fīiūz who was a dervish good service in the town of Pathri, and every year and every month defrayed the expenses of the Shaikh's monastery (Khāngāh) When the said Bābā died, the Khān built his tomb in Pāthiī, which still is a shrine visited by people He held in fief the pargana of Waklur in the Sarkar of Nandan He made it his home, and settled many Arab Saiyids there and helped them in various ways He also sent for many valuable books from Arabia, and stretched forth the arm of liberality His son Ahmad K also obtained high rank a young man of a noble presence, and was much patronized by Shah 'Ālam Bahādur when he was viceroy of the Deccan bought the zamındarı of the pargana above mentioned and united He died in Aurangzeb's reign it with his jagir His sons obtained a small rank The villages of the pargana were assigned to other men For a time they knocked at the door of turbulence and distinguished themselves by their presumption. In the time of the present emperor (Muhammad Shah) 'Iwaz 1 K Bahādur Qasūra Jang besieged their residence and took and imprisoned Sīdī Husam, who was the elder of them Afterwards by the order of Nızām-l-Mulk Asaf Jah he was released and went to his own His sons held the zamindari after him Sarkār

l Maasır II 832

HĀDĪ DAD KHĀN

Brother of Rashīd Khān Ansārī In the time of Shah Jahan he rose to the rank of 500 In the 8th year he was appointed along with Khān Jahān Bārha to chastise Jujhār Singh Bandīla In the 9th year, when the Deccan became the abode of the sovereign, and three aimies were appointed under the charge of three generals to chastise Sāhū Bhonsla and to devastate the lands of 'Adıl K., he was joined with Khan Daulan In the 11th year his rank was 1000 with 1000 horse, and in the 22nd year when his brother Rashīd K died, hisrank was 2000 with 2000 horse, and he was appointed in his brother's room to govern Telingana—which consisted of Nandair and other conquered districts, and his rank became 2500 with 1500 horse, and he had the title of Khān 29th year he received a flag and a drum. In the same year he, in accordance with the orders of the king and the suggestions of Prince Aurangzeb, proceeded to Deogarha to collect the tribute due by Kīsai Singh the son of Kokha zamindar of Deogaiha M Khān the governor of Elichpur went from another direction The zamındar became troubled and arranged with the governor of Elichpür and came before the prince with the tribute. In the 30th year he in accordance with orders proceeded to Golconda with prince Muham-After the arrival of Aurangzeb he distinguished himself in the batteries, and at the time of the prince's return he was sent off to Nandair In the same year, 1066, 1656, he died, and was buried in Nandair Though he had thirty 1 (2) sons, yet Ilham Ullah the son of Rashid K, his brother, was the best for preserving his property The king (Shah Jahan) gave him the rank of 1000 with 500 horse His son 'Abdu-i-Rahīm held up to the thirtieth 2 year the lank of 500 with 120 hoise

HAIDAR 'ALĪ KHAN BAHĀDUR

They say that his ancestry goes back to 'Abdullah Sāhib of Medina—may God's mercy be upon him!—who was one of the great

¹ So in text, but the MSS seem to read basī "many" instead of se thirty

² This life is by 'Abdu-l-Hayy Steingass marks $s\bar{\imath}$ $\bar{a}m$ as unsupported

by examples as meaning the 30th year But it occurs here and also in Akbarnāma II 12 This 30th year here presumably means the 30th year of Aurangzeb men of the Qoiesh tribe In the beginning of 1165, 1752, he acquired great authority and became superintendent (matsadi) of the affairs of Mysore He afterwards conquered many cities and forts and unfurled the flag of power His dominions yielded six krorof supees and extended from Karpa (Cuddaph) to Mangalore 1 (i.e. from E to W) and from Calicut to Dharwai (i.e from S to N) which is an extensive country He acquired it by his strength of arm and held it firmly When the hatwearing English came to his country he sent his cavalry to the Pāyinghāt2 of the Cainatic and attacked and pillaged Then he made an advantageous peace Afterwards when there were signs of treachery in the house of the Mahrattas he in the first place looked after the strengthening of his thanas and gradually took the whole of their territory up to the Afterwards he besieged the fortiess of Cital 11ver Kishna (Chitaldroog)—which was a zamındarı place—and took it time of writing, which is 1193, 1779, he has made a raid upon Karpa (Cuddapah) and taken possession of the forts of Sidhūt, Kinjī (Ginji) Kot, etc , and seized 'Abdu-l-Āakīm K Mīyāna, the governoi there, and carried him off to Seingapatam He has much tieasure and a large income, and has collected many jewels Still too he sends money to men and recruits them He has a quick-firing (?) park of artillery and makes it a rule that when he has encamped musketeers are placed round the camp in watches so that no stranger can enter without an order +

¹ Text Kozpāl, and there are variants Mangalore is meant, of which the native name is Kodiyal It was Haidar Alī's naval base

² The text has az "fiom" but B M Add 6665 has dar "into" and so has I O MS No 628

³ The Sidhout of I G XXII 357 It is the eastern taluq of Cuddapah

⁴ In the table of contents at p 47, this biography is omitted Evidently the notice has been revised by 'Abdul l-Hayy for it mentions 1193, 1779, as the date of writing, but it would seem that the body of the biography had been written by his father In B M MSS Add 21 470 and Add 6565 and

MS 628 the biography is different from that in text nothing about Haidar's alleged descent from 'Abdullah of Med.na, but says his father was Husāmu-d-din and that his ancestors were Qazis of pargana Gohir in Haidarabad and that he was at first an infantry-jamadar in the fort of Afterwards he entered the service of the Raja of Seringapatam Haidar succeeded his father in this employment, and eventually imprisoned and put the Rajah to death MSS biographies say nothing about Kozpāl, which is a place I cannot find, but mention Haidar's taking Chitaldrug The word in text after topkhana

HAIDAR¹ MUHAMMAD K. ĀKHTA BEGĪ.

One of the old servants of Humāyūn In the journey to Persia which fate compelled that king to undertake, Haidar attached himself to the stirrup and was encompassed with favours defeat at Balkh when Humāyūn's horse fell from being wounded by an arrow, Haidar presented him with his own horse When the army of Humāyūn marched to extinguish the flames of sedition kındled by M Kāmrān who had fled from Kabul and was spending his time in vain hopes in Afghanistan, and arrived at the Surkh Ab, Haidar and many single-fighters were honoured by being appointed to the vanguaid They arrived in advance of the main body at the Siāh Āb, which is between the Surkh Āb and Gandamak, and encamped there M Kamran saw he had not the power to fight a pitched battle, and so made a night-attack Haidar² stood firm and fought manfully, and though wounded did not give way the march to Qandahar and the expedition to India he did not let go the saddle-straps of dominion, and when victory was gained he was made governor of $B\bar{\imath}ana$ After he came there, as $\underline{G}haz\imath$ KSur the father of Ibrāhīm K was shut up there, and had vain thoughts, Haidar made an agreement with him When Ghazi K came out of the fort Haidar from greed of his property broke his agreement and put him to death. This piece of bad faith displeased the just disposition of Humāyūn and he uttered the truthful prediction that Haidar would never again be able to gird 8 up his loins, and they say that to the day of his death his condition remained as the king had said

After the accession of Akbar he on the occasion of Hemū

Is zūdazd which seems unintelligible The MSS IO 628, etc have zūdrav, which may mean quick-firing, but more probably means quick-moving The best account of Haidar 'Alī seems to be in Colonel Mark Wilks' book Haidar 'Alī died 7 December 1782

¹ B 384

² A N translation I 581 This was in 958 (1551) and a few days before the night-attack in which Hindāl was killed

³ See A N translation I 638, text I 354 Apparently the curse or prophecy was that Haidar would never be able to fasten on his belt again, and Bayāzīd Biyāt tells us that his arm became useless According to A. F, whom the Maasir is copying it was Chāzī K 's son Ibrāhīm and not Chāzī K himself who had vain thoughts joined Tardī Beg and had command of the left wing After the defeat he came to Akbar's camp and was sent off with 'Alī Qulī K Shaibānī to punish Hemū After the victory he went for a purpose to Kabul, and when Mun'ım K, after the overthrow of Bairam, proceeded to court, he left Haidar to manage the affairs of Kabul and to assist his son Ghani K As owing to want of capacity there was no friendship between the two, an order was sent at Mun'im K's request summoning Haidar to court In the 8th year when Mun'ım K went off to Kabul to arrange matters there Haidar was appointed to go with him After Mun'im K was defeated and neturned to the count, Haidar also returned and acted under Muni'm's In the 17th year he accompanied the Khān Kilān alias Mīn Muhammad K, who had been sent in advance to Gujarat He had then attained the rank of 2500 His brother M Qulī distinguished himself at the time when Humāyūn went to conquer Badaklıshān and M Sulaimān came forth to give battle battle, when M Kāmrān under the pretext of having an interview behaved treacherously, he (M Qulī) was wounded and fell from his hoise His son Dost Muhammad made a brave single combat and In the time of Akbai in the 19th year, both biothers was killed 1 were appointed to accompany Mun'ım K ın his conquest of Bengal They were in the camp at Jinnatābād alias Gaur, which was formerly the captal Afterwards it was deserted, and the climate became pestilential, and a whole world of men became the harvest of death These two brothers also died there in 983, 1575

HAIDAR QULĪ KHĀN MU'IZZU-D-DAULAH

He belongs to Isfarāīn² and his name was Muhammad Reza In the beginning he was on the establishment of Sultan 'Azīmu-sh-shan and was known by a name derived from his (viz 'Azīmu-sh-shānī) Afterwards when the sovereignty of India came to Farrukh Siyar he, through the intervention of Mīr Jūmla, received the title of Haidai Qulī K, and the appointment of diwān of the Deccan, together with the diwanship of its provinces, and the full charge of

I It appears from the Akbarnāma that both father and son were killed See note to translation of A N I 559

² Isfarāīn is in northern Persia Haidar Qulī had the name of 'Azīmush-shānī, Khāfi K II 740

the Khālsa property 1 and the superintendence of other allied sections was assigned to him After reaching that province (Sūba), as he was very harsh-tempered, he could not pull on with Nizām-ul-Mulk Asaf Jāh. the Viceroy of that province He, therefore, hastened back to the Capital. and was exalted by being appointed as the Divan of Ahmadabad, the revenue officer of the port of Sürat and the deputy governor of Gujarāt 2this office in those days formed part of the assignment of Khān Daulān And having efficiently performed his duties there, he showed a material increase in the realizations from the port dues and in the Khālsa revenues. which had been assigned to his charge. And through his bravery he defeated Safdar Khān Thānī who had a much larger force with him But he was not popular with the public owing to his harsh temperament, and the fief-holders of the province all complained against him, this resulted in the displeasure of Qutb-ul-Mulk In the reign of Sultan Rafī'-ud-Darajāt, on his transfer from Gujarāt he ietuined to Akbarābād, and after a time attached himself closely to Saiyid 'Izzat Khān Bārah, and with his approval made an alliance with Raja Ratan Chand Through the intermediation of Husain 'Alī Khān having been restored to favour with Qutb-ul-Mulk, he became a close associate of both the brothers

And when in the reign of Sultan Rafi'-ud-Daula, Husain 'Alī Khān turned towards Akbarābād for dealing with the disturbance 3 caused by Nēkū-siyar, son of Sultān Muhammad Akbar, son of Aurangzīb, he (Mu'ızz-ud-Daula) was honoured by the grant of the title of Bahādur, and sent with the vanguard to clear the route, and was appointed to lead in the siege of the fort of Akbarābād In the first year of the reign (1719 A D) of Firdaus Ārāmgāh (Muhammad Shāh) he 4 was sent with a large army to chastise Girdhar Bahādur, who since the death of Rāja Chabīlā Rām Nāgar had raised the head of rebellion in the Sūba of And when through the intermediation of Raja Ratan Allahābād Chand this affair was peacefully settled, he returned to the loyal Presence, and in the same year was exalted to the post of Mīr Ātish (Commander of the artillery), which had fallen vacant owing to the death of Saiyid Khān Jahān Bārah After Husam 'Alī Khān was killed and when Saiyid 'Izzat Khān Bārah and other associates of the above-mentioned Khān turned towards the royal residence, he (Mu'ızz-ud-Daula) with all available infantry and cavalry served the royal cause with great courage and bravery As a result his rank was advanced to 6,000, with 6,000 horse, and he beat the drum of triumph on being granted the title of

¹ The publication of the translation of the $Ma\bar{a}t\underline{h}v$ ul- $Umar\bar{a}$ by H Beveridge was held in abeyance since 1914 after 600 pages had been printed. It is now continued from the incomplete manuscript left by the learned author. The account on this and the following pages is a translation of the biography of Haidar Qulī. Khān in Text III, pp. 747–751. For facilitating reference, the volume and page numbers of the various biographies in the Text edition are given, within brackets, under each name. under each name

² For an account of Haidar Quli Khān in Gujarāt, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, II, pp 127-130 There is, however, no mention of his fight with Safdar Khān in this account Also see the same work, I, p 413, note §

See Irvine, op cit, pp 413, 414

See Irvine, op cit, II, pp 9-16

Nāsır Jang ¹ In the battle ², which took place with Qutb-ul-Mulk on behalf of Sultan Ibrahim, son of Sultan Rafi'-uch-Shan, he was appointed to the vanguard, and performed most valuable services through his artillery, and later with the sword he put to test the biavery of his opponents Qutb-ul-Mulk Bahadur, who had received a wound 3 on the hand, was carried by him on an elephant to the presence of the King As a reward for these valuable services his rank was raised to 7,000, with 7,000 horse, and he was granted the title of Mu'izz-ud-Daula In the year 1133 A H (1720-21 A D), the governorship of Gujarāt and the revenue accountancy of the port of Sūrat was transferred from Qamr-ud-Din Khan to him in addition to his office of the Mir Atish And in the next year, when Nizām-ul-Mulk Āsaf Jāh was summoned from the Deccan and adorned with the robes of the premiership after the death of Muhammad Amīn Khān Bahādur I'tımād-ud-Daula, he, who was well known for his eloquence and bravery, began to interfere in administrative and financial affairs The Premier did not approve of it, and as he was favoured by the King, the latter prohibited him (from such interference) He was greatly annoyed and left for Ahmadābād, where he took possession of the revenues of the Khälsa properties and the assessments of the fief-holders Consequently his fief in the neighbourhood of the Capital was confiscated On hearing this news he wrote to the officials at the Court, that as my fief has been confiscated, I can no longer remain in service or allegiance. The governorship of that area was consequently transferred to Nızām-ul-Mulk Asaf Jāh Bahādur, and the latter started to take up his office. On receipt of this news and as the latter had collected a large army, he hastened to present himself at the Court, and on reaching it about two stages from Shāhjahānābād was appointed to recover the province of Ajmer, which had meanwhile been occupied by Ajīt Singh And later when Garh Patīlī 4 was also conquered, he returned to the Court In the year 1137 A H (1724-25 A D) he was one night sleeping with his wife in the cold chamber (Khas khāna) when it caught fire, and he was buint He was capable of doing great deeds, and his great achievements had enhanced his reputation for bravery, but his temper was not devoid of harshness and conceit. It is stated that he used to take his food very hot, so much so that on his table they used to serve the cooked victuals placed on a chafing dish full of fire

Hākim Bēg

(Vol I, pp 573-576)

He was the son-in-law of I'timād-ud-Daula Jahāngīrī During the time of Jahāngīr when the friends and connections of I'timad-ud-Daula all became Khāns and Tarkhāns, Hākim Bēg also obtained the insignia is mentioned in Irvine, op cit, p 91

4 For the mysterious Garh Patili or Putli, see Irvine, op cit, II, p 112, note *

¹ The editors of the Text add that, according to the $T\bar{a}r\bar{\imath}\underline{k}\underline{h}$ - \imath -Muzaffar $\bar{\imath}$, he was given the rank of 7,000, six thousand one-horse cavalry, and the title of Haidar Quli Khān Bahādur Nāsir Jang

Battle of Hasanpur, see Irvine, op cit, pp 85-96

³ The editors of the Text give as a variant the version of the $T\bar{a}r\bar{i}kh$ -1-Muzaffarī, according to which Qutb-ul-Mulk had two wounds, one made by an arrow on his forehead and the other a sword cut on the hand Only a single wound on the hand is mentioned in Iryme, op cit, p 91 and rank of an Amii His wife, Khadija Begam, was greatly honoured and respected as the sister of Nun Jahan Begam. She lived to the end of Shāh Jahān's reign and by the influence of Yamin-ud-Daula (Āsaf Khān), her elder brother, she suffered no diminution in the consideration paid to She was_continually gratified by royal favours and in the 24th year Fudaus Ashiyani (Shah Jahan) presented her with Rs 30,000 As Hākim Bēg was a Moghul not devoid of culture and talent, he desired to lead an independent life in conditions of ease and comfort Januar Makānī (Jahāngīi) in consideration of his relationship excused him from personal attendance, and employed him chiefly on external affairs For a time he was the governor of Mathura, but later was removed from this The cause of this was that a sanyāsī named Achad Rūp Asram, who was an ascetic and a monothcist, and who had dug a cave for his dwelling in a ridge (pushta) situated in the neighbourhood of Ujjam, and in a corner of the desert removed from human habitation. The mouth of the cave measured $5\frac{1}{2}$ girth $\frac{1}{2}$ long and $3\frac{1}{2}$ broad. He entered by extending forwards his aims, and then inserted his head. After that he drew his body inwards like a snake. He came out in the same way, to the surprise of the spectators He had neither a mat nor any straw that he might spread below him when the wind was cold, nor had he a fire in winter or any breeze (bad) in hot weather. He had half-acubit of cotton cloth with which he covered his body in front and behind Every day he went out twice to the river to bathe, and carried in his hand a copper vessel with which to drink water. He frequented in Ullain seven Biahman (2 Hindū) houses where there were women and children, and where beggary and contentment were respected, and once a day he came without waining to three of these seven households and stood like a beggar They put into the palm of his hand five mouthfuls of the food which they had prepared for themselves These he swallowed without tasting, on condition that there was not in the house any menstruous woman, or feast, or calamity or birth The Hindus call the maintainer of such a position (maqām) Sarb nāsī,2 i e, abandoner of

I The girth is three finger-breadths. It also means a knot. According to Gladwin there are 24 finger-breadths in a gaz or yard, and, if so, a girth would be one-eighth of a yard. But in Blochmann's translation of \overline{A} 'in I (2nd edn.), p. 94, note 3, it is stated that it is commonly calculated as 16 girth to a yard (gaz.) Perhaps the cave at Ujjain mentioned in Mr Tawney's preface, p. 6, to his translation of Bhartrihari's Centuries and called Bhartrihari's Gumpha was occupied by Jadrūp.

Jadrūp or Chatrūpa is mentioned in the Dabistān, pp 228, 229 of Calcutta edn It is said there that 'Abd ur-Rahīm paid his respects to him, and that he died in 1047 (1637-38 AD) at Benāres The author of the Dabistān was taken to him

when a child

² This is taken from the Tūzul i Jahāngīrī, Rogers and Beveridge's translation, I, pp 355 357, 359, where the ascetic is called Jadrūp, and from the Iqbālnāma-i-Jahāngīrī, p 94, where he is called Ajahad Perhaps the account on p 129 of Price's Jahāngīr of a visit that Jahāngīi paid to a recluse at Mathurā refers to the same ascetic, as Ajada afterwards went there. The Sanskrit word is Sarvanāsm all destroying, and sar tāril in the text should apparently be sarba tāril, i.e., all-forsaking. The statement about the seven Brahman houses—where probably the word Brahman merely means Hindū—may be compared with the Ā'īn-i-Albarī, Jarrett's translation, III, p 275, where it is said the ascetic sets out begging and solicits from three, five or seven houses. Jahāngīr mentions that Akbar visited the ascetic on his way back to Āgra after the taking of Asīrgarh. Apparently Asram is no part of the hermit's name, but is āśrama—a hermitage. Perhaps the name should be Achīdrup, i e of flawless favour.

everything When in the eleventh year (of his reign) Jahangir passed the city of Ujjain, he went to visit this ascetic Though the latter was not greatly inclined to human society, he had long conversations with Jahangir He was well versed in the philosophy of the Vedanta By his understanding and lofty comprehension he harmonised the technical terms of the Sufism of Muhammadans with his own views and discoursed on them Jahangir came to have full faith in him After some time he moved from Ujjain to Mathura, which is one of the centres of worship for the Hindus, and on the banks of the Jumnā worshipped God after his own fashion When 1 in the 14th year Jahangir paid his first visit (as Emperor) to Kashmii he again visited him, and had a long private interview with him His words made a great impression on the Emperor's mind He was successful in every request that he made for the people For instance Khān A'zam Kōka was much vexed at the long imprisonment of Sultan Khusrau, and in spite of religious bigotiy he paid a solitary visit 2 to the ascetic and made an uigent request to him to intercede for the liberation of Khusrau He spoke convincing words to the Emperor and induced him to be gracious forgave the Prince's offences, and ordered that he should be admitted to pay his respects So difficult a matter became easy through the representation of this disinterested man Inasmuch as the King had trust in him, many people flocked to see him

Though he had no dealings with anyone, and lived tranquilly without joy or sorrow, yet Hākim Bēg either moved by zeal for the Muhammadan faith or thinking that the resort of the people to the ascetic injured his power, one day had that helpless man severely scourged. The Emperor on hearing this was very angry. Though no one had so much influence over him as the Bēgam (Nūr Jahān), yet he dismissed him from his presence, and deprived him of his office, his rank, and his $j\bar{a}g\bar{n}$. Hākim Bēg lived after this as a private individual in Āgra, and near the $Na\underline{kh}\underline{kh}\bar{a}s$ (cattle-market) made a garden which for beauty was the envy of the rose-garden of Kashmīr. There he died. His son, Mīrzā Nūr-ud-Dahr, also did not care for royal service, but lived on the wealth of his mother and maternal uncles, and spent his days in perfect comfort.

HAKIM HADHIQ 3

(Vol I, pp 587-590)

He was the son of Hakīm Humām Gīlanī, and was born at Fathpūr Sīkrī during the reign of 'Arash Āshiyānī (Akbar) His father died when he was still young As his ancestors were all possessed of ability and knowledge, he also spent his time in acquiring the ordinary sciences and became famous for his knowledge of literature and poetry. Though he was not deeply skilled in medicine, he gained a name by his skill and was reputed in Jahāngīr's time for his judgment and reliability. When the throne acquired new lustre by the accession of Firdaus Āshiyānī

^{1,2} $Iqb\bar{a}ln\bar{a}ma$ -1 $Jah\bar{a}ng\bar{n}\bar{i}$, p 129 This was at Mathurā ³ Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} ' $\bar{i}n$, I (2nd edn), p 530 The account of his father Hakim Humām is given in $Ma\bar{a}th\bar{i}r$ -ul $Umar\bar{a}$, I, pp 563-565, and its translation immediately following this biography on pp 606, 607

(Shāh Jahān), he was raised to the rank of 1,500 with 600 horse, and in the same year was sent 1 on an embassy to Türän Imam Quli Khan. the ruler of that country, had set in motion the chain of love and friendship, and sent 'Abd-ur-Rahīm Khwāja Jūaibārī (Naqshbandī) as his representative to Jahāngīr, and had written that "Shāh 'Abbās Safavī has not respected the old ties and has taken Qandahāi from the imperial servants It is fitting that the Prince, the heir-apparent (Shah Jahan), should be sent with a large army and proper equipment to retake it We also will hurry there with the army of Transoxiana, Balkh and Badakhshān, and shall fulfil the conditions of loyalty After the victory let us take Khurāsān, and whatever you wish of that country may be included in the imperial domains and the remainder granted to us" The death of Jahangir occurred suddenly during these negotiations. The Khwaja came in the beginning of Shah Jahan's reign from Lahore to Akbarābād (Āgra), and had an audience, shortly afterwards he died of a disease of long standing. It became necessary to send from this side an affectionate letter and to appoint an ambassador The Hakim, whose father had gone as an ambassador to 'Abdullah Khan Uzbeg in the time of Akbar, was sent with gifts to the value of one lac and fifty thousand rupees and rarities of India On his return in the 4th year he was appointed to the office of Reviser of Petitions—an appointment which requires ability in composition and tact—in the room of Hakīm Masīh-uz-Zamān (Hakīm Sadra) Afterwards, by successive increases, he attained to the rank of 3,000, and then for certain reasons he lost his office and lived in retirement in Akbarābād, but received a fixed pay of Rs 20,000 a year, which in the 18th year was increased to Rs 40,000 In the 31st year, 1068, he died The author 2 of the Mirāt-ul-'Ālam says he died in 1080 (1669-70 A D)

The Hakim was very hot-tempered and very haughty and pompous He was very conceited, and had mistaken ideas about himself quatram of Mīr Ilāhī 3 of Hamadān (about him) is well known Mir was one of the clever writers and went to call on the Hakim at Kābul when the latter was returning from Türan, but did not have a pleasant interview

Quatram 4

Stone and jug cannot long agree, In the eye of comradeship there cannot exist a flaw, Companionship with Hakim Hādhiq is not wise You cannot face a host of horses

¹ Cf Vambery's Bolhara, pp. 315, 316, where Hakīm Hādhiq is stated to have been sent by Jahāngīr, but see Bādshāhnāmā, I, pt 1, p 233 and Rieu, Supp Cat, p 206 Bādshāhnāma of 'Abdul Hamīd Lāhaurī is usually referred to as Pādshāhnāma bat as the edition in the Bibliotheca Indica series cited in this work was called Bādshāhnāma, this name is followed

² See Blochmann, op ct, p 530, and Rieu, Supp, p 206, No 325
³ Rieu, Cat II, p 687b Sprenger, Cat, p 435
⁴ Sang-u-sabūr is a phrase for servitude, but here it seems equivalent to the proverb that the earthen and brazen pots cannot float down together. The word for flaw is $m\bar{u}$ a hair, and "a hair in the eye" is a phrase used in describing a sty. In the third line there is a play on the word hādhiq which has the two meanings clever, and sour as vinegar. The phrase lashkar i-Khabt in the fourth line is cheaver for Khabt has covered meanings. It means a blow and also to fourth line is obscure, for Khabt has several meanings. It means a blow and also to

Though he had not mastered the science of medicine, several officers in view of his name and reputation consulted him for remedies. He began to write the events of the reign of Sāhib Quān Thānī (Shāh Jahān), but withdrew his hand when other abler writers took up the task. His poems are clear and good, and he has combined the style of his predecessors with that of more recent date. They are not devoid of sweetness, but he thought himself a better poet than Anwarī! He got up his Dīvān in a very elegant manner and placing it on a decorated stand, brought it with him into every assemblage. Whoever did not choose to honour it, was, irrespective of his rank, treated with discourtesy. He put it on a golden reading-stand and had it read out. This verse of his is well known.

Verse

My heart, O Hādhiq, cannot be comforted by any consolation, I've seen Spring and flowers and Autumn

HARIM HUMĀN 2

(Vol I, pp 563-565)

He was the (younger) brother of Hakim Abūl Fath Gilani name was Humāyūn When he entered Akbai's service, he first, out of respect, took the name of Humāyūn Qulī and afterwards acquired the name of Hakīm Humām He was unequalled for his knowledge of calligraphy (khat shināsī) and understanding of poetry He also had some knowledge of physical sciences and medicine He had a pure nature, and was open-browed and pleasant of speech, and an agreeable companion Though officially he only had the rank of 600 and the position of Bakāwal Bēg, he really enjoyed a higher rank in his intimacy with the King In the 31st year, as his skill in business and his loyalty were known to Akbar, he was sent on an embassy to 'Abdullāh Khān, the ruler of Tūrān Mīrān Sadr Jahān Muftī was sent along with him to offer condolences on the death of Sikandar Khān—'Abdullāh Khān s father—who had died three years earlier Out of great affection for the Hakim, it was mentioned in the letter that "We had no intention of sending away to a distance from us that asylum of instruction and talent, cream of devoted loyalists, best of our confidants, the skilful Hakim Humām, who is a right-speaking and right-acting man, and who, from the commencement of his service, has been in close attendance on us But we have sent him as an envoy, because he holds such a position with ourselves that he submits matters to us without the intervention of manner, they will be like direct communications between you and me" 3

 2 Vide Blochmann's translation of $\bar{A}'\bar{\imath}n,$ I (2nd edn), p 529, he was the son of Mir 'Abd-ur-Razzāq of Gīlān

stamp with the feet — The word is used here apparently to mean a body of trampling cavalry

¹ See Sprenger, Cat, p 413 Copies of his Dīvān are available in the Bānkipore Library, Patna, and in the Victoria Memorial Calcutta The Calcutta copy bears additions and corrections in the author's hand

³ See Beveridge's translation of Albainama, III, p 760

During his absence Akbar often remarked "Since Hakim Humam has gone, my food 1 has not the same taste" And he said to Hakim Abūl Fath "I do not think that you can be more grieved at his departure than I am Where can one find the like of Hakim Humam" When he was returning from Kashmir 2 in the 34th year, Hakim Humām, as he was returning from Türän, met the Emperor at the station of Bärik Āb After he had paid his respects, Akbai in condoling with him (for the death of Abūl Fath) said to him "You had one biothei and he has gone to another world We have lost ten"

Verse

According to the calculation of the eyes, one person has gone According to wisdom's calculation, more than thousands

In the 40th year, 1004 (30th October, 1595 AD) he died of tuberculosis (tap-1-diqq) after two months' illness 3 He had two sons was Hakim Hadhiq of whom an account is given separately other was Hakīm Khushhāl He attained the rank of 1,000 in Shāh Jahān's reign and went as the Bakhshī to the Deccan Mahābat Khān when he was the governor of the Deccan was very kind to him

HAKIM-UL-MULK

(Vol I, pp 599, 600)

His name was Mir Muhammad Mahdi, and his native country was Ardistān In the year of Aurangzīb's march from the Deccan towards the capital, Hakim-ul-Mulk accompanied him and received the rank of 1,000 Later he received the title of Hakim-ul-Mulk, and in the 11th year attained the rank of 2,000 with 500 hoise In the 37th year, when Muhammad A'zam Shāh (the third son of Aurangzīb) was ill with dropsy, and the disease had proceeded so far that even a sleeve nearly fourteen gerahs 4 in circumference was narrow for him, and the circumference of his trousers 5 was one yard and six girahs, Hakīm-ul-Mulk was sent to prescribe for him When the Prince arrived, the King out of paternal affection had a tent set up for him inside of the palisade (gulālbār)6 and visited him once every day He and Zīb-un-nisā' Bēgam,7 the Prince's full sister, were contented with having a strictly ascetic meal in his

³ He was burned at Hasan Abdāl beside his brother For Hakīm Hādhiq, see ante, pp 604-606

6 Kulālbār in the text appears to be a misprint

¹ As Hakīm Humām was Bakāwal Bēg or Steward of the Kitchen, he must have been present during Akbar's meals In \bar{A} 'in (Blochmann's translation, I, 2nd edn, p 59) he is called $M\bar{i}r$ $Bal\bar{a}wal$ or Master of the Kitchen ² In the Text Käbul, but Akbar was then on his way to Käbul from Kashmīr, vide Beveridge's translation of Albarnāma, III, p 1041

⁴ Blochmann's translation of $\bar{A}'\bar{\imath}n$ I (2nd edn), p 94, note 3, says 16 is the common number of qirahs, or knots, in a yard, but the dictionaries say that a girah is three finger-breadths, and Gladwin says there are twenty-four finger-breadths (and consequently 8 girahs) in a yard

⁵ The text has pāaicha, but Maāthir i-'Ālamgīrī, p 362, has pārcha

⁷ See Maāthir-i 'Alamgīrī, p 361, where there is the conjunction between khud and the Nawwāb i Qudsiya The name of the sister in that work is Zīnat-un-nısā

Hakim-ul-Mulk, who had been appointed to attend on the Prince, displayed great skill both during the journey and after coming to the Court After the Prince's recovery he obtained an increase of 1,000 dhāt and became an officer of the rank of 4,000

The author of the Maāthu-1-' Alamgīrī reports that the Prince said to his father as follows "One day when the disease was very violent, and all were full of despair and thought my body would burst, suddenly a radiant figure appeared to me when I was between sleeping and waking, and said 'Heartily repent and you will be cured!' Accordingly I repented When I had done so, I felt a desire to make water, and two large vessels were filled, and the seven 2 members were freed of the swelling On the next day 3 the Azad Wali (the independent saint) Shaikh 'Abd-ur-Rahman darvish wrote that Murtada (the Chosen One, ie, 'Ali) had announced that on this night he had given dust 4 (from his tomb), and that cure from death would occur during the day "

(SAIYID) HAMID BOKHĀRĪ 5

(Vol II, pp 396-399)

He was the son of Saiyid Mīrān, son of Saiyid Mubārak Mubarak was one of the great officers of Gujarat They say that he came from his home Uc (Uch) to Gujarat with one hoise. One day a mast elephant met him and the Saiyid lodged an arrow (so deep) in its forehead so that nothing but its notch remained visible day the people of the place swore by his archery Gradually he rose to high office, and when I'timad Khan Gujarati for his own ends set up Nanhū -a child of low origin-as the son of Sultan Mahmud and gave him the name of Sultan Muzaffar, and assigned some territory to each of the officers, Saiyid Mubärik obtained many estates in Pattan and Dandūqa Among them Dulga and Danduga 6 reverted after his death to Saryid Mīrān, and after him to Saryid Hamīd

When Akbar marched in the 17th year to conquer Gujarāt and came to Pattan, the Saiyid 7 came with his following, did homage, and was received with favour Afterwards when the government of Gujarāt was assigned to the Khān A'zam Mīrzā 'Azīz Kōka, the Saiyid was appointed to assist him In the battle between the Khān A'zam and the Mīrzās he was left in charge of the defence of Ahmadābād

³ The Darvish wrote from Adoni forty los distant, see Maāthu-1-'Ālamgirī,

¹ Maāthur-u-'Ālamgīrī, p 363

² Haft hissa The seven portions, used like haft andām for which see Steingass The seven portions are the head, breast, belly, arms and legs

⁴ In the Text tōba, but the correct reading seems to be turba, dust from a tomb, as in the Maāthir-i-'Alamgīrī, p 363 It does not appear from the Maāthir that the Prince gave this account to his father, but used to tell the story The notice does not tell when Hakim-ul-Mulk died Presumably this was before the 49th year of Aurangzīb, 1116 (1704-05 AD) for we find in that year, Khāfī Khān, II, p 539, that a physician of the name of Şādiq Khān ieceived the title of Hakīm-ul Mulk.

⁵ Blochmann's translation of A'īn, I (2nd edn), pp 433-435 Apparently Mubārak, his grandfather, is the Iftikhai-ul-Mulk of Bayloy, History of Gujarat,

⁶ Dholka and Dhanduka in Ahmadābād district, see Imperial Gazetteer, XI, year he was given 1 the government of Dūlqa and Dandūqa Afterwards he hurried to Cambay to help Qutb-ud-Dīn Khān Muhammad Khān the 22nd year he was appointed 2 to the government of Multan, and in the end of the same year he, in company with Mīrzā Yūsuf Khān Radavī, did good service in Balūchistān where the chiefs had revolted In the 25th year when Mīrzā Muḥammad Hakīm came from Kābul and besieged Lähöre, the Saivid and the other fief-holders were shut up After the arrival of the imperial army there when Prince Sultan Murād was appointed to pursue Muhammad Hakīm, the Saiyid received the command of the left wing When the royal army reached Kābul, and as Akbar proposed to halt there for some time, he sent3 on the elephants to Jalalabad and appointed the Saiyid and some others for their escort On the return from Kābul when they encamped at Sirhind, the Saiyid obtained leave to go to his fief In the 30th year he was appointed to Kābul along with Kunwar Mān Singh When he came to Peshāwar, which was in his fief, his soldiers returned to (his fief in) India. and he spent his time negligently with a few men in the fort of Bikrām (near Peshāwai) He left 4 the affairs to a man named Mūsā, who was not very discreet Without making sure of his character, he was appointed in charge of the government and the administration of justice, and he out of avarice oppressed the Mahmand and Ghūrī tribes, of whom there were 10,000 householders in Peshäwar, and injured their property and their honour They, from folly and wickedness, made Jalala' Tarīkī their leader and stirred up a rebellion near Bikrām Hamīd, on account of the smallness of his force, wanted to wait in the fort till the arrival of soldiers from Käbul and Atak (Attock), and of his brothers, but following the advice of shortsighted people he could not carry out this plan sent a man to ascertain full facts about the enemy. He, out of folly or wickedness, reported that they were few and disorganized Without due reflection he came out with 150 men and lighted the flames of conflict Though in the very beginning he was wounded by an arrow, he did not stay his hand His horse fell into a hole 5 and he was killed in 993 Forty of his relatives fell with him He held the rank of 2,000 Afterwards the Afghans surrounded the fort, but his young son, Saiyid Kamāl, bravely defended it with the help of a few men

Kamāl held the rank of 700 in Akbar's time and on Jahāngīr's accession this was raised to 1,000. In succession to Saiyid 'Abdul Wahhāb Bokhārī he was made the governor of Delhī Afterwards he went along with Farid Bokhāri in pursuit of Khusrau, and was in command of the left wing in the battle against him When the Barah Saiyids, who were in the van, were hard pressed, Kamāl came to their help and distinguished himself Saiyid Ya'qūb, son of Saiyid Kamāl, attained

¹ Vide Beveridge, op cit, p 46

² Vide Beveridge, op cit, pp 300, 335 ³ See Beveridge, op cit, p 539 ⁴ See Beveridge, op cit, p 777 The The text has Ghariyā instead of Ghcrī as the name of the tribe

⁵ The Akbarnāma, Text III, p 510, Beveradge's translation, III, p 778, has jū, a canal or stream, but there is the variant gav, a hole The date 993 is wrong Akbarnāma, III, puts it into the 31st year, 994, and so does Badāyūnī, Lowe's translation of Muntakhab-ut-Tawārīkh, II, p 366 In the Tabaqāt-i-Akbarī, De's translation II, p 619, it is included in the account of the 32nd year, 995

the rank of 1,500 with 1,000 horse, and died in the second year of Shāh Jahān's reign

(Mu'izz-ud-Daulah) Hāmid Khān Bahādur Salābat Jang (Vol III, pp 765-769)

He was a half-brother of Khān Fīrūz Jang In his father's lifetime he became known to Aurangzib, and obtained a suitable appointment In the 29th year of the reign he received the title of Khan and the gift of a female elephant, and was ordered to convey treasure to Muhammad Ā'zam Shāh who had been appointed to besiege Bījāpūi At the end of the reign he held the rank of 2,500 with 1,500 horse

After Aurangzīb's death he accompanied A'zam Shāh to Upper India, and in the battle with Bahadui Shah had the command of the reserve of the left wing After A'zam Shāh was killed, he entered the service of Bahādur Shāh, and, in the 3rd year of the reign, was made governor of Bījāpūr After his dismissal from the post he came to the In the beginning Muhammad Shāh's reign, when Nizām-ul-Mulk went from Malwa to the Deccan and encountered the creatures of the Saiyids, Mu'ızz-ud-Daulah who had gone to Delhī with Saiyid 'Abdullāh' Qutb-ul-Mulk was deprived of his fief and retired into private life Hasan 'Alī the Amīr-ul-Umarā, was killed, Qutb-ul-Mulk summoned a prince from among those imprisoned in Salimgarh and set about consolidating his party He conciliated Mu'izz-ud-Daulah by restoring his fief to him He also gave him a sum of money and took him with him When Qutb-ul-Mulk was made prisoner, I'timad-ud-Daulah Amin Khan Bahādur placed Mu'ızz-ud-Daulah on his own elephant and brought him to the King Afterwards when the government of Gujaiāt was transferred from Mu'ızz-ud-Daulah Haıdar Qulī² to Nızām-ul-Mulk Āsaf Jāh, he (Mu'ızz-ud-Daulah) was made his deputy, and received the title of Mu'ızz-ud-Daulah Salābat Jang This was reported (by Āsaf Jāh) to the Emperor

When in 1136 (1723-24 A D) the government of Gujaiāt was taken from Āsaf Jāh and given to Saibuland Khān, Shujā'at Khān and Rustam 'Alī, the sons of Muhammad Kāzım Jama'dār—who had formerly been a servant of Shujā'at Khān Muhammad Bēg and whose sons on account of their ability had received loyal appointments and the title of $\underline{\text{Kh}}$ ān through the influence of Haidai Qulī $\underline{\text{Kh}}$ ān—were made the deputies of Saibuland Khān in Gujarāt and Sūrat Both of them were killed in the fight with Mu'izz-ud-Daulah At last Saibuland Khān came himself and the Bakhshī³ of Hamīd Khān was kılled Thereafter Hamid Khān was summoned by Nızām-ul-Mulk Āsaf Jāh (his nephew) to the Deccan and was made the governor of Nāndēr 4 After some time he died in 1140 (1727-28 A D) at Gulbarga during the time when \bar{A} saf J \bar{a} h was engaged in the Karnātak He was buried in the cemetery of Shāh Banda

Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 264
 See Haidar Quli Khān's account, ante, p 602

³ The editors have furnished some notes to this biography. In one they state on the authority of the $T\bar{a}r\bar{\imath}kh$ i-Muzaffar $\bar{\imath}$ that the Bakhshi's name was For full details see Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Amān Bēg Mughals, pp II, 176-189

⁴ Nander district in Haidarabad, Imperial Gazetteer, XVIII, p. 349

Nawāz—May his grave be holy !—outside the dome He was possessed of good qualities, and was magnanimous, soldier-like and high spirited In speech he was audacious His sons, who distinguished themselves, were Khair Ullāh Khān, Hafīz Ullāh Khān and Marhamat Khān Each of them on account of their near connection with Āsaf Jāh had suitable fiefs and also an allowance in cash for expenses Generally they were notorious for their wicked modes of living. They were excused service, and spent their days at home. Each of them had descendants who subsisted on remnants of their fiefs. The sons of Marhamat Khān, who himself was well known for his simplicity, acquired culture. The elder received the title of Fatḥyāb Jang, and the younger that of Zafaryāb Jang, and had a fief in the pargana of Mālkanda¹, the writer was acquainted with them

Hamīd-ud-Dīn Khān Bahādur

(Vol I, pp 605-611)

He was an officer of Aurangzīb's time and was the son of Sardār² Khān Kōtwāl and grandson of Bāgī Khān Chēlā Qalmāk of Shāh Jahān's By the help of good fortune and the influence of his stars he, in the end of Aurangzīb's reign, became the centile of the affairs of India, and had the power of binding and loosing in all matters of high politics While thus the arrow at the top of the quiver of the reigning Sovereign, he was appointed sometimes to the batteries raised against forts, and sometimes to camps and distant places for the punishment of bandits, and, wherever he went, he by his rapidity and vigour smote and subdued the enemy and then returned safe and sound and rich with plunder, and his rank was raised with commendations Hence it was that he was known as Nīmcha-1-'Ālamgīrī or 'Ālamgīr's Sword In the beginning of his career when his father was an object of royal favours, he too became known and acquired reputation In the 28th year of the reign, he, in succession to his father, became the Superintendent of the engraving 3 At that time, when his father's title was changed from Ihtimām Khān to Sardār Khān, he got an increase of 200 and obtained the rank of 400 with 50 horse In the 32nd year he became, in succession to his father, Superintendent of the elephant-stables, and as he had become a persona grata, his rank was gradually increased When he received the order in Iklūj 4 to bring the wretched Sambhā who had been seized, along with his wife and child, by the excellent efforts of Khān Zamān Haidarābādī, he, in accordance with the royal order, put a wooden cap (takhta-kulāh) on Sambhā two kos from Bahādurgarh (or Bīrgāūn),

¹ The variant Bālkonda in Warangal division, Haidarābād, is the correct reading

² Also called Ihtımām Khān, Maāthır-ı-'Ālamgīrī, p 252 In Khāfī Khān, II, p 381, he is called Sarbarāh Khān

³ $D\bar{a}r\bar{o}gha$ -1- $Lh\bar{a}trmband$ $Lh\bar{a}na$ See $Bah\bar{a}r$ 'Ajam and $Ma\bar{a}thr$ -1-' $ar{A}lamg\bar{n}i$, p 252

Iklūch in Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 319, and Iklūj in Khāfī Khān, II, p 383 South of the river Nīrā, about half way between Bījāpūr and Punna vide Elliot, VII, p 340 Khāfī Khān, II, p 387, says the takhta-hulāh was a Persian custom For Shambhūjī's capture, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, IV, pp 399—407 which was the camp, and dressed up his followers in fantastic garments, and placed them on camels, and pilloried them throughout the camp with drums beating and trumpets blowing, and then brought them into In the 33rd year he received the title of Khān When his father died, he, in succession to him, became the Kötwäl and was also given other offices. At this time he received the present of a jighā' (a jewelled ornament for the turban) and an elephant, and was repeatedly sent to chastise the enemy In the 37th year it happened that some of the servants of (Prince) Mu'izz-ud-Dīn¹ behaved improperly to Fadl 'Alī, the Dīvān of his establishment, and their improprieties ended in a fight An order was given that Hamid-ud-Din Khan should go and punish them When the Khan went against them, his elephant got alarmed at the uproar and carried him off to the distance of a los from the battlefield towards the imperial granaries He chanced to see some large sacks which they fill with corn at the granary, and, as his elephant was passing, he jumped out of the howdah and alighted on them He then got another elephant and returned to the field of battle and punished the rioters In the 39th year he, at Islampuri, was raised to the rank of In the same year Santā routed Qāsım Khān, Khānazād Khān and other officers and besieged them in the fort of Dhanderi Hamid-ud-Din was sent with a large force to relieve them Near Adoni he met the defeated officers and gave them proper help Meanwhile Santā had defeated Himmat Khān 2 and gone on with his evil ways (Hamid-ud-Din) pursued him and drove him out of the imperial territories When he came to the Court, he was honoured and rewarded and received the title of Bahadur In the 42nd year, he was appointed to an office near the Emperor, being made the Superintendent of the Afterwards, he was also made Superintendent of the jewel $Ghusalkhar{a}na$ In the 43rd year, on the death of Ikhlas Khan, who fell a martyr in a battle with the enemy, he was made Master of the Horse, and received an adorned belt 3 and a cushion from the Emperor During this time he was sent on several occasions to bring provisions and to harry the seditious; he performed his duties to the Emperor's satisfaction Though in all his takings of fortresses he did good service and was a zealous servant, but he especially distinguished himself in the capture of Rajgarh where (Shivājī) after taking it from the 'Adil Shāhīs had, in the day of his occupation, made three forts on the three sides (of the hill) Together with Tarbīyat Khān, Mīr Ātish, he came out on the ridge opposite the triangle ($^{?}$) of the fort which experts call Sūnda 4 and prepared the equipment for the battle A battery was made on the top of the hill and was extended to the sang-i-chin (heap of stones) Though the besieged did not fail to

¹ Maāthīr-1-'Ālamgīrī, p 367 Mu'ızz-ud-Dīn was the name of Jahāndār Shāh, a grandson of Aurangzīb

² According to Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 379, Himmat Khān was shot in the moment of victory Also Khāfī Khān, II, p 434

⁸ In place of Kamar u muttakā, Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 423, has Khil'at i-khāssa bā kamar muttakā

⁴ Maāthīr-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 479 Khāfī Khān, II, p 513, makes the first capture as or 15 Shawwāl and the final surrender twelve days later The event is put into the year 1114 (February 1703), see Elliot, VII, p 373 The fort was afterwards called Banī Shāhgarh The word is probably sūndh—an elephant's trunk It was a spur or ridge extending out from the plateau of the hill The description, which is not very intelligible, is condensed from p 479 of the Maāthīr discharge muskets and to throw rockets and stones yet the gallant men came out on the top of the tower-which had been built on the point of the said Sūnda, and arrived within the wall When the garrison beheld such boldness, they lost courage and asked for quarter On 21st Shawwāl, in the beginning of the 48th year, 1115 A H (27th February, 1704 A D), the four forts received the name of Banī Shāhgarh Hamīd-ud-Dīn, who had attained the rank of 3,500 with 2,500 horse, received, as a reward for his exertions, the gift of drums He also distinguished himself in the taking of Torna 1 He bound the rope round his waist and entered the fort.

In fine Hamid-ud-Din was greatly distinguished at the close of Aurangzīb's reign, and was second to none in influence and intimacy Though Amīr Khān was not wanting in all these respects, he was still inferior to Hamīd-ud-Dīn 'Ināyat Ullāh Khān was equal to him in administrative matters, but he had not so long been attached to the Court Aurangzīb died 2 in his quarters (dar $f\bar{a}na$) at Ahmadnagar in the first watch of Friday 28 Dhul Qa'da, 1118 (AH) after a reign of 50 years, 2 months and 28 days, at the age of 91 years and 13 days After the body was laid out, and prayers had been offered, it was watched in the bedchamber (Khwābgāh) Next day on hearing of the event Muhammad A'zam Shāh, who had been sent off to Mālwa, returned from his camp twenty-five kos distant, and performed the mourning ceremonies the following day he took the body on his shoulder to the outside of the $D\bar{\imath}v\bar{\imath}n-\imath-Ad\bar{\imath}lat$ (Hall of Justice), and it was then conveyed to the blessed shrine known as the Rauda, which is a cultivated place eight kos distant from Aurangābād, and three kos from Daulatābād Hamīd-ud-Din neglected 3 no point of ceremonial etiquette or lamentation, and went with the corpse on foot and pulling out his hairs. In accordance with his will Aurangzīb was buried near the tomb of Shaikh Zain-ud-Dīn May the mercy of God be upon him!

The date of Aurangzīb's death was found in the noble verse 4 Rūh u Raihān u Jannat Na'īm—Rest, Fragrance and the Paradise of Delights (1118)

His title became Khuld Makān "Dwelling in everlasting bliss", and the village was called Khuldābād The Khān put on a darvīsh's dress, and swept the tomb of his benefactor and teacher. He built a residence for himself there, which is still known by his name Muhammad A'zam Shāh came to Aurangābād from Ahmadnagar he went to his father's tomb and said prayers. He took the hand of Hamīd-ud-Dīn and brought him with him, and spoke soothingly to him and confirmed him in his office In the march to Upper India, which

¹ In the text Pūrnā, but the variant Tōrnā is correct Torna was taken in the 48th year, 1115 (20th March, 1704) For a detailed account of Aurangzīb's campaign for the capture of Maratha forts, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurang-

zib, V, pp 159-192

² Aurangzīb was born at Dōhad on the borders of Mālwa on 24th October, 1618 and died on 3rd March, 1707 See Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzīb, V pp 18, 19, and his edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, p 1

The expression dar fāna may mean that he died in the courtyard ³ Vide Khāfī Khān, II, p 566 ⁴ Sūrah 56, verse 88 "His reward shall be rest and mercy and a garden of delights" (Sale)

is unknown 3

was necessary for the making of war upon Bahadur Shah, he took Hamidud-Din with him They say, that when on the march news came that Muḥammad 'Azīm had come to Āgia from the Eastern Provinces, Muḥammad A'zam Shāh said "A great evil (Balā-i-'azīm) has ieached Agra", and that the Khān Bahādur ieplied "It will be removed by the blessing of the Great Name" (Ism A'zam, also punning on the name). On the day of battle after much contest signs of defeat manifested themselves When Dhulfagar Khan had retired from the battlefield, Hamīd-ud-Dīn also withdrew He also at that time was wounded by an He afterwards came from Gwāliyār, and his cheek resumed its pristine hue when he was graciously received by Bahādur Shāh received a gilded staff and was made 1st Mir Tuzuk and Superintendent of the mace-bearers He received the title of Bahadur 'Alamgiri, and passed his days with honour till the end of Bahadui Shah's reign

When the juggling heavens gave Jahandar Shah the jule and the dice of Dhulfaqar Khan threw sixes, he practised the rancour which had long existed, but had not manifested itself so far, he tormented Hamidud-Din and imprisoned him and put him in chains 1 At length Dhulfaqar Khān got the reward of his deeds, but though the fall of that tyrant released Hamid-ud-Din from confinement, he had no place in the Court of Farrukh-siyar Out of regard for his former influence or due to respect for the old ties, Saif-ud-Daula 'Abd-us-Samad Khān, who had been made governor of the Panjāb, took him with him When after the extirpation of a noted sect (the Sikhs), the said governor returned in glory to Lāhōre, the writer 2 of these lines witnessed the spectacle Hamid-ud-Din brought up the rear of the equippage He was in a palanquin and had few followers, and it was plain that he was dejected at having suffered at the hands of fate After that, he came to the Presence and was received with royal favour so that he renewed his feathers In the time of the present ruler (Muhammad Shāh) by vutue of the same (old) intimacy with Aurangzib he again received the high rank of Superintendent of The water which had gone away returned to its channel

HAQIQAT KHĀN

This lasted for a long time until he died at his appointed period had a son who held an office, and had means $(dasta\bar{a}h)^{\top}$ But his biography

(Vol I, pp 590, 591)

He was Ishāq Bēg of Yazd At first he was the major-domo (Khān-1-Sāmān) in the establishment of Mumtāz-uz-Zamān (Shāh Jahān's In the 4th year of Shāh Jahān's reign, when that chaste lady queen)

¹ See Irvine's Later Mughals, I, p 187 Dhulfagar Khan's murder is described on p 253

² For details of the Sikh campaign and capture of the leader Gurū Banda at ³ Total Machale T pp 307-315 The author of the

Gurdāspūr, Panjāb, see Irvine's Later Mughals, I, pp 307-315 The author of the Maāthir-ul-Umarā was then a boy of 15, and soon left Lāhōre for the Deccan

3 In the table of contents the biography of Hamīd-ud-Dīn is entered as having been written by 'Abd ul-Hayy, it being marked Q But the writer here referred to could not have been 'Abd-ul-Hayy, for he was not born till 1142, and probably he never was in Lāhōre The life must then be by his father who was born in 1111 A H. (1700 AD) went from the transitory to the enduring world, the King appointed him—as he was a good housekeepei—to the service of the Bēgam Sāhiba In the 9th year he was appointed, along with Makaramat Khān and Bāqī Khān Chēlā to Datyā 2 to search for the hidden treasures of the rebel Juihāi Singh who had been killed By their excellent investigations they brought out from wells in that neighbourhood twenty-eight lacs of rupees and paid them into the royal treasury. In the 10th year he was promoted to the rank of 1,000 with 100 horse. In the 12th year he received 3 the title of Haqiqat Khān and was appointed Examiner of petitions in succession to 'Āqil Khān 'Ināyat Ullāh In the 13th year he had 4 an increase of 150 hoise and had 5 the rank of 1,500 with 300 horse After that, he got 6 an increase of 500 and his rank was 2,000 with 300 horse, as appears in the last list of the Bādshāhnāma In the 28th year, as he had attained to a great age, the King relieved him of his employment, and allowed him to repose in retirement. He died in retirement in the 7th year of Aurangzib's reign in the year 1074 A H (1663-64 A D)

(IKRĀM KHĀN, SAIYID) HASAN

(Vol I, pp 215, 216)

One of the Wālā-Shāhīs (household troopers or bodyguards) of For a long while he was faujdār of Baglāna Khāndēsh which Shāh Jahān had given to Aurangzīb when he was a prince Afterwards when Aurangzīb for making inquiries about his father's illness moved from Burhanpur to Malwa, Ikram Khān, in accordance with orders, joined him and was graciously Dārā Shikōh, which occurred the battle with In near Sāmūgarh, he distinguished himself and did good service In the first year of the reign, he received the title of Ikrām Khān In the battle 7 with Shujā', when Mahārāja Jaswant Singh, who had charge of the right wing, played the game of deceit and at night took the road to his home, and Islam Khan was appointed in his place, he along with Saif Khan was in the vanguard and stood firm and behaved courageously When the King had proceeded towards Ajmer to engage Dārā Shikōh, Ikrām Khān was appointed governor of the Capital in succession to Ra'adandāz Khān Later, on being relieved of that charge, he became faujdār of Agra in succession to Saiyid Sālār Khān In the 5th year of the reign, corresponding to 1072 AH (1661-62 AD) he closed his eyes, and ceased to behold the rose garden of existence

¹ Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 121, where he is called Ishāq Bēg دينا 2 in the text is a misprint for ديا

<sup>Bādshāhnāma, II, p 142
Bādshāhnāma, II, p 198, has the rank of 1,000 with 250 horse
Loc cit, p 336, has the rank of 1,500 with 250 horse</sup>

⁶ Loc crt, p 627

⁷ Battle of Khajwa (Khajuhā in Cambridge History of India, IV, p 227) on 14th January, 1659 See Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, II, pp 486-495

(Muqarrab¹ Khān, Shaikh) Hasan, known as Hassū (Vol III, pp. 379-382)

(He was) the son of Shaikh Phaniya, son of Shaikh Hasan of Panipat It is well known that, in the service of Akbar, he (the father) as a physician and especially as a surgeon was without a rival. He was very skilful in treating elephants and acquired much celebrity for it Mugariab Khān also had no equals or rivals in this science, he used to take part with his father in the work and assist in the treatments year, 1004 AH, a buck, in the course of a deer-fight, ran towards Akbar, gored him with its hoins, and inflicted a wound on his testicles swelled up, and for seven days he did not go to the privy There was a great commotion in the country Though the case was in the hands of Hakims Misri and 'Ali Baz, but the father and the son in putting on and taking off plasters and bandaging did good service Shaikh Hassū, from his early years, was brought up in the service of Jahangir and did excellent service Accordingly Jahangir used to say 2 that few kings possessed a servant like Hassū While Jahangīr was a prince, Hassū, though he (the Prince) pressed him, took nothing from his establishment Afterwards when the Prince became the King, the first person who got an office was Hassū After his accession Jahāngīr gave him the title of Mugarrab Khān and the rank of 5,000 During his reign the King was careless, and did not exercise much judgment and discretion in the ap-Inasmuch as Mugarrab Khān was a connoisseur of pointment of officers jewellery, he (the King) gave him the important province of Gujarāt, which has ports such as Surat and Cambay, each of which is a mine of rarities and a centre of wealth He could not manage the province or the soldiery, and so he was recalled and the province was given in fief to Shāh Jahān In the 13th year, 1027 AH, he was appointed governor of Bihār, but, in the 16th year that province was transferred to Sultan Parvīz Muqarrab Khān returned to the Court, and was made governor of the province of Agra After that he was made the 2nd Bakhshi, and became more and more intimate with Jahangir In the beginning of Shāh Jahān's reign, he, on account of old age, was excused service, and allowed to retire to the town of Kairana, which was his native place and had been in his fief, so that he may enjoy his old age in peace and plenty They say that time dealt with him kindly and he never received a blow from Fortune After retirement he spent his days in perfect pleasure and freedom from care with 1,000 beautiful women friends (sahēlīs), who were also in charge of his workshops. They say, there was not another rich man in those days who had so much virility, and who, free of cares, could devote so much time to enjoyment As he was the custodian of the shrine of Shāh Sharaf 3 of Pānīpat, he made his He died in his native place in the 19th year 4 tomb there

¹ See Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), p 613 For an account of the deer-fight, see Albarnāma, III, Beveridge's translation, pp 1061, 1062, the name in that work is wrongly given as Hansū

² Price's translation of Jahāngīr's Memous, p 37

³ Abū 'Alī Qalandar died at Pānīpat, 1324 A D (vide Beale, Oriental Biographical Dictionary, 1881 edn, p 11) See also Jarrett's translation of the Ā'īn, III, p 368

 $^{^4}$ He died in 1056 A H (1646 A D), vide Bādshāhnāma, II, p $\,$ 613

Kairāna 1 is a pargana of Sahāranpūi in the province of Delhī has a good climate and fertile soil He erected fine buildings there, and he made a puccā wall round a garden, 140 bighas in extent was in it a tank 220 cubits long by 200 broad He planted both hot and cold weather trees They say that pistachio trees flourished there, and wherever he heard of good mango trees, whether in Gujarāt or in the Deccan, he brought the seed and planted it Accordingly the mangoes of Kaırāna are celebrated in Delhi above all others up to the present day. Rızq Ullāh,² his son, attained the rank of 800 in Shāh Jahān's reign He was a skilful physician and surgeon. In Aurangzīb's reign he was granted the title of Khān and an increase of rank He died in the 10th Masīḥā-1-Kairānavī, whose (real) name was Sa'd Ullāh, was Muqarrab Khān's adopted son, and was known as a poet From his poem on Sītā, the wife of Rāja Rām Chandra, here are three verses

Verses

When water was sprinkled on the head of that intoxicated person, Water also escaped from his hands When she steps out of the water after a bath, A fiery tree appears out of the water The Indian saying has been confirmed
That without doubt the moon has come out of the edifice

HASAN 'ALĪ KHĀN BAHĀDUR

(Vol I, pp 593-599)

He belonged to Aurangzīb's time and was the eldest son of the famous Ilāhvardī Khān 3 As his countenance resembled that of a lion (shēr-babar), in its strength and majesty, he was styled in his childhood Mīrzā Bāgh He was distinguished for the strength of his hands and arms and was emment among his brothers for his noble qualities his approval always accompanied his father In the end of Shāh Jahān's reign, when Prince Shujā' behaved in an unseemly manner, Ilāhvardī Khān with his sons, willingly or unwillingly, took his side, and there was a battle at Bahādurpūr-Benāres 4, between Shujā' and Sulaimān Shikōh, the eldest son of Dārā Shikōh, who had been sent from the Court with many of the royal troops to encounter him Shujā' was defeated and went to Bengal, and Hasan 'Alī separated from his father and joined the royal army After the defeat of Dārā Shikōh and when the storm of dispersion scattered Sulaiman Shikoh's forces, and every one of the royal officers and of his servants left his companionship and chose their own course, Hasan 'Alī obtained access to Aurangzīb through Rāja

¹ In the Muzaffarnagar District See Imperial Gazetteer, XIV, p 286

² Rieu, Catalogue, p 1078b Allāh Diyāh, the nephew of Muqarrab Khān, was the author of Siyar-ul-Aqtāb, vide Rieu, op cit, p 358b

³ See Maāthir-ul-Umarā, I, pp 207-215 Another Ilāhvardī Khan (id, pp 229-232) is described as the second son of the famous Ilāhvardī Khan on p 229, but on p 231, Husain 'Alī, whose biography is given above, is described as his uncle Apparently there is some mistake in this account

^{4 24}th February, 1658, Cambridge History of India, IV, p 222

Jai Singh, and by the increase of 500 and the augmentation of his troopers attained the rank of 1,500 with 1,000 horse and the title of Khān, and was the recipient of glances of favour In the same year on the occasion of Aurangzib turning his attention to the battle of Khajwa 1, he received an increase of 500 and the appointment of Qūshbēgī (falconer) After the second battle with Dārā Shikōh, when the Capital was illuminated by the arrival of the Emperoi, Hasan 'Alī, in addition to holding the office of Qushbegi was made faugdar of the territory of Shāhjahānābād in succession to Kīrat Singh As the office of Qūshbēgī necessitated constant attendance on the royal sturups, Hasan 'Alī was always with the King both in journeys and at Court and was a persona grata In the 9th year, he was made Superintendent of the servants of the jilau 2 When in the end of the 12th year the King left the Capital, Hasan 'Alī was made faujdār of Mathurā, in succession to Saf Shikan Khān, and had the rank of 3,500 with 2,500 horse, and was sent off with a force to chastise the turbulent elements in that neighbourhood showed great energy and courage in seizing and slaying the recalcitrants and in plundering their habitations and destroying their forts, etc assigned their estates to his companions and others He arrested the robber Kōklā Jāt—who was responsible for the killing of 'Abd-un-Nabī Khān faujdār (of Mathurā)—and for the ravaging of the pargana of Shādābād³, along with his companion, the rebel Sankī, and sent them The loyal wrath ordered and both, in retribution for their crimes, were cut to pieces limb by limb. The son 4 and daughter of Köklā were made over, for their upbringing, to Jawāhir Khān Nāzir The daughter was later given in mairiage to Shah Quli Chēla, a wellknown officer, and the son got the name of Fādil and became a Hāfiz In Autangzīb's opinion no other Hāfiz was so reliable, and the King, who, since his accession, had taken to reciting the Qur'an, used to honour him by hearing his recitations

The Khān in reward for his good services received the gift of drums, and afterwards was appointed governor of the province of Allahābād In the 20th year he was appointed governor of Āgra, but in the 21st year, he was removed from that appointment and returned to the Court In the 22nd year, when the royal standards were directed for the first time towards Ajmēr, the Khān was appointed along with Khān Jahān Bahādur to subdue the country of Jōdhpūr and other territories of the deceased Rāja Jaswant When in the 23rd year the royal army proceeded from Ajmēr towards Udaipūr for purposes of castigation, a large and richly and properly equipped army was sent under the leadership of Hasan 'Alī to punish the Rānā In this campaign he did excellent service and one day while crossing a ravine fell upon the Rānā The latter could not withstand the attack and went away leaving his tents and goods The Khān destroyed the idol-temple in front of the Rānā's palace and also 172 other temples in Udaipūr, and obtained the title of Bahādur 'Alamgīrshāhī Afterwards, when the royal standards proceeded to

^{1 14}th January, 1659, id, p 224 The name is spelt there as Khajuhā

2 According to Blochmann's translation of \overline{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), p 150, note 2,

"The plaubegi is the superintendent of horses selected for presents"

3 In the text Shādābād, but Sa'dābād in Maāthir-i-'Alangīrī, p 93

In the text Shādābād, but Sa'dābād in Maāthir-i-'Alamgīrī, p 93
This account is also included under Churāman Jāt, vide Beveridge's translation of Maāthir-ul-Umarā, p 437

the Deccan, Hasan 'Alī Khān was appointed to accompany Prince Muḥammad A'zam for the siege of Bijāpūr As every day there was constant fighting in the batteries with exchanges of positions, and scarcity and dearness of provisions pressed heavily on the camp, an order was sent, in the 29th year, to the Prince, that as things were in this condition he should raise the siege and join the imperial army which was The Prince took council with the leading officers of then at Shōlāpūr experience He first took the opinion of Hasan 'Alī, observing to him "The transacting of the affairs of the campaign rests upon the concord of the An urgent order has come from the Court to the above effect Your opinion in matters of peace or war, of rapid action or of endurance is valuable, as you have seen and heard and lived through many such scenes of stress and difficulty What do you think in this affair"? The Khān replied "Considering the situation of the army, and the general good, it is advisable to raise the siege When in the Balkh campaign Prince Murad Bakhsh, on account of the severity of the weather could not remain, he, willingly or unwillingly, withdrew from the siege without orders from Shāh Jahān, and returned to the Court The state of the troops at present is apparent, and Your Highness has an order (to retire)." After this the others spoke and all agreed with Hasan 'Ali's opinion The Prince said "You have spoken for yourselves, now hear my senti-I, Muhammad A'zam, with my two sons and the Begam 2 will not move from this place of danger as long as we have life. Let the King come afterwards and bury us My companions can choose for themselves about going or staying The preservation of the realm and religion is what is looked to by men of honour, fate depends upon the heavens!" Nothing evil occurred, and by the fortunate circumstance of the Prince's steadfastness, Khān Fīrūz Jang arrived with a large army and abundant provisions, and hardship was changed into happiness ('usi ba yasr tabdīl yāft) In the same year Hasan 'Alī was appointed governor's of Berar on the death of Irij Khan As he was hotly engaged in the siege of Bījāpūr and was doing good service, Radī-ud-Dīn Khān (who was) Shaikh Radī-ud-Dīn, and belonged to a noble family of Bhāgalpūr in Bihār and who had charge of Hasan 'Ali's domestic affairs and of those of the imperial troops, was appointed to act as his deputy

The Shaikh was a very learned man, and took an active part in editing the Fatāwā-r-'Ālamgīrī He received three rupees a day as his pay As he was also skilled in many sciences he helped in military affairs, in the collection of revenue, and as a companion, etc. Further, by the instrumentality of Qādī Muḥammad Husain of Jaunpūr, the Court Muhtasib (censor), his merits were brought to the notice of Aurangzīb and he received the rank of 100 Gradually through his auspicious star and his good qualities and the help of Hasan 'Alī he attained to the rank of an Amīr and Khān He became pēshkār of Hasan 'Alī and did good service in extirpating the Jāts of Mathurā and in the affair of the Rānā 4 In the

¹ Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 263 Also see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, IV, pp 315-317, the name of Hasan ʿAlī Khan is wrongly given as Ali Khan on p 315

² Jānī Bēgam, the wife of Prince Muhammad A'zam, vide Khāfī Khān, II, p 317

³ Maāthır-ı-'Ālamgīrī, p 262

⁴ Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 187

beginning of the 30th year, he was killed 1 during an altercation with the The government of the above province (Berar), where the Shaikh (Radī-ud-Dīn) was acting as his deputy, was given to Muhammad Mū'min.2 the son-in-law of Irij Khan

As the siege of Bijāpūr lasted a long time, the King became indignant and said "What worldly advantage is there in the number of princes, they are nothing but a name We hoped one of our sons would do something. This has not come about. Let us see why this wall does not crumble down" He advanced from Sholapur, and as deeds are pledged to fortune, he encamped on 21 Sha'ban, 1097 A H (13th July, 1686 AD), at Rasūlpūr, three kos from Bījāpūr, and on 4 Dhul Qa'da (22nd September, 1686 AD) of that year Bījāpūr was taken ³ Hasan 'Alī Khān Bahādur, who was seriously ill, departed to the other world after one day He carried off the ball of courage and military skill from his contemporaries He was a model for benevolence and for right acting and speaking His sons, Muhammad Muqim and Khair Ullāh, did not attain any distinction

Hasan 4 Beg Badakhshi Shaikh 'Umari

(Vol I, pp 565-568)

He was one of the old servants (Bāburiyān) of the dynasty, and possessed military talents When in the 34th year, Akbar, after visiting Kashmīr, proceeded to Kābul by way of Pakhlī—which is a country 35 kos long and 25 broad, and lies to the west of Kashmir—Sultan Huşain Khān, the ruler of Pakhlī—who belonged to the tribe of Qārlūgh (Qārlyghs), some of whom had been left to guard this country by Tīmūr when he was returning to Tūrān—did homage, and after a few days absconded Akbar 5 gave the country in fief to Hasan Beg, and sent him to punish the chief He behaved with courage and skill and brought the country into subjection When in the 35th year, he came to the Court, the Pakhli chief again raised his head and created a disturbance took the name of Sultān Nasīr-ud-Dīn, and recovered possession of Pakhlī from Hasan Bēg's men Hasan Bēg was again sent with a force, and inflicted suitable punishment on him In the 46th year, he did good service in Bangash and was promoted to the rank of 2,500 In the end of Akbar's reign, he obtained Rohtas (in the Panjab) in fief, and was directed to guard Kābul In the first year of Jahāngū's reign, he was summoned to the Capital, and was met at Mathurā by Sultān Khusrau, who, on the night of Sunday, 20th 6 Dhu'l Hijja 1014 AH, had escaped from the fort at Agra Hasan Beg was not sure about Jahangir and

^{1, 2} Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 278

³ See Sir Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, pp 319-325, for further details of the fall of Bījāpūr

⁴ Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'īn, I (2nd edn), pp 504, 505

⁵ Akbarnāma, Text, III, p 565, Beveridge's translation III, p 855

⁶ 8th as a variant in some MSS is given by the editors. This corresponds to the date in the $T\bar{u}zuk$ - ι - $Jah\bar{a}ng\bar{\iota}r\bar{\iota}$ (Rogers and Beveridge) I, p 52, and in view of Blochmann's note 3, p 504, and Khāfī Khān, I, p 250, 8th appears to be the correct date, this would be 6th April, 1606, and not 6th April, 1605, as given by Rogers and Beveridge. Beni Prasad, History of Jahāngīr, p 140, (1930), gives evening of April 6th, 1606, as the date. evening of April 6th, 1606, as the date suspected that there was something unfavourable about these summons Also as turbulence and plotting are innate with Badakhshīs, he was carried away by the inducements and flatteries of Sultan Khusrau, and agreed to accompany him Together with 300 active Badakhshīs he joined him in the path of error Khusrau addressed him as Khān Bābā (the Khān father) and made him the centre of his power

When Khusrau opposed the royal forces on the bank of the Bivāh (Beas) with the troops he had collected, and after a little fighting was defeated, and with Hasan Beg and 'Abd-ur-Rahim-the Diran of Lahore who had joined him and obtained the title of Malik Anwai 1—became a wanderer in the desert of disappointment. Most of the Afghans who had assisted him uiged him to proceed to the Eastern districts Hasan Beg said "This proposal is wrong, you should go towards Kābul, for in that country there is no lack of men or horses. Whoever has Kābul, will have every kind of servant and equipment Babui and Humayun, though they had no money, conquered India with the help of Kābul I have four lakhs of rupees in Rohtas and will give these as a contribution, and as soon as we arrive there I will supply 12,000 capable horsemen If the King follows us we shall give battle, and if he gives up that country to us we shall arrange for sometime with our fortune and wait for the opportunity' As Khusiau in ignorance of the consequences, had placed the rems of affairs into his hands, he agreed and was arrested by the laws of retubution on the bank of the Chenāb At that time Jahangir was encamped in Mūzā Kāmran's garden in the suburbs of Lāhore On the 3rd Safar 1015,2 Khusiau was brought, according to the custom of Chengīz with tied aims and fetters on his feet into the royal Presence Hasan Beg and 'Abd-ur-Rahim were placed on his right and left, and Khusiau stood between them trembling and weeping Hasan Beg, thinking that it would help him, began to talk wildly and As his object became apparent, he was not allowed to continue, and the order was issued that Khusiau should be kept chained and imprisoned, Hasan Beg be put into the skin of an ox, and 'Abd-ur-Rahim in that of an ass, and they be paraded (through the streets) seated on asses with their faces turned towards the tails 3. As the skin of the ox dried (and shrank) sooner than that of the ass, Hasan did not survive more than four watches (12 hours) The otler, after a night and a day (1 e, eight watches), and as he was still alive, was, at the entreaties of those who had the right of audience, liberated from the wrath of the Sovereign—which is a sample of the wiath of God For the sake of warning and punishment, two rows of stakes were set up from the gate of the Kāmrān garden to the gate of the citadel And all who had joined Khusrau were impaled there Next day when the King entered Lahore, he ordered to bring the captives to the royal Presence, and so 3rd Safar appears to be correct

3 See Rogers and Beveridge's translation of the Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī, I, p 69, and note 1, for further details Also Beni Prasad, loc cit, p 147

¹ The title is given as Malik-ul-Vuzrā in Iqbālnāma-i-Jahāngīrī, p 10 and Muntakhab-ul-Lubāb, I, p 251 It is Melek Anwar in Price's Memoirs, p 81 See also Beni Prasad, History of Jahāngīr, p 141, where the title is given as Anwar Khan, and it is stated that he "was made the vazir"

2 In the Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī (Rogers and Beveridge), I, p 68, the date is given as 3rd Muharram, but it is 3rd Safar in Iqbālnāma, p 16 In Muntakhab-ul-Lubāb, I, p 253, it is stated that towards the end of Muharram, Amīr ul-Umarā was sent to bring the captives to the royal Presence, and so 3rd Safar appears to be correct.

that Khusrau should be placed on an elephant, and be led between the stakes, and that the cry should be raised on both sides "Your associates and servants do homage to you" May heaven preserve me from such an end! The son of Hasan Bēg, by name Isfandyāi Khān, obtained in Shāh Jahān's time the rank of 1,500, he died in the 16th year of the latter's reign

(Mīrzā) Hasan Safavī

(Vol III, pp 477-479)

He was the third son of Rustam of Qandahār In Jahāngīr's time he attained to the rank of 1,500 with 700 horse After Shāh Jahān's accession he came with his father from Bihār and did homage 1 In the 2nd year, he was appointed to Bengāl² and served for a long time, along with his son, Saf Shikan, among the auxiliaries of that province On being summoned to the Court, he offered his allegiance to the august conqueror, and later on return carried on his duties satisfactorily, and as a result of the trust in his fidelity his rank was exalted In the 19th year, his rank was 3,000 with 2,000 horse and he was granted the fief of Fathpūr In the 20th year he became faujdār of Jaunpūr in succession to Shāh Nawāz Khān Safavī, his younger brother Along with his son, Saf Shikan he received a drum and his rank rose to 2,000 with 2,000 horse. In the 21st year he came from Jaunpūr with his son and did homage, and again they went to Bengāl In the 22nd year, he was, at Shāh Shujā's request, appointed to Kūj (Cooch Bihār), and received an increase of 1,000 horse. In the 23rd year, and end of 1059 AH (1649 AD) he died. He did not accept the title of $\underline{\text{Kh}}$ ān. Mīrzā Saf Shikan, after his father's death, served as the $th\bar{a}nad\bar{a}r$ and $fauyd\bar{a}r$ of Jessore 3 in Bengal After that, he retired and was for a long while one of the pensioned supplicants for the welfare of the reigning King died in 1073 A H (1662 A D), the 5th year of Aurangzīb's reign He was married to the daughter of Mīr Mīrān Yazdī, the sister of Nawāzish Khān 'Abdul-Kāfī, who was half-brother of Khalīl Ullāh Khān His heir was Saif-ud-Dīn Safavī, who, on account of his being the son-in-law of Khalīl Ullāh Khān, was an object of royal favour and received the title of Kāmyāb Khān⁴ in the 7th year For some reason he was removed from In the 14th year he was restored

Hāshim Khān

(Vol III, pp 940, 941)

He was the son of Qāsım Khān Mīr Bahr (admıral) When his father was killed, in Kābul, in the 39th year of Akbar's reign, and the

² In the first year he seems to have been attached to Bihār, vide Bādshāhnāma, He went to Bengal in the 2nd year

⁵ Albarnāma, Text III, p. 652, and Beveridge's translation III, p. 1001

 $^{^1}$ He had the same rank of 1,500 with 700 horse in the beginning of Shāh Jahān's reign See $B\bar{a}dsh\bar{a}hn\bar{a}ma$, I, p 184

³ Hasar in the text is apparently a mistake of the copyist for Jessore

4 Vide Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 113 In the 20th year he was made faujdār of Sahāranpūr, op cit, p 158, in the 26th year he was made Bakhshī of the Deccan, op cit, p 223, and in the 49th year he was the governor of the fort of Gulbarga, op cit, p 503

government of that province was assigned to Qulij Khān, he came to the Court and was favourably received In the 41st year, he was sent along with Mīrzā Rustam of Qandahāi to punish Rāja Bāsū and other landholders of the Northern hills He distinguished himself at the taking of Mau and afterwards came to the Court In the 44th year he was sent with Shaikh Farid Bakhshi to take Asir After that he was sent, with Sa'ādat Khān, who held the forts of Kālna and Trimbak on behalf of the rulers of the Deccan, and had the good fortune of presenting himself at the sublime Court at Nāsik After taking the fort of Trimbak, he came to the Court, in the 46th year, and performed the konnish year he held the rank of 1,500 In the first year of Jahāngīr's reign, his rank was 2,000 with 1,500 horse He also received the present of a horse In the 2nd year, his lank was 3,000 with 2,000 horse and he was made the governor of Orissa In the 5th year, he was appointed, while absent from the Court, as the governor 1 of Kashmir Khwājagī Muhammad Husain, his uncle, was sent off there so that he might take charge of the country till Hāshim Khān's arrival In the end of the same year he came to the Court and was sent 2 off to Kashmir His son is Muhammad Qāsım Khān ³ Mīr Ātish Shāh Jahānī, of whom an account has been given separately

HAYĀT KHĀN

(Vol I, pp 583, 584)

He was the Superintendent of the still-room (Abdarkhāna) and head of the domestic servants (khidmatgārān) of Shāh Jahān He was much trusted and made an intimate, and continually admitted to the Presence For a long time he was the Superintendent of the palace (Daulatkhāna) an office which was only given to reliable men, and also Superintendent of the chēlās (slaves) and of the pages (khwāssān) Probably he is the same Hayāt Khān 4 who was Superintendent of the still-room in the time of Jahangir, and who, on the day of the tiger-hunt when Ani Rai Singhdalan displayed great valour, and Prince Shāh Jahān helped him and struck the tiger with his sword, was also in attendance on the King's In the 6th year of Shāh Jahān's reign, he obtained the rank of 800 with 200 horse, and in the 15th of 1,000 with 200 horse 18th year, he was granted an increase of 500 with 200 horse, and in the 19th, an increase of 500 with 200 horse and so attained the rank of 2,000 with 600 horse Afterwards he was made the Superintendent of mace-bearers and of Ahadi⁵ officers In the 20th year, he had an increase

⁵ Warrant Officers in Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} ' $\bar{\imath}n$, I (2nd edn), pp 20, note 1, 260, but gentleman troopers of Banars Prasad, op cit, p 289, appears to be more appropriate

¹ Ghā'ıbāna meaning that the appointment was conferred on him while he was away in Orīssa

² It is curious that neither the Maāthir nor Blochmann makes any mention of Hāshm's disastrous campaign in Tibet It is also not mentioned in the Tūzuk, but see Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 281 and Khāfī Khān I, p 547

3 Maāthir-ul-Umarā, III, pp 95-99

4 Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 493 Jahāngīr was hunting with chitās in pargana Bārī It was Anūp who thrust his hand into the tigei's mouth Jahāngīr gave him the title of Anī Rāi Singhdalan (the hon-cleaver), loc cit, p 495 There is the variant Āhamā in yon souled Havāt Vhān also gave the tige come blows. Son Tūzuka Ahanrāi iron-souled Hayāt Khān also gave the tiger some blows See Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī, Rogers and Beveridge's translation I, pp 185-188, and Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 12, 13 of 200 horse, and afterwards was made the Superintendent of the grooms (mardum-1-jilau), and had an increase of 200 horse and had an office of 2,000 with 1,000 horse After that he got an increase of 500 personality, and, in the 21st year he had another increase of 500 and a rank of 3,000 with 1,000 horse In the 23rd year, he had an increase of 200 horse, and, in the 24th year, he received a flag, and afterwards had an increase of 300 horse and so attained the rank of 3,000 with 1,500 horse 29th year, he got a drum, and, in the 30th year, when he was 70 years of age, he, on account of paralysis, was relieved from attendance The King, out of regard for his servants, gave him villages worth 20 lacs of dams in the neighbourhood of the Capital as Sayurghāl 1, with succession to his son and grandson The office of waiting on the King was transferred to others In the 31st year, on 27 Sha'ban 1068 (19th May, 1658 AD), he died in the city (Delhi)

(SAIYID) HIDĀYAT ULLĀH SADR

(Vol II, pp 456, 457)

He was the son of Saiyid Ahmad Qadiri, who was the Chief Sadr 2 in the time of Jahangir In the 20th year of the reign of Shah Jahan when the Sadi-us-Sudūr Saiyid Jalāl died, and as the good qualities of Hıdāyat Ullāh, who was the Dīvān of Qandahār, had been repeatedly brought to the notice of the King, he received the rank of 1,000 with 100 horse and was summoned to the Court In the 21st year, he was admitted to an audience and received the robe of the Sadarat and an increase of 500 with 100 horse. In the 23rd year, he had an increase of In the 26th year, his rank was 2,500 with 200 horse battle of Sāmūgarh when Aurangzīb's army arrived 3 in the neighbourhood of the Capital, he, in accordance with orders (from Shāh Jahān), came twice with Fādil Khān Mīr-i-Sāmān before Aurangzīb He produced a royal letter and a sword called 'Alamgin which had been given (to Aurangzīb by Shāh Jahān), and communicated a verbal message (from Shāh Jahān) In the early part of the reign (of Aurangzīb) the Sadārat was taken 4 from him and transferred to Mīrak Shaikh Haravī He for some years remained in retirement and then died

Himmat Khān Mīr 'Īsā

(Vol III, pp 946-949)

He was the heir of Islām Khān Badakhshī From his very early years he was a favourite of Aurangzīb He was an aggregate of talents and perfections, and a paragon of good qualities He was always a patron of the learned men He was of a gentle disposition and a wellwisher of humanity The erudite and the talented of every quarter came over to him and were duly rewarded He was a poet, and (this couplet) is his

¹ See Blochmann, op cit, pp 278-281 These were hereditary grants of land ² For a detailed discussion of Sadr see Ibn Hasan, Central Structure of the Mughal Empire, pp 254-288

3 'Alamgīrnāma, p 112

4 Loc cit, p 473 This occurred in the fourth year

Verse

Save the thorn that Majnun had in his heart, The desert held no thorn of madness

He enjoyed the influence and respect which his father had enjoyed during the time when Aurangzīb was a Prince After the battle with Jaswant he was raised to the lank of 2,000, and had the title of Himmat Khān which his father also had for a time. When in the 6th year his father was made governor of Agra, he became the faujdar of the district, and 500 of his 1,000 horse were two-horse and three-horse father's death he came to the Court and was made Qūrbēgī (in charge of royal standards) In the 9th year he was made the Superintendent of mace-bearers and in the 12th year Superintendent of the Dīvān-1-Khāss Afterwards he had the rank of 3,000, and was made the 3rd Bakhshī In the 14th year, he was exalted to the post of the 2nd Bakhshī in succession to Asad Khān, and in the 15th year he became faugdār of Agra in In the 17th year, at the time when the succession to Sarbuland Khān King went to Hasan Abdal, he was made the Superintendent of the In the 19th year he was made the governor of Allahābād in succession to Hasan 'Alī Khān, and received a present of a lac of rupees In the 23rd year, he did homage at Ajmer and took leave at Udaipūr and went to his lands In the same year Sarbuland Khān Mīr Bakhshī died, and Himmat Khan was sent for On 10th Shawwal of the 24th year (4th November, 1680 AD) he was made in Ajmēr the 1st Bakhshī, and received a gold-embroidered robe of honour (Khil'at dopatta-Y-zarrīn) When Prince Akbai joined with the Rathors and some leaders of the army and came near his father's camp with the intention of fighting with him—who had not more than 10,000 horse in attendance— Aurangzīb left Himmat Khān, who had been struck with illness, in charge of Ajmer, and marched out of the city On 5th Muhariam 1002 A.H (16th January, 1681 AD.), the Khan died He was one of the worthies of the age and emment among his contemporaries, and was eloquent in He also had a taste for Hindī and was well versed in it verse and prose His pen-name was Milan His sons were Muhammad Masih Murid Khān and Ruh Ullāh Nēknām Khān The first, in the 26th year, was made Mīn Tuzuk², and afterwards had the title of Khānazād Khān, and in the 28th year was made the Superintendent of the stables in succession After that he was the governor of the citadel of to Salābat Khān Aurangābād, and at last was the governor of the fort of Sūrat The other held the rank of 1,000 and was the Bakhshī of the army of Prince Bīdār Bakht

HIMMAT KHAN MUHAMMAD HASAN AND SIPAHDAR KHAN MUHAMMAD MUHSIN

(Vol III, pp 949–951)

They were the sons of Khān Jahān Bahādur Kōkaltāsh At first they had suitable ranks and the title of Khān Afterwards, the first had

¹ Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 198

² Banarsı Prasad, History of Shahjahan, p 273.

the title of Muzaffar Khan, and the second the title of Nasīrī Khan the 27th year of Aulangzib's reign, when a report of the Khān Jahān was laid before the King to the effect, that the Mahrattas had assembled on the bank of the Kistnā with evil intentions, and that he had marched thirty los and attacked them and killed and made pisoners of a great many, an approving farman was sent to him, and his relatives received increase of rank and also titles Among them Muzaffar Khan received the title of Himmat Khān and Nasīrī Khān that of Sipahdār Khān 29th 2 year, the first received a robe of honour, a sword and an elephant, and was sent off to Bījāpūr After Bījāpūr was taken, he, in the 30th year, received a horse with decorated trappings, the rank of 2,500 with 2,200 horse, the title of Bahādur and the gift of 80 lacs of dāms, and was put ın charge of Allahābād In the 33rd year, when Khān Jahān Kōkaltāsh was made the governor of Allahābād, Muzaffar Khān was appointed governor of Oudh and fauidar of Gorakhpur In the 34th year, he was again appointed to Allahabad, and afterwards was summoned to the Court In the 37th year, he waited upon the King, and was sent off to the fort of Parnāla to convey the family 3 of Sultān Mu'ızz-ud-Din (to him) In the 39th year, when Kuh Ullah Khan and others were defeated by the Mahratta leader, Santā Ghorpare 4 (in Ghorpara), as is detailed in the biography of Qāsim Khān Kirmānī (Text, III, pp 123-126), Muzaffar Khān in accordance with orders, made a rapid march and engaged Santā A great battle took place and though he defeated the foe, a bullet struck him in the chest and he was killed 5 in 1106 A H

The second (Sipahdar Khan) was appointed in the 30th year to the government of the Deccan 6 in succession to Mukarram Khān, and in the 37th year to Allahābād On the death 7 of Buzurg Ummīd Khān, the faujdār of Jaunpur was put in his charge, and his rank became 3,000 with 3,000 horse, and he was honoured with the gift of a kror of dams the 41st year he was removed from there

The author of the Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī writes,8 that in the 48th year Sıpahdār Khān, the governor of Allahābād, received, as a reward for his chastisement of Mahābat, a landholder of Jaunpūr, the rank of 4,000 with 3,500 horse, and that in the 49th year he had ¹⁰ an increase of 1,000 personal ($dh\bar{a}t$) From this it appears that he became

¹ Maāthır-ı-'Ālamgīrī, p 241 The name of the younger son is given there as Nasrat Khān who had the title of Sipahdār Khan

² In the text only 9th, but it appears from the Maāthīr-i-'Ālamgīrī p 273, that this is a mistake for 29th
³ In Maāthīr-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 360, also the word used is متعلقان, but Mu'izz-ud-Dīn is designated as Prince instead of Sultān

⁴ Text wrongly represents Ghörpare as the name of the battlefield Elliot, VII, p 355, and Khānfī Khān, II, p 428 He is the famous general Santaji Ghorpade of Kincaid and Parasnis, History of Maratha People, pp 166, 167

Ghorpade of Kincald and Parasnis, History of Maratha People, pp 166, 167

⁵ Maāthir-i 'Ālamgīrī, p 379, where the year of his death is given as 1107 A H,

Khāfī Khān, II, p 434 The date 1106 A H is incorrect as Himmat Khān was killed in 1696 A D (=1107 A H), see Kincald and Parasnis, op cit, p 167 and Cambridge History of India, IV, pp 294, 295

⁶ Maāthir i 'Ālamgīrī, p 283, has Lāhōre

⁷ Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 365

⁸ Maāthir i-'Ālamgīrī, p 481

⁹ 3,000 in Maāthir i-'Ālamgīrī, p 481

10 Maāthir i-'Ālamgīrī, p 496

¹⁰ Maāthir i-'Ālamgīrī, p 496

the governor of Allahābād a second time After the death of Aurangzīb and in the reign of Bahādur Shāh he received the title of Khān Jahān 'Izz-ud-Daula Bahādui Probably in the 3rd 1 year of the reign he was made the governor of Bengāl The date of his death is not known There were memorials of him in Aurangābād near the Delhī gate a lofty building, and opposite to it a bath (Hammam) of exquisite purity, but now they are in ruins

(SAIYID) HIZBR KHĀN

(Vol II, pp 415, 416)

He was one of the Saiyids of Baiah In the 8th year of the reign of Jahangii he was appointed along with Prince Khuiram to the expedition against Rānā Amar Singh In the 13th year, his rank was 1,000 with 400 horse, and in the 18th year he was sent with Sultan Parviz in pursuit of Shāh Jahān In the year of Jahāngīr's death he was in attendance on Yamin-ud-Daula and was present at the battle with Shahriyār ² At the end of the reign he had the rank of 3,000 with 2,000 horse In the first year of Shāh Jahān's reign, he received his former rank and went with Mahābat Khān to Kābul as Nadhi Muḥammad, the ruler of Balkh, was creating a disturbance there In the third year, when the King was encamped in the Deccan, he went with Yamin-ud-Daula to Bālāghāt and distinguished himself In the 11th year, he went with Khān Daurān Nasrat Jang to Kābul where Sultān Shujā' had stayed to protect the fort of Qandahār in case of a probability that Shāh Safī, the King of Persia, might invade that place At this time, corresponding to 1047 AH (1637-38 AD) he died His son, Saiyid Zabardast, had in the 30th year the rank of 800 with 400 horse

HIZBR 3 KHĀN, SON OF ILĀHVARDĪ KHĀN.

(Vol III, p 946)

In the reign of Aurangzib he was, in the 7th year, the governor of the fort of Rohtās Afterwards he was faujdār of Benāres in succession to Arslan Khan, his brother, and his rank was 1,500 with 700 horse the 18th year, 1085 AH, he was the thanadar 4 of Jagdalak and was killed there, with his son, in a battle with the Afghans

¹ According to Khāfī Khān, II, p 707, 'Izz-ud-Daula—who is there called Khān-Khānān and not Khān Jahān—was made the governor of Bengāl in succession to Farrukh-siyar in the fifth year of Bahādur Shāh's reign corresponding to 1122 A H (1710 AD) Sipahdar alias 'Izz-ud-Daula is not mentioned in Stewart or in the Rıyād-us-Salātīn among the governors of Bengāl

² Battle about three miles from Lāhōre where Āsaf Khān defeated Shahriyār's army, see Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahyahan, p 58

3 Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, p 82

4 Op cit, pp 145 Hizbar is frequently mentioned in the Ālamgīrnāma It was Rohtās in Bihār of which he was the governor, p 360 In Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, p 146, it is stated that the disaster was reported on Jumāda II, 1086 AH, so that apparently it occurred early in August 1676 AD The place of the disaster is not mentioned

HÖSHDÄR KHÄN MIR HÖSHDÄR (Vol III, pp 943-946)

He was the son of Multafat Khān who was called A'zam Khān 'Ālamgīrī In the 27th year of Shāh Jahān's reign, he was appointed, in succession to his uncle Muftkhr Khān Khān Zamān, Dārōgha of the Deccan artillery His rank was 900 with 400 horse At the end of the reign his rank was 1.000 with 600 horse When the victorious banners of Aurangzīb, the Viceroy of the Deccan proceeded towards Agra and reached Burhanpur, Hōshdār's rank was raised to 1,500 with 700 horse, and he was granted the title of Khān. In all the conflicts he was attached to Aurangzīb's stirrups When his father 1 died on the day of the battle with Dārā Shikōh from the heat of the air, the King increased his rank and made him the Superintendent of the Ghuslkhana, and he carried on the duties of this office in an efficient manner After the battle with Shujā' his rank became 3,000 with 2,000 horse In the 5th year, it became 4,000 with 3,000 horse When at this time the King desired to go to Kashmīr, Hōshdār Khān was made governor of Delhī In the 6th year, he was made governor of Agra on the death of Islām Khān Badakhshī, and, in the 8th year, he was also made fauydār of the adjoining territory and received an increase of 1,000 horse. As his good service and strict religious principles were approved by the King, he long governed Agra, and, in the 14th year, he was made the governor of Khāndēsh 15th year (1082 ÅH), he died at Burhanpur He was the best shot, with a gun, of the age, and was for a time the instructor of Prince Muhammad A'zam (as constant practice is necessary for skill) His sons, Kämgär and Ja'far,2 came and kissed the threshold after their father's death and were received with favour The first was distinguished for his courage, and devotion to military duty. His pillow and counterpane were never without his coat of Mail. He had a body of companions whom he called "The Forty" (Chihal-tan). In the pride of his being a houseborn servant he was often guilty of presumption, and was, therefore, censured. In the 23rd year, when Ajmēr was the seat of royalty, he was, for some reason, removed 4 from his rank and he gave 5 himself four wounds in the belly with a degree. The King restored him to forever a wounds in the belly with a dagger The King restored him to favour in view of the regard he had for the houseborn ones. He was very athletic, and wonderful stories are narrated about him His fight with a crocodile when he was the governor of the fort of Chunār is well known He died while he was governor of the fort of Rā'isīn in Mālwa He left no descendants

(AMIR-UL-UMARĀ, SAIYID) HUSAIN 'ALĪ KHĀN (Vol I, pp 321–338)

He was the younger brother of Qutb-ul-Mulk 'Abdullah Khan, an account of whose life has been given in its place (Text, III, pp 130-140)

¹ He died of exhaustion after the victory of Sāmūgarh in 1658

² Maāthir i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 114
3 Chihaltah or forty folds is a name for a doublet
1 Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 156
5 Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 192 Apparently he wounded himself some four years after his dismissal

Outb-ul-Mulk was the Prime Minister of Muhammad Farrukh-siyar and Saiyid Husam 'Alī was the Amīr-ul-Umarā They belonged to the great family of the Saiyids of Bārah, and were of the noblest rank in India The two brothers were the Farqadain (the two Calves) stars of the heaven of Sayıdship, and the twin lights of the sphere of Amīrship They were adoined with many sublime virtues and charming qualities, especially courage and generosity, in both of which they were pre-eminent From the beginning of their rise to its culmination they led ideal lives and had a good reputation. By watering India with justice and goodness they made it the envy of eternal paradise. But in the latter days of their power they tood the path of error and fastened upon themselves the stain of an evil name, which will last till the day of judgment In the opinion of just persons, however, their design in deposing the Emperor (Farrukh-siyar) was merely to preserve their own lives and honour They had throughout their lives even sacrificed their lives and fulfilled the requirements of loyalty The Emperor shut his eyes to their claims and designed to ruin them He had this idea as long as life lasted, and at last this weak notion destroyed the sovereignty and overthrew the prosperity of the Emperor and of both the Saiyids

Qādī ² Shihāb-ud-Dīn the prince of the 'Ulamā—May his grave be holy!—says with regard to the virtues of Saiyids that the true notes of Saiyidship are the demeanour (khulq) of Muhammad, the generosity of Hāshim ³ and the courage of Haidar A true Saiyid must possess all these qualities. Then if by chance and by reason of the carnal spirit, transgressions occur, there should, at the end, be some motive which should lead to final deliverance. There is an illustration of these words in the fates of the two brothers, for they departed from this world as victims, and their countenances were reddened by the hue of martyrdom. The real name of Qutb-ul-Mulk was Hasan ⁴ 'Alī, and that of the Amīr-ul-Umarā Husain ⁴ 'Alī, the first was martyred by being poisoned, while the martyrdom of the second was effected by a dagger

Though the Amīr-ul-Umarā was the younger brother, he in generosity, courage, magnanimity, gravity and modesty was superior to Qutb-ul-Mulk In the time of Aurangzīb he was the governor of Rantanpūr (Ranthambhōr) and at the close of the reign he was fauydār of Hindūn ⁵ Biyāna When his brother, after the death of Aurangzīb, was encompassed with favours by Shāh 'Ālam at Lāhōre, Saiyid Husain 'Alī Khān entered the service of the King with a suitable force at Delhī, and in the battle with Muḥammad A'zam Shāh did great deeds and was

 $^{^1}$ See Blochmann's translation of the $\bar{A}^2\tilde{t}n$, I (2nd edn), pp 425-428, where a doubt is expressed on the question of their lineage

² The remark comes from Khāfī Khān, II, p 944, where Shihāb-ud-Dīn is called Daulatābādī, and his book the Bahr Mawwāj is a commentary on the Qur'ān

³ Muhammad's great grandfather who was renowned for his liberality Haidan is a name of 'Alī

⁴ These names are mentioned on account of the manner of the death of Hasan and Husain, the Prophet's grandchildren Hasan was poisoned by his wife, and Husain was killed on the plain of Karbalā Similarly the elder Saiyid Qutb-ul-Mulk, whose real name was Hasan 'Alī, was poisoned by the orders of Muhammad Shāh, and Husain 'Alī, the younger Saiyid, whose title was Amīr-ul-Umarā, was killed by an assassin

⁵ In the Agra division, see Khāfī Khān, II, p 902 Hindūn is twelve kos SSW of Biyāna (Tiefenthaler) promoted to a commission of 3,000 and given a drum, and by the influence of Prince 'Azīm-ush-Shān was made Nā'ib Sūbadāi of Patna the end of the reign of Bahādur Shāh, the governorship of Bengāl was transferred to Sipahdār Khān, known as 'Izz-ud-Daula Khān Jahān Bahādur in place of Prince 'Azīm-ush-Shān Muhammad Farrukh-siyar, the heir of 'Azīm-ush-Shan, who was his father's deputy in Bengāl,i was summoned to the Presence and came to Patna As for a long time he had been independent, and did not enjoy with his father and grandfather the same favours as his brothers, he felt it disagreeable and repulsive to go to the Presence, and put off the visit under the pretext 2 of want of funds Meanwhile Shāh 'Ālam died, and Muḥammad Fairukhsiyar lead the Khutba and struck coins in the name of his father, and started to collect men. Then came the news that his father had been killed, and in Rabī' I, 1123 A H (Apiil, 1711 A D) he himself ascended the throne He won over by promises of favours Saiyid Husain 'Alī Khān, Nāzīm of Patna, and made him his companion, and by this means Saryid Hasan 'Alī Khān, Nāzīm of Allahābād, also took his side short time a large army was collected, but from want of funds, until Agra was reached, he did not have more than 12,000 cavalry Husain 'Alī Khān on the day of the battle, which took place with Jahāndāi Shāh, near Agra, was opposed, along with Hasan Beg Safshikan Khan, the Nā'ıb Sūbadāı of Orīssa, and Zam-ud-Dīn Khān, son of Bahāduı Khān Röhila, to Dhūlfaqār Khān, who had taken up a position with many guns and culverins He urged on the cavalry and attacked the line of guns When he saw that the battle was going against him, he, in accordance with the practice of the Indian soldiers, dismounted,³ and fell to the ground and fainted because of his wounds The other two leaders and the Jama'dar were slain After the victory Husain 'Alī Khān obtained 4 the title of Amii-ul-Umaiā Fīrūz Jang, the iank of 7,000 with 7,000 horse, and the post of Min Bakhshi In the second year he was sent with a large army to chastise Ajīt Singh Rāthōr, who was behaving rebelliously in his native country. Up to Mitha 5 he devastated the country. The Rāja was terrified and retired via Bīkānīr to strongly defended country This is what they say about the Amīi-ul-Umarā's orders in this expedition that as the villages of Ajīt Singh and Jai Singh were intermixed, and the peasants of the first fled in terror, he directed the plunderers to sack the deserted villages and set fire to them, but not to injure the Ajīt Singh's peasantry saw this, and came forward and inhabited ones made peace through the peasantry of Jar Singh Thereupon Sazāwals were appointed to make the plunderers extinguish the flames, and return what had been plundered This was done without delay Certain reliable persons, who examined the villagers, unanimously declared that they sustained no injury except that caused by arson ⁶ When the Rāja saw his own loss, he reflected on the final issue, and sent

¹ Farrukh sıyar was at Rājmahal

² In Siyar-ul-Muta'akhkhirīn it is stated He pleaded that his wife was about to be confined, and that the rams were at hand He came to Patna from Rājmahal From his elephant, see Khāfī Khān, II, pp 702 and 722

4 Khāfī Khān, II, p 728

⁵ Mairtha in Irvine, Later Mughals (Sarkar edn.), I, p. 288

⁶ See Irvine, The Later Mughals in the Journal Asiat Soc Bengal, p 47 (1903). and Later Mughals (Sarkar edn), I, p 289 responsible agents with presents, and agreed to send Kunwai Abhai Singh, his eldest son, to the Court, and give his daughter—called the Dola1 (bride?) in the language of the country—to the King, and begged pardon for his offences. As Mīi Jumla was at the Court and had control of the King's signature and gave commissions and fiefs to whoever came to him. and as every day the King became more and more alienated from the Saiyids, the Amīi-ul-Umaiā accepted the proposal of peace and took the Kunwai with him, and hastily returned He left a body of troops in order that the bilde might be brought later on. In this journey a wonderful accident occurred

They say that when the Amīr-ul-Umarā came within sixteen kos of Mutha, the Raja's confidential agent arrived with 1,500 cavalry to carry out the peace terms, and they wanted to encamp As it was reported that their statements were not true, and that they were preparing some stratagem so that the Rāja might get away with his baggage, Husain 'Alī Khān sent a message that if the peace was a reality, they should agree to be made pisoners, and put in chains until the arrival of the Prince. They at first, out of regard for their honour, were unwilling to do this, but at last agreed The Amīi-ul-Umarā put chains on four influential men and made them over to the leading jama'dārs When the jama'dārs came out of the Dīvānkhāna (hall of audience) with their prisoners, the rabble of the camp, on seeing the state of things, rushed to their tents and a fight took place Though men were sent to repulse them, yet the vagabonds in a twinkling of an eye destroyed life and The Amīr-ul-Umaiā ieleased the four men, and begged their forgiveness They too were convinced that this mischief had taken place without the Amū-ul-Umarā's wish and wrote to this effect to the Rāja But he had already fled on hearing of what had occurred The Amīr-ul-Umarā was helpless and hastened to Mutha, and stayed there till peace had been restored After he arrived at Delhi the question of the government of the Deccan came up Husain 'Alī Khān wished that he should remain at the Court, and that the deputyship should be given to Dā'ud Khān according to the precedent of Dhulfaqai Khān The King, at the advice of his intriguing counsellors, did not agree to this. The dispute lasted a long time At last 2 it was agreed that Mir Jumla should at first go to the government of Patna, and that after that Amīr-ul-Umarā, who had charge of the appointing and removing of all public servants in the Deccan, should take leave Accordingly in the 4th year, 1127 A H he set off for the Deccan At the time of taking leave he represented to the King that if, in his absence, Mir Jumla should come to the Court, or if any difference was made in the position of Qutb-ul-Mulk, he (the King) should understand that he would come back in the space of twenty days

(Sarkar edn), I, p 290 ² Khāfī Khān, II, p 741 See also Irvine, Later Mughals (Sarkar edn), I, pp 301-303

¹ Dulhā means a bridegroom in Hindustānī and dulhin means a bride was afterwards killed by his son Abhai According to Irvine, loc cit, p 49, dolah is a Hindī word for an informal marriage The girl's name was Bāi Indar Kunwar $D\bar{o}l\bar{a}$ or $D\bar{o}l\bar{i}$ is given in Wilson's Glossary as meaning a swing or sedan chair, and also as the case when a woman of inferior rank is married to a man of superior rank. was afterwards killed by his son Abhai rank She is carried home privately without any ceremonial or procession. It was perhaps as much out of deference to Rājpūt feelings as of the rank of Farrukhsiyar that the marriage received the name of Dōla See also Irvine, Later Mughals

When he reached Mālwa, Rāja Jai Singh Siwā'ī, the governor, retired, so that there should not be an interview The Amīr-ul-Umarā wrote to the King, "If this movement is in accordance with an intimation (from you), let it be ordered that I return from this place Otherwise Dā'ūd Khān will behave in the same way to-morrow" In the beginning of the reign the Saiyids had been the means of saving the life of Dā'ūd Khān and recently the Amīr-ul-Umarā had procured for him from the King the deputy governorship of Burhānpūr, and he had come from Gujarāt and was established there In answer to Amīr-ul-Umarā's report an order came saying that with regard to the misbehaviour of Jai Singh, he (Amīr-ul-Umarā) had been invested with the power of appointing or dismissing him What likelihood was there that Dā'ūd Khān would behave in a similar manner? If he does, he should send him to the Court But from pusillanimity and the meanness of disposition, the King, through Khān Daurān, secretly instigated Dā'ūd Khān to oppose Amīr-ul-Umarā When the latter crossed the Narbadā it was evident that Dā'ūd Khān had severed the thread of amity, and had no intention of coming for an interview Husain 'Alī attempted to reform him, and, as has been related in the biography of Da'ud Khan 1, sent messages to him The purport 2 of these messages was that an interview was necessary for concord, but that if he was disposed to join the opposition, he should proceed to the Court, and he (Amīr-ul-Umarā) would not prevent his doing so Dā'ūd Khān advanced the foot of ignorance and brought the affair to a battle on 11th Ramadan (10th August, 1715 AD), an engagement took place near the city (Burhānpūr) Though Dā'ūd Khān had been severely wounded by a musket-ball, he faced the Amīr-ul-Umarā and was killed After this victory, which inspired terror into the hearts of the leading rebels of the Deccan, Amīr-ul-Umarā made Aurangābād his headquarters and appointed Dhūlfaqār Bēg Bakhshī to chastise Khāndī Dharbaray,³ the general of Rāja Sāhū, who had built forts in Khāndēsh and established thānas, and had disturbed the country by his demands of Chauth and had plundered the caravans He met the robbers in the pargana of Bhamber,4 and fought with them The Mahrattas following their rule dispersed after a brief fight and fled. The army, which had not seen a Deccan-battle, and was not acquainted with the crooked ways of the Mahrattas, pursued them, rejoicing, when suddenly those rascals made such a hot attack that Dhulfaqar Beg, who had rashly advanced too far, was killed with a number of others, while the rest of the army fled Though Saif-ud-Dīn 5 'Alī Khān and Rāja Muḥkam Singh were appointed to punish that contentious tribe and hastened to the

Maāthir ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 63-68, Beveridge's translation, pp 458-462
Khāfī Khān, II, p 751 See also Siyar-ul-Muta'akhkhirīn, Calcutta reprint I, p 92 et seq In Khāfī Khān the date is given as the beginning of Ramadān, while in Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, p 303, it is "8th Ramzan 1127 H (6th September, 1715)"
3 Grant Duff (1921 edn), I, p 348, has Khunde Rao Dharbaray and Khande Rāo Dābhāde in the Cambridge History of India, IV, p 338 In the text it is Khandū Dihāriya, see Khāfī Khān, II, p 778 where it is Khandū Pahāriya
4 In the text Bhāner, but apparently the place is the Bhambeir of Grant Duff's Map, N N W of Aurangābād and S E of Nundoorbār See Jarret's translation of Ā'īn, II, p 208 It was in the Sarkār Nadarbār
5 A younger brother of Husain 'Alī

port of Sūrat, and afterwards Muhkam 1 Singh went as far as Satāra, which was Sāhū's home 2 and abode, and omitted nothing in the way of plundering, yet the defeat was not remedied in a manner worthy of the Amīr-ul-Umarā's dignity and position If we look only to apparent circumstances, namely, that he had ample treasure, a large army, a lofty mind, and inborn courage, the vagiant handful of Mahrattas should have been cuffed, and their account settled by drubbings, but, as the Emperoi, at the instigation of the destroyers of the dominion, himself encouraged opposition to the Amīr-ul-Umarā—as in the instance of Dā'ūd Khān—and secretly and openly intrigued with the leaders of the Deccan, and even with Řāja Sāhū Bhonsle, who had forcibly become the Rāja of the Deccan, and as in Delhī there were every day fresh disagreements with Qutb-ul-Mulk so that every moment cries of "Seize him and kill him" were heard, and he in his loneliness and alarm was writing letters to his brother and pressing him to come, the Amīr-ul-Umarā was helpless, and, therefore, joined alien foes against the household ones In 1130 AH, he, through the intermediation of Shankrājī Malhār and Muhammad Anwai Khān of Buihānpūr, made peace with Rāja Sāhū The terms were that in consideration of abstaining from attacking and plundering the country, and troubling the routes and highways, and keeping up 15,000 cavalry for the Nāzim, sanads were given for the Chauth 3 and Dēshmukhī of the six provinces of the Deccan Husain 'Ali's own seal was affixed to the sanads, and the revenues (tankhwāh) of the Könkan (Concan) and other territories, which Sāhū called his old kingdom, were made over to him and his agents were made co-partners and put into Though he (Husain 'Alī), in view of the situation at the time, thought that this trafficking was to his advantage, but considering the final outcome, it resulted in a great loss He drew the black mark of a bad name over his record for a succession of epochs Though the desertion of religion and the abasement of Islām—Godforbid that such a thing should happen !--were not contemplated by Husain 'Alī in this transaction, yet the consequence was that the power of the infidels was increased tenfold, and every day they raised their heads higher and higher sighted arbitrator perceives that in this shameful business, fortune and the state of the times had a great share As the peace with the Mahrattas and the making of treaties and agreements with them and admitting them to fellowship, and the resentment of the Emperor with Qutb-ul-Mulk were all motives for the Amīr-ul-Umarā's removing from the Deccan, and as his approach to Upper India was also bruited abroad, the Emperor, from a vain thought and in order to obstruct his coming, sent off Muhammad Amin Khān Chin Bahādur on the pretext that he should settle Mālwa which lay on the road from the Deccan Afterwards, as by the contrivances of I'tiqad Khan, the game of deceit was renewed between the Emperor and his minister, the former sent Ikhlas Khan—who, it was said, was held in regard by both the brothers—to soothe Husain 'Alī and to restrain him from coming to the Court The Amīr-ul-Umarā,

¹ Maokoob Sing of Grant-Duff, I, p 333 Khāfī Khān, II, p 779, has Muhkam ² Son of Sambhājī and grandson of Shivājī ³ Or Sardēshmukhī, 10 p c on the collections of the six provinces, vide Khāfī Khān, II, p 784 See also Grant-Duff (1921 edn), p 334, Ranade, Rise of the Maratha Power (1900), p 192, Cambridge History of India, IV, p 338, and S Sen, Administrative System of the Marathas (1925), pp 111-118

who had firmly resolved on coming, stopped on hearing of the new friendship between the Emperor and his minister, and waited for further When he heard that there had been a fresh disagreement, he, on 1st Muharram, 1131 AH (24th November, 1718 AD) left Aurangabad in great pomp with the army of the Deccan and with the Mahrattas He took with him Mu'in-ud-Din, a person of obscure origin who was represented to be a son of Prince Akbar, and wrote to the Emperor along with expressions of loyalty and fidelity that "he (Prince Akbar's son) had raised a commotion in Rāja Sāhū's territory (ta'aluqa) and been imprisoned, I sent for him As caution and circumspection are proper in such matters, I am bringing him myself to the Court '. About the end of Rabī' I,2 Husam 'Alī, encamped at Delhī near Fīrūz Shāh's Lāt Contrary to the etiquette 3 he beat his drums, and then entered his tent He several times repeated in a loud voice that he had left the Emperoi's Afterwards, when through the intervention of Qutb-ul-Mulk there were some negotiations and some conditions and promises were laid down, he, on 5th Rabī' II, waited upon the Emperor, and enumerated his grievances He was received with favour and allowed to depart on the 8th he mounted (his horse or elephant) with the intimation that he intended to make over the fictitious prince, and entered the house of Shāyısta Khān, which had been given to him by the Emperor Qutb-ul-Mulk and the Mahārāja (Ajīt Singh) hastened to arrange about the fort and allowed no one to enter it As the letting slip 4 of an opportunity may be interpreted as bad planning and as the shutting of one's eyes to such a chance would be bidding farewell to life and honour, they arranged a great coup, and entered upon a great enterprise, as has been specially described in the biography of Qutb-ul-Mulk (Text, III, pp 135, 136) Two months had not elapsed when Nēkū-sıyaı,5 the son of Muhammad Akbar—who was imprisoned in the Agra fort—with the concurrence of the attendants there raised the standard of opposition Amīi-ul-Umarā came on the wings of swiftness and besieged the fort for three months and some days, and by the contrivance of the officers of the guards (Ahshām) 6 got possession 7 of the fort and seized the property there When Qutb-ul-Mulk had an interview at Fathpui with Raja Jai Singh Siwā'i—who had come from Amber to offer opposition—the Amīr-ul-Umarā also went there After the Rāja had made peace between the brothers, there arose disputes about the goods in Agia (fort), and angry

² According to the Cambridge History of India, IV, p 338, the date of arrival outside Delhi was 16th February, 1719

¹ Prince Akbar was the rebel son of Aurangzīb He fled to the Mahrattas and afterwards to Persia where he lived till his death For Mu'in-ud-Dīn, see Khāfī Khān, II, pp 793, 795, 807, and Grant-Duff (1921 edn), I, p 337, note 2, and Irvine The Later Mughals in Journ Asiat Soc Bengal for 1904, p 319, and Irvine's Later Mughals, op cit, I, p 357

³ This was one of the prerogatives of the Emperor, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar,

Mughal Administration, p 139

4 Khāfī Khān, II, pp 808, 809

5 This was not the son who had been with the Mahrattas see Elliot, VII, pp 308, 408 and Khāfī Khān, II, p 825, etc He had been imprisoned for forty years This affair took place after Farrukh-siyar's deposition See Siyar-ul-Muta'akhkhirin, Calcutta reprint, I, p 144, and Irvine's Later Mughals, (Sarkar edn), I, pp 409-412

⁶ For Ahshām see Irvine, Army of the Indian Moghuls, p 160 ⁷ Khāfī Khān, II, p 836 See also Irvine's Later Mughals, I, pp 422-426 and bitter messages were sent on both sides But at last, by the tact of Rāja 1 Ratan Chand, an open rupture was avoided With much disgust (on the part of Husain 'Alī) a small 2 portion of the property fell to the share of Qutb-ul-Mulk As it was the design of the incomparable Deity-Whose counsels who can fathom?-that each of the brothers should wet his lips with the wine of success and then should quaff the dregs of saline water of failure, and that after having hastened some way towards fortune they should tread the path of failure, a great neglect, or a gross mistake was committed in that when after such troubles so great a thing had been brought to them by the wheel of Heaven they did not compromise with one another and mount the throne of India! one had submitted to the other, or if the Amīr-ul-Umarā, who was universally renowned for loftiness of soul, majesty, genius and transcendent courage had got rid of Qutb-ul-Mulk and had seated himself on the throne of sovereignty, it is probable that he would have been successful, and that dominion would have long remained in his family in the same way as ancient histories narrate of other personalities! In fine, in consequence of the disturbance caused by Chabila 3 Rām and Girdhar Bahādui, the Amīr-ul-Umarā ieturned from Fathpūi to Agra with the King Muhammad Shāh and Qutb-ul-Mulk and remained there until the affair was settled When Girdhar Bahādui, after the death of Chabila Rām, was scratching the head of presumption, Haidar Qulī Khān and Muhammad Khān Bangash were appointed, and by the intervention of Rāja Ratan Chand a peace was made and they were freed from apprehensions from that quarter (Girdhar) At this time Heaven drew a new design on the page of Fortune Nızām-ul-Mulk Bahādur Fath Jang (Asaf Jah) who, for his excellent planning, and strength of mind was a favourite officer of Aulangzib, showed an inclination to rebel against the Saivids, and marched rapidly to the Deccan time Dılāwar Khān, the Bakhshī of Amīr-ul-Umarā, who had followed him with a well-equipped force, and 'Alam 'Alī Khān, the brother's son and adopted son of Husain 'Alī Khān, who had been made the Nā'ib Sūbadār of the Deccan, and who with a Mahratta army and his own force had gone to encounter Nızām-ul-Mulk, were in successive battles 4 disposed of by the latter, losing both their properties and their lives A strange state of things now presented itself to Husain 'Alī Khān did not know what the end would be His mind became confused and every day he resolved on some new plan Some said 5 that as his wife was in the Deccan he should send a farman for the government of the Deccan to Nizām-ul-Mulk and so conciliate him After that he should amend matters gradually Meanwhile news came that Saiyid Mubārak Khān Bokhārī, the hereditary governor of Daulatābād, although he was translation, p 480, note 1

 $^{^1}$ Khāfī Khān, II, p 837 See Irvine, op cit, p 430 2 He got twenty-one lacs of rupees, after four months, vide Khāfī Khān, II,

³ Jhila in the text, his name was Chabila Rām Nāgar, Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text III, pp 328-330, and Beveridge's translation, pp 429, 430 Girdhar was his nephew, see Khāfī Khān, II, p 842

⁴ Battle of Pandhar, 19th June, 1720, in which Dilawar 'Alī Khān was defeated, and Battle of Bālāpūr, 9th August, 1720, in which 'Alam 'Alī Khān was defeated by Nızām-ul-Mulk See Irvine, op cit, II, pp 28-34, 47-49
⁵ See account of Dıyānat Khān, Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, p 75, Beveridge's offended at Husain 'Alī Khān having deprived him of his jāgīr, had, out of respect for the Saiyids, given shelter in the fort of Aurangabad to the Amīr-ul-Umarā's family and possessions, before the arrival of Nızām-ul-Mulk, and so was proteeting them against enemies news restored in some measure the Amīn-ul-Umarā's composure much consultation and reflection he took the King with him and proceeded from Agra towards the south on 9th Dhul Qa'da, 1132 (12th September, 1720) with 50,000 horse Besides this, he also sent money everywhere to collect troops

Good God 1 Those two brothers, and especially the Amīr-ul-Umarā, possessed generosity, kindness, gentleness, and innate goodness were never unjust or tyrannous to a single soul, and yet the Turner of hearts (God) had so disposed the minds of men, that the Saiyids' own protégés, though they knew that then rum involved their own destruction, used to say among themselves "O God! may this boat sink!" What then shall we say of the feelings of strangers? As I'timad-ud-Daula Muḥammad Amīn Khān Chīn Bahādur suspected,1 that on account of his near relationship with Nizām-ul-Mulk, they would not in the end stay their hands from him, he, in spite of the oaths and promises of the Amīr-ul-Umarā, meditated rebellion He stiried up Mīr Haidar² Kāshgharī—who belonged to the Turkish tribe of the Dughlats, and whose great grandfather, Mil Haidai, was the author of the Tāilh-i-Rashīdī, 3 and had been always associated with Babui and Humayun and for a time had been the rulei of Kashmir and the members 4 of whose family had the title of Mir on account of their being heieditary sword-bearers (Mīn-n-Shamshēr)—to be on the watch for an opportunity of cutting the thread of the life of the Amin-ul-Umaia, by fraud and guile

They say, that except for the Emperor's mother, the Sadi-un-Nisā (Superintendent of the harem), and Sa'adat Khan Nishapuri-who had come to the Court, from the faujdārī of Hindūn-Biyāna and had been made partaker of the secret by Muhammad Amin Khan-no one knew about Though it was ascertained that on the night which was pregnant with the catastrophe, Mir Jumla had, as his well-wisher, informed the Amīr-ul-Umarā, the latter had answered, "I suppose I am a melon that anyone may strike with a knife", and so paid no heed Anyhow, on 6th Dhul Hijja, 1138 (9th October, 1720) in the second year of the reign when the camp was at Tora 5 which is 35 current ('urfī) kos from Fathpur, I'tımād-ud-Daula, on the pretext of nausea and upsetting of his stomach, alighted at the advance-tents (pēshkhāna) of Haidar Qulī Khān, the head of the artillery (Mīn Ātish) Husain 'Alī Khān (the Amīr-ul-Umarā)

⁵ Tōra is the Thora Bhīm of Tiefenthaler, and the Toda Bhīm of the Indian Atlas It is 45 miles W S W Fathpür Sikrī (Irvine) It lies in Rājputāna in Jaipūr territory and is on or near the river Gambhir

Khāfī Khān, II, p 902
 Khāfī Khān, II, p 903

³ For this work, see Prashad, Preface to Tabaqāt-1-Albarī, III, p xxx noted there an English translation with annotations of the work was published by N Elias and E D Ross in 1895

⁴ Perhaps the meaning is that they were called Mīrs on account of their skill in swordsmanship, see Khāfī Khān, II, p 903 It seems doubtful if Haidar Gūrgān was the great grandfather of the assassin, probably more than three generations had elapsed

after the Emperor had entered the female apartments turned back and was going in his palanquin to his quarters. When he came near the gate 1 of the enclosure (gulālbār), Mīi Haidai who was known, and was admitted to conversation, presented to the Amīn-ul-Umarā an account of his case, and began to make a verbal representation of his miserable When he saw that Amīr-ul-Umarā was engaged in eireumstances reading his petition he so quickly and forcibly struck him with his dagger in the side that he was at once done for Nūi Ullāh 2 Khān, the son of Asad Ullah Khan known as Nawwab Auliya, who was accompanying on foot, killed Mir Haidar with his sword. The Moghuls ian together from every side and killed Nur Ullah Khan, and cut off the head of the Amīr-ul-Umarā and took it to the Emperor As Husain 'Alī Khān s men, on arriving at the stage, had all taken up their places in ignorance of what was impending, they could not come to the spot in time. But Saiyid Ghairat 3 Khān as soon as he heard of what had happened, without waiting to collect men, hurried with a few followers and was killed Another party also strove vainly Later the body of the Amū-ul-Umarā—which had lain in a dishonoured state, and the bodies of Ghanat Khān and Nūr Ullāh Khān were, by the King's orders after the recital of funeral prayers, placed on biers covered with gold brocade and directed to be conveyed to Amer and laid in the tomb of Amir-ul-Umara's father, Saivid 'Abdullah Khan 1

It has been stated by some reliable men, that before this occurrence, a pious man beheld in a dream that the martyred 3rd Imām (Husain)—Peace be upon him and his ancestors!—addressed the Amīr-ul-Umarā and said "balagha va'daka wa ghalba 'adāwaka—Your time is finished and your enemies have triumphed". After the occurrence when a calculation was made, each sentence was found to form a chronogram, 5 each being the other inverted. Mīr 'Abdul Jalīl Husainī Wāsiţī Bilgiāmī (Mercy be upon him!) composed a splendid elegy 6 on Husain 'Alī It also contains a chronogram

Elegy

The signs of the Karbalā are apparent from the forehead of India,

The blood of the descendants of the Nabī is gushing out of the soil of India

Mourning for Husain 'Alī is current all over the world, The Saryids are oppressed in India

⁶ The elegy consists of 36 lines, the last being the chronogram

Cf Sıyar-ul-Muta'akhklırın, p 176
 Cousin of Amir-ul-Umarä

³ Khāfī Khān, II, p 905, calls him 'Izzat Khān and says he was Husain 'Ali's sister's son But Ghairat Khān seems correct

⁴ Cf Siyar ul-Muta'al.hkhirīn, I, p 181 For details of the conspiracy and murder, see Irvine, op cit, pp 58-61

5 Both sentences contain the same letters differently arranged and both yield 1132, cf Siyar-ul-Muta'alhkhirin, I, p 198 The Arabic words are (وراية على عدوك The conjunction wa is not part of the chronogram, and the inversion is not perfect. He is supposed to refer to both of the Saiyid brothers, but one was killed in 1132, and the other was defeated in 1133 and died of poison given in his food on 1st Muharram, 1135 or 12th October, 1722 See Irvine, op cit, p 96

The lights of tears are being fed by the fires of the heart, The flower of the fire of India is blooming Why does not the world become dark through the clouds of grief, The lamp of the happy tidings of India has been extinguished On this count the dress of the Arabs is blue, But the sleeves of India have become red with blood of sorrow Rustam-like Husain 'Alī has been murdered By a dagger which lay in ambush in India That brave wallior, who, with the pen of the Sword of Barah Used to write the treatise of the conquest of India, The rebels of the world have become his obedient followers He has impressed the mark of authority throughout India His sword on the day of battle with unfortunate enemies Used like thunder to split the steel-like forces of India Son of Mustafā, true follower of Murtadā His name served as an oath for the pride of India India through his murder has become a soulless body, In other words he was the emblem of the life of India The world has become dark like a grave to the eyes of the people Since this precious stone of India has fallen out of its setting He was murdered by the son of Muljam II They say the sollowing flower of India is from Kūfā India has never before faced such a tragedy, We have looked through all famous histories and chronicles of India Patience has languished and sorrow become strong, This is our Fortune at the hands of the great and small of India O friends of the family of the Prophet and the sincere lovers of the descendants of the Prophet Be sorrowful for the Husain of afflicted India Till God grants succour to the Saryids Against the conspiracies of their enemies The date of his maityidom was written by the pen of Wasita Husain was murdered by the wicked, accursed of India

The truth is that there were few officers of his time who were equal to him in goodness He was emment for many excellent qualities, and was unique for his genius and humanity Abundance of food and its ample distribution in his establishment were well known He established bulāhūr khānas 1 (barley houses) for raw and cooked grain, and held assemblies on the 11th and 12th of the month in the great cities of the Deccan, these are still carried on In these assemblies he, with humility and reverence, personally served sharkhs and fagirs Before he came to the Deccan, he never took money for transacting any business (Zar-r-Afterwards Muhkam Singh and the other clerks induced him to do so by making representations regarding the smallness of his income and the heavy nature of expenditure For instance, they say that Haidai Quli Khān, the Superintendent of the port of Sūrat had confiscated the property of Mulla 'Abdul Ghafur Bhora,2 the chief merchant (Malik-ut-Tunar) of that port, although he had herrs At the same time there

 ¹ Bulghūr is a Turkī word meaning bruised barley or wheat
 2 Properly Böhrā See Wilson's Glossary, p 91 The story is told in Khāfī
 Khān, II, p 943 See also Elliot, VII, p 520 had occurred a change 1 of sovereignty His property was worth a kror of rupees and his son 'Abd-ul-Hayy came to the Court to seek redress and petitioned, he presented to the Amū-ul-Umarā fifteen lacs of rupees One day at early dawn he sent for him and made a gift to him both of the presents and the property He also gave him a robe of honour and dismissed him He said (to Diyānat Khān, the Dīvān), "This night I had a struggle with myself about this man's property, but at last I prevailed over my covetousness "

(IKHLĀS 2 KHĀN) HUSAIN BEG (Vol I, p 151)

One of the Wālā-Shāhīs (household troopers) of Shāh Jahān Jahan after his accession, in the first year, made Ikhlas Khan an officer of the rank of 2,000 with 800 horse, and bestowed on him a present of He was appointed to the Dīvānī of Burhānpūr In the 3rd year, his rank was increased by 200 horse. In the 4th year, he was made faugdār 3 of Ajmēi, and in the 13th year, 1049 (1639-40 AD) he died His son, Na'īm Bēg, received the rank of 500 with 220 horse and died in the 15th year (1641-42 A D)

HUSAIN BEG KHAN ZIG 4 (Vol I, pp 591-593)

He was the sister's son and son-in-law (khwesh) of the famous 'Alī Mardan Khān When Sa'id Khān, the governor of Kābul, came to Qandahār in accordance with the request of 'Alī Mardān Khān, he found the inhabitants and the subjects in a wavering condition of goodwill He perceived that it would not be possible to make proper arrangements while the Persian troops were in the neighbourhood of Bust, and so he left 'Alī Mardān Khān in the citadel of Qandahār with a body of troops, and took with him, under the leadership of Husain Beg, 3,000 cavalry and engaged the Persians The latter almost overpowered 'Alī Mardān's men and made them waver, but Sa'id Khān came up in time and defeated the enemy Then Husain Beg with 'Ali Maidan Khan waited on Shah Jahan and was rewarded with princely favours As signs of capability were apparent in Husain Beg, he was removed from the companionship of the said Khān and made Master of the Horse—a charge which is not granted to any but really trustworthy men In the 18th year, he received, in addition, the employment of the Tuzuk, a decorated staff and an increase of rank In the 21st year, he was sent away from the Court and made the governor of Kashmir, with the title of Khān and an increase of 500 personality ($\underline{dh}\underline{at}$) with 500 horse, and was granted the rank of 1,500 with 1,000 horse and the gift of a flag and an elephant,

¹ See Elliot, VII, p 520 The change, apparently, was the death of Farrukh-siyai Khāfī Khān mentions that Husain 'Ali made the remark to Diyānat

² Bādshāhnāma, I, p 372 ³ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 727 ⁴ In the list at the beginning of the volume Zīg is wrongly printed as Ūzbeg

and went off there In the 28th year, he was made the faugdar of the Mīyān Dūāb in succession to Ghadanffai Khān and was sent to take charge of the buildings of Mukhlispür, the foundation of which had been fixed for 17th Muharram, 1065 A H In the 31st year, he was again appointed to a confidential position and made Mir Tuzuk In the battle of Sāmūgaih, he had chaige of the loyal artillery Dārā Shikōh's artillery was under the charge of Barqandaz Khan and was on the right, and the royal artillery was on the left and both were in front of the armies Neither yielded to the other in kindling the flames of battle and in the But what remedy was there for a runed leader ! Dārā Shikōh's flight, and when the business of the state fell to Aurangzīb s servants, Husain Beg was exalted by kissing the threshold of the Caliphate In the year of the accession he was appointed as the faugdar of Bangash, but in the end of the second year he was removed. In the 18th year, he was made the faugdar of Jaunpur, and in the 19th year in the end of the year 1086 A D (1676 A D) he died His sons, Mīrzā 'Atā Ullāh and Mīrzā Amān, were long in attendance on the Emperor The former died after attaining the rank of 700, while the other was appointed to Kābul and there distinguished himself and was given the name of Nāsir His biography has been given separately (Text, III, pp. 833-835)

(Saiyid) Husain Khān Bārah (Vol II, pp 500-502)

He was one of the officers of Bahadur Shah When the management of the affairs of the kingdom passed into the hands of this King, and differences arose between Rāja Jai Singh Siwā'ī and his brother, Bijai Singh, who were with the loyal forces in Kābul, the King, who was innately complaisant, decided for the sake of removing the differences to confiscate Amber 1 as a royal possession, and appointed the above-mentioned Khān as the faujdār of that area During this period Bahādur Shah started towards the Decean for opposing Kam Bakhsh Jai Singh and Mahārāja Ajīt Singh, without permission, left the victorious army for their homes, and having collected forces on arrival took possession of several of the royal thanas On perceiving this state of affairs, Saiyid Husain Khān reviewed the old and new forces, and with his three sons, Abū Sa'īd Khān, Ghairat Khān and Hasan Khān, and his brother-ın-law Mahābat Khān, and his two nephews, Muhammad Zamān Khān and Saiyid Mas'ūd Khān, proposed to fight in Amber very large ant- and locust-like hordes of fanatic Rājpūts created disturbances all over, the new rectuits of Husain Khān losing courage took Consequently the said Khān with a small army came out of Amber and faced Durgā Dās Rāthōr in the field of Kāla Dahra Rājpūts on being vanquished fled, but the baggage of the said Khān was plundered, and one of his sons, who was accompanying it, was made a martyr Next morning the aforesaid Khān without much equipment reached Nārnōl, and after collecting further forces engaged in battle once again with Rāja Jai Singh near the town of Sāmbhai 1 beginning the said Khān was successful, but suddenly two to three thousand musketeers, who were lying in ambush below an embankment, came out and started fire The aforesaid Khan, who had only a small force and most of which was also wounded, was killed with other officers his nephews, Muhammad Zaman Khan and Saiyid Mas'ud Khan who were captured, the first was killed, and the second who was not more than 16 years old, was taken before the Raja. The Raja gave urgent injunctions for the dressing of his wounds, and Saiyid Husain Khān was buried in the field of martyrs. This event occurred in the 2nd year of the reign of Bahādur Shāh corresponding to the year 1120 A H 2 It is stated that the Raja had a very elegant garden laid out and a suitable building erected over the grave of the said Khan on the bank of the Sämbhai Lake No information regarding the rank of the said Khan has come to hand

¹ اسير Anbīr in the text This happened during Bahādur Shāh's invasion of Rājpūtāna in 1707, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, pp 46, 47

HUSAIN KHĀN KHWĒSHGĪ3

(Vol I, pp 600-605)

He was the eldest son of Sultan Ahmad A'zam Shahi When his father at the summons of Auranger intended to proceed to the Court from the town of Qasūr (south of Lāhōie) which is the native place of the Khwēshgīs, and died, Husain Khān's two brothers, Bāyazīd Khān and Pīr Khān, reached the Court and received offices But Husain khān himself and the fourth brother returned to their accustomed abode and did not try at all to secure service. Although he nominally held an office (mansab), yet he never stared from his home, and what others obtained by hard endeavours he received, in double and quadruple measure, by merely He remained reclined on the pillow of dominion of sitting in his house that country and with a large army and numerous followers unfurled the flag of I and not another. He did not render any accounts to the government of Lahore, but sent them offerings of some things which he took from then fiefs in that quarter And though he gave himself out as a mad man, yet he was prudent in business and paid proper respect to the holy family of the Saiyids He never made the least failure in offering all respects to the Saiyids. He was specially devoted to a notorious devotee known as Batak,4 and did whatever he said. He never refused him, and while he was seated, every hour they brought him the news that the Miyan Sahib is well, and he responded by thanking God That devotee was called Muhammad Khān, and belonged to the Batakza'is Suddenly madness took possession of him, and he became violent For a long time he was kept with his feet chained At last he got into companionship with Husain Khān

¹ For an account of the battle and death of Saiyid Husain Khān Bāiah see

Irvine, op cit, pp 69, 70

² See Cambridge History of India, IV, pp 321, 332, for an account of the rebellion of Rāja Jai Singh The date of the battle is given there as September, 1708, which would correspond to the latter half of Jumāda II or earlier half of Rajab, 1120 A H

<sup>See Bellew's Races of Afghanistan, p 19
Perhaps it should be Bhīk, as in Khāfī Khān, II, p 864</sup>

Verse

The madman is pleased when he sees a madman

In his state of rapture he occasionally said true things and this increased Husain Khān's respect for him

The Batakza'is are descended from Sharkh Batak, and he, according to all, was the son of Khweshgi Some make him the grandson of the Shaikh-ul-Islam Shaikh Maudud Chishti, but according to the disciple Wattū Shūriyānī 1 Batak is spi ung from Wattū He is known as the great Shūriyān was the name of his father who was the Pir (Pir Kabir)son of Khweshgī Batak had three sons, Wattū, Husam, and Khalaf The first was seized by the attraction of Divine love He went forth to seek his teacher, and when after surmounting many difficulties he came to the town of Chisht (in Khurāsān) he entered the service of Khwāja Maudūd Chishtī, with whom Khwāja Mu'in-ud-Din Sanjarī (the Ajmēr Saint)—May his grave be holy!—is connected through two generations His wishes were gratified there, and he remained long in the service of the He regarded that place as his real home, but when the Khwāja died, Wattū returned to his native country Many of the hill-men, and all the Khwēshgīs and the Jamand² (tribe) became his adherents One of his perfect disciples was Shaikh Batak, who was his father's brother He (apparently Wattū) uttered a and one of the pious men of the age prayer in reference to him to the effect that till the Day of Judgment his descendants might be masters of knowledge and holiness Accordingly 3 many of this branch have been masters of perfection, and the clan is also known as the Pīrzādagī

They say, that Pīr Wattū's dress was black, and that when Shaikh Batak attained the highest degree of sainthood, Wattū gave him his own clothes and adopted white for himself Hence it is that the Batakza'īs regard everything black as blessed while the Watūza'īs regard it as unfoitunate The standard of the Khwēshgīs is black and white, in memory of the two saints

In short, Husain Khān beat the drum of independence in the town of Qasūr and its neighbourhood, and said nothing to the leading jāgū dār s or to their inferiors but what savoured of arrogance and presumption At last Bahādur Shāh came to Lāhōre and set up his abode there. Afterwards there occurred contentions among the royal princes. Husain Khān did not refrain from commotion and fighting—which were inevitable at such a time—and carried on his evil practices. When in the beginning of Fairukh-siyar's reign the government of the Panjāb fell into the hands of 'Abd-us-Samad Khān Dilēr Jang, he opened communications of sincerity and harmony with the Khān and came to Lāhōre to interview him. He also entrusted to him the faujdārī of Lakhī Jangal. This only increased Husain's arrogance and his turbulence was augmented. When the governor perceived that Husain swallowed up the revenues of Lakhī Jangal, as he had done those of Qasūr, and rendered no accounts, and

³ See Maāthīr-ul-Umarā, Text, III, p 777, for an account of a descendant of the Khweshgis

¹ Perhaps Shūrbānī The MSS seem to have a b instead of a y ² Jarrett's translation of \bar{A} ' $\bar{\imath}n$, II, p 402 See Bellew, $loc\ cit$, p 19, where the word is spelt Zamand

that he got nothing but regret and disappointment from his move, he appointed Qutb-ud-Din Röhila to proceed to his domain Husain behaved perversely to him also and insulted him. Not content with that, he led any aimy against him and destroyed his life and property Nevertheless 'Abd-us-Samad for a time neglected to take further measures

When Husain's immoderation passed all bounds, the governor resolved to settle the affair He marched out with 7,000 cavalry from Lāhōie and wrote to Husain Khān "Qasūi and its territory have been given to you Refrain from interfering with other estates. He did not stay at home, but came out to oppose with 3,000 horse. Some are of opinion that the Saiyids, who were the centre of imperial affairs, instigated him by the bait of his obtaining the government of Lahore to give battle to Diler Jang And some say that Qutb-ul-Mulk (the elder of the two Saiyids) wrote to 'Abd-us-Samad on receipt of a letter from Saiyid Hasan Khan Barah, the Sūbadār of Lahore—who had gone by way of Qasūi and who was acquainted with his arrogance and infatuation -that he should not withhold his hand from (attacking) him, and also made him an assignment for the troops on the treasury of Lahore Anyhow, an engagement took place near the town of Jhuni 1—which is 30 los from Lähöre and 18 from Qasūr, on 6th Jummāda II of the 2nd year of Muhammad Shāh's reign (1132 Å H = 15th April, 1720) There was a severe contest The furious Afghans so smote upon the guns that sparks flew out of them After hand to hand fights the vanguard on both sides—commanded on Husain's side by his brother's son Mustafa Khān, the son of 'Alī Khān, the son-ın-law (khuēsh?) of Bāyazīd Khān, and on the other by Kaıım Quli Khan, the Bakhshi of Dıleı Jangsaımymanfully gave their lives Aghai Khān, the pride 2 of the Moghuls, who, along with 'Aiif Khān Chēlā, was on the left wing, encountered Husain Khān With 50 oi 60 unering 3 aicheis he (Aghai) stood film and discharged arrows Husam Khan got away from him and attacked Dilei Jang, and there was a severe fight At last the governor's men could not resist and Dilër Jang was nearly defeated Leading officers like Jānī Khān, Hıfz Ullah Khān displayed activity, and Aghai Khān came forward a second time and started fighting Just then Husain Khān's elephant-driver was killed and the darvish 4 formerly mentioned, who was helping in the driving of the elephant, was killed by an arrow When Husain Khān was wounded, the Moghuls made the elephant the target of arrows and bullets and put an end to him (Husain Khān) This occurred in the year 1130 5 A H

⁵ This date is incorrect as in it it is stated earlier on that the battle took place

m 1132'

¹ In the text Jhūnī In Elliot, Perhaps this is Chūniān in the Lāhōre district VII, p 491, where Khafi Khan is partially translated, it is Jhuni

² دیده معول literally eye of the Moghuls

³ Tir-andāz qadr andāz, lit archers who were throwers of cannon-balls
4 The reference is to the early part of the article where a madman named.
Muhammad Khān is mentioned Khāfī Khān, who gives a full account of the battle (II, pp 861-864), says that the name of Husain Khān's favourite who was killed was Shāh Bhīk In the Index to the Maāthir, p 47, the notice is described as "Husain Khān Khwēshgī" and "the account of Shāh Bēg!"

Husain Khān Tukriyā

(Vol I, pp 551-554)

He was the sister's son and son-in-law of Mahdī Qāsim Khān 1 the beginning of his career he was a servant of Bairām Khān-Khānān When in the second year of his reign Akbar, after the capture of Mankot, stayed four months and four days in Lahore for the arrangement of affairs in that province, and in Safr 965 A H proceeded to Delhi, Husain Khān was appointed as the governor of Lāhōre One day he, while transacting public business there, saluted a long-bearded Hindū under the impression that he was a Muhammadan After that he passed an order that Hindus should sew a badge 2 (Ghiyārī) on their dress near the shoulder, and that, with a kasr under the first letter, is a yellow patch which the Jews used to wear on their shoulders for distinguishing themselves This in Hindi is called tukri Consequently he became known by the name of the Tukriyā (the patcher) At the time when Akbar became alienated from Bairam Khan, and the latter's soldiers left him and joined the royal stirrups in the town of Jhujhar, no person of influence remained with him except Husain Khān Tukriyā and Shāh Qulī Khān Mahram After Bairām Khān was overthrown, Husain Khān entered the Emperor's service In the 11th year, when Mahdī Qāsim Khān became disgusted with the government of Garh and went off by the route of the Deccan to the Hijaz, Husain Khan escorted him for part of the way When, as he was returning, he came to the town of Satwas (not Santwās) 3 in Mālwa, the commotion of the rebel Mīrzās took place Husain Khān was obliged to take shelter in the town along with Muqarrab Khān who was the Tiyūldār there When Muqairab Khān 4 hastily gave up the struggle Husain Khān came out and waited upon Ibiāhīm Husain Mīrzā, but did not agree to take up service under him, though uiged to do In the 12th year, when Akbar proceeded to extirpate Khan Zāmān Shaibānī, he served under him, and as there was then a brisk market of appreciation, and as the King was impressed by his courage, good service and zeal, he encompassed him with varied favours. And though he did not know how to manage 5 any complicated affairs he was raised to the high position of an Amīr and received the rank of 3,000 Inasmuch as the world's wine overthrows men, and a narrow capacity

Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text, III, pp 199-202 Husain Khān quarrelled with Mahdi Qāsim when the latter on his return from the Hijāz was granted Lucknow as his fief

² The text has 'vyayārī عيارى, and there is the variant Ghubārī, but the true reading is ghvyārī, ghvyār being the Arabic word for a badge, such as is worn by the Jews, etc, see Lane's Dictionary, p 2316 The Maāthir has taken the passage from Badāyūnī, Text, II, p 223, see Lowe's translation, II, p 227, where the word is explained and spelt by the author The Jew colour mark was yellow, but apparently all that Husain ordered was that it was to be of a different colour from the rest of the stuff Badāyūnī says that Husain by mistake rose up to greet the Hindū

³ The chief town of Nemawar, Indore District, vide Imperial Gazetteer, XXII,

⁴ In the text dastbāgha, but the variant dastpācha is adopted here

⁵ The meaning of the text is rather obscure Blochmann has "His contingent was not ready" The literal translation seems to be He did not know how to manage a number of men The words are from Akbarnāma, Text, III, p 143.

cannot digest it, he could not control himself He practised violence and oppression in his fief and exceeded his powers. When, in the 19th year, the royal standards moved to the Eastern districts, his misfortune kept him back from that service One day Akbai inquied about him and asked why he was not present. It was represented that he had been seized with a frenzy, and that he was employing himself in attacking and plundering the peasantry As there was work in hand, no one was sent to chastise him, but measures were taken to confiscate his fief After the conquest of Patna and Hājīpūr, when Akbar was returning towards Agra, Husain Khan came to the camp, but was not admitted to an interview. In his madness he bade adieu to worldly affairs, and chose to be a galandar Royal favour again succoured him and an allow 1 from the royal quiver was given to him in order that by this he may take possession of the fief which had been made crownland, and address himself to the collection of recruits When for this purpose he obtained leave from the Presence, he, in his madness, resumed his blameworthy practices and plundered and ravaged the country One day he came to Basantpur bolonging to Kumāon, as its mines and prosperity had excited his fancy. As the forehead of the final affairs of evil-doers is marked with failure, he fought a battle without organization and was defeated, and wounded by a bullet Previous to this Sadiq Khan had been despatched to put a stop to his commotions Though his severe wound had already brought him to his senses to some extent, the fame of the victorious army (of Akbai) made him still more sonsible, and all the vagabonds left him Through the efforts of his well-wishers it appeared to him that the proper course was to betake himself by boat from Garh Muktesar 2 and present himself before Mun'im Khan Khan-Perhaps by his mediation his offences might be covered with the scarf of lenience Active men came to the town of Marhara,3 and laid hands on him, and in accordance with orders he was taken to Agra and put into 4 his (own?) house in the year, 983 AH, where he died of his wound His son, Yusuf Khan,5 was included among the Amirs in the time of Jahangir

(Khān 6 Jahān) Husain Qulī Bēg

(Vol I, pp 645-653)

He was the sister's son of Banām Khān-Khānān Walī Bēg Dhūl Qadr, in the time of Bairām Khān's prosperity had fine jāgīrs and was supreme over all other officers In the battle at the town of Dıkdar Jalandhar, which took place between Bairam Khan and Shams-

See Irvine, Army of the Indian Moghuls, p 99
 In Meerut District, vide Imperial Gazetteer, XII, p 162
 In the text Bārah, but Albarnāma, Text, III, p 144, has Mārhara and the variant Bārhara. Mārhara in Etah district appears to be correct According to Lowe's translation of Muntakhab-ut Tawārīkh, II, p 224, he was placed in Şādiq Khān's house

⁵ Yüsuf Khān died in 1621 AD, in the 18th year of Jahāngīi, vide Roger and Beveridge's translation of the Tūzuk i-Jahāngīrī, II, p 202 He had become extremely stout and died suddenly after paying his respects to Shāh Jahān The author of the Maāthir-ul-Umarā apparently did not know the 2nd volume of Tūzuk 6 See Blochmann's translation of A'in, I (2nd edn), pp 348-351

ud-Dīn Khān Atka, he was wounded and made a prisoner, and afterwards died of his wounds Akbar, who knew that all the turmoil and confusion of Bairam Khan was due to his instigation, had his head cut off and sent to the Eastern Provinces Husain Quli Beg, who was of sound judgment and good sense, was sent by Khān-Khānān with the ınsıgnıa of his office at the time when the King's mind was alienated from him, to the Presence from Mewat, in the hope that he might by submission and supplication achieve something. At the same time, the departure of Khān-Khānān to the Panjāb, which was an indication of sedition and rebellion, became known Accordingly Husain Qulī was put in charge of Asaf Khān 'Abdul Majīd who was the governor of Delhi, to be treated compassionately, and to see that no harm came to After the termination of the affan of Bairam Khan, Husain Quli Khān was released, and was always treated with favour in view of his loyalty and services In the 8th year, 971, when Mīrzā Sharaf-ud-Dîn Ahrārī fled from the Court without cause, Akbar gave Husain Qulī Beg the title of Khan and the fiefs of Ajmer and Nagoi in supersession of the Mīrzā and sent him to pursue the latter As the Mīrzā left the imperial territories without fighting, Husain Quli Khan without difficulty took possession of the fiefs and arranged for their settlement. In a short time he took the fort of Jodhpur, which was the residence of Rai Maldev-who was distinguished from the other Rajas of India by splendour and by the number of his followers—and which after his death was the seat of his younger son, Chandar Sen During the siege of Chittoi, Husain Qulī Khān displayed great energy in pursuing Rānā Udai Singh, and was thanked and praised

When in the 13th year, the officers of the Atka Khail were summoned to the Presence from the Panjab, the government of that territory, which is one of the great domains of the empire, was given to Husain Qulī Khān But on account of the emergence of the affair of Ranthambhōr, he did not leave Akbar and acquired glory by being attached to the stirrups of victory After the fort was taken and Akbar had gone to Agra, he obtained leave to look after his estates In the 17th 1 year, he went to take the fort of Nagarkōt which was in the possession of Rāja Jai Chand, and whose son Badī Chand, after his father was imprisoned, regarded himself as his father's successor, and believing the latter to be dead, became rebellious When he came near Dhamtūrī 2 Janū (?), the governor of the place became suspicious on account of his relationship to Jai Chand and withdrew But he sent agents and undertook to provide guides The Khān left a party of his men to form a guard $(th\bar{a}nad\bar{a}r\bar{\imath})$ in the village on the road and pressed forward When he came to the fort of Kötlah (or Kütlah)—which was a sky-high fortress—he discharged some cannon from the top of a hill which was over against the fort and terrified the besieged At night they took to flight Inasmuch as this fort was formerly the property of Rāja Anam Chand, the Rāja of

¹ The 18th year according to the Tabaqāt-1-Akbarī, De's translation, II, p 398, but it really was the 17th, vide Albarnama, Text, II, p 370, and Beveridge's translation, II, p 538. The siege, however, lasted till the 18th year, vide Albarnama, Text, III, p 36 and Beveridge's translation, III, p 51

2 Damharī, Elliot, V, p 357, where the name of the governor is given as Choto Perhaps the word is Janūĥa, or Janjūa, which is the name of a Rājpūt caste—It is Janūrū in De's text of the Tabaqāt-i-Akbarī, II, p 257

Gwāliyār¹, and Rāja Rām Chand, the grandfather of Jai Chand, had forcibly taken it, he made it over to the Raja of Gwaliyar, who was a descendant of Anam Chand, and established his own thana And, as there was such an amount of forest that it was difficult for the army to proceed, he sent light infantry ² each day to cut down the jungle sufficient for a march On 1st Rajab 980 A H, the army encamped at Nagaikōt At the first onset they took the fort of Bhawan where the idol-temple of Mahāmā'ī was, and a great number of Rapputs and Brahmans, who in the hope of acquiring merit stood firm, were sent to destruction After that the wall outside of Nagarkot was also taken and sābāt (covered ways) and batteries (sarkōb) were made Every day buildings were demolished by the cannon and animals 3 (?) were killed While Rāja Budai Chand was eating, a large cannon was discharged so that about eighty men were killed under the wall

In short, the business of the fort was nearly finished, when suddenly the commotion of the approach of the rebellious Mīrzās, Ibrāhīm Husain Mīrzā and Mas'ūd Mīrzā, sturred up the province of the Panjāb was also a great scarcity in the army Consequently Husain Qulī Khān was helpless, and made peace on receiving five maunds of gold as tribute and much stuff, and laid the foundation of a mosque in front of the house of Rāja Jai Chand, and in two days raised it up to the portico. On Friday, in the middle of Shawwāl of the same year, after reciting the Khutba in the King's name, Husain Quli Khān departed from that place In company with Ismā'īl Qulī Khān and Mīrzā Yūsuf Khān Radavī he hastened after the rebels In the town of Talandah (or Talambah), forty kos from Multan, he came upon them without warning, and a battle took place between them Ibrāhīm Husain was defeated and fled to Multan and Muhammad Husain with some companions was Husain Quli Khan, in the 18th year, 981 AH, when Akbar returned to Agra after the conquest of Gujarat, and the officers came from all quarters to offer their congratulations, produced Mas'ūd Husain with his eyes sewn up and other prisoners dressed up in the skins of cattlefrom which the horns had not been removed. They presented a strange appearance The King out of extreme kindness and gentleness caused the eyes of the Mīrzā to be opened and granted many of the prisoners their lives Husain Qulī Khān was raised to high office, and got the title of Khān Jahān, than which there was no higher title in the empire except that of Khān-Khānān When Mīrzā Sulaimān, the ruler of Badakhshān, took refuge at the Court from the oppression of his grandson, Mīrzā Shāhrukh, an order was given to Khān Jahān to proceed with the brave army of the Panjāb in company with the Mīrzā to Badakhshān and to place the old ruler on the masnad of that country Meanwhile, ın the 20th year, 983 A H, Mun'ım Khān Khān-Khānān, the Sūbadār of Bengāl, died, and there was a great commotion in that country The officers of the auxiliary force became frightened of the pestilential air

¹ This is not the Gwalior in Central India, but a hill state in the Panjab This is not the Gwand in Central Hidia, but a find state in the Lanjab 10 is the Goler of the Imperial Gazetteer, XII, p 310 It is spelt Gwālīār in the Tabaqāt-i-Akbarī, De's Text, II, p 257, and translation II, p 400

² Hashare, see Vullers, I, p 620 The account is apparently based on Tabaqāt-i-Akbarī, De's Text, II, pp 257-259, and translation II, pp 400, 401

³ Jāndārān may refer either to men or to the number of sacred cows that were kılled

of the country, and to this was added the domination of Dā'ūd the Afghān -who claimed the sovereignty of the country, and who now broke his treaty and again raised the head of commotion The officers at once left their stations and departed from the country As it is a leading principle of Akber that urgent matters should have preference to other affairs, the King hurriedly summoned Khān Jahān from the Panjāb and made him the Sūbadār of Bengal He sent along with him Rāja Todar Mal, who was distinguished for courage and ability, and who had done brilliant acts in the province The Bengal officers met Khan Jahan at Bhagalpur, and some of them objected about the climate and were loath to return, while others made the difference of religion a pretext, and indulged in foolish talk Khān Jahān, who had assumed the rôle of a veteran commander, did not yield and by means of soothing and kindness laboured to restore unanimity, and though most of the officers were Chaghta'is and unwilling to submit to a Qazalbash (Persian), he, by a little exertion, liberated Garhī, which is the gateway of Bengāl, and recovered the lost territory as far as Tānda He made constant endeavours to compose the disorders Dā'ūd Khān Kararānī strengthened Ākmahal (Rājmaḥal) and planted himself in front of the royal forces There was a battle every day, but, though Khān Jahān and Rāja Todar Mal made great efforts, the work did not advance owing to want of zeal on the part of the men One day Khwāja 'Abdullāh Naqshbandī went out from his battery with some followers and offered battle body of the enemy advanced to fight, and the Khwāja's companions did not support him He, from nobility of nature, stood firm, and played away the coin of his life When this news reached Akbar, he was grieved and sent an order to Muzaffar Khān, the governor of Bihār, quickly to join the Bengāl army with the fiefholders of Bihār As soon as, in 984 AH, Muzaffar Khān joined with the Bihār troops, Khān Jahān arranged his forces and made ready for battle By chance on the night that was pregnant with victory, a cannon-ball from the imperial camp reached the chahārpāy (bedstead) on which Junaid Kararānī, Dā'ūd's paternal uncle, was sleeping and broke his leg After that there was a hot engagement, and Kālā Pahār, the leader of the enemy's right wing, was wounded and fled The battle had not reached the centre when a stone of dispersal fell among the Afghans and they gave way and fled Many were slain by the pursuing heroes Dā'ūd wanted to retire, but his hoise got stuck in a bog and he was made a prisoner When he was brought before Khān Jahān, the latter asked him what had become of the oaths and treaties he had made with Khān-Khānān the impudence to say that it was a temporary agreement 1, and that a fresh one might now be made Khān Jahān ordered that he should be relieved of the weight of his plotting head, and immediately sent his head to Akbar by Saiyid 'Abdullāh Khān The latter had been sent post haste to Khān Jahān to convey the good news of the victory of Cōcanda which Rāja Mān Singh Kachwāha had gained over the Rānā, and also to announce Akbar's march to the officers of the Eastern Provinces At the time of dismissing him Akbar had said that

¹ The text has $zab\bar{a}n\bar{i}$ or verbal, but the variant $zam\bar{a}n\bar{i}$ or temporary appears to be more correct—See also $Akbarn\bar{a}ma$, Text, III, p—182, and Beveridge's translation III, p—255

as he was taking this good news, he should also bring back the good tidings of the conquest of Bengāl Saiyid 'Abdullāh Khān returned in eleven days at the time when the King was setting out from Fathpur and flung the sedition-monger's head into the Jilaukhāna (vard for There was a great shout, and bulletins of the victory were sent to various quarters of the empire After this conspicuous victory Khan Jahān sent Rāja Tōdai Mal to the Court, and went himself to Satgāōn, where Dā'ūd's family was Jamshīd, who belonged to his clan, resisted him, and met with a great defeat, and Dā'ūd's mother and hei associates submitted That country, which of old had been called Bulahākkhāna (house of strife) because it was never free from commotion, became by the genius and courage of Khān Jahān again a place of tranquillity Rāja Mal Gosā'īn, the Zamīndār of Kūch (Cooch Behār) also submitted, and the Khān Jahān sent as tribute the rarities of that country together with 54 noted elephants. As some Afghāns were making a disturbance in the Bhatī country, and 'Īsā Zamīndār there showed signs of disaffection, Khān Jahān proceeded to that quarter in the 231d year, and sent a large army ahead After severe fighting 'Īsā was defeated and fled, and the Afghans submitted Khān Jahān having attained the objects of his wishes retuined to Sihhatpur which was a city he had founded near Tanda, and raised up the flag of joy and success Every day, however, ends in sorrow and every perfection ends in loss

Verse

No good fortune is perfectly conformable to desire, When the book is completed, the page must be turned

So Khān Jahān in a short time lay on the bed of sickness for one and a half months—Indian doctors did not understand the case and applied improper remedies—In the same year, 986 A H, December, 1578, A D, he died—He was a Panjhazārī among Akbar's nobles—His son, Radā Qulī¹, in the 47th year, was raised to the rank of 500 with 300 horse

(Mīr) Husām-ud-Dīn

(Vol III, pp 323, 324)

He was a real pearl By origin he was from Badakhshān, but he was born and nourished on the sacred soil of Hindūstān His father, Qādī Nizām Badakhshī², who was exalted to the ranks of Amīrs in the reign of Akbar, was honoured with the title of Qādī Khān And later, as he showed a marked talent in the battles and crusades against the infidels he was granted the title of Ghāzī Khān, accordingly his biography has been written down in its proper place (Text, II, pp 857–862) The Mīr, as he was highly versed in the details of etiquette, was given a high place of trust amongst the officials He was married to the sister of the

 $^{^{1}}$ See Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} ' $\bar{m},$ I (2nd edn), p $\,$ 351, in the account of $\underline{\text{Kh}}\bar{\text{a}}\text{n}$ Jahān

² For his life, see Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), pp 488, 489 famous 'Allami Shakh Abul Fadl During the time when, on appointment, he went to the Deccan, the instrument of his companionship became attuned with that of Khān-Khānān Mīrzā 'Abd-ur-Rahīm. and, as a result, his fortune woke up from the sleep of forgetfulness, and eternal wealth came to his doors Suddenly ardent Divine fervour cut short his worldly attachments, in the height of his youth he gave up all connections with his relations, and cutting out luxury and lust from his life, wanted to separate himself from Khān-Khānān The latter. however, had developed such regard for him that he was not likely to give him up, and so he feigned insanity in the hope that he would thus be left to himself Afterwards he proposed to go to Delhi and spend the rest of his life at the feet of Mīrzā Sultān-ul-Mashā'ikh 1 Khān-Khānān tried his best by entreaty and urging, and advised and cajolled him in all possible ways, it proved useless Next he started wandering in the streets and bazars, and stripping himself smeared his body with dust and mud Khān-Khānān accompanied by other Amīis went and brought him back to his own house and started to counsel him afresh, he consoled and comforted him, but received no answer When, as a result of a representation from Khān-Khānān, the news reached the royal ears, he (Husam-ud-Din) was permitted to retire to His wife also cutting off all connections with her brothers and relations at the behest of her husband gave away to daivishes all cash and property that she possessed It is stated that he spent thirty years in retirement. And twelve thousand 2 rupees used to be sent annually by Khān-Khānān for the expenses of his Khāngah After becoming a darvish he never read a book. Most of his time he spent in reciting and repeating the word of God Every month he finished fifteen readings of the Qui'ān In the end he became a disciple of the well-known Saiyid Khwāja Bāqī Billah of Samarqand, who was born in Kābul being initiated and confirmed by him, and with his permission, occupied himself in following the holy commands and initiating and guiding the young followers along the right path till he departed for the other world (Mīr) Husām-ud-Dīn Anjū, Murtadā Khān.

(Vol III, pp 382-384)

He was the son of Mir Jamāl-ud-Dīn 'Add-ud-Daula His brother Amīn-ud-Dīn became the son-ın-law of 'Abd-ur-Rahīm Khān Khān-Khānān, and so acquired distinction He died young Mir Husām-ud-Din married the sister 3 of Ahmad Beg Khān, the brother's son of Ibrāhīm Khān Fath Jang, and by this glorious alliance received high honours He strove much to oblige and please that chaste lady Whenever on

¹ Apparently Nızām-ud-Dîn Auliyā of Delhî For his life, see Beale, Oriental

Biographical Dictionary (1881), p 211

2 Blochmann, op cit, p 489, states that Rs 12,000 was given by his wife "as allowance for the cell of her husband", but the allowance was apparently paid by Khān-Khānān

³ She was the daughter of Nür Jahān Bēgam's uncle, see Tūzuk-1-Jahāngīrī (Rogers and Beveridge's translation) II, p 277

New Year's Day and on festivals the Bēgam would come to the palace, the Mīr was not allowed to enter without permission. In the reign of Jahāngīr he was appointed to the charge of the fort of Āsīr, which in its height and fortifications and all matters pertaining thereto is unique in the conquered dominions.

When the Prince, the heir-apparent Shāh Jahān, perceived that on account of the pursuit of the imperial army he could not remain in Mandu. and on the 17th crossed the Narbada with the design of attacking Buihānpūr, and sent a body of troops to protect the ferries and to seize the boats, and came near Asīr, he sent his servant Sharīfā with an order full of threats to the Mir The latter left out of consideration his being a house-born servant, his father's fame, or loyalty and devotion to his master's service, and in spite of the vast supply of cannon and muskets. and abundance of stores, such as did not exist even to a hundredth part in other forts, and impregnability of the fortress owing to the difficulty of ingress, which was such that an old woman could have stopped a Rustam, and as soon as he received the Prince's order, he made over the fort to Sharīfā, and came 1 out with wife and child and did homage The Prince received him graciously and conferred favours upon him Afterwards, when the Prince came to the throne, he took into consideration the Mīr's good service and gave him the rank of 4,000 with 3,000 horse In the same 2 year he received the title of Murtadā Khān and was given Rs 50,000 in cash and appointed governor of Sindh in succession to Sher Khwāja who had died on the way thither

As the envious heavens are hostile to success, his place had not become warm when in the end of the 2nd year, 1039 A H (1629-30 A D) he died. Among his sons, Mīr Samsām-ud-Daula did well. In the 21st year, he became the $D\bar{v}\bar{u}n$ of Prince Shujā'. In the 28th year, he went as the Prince's deputy to take charge of Orīssa and had the rank of 1,500 with 500 horse, he died at the end of the same year.

Husām-ud-Dīn Khān

(Vol I, pp 584–587)

Mîrzā Husām-ud-Dīn Hasan was the grandson of Muhammad Ghiyāth-ud-Dīn 'Alī Āsaf Khān His father was Nizām-ud-Dīn 'Alī He was a careless man of pleasure, and in his youth he lived a thoroughly independent life. In consequence of the relationship which his family had with Yamīn-ud-Daula Āsaf Jāh, he, after the accession of Shāh Jahān, became active in the King's service and served in various capacities in the Deccan. In the 15th year, he obtained the rank of 1,000 with 500 horse and became $Bakhsh\bar{\imath}$ of the Deccan. Though from trustworthiness and disinterestedness he mixed freely with men, yet his prudence and ability enabled him to conduct himself so well that he was much praised. The governors of the Deccan treated him with honour Khān Daurān Nasrat Jang was instrumental in his advancement and impressed upon

¹ Iqbālnāma-ı-Jahāngīrī, p 210, and Tūzuk-ı-Jahāngīrī, op cit, pp 277, 278 2 He received the title of Murtadā Khān and the rank mentioned from Shāh Jahān in Jahāngīr's lifetime, see Tūzuk-ı-Jahāngīrī, loc cit, p 278

Shāh Jahān his skill and honesty In the 18th year, he obtained the rank of 1,500 with 600 horse and the title of Khān In the 21st year, he obtained the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 hoise and was then relieved of the Bakhshīship and made the governor of the fort of Ūdgīr As he had already a reputation for knowledge and skill, he now wished to get one for courage, and so stretched out the arm of resolution and distinguished himself by overthrowing the turbulent and rebellious up to the borders of Gōlconda He emerged from the position of clerkship and became a leader, and received an increase of 500 with 500 horse In the 30th year, he was removed from the governorship of Ūdgīr and made fauydār of Telingāna in succession to Hādī Dād Khān Ansārī

It is not known when he was made governor of Berār, except that in the $Mv\bar{a}t$ -ul-' $\bar{A}l\bar{a}m$ it is stated that after the accession of Aurangzīb and when that fortunate Prince crossed the Biyās in pursuit of Dārā Shikōh, the governorship of Berār was given to Saryid Salābat Khān entitled Ikhtisās Khān in succession to Husām-ud-Dīn Khān, and that the $fauyd\bar{a}r\bar{i}$ of Bījāgarh was given to the latter The year of his death does not appear

(in any work)

Though Husam-ud-Din was busy with worldly affairs, he always spent his days in pleasure and sport, and never crossed the path of care and sorrow He was much skilled in music and could extemporise Though he did not apply himself to the acquisition of science, yet from frequent intercourse with learned men he was acquainted with every science so that at the time of exposition he was never at a loss He wrote beautifully with the handwriting of a master, and was unequalled as a composer of distiches (qu'a navīsī) He was also much given to He had many children, and good sons The eldest, Mīrzā Nı'mat Ullāh, was the most famous of the brothers He was with Aurangzīb when the latter marched to assume sovereignty, and after the accession he received the title of Suhrāb Khān, and obtained the rank of 1,500 with 400 horse, and was made faujdār of Bālāpūr in Berār and went off to the Deccan He was always favoured on account of his services at the Court and in the provinces His son, Mīrzā 'Āqibat Mahmūd Sazāwār Khān, after having been the fauydār of Aland ¹ and Telinga, was appointed to guard the fort of Bīdar, but on account of weak eye-sight he was removed in the time of Bahādur Shāh ın Burhānpūr Hıs' son, Mīr Nızām-ud-Dīn 'Alī Husām Ullāh Khān spent a long time as the governor of the fort of Udgir, and in the days of the mismanagement of the Sūbadārs confronted the rebels of that country, who were a tribe known as Bīdar (Bēdars 2) with a Hindī $d\bar{a}l$ His grown-up sons were killed in those engagements Afterwards his young son obtained the father's title and was at the time of writing governor of the same fort As he has hereditary courage and hardshood, and though the vagabond tribe of the Mahrattas has increased its oppression on every side, yet the turbulent ones of his neighbourhood are in awe of him. In truth, he, at this time, does credit to his ancestors It is also owing to the virtues of the deceased Husām-ud-Dīn that though more than a hundred years have elapsed his family still maintains its position

¹ In Gulbarga district, Haidarābād

² Described in Meadows-Taylor's novel Tara

T

(SHAIKH) IBRĀHĪM (son of SHAIKH MŪSĀ)

(Vol II, pp 570-572)

He was the brother's 1 son of Shaikh Salīm Sīkrī Shaikh Mūsā was one of the good men of the time, and lived like a hermit in the town of Sīkiī—which is four 2 (!) kos from Akbarābād, and is the place where Akbar built a fort and founded a city, which he called Fathpūr—and passed his days in asceticism and worship. As the children of Akbar did not live, he sought the help of the darvīshes, and also made his supplications to Shaikh Salīm. During this time the mother of Sultān Salīm became pregnant and this increased Akbar's respect for the Shaikh. Near the Shaikh's residence he made a place for her confinement, and in it a prince was born and named after the Shaikh. Accordingly also the sons and connections of the Shaikh got promotion in this reign.

Shaikh Ibrāhīm was for a long time attached to the plinces, and served in the capital. In the 22nd year, he was with some other blave men employed in the thānadārī of Lādlā'ī's in chastising the lebelhous elements of that place. In the 23ld year, he was made governor of Fathpūr,4 and in the 28th year, he was appointed to assist Khān A'zam Kōka. He did good selvice in subduing Bengāl, and with Vazīr Khān took part in the putting down of Qutlū, who had rebelled in Olīssa. In the 29th year, he came to the Court, and in the 30th year, when Akbai after the death of Mīlzā Hakīm purposed to march to Kābul, Ibrāhīm was left in charge of Āgra. He selved long in that capacity. In the 36th year, 999 A.H. (1590 A.D.) he died. His shrewdness and abilities impressed the Emperor. He was an Amīr of the rank of 2,000

IBRĀHĪM KHĀN

(Vol I, pp 295–301)

He was the eldest son of the Amīn-ul-Umarā 'Alī Mardān \underline{Kh} ān ⁵ In the 26th year, 1063 A H , he received from Shāh Jahān the title

¹ The text makes Ibrāhīm the brother of Shakh Salīm, but the description really refers to Ibrāhīm's father Mūsā who was Salīm's elder brother The Tabaqāt-i-Akbarī, De's Text, II, p 439, and Translation II, p 666, describes him as the son-in-law and nephew (sister's son) of Shakh Salīm Sīkrīwāl Shakh Ibrāhīm's death is recorded in the Akbarnāma, Text III, p 596, Beveridge's translation, III, p 908, note 7, and Muntakhab ut-Tawārīkh, Text II, pp 374, 375, Lowe's Translation II, p 387 He died at Fathpūr Badāyūnī gives him a poor character and says the chronogram of his death is Shaikh La'īm vile Shaikh This, as Lowe remarks, yields 1,000, which is one too much Perhaps Badāyūnī wrote Shaikh Yatīm—the orphan Shaikh The other chronogram given by Badāyūnī, Dhamīm-ul ausāf—base of disposition, gives the correct date 999 According to Badāyūnī, Ibrāhīm left 25 krors in cash

² So in original, but this is clearly a mistake for twelve which is the number of los mentioned in the notice of Shaikh Ahmad, Maāthir-vl-Umaiā, II, p 554, Beveridge's Translation, p 169

³ Akbarnāma, Text III, p 220, where the word is Lawalālī Beveridge in the Translation III, p 309, has translated it as above, and commented on its location 4 See Akbarnāma, Text III, p 236, Beveridge's Translation III, p 337, where the appointment is described as government of the Metropolitan province 5 Maāthir-ul-Umarā, II, pp 795-807, Beveridge's translation, pp 186-194 of Khān as a mark of favour and grace When his father died in the 31st year, he was granted the rank of 4,000, with 3,000 horse battle of Sāmūgarh, he was in the light wing of Dārā Shikōh's army, and after the defeat, from mexperience and short-sightedness, thought his best course was to become a partisan of Prince Murād Bakhsh presumptuous Prince in his folly coined money and read the Khutba in his own name in Gujarāt on receipt of the news of illness of Shāh Jahān, and took the name of Murrawwij-ud-Dīn 1 (Dispenser of religion), and fancied himself as the absolute king The fictitious flatteries of 'Alamgir and the false promises of that consummate master, who conducted himself so cleverly towards that raw novice on account of the circumstances of the time, increased his natural ignorance Though after the battle with Dāiā Shikōh and the disposition of Shāh Jahān and the cessation of his authority, the reins of power fell naturally into the strong hands of 'Alamgir, but Murād Bakhsh in the intoxication of folly and ignorance did not arrive at the truth, and by the distribution of titles,2 and increase by fifty per cent in appointments and emoluments, and various other allurements enticed the royal (Shāh Jahān's) servants to his side, and a large number gathered round him Aurangzīb became alarmed at this assemblage, and because of the extravagant proceedings of that dolt and simpleton, he, in the guise of friendship, put an end to all his schemes

The details of this are as follows When 'Alamgii Bādshāh came out of Agra to go in puisuit of Dārā Shikōh, and encamped at Gudhar Sāmī,3 Murād Bakhsh kept away from accompanying him and remained in the city with 20,000 cavalry which he had gathered together also, from a desire for splendour and equipages, separated from 'Alamgir's army, and joined Murad, and his assemblage went on increasing Aurangzīb sent a person to inquire the leason of his opposition and for his tarrying to accompany him, he offered the excuse of his poverty (parēshānī) Consequently Muhammad Aurangzīb Bahādur sent him twenty lacs of rupees, and a message to the effect that in accordance with the agreements, he would get, after the present affair was settled, one-third of the spoils together with the territories of the Panjāb, Kābul and Kashmīr Bakhsh marched 4 and joined him When the encampment was near Mathurā, the King resolved that he would get rid of Murād, as every day he was becoming more and more disgusted with his behaviour Accordingly he again expressed a wish for the pleasure of a conversation with him and invited him on the pretext of holding a consultation Though his well-wishers—who perceived about the affairs of the state that there was some plot afoot-expostulated with him, the simpleton thought their suspicions groundless and said, "To have suspicions after covenants and oaths confirmed by the Qur'an is contrary to the Muhammadan ideals "

^{1 &#}x27;Ālamgīi nāma, p 134 2 'Ālamgīi nāma, p 137

³ This appears to be the ferry Swāmī over the Jumnā river which is situated north of Sikandara some six to seven miles from Āgra

⁴ In 'Alamgīrnāma, p 137, it is stated that he left Agra some days after Aurangzīb, and always encamped at a distance from him and that he never waited upon Aurangzīb from the time of the battle of Sāmūgarh to his arrival at Mathurā

When death comes to the game, it goes toward the hunter

On the 4th ¹ Shawwāl 1068 A H (5th July, 1658 A D) he had gone hunting when 2 suddenly Aurangzib represented that he had a pain in his stomach and felt uneasy, and sent word to this effect to Muiād on the hunting ground Murad did not see the deception, and turned his rem and came to Aurangzib's camp Aurangzib received him with respect, and took him to his private apartments and held a feast. After the carpet of enjoyment had been spread, it was arranged that after the siesta they would consider the state affairs. Muiad in complete unconcern divested himself of his weapons and went to sleep Aurangzib went to the female apartments and sent some domestics who took away the arms 3 (of Muiād) At this time Shaikh Mīr, who was lying in wait, came with a number of men When Murād was awakened by the clash of weapons, he saw that there was a new state of things He heaved a sigh and said, "To play the game of deceit with a straightforward fellow like me, and not to respect the Qui'an, was improper " Aurangzīb, who was standing behind the curtain, replied 'In reality there has been no breach of promises The life of that brother (yourself) is safe, but some vagabonds have gathered round you, and crooked ways and evil living have come to a head It is proper that, for some days, you should keep in retirement "4 At the same time he imprisoned him and sent him to the Capital (i e Delhī) along with Dilēi Khān, and Shaikh Mīr Shahbāz Khān the eunuch, who held a commission of 5,000 and was at the head of Muiād's establishment, was arrested with two or three other confidential men who were with him When his aimy knew that the thing was at an end, they were helpless and joined the King's army and were treated with favour Ibrāhīm Khān rubbed 5 his forehead in

³ In Sā'ır-ı-Yarāq, Sā'ır probably means all The Shaıkh Mīr here mentioned is the Shaikh Mīr Khawāfī of Maāthu-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 668-670

¹ 2nd in the text, but 4th according to 'Ālamqīrnāma, p. 138, and Khafī Khān, II, p. 38. On p. 131 of 'Ālamgīrnāma, 2nd Shawwāl is mentioned as the day when Aurangzīb encamped opposite Mathurā and celebrated the 'Id a second time—4th Shawwal, therefore, would be the probable date, and this is adopted in Cambridge History of India, IV, p 222, see also Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, II, pp 431-434
The text is rather obscure

⁴ Khāfī Khān, II, p 38, discreetly passes over, as unnecessary to be detailed, the manner of Murād Bakhsh's capture See Catrou who mentions Ibrahīm Khān as one of the honest servants who tried to prevent Murad Bakhsh from going to Aurangzīb's camp, p 292 The eunuch Shahbāz is the Chah-Abas of Bernier According to Manucci, I, p 303, he was strangled in the night and a little before Murad Bakhsh was awakened and fettered Bernier's account is different Khāfī Khān declines to narrate the precise way in which Murād was entrapped and arrested, he is full of admiration for the skilfulness of Aurangzīb's arrangements, and especially for the device of sending off four elephants with haudahs in different directions so as to prevent Murād Bakhsh's well-wishers from knowing which haudah contained him! Perhaps the best and fairest account of Murād Bakhsh's capture is that given in Ishar Dās's Futūhāt 'Alamqīrī, p 29, see Rieu's Catalogue I, p 269 MS Add 23, 884 Murād Bakhsh may have stayed in Āgra to recover from his wounds ⁵ Khāfī Khān, II, p 39 shame But about the same period he, for reasons, was deprived 1 of his appointment, and was allowed a yearly pension in the Capital In the second year, he was raised to the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse, and appointed to the government of Kashmin After the death of Khalil Ullāh Khān, he was appointed governor of Lāhōre In the 11th year, he was made governor of Bihār in place of Lashkar Khān In the 19th year, he left service and went into retirement. In the 21st year he was appointed ² (again) to the government of Kashmii in the place of Qawām-ud-Dīn Khān and after that he was made governor of the extensive territory of Bengal When, in the 41st year, the government of that province fell to Prince Muhammad 'Azīm,3 the second son of Shāh 'Alam Bahādur Shāh, he was appointed, in place of Sipāhdār Khān, as the governor of Allahābād After that, he was made governor of Lāhōre, and, in the 44th year, when that province was assigned to Prince Shāh 'Alam, he was appointed to Kashmīr, the climate of which area suited him In the 46th year, he was appointed to make the settlement of the province of Ahmadābād (Gujarāt) in place of the agents of Muhammad A'zam Shāh, who, at his own request, had been summoned to the Court After the departure (of A'zam Shāh), and as there would be some delay in Ibrāhīm's arrival, Prince Bīdār Bakht (A'zam Shāh's son), the governor of Mālwa, was appointed to protect Gujarāt After Ibrāhīm Khān had arrived at Ahmadābād and before he had been firmly seated there (lit had not made the seat warm) and when the Prince (Bīdār Bakht), who was expecting his coming, had not yet left the city, the news came of the death of Aurangzib They say that Ibiāhīm Khān, who regarded himself as an A'zamshāhī (partizan of A'zam Shāh) immediately sent a message of congratulation to the Prince (Bīdār Bakht) Bīdār Bakht said in reply, 4 "We know the worth of 'Alamgīr Bādshāh What advantage is it that for a while heaven has proved favourable to us? Now men will know to what a madman the management of affairs is coming 'After Bahādur Shāh became the King, Muhammad 'Azīm-ush-Shān 5 on account of having been displeased 6 with Ibrāhīm s conduct in Bengāl wished to do him against trusting Aurangzīb, Manucci, I, p 301

² Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, pp 163, 236 It appears from Stewart's History of Bengal, p 324, that Ibrāhīm was appointed to Bengal in 1689, ie, 1100 AH in the 32nd year of the reign.

¹ Khāfī Khān, II, p 41, where it is stated he resigned and was granted a pension of Rs 5,000 a month See also 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 158 Ibrāhīm warned Murād against trusting Aurangrīb Manuaci, I p 201

³ In the text A'zam, but the variant 'Azīm is correct

This is taken from Khāfī Khān, II, p 567, but the remark about a madman's succession is not there Khāfī Khān was then in company with Muhammad Murād, the reporter for Gujarāt Tt was Muhammad Murād who was sent by Ibrāhīm Khān to announce to Bīdār Bakht the death of his grandfather, etc See also Elliot, VII, p 388, where there is a mistake about Ibrāhīm Khān It was Bīdār Bakht who was told to wait at the Mālwa frontier Khāfī Khān says that if A'zam Shāh had not been suspicious of his son and had not prevented him from going at once to Āgra, A'zam Shāh might have been successful

^{5 2}nd son of Bahādur Shāh

G Basabab nā khushī Bangāla, the statement is concise and obscure. What it refers to is that Ibrāhīm Khān did not manage well in Bengāl, for he was too lement and did not show vigour in putting down Rahīm Khān. See the account of his administration in Stewart's History of Bengal, p. 328 et seq. and in the Riyād-us-Salātīn, p. 223 et seq. It appears from Stewart and the Riyād that 'Azīm-ush Shān

The Khān-Khānān (Mun'ım Khān) having regard for his family and his services, and in his absence interceded (on his behalf) an order came from the Court appointing Ibrāhīm Khān to the government of Afghānistān, and conferring on him the title of 'Alī Mardān Khān Ibrāhīm Khān hastened to Peshāwai and there took up his abode he could not govern the province in the way that it should have been administered, and accordingly the governorship was transferred to Nāsir Ibrāhīm Khān went to Ibrāhīmābād Sodhara which is thirty hos from Lähore and was regarded by him as his native country, and died there after some months His son was Zabardast Khān, who, when his father was governor of Bengāl, had led an aimy and fought a severe battle with Rahim Khān, an Afghān, who had raised the head of sedition and called himself Rahim Shāh The latter was completely defeated ² In the 42nd year of Aurangzīb, he was made the governor of Oudh and had a commission of 3,000 with 2,500 horse. In the 49th year when Muhammad A'zam Shāh left, he had the charge of Ajmēr and a commission of 4,000 with 3,000 horse Another son was Ya'qūb Khān, who in the time of Bahādur Shāh was made the governor of Lāhōre, as the deputy After his father's death, he had the title of Ibrāhīm of Asaf-ud-Daula They say, that he presented to Shāh 'Ālam a 11ng from Yaman,3 the surface of which naturally bore on it the letters of the words God, Muhammad, and 'Alī Though an examination was made to see if this was not artificial, it was proved at last that it was natural

IBRĀHĪM KHĀN FATH JANG

(Vol I, pp 135-139)

He was the son of I'tımād-ud-Daula Mīrzā Ghıyāth At first he was appointed, by Jahangir Bakhshi and historiographer of Ahmadabad At that time Shaikh Faiid Murtadā Khān was the Sūbadār and he had not allowed four (successive) Bakhshīs--who wanted to do their work according to the rules—to enter on their duties Mīrzā Ibrāhīm. by tee and studying the circumstances, did not even use the name (of Bal 1/2 shi), but every day went to pay his respects After a month the Shi/1/2 said "Why don't you take up your duties?" The Mīrzā replied "I do not want to do any work, I only want to please the Nawwab" The Sharkh wrote to the (ie his) Court-vakil requesting him to write to him without suppression or addition whatever Ibrāhīm wrote to I'tımād-ud-Daula As the Mīrzā wrote nothing about the Shaikh except what was favourable, the vakīl reported accordingly Murtadā Khān was pleased with the quietness and discretion of the Mīrzā and left the affairs of the mansabdars to him and presented him a house, elephant was jealous of Zabardast Khān, the brave son of Ibrāhīm Khān, and thwarted Ibrāhīm Khān was too mild a governor

¹ It is West of Lahore on the Chenab It is the Sodhra of Imperial Gazetteer, XXIII, p 68

² See Stewart's History of Bengal, p 336 Zabardast Khān was interrupted in his career of victory by 'Azīm-ush-Shān

³ Nagīna Yamanī was perhaps a cornelian A son, Fidā'ī Khān, is also mentioned on p 236 of Maāthu-1-'Ālamgīrī as having conquered Qariya (?) Tibet from Dıldal zamındar ın the 27th year of Aurangzib, 1094 A H and money After two or three days he went to his house as a guest, and presented him all the articles of furniture, such as carpets, gold and silver vessels, etc, which he had sent from his own store At the end of the entertainment he wrote a note (dastagi) to the officers of Gujarāt that they should offer a welcome (Dryāfat, a feast) to the Bakhshī He put his own name down for Rs 50,000, assigned Rs 5,000 as the share of the mansabdārs and a lac of rupees as the share of the zamīndārs He also said to the clerks that they should immediately take the full amount to the Mīrzā from his treasury and collect it afterwards. He also wrote repeatedly to the Court (about Ibrāhīm Khān), and in the course of a year he was raised to the rank of 1,000 When I'timad-ud-Daula's family was advanced, the Mīrzā came to the Court, and, in the 9th year, obtained a mansab of 1,500 with 300 horse and the title of Khān, and was made the Court-Bakhshi By degrees he rose to the rank of 5,000 and got the title of Ibrāhīm Khān Fath Jang, and was appointed governor of Bengāl and Orīssa

When, in the 19th year, Prince Shah Jahan proceeded by the route of Telingana towards Bengal, Ahmad Beg Khan, the brother's son of Ibiāhīm Khān, who was the Nā'ib of Orīssa, had gone to attack the zamīndāis of Kōkiah 1 When he heard of Shāh Jahān's approach, he went to Pipli, which was the seat of government, and transferred his family and goods to Cuttack which was 12 kos distant As he had not power to withstand Shāh Jahān he went off to Bengāl The Prince came to Orissa and sent a message to Ibrāhīm Khān by Jān Nithār Khān, and I'tımād Khān Khwāja Idıāk to the effect, that by destiny he had come to this country, and although in the eyes of manly courage the extent of this country was no more than a practising ground (jaulāngāh), but as it was on his road he could not avoid a cursory view of the afea If Ibiāhīm Khān wishes to go to the Piesence 2 (of Jahāngīr), there would be no opposition and no injuly to his honoul of property. Or, if he likes to stay in the country, he might choose any place he likes to reside Ibiāhīm Khān who, on hearing of Shāh Jahān's expedition, had come from Dacca to Rajmahal, replied that the orders of the Prince were the interpretation of the commands of God, and that his life and property were at the Prince's disposal, but that the laws of faithfulness to one's salt, and his having been nuitured by the King were obstacles in his way, and that he could not come to wait upon the Prince Nor could he resolve upon departing and showing the face of shame to his equals and contemporaries As the King had entrusted this country to his old servant, he could not, for the sake 3 of his borrowed life of no valuefor it is known what remains of life—show slackness in the work of his He was helpless and would give his head to be trodden by the hoofs of the Prince's troops He desues that after his death the country should be given to the servants of the King As his men were scattered, and the fort of Akbarnagar (Rājmahal) was very large, Ibrāhīm

¹ In Iqbālnāma-1-Jahāngīrī, p Karōh کروه ,217 In Tüzuk-ı-Jahangiri

⁽Rogers and Bevendge's translation) II. p 298, it is transcribed as Khurda In a footnote on the same page the exact position of Piplī is also discussed by Beveridge

² Vide Iqbālnāma-i-Jahāngīrī, p 218

³ The passage is somewhat obscure in the text In Iqbālnama-i-Jahāngīrī, p 219, from where the passage is taken, it is quite clear, for Ibrāhīm Khān states that he knows from the good things of past life, what there is in store for the future

Khān went to the tomb of his son, which was one kos from the fort and on the bank of the Ganges Formerly the fort had been on the bank of the river, but now it had been for a long time at the above-mentioned distance from it Ibrāhīm Khān sought protection in the tomb which was unique in solidity and strength, and where the fleet could bring auxiliaries and supplies by way of the river

The Prince took an omen of victory from the words and acts of Ibrāhīm Khān, viz, that he had used the word "death" and had gone to a tomb, and took up his quarters in the city and sent his men to besiege the enclosure Then the flames of battle arose inside and outside 'Abdullāh Khān Fīrūz Jang and Daryā Khān Rohila crossed over to the other side Ibrāhīm Khān became disconcerted and with Ahmad Bēg Khān—who had now joined him, he came out of the fort (i e the tomb) and fought There was a great battle and Ahmad Beg Khan received several wounds On seeing this Ibrāhīm Khān could not restrain himself and galloped forward In this onset order was lost and most of his followers fled Ibrāhīm Khān with a few stood firm, and though his men wanted to remove him from such a dangerous place, he would not consent and said "Mv fate does not need it, what better can there be than to give my life in my master's service" He had not finished speaking when he was attacked on all sides and killed As his family and goods were in Dacca, Ahmad Beg Khan went there The Prince too went there by the river, and Ahmad Beg could not but submit About forty lacs of rupees besides other properties in elephants and clothes, etc., fell into the hands of the Prince 1 From that time Ahmad Beg was an object of favour In the last year (of Shāh Jahān) he had high rank, and became governor of Thatha and Sistan and after that he was made governor of Multan When he returned to the Court he received the parganas of Jās ² and east Amēthī in fief There he died a natural death Ibrāhīm Khān had (i e left) no children His wife was Hajī Hūr Parwar (nourished by houris [?]) Khānam who was the maternal aunt ³ of Nūr Jahān Bēgam She had a long span of life and survived till the middle of Aurangzīb's reign, she had 'Alīgarh (Kōl-Jalālī) as her fief (altamahā) She lived there in repose and tranquillity till she died

Ibrāhīm Khān Ūzbeg

(Vol I, pp 75–77)

He was one of the officers of Humāyūn In the year when India was conquered, he was appointed to Lāhōre along with Shāh Abūl Ma'ālī so that they might check Sikandar Sūr if he came out from the hill country and attacked the imperial territory After that Ibrāhīm

¹ For details of Shah Jahan's campaign in Orissa and Bengal, see Banarsi

Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 48-50

2 Both parganas are in Oudh, Imperial Gazetteer, XIII, p 402, V, p 292 There is an account of Ibrāhīm's battle and death in the Riyād-us-Salātīn, p 192, etc It is in the Riyād-us-Salātīn, p 383, etc taken from Muhammad Hādī's supplement to the Tūzuk-ı Jahāngūī, pp 383, etc

³ See also Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), p 575, where it is stated that Ibrāhīm Khān was Nūr Jahān's brother, and he was married to her maternal aunt (Khāla)

Khān obtained, as his fief, Surhaipūi 1 which is a dependency of Jaunpūi, and was continually engaged, in concert with 'Alī Qulī Khān Zamān in protecting that tract of country In Akbar's time, the rebellion of Khān Zamān and Sikandai Khān Ūzbeg, occurred Ashraf Khān Mīr Munshī brought to Sıkandar Khān a gracious farmān, but the latter said "Ibrāhīm Khān is the Agsigāl, that is, whitebearded, he is a near neighbour, I shall go and see him We shall come together to the Court ' He went to Surhaipūr and from there the two went to Khān Zamān They arranged that the aforesaid Khān should go with Sikandai Khān to Lucknow, and kindle the fire of sedition Accordingly the Khan went there and became a source of turbulence

When Mun'ım Khān the Khān-Khānān had an interview with 'Alī Qulī Jahān a fiesh agreement for service was made, and Khān Jahānwho was the centre of the imperial affairs—came from the Presence The Khān-Khānan wished to go in company with him to Khān Zamān's tents, and asked the latter to come to his camp as a hostage. It was agreed that Khān Zamān should proceed to the Court with his mother and fitting presents Accordingly Khān-Khānān and Khwāja Jahān set out for Khan Zaman's tents and the latter came before His Majesty with his sword and a shroud round his neck. He was pardoned, and the sword and shroud were removed When in the 12th year, Khān Zamān and Sıkandar Khān again stined up rebellion, they went towards Oudh When later Sikandar Khān went towards Bengāl, Ibrāhīm obtained pardon through the intervention of the Khān-Khānan, and received favours and was included among the followers of Khān-Khānān The date of his death is not known It was his son Ismā'il Khān to whom 'Alī Qulī Khān Zamān had given the township of Sandīla (m Oudh) as a jāgīr third year, that township was assigned to Sultan Husain Khan Jala'ii, Ismā'īl Khān delayed in giving him possession Afterwards, when it was taken from him by force, he brought an army from Khān Zamān, there was a battle and he was defeated ²

IFTIKHĀR KHĀN, KHWĀJA ABŪL BAQĀ

(Vol I, pp 200-203)

He was a brother's son of 'Abdullah Khan Firuz Jang, and sister's son of Mahābat Khan Khān-Khānān 3 He held Lucknow as his jāgū, and, in the 18th year of Shāh Jahān's reign, obtained the title of Iftikhāi Khān and the service of the Tuzuk (office of marshal), and a jewelled mace on the death of Mīi Khān, who was killed in the domestic 4 broil (khāna-jangī) between Salabāt Khān and Amai Singh Afterwards he

Surharpūi is a pargana in the Faidābād district of Oudh ² In Akbarnāma, Text II, pp 68, 69, and Bevendge's translation II, p 106 For a notice of Ibrāhīm Khān and his son 1smā'īl Khān, see Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), pp 416, 417 In $Akbarn\bar{a}ma$, however, it is not clearly stated that Ismā'īl Khān was killed

³ For 'Abdullāh Khān Firūz Jang see Maāthu-ul-Umarā, II, pp 777-789 and Beveridge's translation, pp 97-105, for Mahābat Khān, id, III, pp 385-409

4 It was an assassination commuted in Shāh Jahān's presence, see Bādshāhnāma, II, p 380 Salābat Khān was the Mīr Bakhshī His tomb is between Agra and Sikandra (Keene's Agra, p 49) was granted the faujdārī of Akbainagai (Rājmahal) and was promoted to a mansab of 1,500 with 1,500 horse In the 26th year, he made himself conspicuous to all by his courage in the battle with the Persians at Qandahār When the Persian army attacked the right wing of Rustam Khān s army, most of that body became disordered But Iftikhār Khān, at the head of a few men, remained firm, and was rewarded by receiving an increase of 500 with 500 horse, and so being promoted to the rank of 2,000 with 2,000 hoise and granted a flag. As his straightforwardness and zeal were deserving of reward, he, in the 25th year, at the festival of the solar weighment, received an advance of 500 and the present of drums When, in the 27th year, he was appointed to accompany Prince Dārā Shikōh in the expedition to Qandahāi, he was, at the request of the Prince, given an increase of 500 In the 28th year, he was given the tiyūldārī and faugdārī of Chūrāgarh in the province of Mālwa and received an increase of 1,000 with 1,000 horse and was raised to a mansab of 3 000 with 3,000 horse. When, in the 30th year, Prince Aurangzīb, the governor of the Decean, was directed to chastise Sultān 'Abdullāh Qutb Shāh, the ruler of Teling 1, Shāyista Khān, the Sūbadār of Mālwa, left along with Iftikhar Khan and other faujdars and mansabdars attached to that province to join the Prince's aimy Iftikhāi Khān was, by the Prince s order (ba amr shāhī), appointed to the southern battery along with Hādī Dād Khān Ansārī When that undertaking had been finished, he obtained leave to go to his fief When, in the end of the same year, the aforesaid Prince was appointed to subdue the country of 'Adıl Shāh the ruler of Bijāpūr, Iftikhār Khān, in accordance with the royal order, hastened from his fief and joined the Prince's army When, in the 31st year, the Prince 2 arrived at Bidar with a large army, Sidi Marjan, the governor of the fort—who was one of the old servants of Ibiāhīm 'Adıl Khan, and who had been guarding the foitiess for thirty years took it on himself to safeguard it He had with him nearly 1,000 horse, and 4,000 infantry including musketeers, and grenadiers (bandar lit rocket holders) and an abundance of the munitions of war Prince and Mu'azzam Khān Mīr Jumla, in the course of ten days, brought up the guns to the edge of the fort and destroyed a bastion By chance, one day when an assault was made from Mu'azzam Khān's battery, the governor of the fort, who had prepared a large trench behind the said bastion and had filled it with gunpowder, rockets $(b\bar{a}n)$ and grenades (huqqa), was close by prepared to repel the attack, a spark reached the gunpowder and he and two of his sons were buint Brave men beat loudly the drum of victory and entered the city The governor had been seized by the claws of death, but he sent his sons with the keys of the Next day he died This great fortress—which had three moats, 25 yards broad and 15 yards deep, cut in the rock—was, through the good fortune of the Prince, taken within twenty-seven days with great ease Twelve lacs of rupees in coin, and eight lacs of rupees worth of lead, gunpowder and other munitions together with 230 guns were captured The Prince left his second son, Sultān Muḥammad M'azzam, with Iftikhār Khān in the fort and continued his advance The

² See Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, pp 240-242

 $^{^1}$ He was the ruler of Haidaiābād and Gölconda See Khāfī Khān, I, p 741, Aurangzīb set out in 1066 A H campaign had not been fully completed when, by the royal order, the Prince and his auxiliaries had to icturn to his place. At the same time Maha rāja Jaswant was appointed to settle Mālwa, and all the fietholderwere directed to assist him. Iftikh ir khan out of his zeal was the first Suddenly the fateful heavens produced an event 1 to join the Raja which had not entered into the imagination of any one, and in the beginning of the 32nd year, 1068 AH, Prince Aurangeib came to Malwa with his army on his way to the Capital As the Raja blocked his pith and was in expectation of this day, prepulations were made for the bittle Iftikhār Khān and the other mansabdars arranged themselves on his left wing and engaged Murad Bakhsh's troops, which formed 'Alamgir's right wing The Khan was killed They say, that though he was a Khuapazada of the Nagshbandi order, he had embraced the Imamiva (Shi a) religion and had so committed to memory the proofs and arguments for that religion that others found it difficult to refute him. He had also some tineture of knowledge

HIIIGHTR KHTS SULFAN HUSAIN

(Vol 1 pp 252-255)

He was the eldest son of Asalat khan Mir Bul hishi = When his father died in Balkh, in the 20th year of Shah Jahan's reign, the appreciative Sovereign had regard for the good service of that zealous and energetic servant and patronised his children. In the 21st year, he appointed Sultan Husain to the Superintendency of the Quilhanas, and in the following year he was made Superintendent of the branding (of horses) in succession to Rahmat Khān. In the 24th year, he was made fanydār of the Miyan Dūāb and, in the 31st year, he obtained the rank of 1,000 with 500 horse. In company with Mahārāja Jaswant Singh, who by the contrivance of Dārā Shikōh had been appointed to confront Amangzīb, he was sent to Malwa. At the same time that fortunate Prince crossed the Naibada and came to that province The Raja blocked his path and prepared for battle. After the leading Rapputs had been put to the sword by Aurangzib, and the Maharaja becoming distracted had taken to flight, a number of the auxiliaries joined Aurangzīb, while many escaped with their lives Sultan Husain, who had been appointed along with trusty men to the front section of the vanguard, withdrew and proceeded towards Agra When Aurangzib became King, he, as a judge of ment, increased Sultan Husain's rank and conferred on him the title of Iftikhāi Khān After the battle with Shujā' he was made Master of the Hoise in place of Saif Khan, and promoted to the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 horse In the 6th year, he was made Min-1-Sāmān in place of Fādil Khān who received the high office of Vazīr As he had adapted himself to the King's disposition, he for a long time served him and held an assured position

¹ The illness of Shāh Jahān in September 1657, see Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, p 320

² Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 167-172, Beveridge's translation, pp 295-299 ³ The Insignia, see Blochmann's translation of the \bar{A} 'īn, I (2nd edn), p 52, note 4

In the 13th 1 year, it was reported to the King that Prince Muhammad Mu'azzam (Bahādur Shāh), the Viceroy (Nāzim) of the Deccan, had, on account of bad companionship, self-indulgence, and the deceit of flatterers departed from the right path and become proud and insubordinate Knowing Sultan Husain to be trustworthy and acquainted with his policy, Aurangzīb sent him to the Deccan, and gave him both sweet and bitter instructions, and such as fitted the occasion Sultān Husain went there with alacrity and discharged his trust. As the Prince was loyal and the reports about him were false, he did nothing but submit and showed his readiness to act according to the King's pleasure King was convinced of his honesty, and his wrath turned to complaisance But at the same time evil speakers found the opportunity and made the King displeased with Iftikhāi Khān When he returned to the Presence, he was, in spite of all the honour and confidence that had been given to him, deprived of his rank and title, and a mace-bearer was appointed to convey him across the Indus In the 14th year, his faults were pardoned and he was restored to his office and title, and again encompassed with favours and appointed governor of Kashmīr in succession to Saif Afterwards he was transferred from Kashmīr to Peshāwar at the time when the Afghans had made a disturbance In the 12th year, he was made faujdār of the Bangash, and, in the 21st, when he was appointed to the government of Ajmēr he was ordered to accompany Prince Muhammad Akbar In the 23rd year, he was made fauydār of Jaunpūr, and, in the 24th, 1092, he died His sons ² 'Abdullāh, 'Abdul Hādī and 'Abdul Bāqī appeared before the King and received mourning robes In the time of Bahādur Shāh, one of them obtained the title of Asalat Khan, and was appointed as the deputy of Mukhtar Khān in the office of the Khān-i-Sāmān During this reign he, after suffering much adversity came to the Deccan, where the appreciative Asaf Jah came to his relief and made him Dīvān of the Deccan last he was appointed governor of Haidarābād, and ended his days there The other became known by becoming the son-in-law of Ma'mūr Khān He got the title of Tafākhur Khān and, in the reign of Muhammad Failukh siyar, he became governor of the fort of Bījāpūi, and lived for a long time in that deserted place, nor did the door of comfort and tranquillity open to his distressed circumstances In the same place he died

IHTIMĀM KHĀN

(Vol I, pp 160-162)

One of the $W\bar{a}l\bar{a}$ - $Sh\bar{a}h\bar{i}s$ (household troopers) of Shāh Jahān In the first year of the reign, he received the rank of a 1,000 3 with 250 In the 3rd year, when the Deccan became the King's camping ground, and three armies under the command of three Amīrs were sent to chastise Khān Jahān Lōdī and to devastate the country of Nizām-ul-Mulk who had protected him, he was made $D\bar{a}r\bar{o}gha$ of the artillery and sent along with A'zam Khān In the battle in which A'zam Khān attacked

Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, pp 100, 101
 Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, pp 209, 210
 Bādshāhnāma, I, p 119

Khān Jahān Lōdī, and m which Bahādui the brothei's son of Khān Jahān stubbornly resisted, Ihtimām Khān and Bahādui Khān Rohila were among the first 1 to get to the summit of the hill (the pass) and did good service After that when A'zam Khān went towards Jāmkhērī² with the intention of extirpating Muqariab Khān and Bahlūl, Ihtimām Khān was appointed to take the fort of Telingi and rendered good service in taking it In the 4th year, he obtained the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse and was made thanadar of Jalna 3 In the 5th year, he received an augmentation of 200 horse, and in the 6th year he obtained the rank of 2,000 with 1,200 horse In the 9th year, when Shāh Jahān went to the Deccan for the second time and sent three armies under three generals for the chastisement of Sāhū Bhonsle, and to devastate the country of 'Ādıl Khān, Ihtımām Khān got an increase of 300 horse and went off with Khān Daurān He did good service in the siege of the fort of Usa,4 and after its capture was appointed its governor. In the 10th year, he received the honour of kettledrums, but in the 13th year he was removed from there, and, at the request 5 of Prince Aurangzib was made thanadar of Khërla in Berär In the 14th year, he came to the Court and received a robe of honour, a horse and an elephant and was made the thānadār of Ghürband in succession to Himmat Khan In the 19th year, he went with Prince Murad Bakhsh to conquer Balkh and Badakhshan, and after the fort of Ghūr (or Ghūrī) was taken, he was appointed to its charge As it appeared that he did not behave 6 well to the men there, he was removed in the 20th year, and in the same year 1056 A H (1646 A D) he died

(Khān 'Ālam) Ikhlās Khān

(Vol I, pp 816, 817)

He was the eldest son of Khān Zamān Shaikh Nizām 7 year, he entered the service of Aurangzīb along with his father and received a suitable rank In the 32nd year, when his father made great exertions in capturing Sambhā, he took part in the enterprise obtained the rank of 5,000 with 4,000 horse and the title of Khān 'Alam In the 39th year, he was granted an increase of 1,000 with 1,000 horse, and, in the 43rd year, he distinguished himself in the battle which Muhammad Bidar Bakht fought with Rana Bhonsle In the 50th year, he was appointed to guard Malwa and was ordered to accompany Muhammad A'zam Shāh who had gone off towards Mālwa some days before the King's death After that event he attached himself to Muḥammad A'zam Shāh and on the day of the battle with Bahādur Shāh he confronted Sultān 'Azīm-ush-Shān and made a brave attack He was killed 8 by a bullet One of his sons was Khān 'Ālam II, who, after his father, became the head of the family He held by inheritance

¹ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 330 ² Jamkhīr about 30 miles S E of Aurangābād, Elliot, VII, p 16 The Jamkhed

of Imperial Gazetteer, XIV, p 47

3 East of Aurangābād, vide Imperial Gazetteer, XIV, p 29

4 Ooscotta of Grant-Duff The Owsa of Imperial Gazetteer, XIX, p 294

6 Bādshāhnāma, II, p 565

⁵ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 205 6 Bādsh 7 Maāthir-ul-Umarā, I, pp 794—798 8 Khāfī Khān, II, p 591 Battle of Jājau, 18th June, 1707

the pargana of Basmat 1 as jāgīr in the province of Bīdar, and resided there He was much attached to his wife, and left to her the management of the jagii Owing to the jugglery of fate she died, he lamented much for her and died four months afterwards He was a zealous collector of levels and almoul, but made no use of them. He also accumulated much cash, and after his death more than half of it was confiscated He had no son The second son was Ihtisham Khan, who died young His son Ihtisham Khan, II, hved with his uncle Khan 'Alam married to his daughter. She left a son, who, after much exertion, got the title of Khan 'Alam and the hereditary fief mentioned above But by the jugglery of fate he died in early youth

IKHLĀS KHĀN IKHLĀS KĒSH (Vol I, pp 350-352)

He was the son of a Hindū of the Khatrī Balī 2 (?) tribe His real name was Dēbī Dās, and his ancestois were qānūngos of the township of Kalānaur, which is forty los from Lāhōre. From early youth he had applied himself to study. He lived in the Capital and by associating with learned people and with fagirs he became a cultured man As he was a disciple of Mullā 'Abdullāh' of Siyālkōt, he by his recommendation entered the service of Aurangzib and received the name of Ikhlas Kesh 4 In the 25th year, he had a small appointment and became clerk of the kitchen In the 26th year he was clerk of the Oratory, in the 29th year clerk of petitions and in the 30th year he was pēshdast ⁵ (assistant) of Rūh Ullāh Khān Mīr Bakhshī in place of Yāi 'Alī Bēg In the 33id veai, he replaced Sharaf-ud-Dīn as Wāqi'a-navīs of the Khān-i-Sāmān's office, and afterwards he was Amin 6 of the capitation-tax in the province of Bidar In the 39th year, he was Amin and faujdar of pargana Andur 7 in place of Muhammad Kāzim, and in that year his rank was 400 with 350 horse In the 41st year, he was again pēshdast of Rūh Ullāh Khān, the Khān-1-Sāmān In the 50th year, he had Muhammad added to his name, and was made Vakīl of Shāh 'Ālam On the death of Aurangzīb, as 'Azam Shāh was displeased with him on account of this vakīlship, Basālat Khān Mīrzā Sultān interceded for him and, as it was shown that he was blameless, he received a parwāna (order or permission) and remained in Aurangābād When Bahādur Shāh became the Sovereign, he came to the Court and received an appointment of 2,500 with 1,000 horse, and the title of Ikhlās Khān, and was appointed to the office of 'Ard Mukarrar (Reviser of petitions) They say, that when the chief officer 8

¹ North-west of Nander, Haidarabad

² Variant Nali

 $^{^3}$ Maāther-e-'Ālamgīrī, pp 148, 220 He died in 1094 A H (1683 A D)

⁴ Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 220 The title means sincere in religion

 ⁵ Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 283
 6 Loc cit, p 380
 7 This is probably a place in the Deccan, and not Andōrah of the Bārī Dūāb
 8 Perhaps Sar-i-Darbār means here the subject brought before the darbār The minister referred to as the Khān-Khānān was Mun'ım Khān who afterwards fell into disgrace on account of his letting Banda the Sikh leader escape, see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text III, pp 667-677, and Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, pp 109-116 The account in the text is taken from Khāfī Khān, II, pp 628, 629, where Ikhlas Khan is called Jadid-ul-Islam, the new convert to Islam

(Sar-v-Darbar) brought forward the subject of petitions, and as the Emperor was also a man of learning, there used to be long conversations between them about theological subjects, and a hint was given to the other officers that they should remain silent, as the questions of commentaries and traditions were being discussed and secular matters must be postponed for the time As both the Emperor and his minister for the time being had extraoidinaily liberal ideas, scarcely anyone's petition was rejected The Khan, who was noted for his severity and keenness in business matters, said to the Khān-Khānān "The tree of the Emperor's universal benevolence will not bear any fruit except by the confiscation of many of the fiefs" Khān-Khānān knew that the odium of the inquiry would fall on himself, and so he put it on to Ikhläs He too could not bear reproaches of men and withdrew from service, and Must'id Khān Muhammad Sāqī was appointed to the office In the time of Jahandar Shah, Dhulfaqar Khan expanded the office of the Dīwān-1-Tan 1 and made Ikhlās Khān his assistant In the time of Farrukh-siyar, when there was much violence, and several officers had then eye upon him, Qutb-ul-Mulk and Husain 'Alī remembered old friendship and sent him to his home which was in the town of Jansath 2 Afterwards they represented matters to the Emperor, and sent him sanads confirming him in his mansab and jāgīr and summoned him to the Court Though, on account of his independent nature, he did not wish again to take up service, he did so at the insistence of the two brothers He was made Mīr Munshī and entrusted with the duty of writing the records of the reign After Farrukh-siyai was deposed, he obtained a mansab of 7,000 In the time of Muhammad Shāh he also filled the He was a tactful man and one who knew the Court never wore anything but white clothes They say, that even when he was of low rank the highest officers honoured him. He composed 3 a history of the events of the reign of Muhammad Fairukh-siyar and called it the Bādshāhnāma He died at his appointed time

IKHLĀŞ KHĀN SHAIKH ILĀHDIYA

(Vol I, pp 198, 199)

He was the son of Kishwar Khān Shaikh Ibrāhīm, son of Qutb-ud-Dīn Khān Shaikh Khūban of whom an account is given separately (Text III, pp 65-68) Shaikh Ibrāhīm obtained, in the first year of Jahāngīr, the rank of 1,000 with 300 horse and the title of Kishwar Khān 3rd year, he was made governor of Rohtās In the 4th year, he came to the Court and obtained the rank of 2,000 with 2,000 horse, and was made the $fauyd\bar{a}r$ of Ujjain In the 7th year, he bravely yielded up his life in the faujdār of Ujjain

¹ For Dīwān-1-Tan, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar's Mughal Administration, pp 46-48. ² In the Muzaffarnagar district, U P Famous as the home of Jansath Saiyids,

Imperial Gazetteer, XIV, p 62 It was sacked in Muhammad Shāh's reign, see Siyar-ul-Muta'aLhkhirīn, I, p 296

3 See Khāfī Khan, II, p 774 The work does not seem to exist now Beale identifies this Ikhlās Khān with Kishn Chand who wrote the Hamēsha Bahār, see pp 176 and 223, and also Rieu, Catalogue, p 1086b The Hamēsha Bahār is described in Sprenger's Oudh Cat, p 117, but probably Kishn Chand and Dēbī Dās are not the same. This biography is by 'Abdul Havy the same This biography is by 'Abdul Hayy service of his master in the battle which Shujā'at Khān fought with 'Uthmān Afghān, who was raising the standard of airogance in Oissa ¹ Shaikh Ilāhdiya obtained a suitable office, and, in the 8th year of Shāh Jahan, was appointed to accompany Prince Aurangzib on the expedition against Jujhār Singh Bundēla In the 17th year, he was raised to the rank of 1,500 with 1,000 horse and made governor of Kālinjar 19th year, he accompanied Prince Murad Bakhsh in the expedition to Balkh and Badakhshan, and obtained the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 horse and the title of Ikhlas Khan In the 20th year, he was, at the instance of Jumlat-ul-Mulk Sa'ad Ullah Khan—who hastened off after the return of Prince Murad Bakhsh to arrange the affairs of Balkh-favoured with an increase of 500 horse In the 21st year, he returned, and by the royal order was separated from Plince Aurangzib and attached to the King. Afterwards he was given a flag In the 22nd year, he was raised to the rank of 2,500 with 2,000 horse and sent off to Qandahār with Prince Aurangzib In the 23rd year, he had an increase of 500 and in the 29th year was granted drums, and accompanied for the second time the above-mentioned Prince In the 26th year, he went with Prince Dāiā Shikōh to the same region and received a robe of honour and a horse with a saddle and silver mountings From Qandahāi he went with Rustam Khān to take Bust, and, in the 28th year, he went with Jumlat-ul-Mulk (Sa'ad Ullāh) to demolish Chittōr In the 30th year, he was among the auxiliaries of the Deccan with Mu'azzam Khān and went to join Prince Aurangzīb, the Viceroy In the war 2 with 'Adil-Khānis he behaved bravely and was wounded in the leg by a spear Afterwards, in the 31st year, he was raised to the rank of 3,000 with 1,000 horse Nothing more is mentioned about him

(SAIYID) IKHTISĀS KHĀN, OR SAIYID FĪRŪZ JANG

(Vol II, pp 473-475)

He was the brother's son and son-in-law of Saiyid Khān Jahān Bārah of Shāh Jahān's reign In his uncle's lifetime he attained the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse, and, after his death he, in the 19th year, obtained an increase of 500 with 600 horse. In the 20th year, he went with some officers to Balkh to convey 25 lacs of rupees to Sa'ad Ullāh On his return, his rank became 2,000 with 1,000 horse and he was presented a flag In the 22nd year, he received the title of Khān and went with Prince Aurangzib on the expedition to Qandahār On his return he received a robe of honour and a horse with a silvered saddle From there he went with Rustam Khān to help Qulīj Khān; and marched He did good service in the battle with the Persians, and was wounded in the arm by a bullet In the 25th year, he went for the second time with the said Prince on the same expedition, and received a robe of honour, etc In the 26th year, he went on the same expedition with Prince Dārā Shikōh In the 29th year, he was made fauydār of

 $^{^1}$ Apparently the battle was fought in Eastern Bengal, see Blochmann's translation of the $\overline{A'\bar{\imath}n},$ I (2nd edn), p 587 2 The reference is apparently to Aurangzīb's campaign against the Bījāpūr in 1657, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, pp 236–250

Ī1ī], 1 Bhāndan and Shāhzādapūr, which were dependencies of the Capital and crown-lands ($\underline{Kh}\bar{a}lsa\ mahals$) and which had been ruined by the neglect of Najābat Khān, the revenue of these was three krors, 40 lacs of dams After the sovereignty came to Aurangzīb, he along with the Mīrzā Rāja Jai Singh—who had left Sulaiman Shikoh, and intended to come to the Court—paid his respects and joined the expedition to Hardwar under Shāyısta Khān for the purpose of checking the progress of Sulaimān Shikōh After the battle with Sultān Shujā', he was appointed to Bengāl, and in the end of the 2nd year, when Fīrūz Mēwātī got the title of Khān, he received that of Saiyid Ikhtisas Khan For a long time he was thanadar of Gauhatī in Āssām In the 10th year, when the demon-like Assamese came with a great body of men, and as help did not arrive the $\underline{\text{Kh}}$ ān bravely gave his life in the service of his King in 1077 ² (1666-67 A D)

ILĀHWARDĪ KHĀN (Vol I, pp 207–215)

He was descended 3 from the Saljūq family They say that he came directly in the line of Sultān Sanjar Saljūqī He was an honest There are many stories of his youth They say that and clever man when he went to Europe, he was seized on suspicion of being a spy By chance on the day of a festival, he was produced before the ruler on the occasion of a tent-pegging display (nēzabāzī· sport with spears). He distinguished himself and the ruler made enquiries about him, and, on being convinced of his innocence, sent him off to India with all honour For some time he was in Burhanpur and lived by his wits 4 (?) As his elder brother Mukhlis Khān was in the service of Sultān Parvīz, he too was introduced to the Sultan and began to prosper Afterwards, as both brothers were skilled in hunting, and Jahāngīr was much given to this pursuit, they became favourites Ilāhwardī Khān obtained the title of Mu'taqid Khān, and was made Qarāwal Bēg (Chief huntsman) He became Jahāngīr's companion, and was always with him on his hunting expeditions. The large net which is the chief item in the Qamargha hunt, and which is called $b\bar{a}war$, was one of his inventions. In the 21st year, it was made of ropes at a cost of 24,000 rupees and produced before Jahāngīr. It is a very strong net and forms a full load for eighty camels. Its length is 10,000 royal cubits ($\underline{D}\underline{h}ar$ 'a), its height six, and like a sarāparda it rests on strong supports. Various kinds of wild animals are brought within it and hunted. On the death of Jahāngīr, at the time of the affan of Shahryār, he behaved with loyalty and made himself.

3 Literally—The sap ('arg) of his genealogical tree is derived from the trunk of the Saljūq član

1 Ba 'avyārī u tarāzī guzrānīda—Lived by fraud and quackery? There is the

¹ Janett's translation of A'in, II, p 187 2 It appears from 'Alamgīrnāma, p 947, that he was also employed in the 10th year in the expedition to Chittāgong The account of the attack on Gauhatī and of the death of Ikhtisās Khān, there called Saiyid Fīrūz Khān, is given on p 1068 There, as also in the Maāthir-ul-Umarā Gauhatī is described as being in Bengāl, on the borders of Āssām

⁵ Bāwar is Turkī for a rope, P de Courteille, Dictionary I, p 311, where it is spelt badar Possibly the word is bhanwar which according to Jahangir is the Hindi name for a kind of net, vide Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzul 1 Jahāngīrī, I, p 99

acceptable to Yamin-ud-Daula and fitted for royal favours in company with Asaf Jah, waited upon Shah Jahan, he received a commission of 2,000 Dhāt and horse and the title of Ilāhwardī Khān he was intimate with Mahābat Khān, he displayed great energy in the Had the other officers equally excited themselves siege of Parenda the fortiess would have been taken with ease. In the 8th year, with an increase of 1,000 with 2,000 horse he was promoted to an office of 4,000 with 4.000 horse, and became the governor of Mālwa, in succession to Khān Daurān When the King established himself at Daulatābād in the 9th year, an order was issued to Ilahwardi Khan who had gone with Shāyısta Khān to take the district of Sangamnīr and Junair, to take the Nizām-ul-Mulkī forts which were situated in the direction of the forts of Chāndōi 1 and Dharap Of these, there were six held by Sāhū s (Shāhjī's) men, two held by Bhojbal Nayakwaii, and six held by other rebels Relying on these strongholds, they were sturing up the dust of dissension, and were oppressing the weak Hāhwardī Khān 2 came first to Chāndōr and invested that strong place, which was on the top of a hill and was famous for its strength. He took it by making great efforts, and the other stiff-necked ones, on seeing this, submitted First, Kanhai Rão 3 the governor of Anjarayi asked for quarter and surrendered that strong The Khān, to conciliate the governors of other forts recommended him for the rank of 2,000 and gave him Rs 50,000 in cash from the treasury Then he besieged the forts of Kajna 4 and Majna, which were connected with the fort of Dharap and got possession of both by treaty

Similarly he quickly and easily got possession of forts Rōla Jōla Ahwant 5 and others, all of them were built on the tops of hills. The fort of Rājdihar,6 where many of the relatives of Nizām Shāh were, and who made great efforts to defend it, was taken in the course of two months. He then addressed himself to the taking of Dharap 7 which was noted for its strength and height. In its strength it is not inferior to Daulatābād Bhōjbal 8, the governor of the fort, was so alarmed by the successive victories of Ilāhwardī Khān that he agreed for a mansab of 3,000 and a lac of rupees to surender this strong fort, which could not have been taken except with the aid of fortune, and to enter himself among the servants. In this year many impregnable forts of the country came into the hands of the imperial servants. Accordingly Tālib Kalīm wrote the verses.

Verses

O King! thy fortune has captured the fortune of the world Thy sword has taken the land and life and goods from the foe Thou hast seized in one year forty forts, Of which kings could not have taken one in forty years

¹ In the Nāsık district

² Khāfī Khān, I, p 523 and Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 138, where instead of

Chāndōr we have Chānda See also p 146, where it is Chāndōr 3 Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 146 Hambīr Rāo in Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahadan, p 146

⁴ Kānjana and Mānjana in Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 146
⁵ Khāfī Khān, I, p 524, where the spelling is Hanūnat, but it is Ahwant in Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 147

In short the Khān in the 10th year took leave to take up the fauidārī of Baiswāra 1 and Lucknow, and in the beginning of the 11th year when Murshid Qulī Khān faugdār of Mathurā died 2 from a gunshot wound while attacking a village 3, Ilāhwardī Khān obtained the fief of that place and set out to punish the rebels In the end of the 12th year, he was laised to the high rank of 5,000 personal and horse, and became governor of Delhī in succession to Ghairat Khān When in the 15th year, Dārā Shikōh went to Qandahār with a number of high officers to release that territory on receipt of the news of the setting out of Shāh Safī, the King of Persia, and returned from Afghānistān on hearing of the death of the Shāh—who died from natural causes in Safr 1052 A H (May, 1642 A.D) -Illāhwardī Khān accompanied 4 the force As various traits and dispositions appeared in him which were contrary to the rules of loyalty and fidelity, and as to these there was added an ungovernable tongue, he was deprived of his fief and his rank and was the subject of censure As his good services had been established in the King's mind, the pargana of Sankarpūr 5 with a rental of thirty-four lakhs of dāms was assigned to him for his support Afterwards,6 at the instance of the eldest Prince he was restored to his former rank, and, in the 18th year, he obtained the fief of Ihchpūr On the death of the Khān Daurān, the governor of the Deccan, he was made supreme in Berär When Islam Khan came to the Deccan, they did not get on together At his own request he was recalled to the Court In the 21st year, he kissed the threshold, and received the jāgīr of Gorakhpūr When on account of Qandahār the friendship between Shāh 'Abbas II and Shāh Jahān had been interrupted, and there was a stoppage of mutual embassies, it happened, that in the 26th year a person named Ghulām Rīdā 8 came from Bandar 'Abbās with seven 'Iraqī horses to Sūrat and brought a writing from the Shāh to the guardians of the roads to the effect, that the servant of Ilāhwardī Khān Mīr Ātish (Artillery officer) was bringing some horses and directing that no one should interfere with him From this it was suspected that the Khān had sent some presents (to the Shāh) along with a letter, and that this was the reply Though the sending of a letter and presents to a foreigner and an enemy was contrary to the rules of loyalty and deserving of capital punishment, but out of benevolence and generosity he was (only) deprived again of his rank and jāgīr and censured, and it was directed that he should be sent back without delay from Kābul and he should stay in his own house in Delhī An order was also issued to the clerk at Sūrat to confiscate the horses and all the belongings of Ghulām Ridā and to send him in chains to the Court so that he might meet with due punishment After he came, inquiry 9 was made and it was

¹ Loc cit, p 243, Imperial Gazetteer, VI, p 218 ² Khāfī Khān, I, p 552 ³ This was in pargana Jadwār in the Sāmbhal Saikār Murshid Qulī was faujdār of Mathurā, Mahāban, Kumāon and Pahārī, vide Bādshāhnāma, II, p 7 ⁴ Khāfī Khān, I, p 589, and pp 594, 595 Bādshāhnāma, II, pp 308, 309 ⁵ Should be Shakarpūr, see Bādshāhnāma, II, p 309, and Khāfī Khān, I, p 595

It was in the Sarkār of Delhī

⁶ Bādshāhnāma II, p 378, and Khāfī Khān, I, p 601 The Prince was Dārā

⁷ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 387 ⁷ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 387

⁸ Khāfī Khān, I, p 713

⁹ The cucumstances of this case are described by Khāfī Khān, I, pp 713, 714

He states that Ilāhwardī Khān asserted his innocence and confirmed it by strong oaths, and that Fādul Whān who innocence and confirmed it by strong oaths, and that Fādil Khān, who inquired into the matter, reported that Ghulām found that he had got the document by sending a forged letter with some presents to the general of the Shāh of Persia. Accordingly in the 28th year Ilāhwardī Khān was restored at the request of the eldest Prince (Dārā Shikōh), and became the recipient of royal favours and received a mansab of 5 000 and the fief of Jaunpūr in succession to Mukairam Khān Though during this time he was excluded from the Court for two years and 8 months and lived in retirement, he used to receive for his expenses 70 lacs of dāms a year and at every yearly weighment (of the King) he received a thousand Ashrafīs. Accordingly 1 up to the time of regaining his service he had received five thousand Ashrafīs. At the end of the reign he was appointed governor of Bihār

When the illness of Shāh Jahān had lasted for a long time and various disasters happened in the kingdom and Shujā', the second son, behaved presumptuously in Bengāl and led an army against Patna—Ilāhwardī Khān who was unable to oppose him, came to Benāres and stayed there till Shujā' followed him—The latter had recourse to fawning and deceit and so prevailed on him, that this experienced greybeard departed from his position and took the side of that ruined man, and never 2 ceased to help him—After continual wanderings Shujā', in the middle of Rajab 1070 AH (March, 1660 AD), wished to leave Akbarnagar (Rājmahal) and to proceed to Tānda—Ilāhwardī Khān from his experience and knowledge (of Astrology?) foresaw in the future of Shujā' the approaching disaster, and perceived that Shujā' would eventually have to fly to Arrācān to escape Aurangzīb's army—He, therefore, wished to join the imperial army, and returned to Akbarnagar—As many of Prince's men wished to leave him and were of the same mind as Ilāhwardī Khān and as the latter had a band of his own men, he fortified his residence, and was prepared to resist if Shujā' attacked him

Shujā' on hearing the news devised a plan, and spicad untile iepoits and returned to Akbarnagar—He appointed men to surround Ilāhwaidī Khān's house, and to wait the signal for attack, and then sent Sirāj-ud-Dīn Jābarī, his Dīvān, to bring him (Ilāhwaidī Khān) to him by promising whatever may be necessary—When on account of the return of Shujā' to the city (Akbarnagar) and of his false proclamations, the men who had joined Ilāhwardī Khān giew lukewarm, the latter became helpless and accepting the false promises and words set off with his son Saif Ullāh in company with Sirāj-ud-Dīn—In this condition men of Shujā' attacked him and seized him on the road, they bound their (i e of the father and son) hands behind their backs as if they were criminals and led them before Shujā' outside Akbarnagar—That wicked man set him upon an elephant and took him with him to the city (Akbarnagar) and there 3 put him and his son to death, and confiscated all his property

Ridā had been a servant of Ilāhwardī Khān, and that after being dismissed he went to Persia and had obtained the dustal (permit) from the King of Persia by false representations Shāh Jahān, however, would not accept this explanation representations Shāh Jahān, however, would not accept this explanation

1 There were two weighments each year, the solar and the lunar

2 But see Bernier, who speaks of Allah Verdi Khan's having betiayed Shujā' in the battle with Aurangzīb The date 1070 seems wrong It should be 1069 A H

(1659 A D)

³ Khārī Khān, II, p 85 The Rryād-us-Salātīn, p 217, says 'Alıvardı Khān was the root of all this mischief, and adds he was put to death at Rājmahal Apparently he deserved his fate He was put to death in July, 1659 AD, 1069 AH (Beale, p 32), but the Maāthir gives 1070 AH as the date Beale's year is right,

Hāhwardī Khān had good sons, every one of whom attained high rank as will be described in the proper place 1 But none of them acted along with their father except the youngest, Mījzā Saif Ullāh His (Saif Ullāh's) memory was such that he could repeat everything that he had heard from the beginning of his childhood. He also composed poetry His father was fond of him Ilahwardi Khan was given to jesting and frolic, and indulged in foolish talk. This was so much the case, that the contagion attacked his sons and relatives and up to the present day when no trace of the family remains, they are remembered for this improper quality Yet Ilahwardi Khan was not without devotion and piety He delighted in the society of the descendants of the Prophet —peace be upon him!—and every year gave them presents. And he set apart one tenth of the produce of his jāgīr and gave it in charity He was the unique of the time for friendship. For an acquaintance of one day he did the work of a hundred years? He did not believe in clerks and managed his own business. Every day he entered his income and expenditure with his own hand. He made a saiā, and a garden at Delhi and they are known to the people by his name

ILĀHWARDI KHĀN

(Vol. I, pp. 229-232)

He was known as Ilāhwardī Khān 'Ālamgīrshāhī and was the eldest son of Ilahwardi Khan 3 His name was Ja'far Though the disposition of the father and son and of his brothers was naturally inclined towards jesting and bluntness, so that they were all of one cloth—and even to this day every member of the family follows the customs of his ancestors and does not abandon jocosity and laughter-yet Mīrzā Ja'fai from his early days was not on good terms with his father He bound the skirt of energy round the waist of enterprise and became a separate runner on the course of life By good fortune and excellent endeavours he became a favourite of Shah Jahan, and, in the 21st year obtained the rank of 1,000 with 200 hoise. In the 23rd year he was made Qarāwal Bēg (Chief huntsman), which was his heieditary office. Afterwards he obtained an increase of rank, and was made faujdār of Jānabī (?) 4 After the defeat of Dārā Shikōh when the gaiden of Nūr Manzil was made the encampment of Aurangzīb, the first order that was issued from the royal mınd was that İlahwardı Khan should be made faujdar of Mathura,

¹ Ilāhwardī Khān, Text I, pp 229-232, Hasan 'Alī Khān Bahādur, Text I, pp 593-599, Beveridge and Prashad's translation, pp 617-620

⁵ Nūr Manzıl was near Āgra, ıt was named after Jahāngīr Khāfī Khān, II, p 62

but the month was April The account in the text is taken from the 'Alamgin nāma, p 498, etc Evidently Ilāhwardī Khān intended to desert Shujā' and so he deserved his fate He and his son were put on an elephant and taken back to his quarters in Akbarnagar, and then put to death—probably, after a trial, see 'Alamgin nāma, pp 500, 501

² That is, he worked for him as if he had known him for a century

³ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, I, pp 207-215, and translation, pp 668-672
4 There is the variant Jātapī Perhaps Jāmbūji in Gujarāt is meant, vide Jarrett's translation of Ā'īn, II, p 242 and have charge of affairs of that Chakla 1 and should chastise the seditious of that place, which was Dārā Shikōh's fief Owing to the dismissal of his men-who had managed the place-the inhabitants had become disturbed and restless, and the opportunists there had become He went off after being presented with a female elephant and being raised to the rank of 3,000 with 3,000 horse of whom 1,000 were two-horse and three-horse Afterwards his rank was increased, and he got the title of Ilāhwaidī Khān 'Ālamgūshāhī In the 3rd year he was removed from the faugdārī of Mathurā and appointed to that of Gorakhpūr. In the 7th year, he appeared at the Court and presented 14 elephants that he had taken from the Zamindar of Morang, and nine which he tendered He spent a long time in that estate, and, in the 9th year, as his pēshkash had his rank increased and a farman was issued, giving him the faujdari of Morādābād In the 10th year, his mansab was 4,000 with 3,000 horse, including two-horse and three-hoise (troopers) In succession Bahādur Khān Kōka he became governor of Allāhābād, and in the 12th year, 1079 AH (1668-69 AD) he died He was distinguished for courage and energy, and was also very generous He composed poetry and was the author of a $d\bar{v}a\bar{n}$, and this is one of his couplets

Nothing demands less than a spoon It suffers a hundred strokes 2 that it may bring a lip to a lip

In spite of these good qualities he could not get on with his father. It is notorious that when Ilāhwardī Khān incurred the Sovereign's displeasure for some reason, and Shāh Jahān ordered in open Dīvān that he should be seized and turned out, Ja'far jumped and quickly came out of the crowd and seized his father by the back of the collar and put him out. His father, who always complained, was very voluble on this occasion, and Ja'far in excuse said, "As it was impossible to disobey the King's order, no doubt someone else would have come forward to execute it. In that case we should not have been able to show our faces, and perhaps indignation and shame would have carried us too far". His son was Āmān Ullāh. When in the 12th year his uncle Hasan 'Alī Khān was made fauydār of Mathurā, he was made fauydār of Āgra and was ordered to assist his uncle. After that he got the title of Khān and in company with Muḥammad A'zam Shāh at the battle of the batteries at Bījāpūr, he, in the 29th year, bravely drank the last draught

ILANGTÖSH 3 KHĀN BAHĀDUR

(Vol III, pp 971, 972)

In the 14th year of Aurangzīb's reign, he was presented with a sword, a dagger, and a spear In the 19th year, on the day of his marriage

¹ Chakla Mēwāt, vide Khāfī Khān, II, p 33, and Bādshāhnāma, II, p 8
2 The strokes, literally strokes of the hatchet or pickaxe, seem to refer to the insertions of a spoon into food and into the mouth. The lip or lab is presumably the edge of the spoon. The spoon meant may however be a wooden spoon, and the meaning be that it is cut and fashioned by a hatchet merely that it may become a go-between.

³ Ilangtōsh means in Turkī naked breast, and was an epithet originally given to a warrior who fought without armour He is several times mentioned in the feast, he received a robe of honour, and an emerald sarpēch (turbanornament), a hoise with golden trappings, and an elephant with silver trappings. In the 20th year, his rank became 2,000, 700 hoise. In the 25th year, he became $Q\bar{u}ib\bar{e}g\bar{i}$ (Superintendent of armoury), on the retirement of Abū Nasi Khān. After that he was censured, but, in the 28th year, he was reinstated, and on the death of Bakhtāwai Khān he was made Superintendent of the pages. In the 29th year he was again dismissed. His subsequent career is not known

'IMAD-UL-MULK 1

(Vol II, pp. 847–856)

He was the son of Amīr-ul-Umarā Fīrūz Jang 2 who was the heir of Nizām-ul-Mulk Āsaf Jāh He was the daughter's son of I'timād-ul-Daula Qamr-ud-Din Khān His real name was Mir Shihāb-ud-Din When his father was appointed governor of the Deccan and hastened to that quarter, he was left at the Court as a deputy Mir Bakhshi, and was made over to Safdar Jang the Vazīr Afterwards, when the news of his father's death arrived from the Decean, he took advantage of the time and so ingratiated himself with Safdar Jang that he was made Mīi Bakhshī and got his father's title Afterwards, when the King's disagreement with Safdai Jang became acute, 'Imād-ul-Mulk in conjunction with his maternal uncle Khān-Khānān entered the fort of Delhī with a force and turned out Mūsavī Khān who, as the deputy of Safdai Jang, was, with 400 men, carrying on the duties of Mīr Ātish (Chief of the artillery), and had the son of the Khan Dauran appointed to that office Next day Safdar Jang went to the King and complained about the appointment of the Mir Atish But he did not succeed An order was issued that the (Mūsavī Khān) could have another appointment. He took the Mīr Bakhshīship from 'Imād-ul-Mulk and gave it to Sādāt Khān Dhūlfaqāi Jang When the King became displeased with Safdar Jang, 'Imād-ul-Mulk contended with the latter for six months and sent for Mulhār Rão Hölkar from Mälwa and Jai Āpā from Nāgōr to help him But before Hölkar from Mälwa and Jai Apā from Nāgōr to help him But before they came he made peace with Safdai Jang 'Imād-ul-Mulk, Hölkar and Jai Āpā joined together and fell upon Sūraj Mal the Jāt Bharatpūi, Kumhnēr 3 and Deeg, which were three of their strong foits, were besieged As cannon were the best weapons for taking forts, 'Imād-ul-Mulk, at the request of the Mahratta leaders petitioned the King for artillery through his agent 'Āqibat Mahmūd Khān Kashmīrī Intizām-ud-Daula Vazīr, the son of I'timād-ud-Daula Qami-ud-Dīn, opposed 'Imād-ul-Mulk, and urged that the artillery should not be sent 'Āqibat

Maāthīr-i 'Ālamgīrī See Manucci, Irvine, II, p 43, where he is described as being the son of a Tartai woman who was sold by the Uzbeg envoys about 1661-62, and made one of the King's Amazons Manucci hints that he was a son of Aurangzīb

1 See the biography in Journ As Soc Bengal for 1879 by Irvine, p 128 et seq.

^{&#}x27;Imād-ul-Mulk is often called Ghāzī-ud-Dīn, which was also his father's name

² The biography of Amīr-ul-Umarā Fīrūz Jang is given in Maāthir-ul-Umarā,

I, pp 361, 362, Beveridge's translation, pp 592, 593, and of Nizām-ul-Mulk

Āsaf Jāh in id III, pp 837-848, and also 875-897

³ Kumher vide Imperial Gazetteer, XVI, p 22

Mahmud Khān won over many of the mansabdārs and the artillery men by promising that if 'Imād-ul-Mulk's time should come, they would get such and such favours, and wished to carry off Intizām-ud-Daula. One day it was arranged that an onslaught should be made on Intizām-ud-Daula's house and that he should be seized. On that day the enterprise failed and 'Imād-ul-Mulk fled towards Dāsna. There he became a robber and attacked and plundered the roval estates, and the fiefs of the mansabdārs. At this time Sūraj Mal Jāt, who had escaped in a wretched condition from the hands of the besiegers, begged assistance from the King. The latter came out of Delhī, ostensibly to hunt, and to arrange the Antarbēd (the Dūāb), but really to help the Jāt. He encamped at Sikandra. He sent for 'Āqibat Maḥmud Khān, who was then making a disturbance in the neighbourhood, and he came alone from Khūrja and waited on the King, and then returned to Khūrja

One of the Divine decrees was that Hölkar became impressed with the idea that Ahmad Shāh was delaying the delivery of the guns that he had come out, it was fitting that his supplies of food and forage should be stopped. Also he thought that in this way he might get hold of the guns He wished to carry out this plan without any partners, and so he made a night-march without giving notice to 'Imād-ul-Mulk or to Jar Apā He crossed the Jumnā at the Mathurā ferry, and on the night when 'Aqibat Mahmud Khan had waited on the King and gone back to Khūrja, Hõlkar came near Ahmad Shāh's camp and during the first part of the night discharged some lockets People thought that 'Āqıbat Mahmud Khān was discharging them out of mischief on his way back and did not prepare for battle Nor did they think of flying At the end of the night it became certain that Hölkar had come They all lost their heads and could neither fight nor fly Ahmad Shāh, his mother and Samsām-ud-Daula the Mīn Ātish, son of Amīr-ul-Umarā Khān Daurān, left their honour and their property and ran away to the Capital with a few followers Their inexperience resulted in a great disaster Hölkar came and plundered the whole of the 10yal property Malika-1-Zamāniya, the daughter of Muhammad Fairukh-siyar who was the wife of Muhammad Shāh, and other ladies were made prisoners Hölkar treated them with honour When 'Imād-ul-Mulk heard about it, he abandoned the siege and hastened to the Capital When Jai Apā saw that these two leaders had gone, he too abandoned the siege and went off to Nārnōl Sūraj Mal without effort was freed from the pressure of the siege 'Imād-ul-Mulk by the help of Hōlkai and with the co-operation of the Court officers, especially Samsām-ud-Daula Mīr Ātish deprived Intizām-ud-Daula of the Vazārat and appropriated it himself, and gave the office of Amīr-ul-Umarā to Samsām-ud-Daula On the day he assumed the Vazārat, he, in the morning put on the robe of honour, and at midday imprisoned Ahmad Shāh and his mother On 10th Sha'bān, Sunday, 1167 A H (2nd June, 1754 A D) he seated 'Azīz-ud-Dīn, the son of Mu'ızz-ud-Din Jahandar Shah upon the throne, and gave him the title of 'Alamgir II After a week's imprisonment, he blinded Ahmad Shāh and his mother—who was the origin of the whole confusion After a while he went to Lāhōre to settle the province of the Panjāb, which after the death of Mu'in-ul-Mulk, had on behalf of the Shāh Durrānī come into the possession of Mu'īn-ul-Mulk's widow He left 'Ālamgīr II in Delhī, took with him 'Alī Gōhar for appearance's sake

 $(bat\bar{u}zak\bar{\imath})$, and went by way of Hānsī and Hıṣār to Lāhōre When he came near the Sutlej, Adīnā Bēg Khān sent a force under the charge of Saiyid Jamāl-ud-Dīn Khān Sipāh Sālār and Hakīm 'Ubaid Ullah Khan Kashmiri, who was his factorum and had been raised to the rank of 6,000 and the title of Bahā'-ud-Daula, by night to Lāhōre They proceeded there with great alacrity Eunuchs were sent into the harem and they roused the lady who was sleeping there and imprisoned her They brought her out and gave her a place in a tent She was the wife of 'Imād-ul-Mulk 'Imād-ul-Mulk gave the government of Lāhōre to Adīnā Bēg Khān and fixed 30 lacs of rupees in lieu of pēshkash and returned to Delhī When Shāh Durānī heard this news, he was much troubled, and marched quickly from Qandahāi to Lāhōre Adīnā Bēg Khān fled from Lāhōre to Hānsī and Hiṣāi Shāh Durrānī came rapidly within 20 kos of Delhī 'Imād-ul-Mulk had no recourse but to submit and wait upon the Shāh At first he was censured, but on the recommendation of the above-named lady and the exertions of the Vazīi (of Shāh Durrānī) he was saved and was made Vazīr on condition of payment of a pēshkash When Shāh Duriānī appointed Jahān Khān to take possession of the forts of Sūraj Mal Jāt, 'Imād-ul-Mulk represented to the Shāh that if a scion (nūra,² a flower?) of the Tīmūrids and an army of the Durrānīans were given to him he would bring ample gold from the Antarbēd (the area between the Ganges and the Jumnā) The Shāh summoned from Delhī two Princes—Hidāyat Bakhsh, son of 'Ālamgīr II, and Mūzā Bābur, son-in-law of 'Azīz-ud-Dīn the brother of 'Ālamgīr II, and sent them along with Jānbāz Khān, who was one of his Sardārs, with 'Imād-ul-Mulk He with the two Princes and Jānbāz Khān arogsed the Jumnā He with the two Princes and Janbaz Khan crossed the Jumna without any proper organization and proceeded towards Farrukhābād the residence of Ahmad Khān son of Muhammad Khān Bangash Ahmad Khān came out to meet him and presented tents, furniture, elephants and horses, etc., as a pēshkash to the Princes and 'Imād-ul-Mulk The latter then went on and crossed the Ganges and came to Oudh Shujā'-ud-Daula the governor of Oudh came out from Lucknow with the intention of giving battle, and came to the plain of Sāndī and Pālī which are on the borders of Oudh Twice slight engagements took place between the skirmishes At last by the mediation of Sa'ad Ullāh Khān Rōhila peace was made on the basis of a payment of five lacs of rupees—a small portion in cash and a promise for the rest 'Imād-ul-Mulli marched off meth the Boundary of the respond the Mulk marched off with the Princes, and in 1170 3 A H he crossed the Ganges and came to Farrukhābād Shāh Durrānī had come out of Agra on account of an outbreak of plague and had gone off quickly towards Afghānistān On the day that he came near the Capital, 'Ālamgīr II along with Najīb-ud-Daula came to the tank of Maqsūdābād, and had an interview with the Shāh He spoke much evil of 'Imād-ul-Mulk Accordingly the Shāh gave the office of Amīr-ul-Umarā of India to Najīb-ud-Daula and went off to Lāhōre 'Imād-ul-Mulk proceeded to Delhī from Farrukhābād on account of his anxiety about Najīb-ud-Daula He summoned Raghūnāth Rāo the half-brother of Balājī Rāo, and Hōlkar

 $^{^{1}}$ In the Khazāna' ' $ar{A}m\imath ra$ it is stated that Imād ul-Mulk came to Lūdhīāna (Newal Kishore Press edn), p 52

There is also the reading naubāwa—new fruit
Irvine, loc cit, p 124

from the Deccan with great urgency, and in conjunction with them besieged the city, and for 45 days artillery-fire went on At last Hölkar took a heavy bribe from Najīb-ud-Daula and laid the foundations of peace He brought out Najīb-ud-Daula with respect and with his baggage from the fort, and give him a place near his own tent made over to him the other side of the Jumnā, viz, Sahāranpūr, Būriyā 1 and Chandpur and the whole of the Barah townships With the help of the Mahrattas 'Imād-ul-Mulk got the management of all the affan's of the empire When Datā Sardār, the Mahratta, besieged Najīb-ud-Daula in Shakartal, he summoned 'Imad-ul-Mulk to his aid from Delhi 'Imād-ul-Mulk was not pleased with 'Alamgīr II, and knew that he was secretly in correspondence with Shāh Durrānī, and also that he wished that Najīb-ud-Daula should prevail over Datā Accordingly he put to death the Khān-Khānān (Intizām-ud-Daula) who had previously been imprisoned On the same day, 28th Rabī' II, Thursday, 1173 A H (29th November, 1759 AD), he also made a martyr of 'Alamgīr II, and raised Muhī-ul-Millat, the son of Muhī-us-Sunnat son of Kām Bakhsh son of Aurangzīb, to the throne, and gave him the title of Shāh Jahān After 'Alamgir II and the Khān-Khānan had been kılled, Datā hastened to his assistance in obedience to a summons. At the same time the near approach of Shāh Durrānī made a disturbance, and Datā removed from Shakartāl and moved to Sirhind to fight Shāh Durrānī Mulk came to Delhī and when he heard of an encounter between Datā and the skirmishers of Shāh Durrānī, he became certain that the latter would be victorious Accordingly, he left the new King in Delhi and went to Sūrai Mal Jāt and remained with him for a time Afterwards when time removed the King, and Najīb-ud-Daula made Sultān Jawān Bakht the son of 'Alī Gōhar Shāh 'Ālam Bahādur pro-forma King and ruled in the Capital, 'Imād-ul-Mulk went to Aḥmad Khān Bangash in Farrukhābād Then he went to Shujā'-ud-Daula to fight with the English After the defeat he sought protection among the Jats In the year 1187 A H he came to the Deccan and the Mahrattas gave him some land for his support in the province of Mālwa As he did not feel confident about the reigning Sovereign, he went off to the port of Sūrat and spent 3 some time there with the hat-wearers (the English) At the

¹ A town in the Ambāla district, Imperial Gazetteer, IX, p 106 perhaps the town in the Bijnaur district

² The Khazāna-ı-'Āmıra, p 54, has three days afterwards
³ Much of this biography has been copied into the Siyar-ul-Muta'akhkhirīn The common source is the Khazāna-ı-'Āmıra, pp 50-54, so that evidently this is one of the biographies contributed by Ghulām 'Alī The biography says nothing of Gunnā Bēgam the wife of 'Imād-ul-Mulk For an account of her see Beale and especially Trupe. Jayan 40, San Bengal for 1870 and 1870 and 1870.

Gunnā Bēgam the wife of 'Imād-ul-Mulk For an account of her see Beale and especially Irvine, Journ As Soc Bengal for 1879, pp 128–130

Sir William Jones in his discourse on the Orthography of Asiatic Words, As Researches I, p 55, quotes a Hindūstānī love-song as being by Gunnā Bēgam But it appears from a note by Dr Hunter in As Researches VI, p 76, that the poem is really by one Qamr-ud-Dīn Gunnā Bēgam is buried in Aurangzīb's garden, Bāgh Jamāl, in Nurābād on the Sank river From a reference in Mill's History of India, II, p 414, note (1817), it appears that 'Imād-ul-Mulk was found by Colonel Goddard at Sūrat in 1780 disguished as a pilgrim and that he was for a time put into confinement He did go to Mecca, and returned via Basra and Qandahār, and died at Kālpī on 1st December, 1800 (vide Irvine, loc cit, p 129) For a good general survey of the period of 'Imād-ul-Mulk see Cambridge History of India, IV, pp 434–448. History of India, IV, pp 434-448.

present time he has embarked on a ship with the design of going to Mecca He knew the Qur'an by heart and was a student, and a good penman He had genius and courage He also composed poetry. This verse is his

Verse

I am inferior even to a stone thrown by a sling, As you have thrown me away and not kept me revolving round your head

He had many sons One entered the service of Nizām-ud-Daula Āsaf Jāh, and by virtue of his relationship obtained the rank of 5,000 and the title of Hamīd-ud-Daula He also got an allowance in money

'INAYAT KHAN

(Vol II, pp 813-818)

No definite information is available about his origin or his native country, nor his ancestors, and there is no trace 1 of his descendants All that is known is that he was from Khawaf In the end of the 10th year of Aurangzīb's reigh, he was appointed to be Dīwān-i-Khālsa 2 (Superintendent of the crown-lands) In the 13th year, he reported 3 that the expenditure had increased since the time of Shāh Jahān and now exceeded the receipts by fourteen lacs of rupees An order was given that four krors of rupees should be allotted (as the assignment) for the Khālsa and that the expenditure should be fixed at the same The papers regarding the expenditure were examined, and it was ordered that many items of expense in the establishment of the King the Princes and the Begams should be reduced Here some remarks may be made about the greatness and extent of the Indian Empire The revenues of the Princes of other countries do not amount to what the servants of the Indian government receive of Imam Quli Khan and Nadhr Muhammad Khan, who held the whole of Transoxiana and Turkistan, even to Balkh and Badakhshan, were from land revenue and taxes $(m\bar{a}l\ u\ s\bar{a}'ir)$ in cash and grain and also from enhancements and tithes $(^{l})\ (irtif\bar{a}'\ u\ zak\bar{a}t)$ one kror twenty lacs of $\underline{Kh\bar{a}n}\bar{i}s$, which are equal to thirty lacs of rupees. The assignment $(tan\underline{kh}w\bar{a}h)$ for every officer of 7,000 with 7,000 horse, $d\bar{u}$ -aspa $u\ sih$ -aspa (two-horse and three-horse) 4 is a kror of $d\bar{a}ms$ (2 lacs and 50,000 rupees),

¹ Apparently this must refer to descendants through males, for his daughter was married to Bādshāh Qulī Khān Tahawwur Khān and apparently had issue, see Bādshāh Qulī Khān (Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 447-453)

² See Sir Jadunath Sarkar's Mughal Administration, pp 41–46

³ Taken from Maāthi -i-ʿĀlamgīrī, pp 99, 100 It is there stated that Bakhtāwar Khān conveyed the crder to the Dīvāns that after the end of the year they should bring their receipts and expenditure and that on Wednesday they should bring their books to the Ghuslkhāna Thereupon 'Ināyat Khān reported as in the text Instead of madad kharaj assistance-expenditure or charitable expenditure it is kharaj in the Maāthi -i-ʿĀlamgīrī It is said in that work that four kror were assigned to the Khālsa—apparently, as its expenditure, and that in a similar manner the Emperor examined the papers of the expenses of other departments, and ordered many reductions

⁴ This conjunction here is apparently wrong and is omitted

not to mention Yamīn-ud-Daula Āsaf Khān who each year collected from his fiefs fifty lacs of rupees Prince Dārā Shikāh had in the end a mansab of 60,000 with 40,000 troopers, two-horse, and three-horse, with an allowance $(in'\bar{a}m)$ of 83 krors of $d\bar{a}ms$, which came to 2 krois, 7 lacs and 50,000 rupees a year

To investigators it is clear, that in the time of Akbai—who was the founder and builder of the Caliphate and of world-rule, and the constructor of the principles of world-conquest—the expenditure was not on the same footing as in former times As every day new territories were added, the expenditure also of necessity increased, but the income also increased a hundredfold, and there were accumulations time of Jahāngīi, who was a careless Prince and paid no attention to political or financial matters, and who was constitutionally thoughtless and pompous, the fraudulent officials, in gathering lucre, and hunting for bribes, paid no attention to the abilities of men, or to their perform-The devastation of the country and the diminution of income rose to such a height that the revenue of the exchequer-lands fell to 50 lacs of rupees while the expenditure lose to one kror and fifty lacs, and large sums were expended out of the general treasury (Khazāna-ı-'Āmıra) In the beginning of the prudent reign of Shāh Jahān when a review was made of the income and expenditure and of the welfare of the country by the royal officials, that wise ruler ordered that estates to the value of one kror and fifty lacs of rupees—which, according to an estimate for the whole twelve months, formed the fifteenth part of the (value of the) imperial domains—should be made Khālsa (exchequer or crown-lands). He upheld the allowance of a kror of rupees for fixed expenditure, and kept the balance for unforeseen (or contingent) expenses Gradually, that Monarch, by good management and good fortune increased the income from day to day The expenditure also increased, so that at the end of the 20th year, out of 880 krors of dams of revenue, 120 krors were assigned to the Khālsa which, for the whole year, comes to three krors In the end the amount was nearly four krors, as has been stated (above) More extraordinary still, there were great increases in gifts and in ams and outlays upon enterprises and buildings For instance, in the first year of the reign a kror and 80 lacs of rupees in cash and goods and 4 lacs of bighas of land and the revenues of 120 villages were assigned to the Begams, the Princes, the nobles, officers, Saiyids, learned men and Shaikhs At the end of the 20th year, 9 krors, 60 lacs of rupees were estimated for gifts (in ams) In the Badakhshan and Balkh expeditions, exclusive of 2 krors of rupees for pay and allowances (mawānb) 2 krors of tupees were expended on necessary armaments. Two krors 50 lacs of rupees were expended on buildings Of this, 50 lacs were spent on the cemetery (Rauda—the Tāj Maḥal) of Mumtāz Mahal, 52 lacs on other buildings in Āgra, 50 lacs on the gardens and buildings of Lāhōre, 12 on Kābul, 8 on royal villas (munazzahāt) in Kashmīi, 8 in Qandahār and 10 on the buildings of Ahmadābād and Ajmēr, etc Nevertheless the treasures, which boasted of being full during the fiftyone years of Akbar's reign, and had now come to the condition of being without increase or diminution, raised the cry of "Touch not?" Aurangzīb, who possessed moderation and caution, long strove to equalize the receipts and expenses, but on account of the "old lameness" 1 of affaus in the Deccan money was poured out so that even the properties of the servants 2 of Dārā Shikōh and others were transferred from Upper India to the Deccan and were included among assignments, and became a burden additional to that caused by the desolation and diminished production in the country Nevertheless, at the end of the King's life there were in the fort of Agra ten or twelve krors of rupees Some of this was spent in the leign of Bahadui Shah, for in his time receipts ceased and all was expenditure Afterwards Muhammad Mu'izz-ud-Din (Jahandar Shah) brought about the rum (of the exchequer) remained was seized by the Saiyids during the disturbance of Nekü-siyar At this time, when the receipts of the Empire are confined to Bengal, the Mahrattas have, for two or three years, introduced confusion into that province but the expenses also have not been as high as before pen has rebelled! Whither have my words wandered!

¹ Based on 'Amal-1-Sālıh (Yazdānī edn), II, pp 557, 558

In short, 'Ināyat Khān was removed in the 14th year from the Khālsa Dīwānī—which was committed to Mīrak Mu'īn-ud-Dīn Amānat Khān—and was made faujdār 3 of Chakla Bareilly In the 18th year he was made 4 faugdār of Kharrābād in succession to Mujāhid Khān that when Amanat Khan resigned the Khalsa Dīwanī, an order was passed that Kıfāyat Khān the Dīvān-i-Tan should also carry on the duties of the Khālsa In the 20th year, 'Ināyat Khān was again appointed 5 to the Khālsa with the rank of 1,000 with 100 hoise In the 24th year, he, ın Ajmër-when his son-in-law Tahawwur Khān entitled Bādshāh Qulī Khān, who by his ignorance had been guiding Prince Muhammad Akbar, either through evil intention and pretext of apology or at the instance of his father-in-law, retired, and expressing devotion and fidelity presented himself at the doors of the royal palace, he was punished for his ungratefulness—was removed from the Khālsa Dīwānī and put in charge of the buildings 6 (Buyūtāt) in succession to Kāmgār Khān same year, on the ground that his son-in-law Tahawwur Khān had in the faujdārī of Ajmēr done good service in putting down the Rājpūts, he begged for this faujdārī and urged that he would use equal excitions in putting down the arrogant (Rāthōrs), his request was granted 26th year, 1093 A H (1682 A D) he died

'INAYAT ULLAH KHAN

(Vol II, pp 828-832)

He was connected with Saiyid Jamāl of Nīshāpūi By chance he came to Kashmīr and settled there His father was Mīrzā Shukr Ullāh

¹ Kuhna langī, see Vullers, II, p 928a, where kuhna lang is explained as the condition of a person or thing which cannot be altered

² Several MSS have the preposition az before Dārā so that the meaning may probably be men's goods from Dārā Shikōh downwards. The passage is obscure and the words amwal-1 mardum are curious, if landed property is meant Perhaps the meaning is that the allowances of men who had formerly served Dārā Shikōh were made an assignment on the Deccan, when they (perhaps as a measure of policy) were transferred from Upper India to the Deccan

³ Maāthır-ı-'Ālamgīrī, p 110

⁵ Loc cit, p 159

⁴ Loc cit, p 141 ⁶ Loc cit, p 206

His mother was Hāfiza Maryam and was appointed to teach Zīb-un-Nisā Bēgam the daughter of Aurangzīb and the full sister of Muhammad A'zam Shāh From her Zīb-un-Nısā learnt to commit to memory the words of God and the practice of the accomplishments and petitioned her father to give an office to 'Ināyat Ullāh He at first had a small rank and had the appointment of an accountant 1 (ashraf) in the jewelroom In the 31st year, his rank was 400, 60 horse, and next year he was Khān-i-Sāmān of the Bēgam's establishment In the 35th year, when Rashīd Khān Badī'-uz-Zamān daftardār of the Khālsa went off to inquire ınto some Khālsa estates ın Haidarābād 'Ināyat Ullāh Khān was his deputy, he had the 600 rank with 60 horse and the title 3 of Khān $36\bar{t}h$ year, he became $D\bar{i}v\bar{a}n$ -i-Tan in succession to Amānat \underline{Kh} ān Mīr Husain and his rank was 700 with 80 horse After some days, he had charge of the Dīvān-1-Sarf khāss (the Dīvānship of special expenditures) and an increase of 20 horse In the 42nd year,⁴ he acted as Sadr until the appointment of another officer, and his rank was 1,000 with 100 horse. In the 45th year, on the death of Arshad Khān Abūl 'Ulā he was made $D\bar{i}v\bar{a}n$ of the Khālsa, and his rank was 1,500 with 250 horse 46th year, he received the present of an elephant and in the 49th his rank was 2,000, 250 horse His companionship with the King became intimate and reliance upon him was such that when Asad Khān on account of age and self-indulgence neglected to sign the papers of the Vazārat, it was ordered 5 that 'Ināyat Ullāh Khān as deputy should sign them An account of the great favour which the King showed to 'Inayat Ullah Khān and which the author of the Maāthu -1- Alamgīrī has reported may be read at the end of the biography of Amīr-ul-Umarā Asad Khān (Maāthirul-Umarā, Text I, pp 310-321, Beveridge's translation, pp 270-279)

After the death of Aurangzīb, the Khān proceeded with A'zam

Shāh to Upper India When unnecessary baggage was left in Gwāliyār 'Ināyat Ullāh remained there with Asad Khān In Bahādur Shāh's reign, he was confirmed in his employments and came to the Court and obtained His son Hidāyat Ullāh performed his duties at leave with Asad Khān the Court After coming to the Deccan, when Mukhtar Khan, who was the High Steward (Khān-i-Sāmān),6 died, the appointment was given to 'Ināyat Ullāh and he was summoned to the Court In the time of Jahāndār Shāh, he was appointed governor of Kashmīr, and in the beginning of Muḥammad Farrukh-siyar's reign, when his eldest son Sa'ad Ullāh Hidāyat Ullāh was killed,7'Ināyat Ullāh Khān went off from Kashmīr to Mecca returned in the middle of the reign and had the rank of 4,000 with 2,000 He was Dīvān-1-Khālsa and Dīvān-1-Tan as well as governor of Kashmīr; he himself remained at the Court and sent a deputy (to Kashmir) In the reign of Muhammad Shāh he, after the death of

¹ In the expression ashraf-i-jauāhir-lhāna, ashraf appears to be a lapsus calami for mushraf, see Maālhir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 249 For mushraf, see Wilson, Glossary of Resenue Terms, p 358 and Sir Jadunath Sarkar, Mughal Administration, p 42, note, he was really an examiner or auditor of accounts

2 Zīnat-un-Nīsā, Maālhir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 314

3, 6 Loc cit, pp 345, 393

5 Maālhir-i-ʿAlamgīrī, p 390, where it is said that Asad Khān's illness was the reason of the order This was in the 41st year

6 See Sir Jadunath Sarkar's Mughal Administration, pp 48-52

See Sir Jadunath Sarkar's Mughal Administration, pp 48-52
 Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, p 507.

I'tımād-ud-Daula Muḥammad Amīn Khān had the rank of 7,000, and till the arrival of Āsaf Khān acted as Deputy Vazīr and substantive Mīr-1-

In the same year, 1139 A H (1726-27 A D) he died Sāmān

They say, he was a pure living man and of an agreeable disposition and was known for his piety and respect for faqīrs He was well acquainted with the rules of official work Aurangzib approved of his literary qualities He collected the orders which were issued through him to the Princes and officers and gave them the name Ahkām-i-Ālamgīrī 1 He also collected the notes written by the King and called them Kalīmāt Tayyībāt² Both works are well known He had six sons Sa'ad Ullāh Khān Hıdāyat Khān of whom an account has been given 3 m its place The second was Diyā Ullāh Khān of whom an account has been given 4 at the beginning of the lives of his sons Thanā Ullāh Khān and Amān Ullāh Khān The third was Kifāyat Ullāh Khān The fourth was 'Atīt Ullāh Khān, who after his father's death had the title of 'Ināyat Ullāh Khān and became the governor of Kashmīr was 'Ubaid Ullāh Khān The sixth is 'Abdullāh Khān who is living in the Capital He has the title of Mansūr-ud-Daula

(Rāja) Indarman Dhandēra

(Vol II, pp 265, 266)

He belonged to a branch of the Rājpūts This branch was connected with the Bundelas and the Panwars, and their native country was the town of Sahrā in the Sarkār of Sārangpūr in Mālwa In the records it ıs described as Sahār 5 Bābā Hājī In Akbar's time Rāja Jagman 6 of Dhandera entered the service, and in the time of Shah Jahan the territory of Dhandëra was given to Sīv Rām the brother's son of Rāja Bēthal Dās Gaur He (Rāja Bēthal Dās) went with a body of men and forcibly expelled Rāja Indarman—who at that time held the zamīndārī but he, after some time collected a large force and again took possession of the country In the 10th 7 year, the King sent Mu'tamad Khan and Rāja Bēthal Dās with a suitable force to punish him They invested Sahrā, and the Rāja asked for quarter and came with them to the Court In accordance with orders, he was imprisoned in the fort of Junair the year 8 when Aurangzīb proceeded from the Deccan to inquire after

3 Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 504-508
4 Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, p 506
5 Jarrett's translation of A'in, II, p 203
6 In Albarnāma, Text III, p 751, Beveridge's translation, p 1122, is mentioned a Rāja Jagman a Mālwa landholder

According to Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, p 344, the eldest son of Aurangzīb started with the van towards Burhānpūr on 5th February and he himself left Aurangābād on 16th February

¹ See Cambridge History of India, p 583 ² Ivanow, Descriptive Cat, Persian MSS, As Soc Bengal, p 167, no 382

⁷ In Bādshāhnāma I, pt 2, p 142, Sīv Rām is mentioned as being granted the f Dhandēra On pp 234, 235 the author mentions Pathal Dās (for Bēthal Dās), fief of Dhandera Mu'tamad Khān and other royal servants who had been sent to punish the Zamīndār The name of the fort is given as Shahr Ārā his father's health, and meditated an expedition to Upper India, he got the rank of 3,000 with 2,000 horse and advanced with Prince Muhammad Sultān to Upper India After the battle with Mahārāja Jaswant Singh, he received a flag and drums, and after the battle with Muhammad Shujā' he went off to Bengāl There he was active in the King's service At last he died 1

IRĀDAT KHĀN MĪR ISHĀQ

(Vol I, pp 203–206)

He was the third son of A'zam Khān Jahāngīrī² In the reign of Shāh Jahān he, after his father's death, obtained a commission of 900 with 500 horse and was made Min Tuzuk In the 25th year, he received the title of Irādat Khān and a commission of 1,500 with 800 horse, and was made Superintendent of the elephant stables In the 26th year, he was made, in succession to Tarbiyat Khān, Master of the horse same year he was granted a commission of 2,000 with 1,000 horse and was made 2nd Bakhshī and received a robe of honour In the 28th year. he got an increase of 800 horse and was made faujdār of Sarkār Lucknow and Baiswāra (in Oudh) in succession to Ahmad Bēg Khān In the 29th year, he came to Court and was appointed to the office of 'Ard Waqā'ı' (Recorder of petitions) His commission was 2,000 with 2,000 horse In the end of Shah Jahan's reign he was, for certain reasons, deprived of office and spent some time in retirement. At the same time 'Alamgir (Aurangzīb) succeeded to the throne Irādat Khān's brothers, Multafat Khān and Khān Zamān attached themselves to Aurangzīb and risked 3 their lives in the first battle with Dārā Shikōh When the royal standards reached the Capital, Irādat Khān was the recipient 4 of regal favours and got an increase of 500 with 500 horse At the same time the victorious standards moved from Āgra to Shāhjahānābād (Delhī) to pursue Dārā Shikōh and Irādat Khān was appointed 5 to the Sūbadārī of Oudh and granted drums and an increase of 500 with 500 horse so that his commission became one of 3,000 with 3,000 horse of which 1,000 troopers were of the two-horse and three-horse rank

otherwise Irādat Khān

¹ In Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, p 161, it is stated that Rāja Indarman—he is called Bundēla—died in 1088 A H (1677 A D) Mr Silberrad in his account of W Bundelkhand (Journ As Soc Bengal for 1902, p 116) says that Indarman was the son of Pahar Singh the brother of Champat and that he died in 1673, leaving a son, Jaswant Singh It appears from the 'Ālamgīrnāma that he afterwards served in the Sivāliks and in the Deccan, see pp 517, 533, and 989

2 For his account, see Maāthir-ul-Ūmarā, Text I, pp 174–180, and Beveridge's translation, pp 315–319 His name there is A'zam Khān Mīr Muhammad Bāqir, otherwise Irādat Khān

³ The language used would seem to imply that one or both of Irādat Khān's brothers were killed at the battle of Sāmūgarh on 8th June, 1658 AD (see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, II, p 383), but histories show that this was not the case Perhaps the meaning is that Iradat Khān had distinguished himself in that battle

⁴ See 'Alamgirnāma, p 119, where reference is made to his earlier dismissal, and to his being raised to the rank of 2,500, with 1,500 horse 5 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 127 The increase was 1,500 personal with 500 horse

Inasmuch as it is an old habit with the envious heavens to destroy achievements, he had made only a few steps in the field of success when he tripped and fell That is, after two months and some days he, in the month of Dhūl Hijjā, 1068 AH (August, 1658 AD) passed away from this transitory world. His first marriage was with a daughter of Mīrzā Badī'-uz-Zamān, the son of Āqā Mullā, the brother of Āsaf Khān Ja'far. His second was with the daughter of Zāhīd Khān Kōka eldest son by her was Muhammad Ja'far, who was honest and renowned He died, and his brother Mir Mubarak Ullah was made faugdar of Chakna 2 in the 33rd year of 'Alamgir Afterwards, he received his father's title In the 40th year, he was made 3 faugdār of Aurangābād, and had a commission of 700 with 1,000 horse. After that he was made fauydar of Mandsūr 4 in Mālwa, and in the time of Bahādur Shāh he became a favourite of the Khān-Khānān Mun'ım Khān and his intimate friend. was nominated to the faujdārī of the Dūāb of Patan Jālandhar had a taste for various kinds of knowledge and had developed a very delicate sense for poetic composition His poetical name was Wādih 6 (Evident) and he is the author of a dīvān

Verse

My heart is jealous of nought but the enjoyment of the beloved, Life received one garment, and that too a shroud

In the time of Muḥammad Farrukh-siyar he died ⁶ His son Mīr Hidāyat Ullāh who received the title of Hōshdār Khān and afterwards of Irādat Khān was in the time of Bahādur Shāh fauydār of Nūrmahl in the Panjāb and was also for a long time fauydār of Deeg in Mālwa In the 6th year of Muḥammad Shāh's reign he came to the Deccan with Āsaf Jāh, and after the battle with Mubāriz Khān, he for some time was Dīvān of the Deccan, in succession to the deceased Diyānat Khān ⁷ and held a commission of 4,000 He lived for a long time at Auiangābād, and at last was appointed the governor of the fort of Gulbarga In the Trichinopoly ⁸ expedition he accompanied Āsaf Jāh, and died on the way back near Aurangābād in 1157 Å H (1744 Å D) He was a skilled soldier, even in old age he did not lay aside his weapons He spoke much and was well known for sword-practice ⁹ His poetry was without distinction He was much addicted to women and had many children His grown-up sons died in his lifetime At the time of writing his son Hāfiz Khān is the governor of the fort of Gulbarga

¹ 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 202

² Islāmābād Chākna in the Concan, Maāthir-i-'Alamgīrī, p 331

³ Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 383

⁴ The Marōsōr in Jairett's translation of \overline{A} ' $\overline{i}n$, II, p 208, and Mandsor of the maps

⁵ Rieu, III, p. 938 It is curious that the Maāthir-ul-Umarā does not mention his history which seems to be his most important work. See Elliot, VII, p. 534 and Scott's History of the Deccan

⁶ Irādat Khān died in 1128 A H (1716 A D)

⁷ An ancestor of the author

In March, 1743, vide Cambridge History of India, IV, p 384
 Shamshër shinäsi might also mean connoisseurship in swords

Īraj Khān

(Vol I, pp 268-272)

He was the son of Qazalbāsh Khān Afshār In his father's lifetime he became known for his rectitude and ability, and did courageous As the Superintendent of the artillery in the Deccan he acquired fame by his skill and disinterestedness When his father, the governor of the fort of Ahmadnagar, died in the 22nd year of Shāh Jahān's reign he was raised to the rank of 1,500 with 1 500 horse, the title of Khān, and the charge of the said fort As a result of his high spirit and generosity he did not let his father's men be dispersed, but kept all of them as soldiers or servants (shāgird-pēsha) He sought fame, and because of honest-mindedness he took his father's debts upon himself and set himself to support his relations and kindred In the 24th year, he had an increase of 500 and on the death of Qazzāq Khān, he became thānadār of Pathrī, in the Deccan He afterwards came to the Court, and, in the 25th year, was made Mīr Tuzuk When Prince Dārā Shikōh was appointed with a large army to the Qandahār expedition, Īraj Khān was made Bakhshī and given a flag On his return, he was raised to the fauidārī of Jammū and Kāngra and received a grant of 57 estates in that hill-country In the 30th year when Prince Aurangzīb was made $N\bar{a}zim$ of the Deccan and appointed to chastise 'Alī' Adıl Shāh and to ravage his territory, Īraj Khān was sent in company with Mīr Jumla who had been appointed to assist the Prince with a large army of auxiliaries After the Prince had taken the fort of Bīdar he sent Īraj Khān with Naṣrat Khān and Kārtalab Khān to Ahmadnagar as the men of Sīvā (Shivājī) and Manājī Bhönsle had stirred up strife there When the incident of Shāh Jahān's illness occurred, Dārā Shikōh, who was lying in wait for his opportunity and was always intent upon defeating his brothers, but was unable to carry out his plans, issued strict orders and sent out sazāwals 1 for the presence at the Court of the officers in charge of the auxiliaries Īraj Khān, who was closely connected with Dārā Shikōh and styled himself Dārāshikōhī took the road to Upper India in company with Mu'taqıd Khān, the eldest son of Najābat Khān They say that the Prince (Aurangzīb) had written to Vazīr Khān the Nā'ib at Burhānpūr to practise conciliation upon the two, and to keep an eye upon them, or else to use deceit and stratagem and to arrest them When they came near the city in question the said Khān invited them to a feast, and they wished to accept, but they came to know that there was a half-cup 2 (saucer) under the cup They immediately set off and from the banks of the Narbadā Īiaj Khān sent off by the hands of the Prince's couriers this couplet which evidently was intended for Vazīr Khān

¹ For Sazāvals see Wilson, Glossary of Revenue Terms, p 473 and Sir Jadunath Sarkar, Mughal Administration, p 42, note

² Zēr lāsa nīmlāsa hast is a phrase for a trick See Bahār-i-'Ajam lith edition, p 479, the metaphor is taken from a wrestling trick

Verse

A hundred thanksgivings that we have forded the Narbadā, Centum flatus podicisque tortiones ¹ quia flumen transivimus

When he came to the presence (of Shāh Jahān), he was given the favidārī of one of the Eastern districts, and in the time of war he, at the instance of Dārā Shikōh, kept a large body of troops in attendance and proceeded towards the Capital Afterwards when the drum of the success of 'Alamgir beat'high and Dārā Shikōh traversed the desert of flight, the said Khān placed the brow of shame on the ground of humiliation, and through the intercession of 'Umadat-ul-Mulk Ja'far Khān was forgiven his faults, and made the subject of princely elemency same time Ja'far Khān was made the governor of the province of Mālwa, and Iraj Khān went there as one of the auxiliaries In the beginning of the 3rd year, he was made faugdār of Bhīlsa in that province, and after that was made faugdār of Ilichpūr When in the 9th year, Dilēr Khān was appointed to collect the tribute of Chanda and Deogarh, Iraj Khan went with him By his good service on this occasion he acquired royal favour, and was promoted to the rank of 2,500 with 2,000 horse wards he spent some time in the Deccan, and, in the 19th year, again became faujdār of Īlichpūr in succession to Khān Zamān year, he was made the governor of Burhanpur, and later of Berar the 23rd Ramadan, 1096 AH (23rd August, 1685 A.D.) he rolled 2 up the carpet of life and was buried in his own garden close to the walls of The had made a $sar\bar{a}$ and a quarter $(p\bar{u}ra)$ near this town and he had also, opposite the town and on the bank of the river which traverses it, laid the foundation of a dwelling, the remains of which He was of a very pleasant disposition and of are still standing agreeable manners He was a copious eater of choice foods, and as his establishments, etc, were greater than his appointments he was always in At first he was married to the daughter of Sādiq Khān Mīr Bakhshī, and on this account he assumed a higher position than others He had three sons but none of them rose high Mīr Mū'mīn, his son, was the best of all For some time he acted as the deputy of Hasan 'Alī Khān Bahādur 'Ālamgīrshāhī the Sūbadār of Īhchpūr eldest of his son Mīrzā 'Abd-ui-Ridā as he had charge of his father's accounts became possessed of the sarā and quarter without sharing them with anyone else He was childless His wife known as Bahū 3 Bēgam was a virtuous matron and lived in becoming fashion till her death. The source of her livelihood was the income of the said quarter son Mīr Manūchihr died in his youth He had a son who was of bad Bahū Bēgam mentioned above adopted as a daughter the child of her brother and gave her in marriage to him Some seven or eight years ago when that matron died all the property reverted to her (the adopted daughter) After two years she too died and her sons have the property The third son, Mīrzā Muhammad Sa'īd, was chiefly

¹ $R\bar{e}sh$ appears to be a contraction for $r\bar{e}sha$ or twisting, but it may mean pimples. There is a play on $n\bar{u}d$ which means both ninety and the posteriors Perhaps buttock-sores is the most correct translation of $n\bar{u}dr\bar{e}sh$

Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 262
 In the text Babhū, but three lines lower down it is Bahū employed in service, he had some knowledge of poetry and language and was generally well-informed. This verse is by him

Verse

Regard not as idle the superscription on a gold coin, It is an incantation which can evoke a fairy

He was granted his father's title and was for some time tahsīldān of Chāndā. At last he fell into difficulties and could not get a hold anywhere. He went off to the Carnātic and spent some time at Bālāghāt, Carnātic, in the company of 'Abd-un-Nabī Khān Mīyāna, later he went to the Pāvānghāt and died there. He had no children Even in old age he was not without physical beauty, and was a friend of the writer. May God forgive him!

IRSHĀD KHĀN MĪR ABŪL-'ALĀ.

(Vol I, pp 290, 291)

He was the sister's son and son-m-law of Amānat Khān Khawāfī¹ He was for a long time in the Sūba of Kābul In the 42nd year of Aurangzīb's reign he came to Court and on the death of Kifāyat Khān was made Dīvān of the Khālsa On account of his honesty and trustworthiness and his success in affairs he became favourite to such an extent that he was envied by his contemporaries. As the envious heavens are not pleased to see anyone prosper and are always throwing the stone of disturbance at the glasshouses of men's desires, he had not lived many days in comfort when in the 45th year, 1112 A H (1700-01 A D) he died. His eldest son Mīr Ghulām Husain had the title of Kifāyat Khān Two of his sons survived one Mīr Haidar, who at last got his father's title, and the second Mīr Saiyid Muhammad who was granted the title of his grandfather

'Īsā Khān Mabīn 2

(Vol II, pp 825-828)

He is also called Manbah He belonged to a branch of the Ranghīr ³ tribe which regards itself as belonging to a Rājpūt clan Most of them live in the Chakla of Sirhind and the Patha ⁴ Dūāb and carry on agriculture and are landholders. Nor do they withhold their hands

¹ For his life, see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 258-268, and Beveridge's translation, pp 221-230

² Also written Main and Mahin Khafi Khān, II, p 767, has Muhmand ³ The Rangar of Elliot's Supp Glossary, I, p 4, and note They are Rājpūts who have been converted to Muhammadanism But it is stated by Mr Williams, Historical Sketches, Calcutta Review Selections, 2nd Series, III, p 228, that the word Ranghur means in Sahāranpūr a Rājpūt of any denomination, and not only a convert to Islām

⁴ Patha is evidently wrong There is the reading Thatha, but probably the true reading is Etah which is the northernmost district of the Agra Division, and lies on the eastern edge of the middle $D\bar{u}\bar{a}b$

from highway robbery and other kinds of robberies. In former times 'Īsā's ancestors were not reckoned as landholders. His grandfather Būlāqī exerted himself and acquired a name As he advanced in power, he practised robbery and plunder and attacked caravans collected a force and robbed as far as his arm could reach Gradually, by force he took possession of men's lands, and became powerful In the battle with A'zam Shāh (in 1707 A D) he, in company with Muhammad Mu'ızz-ud-Din fought well and got a name for courage, and was given a In the conflicts which took place at Lāhōre between the princes, he attended on Jahandar Shah with a well-equipped force, and, in the confusion, acquired much plunder, he carried off all the treasure-carts, and no one questioned him After the victory he received the rank of 5 000 and the fauydārī of the Dūāb Patha and of Lakhī Jangal. petty landholder he became an Amīr and a confidential officer opportunism and a careful study of the situation are the marks of Zamīndārs particularly of usurpers, who always indulge in creating disturbances, so when Jahāndār Shāh fell 'Īsā became altogether a rebel and plundered everywhere He attacked the caravans of Delhī and Lāhore as if they were his source of revenue, and had frequent fights with the faujdārs By cunning and by letters and presents he established an alliance with Samsām-ud-Daula Khān Daurān and thereby increased his presumption and oppression The Jagirdais of the neighbourhood could not collect a dam of their rents From the banks of the Biyas, where he had made a fort called Badresa, to the town of Tharah in Sirhind which is on the Sutley, he was in possession of the entire territory, and no one had the courage to interfere with him

As 'Abd-us-Samad Diler Jang the governor of Lahore was annoyed by his conduct he, after the affair of the Sikhs had been disposed of, made Shāhdād Khān Khwēshgī—who was a brave man—faujdār of that neighbourhood and commissioned him to extirpate 'Isa Though Husam Khān (Khwēshgī)—the lord of the Khān—and the head of the turbulent men of the period—was not willing that 'Isā should be extirpated, because of the idea that as long as he existed, people would not trouble themselves about him (Husain Khān)—an idea which was correct as his biography shows—still Shāhdād Khān was bound to carry out the governor's orders When in the beginning of the 5th year of Farrukh-siyar's reign 1 the armies met near the town of Thaiah—which was 'Īsā's birth-place and where he had been brought up-he joined battle with 3,000 gallant horse and fought vehemently ² Shāhdād Khān could not withstand him and turned to flee By chance a bullet struck 'Īsā's father Daulat $\underline{\mathtt{Kh}}$ ān—who lived at ease by his son's fortune (daulat) and he was killed 'Īsā Khān drove his elephant against Shāhdād Khān who was riding a small, female elephant, and struck him two or three times with his sword Just then a bullet leached him and there was retribution for his actions His head was cut off, and by the orders of the governor it was sent to the Court After that his zamīndārī reverted to

¹ Apparently in 1717, as Farrukh siyar proclaimed himself as the Emperor in April, 1712

² There occur here the words mardum tāza nigāh dāsht Does this mean that Shāhdād's men were raw levies? See Maāthir ul Umarā, Text II, p 712 Apparently the words mean: he ('Isā) saw that the men were raw recruits his son, who manages it in the ordinary zamīndārī fashion No one of the tribe acquired such a name as 'Īsā 1

(Mīrzā) 'Īsā Tarkhān (Vol III, pp 485-488.)

His father was Jān Bābā uncle of the father 2 of Mīrzā Jānī Bēg 3 the ruler of Sindh When Mīrzā Jānī died 'Īsā became agitated by a desire for rule Khusiau Khān the Circassian, who was the chief Vakīl of the family, placed Mīrzā Ghāzī in his father's place, and wished to imprison 'Isa He had the good fortune to escape from that country and to arrive at the Court Jahangir gave him a high rank and appointed him to the Deccan When Mīrzā Ghāzī died as governor of Qandahār, Khusrau Khān placed upon the Tarkhānī masnad 'Abdul 'Alī a member of the family, and thought that he himself would be the real ruler Jahangir suspected that 'Abdul 'Ali might, with the help of Khusrau Khān, become independent there, he sent a farmān to 'Īsā Khān the latter came to the Court to pay his respects, some envious people represented that 'Isā had for a long time put the horse-shoe in the fire (ie been plotting) with the wish of becoming the rulei of the country, and that if he were now confirmed he might join the governors of Kachh and Mekrān and Hurmuz (Ormuz), who were near at hand and seek the alliance of Shāh 'Abbās Safavī and that it would take a long time to redress the evils so caused The King became suspicious and appointed Mīrzā Rustam of Qandahār to the government exertions the whole plant of the Tarkhans was uprooted from that country and Mīrzā 'Īsa was made jagīrdār of Dhanpūr in Gujarāt and appointed to that province When Shah Jahan after his failure left Sindh, and came⁴ by the Rann and the country of Bhāra⁵ in Gujarāt and returned to the Deccan, the Mīrzā had the good luck to present to him money, stores, horses and camels, and so lay the foundation of good fortune for hmself

Accordingly, after the death of Jahangir, the Mirza came to Agra and appeared at the Court He received an increase of 2,000 with 1,300 horse and attained the rank of 4,000 with 2,500 horse, and the government But afterwards the administration of the country was, of necessity, given to Shër Khwāja who was styled Khwāja Bāqī Khān, and the Mīrzā had to return from the Court without gaining his object He received the fief of Mathurā, 6 and, in the 5th year, the number of his troopers was increased, and he was sent off to the $j\bar{a}g\bar{i}r$ of Thehpūr In the 8th year, he had an increase of 1,000 and 1,000 horse and obtained the rank of

There is some account of Isa in Khāfī Khān, II, p 767, where he is called Isā Khān Mohmand

² That is, he was grand-uncle of Jānī Bēg See Blochmann's translation of Ā'īn, I (2nd edn), p 392, note 2

³ There was an earlier Mīrzā 'Isā Tarkhān son of Mīrzā 'Abdul 'Alī who died

m 974 AH, vide Elliot, I, p 325

4 Barāhzan, but it should be Rann, ie Rann of Cutch

5 Khāfī Khān, I, p 383, mentions Shāh Jahān's leaving Sindh for the Deccan

6 'Isāpūr a suburb of Mathurā is named after him, see Growse, Mathura,

5,000 with 4,000 horse, two-horse and three-horse, and was made $faujd\bar{a}r$ of the Sarkar of Solath In the 15th year, he was made governor of Gujarāt in succession to A'zam Khān The charge of Sōrath was given to his eldest son 'Ināyat Ullāh who had the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 After the Mīrzā was removed from the government, he received again charge of Junagarh, and, in the 25th 1 year, the defence of that country was entrusted to his second son Muhammad Sālih, and the Mīrzā was summond to the Court In Muharram, 1062, he had reached the town of Sāmbhar where he died² Though he was over 100 years old his natural force was not abated He still had youthful lusts and was much addicted to pleasure and drinking He was not without skill in music 'Inayat Ullah, his eldest son, who was an officer He had many children of high rank, died in the 21st year of the reign Most of his sons died After his death Mīrzā Muhammad Sālih who was in the Mīrzā's lifetime the best of them (1 e of those who survived him) and of whom a separate account (Text III, pp 560-562) has been given, attained the rank of 2,000 with 1,500 horse Fath Ullah attained the rank of 500, and 'Aqil received a suitable rank

(Mū'taman-ud-Daula) Ishāq Khān

(Vol III, pp 774-776)

His father came to India from Shüstar and settled in Delhi the reign of Mahammad Shāh he entered the service and received the title of Ghulām 'Alī Khān He was made Bakāwal (Clerk of the kitchen) Ishāq Khān was born in India, and, in the time of Muhammad Shāh he became Khān-1-Sāmān In the 22nd year, or 1152 3 (1739 A D) he died He composed poetry This verse is his

As my small heart was full of thoughts of that rose (beloved), The flute of my sleep last night was the whistling nightingale

The eldest was Mīrzā Muhammad who, like his He left three sons father, was an intimate of Muhammad Shāh and an object of envy to his contemporaries At first he was called Ishaq Khan but later received the title of Najm-ud-Daula He was appointed as 4th Bakhshī Maḥammad Shāh gave his sister 4 in marriage to Shujā'-ud-Daula the son of Safdar Jang After Muhammad Shāh's death he was retained as Bakhshī in Ahmad Shāh's time and appointed Krōrī 5 of Delhī Safdar Jang had his fights with the Bangash Afghans, who are found m the northern part of the Delhi Province, and a battle took place between the towns of Sālī and Sahāwar, in which Safdar Jang was defeated

¹ On p 560 of Vol III of the Text of Maāthir-ul-Umarā the year is given as

² It is stated in Elliot, I, p 302, that 'Isā Tarkhān died at the age of ninety-five in 1061 AH, 1651 AD Sāmbhar in Rājputāna, Imperial Gazetteer, XXII,

³ Muhammad Ishāq Khān Mū'taman-ud-Daula died in April, 1741 (vide Irvine, Journ As Soc Bengal for 1879, p 67)

She was the Bhão Bēgam of Faidābād (Irvine, loc cit, p 67)

For Krōrī, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, Mughal Administration, pp 41, 42, note, he was "the collector of a revenue area yielding one Kror of Dam, ? e, 2½ lakhs of rupees", also pp 86, 87

Najm-ud-Daula showed courage and was killed ¹ (1163 A H , 6th July, 1750 A D) Mū'taman-ud-Daula had two other sons, Mīrzā 'Alī Iftikhar-ud-Daula and Mīrzā Muḥammad 'Alī Sālār Jang In the reign of 'Ālamgīr II, they were proceeding from Delhī to Safdar Jang's camp, but it chanced that Safdar Jang died at this time, and the two brothers in 1168 went to Shujā'-ud-Daula in Oudh Afterwards Sālār Jang was made Bakhshī by Shāh 'Ālam

ISKANDAR KHĀN ŪZBEG (Vol I, pp 84–87)

He was a descendant of the princes of that tribe. He did good service under Humāyūn and obtained the title of Khān at the beginning of the expedition to India, and after the conquest he was appointed governor of Āgra. On the occasion of Hēmū he left Āgra and joined Tardī Bēg Khān in Delhī, and in the battle commanded the left wing. The imperial vanguard and left wing defeated the right wing of the enemy and pursued them, and obtained much plunder. 3,000 of the enemy were slain. At this juncture Hēmū attacked Tardī Bēg Khān and drove him into flight. The victors were astonished when they returned and had to follow Tardī Bēg. Iskandar Khān came to Sirhind to Akbar, and was appointed to the vanguard of the army against Hēmū along with 'Alī Qulī Khān Zamān. After the victory he was despatched to pursue the fugitives and to protect Delhī from plunderers. He made haste and killed many and obtained much booty. He was rewarded by the title of Khān 'Ālam

When Khdr Khwāja Khān, the governor of the Panjāb retreated before Sikandar Khān Sūr—who had designs against the country—and set about fortifying Lāhōre, and Sikandar Khān taking advantage of this opportunity set about collecting revenue from the province, Akbar instantly gave Iskandar Khān Siyālkōt, etc., in fief, and sent him off to assist Khīdr Khwāja After that he was rewarded with the fief of Oudh As ease and comfort make the turbulent and opportunists seditious, Iskandar Khān, in the 10th year, left the straight path and became a rebel Ashraf Khān was sent from the Court to conciliate him and to bring him to the Presence He, after some prevarications, went off to Khān Zamān, and they together raised the standard of revolt Iskandar Khān in company with Bahādur Khān Shaibānī fought near Kharābād with Mīr Mu¹izz-ul-Mulk of Mashhad, who had been deputed by His Majesty to chastise him Though in the end Bahādur Khān obtained the victory, Iskandar Khān was defeated in the first attack and fled In the 12th year when Khān Zamān and Bahādur Khān again rebelled, Muḥammad Qulī Khān Barlās was sent with a large force against Iskandar Khān, who was behaving contumaciously in Oudh There was fighting between them for a time When news came of the deaths of Khān Zamān and Bahādur Khān, Iskandar Khān had recourse to fraud and stratagem, and proposed peace After spending some time in this way he put his family and belongings into some boats which he had kept ready for this purpose and crossed the river He sent a message that he was still of the same mind and was shortly coming in. As his heart and his tongue were not in accord, the officers crossed the river and followed him went off to Görakhpür, which was then in the possession of the Afghans, and went to Sulaiman Kararani, the ruler of Bengal He marched in company with the latter's son (Bāyazīd) to conquer Orīssa When he returned, the Afghāns did not think that his presence among them was proper, and plotted against him He came to know of it and petitioned the Khān-Khānan who was in Jaunpur The latter consulted His Majesty, and giving Iskandai Khān hopes summoned him Iskandar Khān came quickly to the Khān-Khānān Khān-Khānān in the 17th year, 979 A.H. took him with him to the Emperor, and at the intercession of this officer Iskandar Khān was pardoned, and received the Sarkār of Lucknow At the time of departure he received a dress of honour (Chārgab), a waist-dagger, an ornamented sword and a horse with a gilded saddle, and was appointed to join the Khān-Khānān Some time after reaching Lucknow he fell ill, and on 10th Jumāda I, 980 AH (18th September, 1572 A D) he died He had the rank of 3,000 1

¹ See Irvine, loc cit, p. 75

ISLĀM KJIĀN CHISHTĪ FĀRŪQĪ.

(Vol I, pp 118-120)

His name was 'Alā'-ud-Dīn, and he was a grandson of Shaikh Salīm He was endowed with an excellent disposition and abundance of good qualities and was pre-eminent among his friends and connections In virtue of his being connected by fosterage with Jahangir he held a royal office and received much honour The sister of the well-known 'Allāmī Shaikh Abūl Fadl was married to him When Jahāngīr became the King, he received the title of Islām Khān and an office of 5,000, and was appointed governor of Bihar In the 3rd year, he was made, after the death of Jahangir Quli Khān Lāla Bēg, the governor of Bengal country had from the time of Sher Shah been in the possession of Afghan officers, large armies were sent there in Akbar's time under the leadership of high officials, and for a long time there was much fighting, etc last the Afghans were extirpated, but remnants of the tribe continued to Among them 'Uthman Khan, the son of Qutlu exist on the frontiers Lōhānī, became prominent, and several times engaged in battle with the imperial troops This was especially so in the time of Rāja Mān Singh, who in spite of his efforts, was unable to uproot the thorn of 'Uthman Khān's rebellion When Islām Khān's turn came, he arranged an army 3 under the leadership of Shaikh Kabīr Suhjā'at Khān—who was nearly related to him—and it set out along with auxiliary officers, from Akbarnagar (Rājmahal) against 'Uthmān Khān and after achievements which put the masterpieces of Rustam and Isfandiyār into oblivion—as has been fully detailed in the account of that officer (Text II, pp 630-633)—

¹ Apparently this Iskandar Khān was the son of Sa'īd Khān and is the man mentioned in the Tārīkh-1 Rashīdī, Elias and Ross's translation, p 340, etc

² Apparently from Iqbālnāma 1-Jahāngīrī, p 60 et seg
³ Blochmann's translation of Ā'īn, I (2nd edn), pp 586-588 Riyād-us Salātīn (translation) has an account of the battle on pp 174-179, but the above is copied from the Iqbālnāma, loc cit

'Uthmān Khān was sent-to annihilation and his brother (Walī Khān) made his submission As a reward for this good service, he, in the 7th year was promoted to the rank of 6,000 In the 8th year 1, 1022 A H. (1613 A D) his life came to an end His body was conveyed to Fathpur, which was his birth place and where his ancestors were buried history is a strange one His vii tue and gravity were such that probably, in all his life, he never took part in drunkenness or other forbidden things Yet in spite of this, all the saltatory troops in the whole of the province of Bengāl consisting of lūlī, hūrhanī², kanchnī (dancing-girls) and dōmnī (gypsies) were his servants and received from him Rs 80,000 a month, or nine lacs, sixty thousand a year Men stood holding trays of jewels and silken stuffs, and he distributed them in presents He carried the customs of high office (tūzuk-1-amārat) to such a pitch that he used the gharola 3 (lattice) for exhibiting himself to high and low, and the private parlour (GhuslLhāna) which are things fitting only for kings 4 He also had elephant-fights He was not particular about his dress and wore a skull-cap (tāqiya) under his turban He wore a shirt under his From the dishes on his table 1,000 poor were abundantly fed, but first they set before him bread of millet (juwār and bājra) and vegetables $(s\bar{a}g)$ and dry rice called $s\bar{a}th\bar{i}$ 5 His spirit and liberality threw the story of Hātım and Ma'an into oblivion During his government of Bengāl he distributed 1,200 elephants to his mansabdārs (officers) and servants Altogether he supported 20,000 persons, horse and foot who belonged to the clan of Sharkhzādas His son Ikrām Khān Hūshang was the child For a while he held an appointment in the of Sharkh Abul Fadl's sister Deccan In the end of Jahāngīi's reign he became the governor of the fort of Āsīr A daughter of Shēi Khān Tōnvar lived in his house (i e was married to him) He did not get on with her, and her brothers took her away In spite of his descent from such a family he was an oppressor In the middle of Shah Jahan's reign he was, for certain reasons, removed from his fief and office of 2,000 and 1,000 horse, and made a recipient of payment in cash (naqdī 6) He became a hermit in Fathpūi and had charge of the shrine of Shaikh Salīm He died in the 24th year His half-brother Shaikh Mu'azzam was appointed to the charge of the shrine, and in the 26th year he was made $faujd\bar{a}r$ of Fathpür, and held the rank of 1,800, substantive and with increments In the battle of Sāmūgarh 7, when he was in the altmish 8 of Dārā Shikōh's army, he died bravely 9

² In Haughton's Bengali Dictionary the form is hūrkaniyā and hūrkī, and the definition is—a woman who refuses to live with her husband Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), p 358, note 2 See also ibid, p 325, where Jahāngīr forbade $Am\bar{i}rs$ to use the jharōka, and Aurangzīb abolished it altogether

4 For a detailed account of the Prerogatives of the Emperor, see Sir Jadunath

Sarkar, Mughal Administration, pp 133-147

⁵ Sāthī rice, so called because it ripens in sixty days after being sown

This cash in exchange of Jāgīr was better known as 'ivad-i-jāgīr 7 Date of battle was 8th June, 1658 See Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, p 383

8 Advance-guard of the centre, Irvine Army of the Indian Moghuls, p 226
9 The biography of Islām Khān appears to be inaccurate — It is not mentioned that he removed the headquarters of the government of Bengāl from Rājmahal to Dacca, to which he gave the name of Jahāngīrnagar — See Elliot, VI, p 328

 $^{^{1}}$ 5th Rajab, 1022 A H , 21st August, 1613, see Rogers and Beveridge's translation of $T\bar{u}zuk$ - \imath -Jahāngīrī, I, p. 257

ISLĀM KHĀN MASHHADĪ

(Vol I, pp 162-167)

He was Mīr 'Abd-us-Salām, and had the title of Ikhtisās Khān He was one of the old servants of Shāh Jahān At first he did secretary's work In 1030, the 15th year of Jahāngīr—when the royal standards went for the second time to redress the affairs of the Deccan, the Mīr was made Vakīl of the Darbār (1 e Shāh Jahān's agent at his father's Court) with a suitable rank and the title of Ikhtisas Khan At the time when Jahangir was estranged from the Prince, he was recalled from the Court and joined Shāh Jahān and in the troubles that ensued did not try to part from him Afterwards, when the fort of Junair was made Shāh Jahān's residence, he was sent to Bījāpūr to convey to the heir Muḥammad 'Adīl Shāh condolences for the death of Ibrāhīm 'Adīl Shāh He performed the duty satisfactorily, and when Shah Jahan became the King, he waited upon him with a valuable present, and was given the rank of 4,000 with 2,000 horse, and the title of Islam Khan, and appointed 2nd 1 Bakhshī—a department in which none but confidential servents can be employed When Shāh Jahān went to the south to put down Khān Jahān Lōdī, he was appointed as the governor of Agra When Shēr Khān Tōnvar the $N\bar{a}zim$ of Gujarāt died in the 4th year, Islām Khān was made a $mansabd\bar{a}r$ of 5,000 and the governor of that province In the end of the 6th year, he became $M\bar{i}r^2$ $Ba\underline{kh}sh\bar{i}$, the words $Ba\underline{kh}sh\bar{i}$ -imumālik give the date, 1043 A H (1633-34 A D) In the 8th year, he was appointed governor of the extensive province of Bengāl in place of A'zam Khān, and there opened wide the gates of victory He chastised the Assamese properly and captured the son-in-law of the ruler chastised the Assamese properly and captured the son-in-law of the ruler of Āssām, and conquered forts so quickly that in the space of two 3 pahars (6 hours) he took fifteen forts 4 He also took Srīghāt and Pāndū and established thānas in the whole of Kūch Hājū Also, in the 11th year, he captured 500 of their boats Mānik Rāi the brother of the ruler of the Maghs—who was in possession of Chittāgong—solicited the protection of Islām Khān owing to the ascendency of the Arracanese, and came to him in the 12th year, 1048, 1638, in Jahāngīrnagar, commonly known as Dhāka (Dācca) In the 13th year, Islām Khān was summond to the

There are passing references to Islām Khān in the Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī these it appears that he was brought up with Jahangir and that he was one year his junior He was, therefore, born in 1570, and was 43 when he died He is buried at Fathpur Sīkrī where there is a massive monument built over his grave at Fathpur Sīkrī where there is a massive monument built over his grave

1 Balhshī dūwam u 'Ard mularrar—2nd Bakhshī and officer of the Revision department As Irvine has shown, 'Ard mularrar is the Superintendent of revision, vide Army of the Indian Moghils, pp 18, 42

2 That is, 1st Bakhshī Bādshāhnāma, I, p 542

3 Blochmann, Journ As Soc Bengal, XLI, for 1872, p 61, has "Before noon"
4 Bādshāhnāma, II, p 85, and Blochmann, Journ As Soc Bengal, XLI, p 61
He translates the word fort by stockade Islām Khān's first personal expedition was in the 11th year For the son-in-law's capture and death, see loc cit, p 88 He was apparently Sang Dēo's son-in-law For capture of the 500 boats, see p 88
The account of Āssām and of the campaign, etc in the Bādshāhnāma, II, pp 64-90, is very full Māndū is Pāndū in it Part of the account is translated in Elliot, VII, p 65 et seq The most complete translation is that by Blochmann noticed

VII, p 65 et seq The most complete translation is that by Blochmann noticed above. The campaign occurred in the autumn and winter of 1637 in the 11th year of Shah Jahan's reign

Presence and received charge of the high office of vazīr Daurān 1 Nasrat Jang, governor of the Deccan was killed, Islām Khān at the New Year's feast of the 19th year obtained the rank of $6{,}000 \, \overline{D} k \bar{a}t$ and hoise and the government of that province His brother, sons and son-in-law also had suitable increases and accompanied him

They say, that when the news came of Khān Daurān's death, Shāh Jahān told Islām Khān to decide who was fit for that government He went home and told his counsellors and well-wishers what the King had After deliberation he mentioned what came into his mind, namely his own name They said to him "How can this be right? The post of the Premier and the proximity to the King cannot be staked against the government of the Deccan" He said, "I agree, but what has occurred to the King is that Sa'ad Ullāh Khān—to whom he is partial—should be made Vazīr and he has sent for him under a pretext I fear that I may be superseded Under these circumstances what better can I do 2" All approved of his decision The same day about the end of the sessions he, contrary to custom and rule, appeared at the Court with his sword girt on and with his shield The King asked him the cause of this, and he replied that an order had been given to choose someone for the Deccan No one appeared to him to be suitable except himself. The King approved and asked as to who should be made the Deputy Vazīr said there was no better man for this than Sa'ad Ullah Khan also approved When he was arranging for his departure Sa'ad Ullāh Khān was confirmed in the Vazārat-i-kull (Chief Minister) All perceived the good judgment and right thinking of Islām Khān In the 20th year, he was raised to the high rank of 7,000 with 7,000 horse

When he came from Burhānpūr to Aurangābād illness prevailed over him, and he perceived that it was the time for his last journey accordance with the advice of Chatr Bhoj, the writer on his establishment, and Khwāja 'Ambar the mutsaddī (clerk) of his $j\bar{a}g\bar{i}r$, he burnt his records and clandestinely divided 2 his property among his sons and brothers and other persons of his household and sent a statement of Rs 25 3 lacs to the King On 14th Shawwal of the 21st year, 1057 A H (12th November, 1647 AD) he died, and in accordance with his will he was buried in Aurangābād The tomb and garden which were made, though old, remain in good condition to this day Khwāja 'Ambar remained 4 seated at the head of the tomb Shāh Jahān heard of what had taken place (about the property), but, in consideration of his long service, overlooked the occurrence and promoted every one of his sons in accordance with their deserts and gave them employment Chatr Bhoj he made $D\bar{\imath}v\bar{a}n$ of Mālwa

Islām Khān had a full knowledge of the rational and traditionary sciences and of elegant compositions and of calligraphy In reference to royal business he was jealous (lit greedy), and did not want that anyone should have possession of it He did his work with strictness and severity, and the men of the Deccan, who had been tormented by Khān Daurān,

¹ The second officer who bore that title He was assassinated at Lāhōre (Beale), properly four miles from Lāhōre, and died on 7th Jumāda I, 1055 A H or 1st July, 1645 A D, vide Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, p 757

2 Text karda, MS gufta

³ Text 25 lacs which is surely wrong MS has only Rs 25

⁴ Apparently the meaning is that he took charge of the tomb

did not 1 have their eyes salved (i e, cured or wiped dry) But he exerted himself to improve the country He sold the stones of the forts at a profit and made new arrangements He had on his establishment a good supply of horses and elephants, and though he had not the power to mount on horseback, yet he laboured hard in taking good care of the horses He had six sons Among them, Ashraf Khān (Text I, pp 272–274), Safī Khān (Text II, pp 740–742) and 'Abd-ur-Rahīm Khān (Text III, pp 740–742) II, pp 812, 813) have been separately noticed His third son Mir Muhammad Sharif was, after his death, raised to the rank of 1,000 with 200 horse In the 22nd year of Shāh Jahān's reign he went on the Qandahār compaign with Sultān Muḥammad Aurangzīb In the 24th year, he was made Superintendent (Dāiōgha) of the jewelled weapons Afterwards he was made Bakhshī and Reporter of the Capital At last he was made clerk of the port of Sūrat At the time of Shāh Jahān's illness, when Sultan Murad Bakhsh aimed at the sovereignty, he was seized and imprisoned The 4th son Mīr Muhammad Ghiyāth, after his father's death, rose to the rank of 500 with 100 horse, and in the 28th year became Bakhshī and Reporter of Burhānpūr, and Superintendent of the wardrobe (Karkīrāqkhāna) there In the time of Aurangzīb he was again (2) appointed clerk of the port of Sūrat, and Bakhshī and Reporter of Aurangābād In the 22nd year (of Aurangzīb) he died sixth, Mīr 'Abd-ur-Rahmān was sent off in the 16th year of Aurangzīb as the Chamberlain ($Hay\bar{a}bat$) of Haidarābād $S\bar{u}ba$, and for some time was $Ba\underline{kh}sh\bar{\imath}$ and Reporter of Aurangābād and also for a time he was Master of the horse and $D\bar{a}r\bar{o}\underline{gh}a$ - \imath -'Ard mukarrar or Superintendent of Revision department

ISLĀM KHĀN MĪR DIYĀ-UD-DĪN HUSAIN BADAKHSHĪ.

(Vol I, pp 217-220)

He was an old Wālā-Shāhī (household-trooper) of Aurangzīb spent his life in his service and always did well. At the time when Aurangzīb was a prince he was Dīvān of the Prince's establishment When the influence of Dārā Shikōh, owing to the $(Sark\bar{a}r - \iota - Sh\bar{a}h\bar{\iota})$ kındness of Shāh Jahān, was so great that whatever he wished done in the affairs of the Saltanat was carried out, the Prince resolved to set out ostensibly to wait upon his father, but really to remove his elder brother —and in the beginning of Jumāda I, 1068 A H (5th February, 1658 A D) he sent off his eldest son Sultan Muhammad along with Najabat Khan as an advance-guard from Aurangābād to Burhānpūr, and Mīr Dhiyāud-Din who till then had acted as the Divan-was sent with Sultan Afterwards the Prince himself came to Burhanpur, and encamped at the garden Farmānbārī² which is a mile from the city, and the Mir received the title of Himmat Khan After the battle with details of the struggle for the throne

The text here seems corrupt By missing the word dāshtand in the text the meaning becomes clear as the Deccanis did not have their eyes cured under Islām Khān, ie, they still had to weep, but the prosperity of the country was increased 'Alamgīrnāma, pp 50, 51 Full details of the march are given by Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, pp 344-347 See also the later chapters for the Jaswant he received the title of Islam Khan In the battle with Dara Shikōh when Rustam Khān Deceanī put Bahādūr Khān Kōka into difficulties, the Mir advanced with the right wing and fought manfully After the victory, when it became essential to pursue Dārā Shikōh, Muhammad Sultān, under the guardianship of Islām Khān, was appointed to manage the affairs of the Capital, and Islam Khan obtained a commission of 4,000 with 2,000 horse, and a present of Rs 30,000 1 In the battle with Shuja', he was in the vanguard of the right wing, and when Raja Jaswant, who was in command of the right wing and from treachery and rebelliousness took the road of descrition, the Khān 2 became the leader It chanced that in the heat of the engagement the elephant 3 on which he was uding took flight on being struck with a locket and threw the troops into confusion Many men fled. At this time the King came in person to assist and heartened the others who had not left the field After the victory Islam Khan went with Sultan Muhammad who had been appointed along with Mu'azzam Khan Mii Jumla, and other officers to go in pursuit of Shujā'

When Shujā' went away full of despan from Akbarnagar to Tānda, Mu'azzam Khān left Islām Khān with 10,000 horse in Akbarnagar (Rājmahal) and entrusted to him the charge of defending that side of the Ganges When on 5th Sha'ban of the 2nd year (28th April, 1659 AD) Shujā' being oppressed by the blows of Mu'azzam Khān fled to Jahāngīrnagar (Dacca) so that he might convey his ruined fortunes to Arrācān, Islam Khan in the same month, on account of his dislike 4 of the general, or because he was distressed by his privations (2), went off to the Presence without being summoned On this account he was for a time deprived of his rank and reprimanded In the 3rd year, he was restored to his former rank In the 4th year, he was made governor of Kashmir in succession to Ibiāhīm Khān When the loyal army proceeded to that ever vernal and flowery land, Islām Khān, in obedience to an order, waited upon the King at Naushahra, which is an extensive and populous pargana, and the second stage on the road to the hills, in the beginning of His rank was advanced by an increase of 1,000 horse and he had a mansab of 5,000 with 3,000 hoise, and was made governor of A full month had not elapsed after his arrival at that city when the messenger of death arrived in the beginning of 1074 A H (1663 A D) Ghani 5 of Kashmir composed the chronogram of his death

Murd Islām Khān Wālā Jāh (Islām Khān of elevated dignity is dead 1074)

He was buried in the tomb of the loid of knowledge and certainty Mīr Muḥammad Nu'mān 6—May God's peace be upon him !—in whom the Khān had placed great reliance, and near whose tomb he had built The date of building is Bānī Islām Khān Bahādur, a lofty mosque Islām Khān Bahādur is the builder (1058 AH, 1648 AD) built the Idgah mosque in Kashmir, which is a very lofty and substantial

^{4 &#}x27;Alamgīrnāma, p 555

⁵ His name was Muhammad Tāhir, vide Rieu, II, p 692a
⁶ But perhaps some Kashmīrī saint is meant There was a Mīr Nu'mān to whom Islām Khān was related, see 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 627, and as is mentioned below in the text

His heir was Himmat Khan Mir Bakhshi One of his daughters was married to Mīr Ibrāhīm, the son of Mīr Nu'mān went ¹ off in the second year to convey to Mecca properties worth six lacs and 10,000 rupees which Aurangzīb had sent for the holy places, and died there in the 4th year In short, Islām Khān was not devoid of perfections. He had a poetic bent of mind These two verses of his are well known

Verse

Without thee, grief's evening makes a night-attack on my day, The pupil of my eye is from weeping drowned in blood Make a pleasant place, O desert, for this night, The army of my sighs will encamp outside my heart

ISLĀM KHAN RŪMĪ²

(Vol I, pp 241-247)

Husam Pāshā was the son of 'Alī Pāshā Pāshā in that country (Turkey) means an Amīr He was governor of Başra and was nominally subject to the Sultan of Turkey Muhammad, his uncle, was offended with him and went to Constantinople with the request that his brother's son should be dispossessed and that he (Muhammad) should be appointed in his place. When he did not succeed there in his object, he went to Abshar, the Pāshā of Aleppo, who had the power of appointing and removing the governors of some of the cities of Turkey, and represented the misbehaviour and evil ways of his nephew He also asked for an estate from the produce of which he could provide for his necessities Abshar wrote to Husam Pāshā to restore to him an estate out of the dependencies of Basra When he came to Başra, Husain Pāshā acted according to Abshar's letter and kept Muhammad in comfort in his When Muhammad in concert with his brother exceeded his authority and began to behave in an unseemly manner, Husain Pāshā imprisoned both of them and transported them to India They cleverly contrived to get out of the ship on the shores of Lahsa 3 (Al-Hasa) and came to Baghdad to Murtada Pasha Muhammad craftily represented to him that Husain Pāshā was in league with the Persians and that he possessed abundant riches and said, that if Murtada would come with troops and expel Husam and give the governorship of Basra to him (Muhammad), all these riches would revert to him

Murtadā reported these suggestions to the Qaisar (the Sultān of Turkey) and obtained permission to go to Başra and depose Husain When the plan came into operation and he came near Başra, Husain Pāshā sent Yaḥyā (John) with an army to fight perceived that Murtada had a large force and that he was unable to resist him, he yielded and joined Murtadā When Husain Pāshā heard this,

Bassa of Mesopotamia

¹ In Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī the amount is 6 lacs worth of goods and Rs 30,000 in cash Was it not Mīr Ibrāhīm the son of Mīr Nu'mān who was sent with the money and who died in Arabia? Cf 'Alamgīrnāma, p 627

2 Fryer mentions that he saw him encamped near Sūrat He calls him the

³ El-Ahsā or El Hasā in E Arabia is the name of a district

he was disconcerted and conveyed his family and goods to Bhabhā 1, which is a dependency of Shinaz, and turned for assistance to the Persians Murtadā came to Başıa, but in spite of all his search could not find the treasure that Muhammad had mentioned On this account he put Muhammad and his brother and a number of others to death afterwards the Arabs of the peninsulas (Mesopotamia) on being oppressed by the misbehaviour of Murtada rose up against him and defeated him Murtada fled to Baghdad, and many of his men were killed was sent to Husam Pāshā and he was invited to return to Basia left his family and property at Bhabhā, and came to Basra, and began once more to rule there He did so for ten or twelve years and always maintained a friendly intercourse with the great princes of India and sent them letters and presents For instance, in the 3rd year of 'Alamgir he sent 2 a letter full of congratulations on his accession, together with some 'Irāgī horses

In short, when the ruler of Turkey, on account of the troubles and opposition offered by Husain, ordered that Yahya should be appointed in his place, Husain was unable to remain there any longer Nor could he go to the Sultān of Turkey Being helpless he set off with his family and a few servants to Persia When he arrived there he did not meet with any favour, nor could be gather the flower of kindness guidance of fortune he determined to migrate to India, and set off His airival was approved of by the Emperor (Auiangzīb) and a robe of honour, a palanquin and a female elephant were made over to a macebearer to be conveyed to Husain in order that the exile might be comforted and made hopeful of favours When he reached Shāhjahānābād (Delhī) in the 12th year on 15th Safr, 1080 AH (15th July, 1669 AD), the Bakhshī-ul-Mulk Asad Khān and the Sadr-us-Sudūr 'Ābid Khān received him at the Lāhōre gate of the city wall Dānishmand Khān Mīr Bakhshī came forward (to meet him), and Husain Pāshā was introduced according to ceremonial and permitted to kiss the throne By the touch of the royal hand on his back, his head was exalted beyond the sky 3 presented a ruby with Rs 20,000 and ten horses He received a lac of rupees and other presents and the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 4 horse and the title of Islam Khan The house of Rustam Khan Deccani-which was a lofty mansion on the bank of the Jumnā-together with carpets, etc, and a boat so that he might come by the river to the Court, were given to him His eldest son Afrasiyab received the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 horse and the title of Khān and his other son 'Alī Bēg obtained the title of Khān and the rank of 1,500 After that he was granted an increase of 1,000 with 1,000 horse and a $tan\underline{kh}w\bar{a}h$ (salary) in money for ten months and a remission of the charge of the keep of the animals 5 Later on he

¹ Apparently it is the Babahan of the maps and on the road from Shīrāz to Baghdād

² Khāfī Khān, II, p 124 ³ The description of Husain Pāshā's arrival is taken from the Maāthu -1-'Ālamgīrī, The phrase about the head being exalted above the sky occurs on He, as Bakhshi-ul-The Danishmand Khan of the text was Bernier's patron Mulk conducted the Pāshā as far as the entrance to the Chuskhāna

4 Khāfī Khān, II, p 234, has 4,000, but Maāthır-ı-'Ālamgīrī 5,000

⁵ See Irvine, Army of the Indian Moguls, pp 17, 20 Few officers received the full twelve months' pay The animals were, it seems, the Emperor's and was made Sūbadār of Mālwa As courage and ability were conspicious in him, he became a favourite, and soon was recognized as one of the great Au angzīb wished that he would send for his family and officers of India settle in the country As he, for certain reasons, delayed in sending for his wife and for his third son Mukhtāi Bēg, and made evasions, he was removed from his office and excluded from the Presence, he took up his abode in Ujjain In the 1 end of the 15th year, at the petition of 'Umdat-ul-Mulk Khān Jahān Bahādur, Nāzım of the Deccan, he was restored to his rank and office and appointed to command the vanguard of the army (of the said Khān) He was frequently engaged against the armies of 'Adil Shāh and the grandson of Bahlūl of Bījāpūr In the 19th year, 11th Rabi II, 1087 AH (23rd June, 1676 AD) at the moment of engaging the enemy (dar 'ain tarāzū būdan-i-jang), and while distributing (the troops) fire fell into the gunpowder, and Islam Khan's elephant got out of control 2 and went straight into the enemy's ranks The foe surrounded him and cut the ropes of his howdah, and when he fell to the ground they put him and his son 'Alī Bēg to the sword

Verse

Death headed his path, and he fell before it, The game was of itself drawn to the net of destruction

He had great ability, zeal, courage and right mindedness, and did great deeds He also had a taste for poetry This quatrain is his

Verses

For a while we 3 trod the path of want, We practised beggary at the sublime gate As a present we brought pieces of our liver, That we might create acquaintance with our friend's dog

After his death, Afrāsiyāb Khān was made an officer of 2,500 with 1,500 horse, and Mukhtar Beg 4, who had come with his father's belongings in the 18th year to Ujjam and had been given by proxy $(gh\bar{a}ib\bar{a}na)$ a mansab of 700 with 100 horse, received the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse properties of the deceased Khan, which amounted to three lacs of rupees and twenty thousand ashrafis and which had been confiscated in Ujjain and Shōlāpūr, were restored to his sons, and an order was given that they should meet the claims against their father Afterwards Afrasiyab Khān was made faujdār of Dhāmūnī, and in the 24th year was made faujdār of Murādābād on the death of Faid Ullāh Khān, and so gained his

3 Maāthīr-1-'Ālamgīrī, p 87 We in the verses means he and his sons, while the sons are later described as pieces of our liver 4 Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 143 not the officers' own Islam got 10 months' pay and his sons 8 months' Also see Maāthir i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 88

¹ Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, pp 121, 122 Islām Khān had now sent for his family

² Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 151, and Khāfī Khān, II, p 236, who puts the battle into the 16th year, 1080, but in Sir Jadunath Sarkar's History of Aurangzib, III, p 394, it is stated to have been in the 19th year desire (murād), and in the same year Mukhtāi Bēg was styled Nawāzish ¹ Khān, and in the 30th year made faujdār and governor of the fort of Mandṣūr (in Mālwa, now in Gwālioi) In the 37th year, he was appointed to the charge of the Chakla of Murādābād After that he was made faujdār of Māndū, and later he was appointed governor of Ilichpūr In the 48th year he became Sūbadār of Kashmīr

ISMĀ'IL² BĒG DŪLDĪ

(Vol I, pp 64, 65)

He was one of Bābur's officers, and was distinguished for his courage and counsels When Humāyūn returned from Persia and besieged Qandahār, the position of the besieged became difficult, and Mīrzā 'Askari's officers described and presented themselves before Humāyūn Ismā'il Bēg was one of them, and after Qandahār was taken he was made the governor of Zamīn Dāwar³ During the siege of Kābul he and Khidr Khwāja Khān were sent against Shēr 'Alī, who had been sent by Kāmrān to plunder a foreign caravan which had reached Chārīkar ⁴ Shēr 'Alī could not return to Kābul, as the road was blocked by the imperialists, and so he hastened off towards Ghaznī A battle took place in the pass of Sajāwand between him and the imperialists, the latter were victorious and returned to Humayun with much booty, and were rewarded When Qarācha Khān, who at first had done good service and had received boundless favours, revolted and seduced a large body of men and carried them off to Mīrzā Kāmrān in Badakhshān, Ismā'īl Bēg was also led away and so he received from Humāyūn the nickname of Khirs Afterwards Humāyūn went in person to Badakhshān and on the day of the battle with Kāmrān Ismā'īl Khān was made a prisoner Humāyūn spared him at the intercession of Mun'im Khān and made him over to him He accompanied Humāyūn on the expedition to India, and after the taking of Delhī was sent with Shāh Abūl Maʻālī to Lāhōre Nothing more is known about him 5

ISMA'IL KHAN BAHADUR PANI

(Vol I, pp 370, 371)

Sultān \underline{Kh} ān, his father, was a $jama'd\bar{a}r$ and his (the father's) daughter was married to Sarmast \underline{Kh} ān, the son of 'Azmat 6 \underline{Kh} ān who in the battle

¹ Maāthir i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p. 195 ² In the first edition, viz that by Ghulām ʿAlī Āzād, Adham Khān Kōka is the trame. In the 2nd, viz that now translated, Ismāʿīl Bēgʾs is the first name.

first name — In the 2nd, viz that now translated, Ismā'īl Bēg's is the first name

3 Zamīn Dawar or more correctly Zamīn-i-Dāwar is a district in the territory of Chūr in Khurāsān, see Bayerty. Mahalāta Nāserā II. Index p. 273

Ghūr in Khurāsān, see Raverty, Tabahāt-1-Nās1rī, II, Index, p 273

4 Chārīkarān in the text, but as pointed out in Blochmann's translation of Ā'īn, I (2nd edn), p 423, note 1, "Charikar (lat 35° long 69°) which lies north of Kabul" is the correct reading

⁵ He appears in Abūl Fadl's list as a commander of 2,000 (Blochmann, loc cit) His nickname is considered by Blochmann to be Khirs a bear, i e a rude fellow But it may be the Arabic Khars a wine-jar, Akbarnāma, Beveridge's translation, I, p 523, note 1

⁶ He was 'Iwad Khān's chief jama'dār The battle in which Dilāwar Khān was killed, was fought on 23rd May, 1720, see Elliot, VII, p 496 and Khāfī Khān, II, p 879

with Saiyid Dilāwar 'Alī Khān dismounted in front of the elephant of Adud-ud-Daula 'Iwad Khan and sacrificed his life Afterwards Sarmast Khān and Sultān Khān obtained jāgīrs Ismā'īl Khān with 1,000 horse was the heieditary servant of Salābat Jang, and Nizām-ud-Daula Āsaf As his fortune was in the ascendant, he gradually became Na'ib of the Nızāmat, and (had the) management of the estates in Berār he had an old acquaintance with Janoii Bhonsle, who was then Ta'luqdar of that province on the part of the Mahrattas, he managed the collections on the principle of slant 1 the cup, but don't spill For a long time he managed affairs there At last his brain became damaged through the use of intoxicants and he showed marks of presumption This displeased Nızām-ud-Daula Āsaf Jāh and he determined on his punishment, and in the year that he went towards Nāgpūr to punish the sons of Raghūjī Bhonsle, though Isma'il presented himself with a small body of troops at his camp, thinking that the killing of Rukn-ud-Daula 2 the manager of the establishment of that chief (Asaf Jah) had proved an eye-salve, he was not received with favour and heard words of anger He wished to return home Meanwhile a force, which had been appointed against him, made its appearance He was helpless, but with thirty or forty troopers, who stuck to him, he attacked and drove off the matchlockmen and entered the hostile cavalry As he advanced he wielded his sword When he had received many wounds, he came to the centre of the army and fell from his horse, and gave up his life in 1189 AH (1775 AD) His sons Salābat Khān and Bahlūl Khān became objects of compassion and received in jāgū the estates of Bālāpūi 3, Badanpara-1-Bībī and Karanj village in Berar They are still serving, and are comfortable

ISMĀ'ĪL KHĀN MAKHĀ 4

(Vol I, pp 291, 292.)

He formerly served with Sihbandī 5 corps in the Carnātic district of Haidarābād In the 35th year of Aurangzīb's reign he received, on the recommendation of Dhūlfaqāi Khān Bahādur, a commission of 5,000 with 5,000 horse and the title of Khān, and was appointed, in company with Dhūlfaqār Khān to storm the fort of Gingee 6 In the 37th year, as during the siege, the relations between Muhammad Kām Bakhsh

¹ That is, the conditions were impossible

 $^{^2}$ This is not the Rukn-ud-Daula who was also called Lashkar Khān and who at one time replaced the author of the $\it Ma\bar{a}thr-ul-Umar\bar{a}$ He died in 1170 AH (1757 AD)

 $^{^3}$ Bālāpūr is mentioned in Jarret's translation of \overline{A} 'în, II, p 234, as in the Sarkār of Narnālah Karānja, Badhona and Karānja in Sarkār Gāwīl are also mentioned on p 232

⁴ It is Like Makhā (of Mecca?) in the text and in the Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 357, etc., but Khāfī Khān, II, p 416 and elsewhere has yakka or solitary champion, which term is applied to men of distinguished bravery who combat singly Probably this was the correct title

⁵ Local Militia, see Irvine Army of the Indian Moghuls, p 166

⁶ In the text Khinji, but this is a mistake for Gingee It is the famous Gingee in South Arcot which Bussy took in 1750 See Khāfi Khān, II, p 418, Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 357, and Elliot, VII, p 348 Jinji in Kincaid and Parasanis—History of the Maratha People, pp 23, 100, etc

(youngest son of Aurangzīb), and Asad Khān and Dhūlfagāi Khān became strained, Dhulfagai Khan judged it expedient to withdraw from the siego and recalled the troops and the guns from the batteries Ismā'īl Khān had his battery on the other side of the fort, and could not get away quickly Santā Ghorpaie 1 and others who were waiting for their opportunity came and joined battle with him. As he had but few men he was wounded and made pusoner by the Mahiattas and imprisoned for a year By the efforts of Acham Nān—with whom he had acquaintance he was released after paying a heavy ransom. In the 38th year, he appeared at the Court, and was honoured by an increase of 1,000 Dhat and the appointment of looking after the roads from Anandi 2 to Murtadabad In the 41st year 3, he was made faugdār of Islāmgarh, or Rāhīrī in place of 'Abd-ui-Razzāq Khān Lāiī In the 45th year, he was made faujdār of Banīshāh Duig ¹ The conclusion of his history does not appear

ISMĀ'IL QULĪ KHĀN DHŪ-AL-QADR

(Vol I, pp 105-107)

He was the younger brother of Husam Quli Khān Khān Jahān, and one of the high officers of Akbar's reign In the battle of Jālandhar when Banām Khān was defeated and made to retreat, the imperialists pursued Ismā'īl Qulī Khān and captured him After his brother was received into favour, he too was well treated by the Emperor, and performed great deeds in company with his brother When his brother died as $S\bar{u}bad\bar{a}r$ of Bengal, Ismā'īl Qulī Khān came to the Court with his (brother's) goods and chattels, and was favourably received In the 30th 5 year, he was sent to chastise the Balūchīs, who had become rebelhous and did not submit to authority When he came to Balūchistān, the people were first contumacious, but soon sued for peace Their chiefs, Ghāzī Khān Wajīh and Ibiāhīm Khān Daulat, accepted service, and their country was restored to them by the Emperor In the 31st 6 year, when Rāja Bhagwant Dās was recalled owing to insanity from the government of Zābulıstān (Afghānıstān), Ismā'īl Qulī Khān was appointed in his place, but he exhibited improper traits and fell out of favour An order was given that he should be put into a boat and sent to Mecca

¹ Khōrpura in the text See Khāfī Khān, II, pp 415, 416, Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 357, and Elliot, VII, p 346 It is the Ghorepuray of Grant-Duff, History of the Mahrattas (1921), I, p 70, who states that according to the family legend the Ghorepurays were originally Bhonslay and got their present name owing to an ancestor's having been the first to scale a fort, deemed impregnable, by fastening a cord round the body of a ghorepur or iguana (the lizard known in Bengal as goh samp) Santā, or Suntājee Ghorepuray was afterwards murdered by another Mahratta, Grant-Duff, op cit, p 295 He is the Santājī Ghorpare of the Cambridge History of India, IV, p 291, etc., and Santajī Ghorpade of Kincaid and Parasanis

² Maāthir-i-Ālamgīr, p 369, has Aindī Murtadābād is another name for ² Maāthiri-i-'Alamgīrī, p 369, has Aindī Murtadābād is another hame 25.

Mīrich, Elliot, VII, p 364

³ Maāthiri-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 387

⁴ Maāthiri-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 440, has Nabī, but Khāfī Khān, II, p 495, has Banī See Elliot, VII, p 371 It is another name for Panhāla

⁵ Akbarnāma, Text III, p 475, Beveridge's translation, III, pp 716, 717

⁶ Akbarnāma, Text III, pp 491, 492, Beveridge's translation, III, pp 742–745

For the various spellings of the name of Rāja Bhagwant Das, see Blochmann's translation of the Ā'īn, I (2nd edn), p 353

by the way of Bhakkar He had recourse to entreaties, and though his requests were granted, he was removed from where he was and appointed to chastise the Yūsufza'īs Suddenly various kinds of diseases resulting from the obnoxious atmosphere broke out in the hill-country of Sawād (Swāt) and Bājaur The chiefs of their own accord came before Ismā'īl Quli Khān and submitted When Zain Khān, the governor of Zābulistān had pressed hard upon Jalāla Raushanī and made him leave Tīrāh for the hill-country of the Yūsufza'īs, Zain Khān, to wipe out the disgrace which he had incurred in the affair of Bir Bar, entered the hill-country Sadiq Khān also was sent fron the Court so that he might take post in Sawād and that Jalāla might be caught whichever way he turned Ismā'īl Qulī Khān, who was thānadār of that country, took umbrage at Sādiq Khān's coming, and leaving the passes open went off to the Court Suddenly Jalāla got his opportunity and came out For this reason Ismā'īl Qulī Khān was for some time under censure, but, in the 33rd year, was appointed to the government of Gujarāt When in the 36th year, Prince Sultān Murād was appointed to the government of Mālwa, Ismā'īl Qulī Khān was made his Vakīl, but he did not act properly as Murād's guardian In the 38th year, Sādiq Khān was appointed in his place, and Ismā'īl Qulī Khān was recalled to the Court In the 39th year, he was allowed to go to Kalpī, which was his fief, so that he might develop the property. In the 42nd year, 1005 AH (1596-97 AD), he was raised to the rank of 4,000 They say, he was much given to pleasure and displayed great luxury in food and clothing, and in carpets and other furniture He had 1,200 women, and when he went to the Court he used to have seals put on the strings of their drawers At last they all got annoyed and joined together and poisoned him His sons, Ibrāhīm Qulī, Salīm Qulī, and Khalīl Qulī obtained suitable appointments in the time of Akbar

I'TIBAR KHAN KHWAJASARA

(Vol I, pp 134, 135)

He was one of the confidants of Jahāngīr, and from very early years was his attendant. When Khusrau was arrested after his flight and brought to the Court, and the King moved from Lahore to Kabul, Sharif Khān Amīr-ul-Umarā, to whose charge Khusrau had been committed 2, remained in Lähöre on account of illness, and Khusrau was put under the charge of I'tıbār Khān He had at first a suitable rank, and in the 2nd year the district (hawēlī) of Gwāliyār was assigned 3 to him as his $tan\underline{kh}w\bar{a}h$ (salary) In the 5th year, he got a mansab of 4,000 with

Perhaps Khusrau was later to be removed to Gwaliyar and so I'tibar Khan got his

jāgīr there

¹ See his life in Blochmann's translation of the $ilde{A}$ 'in, I (2nd edn.), pp. 388, 389 ² According to the Index to Khāfī Khān, II, p 983, I'tibār Khān was one of the conspirators who proposed to release Khusiau and kill Jahāngīr, but this is a mistake conspirators who proposed to release Khusiau and kill Jahängīr, but this is a mistake The Hindū who joined in the conspiracy was not I'tibār Khān, but his managei Şāhibmadār, see Khāfī Khān, I, p 258, and also the account of the conspiracy in Iqbālnāma-i Jahāngīrī, pp 28, 29, where it is stated that it was a Hindū belonging to I'tibār Khān, and who looked after his servants The Hindū was executed

3 Though Gwāliyār was assigned to him for his maintenance (Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk i-Jahāngīrī, I, p 113) he was not sent there, at least not immediately, for we find him afterwards in Afghānistān and in charge of Khusrau Perhaps Khusrau was later to be removed to Gwāliyār and so I'tibār Khān got his

1,000 horse, and in the 8th year, one of 5,000 with 2,000 horse. In the 10th year, his rank was increased by 1,000 horse and in the 17th year he had the rank of 5,000 with 4,000 horse. When he was very old, he received charge of the province of the Capital (Āgra) and of the fort and the treasury. In the 18th year, when Prince Shāh Jahān marched from Māndū with the intention of waiting upon his father, and the flames of discord shot up between them, the Prince came to Fathpūi and halted there. When the royal troops arrived, he retreated. After that when the royal cortege came near Āgra, I'tibār Khān, as he had rendered good service in protecting the city, received the rank of 6,000 with 5,000 horse, and the gift of a robe of honour, a jewelled sword, a horse and an elephant. At the appointed time he departed to the other world.

I'TIBAR KHAN NAZIR 1

(Vol I, p 65)

His name was Khwāja 'Ambar He was a eunuch, and a confidential servant of Bābur In the year when Humāyūn went off to 'Irāq from near Qandahār ², I'tibār Khān and others were appointed to look after Maryam Makānī ³ He did good service on this occasion In 952 A.H (1545 AD) he waited on Humāyūn at Kābul and was appointed to serve Akbar After the death of Humāyūn, Akbar sent him to Kābul to bring his mother, and in the 2nd year of the reign he returned in her train After some time he was made the governor of Delhī and died there

I'TIMAD KHAN GUJARATI

(Vol I, pp 93-100)

He was one of the Hindū 4 slaves of Sultān Maḥmūd the ruler of Gujarāt As the Sultān had full confidence in him he appointed him in his harem and assigned to him the adorning of the women I'timād Khān as a precaution ate camphor and so made himself impotent As he possessed ability, steadiness of conduct, and the appearance of integrity, he rose to a high rank When in 961 A H (1553-54 A D) the Sultān after reigning for eighteen years was killed by the treachery of a servant named Burhān, the latter put to death twelve of the principal officers by pretending that the Sultān had summoned them, but I'timād Khān had the foresight not to attend He gathered together helpers, fought and killed Burhān As the Sultān had no son, I'timād Khān, to extinguish

4 Mirat-i-Silandari calls him 'Abdul Karim (Rombay lith adn n 203)

¹ Also known as Khwāja 'Ambar Nāzīr—see Albarnāma, Text I, p 224, and Beveridge's translation I, p 451

 $N\bar{a}zir$ was a revision officer and assistant to the $D\bar{i}w\bar{a}n$, see Ibn Hasan—Central Structure of Mughal Empire, p 239

 $^{^2}$ Apparently meaning that Humāyūn started for Persia after he had been forced to leave India in 1543 A D

³ Hamīda Bānū, mother of Akbar—see Beveridge's translation of Akbarnāma.
I, p 33, note, for her title of Maryam Makānī

the flames of sedition, raised to the thione a boy named Radī-ul-Mulk 1 of the family of Sultan Ahmad the founder of Ahmadabad, and gave him the name of Sultan Ahmad Shah I'tımad Khan, however, kept all the power in his own hands and left him nothing but the title of King

After five years the Sultan came from Ahmadabad and joined Saiyid Mubarak Bokhari, who was one of the great officers a battle in which he was defeated by I'timad Khan he had to take flight When he again joined I'timad Khan, the latter acted as before Sultan from want of sense plotted with his associates to kill I'timad Khan, In the year 969 2 AH, but he anticipated the Sultan and killed him he brought forward a child called Nanhū 3, who did not belong to the royal family, and swore upon the Qur'an before the officers, "This is the begotten son of Sultan Mahmud His mother was pregnant and the Sultān made her over to me to produce abortion, but as she was then five months gone with child, I did not do so" The officers were helpless and accepted the statement and raised the boy to the throne under the name of Sultan Muzaffar I'tımad Khan became the Prime Minister as But the territories were divided among the officers, and all of them were confirmed in their offices They fell out with one another and were either victorious or vanquished

When I'timād Khān kept the Sultān under surveillance and in his power, Chengiz Khān, the son of I'tımād-ul-Mulk, a Turkısh slave, asserted himself and opposed I'timäd Khān, urging that if Sultān Muzaffar were really the son of Sultan Mahmud, why was he not allowed a free At last with the assistance of the rebel Mīrzās, who had fled from Akbar, he led an army against I'timād Khān The latter offered no resistance, but left the Sultan and fled to Düngai pür After some time Alf Khān and Jujhār Khān, who were Abyssinian Amīrs, brought the Sultan and made him over to I'timad Khan They then separately went off and joined Chengiz Khān in Ahmadābād Without any cause becoming suspicious of him they killed him I'timād Khān learnt of this and taking the Sultan returned with him to Ahmadabad the officers quarrelled with one another, the rebellious Mīrzās came from Mālwa and took possession of Broach and Sūrat The Sultān too, who was looking for an opportunity, came out of Ahmadābād one day and joined Sher Khan Fuladi who had a strong following I'timad Khan wrote to Sher Khan that Nanhu was not the son of Sultan Mahmud, and that he was sending for the Mīrzās and going to make them the sovereign The officers, who were in league with Sher Khan said, that I'timad Khan had in their presence sworn upon the Qu'ran (that Muzaffar was the son), and what he was now saying was the result of enmity Sher Khan then led an army against Ahmadābād I'timād Khān sheltered himself there and solicited the help of the Mīrzās There was a great disturbance When this had lasted a long time, I'timād Khān saw that things were not improving and that the amelioration of the distracted country was beyond

¹ This account is incorrect Radī-ul-Mulk was the name of the man who fetched the boy, see Bayley's History of Guyarat, p 454, and De and Prashad's translation of Tabaqāt-i-Albarī, III, p 394, note 4

2 At the end of the year in Tabaqāt-i-Albarī, and therefore corresponding to

³ Variant Nathū See Tabaqāt-i-Albarī, loc cit, p 397

his power He had recourse to Akbar and petitioned him to conquer the country In the 17th year, 980 AH (1572-73 AD), when the King came to Pattan, a stone of disunion fell among Sher Khan's party, and the Mīrzās also went to Broach Sultān Muzaffai who had become separated from Shēr Khān, was wandering about in the neighbourhood in a distracted state, and was captured by the King's men I'umad Khān and the other officers set their hearts upon being loyal and adorned the coms and the pulpits with the name of Akbai, and came and waited upon him, and entered service When on 14th Rajab of this year 1, the city of Ahmadābād was made illustrious by Akbar's arrival, Barola, Chāmpānīr and Sūrat were granted as fiefs to I'tımād Khān and the other officers, and they undertook to extupate the Mīnzās When the King went to visit the seaside, the Gujarat officers, who had waited in the city on the pretext of making arrangements—when the time for making excuses had expired—perceived that it would be impossible for them to tyrannise as formerly and thought of absconding Ikhtiyār-ul-Mulk Gujarātī was the first to do so, and the loyalists who had not absconded brought I'tımād Khān and others to Akbar He lost favour and for a time was made over to the charge of Shāhbāz Khān In the 20th year, he was again received into favour and had charge of the Court in order that the minutiae—especially in the matters of jewellery and adorned utensils might be looked after by him In the 22nd year, when men were going to Mecca under the leadership of Abū Turāb Gujaiātī, I'timād Khān, who had long been desirous of visiting the holy places, also obtained leave On his return, Pattan Gujarāt was granted to him as his fief In the 28th year, he on the departure of Shihāb-ud-Dīn Ahmad Khān, was appointed as the governor of Gujarāt, and a number of distinguished officers were sent with him Some courtiers represented that when I'tımād Khān was in full vigour and had numerous friends he had not been able to manage the turbulent elements in Gujarāt, and that now when he was declining and had no supporters, it could not be right to send him there, their remonstrances were, however, without effect

When I'timād Khān came to Ahmadābād, Shihāb-ud-Dīn Ahmad prepared to go to the Court His unrighteous servants, who formerly from mercenary motives had lain in wait to kill their master but by an ill-timed temporising the affair had been smoothed over, separated from him Their idea was that he had lost his jāgīi, and that until he reached the Capital they would not get interim expenses, and that before the question of branding had been settled, it would be difficult to get even a mouthful of bread. So it would be far better to adopt as their leader Sultān Muzaffar, who was living under the protection of the Lōbhkātī, and to make a disturbance Experienced persons represented to I'timād Khān that Shihāb-ud-Dīn had abandoned the attempt to conciliate (his servants) and was going off to the Court, and that the officers of the auxiliary force had not yet arrived, and that under these circumstances, it appears proper to restrain him from departure. They also represented that the jāgīrs should be given back to him for a time, or that some money should be expended and so end the uproar, or as the rebels had not yet matured their plans, they might be suppressed by quickness and skill But I'timād Khān accepted none of these proposals and said 1: It is his servants who are at the bottom of the disturbance, he will have to settle it, or be responsible for the consequences When Sultān Muzaffar joined the rebels and the fire of sedition burst forth, I'timād Khān was compelled to hasten to Shihāb-ud-Dīn—who had gone off to Karī 2 twenty kos from Aḥmadābād—to induce him to turn back Though well-wishers said that he was making an easy task difficult by leaving Aḥmadābād when the enemy was within twelve kos of it, their words were of no avail

 $^{^1}$ November 20, 1572 A D , see Beveridge's translation of $Ahbain\bar{a}ma$, III, p 11

When Sultan Muzaffar learnt that the city was undefended, he came post haste and took possession of it He collected a force and prepared for battle Before the engagement took place, most of Shihābud-Din's men turned unfaithful and there was a great confusion I'timad Khān and Shihāb-ud-Dīn hastened to Pattan and took shelter there, and wished to leave the country Suddenly some auxiliaries arrived as also some men who had separated from the enemy I'tımād Khān learnt a lesson from what had happened, and distributing money among the officers and men made them attend zealously to their duties and Shihāb-ud-Dīn remained on guard and men were sent under the command of his (I'timād Khān's) son Shēi Khān to fight against Shēr Khān Fūlādī They were successful At this time Mīrzā Khān 'Abd-ur-Rahīm—who had been appointed with a proper force to chastise Sultān Muzaffar and the Gujarātī rebels—arrived He left I'timād Khān in Pattan and went forward with Shihāb-ud-Dīn I'timād Khān was for a time governor of the area till he died in 995 AH (1587 AD) He held the rank of 2,500, though the author of the Tabaqāt-i-Akbarī³ makes him of the rank of 4,000.

Shakh Abūl Fadl says that the Gujarātīs are a pest composed of cowardice, deceit and dishonesty, but have certain qualities such as order, simplicity and humility, and that I'timād Khān may be regarded as the prime example of this class

I'TIMAD KHAN KHWAJASARA

(Vol I, pp 88-90.)

His name was Phūl Malik. In the reign of Salīm Shāh he, on account of his honesty, received the title of Muḥammad Khān When the Afghāns fell from power, he was enrolled 4 among the servants of Akbar, and did good service. In consequence of the public clerks, from fiaudulent or negligent motives working to increase their own fortunes and neglecting to collect and develop the imperial revenues, Akbar began personally to look into matters of finance in the 7th year after the catastrophic murder of Shams-ud-Dīn Khān Atka, and

 $^{^1}$ This account is taken from the Albarnāma, Text III, pp $\,410,\,411$, Beveridge's translation III, pp $\,608\text{-}611$

² Gadhī in the text

³ Tabaqāt-1-Akbarī (De's edition), Text II, p. 436, Translation II, p. 663

⁴ This is apparently based on the detailed account by Abūl Fadl in Albarnāma, Text II, pp 178, 179, Beveridge's translation II, pp 276, 277

Muhammad Khān 1 by his ability in this matter acquired the Emperor's confidence and improved the collections He, therefore, received the title of I'timād Khān, and the rank of 1,000, and had the entire work of the exchequer entrusted to him In a short time he carried out the Emperor's ideas, and brought the affairs of the treasury into proper order In the 9th year, after the arrival of the royal cortege at Mandu, Muan Mūbārak Shāh, the ruler of Khāndēs (Khāndēsh), sent ambassadors with presents, and solicited that his daughter may be admitted into the royal seraglio His request was granted, and I'timad Khan was entrusted with the arrangements When he approached the fort of Asir, Mīrān Mūbārak Shāh brought him into the fort with all honour, and sent off his daughter with a number of nobles I'timād Khān did homage at the first stage out from Māndū during Akbar's return journey to Āgra After that he was, for a time, appointed to Bengāl along with Khān-Khānan Mun'ım Khān and Khān Jahān Turkmān, and did excellent service In the 22nd year, 984 AH, he went off from Dīpālpūr in Mālwa to take charge of Bhakkar on the death of Saiyid Muḥammad Mīr 'Adal He, by his energy, led a force to Sēhwān and was victorious He returned after having concluded a peace

Success makes most men lose the thread of reason, especially in the case of those who are congenitally bad, and experienced sages have observed that castration softens the character of all living creatures except men, and in the case of the latter increases their fierceness I'tımād Khān's arrogance increased, and he had no regard for the weak and made no attempt whatever to conciliate them He behaved badly to the inhabitants and to his servants, and used to treat them with harsh-He regarded craft as sagacity and did not act justly towards them In the 23rd year, 986 AH, when Akbai was proceeding to the Panjāb, I'tımad Khan wished that his soldiers should present themselves at the Court for the branding of their horses In his blindness he thought of calling in the loans which he had advanced to the men pleaded poverty, he paid no heed, and did not act with justice One morning Maqsūd 'Alī, a servant, who was blind in one eye, joined with some miscreants, and killed this careless wretch Some say, that when Maqsūd 'Alī explained his circumstances, I'timād became angry and said that he deserved to have urine poured into his blind eye, and that the man immediately drew his dagger, and stabbed him so hard in the belly that he did not breathe again I'timād Khān founded I'timādpūr at a distance of six kos from Agra He also made a large tank there and erected buildings including his own tomb He was buried there 2

I'TIQAD KHAN FARRUKH-SHAHI

(Vol I, pp 339–346)

His real name was Muhammad Murād Kashmīrī Bahādur Shāh he became Vakīl of Jahāndār Shāh, and had the rank of

II, p 277 See also Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), p 13, note, and p 473

for his life

¹ Phul Malık was given the name Muhammad Khān in the days of Salīm Shāh Sūr son of Shēr Shāh, vide Albarnāma, Text II, p 178, Beveridge's translation

1,000 and the title of Vakālat Khān In the time of Jahāndāi Shāh he was promoted, and when the turn of Muhammad Farrukh-siyar arrived. he was included in the list of those to be killed But his old relationship with the Saiyids saved him, and he obtained the rank of 1,500 and the title of Muhammad Murāet Khān, and was entered among the yasāwals of the Tūzuk (State messengers) When Muhammad Amīn Khān the 2nd Bakhshī was appointed to Mālwa—so that he might perhaps prove an impediment to Amii-ul-Umara's leaving the Decean-he delayed in marching Muhammad Muiād was appointed as Sazāual 1 but with all his outspokenness and long tongue he could achieve nothing came to the council-chamber (Sar-1-Dīvān) and said, "He has no obedience in his brain and so sazāu alship has no effect on him" The Emperor made no reply Again he said without any circumlocution, "If this time you pass it over, nothing will remain" The Emperor said, "What is to be done?" He said, "Let an order be given to your slave to go and say 'March immediately, otherwise you must give up your office of Bakhshi'' Farrukh-siyar said, "Go and tell him so" He went and spoke so vehemently that he marched that very day His boldness and loyalty pleased the Emperor, and he made him a Privy Counsellor His favour also increased owing to his being a countryman of Sāhiba-i-Nisuān (the mistress of women), the Emperor's mother The Emperor was worned and vexed on account of his disagreements with the Saivids of Barah and their predominance, he was every day making new plans and holding new consultations about extirpating them, but from stupidity and want of courage these came to nothing One day Vakalat Khan got his opportunity and threw such a glamour over things, and built such eastles 2 in the air, saying "unless it comes to a fight with the opposition, the net work of their power will spread on every side in a short time" that Farrukh siyar—the light of whose intelligence and discretion had become extinct—did not see the real issue and was deceived by him, and in a short time raised him to the rank of 7,000 with 10,000 horse and in every undertaking made him his confidant and intimate friend and gave him the lofty title of Rukn ud-Daula I'tiqad Khan Bahadur Farrukh-Shāhī There was not a day that he did not present him precious jewels and other valuable things He made Sarkār Murādābād a province, and gave it the name of Ruknābād and made it his fief his advice he, for the purpose of destroying the Saiyids, summoned Sarbuland Khān from Patna, Nizām-ul-Mulk Bahādur Fath Jang from Murādābād and Mahārāja Ajīt singh from Jodhpūr, and every day held consultations with them If anyone said that if the robe of the Vazārat is given to someone, Qutb-ul-Mulk's power would diminish, and his position greatly weakened, the Emperor would say "There is no better man for this post than I'tiqād Khān" The officers (who were already grieved at the advancement of a man of no family, who was notorious for foolish talk and immoralities) could not stand his being made the Vazīr and retired And, in fact, what a mad idea it was! (They thought) troubles and dangers, and loss of life must be undertaken by us, while the Vazārat and dominion are to be the portion of another

Bailiff or Agent, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, Mughal Administration, p 42
 Literally arrayed such verdant gardens

Verse

I'm the lover and the beloved is at the beck of others As 1st Shawwāl¹ is the 'Îd of Ramadān

Stranger still, while all these great deeds were in contemplation, the Emperor deprived many of the officers of their fiefs and appointments, and made them discontented, while Qutb-ul-Mulk regarded them as his spoils and soothed and conciliated each one of them, and drew them into his own party. The Emperor's schemes and consultations were without profit

Verse 2

How can a secret be kept when it is discussed in assemblies

When the details reached Qutb-ul-Mulk he, to protect his honour, began by keeping a watchful eye (over the Emperor) and wrote to Husain 'Alī Khān, the Amīr-ul-Umarā that things had got out of hand, and that he should return quickly from the Deccan When the Emperor became aware of the Amīr-ul-Umarā's intentions, he again attempted conciliation and sent I'tıqad Khan and Khan Dauran to the house of Qutb-ul-Mulk and renewed his promises and oaths Both sides agreed to amend the past A month had not passed when the Emperor, in his childishness and folly, forgot all these arrangements for peace, and state of things became more troubled than before Several experienced officers withdrew thinking that thus they would save their honour When the Amīrul-Umarā arrived from the Deccan, he after confirmation of agreements and conditions, did homage, but, on seeing the King's disposition and the prevailing confusion, he abandoned the idea of amending matters and began to think On 8th Rabi II (27th February, 1719 3), on the pretext of a second visit he sent Qutb-ul-Mulk and Ajīt Singh to the fort to bring about a settlement None of the King's men was in the fort except I'tiqad Khan Qutb-ul-Mulk began to complain to the Emperor and mentioned his unkindnesses Mahammad Farrukh-siyar also got angry and made rejoinders At last they came to high words Khān sought by deceptive words to play the part of a mediator When both had lost their self-control Saiyid 'Abdullāh Khān used an opprobrious epithet to him and ordered that he should be turned out of the The Emperor retired to the female apartments and I'tiqad Khan thought it advisable to save his life and went to his home Qutb-ul-Mulk spent the night in the fort in watchfulness, and on the morning of the 9th Rabī' II he imprisoned the Emperor Till then no one knew what had taken place in the fort. The general report was that 'Abdullāh Khān had been killed. I'tiqād Khān protested his devotion and having collected his men and mounting his horse he made a vain attack (khar

¹ Shawwāl follows the month of Ramadān, and the feast of the 'Id is on 1st Shawwāl though called the 'Id-i-Ramadān

² This is the adaptation of the second half of a verse from Hāfiz, the first half being همه کارم رحود کامی نه ددنامی کشید احو.

³ But see Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's The Later Mughals, I, pp 376-381, from where it will be seen that the possession of the fort was taken by Qutb-ul-Mulk and Ajīt Singh on 4 Rabi' II, and on 8 Rabī' Qutb-ul-Mulk entered the palace, replaced the guards, and later the interview took place

hamla 1) on the Amīr-ul-Umarā's troops in the Sa'ādat Ullāh Khān bāzār, and was making a useless disturbance when music announced the accession of Rafi'-ud-Daraiat He was airested with great indignity and his house confiscated The precious jewels which had been presented to him, and many of which he had disposed of, were resumed and he was exposed to contempt and misery Fariukh-siyar was deposed after a reign of six years and four months, not counting the eleven months of Jahandar Shah's rule which were included in his reign. He was confined on the top of the Tirpoliya'2 in the fort in a dark and narrow room He was blinded and guarded with great severity. They say, that his evesight was not entirely destroyed

A trustworthy person who was nearly associated with the Saiyids has been heard to state, that when it was decided that Fairukh-siyar should be blinded, Qutb-ul-Mulk without mentioning the circumstance to anyone (else) gave his own antimony-box (surmadan) in open Divan to Najm-ud-Dīn 'Alī Khān, sayıng it was the King's (Rafī'-ud-Darajāt's) order, and that he went and blinded Fariukh-siyar Fariukh-siyar offered much resistance and so they were obliged to throw him down Afterwards when he perceived that his sight had not been injuicd, he endeavoured to conceal the fact, and whenever he wanted anything he would say "Have pity on this 3 sightless one" Qutb-ul-Mulk and the Amīr-ul-Umarā would smile and say "He thinks we don't know" Anyhow he, in his simplicity tried to induce his guards by promises to take him away to Rāja Jai Singh Siwā'ī When the brothers heard of this, they, for political reasons, twice tried to poison him Owing to his tenacity of life this had no effect. At last they conducted him to annihilation by thong-pulling (tasma-kashī 4), which was his own first invention On the day that they were conveying his bier to tomb of Humāyūn Bādshāh there was a general riot Two to three thousand men and women of the city, especially the rabble and faqirs of the market, assembled and accompanied the bier They flung stones at the Saiyids' men and For three days they assembled at his tomb and recited abused them funeral prayers 5

Good God! Men in this affair have become Haidaris 6 and Ni mat

Allāhīs One said

Verses

You saw what they did to the mighty King They committed a hundred violences on him, When I sought the date from Wisdom, she answered Sādāt 7 bawar nīmak-harāmī kardand (the Saiyids behaved disloyally to him)

¹ Khar-hamla means a foolish attack

² Literally three arches

³ In the text بصب basīr, vision, but the true reading must be bē basīr, without

⁴ Also spelt tasmā See Elliot, VII, pp 444, 445, for an account of the murders committed at Farrukh-siyai's accession, also see Sir Jadunath Sarkai's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, pp 275–281, and the account of Farrukh-siyar's reign in the same work, pp 244–403

⁵ Cf Khāfī Khān, II, p 820

[Strong Strong Str

⁶ These are the two rival sects which have an annual fight in Persia during Muharram, see Malcolm's History of Persia (ed. 1815), II, p. 593

⁷ The words yield 1131

Another said

Verses

They did what was right with the sick King,
They did all the physician should do
One wise as Hippocrates wrote the prescription of the date, Sādāt 2 dawāsh āncheh bāyad kardand (the Saryids gave him the right treatment)

But it is quite evident that in considering the claims of kings, ancient and modern, which are fixed and definite with respect to the hereditary servants of their houses, and more particularly the claims in regard to these two brothers in the service to their master, it is not absolutely correct that the occurrence of this shameful business was due to them. and that each of them behaved with thorough baseness and ingratitude The real case is quite otherwise Rather they too performed the duties They failed not in exposing their lives and properties, and made Farrukh-siyai the Emperor of Hindustan True, in the eyes of justice this did not create a claim, and was rather the performance of a duty, and what should be expected from loyalty But what does the spirit of self-interest say? And what does far sighted practical reason command? Is it wrong to checkmate wickedness before it is successful? Self-interest is innate in man! If they had not anticipated matters, they would have lost their lives and their honour! In the beginning they might have obtained deliverance from these calamities, by withdrawing at the commencement from Court service, and contenting themselves with their high posts in the provinces The love of glory and of power, which are the worst of faults, did not let them do this And at this time would other claimants have left them in peace? Anyhow, if we look at the real state of things, Muhammad Farrukh-siyar was himself the cause of the rebellion against his sovereignty From inexperience and folly he In the first place he should not have conferred on made mistakes the Saiyids the great office of Vazīr to which the Saiyids of Bārah had no claim. For from the time of Akbar up to that of Aurangzīb which represents the beginning and end of the regulations for the sovereignty of India—though the Saiyids of Bārah were promoted to high offices, yet they did not even receive the low ranks of Divans of provinces or of managers for the King's sons If from regard to their claim and from appreciation of their merits it was proper that the reins of the Caliphate should be put into their hands, he should not have listened to the words of self-interested intriguers—who under the veil of loyalty do the work of thousands of ill-wishers-about this type of faithful servants who spared neither their lives nor their property for him, and from whom no danger was to be apprehended in the future unless cause for this was What happened was the result of his own doing, and whatever resulted was due to himself! My pen has gone gallopping has it gone? May God efface it!

¹ Or the dated prescription ² The words yield 1131 See Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, p 395, where it is stated that the first quatrain was by Mīrzā 'Abdul Qādir Bēdil, and the rejoinder by Mīr 'Azmat Ullāh Bilgrāmī Bēkhabar

After his property and his reputation had been given to the winds I'tıqad Khan for a long time remained shut up in his house. When the Amīr-ul-Umarā was killed by the sword of vengeance, Qutb-ul-Mulk proceeded to Delhi and conciliated many of the old and new officers who had left the world and were living in retirement Among them, he pleased I'tıqād Khān by confirming him in his mansab, and giving him a sum of money for his expenses and the charge of a risāla (cavalry) But the scheme, as he designed it, did not succeed He only accompanied him a few kos and then returned to Delhi, and lived in retirement until he died a natural death Though he was notorious for his feeble intellect and meanness yet he had abundant knowledge, and in a short time made his fortune Yet all men speak ill of him

Observation

Success does not wipe out faults

Verse

Success in the world's riches does not lessen one's sins, For gold does not remove blackness from the touchstone

Rather it makes them conspicuous

Verse

How can a defect be hid under a garb of gold When the new moon puts on her robe, its spots become visible 1

I'TIQĀD KHĀN MĪRZĀ SHĀPŪR

(Vol I, pp 180–182)

He was the son of I'tımād-ud-Daula and brother of Āsaf Khān pleasantness, brightness, polished manners, taste in dress and food, etc., he was one of the foremost leaders of the age They say, that during that period Yamīn-ud-Daula Mīrzā Abū Sa'īd and Bāqir Khān Najm Thānī were famous as epicures, but I'tiqād Khān in this respect was superior to all three of them In the 17th year 2 of Jahangir's reign, he was made governor of Kashmīr and ruled there for a long time During this period kumūd 3 (lotus) rice and pān kangīrī used to be sent to him from Burhān-

^{1 &#}x27;Uryān lit naked Apparently the meaning is that when the new moon waxes, the spots on the surface become more marked For a detailed account of I'tıqād Khān, or as he is styled Muhammad Murād, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, pp 340-345, 381, 401, 406
² Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī, Rogers and Beveridge's translation II, p 215

³ The text has مكود mukūd which seems unintelligible though there is an Arabic word makūd which means abounding in milk The word appears to have been كمود humud, which means lotus, and also white water hly in Sanskrit and Bengali See also Khāfī Khān, I, p 562 In Jarrett's translation of Ā'īn, II, p 223, it is stated that in Dandes, ie Khāndēsh, of which Burhānpūr was the capital, "the rice is of fine quality, and betel leaves are in abundance" See also Asiatic "the rice is of fine quality, and betel leaves are in abundance" See also Asiatic Miscellany, reprint of 1787, p 148, where it is stated that "Khandes rice called in Hindustan pattny chawal which is the only species brought from that province is generally used by the higher classes. It is a long and small-grained rice" pur During his government Habib Chak and Ahmad Chak, who were the leaders of that quarrelsome people, laid claims to the chiefship, and stirred up great dissensions and at last went off ruined to Tibet. I'tiqād Khān, who held the rank of 5,000 Dhāt and horse, was removed from Kashmīr in the 5th year of Shāh Jahān, and in the beginning of the 6th year came to the Court He brought with him and presented the rarities of Kashmir, such as plumes made of the feathers of the wild goose which surpass 1 the musky haus of the Yak, and varieties of shawls such as $j\bar{a}mau\bar{a}r$, kamarbands, embroidered $g\bar{o}shp\bar{e}ch$ (ear-covers) and especially woolen garments from the $T\bar{u}s^2$ and fur (kark) from a wild animal, whose flesh is edible and which is found in Qarā (?) Tibet, also carpets which sell a hundred rupees a yard and compared to which the carpets of Kırmān are like sack-cloth (palās) In the same year, he was on 17th Sha'bān appointed to the governorship of the province of Delhī in succession to Lashkar Khān In the 16th year, he was made Sūbadān of Bihār in succession to Shāyista Khān As the Zamīndār of Palā'ūn 3 (Palāmau) relying on the extensive forests in that province became rebellious, I'tiqad Khan sent, in the 17th year, Zabardast Khan with an army against him He traversed passes and jungles and put the rebels to the sword Pratap, a Zamindar of the area submitted and by the instrumentality of the aforesaid Khān presented a lac of rupees as pēshkash and waited upon I'tıqād Khān in Patna every year At I'tıqād Khān's request Pratāp obtained the rank of 1,000 dhāt and horse, and Palāmau was given to him as his fief at a rental of one kror of $d\bar{a}ms$ In the 20th year, when Prince Muhammad Shūjā' was recalled from Bengāl, the government of that province, which for population, extent and abundance of produce is equal to a clime ($iql\bar{i}m$), was entrusted to I'tiqād Khān When Bengāl was again made over to Shāh Shujā', I'tiqād Khān returned to the Court He had not arrived when the government of Oudh was made over to him, and an order was issued that he should go off on this duty from whatever place he had reached In the 23rd year, 1060 AH (1650 AD) he left Bhraich and came to the Court, and died They say, that the first persons to build new houses in Agra were three in number, viz Khwāja Jahān Jahāngīrī, Khwāja Waisī the Dīvān of Sultān Parwīz, and I'tiqād Khān, the best and most artistic of the three was I'tiqād Khān's mansion As it was admired by Shāh Jahān, he presented it to him as pēshkash, and in the 16th year Shāh Jahān presented it to 'Alī Mardān Khān Amīrul-Umarā

the name of an animal Possibly he read it as gurg, a wolf

² So in text, but in the $\bar{A}'\tilde{in}$, I (Blochmann's translation, 2nd edn), p 97, the animal is called T\(\bar{u}\)s Kark is a Turkish word for fur Qai\(\bar{a}\) or Tibet means apparently Black Tibet Perhaps it should be Qar, ie white or snowy Tibet, but it is clear from Bernier that "Tus" came from Great Tibet

³ Pal\(\bar{a}\)m\(\bar{u}\)n in $B\(\bar{a}\)dsh\(\bar{a}\)hn\(\bar{a}\)maa, II, pp 248 and 356 Pal\(\bar{a}\)mau is in L\(\bar{o}\)hard\(\bar{a}\)ga, Ch\(\bar{o}\)text{to N\(\bar{o}\)m\(\bar{u}\)r\(\bar{u}

Chōta Nāgpūr

¹ The literal translation of the passage seems to be Plumes made of the feathers of the goose which are such that musky tresses would shrivel up from envy on beholding them as hairs do when exposed to the fire, and various shawls such as jāmawāi (gowns), kamarbands (waistbands), embroidered gōshpēch (ear-covers) and especially woollen garments from the Tūs and fur from a wild animal whose flesh is edible and is found in Qarā Tibet, and woven carpets which fetch a hundred rupees a yard and compared with which the carpets of Kirmān are like sack-cloth It looks as if the author thought that kark the Turkish name for fur was

'IWAD KHAN QAQSHAL 1

(Vol II, pp. 776-777)

His name was 'Iwad Beg, and he was one of the officers of the Sūba When in the 2nd year of Shāh_Jahān's reign the thana of Duhāk² was recovered from the hands of Uzbegs, he was granted the rank of 1,000, 600 horse, and appointed as the thanadar of that area the 6th 3 year he was given an increase of 200 horse, and in the 7th year 4, he was exalted by a rise to the rank, substantive and with increments, of 1,000 with 500 hoise. In the 10th 5 year he was successful in receiving an increase of 200 horse, and in the 11th 6 year of 300 horse And in the incident, which occurred in connection with 'Ali Maidan Khān 7 handing over the fort of Qandahār to the royal servants, he ('Iwad Khān), who was already waiting in Ghaznī, at the instance of Sa'id Khān 8, the governor of Kābul, went to that place with one thousand cavalry and took possession of the fort And in the battle which Sa'id Khān had to fight with Siyāwash and the Qazalbāsh army, he formed the vanguard, and his honour was raised to the skies by the bestowal of a khil'at and a jewelled dagger, and promotion to the rank, substantive and with increments, of 2,500 with 2,000 horse and the grant of drums and a horse and an elephant 9 And having hurried with Rāja Jagat Singh to conquer the fort of Zamin Dawar, he rendered valuable services in the capture of the fort of Sārbān and the siege of Zamīn Dāwar 10. for a time he was in charge of Qalat In the 16th year 11 he was appointed governor of Ghaznī in place of Khānazād Khān Since through prolonged illness, frailty and weakness went on increasing, he was dismissed 12 In the 4th year corresponding to 1050 A H he died

'IZZAT KHĀN KHWĀJA BĀBĀ.

(Vol II, pp 775, 776)

It appears that he was related to 'Abdullah Khan Firuz Jang In Jahangir's reign he obtained the rank of 1,000 with 700 horse the coronation of Shah Jahan he came from Lahore with Yamin-ud-Daula and paid his respects and was confirmed in his rank year, he attained the rank of 1,500 with 1,000 horse and accompanied Abdullāh Khān Bahādur who was sent in pursuit of Khān Jahān Lōdī In the 4th year, his rank was increased to 2,000 with 1,000 horse and he

¹ For Qäqshāl, see Blochmann's translation of Ā'īn, I (2nd edn), p 399, note l ² Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 1, p 261 The fortress of Puhāk is situated in Bāmiyān at the extreme end of a defile on one of the two routes from Kābul to Bāmiyān, see Raverty's translation of Tabakāt 1-Nāsırī, II, p 1025

³ Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 1, p 451

⁴ Id, pt 2, p 13

⁵ Id, p 242 ⁷ Id, p 32 ⁹ Id, p 48

⁶ Id, II, p 5 8 Id, p 33

¹⁰ Id, pp 54-59 Zamīn Dāwar is a district in the territory of Ghūr in Khurāsān, see Raverty, op cit, I, p 324, note For a detailed account of Shāh Jahan's campaigns in Trans-Oxiana, see Banarsi Prashad, History of Shahjahan, pp 188-209

¹¹ Id, p 173

¹² Id, p 200, his successor was Purdil Khan was granted the title of 'Izzat Khān, and he was presented with a flag and an elephant and made $\int au y d\bar{a} v$ of Bhakkar In the 6th year, $104\bar{2}$ AH (1632-33 AD) he died there

T.

Jādū Rāo Kāntīh 1

(Vol I, pp 520-523)

He belonged to the Jādwān (or Jādūn) tribe to which Kishn (Kilshna) belonged He was one of the nobles of Nizām Shāh When in the 16th year of Jahangir's reign the hen-apparent, Shah Jahan, addressed himself for the second time to the task of chastising the rulers of the Deccan, who had withdrawn their heads from obedience and had stretched out then arms to seize the impenal lands, Jādū Rāo, who was the leader of the armies of the Deccan paid homage to the Prince and was made a Panyhazārī², both personal ($\frac{\bar{D}h\bar{a}t}{}$) and in the number of horse with his sons and grandsons and other relatives he held offices of 24,000 with 15,000 horse. He held the choicest jagirs in the Deccan, and rendered great assistance to the governors of the country, and always furthered the imperial cause, himself living in great comfort and affluence

When in the 3rd year of the reign of Shāh Jahān, Buihānpūr became by the shadow of the world-conquering standards an abode of peace and security, Jādū Rāo the wicked, out of ingratitude and thanklessness turned away from the path of submission to the threshold of the Caliphate, and with his sons and sons-in-law joined Nizām Shāh knew that faithlessness was innate in this baddhāt, and that treacherous doings were part of his nature, he designed to get hold of him and to imprison him for a time Foi this purpose he summoned him to his presence, and as the time of retribution for his disloyalty had arrived, he, in his ignorance, hastened to come with all his tribe Suddenly a troop came out of ambush and proceeded to bind them They did not yield, but drew their swords, and the two parties fought with one another Jādū Rāo and his two sons Uchlā 3 and Rāghū and his grandson and successor 4 (jānashīn) Īswant 5 (Baswant ?) Rāi were killed The remainder, along with Karjāyī 6 his (Jādū's) wife, who was the managei of his affairs, fled from Daulatābād to their own country Sindkhēi 7, which is a pargana of Mahkar Berār near Jālnapūr—where Jādū Rāo had built a fort—and took protection there Though Nizām Shāh tried to conciliate them, they did not give heed and turned, with a

² Bādshāhnāma, I, p 182

³ Variant Ujlā

Probably Kaith or Kayath is the reading. See ¹ Kāith in Bādshāhnāma Wilson's glossary, under Jādon and Kāyastha

⁴ Perhaps jānashīn is rhetorical, meaning only the continuers of the family

⁵ Baswant in Bādshāhnāma, I, p 309

⁶ Apparently Girija, the mountain born, a name of Pārvatī
7 The Singhar of Elphinstone and Sindghar of Elliot, VII, p 11, Sinhgarh in Cambridge History of India, p 267, note 1, and Sinhgad in Kincaid and Parasnis, History of the Maratha People, p 25, the Sinhgarh of Imperial Gazetteer XXIII, p 12 thousand expressions of penitence, to the imperial Court Inasmuch as the forgiveness of offences is a trait of mighty princes, the great offences of the tribe were pardoned and they were received into service A gracious order was issued to A'zam Khan the governor of the Deccan, who was in the Bālāghāt intent upon uprooting Khān Jahān Lōdī through the instrumentality of Danatji 1, who had been Jadu Rao's manager, received them honourably, and decided upon suitable appointments for every one of them Offices and gifts were issued to them from the Court to the value of Rs 1,30,000 for their expenses, and they received good tankhwāhs (assignments) in the Decean, Berar, Khāndēsh, and the estates of Jādū Rāo were restored to them. When they paid then respects at the Court, in the 4th year, Bahādur, the son of Jādū Rāo 2, received the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse and a flag and drums the brother of Jadu Rao received the rank of 4,000 personalty and cavalry and a flag and drums, and Patang (2) Rão was exalted by receiving the rank of 3,000 personalty and 1,500 cavalry which had formerly been held by his brother Iswant (or Baswant) Rão who had been slain, and the grant of the title of Jadu Rai, which had been his grandfather's Bētūjī was granted the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 horse which had been the rank of his father Uchla In the 5th year Jagdeo Rao died, and, when in the 8th year, Bahādurjī died, Datājī his son, got the rank of 3,000 with 1,000 horse. When he was killed 3 in Aurangzīb's reign in a battle with the Mahiattas, when accompanying Diler Khan, his son was honoured by the title of Jagdeo Rai and a high rank (mansab). Afterwards, Man Singh, one of his sons, took care, with a small force, of the defence of Amangābād in the time of the government of Manşūr Khān Rozbahānī He built a house upon the side of a tank (?) Another brother, Rāghū went to Jagdēo Rāi Shāhūjī 4 Bhōnsle the father of the notorious Sivā (Shivājī) obtained a name in the Nizām Shāhī territories by becoming the son-in-law of Jadū Rai, and since then there has been a connection 5 between the families The sister 6 of the present Rāja Shāhūjī was mairied to Jagdēo Rāo He in the 6th year of Muhammad Shāh's reign, 1136 AH (1724 AD) was piesent at the battle between Nizām-ul-Mulk Āṣaf Jāh and Mubāriz Khān the governoi of Haidarābād which took place at his fief of Shakaikhēra 8 He left

Dīhētī in Bādshāhnāma, I, p 310
 Taken from Bādshāhnama, I, p 310, but the figures, etc , are slightly different.
 There Patang is Tilang and Betū is Bēthū

^{3 &#}x27;Ālamgīrnāma, pp 1009, 1010 Dılēr Khān was not kılled

⁴ There is an account of Shivaji's descent in Scott's History of the Deccan, II He was descended by his mother's side from the Rājpūts of Udaipūr, though it was through the son of a concubine See also Kincaid and Parasnis, op cit, pp 5-14, the names of the father and son are given there as Shāhajī and Shivājī Bhonsle

5 Text īn silsala rā pā darmiyān evidently meast that Jadū Rāo's family was connected with Shivājī's from the time of his father's marriage. The phrase $p\bar{a}$ darmıyan bashad also occurs in Khāfī Khān, II, p 777

6 There is the variant khwāharzāda'—sister's daughter

⁷ The battle was fought on 23rd Muharram, 1137 A H (11th October, 1724), Maāthır-ul-Umarā, Text III, p 843 It is there stated that Shakarkhēra is sixty Los from Aurangābād See also Siyar-i-Muta'akhkhirin, I, p 247, and Elliot, VII,

⁸ Shakarkhelda in Berār, 20° 13′ N, 76° 27′ E, later named Fathkhēlda, for details of the battle see Irvine's Later Muqhals (Sarkar edn.), II, pp. 144-150

Aşaf Jāh and joined Muhāiiz Khān, and was killed in the melee that day no one of the family has held an office or an estate Mān Singh, who is the sister's son of Rāja Singh, subsists, with his paternal uncle's sons in Sindkhēi (or Sindkhēia) on the zamīndarī fees (rasūm) of Sarkār Daulatābād which was from old times associated with his ancestors, and on account of his attachment to his native country he does not leave it. At the present time, on account of straitened circumstances he has become helpless and gone away This Sindkhëra is a paigana yielding thirty hrors and belongs to Aurangābād and is in the Sarkar of Mahkai and the province of Berai It was the real native country and the ancient residence of Jādū Rāo Six or seven kos from the town (qasba) there is a village of the pargana which is known as Dēvalgāon Rāja Jādū Rāo built a strong fort there and set himself to bring the place into cultivation At this time also it has a large population while the town near it is lying waste

(Mū taman-ul Mulk) Ja'far Khān

(Vol. III, pp. 751–755)

Originally he was a Biahman boy Hājī Shafī' of Işfahān bought him and called him Muhammad Hādī, and brought him up like his own He accompanied Hājī Shafī' to Persia, but on the death of the latter he returned to the Decean and became an inferior servant of Hajī 'Abdullāh of Khurāsān, who was the $D\bar{v}\bar{u}n$ of Berār Afterwards he became a royal servant and in the reign of Aurangzīb he obtained a suitable rank and the title of Kārtalab Khān (the labour-loving Khān), and was employed in the Deccan For a time he was the Divan of Haidarābād Afterwards 1 he became Dīvān of Bengāl in succession to Dıyā Ullāh Khān, and received the title of Murshid Qulī Khān Muhammad Farrukh-siyai proceeded towards Agra to contend with his uncle Jahāndār Shāh, he sent Haidar Bēg with a force to Bengāl to collect the revenue Murshid Qulī opposed him and defeated him When Farrukh-siyar became Emperor, he appointed Rashīd Khān 2, the brother of Afrāsiyāb Khān Mīrzā Ajmērī as the governor of Bengāl A battle ensued and Rashīd Khān was killed Murshid Quli was enabled by Jagat Seth Sahū 3, who was one of the wealthy men of the province, to expend lavishly and so he obtained the governorship, the rank of 7,000 with 7,000 horse and the title of Mū'taman-ul-Mulk 'Alā-ud-Daula Ja'far Khān Bahādur Asad Jang 4 After ruling there

¹ In 1113 AH, 1701 AD, see Stewart, History of Bengal, p 352 In Riyādus-Salātīn, Text, p 252, Translation, p 254, it is stated that he was previously the Dīvān of Orīssa, this appears to be correct for in Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 483, it is also stated that Murshid Qulī was Hāris or Governor of Orīssa

2 See Riyād-us-Salātīn, Text, p 268, Translation, p 269 Rashīd Khān is stated to have been the elder brother of Afrāsiyāb Khān Apparently he invaded Bengāl before Farrukh-siyar defeated Jahāndār Shāh For Afrāsiyāb Khān, see Irvine, Journ As Soc Bengal for 1898, p 154, note 1, he was famous for his personal strength

سلهه in the text is a lapsus calami for سلهه

But it seems that this is a 4 The text has the word namwari after the titles mistake for Nasīrī, see Irvine, loc cit, p 157 Nāmwarī or fame would be without any meaning for many years he died in 1138° A H (1725-1926 A D) He founded Murshidābād They say, he was a most accomplished Collector ('Amaldār) He made a pit full of nastiness and gave it the name of Barkunth In it he imprisoned the landholders Barkunth is the Indian name for paradise, where, according to their belief, the righteous dead find a

He was succeeded by his son-in-law Shujā'-ud-Dīn Muḥammad Khān Bahādur, who was also called Mīrzā Deccanī He was a Burhānpūr man and his father was Nūr-ud-Dīn, who belonged to the Afshār family, and one of his ancestors was 'Alī Yār Sultān, who in Shāh Tahmāsp's time was the governoi of Farāh near Khurāsān Shujā'-ud-Dīn was for a time in charge of Īlkandal, which is a dependency of the province of Farkhandabunyād (Haidarābād) In the time of Ja'far Khāns governorship he was the governor of Orīssa, and later proceeded rapidly to Murshidābād From Muḥammad Shāh he received a high rank and the title of Mū'taman-ud-Daula Shujā'-ud-Daula Bahādur Asad Khān He abolished Barkunth and released the landholders. He ruled for thirteen years and died in 1152 A.H ² The date of his death is Raunag az Bangāla raft. glory has departed from Bengāl (1152)

After him his son 'Alā'-ud-Daula Sarfaiāz Khān Bahādur Ḥaidar Jang, who was called Mīrzā Asad-ud-Din, succeeded him After ten months he was killed in 1153 A.H by 'Alīvardī Khān, who had been promoted by his fathei Murshid Qulī Khān Bahādur Rustam Jang was the brother-in-law of Sarfarāz Khān His name was Lutf Ullāh His father Hājī Shukr Ullāh of Tabrīz came to India and settled in Sūrat Lutf Ullāh was born there When he reached the years of discretion, he studied the sciences and went to Bengāl as a trader Shujā'-ud-Daula perceived his merit and gave him his daughter in marriage. His first title was Lutf 'Alī Khān and after Ja'far Khān's death he was given the title of Murshid Qulī Khān. At that time he was the governor of Orīssa. When 'Alīvardī Khān after the murder of Sarfarāz Khān went to that province, he collected a force and opposed him. He was defeated and went to the Deccan. In 1154 A.H. he returned 3 with a force to Orīssa, and made Sa'īd Muhammad Khān son of Hājī Muhammad the nephew of 'Alīvardī Khān, who was the Nā'īb of Orīssa, a prisoner 'Alīvardī Khān proceeded post haste to Orīssa and defeated him. Then he returned to the Deccan. The Nizām-ul-Mulk Āsaf Jāh Bahādur was kind to him, gave him a fief and made him his companion. He died in 1164 A.H. (1751 A.D.). He wrote poetry and his pen-name was Makhmūr. The following verse is by him

¹ Riyād-us-Salātīn, Text, p 287, gives 1139 as the date and has the chronogiam "zi dāralkhilāfat jidār ūftād" The translator of the Riyād (p 285) has altered jidār into jawār But the instruction in the text is to deduct jidār from dāralkhilāfat to get the date of death, and this yields 1139 and agree with the statement that 1139 was the date of death Jawār would give 1137 The translation of the chronogram would be the wall of the Capital has fallen or the wall has fallen from the abode of the Caliphate

² He really died on 13 Dhūl Hījja, 1151 A H or 24 March, 1739 A D See Riyādus-Salātīn, Text, p 307 If z is read in place of az the chronogram becomes correct

³ He did not return It was his son-in-law Mīrzā Bāqir who did See Stewart, op cit, p 451

Verse

Do not fancy that weaklings are unable to perform hard tasks, Because even a mountain can be painted by a brush 1 (painting brush)

His wife known as Mihmān Bēgam lived a long time She died in Haidarābād in a house which her husband had bought Her son Yaḥyā Khān was for a time governor of Khānpūra in Farkhundabunyād (Haidarābād) He left it a few years before this biography was written

JA'FAR KHAN TAKLŪ

(Vol I, pp. 507–509)

He was the son of Qazāq Khān whose father Muhammad Khān Sharaf-ud-Din Ughli was governor of Herāt and guardian of Sultān Muhammad Mīrzā eldest son of Shāh Tahmāsp Safavī at the time of Humāyūn's visit to Persia The Shāh's farmān—which is a code of regulations for the polite and generous—was addressed to him in reference to the hospitality to be shown to Humāyūn Sharaf-ud-Dīn behaved as was proper, and earned encomiums by performing fitting service in receiving so valued a guest After his death Qazāq Khān became the guardian of the Mīrzā, and the governor of Khurāsān, and growing presumptuous did not behave with proper respect to the Shāh In 972 A H, the Shah sent an army against him under the command of Ma'sūm Bēg Śafavī—who was the $Vak\bar{i}l$ of the kingdom—It chanced that at this time Qazāq Khān was attacked by dropsy, and his following dispersed He was compelled to shut himself up with Sultān Muhammad in the fort of Ikhtıyār-ud-Dīn The Shāh's troops entered Herāt and Qazāq Khān was induced to surrender by agreements and promises condition he died His properties came into the possession of Ma'sūm After this catastrophe, Ja'far Beg-who for his straightforward nature and courage was held in respect by his father—took refuge with Akbai, and was favourably received In 973 AH he was attached to Akbar's stirrups in the pursuit of Khān Zamān Shaibānī After that. when 'Alī Qulī Khān's offences were condoned, on condition that so long as Akbar was in those parts he would not cross the Ganges, and Akbar went off to visit the fort of Chunār, Khān Zamān ignorantly and foolishly crossed the river Akbar on receipt of this news made a rapid march against him, and Ja'far Beg quickly came to Ghāzīpūr, and distinguished himself by taking hold of some boats which contained Khan Zamān's goods and chattels He was promoted to the rank of 1,000 and granted the title of Khan 2

 $[\]frac{1}{K}h\bar{a}ma$ -i- $m\bar{u}$ 'i literally a pen of hair. The variant is $\underline{K}h\bar{a}na$ -i- $m\bar{o}i$ which would mean the nest of an ant

² See Blochmann's translation of Ā'īn, I (2nd Edn), p 471, and Akbarnāma, Text II, p 265, Beveridge's translation, p 395 From the latter it appears that Khān Zamān's boats were not seized at Ghāzīpūr, but further on at Sarwār, and it does not seem that Ja'fār Khān did anything special about them Blochmann points out that Ja'far Khān afterwards served under Husam Tukrīya in the siege of Nagarkōt In Tabaqāt-i-Akbarī, De's edition, Text II, p 451, and translation II, p 679, it is stated that Qazāq Khān (wrongly Qarāq Khān in the translation) was put to death, but his son Ja'far Khān died a natural death

JA'FAR KHAN 'UMDAT-UL-MULK 1

(Vol I, pp 531–535)

He was the son of Sādıq 2 Khān Mīr Bakhshī and the sister's son and son-in-law (khwēsh) of Yamīn-ud-Daula Āsaf Khān His wife was Farzāna ³ Bēgam commonly known as Bībī Jīu From his early years he was an object of royal favour, and was always distinguished for devotion and good service When his father died, the Emperor (Shāh Jahān) sent Aurangzīb to condole with him, and having put his mind at rest in reference to royal favours to bring him and his brothers to the Court When he appeared, he received an increase of 1,000 with 500 horse, and was raised to the position of 4,000 with 2,000 horse asmuch as real kindness does not 4 require an occasion or a pretext, and a benevolent heart seeks for a subterfuge, the Emperor in the 7th year glorified Ja'far Khān's house by visiting it, and he became distinguished above his compeers In the 10th year, Ja'far presented jewels and rare stuffs Out of graciousness to a servant, goods to the value of one lac of rupees were received and he was raised to the rank of 5,000 with 3,000 horse After that he was, for some reason, a subject of censure for some days, but again became the recipient of boundless In the 19th year, he was made governor of the Panjāb the end of the 20th year, he was raised to the office of Min Bakhshi in succession to Khalīl Ullāh Khān In the 23rd year, on the death of Makramat Khān he was made governor of the province of Shāhjahānābād (Delhī), and, in the 24th year, he was appointed governor of the province of Thatha (Sindh) in succession to Sa'īd Khān In the 30th year, he came to the Court When Mu'azzam Khan was removed from the high office of Vazīr, Ja'far Khān was exalted, in the 31st year, to the high office of the Chief Minister, and received the ornamented inkstand After the battle with Dārā Shikōh when Aurangzīb was encamped at Bāgh Nūr (near Āgra), Ja'far Khān, who had remained in Shāh Jahān's service, did homage along with the other royal servants After the first enthronement ⁵, which took place at Bāgh A'zābād, Delhī, Aurangzīb proceeded towards the Panjāb in pursuit of Dārā Shikōh, who to the end made vain efforts there, and the usual ceremonies of accession were put off till the second anniversary Ja'far Khān was given the governorship of Mālwa, and by receiving an increase of 1,000 horse, both $d\bar{u}$ -aspā and sih-aspā (two-hoise and three-horse troopers), his mansab was raised to 6,000 with 6,000 horse When Fādil Khān the chief Dīvān died in Kashmīr in the 6th year, an order was issued summoning Ja'far Khān He on his way from Kashmīr paid his respects to the Emperor at Panipat in 1074 Å H and was made Grand Vazīr which he had begun on the banks of the Jumna, was now finished, the

¹ Styled Jumdat-ul-Mulk in Maāthir-i- Ālamgīrī, p 103

² Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 729-731 Bādshāhnāma, I, p 538 ³ Farzāna Bēgam was the sister of Mumtāz Mahal, the wife of Shāh Jahān ⁴ It seems that the negative in namī khwāhad is wrong, and that the meaning 18 that kindness looks for an occasion for extending favours

⁵ The first coronation took place in the Shālāmār Gardens at Delhī on 1st August, 1658, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, II, p 446

King repeatedly honoured him in the 8th and 9th years by visiting him, and Ja'far Khān tendered rich and rare presents. In the 13th year, 1081 A.H (1670 AD) he died 1 in Shāhjahānābād after a long and severe illness. During this time, Aurangzīb twice visited him, once to inquire after his health, and the second time to condole with him. The Princes Muḥammad A'zam and Muḥammad Akbar were ordered to proceed to the house of his sons Nāmdār Khān and Kāmgār Khān to express regret and sympathy, and also to comfort their mother Farzāna Bēgam. A special robe of honour was given to each of the sons, and to their mother was sent a tōra 2 suitable to her condition. Afterwards Prince Muḥammad Akbar brought both brothers out of their mourning and presented them at the Court. Each received an ornamented dagger with pearl appendages, as well as various favours. Mourning robes were also sent to the other relatives.

Ja'far Khān was distinguished among the later officers for goodness and rightmindedness, and was conspicuous for his excellent manners, etc. Every one praised his highmindedness. They say, that he was very fond of expensive white cloth. The $Q\bar{a}d\bar{i}$ of Dhār 3 in the province of Mālwa—having heard of this—had fine cotton pieces specially prepared and embroidered carefully with flowers 4, so that clothes $(th\bar{a}nh\bar{a})$ worth fifty supees were inferior to their linen finish $(quma\bar{a}h)$. He then presented these as a rarity. He was called in to pay his respects, but Ja'far Khān frowned and said, "It is very coarse and had better be changed." The $Q\bar{a}d\bar{i}$ respectfully represented, "I ventured to tender these as 5 hangings for the doorways into the courtyard." Ja'far Khān was much pleased and ordered that these should replace the curtains.

Stories are also told of the exquisiteness of his powers of smell and his palate. They say that one day they brought a melon to him which was full of sweetness and flavour ⁶. He was pleased and said "I have never eaten a better melon than this one, but it has a fishy smell" On enquiry it was found that it was a melon from the Kōnkan, and that in that country they mix bits of fish with earth for manuring the melonbeds

¹ Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 103 For an account of Ja'far Khān, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar's History of Aurangzib, III, pp 65-67 He was appointed Vazīr A'zam on 30th December, 1663, and died on 6th May, 1670

² Tōra means regulation, and perhaps here means that suitable provision was made for her, vide Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 103 Perhaps the word is the Hindūstānī tōra a purse, but more probably the passage means that clothes suitable for a widow were sent

 $^{^3}$ Jarrett's translation of the \bar{A} 'in, II, pp 197, 206 4 Jāmawār—a flowered sheet or shawl, vide Steingass bab farsh chāndnī—Chāndnī is a white cloth spread over a carpet, but Chāndnī also means a canopy and the use of the word bāb seems to imply that the cloth was intended as a hanging or purdah for a doorway. The words in Ja'far Khān's remark are sarf tawān kard which presumably mean that you can change the present, or take it back. But there is the variant sarf natawān shud which would mean. I cannot use it, or, wear it, and imply that he thought the cloth was presented to him as wearing apparel or as a principal carpet. The Qādī's reply was that he meant it merely as hangings over the doorways

⁶ See the story in Khāfī Khān, II, p 234 The word there, and which is doubtless the correct one, is sūgandag—fragrance The fishy smell was only detected at the time of eating Shikanandigī in the text is not so appropriate, though it might refer to the softness of the melon

JAGAN NĀTH.1

(Vol I, pp 514-516.)

He was the son of Rāja Bihāiā Mal of whom a separate account 2 has been given The Raja placed him with two of his nephews (brother's sons) as hostages with Mīrzā Sharaf-ud-Dīn Husain, who during the time of his government of Aimer had set a pince 3 on the Raja's head wards when the Raja obtained an infroduction to Akbar and received glorious favours. Jagan Nath, in view of repeated commands from the Emperor, was released from the hands of the Mirza After that he was recipient of boundless favours, and sometimes in attendance on the royal stirrups, and sometimes in company with his brother's son Kunwar Mān Singh performed valuable services In the 21st year, when Rānā Pratāp the Zamīndār of Mēwār confronted the 10yal army, some leading officers gave way but Jagan Nath stood firm and behaved bravely Rām Dās the son of Jamal who was one of the noted foes, was killed by him In the 23rd year he obtained a fief in the Panjab and went off there In the 25th year, when there were signs of Mīrzā Ḥakīm's coming from Kābul to the Panjāb, and, an imperial expedition having been decided upon, a force was sent on in advance, Jagan Nath also was appointed to this service In the 29th year, he was appointed with a large force to chastise the Rānā who had become presumptuous, and his residence was plundered. After that he went to Kashmir with Mīrzā Yūsuf Khān When the affairs in that area were arranged, he came to the Presence and paid his respects After that, in the 34th year, he was sent with Prince Murad to Kabul, and, in the 36th year, when Prince Murad was appointed to Malwa, he accompanied him and achieved After that, he accompanied the Prince to the Deccan 43rd year 4, he obtained leave from the Prince and went to his home. From there he came to the Court, but as he had come without orders he was for some time not granted an audience When the Emperor returned from the Deccan, and halted at Rantambhör, Jagan Nāth m obedience to summons arrived there in advance. As the fort was a part of his fief, one day when the Emperor was visiting it, he, according to the rules of devoted servants, scattered money, etc, and in consequence was more highly honoured Afterwards he again went to the Deccan In the first year of Jahāngīr's reign he was appointed to accompany Prince Sultān Parvīz in the affair of the Rānā When the Prince in consequence of Khusrau's rebellion took Bāgha 5, the Rānā's son, with

² Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 111-113, Beveridge's translation, pp 409-411

¹ In the text it is Jagnāth, but more correctly Jagan Nāth

³ Albarnāma, Text II, p 155, Beveridge's translation II, p 241 the name of the Rāja is given there as Bihārī Mal Probably the meaning is not that Sharafud-Dīn set a price upon the Rāja's head, but that he levied a contribution upon him and took his son and nephews as hostages for the payment

⁴ Akbarnāma, Text III, p 743, Beveridge's translation III, p 1110

⁵ Bāgha or Bākha is mentioned in the Bādshāhnāma I, p 173, and in Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī, I, p 74 He was apparently a younger son of Amar Singh Rāja of Udaipūr and a grandson of the famous Pratāp The Rāja offered him to Prince Parvīz as a hostage, but the latter refused and said he must either have the Rāja himself or his son Karan But when the news of Khusrau's rebellion was received, Parvīz had to content himself with Bāgha him and proceeded to Agra, Jagan Nath was left in the area with the whole of the army. In the same year he was appointed to put down Dalpat of Bīkānīr who was creating a disturbance in Nāgōr In the 4th year, he was made 1 a Panjhazārī with 3,000 horse, and his son Rām Chand 2 received the rank of 2,000 with 1,500 horse, and was sent to the Deccan Rāja Manrūp, one of his sons, at the time of the confusion was attached to the stirrups of Shāh Jahān After the accession of the latter he received the rank of 3,000 with 2,000 horse and the gift of a flag and a horse with a silver (plated) saddle and an elephant, and Rs 25,00. In the 3rd year, he went with Rāja Gaj Singh to devastate the country of Nizām-ul-Mulk Deccanī, and in the same year he died His son Gopāl Singh ³ received a suitable rank (KUNWAR) JAGAT SINGH.

(Vol III, pp. 149, 150.)

He was the eldest son of Rāja Mān Singh Kachwāha, and was distinguished in Akbar's reign for leadership, and did good service. In the 42nd year, he was sent as an auxiliary to Mīrzā Ja'far Āsaf Khān, who had been directed to chastise Rāja Bāsū the land-holder of Ma'u and Pathan, but could not succeed on account of the discord among the officers In the 44th year, 1008 A H, the King's standards were unfurled in the direction of Malwa for the conquest of the Deccan, and Prince Sultān Salīm was sent to extirpate Rānā Amar Singh Rāja Mān Singh, who had become tired of settling Bengāl and had come to the Court, was appointed to accompany the Prince And the guardianship of the extensive province of Bengāl was entrusted to Jagat Singh as his father's deputy He was still near Agra and engaged in making preparations for his journey when he died suddenly in the prime of youth through excessive 4 drinking The Kachwāha tribe was plunged into great grief, and Akbar out of his excessive kindness sent his young son Mahā Singh in his place The sedition-mongers and some Afghāns—who had accepted service—took no notice of Mahā Singh on account of his youth and rose in rebellion. He, from inexperience, thought the affair an easy one and went forward to fight. In the township of Bhadrak (in Orīssa) a hot engagement took place 5 in the 45th year, and the imperialists were defeated. The rebels took possession of some places Rāja Mān Singh left the Prince and went quickly to Bengāl, and did great deeds in retrieval of the disaster. Mahā Singh, like his ¹ He was made a Panjhazārī by Akbar (Akbarnāma, Text III, p. 786, Beveridge's translation III, p. 1178) This was in the 46th year. In the Ā'īn, Blochmann's translation I (2nd edn.), p. 421, he is included among the commanders of 2,500.

² Blochmann, op cit, p. 422

³ Blochmann, ibid., p. 423

⁴ Jacat. Singh. was addeted to driph, but Abīl. Fadl in recounting his death.

Jagat Singh was addicted to drink, but Abūl Fadl in recounting his death (Albarnāma, Text III, p. 763, Beveridge's translation III, p. 1141) does not ascribe his death to drinking. He died on 26 Mihr, 1008 A. H. (October, 1599 A.D.)

The battle took place on 18 Ardibihisht, 1008 (May, 1600 A.D.). Mahā Singh was living in the 10th year of Jahāngīr, and his death is recorded in Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīr, Rogers and Beveridge's translation I, p. 377, and it is stated there that both father and son died at the age of 32 and of drink father and son died at the age of 32 and of drink father, became addicted to wine in his youth and brought disgrace to the family, and played away his sweet life for bitter liquor

(Rāja) Jagat Singh (Vol II, pp 238–241)

He was the son of Rāja Bāsū When his elder brother Rāja Sūraj Mal 1, after his father's death, became an object of Jahangir's favour, he was granted the ancestral property As Jagat Singh did not get on with his brother, he received a small office and went to Bengal the 13th year, when Sūraj Mal behaved badly, the King hastily summoned Jagat Singh from Bengal and gave him the rank of 1,000 with 500 horse and the title of Raja, and Rs 20,000 as also a jewelled dagger, a horse and an elephant, and sent him to Rāja Bikramājīt Sundar Dās, who was in active pursuit of Sūraj Mal At the end of the reign of Jahangir, Jagat Singh had the rank of 3,000 with 2,000 horse the 1st year of Shāh Jahān's reign he was confirmed in his rank, and, in the 7th year, when the King went to the Panjāb, he came and did homage In the 8th year, after the return of the King from Kashmir, he was appointed to the thanadari of Lower Bangash and to the chastisement of the tribe of Khang who hved in that area In the 10th year, he was removed and was made one of the Kābul auxiliaries He did good service ın arrestıng Karı̃m Dād son of Jalāla' Tārīkī (Raushanī) In the 11th year, when 'Alī Mardān Khān made over Qandahār to the imperial officers, and Sa'id Khān went off with the Kābul auxiliaries to put down the Persians who had come there, Jagat Singh was in the vanguard He was sent to Zamin Däwar He took the fort of Sārbān and proceeded to besiege Zamīn Dāwar After taking it, he did good service in the In the 12th year, when the Emperor was in residence at siege of Bust Lähöre, he came and did homage, and received a robe of honour, and a pearl necklace In the same year he was made faujdār of Upper and Lower Bangash In the 14th year, when he asked for the faujdārī of the Dāman-1-kōh of Kāngra in succession to his son Rājrūp and the collection of the tributes of the hill Rajas with an offer of 4 lacs, his request was granted, and he received a robe of honour and a horse with a silver saddle When he showed signs of rebelliousness, he was removed, and summoned to the Presence As he delayed in coming, the King sent three armies under the commands of Khān Jahān Bārah, Sa'īd Khān Zafr Jang, and Asālat Khān, while Prince Murād Bakhsh with another army was deputed in their support with a view to taking Ma'u and Nürgarh, and Tärägarh, which were strong forts of the territory At that time he had worked hard in strengthening them Jagat Singh did his utmost in contending with the royal forces

When Ma'u and Nürpür came into the hands of the imperialists, and Tārāgrah was nearly lost, he was obliged to apply to the Prince for pardon through Saiyid Khān Jahān After his pardon came from the King, and he agreed to demolish Tārāgarh and Ma'u, he, in the 15th year, came to the Court with his sons with fautas (tunics) round their necks and did homage The King forgave him and confirmed him in his former

¹ Tūzuk-1-Jahāngīrī, Rogers and Beveridge's translation I, p 283

In the same year he went to Qandahāi with Prince Dārā Shikōh He was entrusted with the fort of Qalat in the province of Qandahar In the 17th year, when Sa'id Khān Zafr Jang became the governor of the province, and as there was not a good understanding between him and the Rāja, he was removed from Qalāt In the 18th year, he received a robe of honour and a sword with golden and enamelled armour and a horse with a silver saddle and was sent to assist the Amīr-ul-Umarā in the taking of Badakhshān He, out of his zeal, kept a laigei contingent than his rank required, and was made happy by receiving their pay from government and entered Badakhshān by the route of Tūl When the men of Khost submitted and came to see him, he, at their advice, built a strong fort of timber between Sarāb and Andarāb, and fought three times with the Uzbegs and Almanan, whom Nadhr Muhammad, the ruler of Balkh had sent, and put them to flight Having put a strong thana in the above-mentioned fort, he retuined to Peshawai 19th year, corresponding to 1055 A.H (1645 AD) he died there ¹ Shāh Jahān comforted his son Rājiūp—of whom a separate account ² has been given

JAGMĀL

(Vol I, pp. 510, 511)

He was the younger brother of Rāja Bihārā Mal³ When the Rāja attained success through good fortune, every one of his relatives achieved relative degrees of success, Jagmal became, in the 8th year, the guardian of the fort of Mirtha In the 18th year, when Akbar made a rapid expedition to Gujarāt, Jagmāl was put in charge of the great camp, and obtained the rank of 1,000 His son Khangāi 4, who was living ın Agra with his uncle Rāja Bihārā Mal, was sent by the Rāja to Delhī at the time of the disturbance of Ibiāhīm Husain Mīrzā In the 18th year, before the royal expedition to Gujaiāt, he (i e Khangār) got leave and joined the royal camp in Pattan In the 21st year, he went with Kunwar Mān Singh to punish Rānā Pratāp, and afterwards was appointed to Bengāl, and in company with Shāhbāz Khān distinguished himself in the King's service When Shāhbāz Khān ietieated without achieving success from Bhātī (Lower Eastern Bengal) and took the route to Tānda, Khangār 5 on the march with some others fell in with a body of rebels who were returning from plundering, and a battle ensued between them On this occasion Naurūz Bēg Qāqshāl, one of the rebels, was killed, and the others fled

Jagrāj, also known as Bikramājīt

(Vol I, pp 526, 527)

He was the son of Rāja Jujhār Singh Bundēla In the first year of Shah Jahan's reign he received the rank of 1,000 with 1,000 horse

<sup>Bādshāhnāma, II, p 481
Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 277-281
Also written Bihārī Mal, see note 3, p 724
So also Akbarnāma, Text III, p 439, Beveridge's translation III, p 660
See Beveridge, op cit, p 660, note 1, in reference to the construction and</sup> meaning of the sentence

When a year later Khān Jahān Lōdī fled from Agra and travelling by unknown paths in the Bundela country came to Deogarh and so entered 1 the territories of the Nizām-ul-Mulk, and the imperial troops-which had been deputed to follow him-failed to follow, the Emperor began to suspect that Khān Jahān's easy passage through (his country) and the failure of the royal forces in following up, were the results of the guidance and misdirection of Jagraj In the 4th year, when Khan Jahan Lodi hastened to Mālwa from the Deccan in company with Daryā Khān Röhila, and in great confusion entered the Bundela territory, with the intention of proceeding to Kālpī, Jagiāj, to make amends for his disgrace, and to obliterate his father's shame, guided up his loins and pursued him He reached the real-guard, which was commanded by Darya Khān, and a battle ensued During the course of the fighting a bullet struck Daryā Khān and he was killed The Bundēla men thought Daryā Khān was Khān Jahān and fell upon the body, and Bikiamājīt cut off the head and started for the Court The past was atoned for, and, as a reward, he obtained the rank of 2,000 with 2,000 horse 2 and the title of Jagrāj and the gift of a role of honour, an ornamented sword as also a flag, and drums Afterwards he came to the Deccan as a substitute for his father, and, in company with Khān-Khānān and Khān Zamān, did great deeds in battles, sometimes on the right wing and sometimes in the rear-guard He also hazarded his life in the sieges of Daulatābād and Parēnda in defending the batteries and in single combats In the 8th year, he went home on receiving a letter from his father who was in disgrace with the Emperor on account of the killing 3 of Bhīm Narāyan the Zamīndār of Chūrāgarh. When Khān Daurān the governor of Burhanpur heard of his flight, he hastened after him with a body of troops, and killed some Jagraj was wounded, but went off by unknown paths and joined his father After the royal forces came up, he and his father fled, but he was killed in 1044 ÅH (1634-35 AD) under circumstances stated in the account of Jujhār Singh Durjan Sal, his son, was made prisoner at the time of the pursuit

Jahangir Quli Khan

(Vol I, pp. 512-514)

Hıs name was Lāla Bēg Kābulī He was one of the slave-born servants of Mīrzā Hakīm His father Nizām Qalmāq was the lamplighter (chri āghchī) of the Mīrzā's banquets Lāla Bēg became a favourite with the Mīrzā on account of his zeal, and did good service Mīrzā died, he entered the service of Akbar who made him over to the Prince-Royal Sultān Salīm As he had a high spirit and did good work, the Prince favoured him and gave him the title of Baz Bahadur few days he became the owner of drums and an equipage When the Prince succeeded to the throne, he was raised to the high rank of 5,000 and received the title of Jahāngīr Qulī Khān, and the governorship

¹ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 289

² Op cit, p 339
³ Jujhār Singh put Bhīm, or Pīm Narāyan to death after inducing him to come out of Chūrāgarh, Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 95 The story is also told in the Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 214–218, in the notice of Rāja Jujhār Singh Bundēla of Patna and Bihār When a loyal order was passed that whichever of the fiefholders in the province should be disobedient to Jahangir Quli, might be slain by the latter, the prestige and power of Jahangir Qulī became impressed on people's hearts Rāja Sangrām 1, the landholder of Kharakpur-who was one of the greatest landholders in that area, and who from Akbar's time had always been on good terms and obedient to the imperial officers, so much so that Rāja Todar Mal made him his adopted son—could not brook Jahangir Quli's sway and prepared for war The latter marched against him with a suitable force and after a hard contest Sangrām was wounded by a bullet and killed, and the Khan triumphed In the 2nd year, 1016 AH, on the death of Qutbud-Dīn Khān Kōka, who was slain at the hands of Shēr Afgan Istāilū (Nūr Jahan's first husband), Jahangir Quli was raised to the high office of the governorship of Bengāl After his arrival there, he made various administrative arrangements, but had 2 not made much progress when the army of death attacked him. He died in the 3rd year, 1017 AH. (1608 A.D.) He was famous for his firm belief in the Faith and his worship of the truth, and strove hard to obtain spiritual rewards employed one hundred Hāfiz who, whether he was travelling or halting, finished several readings of the holy Qui'an, and gave him the merit accruing therefrom He too recited many prayers and passages of the Qur'an But with all this devotion and piety he was hard of heart He possessed neither a soft heart nor pity In the very time of his prayers and rosaries he did not refrain from making signals for the scourgings and hangings of guilty persons He had a hundred trumpeters in his service who, whenever there was a fight 3, sounded all their trumpets at once and thus clove the gall-bladders of rustics and villagers He also had one hundred Kashmir pellet-bowmen, who were so expert that a bird could not fly over their heads without being struck by a pellet

JAHANGIR QULI KHAN 4

(Vol I, pp 524, 525)

He was Shams-ud-Din known as Mīrzā Shamsī and the eldest son of the Khān A'zam Mīrzā 'Azīz Kōkaltāsh During the time when Mīrzā Kōka was the governor of Gujarāt, he, on account of suspicions of long standing, embarked in the ship Ilāhī at the port of Balāwal 5, which is near Somnat (Somnath) and went off to the Hijaz, he took with him his sons and household, with the exceptions of Shamsī and Shādmān Akbar, out of his unbounded graciousness, raised Shams-ud-Din to the rank of 1,000, and, as he was distinguished from his brothers by wisdom and prudence and other excellent qualities, he was always in favour

¹ See Blochmann's translation of A'in, I (2nd edn), p 494, note 2, for an account of his life

² Pardākhta, but apparently the variant na pardākhta is right. He had not arranged matters when he died. His rule in Bengāl only lasted for a year and some months, vide Riyād-us-Salātīn, Text, p 174, Translation, pp 172, 173

3 There are references to Jahāngīr Quli in Iqbālnāma-i-Jahāngīrī, p 33, and Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī, Rogers and Beveridge's translation I, pp 144, 153, etc

4 Blochmann's translation of Ā'īn, I (2nd edn), p 499

5 See Blochmann, op cit, p 345, for further details, and Albarnāma, Text III, p 638, and Beveridge's translation III, pp 979-981 from the time of Akbar to that of Shāh Jahān and lived a good life with a good name During Akbar's time he attained the rank of 2,000 When in the 3rd year of Jahangir's reign the province of Gujarat was taken from Murtadā Khān Bokhārī (Shaikh Farīd) and given in fief to the Khan A'zam, and as the Emperor was somewhat put out (andakī kabīdagī dāsht) with the Khān, and did not trust him on account of his being a partizan of Khusrau, he resolved that the Khan should remain at the Court, and that Jahangir Quli Khan-who was an honest house-born servant and one of good discretion in whom he had full confidenceshould manage the province as his father's deputy

It is notorious that Mīrzā Kōka could not control his tongue, and that he was wont to use extravagant language Especially, he could not restrain himself when he was angry, so that he would not respect even the presence of the King One day it so happened that Jahāngīr said to Jahāngīr Qulī Khān, "Will you stand surety for your father?" Jahangir Quli replied, "I will be surety for his life and property, but I cannot be responsible for his tongue" After that he was raised to the rank of 3,000 with 3,000 horse, and received the government of Jaunpur At the same time Prince Shah Jahan took possession of Bengal and proceeded towards Patna 'Abdullah Khan Firuz Jang went off to Allahābād as a vanguard, along with Rāja Bhīm When he came to the Chausa ferry, Jahāngīr Qulī Khān perceived that resistance was beyond his power, and proceeded hastily from Jaunpur and joined at Allahabad Mīrzā Rustam Safavī, the governor of the area Later he was put in charge of Allahābād 1, and on the accession of Shāh Jahān, though he was removed from Allahābād he was kept in his former rank In succession to Beglar Khan, the son of Sa'id Khan, he was made governor of Sorath and Jūnāgarh In the 5th year, 1041 AH (1631-32 AD), he died there Shāh Jahān out of kindness to a house-born servant (Khānazād) raised his son and heir Bahrām² to the rank of 2,000 with 2,000 horse, and appointed him in the room of his father. He was a brave and capable young man, and founded Bahrāmpūra in Gujarāt after his own name (Rāja) Jai Rām Badgūjar.

(Vol II, pp 241, 242)

He was the son of Rāja Anūp Singh ⁸, who was also known as Anī During the lifetime of his father, he 4 was honoured Rāi Singhdilan with a mansab and appointed to various offices After his (father's) death in the 11th year of the reign of Shāh Jahān he was granted a Khil'at, the title of Rāja, and the rank, substantive and with increments,

¹ Kēwal Rām says he was made governor of Bıhār ın succession to Ibrāhīm Khān in the 12th year of Jahāngīr's reign and was removed in the 14th year on the ground that his collectors oppressed the ryots After that he was appointed to the Deccan

² Bahrām died in the 18th year of Shāh Jahān's reign, see Bādshāhnāma,

II, p 733
³ For his biography see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 220–223, and Beveridge's

⁴ Details of the increases in rank and his exploits are based on Bādshāhnāma, I, II of 1 000 with 800 horse In the 12th year he was successful in receiving an increase of 200 horse. In the 13th year, he was sent in attendance on Prince Murad Bakhsh, who was first appointed to Bhēia, but later ordered to Kābul In the 14th year, he again accompanied the same Prince to Kābul In the 19th year, his rank was advanced by 1,500 and 500 horse, and he was sent on the expedition for the conquest of Balkh and Badakhshān with Prince Murād Bakhsh And after Balkh was taken, he was deputed with Bahādur Khān and Asālat Khān for the pursuit of Nadhar Muhammad Khān the juler of Balkh In the 20th year, he by successive degrees attained the rank of 2,000 with 500 horse In the neighbourhood of Balkh he performed valuant deeds in connection with the chastisement of Uzbegs and Almānān In the 21st year, corresponding to 1057 AH (1647 AH), he died there The Emperor, on receipt of this news, exalted his son by granting him the title of Raja and increase of mansab, and thereby raised his position amongst his equals

(Mīrzā Rāja) Jai Singh 1 Kachwāha

(Vol III, pp 568-577)

He was the son of Rāja Mahā Singh When his father died, he, in obedience to the summons, came to wait upon Jahangir, and, in the 12th year at the age of twelve received the rank of 1,000 with 500 horse and the gift of an elephant Afterwards, he was appointed to the Deccan along with Sultan Parviz He gradually received promotion and rose to a high rank After Jahangir's death, as Khan Jahan Lodi, the governor of the Deccan, was becoming rebellious and had gone to Mālwa Jai Singh who, owing to his helplessness, had kept on good terms with him, went off to his home from Ajmer on hearing that Shah Jahan was coming From there he came to the Court in the year of the accession (1628 A D) and received an increase of 500 horse and had the rank 2 of 4,000 with 3,000 hoise and the gift of a flag and drums with Qäsim Khān Juvainī he was sent off to chastise the sedition-mongers 3 of Mahāban which is a pargana in the Sarkār of Agra, and returned after inflicting suitable punishment When in the same year, Nadhar Muhammad Khān, the ruler of Balkh, stirred up strife and came to Kābul and besieged the city, and Mahābat Khān Khān-Khānān was deputed to punish him, Jai Singh was sent with him In the 2nd year, he was sent with Khwāja Abūl Hasan Turbatī in pursuit of Khān Jahān Lodi year, he was sent with Shāyista Khān to punish Khān Jahān Lodī and to devastate the country of the Nızām-ul-Mulk, he was granted 4 an increase of 1,000 horse and the rank of 4,000 with 4,000 horse When Khan Jahan Bārah was summoned to the Court on account of illness, the vanguard of A'zam Khān's forces was entrusted to Jai Singh He did good service

¹ He was a great-grandson of Man Singh Bādshāhnāma, II, p 145 died at the age of 32 at Bālāpūr in Berār, vide Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī, I, p 376

² Bādshāhnāma, I, p 120

³ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 196 and pp 204, 205.

⁴ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 296

m the battle of Bhātūrī¹, and in the attack upon the pettah (suburb) and town of Parēnda² In the 4th year, he served along with Yamīnud-Daula, who had been directed to devastate the country of 'Adıl Shāh, he was stationed in the left wing of the reserve He came with hun afterwards and did homage Afterwards he had leave to go to his In the 6th year, he came to the Court and on the day of the elephant fights when an elephant attacked Aurangzīb, the Rāja spurred his horse against it and flung his spear from the right side 3 At the end of the same year he was sent off with Sultān Shujā' to the Deccan In the 7th year, he was appointed with Khān Zamān to ravage the crops 4 and to take Parenda During the siege of this fort and in bringing in forage there were constant fights with the enemy and the Rāja stood firm and did good service When in the 8th year, the $S\bar{u}bad\bar{a}r\bar{\imath}$ of the Bālāghāt, which is another name for the $Sark\bar{a}rs$ of Daulatābād, Ahmadnagar, etc , was made over to the $\underline{\mathsf{Kh}}$ ān Zamān, Jar Singh was appointed to assist him In the same year, he had an increase of 1,000 and his 1 ank became 5 000 with 4,000 horse Afterwards he came to the Court and did homage In the 9th year, he was sent off with Khān Daurān Bahādur to chastise Sāhū Bhonsle In the 10th year he came to the Court, and, as he had done good service in the Deccan, the King gave him a robe of honour and leave to go to his country of Amber so that he might rest for a while In the 11th year he again came to the Court, and was attached to Sultān Shujā' who, after 'Alī Mardān Khān had made over Qandahār, and as there was a likelihood of Shāh Safi's coming, had been sent off there In the 12th year he was summoned to the Court, and received a pearl necklace and an elephant and the title 5 of Mīrzā Rāja In the 13th year he had leave to go to his home In the 14th year he was appointed to Kābul in attendance on Prince Murād Bakhsh, and in the following year he was sent with Sa'id Khān to take the fort of Ma'u which belonged to the rebel Rāja Jagat Singh, the son of Rāja Bāsū When he reached there and the siege was protracted, and an order was given for taking 6 active measures, Rāja Jai Singh behaved better than the others As a reward he received the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse of which 2 000 were two-horse and three-horse The custody of the fort was entrusted to him Afterwards, when Rāja Jagat Singh's sins were purged, Rāja Jai Singh came to the Court and received a robe of honour a decorated dagger, a horse with gold trappings and an elephant, and went to Qandahār along with Prince Dārā Shikōh In the 16th year he came to the Court, and was then allowed to go home

¹ In the Ahmadnagar territory There was battle there in the 19th year of Jahāngir, see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, p 518, but this cannot be the one now referred to Apparently the word Bhātūrī must be wrong

² Bādshāhnāma, I, p 357 Elliot, VII, p 22

³ In Bādshāhnāma, I, p 492, it is stated that Jai Singh's horse would not face the elephant and so Jai Singh had to attack from the right flank

⁴ There does not appear to be appropriate of the name of Kār, and it seems that

⁴ There does not appear to be any fort of the name of Kār, and it seems that the idea was to ravage the crops

The expedition referred to is described in the Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, pp 35, 36

It is there referred to the 6th year

5 Bādshāhnāma, II, p 145, where it is stated that Jai Singh's great-grandfather

Mēn Singh had this title from Alcher

Man Singh had this title from Akbar

⁶ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 271

the 17th year he, in Ajmēr, produced before the King 5,000 horse of his own troops. In the 18th year, when the government of the Deccan was entrusted to Khān Daurān, and he was summoned to the Court to receive instructions, Rāja Jai Singh was directed to proceed to the Deccan and to guard that country till Khān Daurān arrived

When Khān Daurān died at Lāhōre a confirmatory robe of honour was sent to the Raja, and in the 20th year he was summoned to the After that he was attached to Prince Aurangzib on the Balkh expedition When in accordance with orders that province was made over to Nadhar Muhammad Khān, the Rāja had charge of the left wing during the return journey In the 2nd year his contingent was increased by 1,000 two-horse and three-horse troopers, and his rank raised to 5,000 with 5,000 horse of which 3,000 were two-horse and three-horse, and he went with Prince Aurangzib on the Qandahār expedition wing was assigned to him When Qandahār was not taken, and Prince Aurangzīb was summoned to the Court, Jai Singh came with him in the 23rd year In the end of the same year he had leave to go home and was appointed 1 to chastise the turbulent men of Kāmān Pahāiī which is between Agra and Delhi When it was reported that after going home the Rāja had collected nearly 4,000 horse and 6,000 musketeers and archers, and gone to the pargana in question and after cutting down the jungle had killed and made prisoners of many of the rebels and had got possession of much cattle, 1,000 more of his troops were made twohorse and three-horse and his rank was increased to 5,000 with 5,000 horse of which 4,000 were two-horse and three-horse troopers, and pargana Hāl Kaliyāna (Chāl Kalānah) of which the revenue was 70 lacs of dāms, was assigned for their support. In the 25th year he came to the Court, and was attached to Prince Aurangzib for the Qandahär expedition, and had charge of the vanguard He received a special robe of honour and a horse with a gilded saddle, and an elephant from the royal stables

When the taking of Qandahār was delayed, Jai Singh waited on the King at Kābul in the 26th year, and in the same year was attached to Sultān Sulaimān Shikōh who had charge of Kābul Afterwards he was attached to Prince Dārā Shikōh for the Qandahār expedition, and when that was unsuccessful, he came to the Court and took leave to go home. In the 28th year Sa'd Ullāh Khān the Jumlat-ul-Mulk was appointed to demolish the fort of Chittōr, and Jai Singh accompanied him. In the 31st year, when there was a report of Sultān Shujā's having gone astray and of his having laid hold of many of the exchequei-lands, Jai Singh was sent as a guardian of Sulaimān Shikōh to oppose Sultān Shujā', and had an increase of 4,000 horse and 1,000 two-horse and three-horse. After Sultān Shujā' was defeated, he was promoted, in his absence at the instance of Prince Dārā Shikōh, to 7,000 with 7,000 horse of which 5,000 were two-horse and three-horse, and in accordance with the orders of the Prince started for the Court. When Auiangzīb's army moved from the Deccan, and after defeating Dārā Shikōh and Jaswant Singh came to Agıa and from there advanced to Delhī, Jaı Sıngh left Sulaıman Shikōh piudently (shēr filiī¹²) and entered Aurangzīb's service. He was rewarded by an estate worth a kror of dāms, and in the 1st year of Aurangzīb's reign was sent off to support Khalīl Ullāh Khān who had gone

¹ Khāfī Khān, I, p 701, says that in the 24th year the Rāja s son Kēsarī Singh was appointed to chastise the Mēwātīs and that pargana Kāmān Pahārī was given to him as a reward See $Ma\bar{a}thir$ -ul-Umarā, Text III, pp 156–158, for an account of Kēsarī Singh who is there called Kīrat Singh Kāmah and Pahārī are mentioned in Jarrett's translation of \bar{A} in, II, p 195 The pargana Hāl Kaliyāna of text should be Chāl Kalānah, see Jarrett, op cit, p 194

ın pursuit of Dārā Shiköh

When Dārā Shikōh proceeded to Multān, Jai Singh halted, according to orders, at Lähöre, and waited on the King As he had long been absent from home and had undergone the fatigues of successive campaigns, he received permission to go home. After the battle with Shuja' he came to the Court, and did good service in the battle with Dārā Shikōh near Ajmēr Later he was appointed with a force to pursue Dārā Shikōh and, in the 4th year he received an estate with a revenue of a kror of In the 7th year, he was appointed to chastise Sivā (Shivājī) Bhonsle who was behaving presumptuously and practising highway robbery on account of his possession of strong forts, such as Pürindhar (Pūrandhar), which he had held from the time of the Nizām-Shāhīs, and was also associated with the sea-pirates He besieged Pürindhar and so pressed Sivā that he became alaimed and came to interview the He took 23 forts and when this news reached the Emperor, he was granted an increase of 2,000 horse two-horse and three-horse, and his rank became 7,000 with 7,000 two-horse and three-horse troopers In the 8th year, he was appointed to devastate the country of 'Adıl Shāh who had delayed to pay the fixed tribute He advanced as far as Bijāpūr and took possession of many places When there was a scarcity of corn he turned back and entered the royal domains He had frequent encounters with the Deccani troops who fought in a guerilla-fashion The Rāja personally exerted himself and fought bravely and discreetly When the rainy season airived, and an order was received to encamp at Aurangābād, he came there and was summoned from thence to the Presence In the 10th year, 1077 AH, he died 2 at Burhānpūr He was famed for his good judgment and powers of administration and he was also fully conversant with military technique. He had much tact, and it was due to this fact that from the beginning of his career to the end of his life he lived with a good reputation and continually got promotions Hissons were Rāja Rām Singh and Kīrat Singh, separate accounts of both of whom have been given 3 There is an area outside of Aurangābād and to its west which is named after him 4

The expression is not given in any of the dictionaries

² According to the Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 62, he died on 28 Muharram,

1078 A H (20 July, 1667 A D)

The notice hardly does justice to Mīrzā Rāja It was he who secured Shivājī and sent him to Aurangzīb Manucci was in the service of Jai Singh, and has a good deal to say about him, see vol II, p 120 et seq At p 152 he repeats the fable about Jai Singh's having been poisoned, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, IV, p 129

¹ Shēr fikrī is a mistake for sair fikrī, see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text III, p 769, 4th line from bottom, where the words sair fikr occur and appear to mean prudent

Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 301-303 and Text III, pp 156-158
 According to Rajputana Gazetteer, II, p 136, Jai Singh the 1st was poisoned by one of his sons On the same page there is an account of Jai Singh II, ie Jai Singh Sawā'ī, the astronomer, who was Mīrzā Rāja Jai Singh's great great-grandson

(Dhīrāj 1 Rāja) Jai Singh Sawā'ī

(Vol II, pp 81-83)

Hıs father was Bıshan Sıngh the great-grandson of Mīrzā Rāja Jar Singh His name was Bijai Singh After his father's death, Aulangzīb, in the 44th year of his reign, gave him the rank of 1,500 with 1,000 horse, and the title of Rāja Jai Singh, while his brother was called Bijai Singh In the 45th year, he was appointed to accompany Asad Khan in taking the fort of Sakharun-nā alias Khalnā In taking this fort, he, on the day of the assault, distinguished himself, and in reward he was promoted to the rank of 2 000 with 2,000 horse After Aurangzīb's death he came to Upper India from the Deccan along with Muhammad A'zam Shāh, and on the day of the battle with Bahādur Shāh he was on the left wing of the reserve They say, that on the same day he entered the army of Bahādur Shāh On this account he lost respect in the eyes of the people His brother Bijai Singh, who had chosen Bahādui Shāh's side was raised to the rank of 3,000 and disputed with him the possession of Amber. The King, who liked to please everybody, and did not want to dishearten anyone, confiscated Amber and appointed Saiyid Husain Khān Bārah When he went to the Deccan to encounter Kam Bakhsh, as its fauidāi Jai Singh left him on the march on a pretext of hunting, and taking with him his necessaries and leaving his tents and porters went off with Rāja Ajīt Singh to his native country There he had a dispute with Husain Khān Bārah and fought several battles. At last the Khān was When Bahädur Shāh returned from the Deccan, Jai Singh made the Khān-Khānān his intercessor and waited upon Bahādur Shāh on the He obtained leave on the promise that after two months he would present himself In the time of Farrukh-siyar he got the title of Dhīrāj, and in the 5th year, he was appointed to chastise Chūrāman Afterwards, Saiyid Khān Jahān Bārah, the maternal uncle of Qutb-ul-Mulk and Husain 'Alī (the Bārah Saiyids), was appointed to this service with a separate army The affair of Chūrāman was disposed of by the intervention of Saiyid Khān Jahān, and Chūrāman waited upon the King In this matter the Raja was not consulted, and though he kept quiet, he was displeased, and as he took the King's side, the Saiyids became annoyed and disliked him. In the end of the reign, when he was at the Court, the Saiyids were at pains to conciliate him, and he, thinking the opportunity a good one, went to Amber in accordance with orders. In the affair of Nekū-siyar he was suspected of siding with the latter, but at last he reconciled himself with the Saiyids wards when the affairs of the Saiyids fell into confusion, this feeling did not remain and in the beginning of Muhammad Shāh's reign he came to the Court and received various favours 3 Afterwards, he was appointed to proceed against Chūrāman Jāt, and engaged himself in turning him out and in taking his thānas. In 1145 ÅH he was appointed governor of Mālwa in succession to Muḥammad Khān Bangash, and in 1148 AH, at his request the province in question was, through the

Properly Adhīrāj, i e Supreme Rāja Sawā'ī in Text is Sēwā'ī
 Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 540-548, Beveridge's translation, pp 436-442
 Beale states that he received the title of Sawā'ī from Muhammad Shāh intervention of Khān Daurān, made over to Bājī Rāo Mahratta He lived for a long time and then died (in 1743 AD)

They say, he was full of plans, and was acquainted with mathematics Near Amber he built a new city and called it Jainagar (Jaipūr). It is remarkable for the goodness of its shops, and the width of its streets Outside of the city and also near Delhī, he at great expense built observatories. As thirty years were required for the completion of observations—this being the period of the orbit of Saturn—and as the lamp of his life was extinguished before that, his observations remained incomplete. He was succeeded by his son Ishwar Singh. After him, in the time of his son Prithī Singh some estates were taken possession of by the Mahrattas, and some imperial properties also fell into their hands. At the time of writing Partāb Singh, the brother of Prithī Singh, is in possession of the territories.

Jalāl Kākar²

(Vol I, pp 530, 531)

He was the second son of Dılāwar Khān He was appointed to the province of Kābul Up to the end of Jahāngū's reign he held the rank of 1,000 with 600 horse On the accession of Shah Jahan he received an increase of 500 with 100 horse. In the 31d year, he along with Sa'id Khān did good service in the affair 3 of Kamal-ud-Din, the son of Rukn-ud-Din Röhila In the 12th year, when the Capital was adorned by the presence of the Emperor, he received a robe of honour and the office of fauydar of Jammu in succession to Shah Quli Khan In the 13th year, when Sultān Murād Bakhsh was appointed with a force to remain at Bhēra, he was made one of the Prince's officers In the 14th year, he was granted an increase of 300 hoise and the present of a horse, and was appointed to the auxiliary forces of the Deccan In the 18th year, his rank was 2 000 with 1,500 horse After spending a long time in the Deccan, he, in the 30th year, went off with Mūzā Khān Manūchehr to realise the balance of the tribute of Köknā the Zamīndār of Dēogarh 4 Later, at the request of Sultan Aurangzīb Baḥādur he was made fauydār and fiefholder of Nasīrābād 5, etc , in Khāndēsh After Aurangzīb's accession, he in the 4th year, attained the rank of 3,000 with 2,000 horse and was made faujdār of Hoshangābād in Mālwa

¹ He also built an observatory at Mathurā, but the buildings have been pulled down, see Grouse, Mathura, p 141 There is an account of Jai Singh's astronomical work in Asiat Researches V, p 177 et seq, by Dr W Hunter Tieffenthaler, I, p 307, mentions that Jai Singh sent for Father Boudier from Bengal in 1733, and in 1736 Father Antony Gabelsperguer and Andrew Stiobl from Germany, paying them their expenses On p 366, Tieffenthaler gives a pedigree of the Jaipur family from Beschan (Vishnu?) and Brahma down to Siwai Jai Singh who was No 119 in descent

² An Afghān tribe

 $^{^3}$ It was an attempt of the Afghān tribes to take Peshāwar, see $B\bar{a}dsh\bar{a}hn\bar{a}ma$ I, p. 311

 $^{^4}$ In Mālwa vide Jarrett's translation of $\bar{A}'\bar{i}n, II, p 200 5 Vide Jarrett, op cit, p 225

Jalal Khān Qürchī

(Vol I, pp 509, 510)

He was an univalled companion and an intimate courtier of Akbai He held the rank of 500 In the 5th 1 year he was sent to bring Tansen Kalānwat who in reciting poetry and in singing (Doharpad 2) was at the head of the cognoscenti of the art of music, and who was at the Court of Ram Chand Baghela, the Raja of Bhath Jalal Khan took with him a letter to the Raja and the latter sent Tansen along with presents the 11th year, when it was reported, that Jalal Khan was infatuated with a beautiful youth, the Emperor was displeased and took away the youth from him Jalal Khan became quite excited and ran away at night taking the youth with him When this was reported Mūzā Yūsuf Khān Radavī was sent after him with a body of troops, and he was brought For a long time he was kept in the Jilaukhāna 3 and subjected to the kicks of high and low. After that he was received into favour again. In all expeditions he was attached to Akbar's stirrups, and afterwards was sent off to assist the force that was employed in taking the fort of Siwana in Aimei In the 20th year he came there and did good service Chandai Sen the Raja of Marwar ictired in order to escape from the imperial forces. At this time a man came forward, and represented himself as Dēvī Dās who had been slaughtered in the battle with Mīrzā Sharaf-ud-Dīn Husam near Mītha in Ajmēt He wished through the Khān's instrumentality to be introduced at the Court As at that time search was being made everywhere for Chandar Sen this impostor one day represented that Chandar Sen was hidden in the jagir of Kala, the son of Ram Rai and his (i e Chandai's) brother's son Accordingly a force was sent against Kalā Kalā demed this and arranged with Shimāl Khān Qürchī to put an end to the impostor He (1 e Shimāl Khān) brought the impostor one day to his house and was preparing to arrest He by the strength of his arms escaped, and then, having revenge m his heart, one day, mistaking Jalal Khān's quarters for Shimāl Khān's attacked him with some others. Jalal Khān though unprepared fought bravely, but was killed in the year 983 4 A H (November, 1575 AD)

(MIR SAIYID) JALĀL SADR

(Vol III, pp 447-451)

He was the direct heir of Mīi Saiyid Muhammad Bokhārī Radavī, who was separated by five generations from Shāh 'Ālam ⁵, who is buried in Rasūlābād in the neighbourhood of Aḥmadābād Shāh 'Ālam was

¹ But it was in the 7th year, see Albarnāma, Text II, p 181, Beveridge's translation II, pp 279, 280

² Properly Dhurpad, derived from the Sanskiit Dhiwapada, see Jarrett's translation of the Ā'īn, III, p 251, note 2

³ For Jilaukhāna, see Beveridge's translation of Akbarnāma, II, p 404, note 1 ⁴ Vide Akbarnāma, Text III, p 159 and Beveridge's translation III, p 225, and Blochmann's translation of Ā'īn, I (2nd edn), p 491 Jalāl Khān was Badā yūnī's patron and introduced him at the Court He is mentioned in a letter of Faidī as having introduced Badāyūnī as a suitable person to be made an Imām (leader in prayers), vide Muntakhāb ut-Tawārīkh, Text III, p 304

⁵ Jarrett's translation of Ā'īn, III, p 372 Also Khazīna i Āsfiyā, II, p 70

born on 20 Jumāda II, 817 A H (6 September, 1414 A D) and died in 880 AH (1475 AD) He obtained initiation from his father Qutb Alam who was a grandson of Saiyid Jalal Makhdum Jahaniyan On account of a quarrel with the governor of Uch and by the orders of his father and teacher Shāh Mahmūd, he (Qutb 'Alam) in the time of Sultān Mahmūd (Bēgarha) who was separated by two generations from Sultān Muzaffar of Gujarāt, came to that country and settled in Batōh (Batwa) three kos from Ahmadābād He died 1 in 857 A H (1453 A D) Saiyid Muhammad was a successor of Shāh 'Ālam and was distinguished for ability and holiness He had no equal in thoughtfulness and piety Jahangir commissioned him to translate the Qur'an in an easy style At the time when Jahangir went from Gujarat towards Cambay, with the intention of sailing on the sea, the Mir was treated with great respect and accompanied him Shāh Jahān also had two interviews with the Saiyid The first time was in Ahmadabad when he was a Prince, and the second time was when he was marching from Junair towards the Capital That great one made this line as a chronogram of his own birth Man u dast u dāmān āl-Rasūl—I shall hold with the arm the skirt of the Apostle's family (2), (9892)

They say that the Saiyid and his ancestors were of the Imāmiya religion. He died in 1045 ÅH (1635-36 AD) in the 8th year of Shāh Jahān's reign, and was buried near the gate, towards the west of the tomb of Shāh 'Alam

Mīr Saiyid Jalāl was adoined with excellent qualities, and was veised in the current sciences He had a poetical vein, and his takhallus was Radā'ī

This quatrain of his is famous

Owing to my pride and haughtiness I am helpless, what can I do?

Though I am a bondsman of need, what can I do?

I am dying through poverty but will not supplicate to my beloved I am a lover with the temperament of a beloved, what can I do?

He was born on 15 Jumāda II, 1003 A H (25 February, 1595), Wānth Rasūl—Heir of the Apostle—is the chronogram After the accession of Shāh Jahān he came, by his father's order, to offer congratulations He was received at Āgra with favour After his desires were fulfilled he returned to his native land He again came to the Court As his

 $^{^1}$ Jarrett, op cit , p372 The month and day of Shāh 'Ālam's birth as given in the text differ from those in Jarrett — The latter agrees as to the month with the $\mathit{Mir\bar{a}t}\text{-}i\text{-}Ahmad\bar{\imath}$, and it appears that Saiyid Muhammad was the son of Saiyid Jalāl Māh 'Ālam — There is an account of Saiyid Muhammad and his son Jalāl in $\mathit{B\bar{a}dsh\bar{a}hn\bar{a}ma}$, I, pt 2, pp 328 and 331

² The chronogram yields 989 AH (1581 AD) The same chionogram is given in the Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 329 That in the Mirāt-i-Ahmadī, II, p 27, is slightly different and is apparently incorrect. As Saiyid Jalāl the son was born in 1003, his father must have married and probably had a child at the age of 13 or 14 It was apparently at Mahmūdābād that Jahāngīr saw Saiyid Muhammad and engaged him to translate the Qur'ān, see Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk i-Jahāngīrī, II, pp 34, 35, and Iqbālnāma-i Jahāngīrī, p 107 The date of death of Saiyid Muhammad is given in the Mirāt-i-Ahmadī, II, p 27 as 12 Rajab, 1045 AH (22 December, 1635 AD) He was buried in the Second Cemetery which was made by Saif Khān ancestors had also served as officers of the kings of Gujarat, Shah Jahan on the 7th Sha'ban, 1052 AH, in the 16th year, by importunity induced the Mir to doff the garments of a fagir and to accept the rank of 4,000 and the office of the Sadārat of India in succession to Mūsavī Khān Saiyid, notwithstanding his pleasing manners and lofty descent represented 1 that owing to the perfunctoriness and carelessness of Mūsavī Khān grants of maintenance land had been made to many persons who were not entitled to them, and many had got hold of lands by forged An order was issued to the dominions that until inquiry into grants had been made, maintenance lands are in general confiscated Although in the realm of service this kind of inquiry—which is based upon the obligations of one's position and the claims of the master—is reasonably and properly regarded as commendable, yet it resulted in the Saivid having a very bad name with the public

It happened that at the same time the Begam Sahiba's 2 dress caught fire, and she was badly burnt Much charity was bestowed, and prisoners were released Debts were remitted, and the above order was The Mīr's allowances were gradually increased till they also cancelled came to 6,000 with 6,000 horse If death had spared him, he would have had still greater promotion He died young at Lahore, in the 21st year, on the 1st Jumada I, 1057 AH (4 June, 1647 AD)

They say, that Mulla Muhammad Sūfī of Mazandaran came from Persia in his youth and visited many parts of India, and then settled in Ahmadābād He became acquainted with the Mīr and instructed The Mulla's poetry is not without charm This verse comes from his Sāqīnāma

Verse

This wine has no connection with water You'd say it is the melted sun

The Mullā made an anthology called the Butkhāna It contained 60,000 verses from the Dīvāns of poets Saif Khān the governor of Gujarāt, believed in the Mullā In deference to the demand of Jahāngīr he was obliged to send him He died on the road During that period he made this quatrain

O Shāh, neither throne nor ring remain, For you only one or two yards of earth remain Empty your chest and fill the darvishes's bowl. For this is all that will remain for you

When the King heard this he felt compassion

¹ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 365

² Jahānārā the daughter of Shāh Jahān She was burnt by accident on the night of 6th April, 1644 AD, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, pp 63-66, and Yazdani's edition of 'Amal-i-Sālih, II, pp 399-403 See also Manucci I, p 219, note

³ Kāsa'-1-darvīshīn a kınd of wine cup, and also a darvīsh's skull Muhammad is mentioned as a poet of Jahangir's reign in Iqbalnama-i Jahangiri, p 308 He is also mentioned at pp 386 and 499 of Sprenger's Catalogue and in It seems he was a native of Amu, see Sprenger, p 68 and note

See also the account of the Butkhana in the Bodleian Catalogue, p 196, No 366

The work was begun in the reign of Akbar

In short, Mīr Saiyid Jalāl left two sons The first was named Saiyid Ja'far In appearance and disposition he entirely resembled his father. When the Mīr undertook the employment of Sadr, Ja'far became his successor at Shāh 'Ālam's tomb The other son Saiyid 'Alī known as Radavī Khān became the Sadr of India A separate account of him has been given (Maāṭhir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 307–309) Mīr Saiyid Jalāl married his daughter to Shaikh Farīd son of Saiyid Bahwa' of Bokhāra known as Dīndār Khān

(Khwāja) Jalāl-ud-Dīn Mahmūd Khurāsānī Bujūq (Cut-Nose)

(Vol I, pp 615-618)

In the beginning he was a servant of Mīrzā 'Askarī and went at his orders from Qandahār to collect the revenues of the province of Garmsīr 1; during this time Humāyūn was passing through that country on his way to Persia. He heard of the arrival of the Khwāja and sent Bābā Dost Bakhshi to him, so that he might take the proper course and enter into his service. The Khwāja accepted and became his servant presented everything he had in the way of money or goods, and Humāyūn made him his Majoi-domo When after the return from Persia and the takıng of Qandahār the Khwāja behaved ın a greedy manner to Mírzā 'Askarī's servants, he was handed over to Mīi Muhammad 'Alī in the year 959 AH, Humāyūn sent off Akbar to Ghaznī—which had been included in his fief-in order that he might learn the way to rulethe Khwaja was sent with him and made his adviser in all affairs that time he was continually an object of favour, and did good service As the Khwāja was a Pādshāh Qulī 2, and did not go out of his way to pay homage to other men, and as courtiers desire that everyone should flatter them, many of Humāyūn's grandees did not like him He also had the fault of jesting and saicasm, which is the worst offence in men of rank, and used to make fun of the Amīrs He said improper things under the guise of jokes—which the ignorant call joviality—and there was hardly anyone who had not been pricked by his thorns

In the beginning of Akbar's reign the Khwāja received the lank of 2,500 and was sent off to the government of Chaznī. The self-seeker group found its opportunity and incited Mun'im Khān, who was the governor of Kābul, and revived in him the old idea of vengeance Also in India Bairām Khān was incensed against him and incited Mun'im Khān to put him to death. The Khwāja heard of Mun'im Khān's antipathy and fell into anxious thoughts. He could not go to India as the King had, on account of his youth, no authority there, and Bairām Khān was all powerful. Once in Humāyūn's time, Bairam Khān had, on account of the Khwāja's improper language, taken the opportunity of seizing him in the bathroom and treated him with great ignominy. Now (that he had the power) it was clear what he would do. What violence would not his rivals have recourse to now? Nor could he remain in Chaznī

² This was the title Jālal-ud-Dīn took, and it implied that he was the King's slave and nobody else's for the anger of Mun'im Khān was apparent, but disloyalty against him was the worst of faults. Consequently, he could not see how to give up service and go elsewhere. At last Mun'im Khān sent a body of men to him, and summoned him to his presence after giving oaths and promises, and then imprisoned him. After that, though his eyes were lanced several times, his eyesight was not destroyed. Thinking that he had been blinded, Mun'im Khān released him. The Khwāja went off as quickly as possible towards. India by way of Bangash, but Mun'im Khān heard of this and sent some active men after him. The Khwāja was caught along with his younger brother Jalāl-ud-Dīn Mas'ūd and was bound and imprisoned. In the 3rd year some men were appointed one night to kill these two innocent men. Banām Khān also had sent an order for their execution. On hearing of this Akbar was inwardly indignant, but as he had not yet thrown off the veil of maction he left the punishment of evil-doers to the Almighty.

¹ A tract of country in the territory of Khurāsān, see Raverty, Tabakāt-1-Nāsırī I, p 16, note 3, etc

SHAIKH JAMAL BAKHTIYAR

(Vol II, pp 566, 567)

He was the son of Shaikh Muhammad Bakhtiyāi, and their dynasty entitled $D\bar{\imath}n$ Laqab had been living for a long time in Chandwār and Jalīsar neai the $S\bar{u}ba$ of Akbarābād (Āgra) His sister, Göhar-un-Nisā, was the Superintendent ($Sar-\bar{A}mad$) of the palaces in the harem of Akbar, and by reason of this close association Shaikh Jamāl was raised to the rank of 1,000 Envious people, who had thorns of anguish in their hearts at his advancement, secretly mixed poison in his diinking water, the Shaikh became ill, and Rūp, one of the servants of the King, who had drunk some of the same water, also fell ill When the news reached the King, he himself administered antidotes, and both of them recovered.

In the 25th year, he was ordered to accompany Ismā'īl Qulī Khān on the expedition against Niyābat Khān, who had rebelled, and did good service in the battle front In the 26th year, he was deputed with the Prince Sultan Murad against Mīrza Muḥammad Hakīm the day of arrival of the Prince at Kābul, the Shaikh with great military skill took possession of the pass of Chanartū and after fighting a battle with the forces of the Hakim Mirzā joined the army of the Prince day Akbar was offended at the smell of wine which exuded from him, and excluded him from the Court The Shaikh out of shame and pride squandered away all his property and assumed the garb of a mendicant The King becoming greatly annoyed at this action put him into prison After a time, however, his faults were forgiven and he was restored to For a time he performed faithful service, but, as he continued with his vice, he later developed tremors. In the 30th year, while returning from Zābulistān (Afghānistān), he, owing to the increase of his malady, was permitted to stay at Ludhiana In the same year, 993 A H (1585 A \hat{D}), he ² died

² His biography mainly based on the above account in $Ma\bar{a}\underline{t}\underline{h}vr$ -ul- $Umar\bar{a}$ is included in Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} ' $\bar{i}n$, I (2nd edn), pp 469, 470

¹ This biography is taken from the $Akbarn\bar{a}ma$, Text II, pp 70, 71, and Beveridge's translation II, pp 108–110 See also Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} ' $\bar{\imath}n$, I (2nd edn), p 417

(MIR) Jamāl-ud-Din ¹ Injū (Vol III, pp 358-360)

The Injus belong to the Saiyids of Shīrāz, and they are descended from Qāsim-ur-Rāsī son of Hasan son of Ibrāhīm Tabātabā'ī Husainī Mīr Shāh Maḥmūd, and Mīr Shāh Abū Turāb were in later times the most distinguished of this family By the help of Mīr Shams-ud-Dīn Asad Ullāh Shūstarī the Sadr of Irān, the first became in Shāh Tahmāsp's time Shaikh-ul-Islām of Peisia and the second Agdī-ul-Quddāt (Qādī of Qādīs) Mīr Jamāl-ud-Dīn was then cousm He came to the Deccan and was treated with respect by the rulers there, and they allied themselves with him Afterwards he entered Akbar's service, and, in the 30th year, received the rank of 600. In the 40th year, he had the rank of 1,000 They say, that by the end of Akbar's leign his rank was 3,000 When in the end of the 50th 2 year the foit of Asīrgarh was taken, 'Ādil Shāh of Bījāpūi showed a desne to give his daughter in marriage to Prince Daniyal and Akbai sent off the Mir there with the betrothal paraphernalia The Mir, in 1013, held the marriage feast on the bank of the Ganges (Godāvaiī) near Pattan and made over the bride to the Prince, and himself came to Agia He produced before the King such a tribute as never had come before from the Decean As he was intimate with Prince Sultan Salim, he obtained the rank of 4,000 when the latter ascended the throne and was exalted with the gift of drums and a flag When Sultan Khusiau fled from the Court 3, the Mir was sent off to bring about a reconciliation by offering him the territories which Mīrzā Muḥammad Hakīm had held He out of foolishness and an evil fate did not accept the offer When he was captured and brought into the Presence with his companions, Hasan Beg Badakhshi, who was the chief of Khusrau's affans, made a long story before Jahangir and said, "I was not the only associate (of Khusiau), all the Amīrs who are standing here, were partners in this business Yesterday Mīr Jamāl-ul-Dîn Înju, who came to effect a reconciliation, took from us an agreement for an appointment as a Panyhāzarī (5,000)" The Mīn changed colour and became agitated (dast pācha gasht) The Khān A'zam boldly said, "It is strange that Your Majesty lends an ear to this babbler He knows that he will be put to death, and he wants to have a number of persons killed along with himself, I am the prime mover in this business, let me be visited with every severity that I deserve" The King on hearing these words, turned away from the matter, and comforted the Mir After that the Mīr was appointed governor of Bihār In the 11th year, he had the title of 'Adud-ud-Daula 4 He presented a jewelled dagger—the ² Asir was taken in the 45th year, 1009 AD, but the marriage did not take place till four years later

⁴ Tūzuk-1-Jahāngīrī, op cit, pp 317, 318 It appears that he presented the jewelled dagger on New Year's day of the 11th year, and before he got his title

(loc cit, p 320)

¹ Blochmann's translation of A'in, I (2nd edn), pp 499-501

³ Az akhāra, apparently the author here uses a Hındüstānī word The sending of Jamāl-ud-Dīn to offer terms to Khusrau is not mentioned in the authentic Memoirs of Jahāngīr, but is mentioned in Price's Jahangir, p 86 In the authentic Memoirs (Rogers and Beveridge's translation I, p 68) Jahāngīr says he stopped Hasan Bēg when he began to talk wildly making of which he had himself superintended in Bījāpūr—on the hilt of which was a yellow ruby $(y\bar{a}q\bar{u}t)$ of perfect water and of the size of half a hen's egg—It also had rubies of good colour and old emeralds of good water and colour—Its value was reckoned at Rs 50,000—For a long time he lived on his fief in Bahrā'ich He came to the Court from there and died He¹ had many accomplishments He composed the Farhang Jahāngīrī, which is highly esteemed and reckoned as an authority. Certainly, it is of great value on account of its definitions of words and its fixing of the diacritical marks His eldest son Mīr Amīn-ud-Dīn was appointed to the Deccan along with him He was married to the daughter of 'Abd-ur-Raḥım Khān-Khānān, and obtained some promotion He died in his youth His second son Husām-ud-Dīn 2 Murtadā Khān has been separately noticed

(Mīrzā) Jānī Bēg Arghūn (the Ruler of Thatha)

(Vol III, pp 302-314)

He³ was a descendant of Shankal (or Shakal) Beg Tarkhan Shankal's father Atkū Tīmūr had bravely sacrificed his life in battle against Taqtamish Khān, Tīmūr took care of Shankal in his childhood and made him a Tarkhān Four generations intervened between Atkū and Arghūn Khān who was the son of Abāgh Khān son of Hulākū Khān Just princes distinguished some of their servants by certain privileges and gave them the name of Tarkhans The ushers (Chāwashān) had no power to prevent the Tarkhans from having access to Timur, and they and their children were not accountable so long as they did not exceed the commission of nine offences Chengiz Khān had conferred the rank upon Qashliq and Bātā 4 for having given him information about the enemy, and out of unbounded graciousness relieved them from the duty of attendance and they were excused from having to surrender the royal share in the plunder Some Tarkhāns were exalted by seven privileges first a drum (tabl), second a Tūmān-tōgh (a yak-tail standard), third a Naqqāra (kettle-drum), fourth two of his chosen men had a Qushūn $t\bar{o}g\bar{h}$, $i \ e \ a \ Chatr-t\bar{o}g\bar{h}$ (umbrella standard), fifth his $q\bar{u}i$ (weapons) were also borne—among the Moghuls no one but the ruler can carry a quiver in his hand (bar $r\bar{u}$ -i-dast), sixth he could enclose a forest as his huntingground, and whoever entered it became his servant, and seventh he was the head of his tribe In the State-hall the Amīrs sat on either side of him at a distance of a bow's length

When Tughluq Tīmūr raised Amīr Lūlājī 5 to this dignity he had two additional privileges, viz, he could appoint and dismiss officers up to the rank of one thousand (hazārī), and secondly, he and his descendants were

¹ There is a very pleasing account of Jamāl-ud-Dīn in Sir Thomas Roe's Journal, Halluyt Society, p 238, etc. He died at Āgra in 1035 A H (1626 A D) He must then have been a very old man. His dictionary the Farhang Jahāngīrī has been described by Blochmann, Journ As Soc Bengal for 1868, pp 12–15, and Ivanow, Descriptive Cat, Persian MSS, ASB (1924), p 676

² Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text III, pp 382–384

³ Taken from Akbarnāma, Text III, p 635, Beveridge's translation III, pp 973–975, and footnotes in which the various appellations are fully discussed 4 See Beveridge, loc cit, p. 973, note 5

⁴ See Beveridge, loc cit, p 973, note 5 ⁵ Būlāgī in Akbarnāma, see Beveridge, loc cit, p 974

permitted to commit nine offences with impunity, an enquiry was, however, instituted when the number of offences exceeded nine retribution for having shed blood he was set upon a white horse which was two years old A white rug was placed under the horse's feet One of the grandees of the Barlas clan interrogated him, and one of the heads of the Aıkiwat 1 clan conveyed his reply (to the Khān) opened his jugular vein (shāhrag) Those two grandees watched, one on each side of him, till he died Then they took away his body from the presence and sat down and lamented over him Khidr Khwāja raised Mir Khudādād to this dignity, and added three more distinctions First, on the marriage day, when all the grandees are on foot except a royal yasāwal who is mounted to keep order, the Tarkhān also will be on horseback Second, at the happy banquet (of the marriage), one (of Khudādād's chamberlains) stood on the Khān's right holding the cup of mare's milk (qamad) and another on the left Third, that his seal was to appear on the front of protocols, but the seal of the ruler would be placed above his Shaikh Abul Fadl says that all these favours, if they were conferred with prudence, would be acceptable to the Creator, but the provision about not inquiring into nine offences was not reasonable. Should rulers have ascertained by trial that the officer made a Tarkhan would not commit any wrong act, there was some sense in the procedure, but as for the provision about not inquiring into offences for nine generations, it would imply that the Almighty had given the ruler the power of Mīrzā 'Abdul 'Alī son of 'Abdul Khālıq was the fourth ancestor (greatgreat-grandfather) of Jānī Bēg and he obtained high rank from Sultān Mahmud son of Mīrzā Abu Sa'īd, and was made governor of Bokhārā. Shaibānī Khān Uzbeg was his servant, but when he came to the sovereignty he wickedly slew 2 his master and his five sons. The sixth was Mīrzā 'Īsā, who was sıx months old The Arghūn clan being without a head left Transoxiana and came to Khurāsān to Mīr Dhū-un-Nūn who was the Amīr-ul-Umarā and Commander-ın-Chief of Sultān Husain Mīrzā, and the guardian of his son Badī'-uz-Zamān Mīrzā, and held Qandahār in fief When Badī'-uz-Zamān rebelled against his father, Mīr Dhū-un-Nūn joined him, and gave him his daughter in marriage Afterwards, when the Mīrzā (1 e Sultān Husain Mīrzā) died, his two Badīʻ-uz-Zamān and Muzaffar Mīrzā succeeded him Khurāsān fell into confusion, and Shaibak (Shaibānī) Khān came to attack it Amīr Dhūun-Nūn was killed in the battle against him Shujā' Bēg, known as Shāh Bēg, was his son and held Qandahār In 890 AH he took the fort of Sīvī (Sēhwān) from the Jām Nızām-ud-Dīn, commonly known as Jām Nandā who was the ruler of Sindh In former times the sovereignty of Sindh belonged to the Sūmras After 500 years, during which 36 persons ruled and in the end of the reign of Sultān Muḥammad Tughluq the sovereignty came to the Summas who belonged to the tribe of Jadun They called themselves descendants of Jamshed, and each of them was called Jām The country was annexed by the Emperors of Delhī Occasionally it rebelled Accordingly, Sultān Fīrūz Shāh in the time of

See Beveridge, loc cit, p 975
In reference to the master who was killed, see Beveridge, loc cit, p 976, note 1

Pān Bhata ¹ thrice led an army into Sindh and brought him to Delhī And he made over the country to his (own) servants. Afterwards, when Pān Bhata showed signs of good conduct he was made governor of the country and sent there

When the Delhi Government became weak, the Sindh rulers allied themselves to the rulers of Gujarāt But as the clans of Shāh Bēg were fixed in Sindh, he easily took Bhakkar and Sīwistān When Jām Nandā died, there arose a dispute about the sovereignty between Jam Fīrūz his son and Jām Salāh-ud-Dīn, who was one of his sons-in-law The latter became successful through the help of Sultan Mahmud of Gujarat Jam Firūz was helpless, and took refuge with Shāh Bēg He helped him with an army, and Jām Salāh-ud-Dīn was kılled Jām Fīrūz again became successful When Bābur Bādshāh came from Kābul and besieged Qandahār, Shāh Bēg exerted himself to resist him He was not successful, and so abandoned Qandahār, and laid hold of Thatha and its dependencies. The chronogram is Kharābī 2 Sindh—the rum of Sindh (932 Å H or 1526 AD) Jām Fīrūz could not resist him He went off to Gujarāt and became an officer of Sultan Bahadur Shah Beg comed money and had the Khutba recited in that country in his own name He was a brave man and possessed of learning and of excellence The Sharh-i-'Aqa'id Nasafi 3, the Sharh Kāfiya, and the Sharh Matāh' are by him. He took Multan from the Langahs When he died in 930 A H, his son Mīrzā Shāh Husain succeeded him He repaired the fort of Bhakkar, which is situated on a height in the middle of the Panjab rivers and erected great buildings He went on an expedition to Multan Sultan Mahmud Langah who was the ruler at the time suddenly died, and was succeeded by his son Sultan Mīrzā Shāh Husam besieged the place and took it in 932 AH, and appointed a governor of his own Humāyūn, in the time of his misfortunes, came there, and was detained by Sultan Husain by subterfuges for some time at Bhakkar Afterwards, when he made Nāsir Mīrzā 4—the paternal uncle of Humāyūn—his ally by promising to make him his son-in-law, he proceeded to contend with Humayun The latter was obliged to go to Persia Sultan Husain however, did not keep faith with Nāsir Mīrzā They say Sultān Husain was overcome by a fever and could not repose except in the river He spent six months in descending the river and six months in ascending it When he was coming towards Bhakkar some distinguished Arghūns left him and raised to the throne Mīrzā 'Īsā son of 'Abdul 'Alī, the great-grandfather of

¹ See Jarrett's translation of \bar{A} ' $\bar{i}n$, II, p 345, where it is Jām Bānhatiyah It is Jām Mālītha son of Jām Ānar in De and Prashad's translation of $Tabaq\bar{a}t$ -i- $Akbar\bar{i}$, III, p 774 and Jām Bānhatiya in De and Hidayat Hosein's Tayt. III, p 513

III, p 774 and Jām Bānhatiya in De and Hidayat Hosain's Text, III, p 513

The chronogram is wrong, and should be Kharābī Sind, and not Sindh This yields 927 932 must be incorrect for Shāh Bēg died in 928, and the Maāthir-ul-Umarā a little lower down gives 930 as the date of his death Sindh is no doubt a copyist's error The true date is 928 as shown by the chronogram Shahr Sha'bān The month and the year are Sha'ban 928 A H or June, 1522 A D See Elliot, I, p 502 Much of the history of Sindh in Maāthir article is taken from the Ā'īn, see Jarrett's translation II, p 345, and some is derived from Tabaqāt i-Akbarī and Ferishta's History

³ The list of Shāh Bēg's writings is taken from Tabaqāt-i-Akbarī, see De and Prashad's translation III, p 782, note 2

⁴ Properly Yādgār Nāsır Mīrzā He was Humāyūn's cousin, being the son of Bābur's half-brother Nāsır Mīrzā The name Yādgār may imply that he was a posthumous child

Jānī Bēg, whose family had formerly been chiefs of the tribe. Shāh Husain, with the help of his fosterbrother Sultan Mahmud, who was governor of Bhakkar, fought with 'Isa A sort of peace was made, and Mīrzā 'Īsā got three shares, and Shāh Husam two When he died m 963 1 A H (1556 A D) the whole country came into the possession of Mīrzā 'Īsā He died in 975 A H A quarrel arose between his sons Muḥammad Bāqī and Jān Bābā Muhammad Bāqī, the elder brother, prevailed and became the ruler. In 993 A H (1585 A D) he was overpowered by madness and having fixed a sword hilt in the wall, drove the point into his belly and died. The Aighūns gave the sovereignty in name to his son Payinda Muhammad, but as he was a recluse and inclined to be mad, the work of administration was entrusted to his son Mīrzā 2 Jānī Bēg.

When the Panjab was for fourteen years the residence of Akbar, the Mīrzā, although he was so near, did not wait upon him. In the end of the 35th year, 999 A II (1591 A D) an order was usued to Khān-Khānān—who had been sent off from Lāhōre to take Qındahār—to send someone to Jäni Beg to warn him to be careful otherwise he was to punish him at the time of his return Khān-khānān held Multān and Bhakkar in fief He left aside the direct route by Ghazni and Bangash and took the long route with the intention of visiting his fiel. Meanwhile, as Sindh was added to his possessions, he obtained permission to conquer Sindh Mīrzā Jānī Bēg advanced 150 los with a large force to encounter him and fought a gallant battle with him on the borders of Siwistan He was defeated in Muhairam 1000 A H and compelled to make peace In the 38th year, 1001 AH, he accompanied Khan-Khanan to Lahore, and paid homage to Akbai He received the rank of 3,000, and was granted the fiel of Multān Sindh was assigned to Shāhiukh Mīrzā But at that time news came that the Aighuns to the number of 10,000 men and women, were coming up the river by boat. The boatmen and the servants were distressed by the emigration (mulk raftgī) and were tearing 3 themselves with their hands and teeth. Akbar out of his innate kındness had compassion on Mīizā Jānī Bēg, restored him to the government of Sindh. The port of Lahari (Lari Bandar) remained crown-land and the Sarkar of Siwistan-which (Jani Beg) had formerly given as pēshkash (tribute)—was given in giant to other men In the 42nd year his rank was 3,500 The Mīrzā was adoined with eloquence and wisdom, and his words and deeds showed honesty He was addicted to drink from his early years, but he did not show any evil effects from it, and was careful in his speech and acts Excess of wine made him ill, and he got convulsions and delirium He died in 1008 4 AH, in the 45th year of the reign, at Burhanpur after the taking of Asir They say, that one day at an assembly he said that if he had held such a fort as Asīi he would not surrender it for a century Tale-bearers repeated this to

¹ See De and Prashad's edition of the Tabaqāt 1-Albarī, III, p 784, note 1 year of the death of Shah Husain's death is given there as 962, but this is apparently

² See Tabaqāt-1-Albarı, III, p 786

³ Akbarnāma, Text III, p 642, Bevendge's translation III, pp 985, 986

⁴ He really died in 1009 See Albarnāma, Text III, p 783, and Bevendge's translation III, p 1172 Perhaps the author means to insinuate that Akbar poisoned him It was a charge against Akbar that he tried to poison Mīrzā Ghāzī the son of Jānī Bēg, but the latter by mistake took the poison pill himself.

Akbar and he was displeased, at this time Jānī Bēg died He had a poetical vein His pen-name was Halīmī These verses are his

Verses

Fortunate was the time when love was my companion, Sighs during the night and cries in the morning were my normal routine

Heaven's sad influence however, did not leave it to me To enjoy the fruits of sorrow which graced my life

The length of the country of Sindh 1 from Bhakkar to Kachh and Mekrān is 257 kos, its breadth on one side from Badīn to Bandar Lārī 18 100 kos, and on the other from Chandu, one of the dependencies of Bhakkar, to Bīkanīr is 60 kos On the east lies Gujarāt, to the north Bhakkar and Sīvī, to the south the ocean, and to the west Kachh and It is situated in the second climate and lies in the Longitude 102° 30' and Latitude 24° 10' Its Capital city formerly was Brahmanābād, at present it is known as Thatha and Dabīl noted for its good climate and abundance of fruits, verdure adds to the beauty of the landscape, love of ease and music are characteristic of the people, and wine and music are to be found in every house of the womenfolk whether old or young is saffron coloured education is widespread, and learned and intellectual men are commonly found, iniquity and debauchery are rampant. Nobles and plebians go over to the tomb of the Pir of Patha (who is the patron saint of the country) situated on a high area at a distance of about a league from the The Pir was a follower and successor of Shaikh Bahā'-ud-Dīn Zakarīyā, his name was Ibrāhīm and title Shāh 'Ālam. In the north the mountains form several ranges, one extends to Qandahār, and the second from the sea-coast to the town of Köhmär (also known as Rämgar) and terminates in Sīwistān, where it is known as Lakhī inhabited by an important Balüch tribe called Kalmānī, and which can raise twenty thousand horsemen A fine breed of camels is indigenous in the area. A third range runs from Sīwistān to Sīvī, it is called Khar 2, and is inhabited by a tribe called Tahmurdi that can raise a force of 300 horse and 7,000 foot. Next is another tribe of Balüch, known as Zaharī with a force of a thousand men A fine breed of horses comes from this A fourth mountain chain which touches Kachh on the one side and the Kalmānī territory on the other, is known as Kārah, it is inhabited by four thousand Balūchīs From the boundary of Multān and Achh there run in the north to Thatha high mountain ranges inhabited by numerous clans of Balūchs, while in the south from Achh to Gujarāt there extends a barren sandy mountainous tract, and also from Bhakkar to Nasarpūr and Amarkōt The people are dark and poor and are dependent on others for support In the winter season there is no need of postins (fur-lined coats), and the summer heat is moderate except in Sīwistān. Fruits of various kinds are found and mangoes are specially

¹ The following account of the topography of Sindh and the Liver-Eaters is taken almost verbatim from the account of the Sarkār of Thatha in Ā'in-i-Albarī, Text I, pp 555-557, and Jarrett's translation II, pp 336-339

² Khattar and Nohmardi in Jarrett, loc cit, p 337

In the desert a variety of melon grows wild Flowers are plentiful, and Shālī rice is abundant and of good quality In the salt and iron mines of the area people can store curded milk for as long as four months A species of fish known as Palwah 1 which is unrivalled for its taste and flavour is also found there. This area is very rich in its produce of gram, and one-third of the produce is taken over as the revenue area is divided into 5 saikārs and 53 parganahs, and the revenue is During these days the whole province of Sindh is 66,052,693 dāms 2 governed by Khudāyār Khān Latī who had for a long time farmed the Sūba of Thatha with the Sarkārs of Sīwistān and Bhakkar on behalf of the Government (of Delhi), and subsequently when by treaty the country on the other side of the Indus was ceded by the Shah of the time to Nādir Shāh, the area on his behalf continued to be administered by the said Khān.

The greatest wonder in the narrative of this land is the description of the Liver-Eater (Jigai khwāi)—they are known as Dā'ins (witches?) He is a person who can abstract a man's liver by glances and incantations Some assert that at certain times and under certain conditions he can render senseless any person he looks upon, and then takes from this person something resembling the seed of a pomegranate, which he conceals for a time in the calf of his leg During this time the person, whose liver has been abstracted, remains unconscious. And when they become hopeless of his recovery, he throws this seed on fire, and it spreads like a plate This (? the roasted seed) is divided amongst his companions and eaten, and the unconscious victim dies He gives a portion of this food and teaches the incantation to whomsoever he wishes to make a convert to the practice of this art And when he is caught practising this art, they cut open his calf and extracting the seed give it to the victim to eat, and he recovers Most of the followers of this sect are women are thrown into the river with a stone tied to them, they do not sink When it is desired to deprive any of them of this power, they brand both sides of his head and all joints, and filling the eyes with salt suspend him for forty days in a subterranean 3 chamber, and give him food without salt, and some of them recite incantations over him During this period he is known as Dhahjiah 4 Although he has lost his power, he is still able to recognise (a liver-eater), and these pests are captured through He can restore people to health by incantations, and by administering certain drugs

Janish Bahadur

(Vol. I, pp 511, 512.)

He was one of the $Yakah\bar{a}$ (single-fighters, \imath e , paladins or champions) of Mīrzā Muhammad Hakīm After the death of the Mīrzā he came with

¹ Palwah or Palla of Sindh is the famous Hilsa fish of Bengal name is Hilsa ilisha (Ham Buch)

² According to Jarrett, loc cit, p 339, the revenue was 66,15,393 (or var 66,15,293) dāms or Rs 1,65,383-13-2

ویر رمیں in the Text is apparently a mistake for بر رمیں

⁴ Dohachrah m Jarrett, op cit, p 339

the Mīrzā s sons to Akbar's Court in the 30th year, and received a suitable appointment together with a robe of honour, a horse and a sum of money. At the same time he went off with Zain Khān Kōka to settle the affairs of the Yūsufza'īs. When the royal army was defeated, and the Kōkaltāsh wished to kill himself, Jāmsh Bahādur seized his ieign and turned him back, willing or unwilling. Afterwards, he took part in the affair of the Tārīkīs (the Raushanīs), first with Kunwai Mān Singh, secondly with Sādiq Khān, thirdly in assisting Zain Khān, and performed various services. In the 35th year when Khān-Khānān was appointed to take the fort of Qandahār, he was one of those who was deputed to accompany him. As that affair was delayed and Khān-Khānān was bidden to take Thatha, Jāmsh went there and did good service. In the 38th year he retuined to the Court with Khan-Khānān and paid his respects. Afterwards he was appointed to the Decean, and was finally in Rāmpūrī. In the 46th year corresponding to 1009 A.H. (1600-1601 A.D.) he dicd 1 of a pain in his belly. After him, his brothers got a jāgīr and served in that province His son was Shujā't 2 Khān Shādī Bēg, of whom a separate account 3 has been given

Jan Nithar Khan

(Vol. I, pp 527-529)

He was a well-known officer, and his name was Kamāl-ud-Dīn Husain He was a faithful follower of Prince Shah Jahan from his early days, and was the head of his confidential and loyal servants. When Banaisi, the Inspector of elephants in Jahangir's time, who in the speed of his travel exceeded even that of the heavens, started at the instance of Yamin-ud-Daula, with the news of the death of Jahangir Badshah, and from Kashmir in twenty days reached Junair in the Decean on 19 Rabi' I, 1037 A H (28 November, 1627 AD), and conveyed the news of the death of the Emperor From there, as the resolutions of Shah Jahan in the matters of government did not brook delay or negligence, he after three days' mourning on the 23rd of the said month started for the Capital city of Agra by way of Gujarāt And he despatched Jān Nithār Khān 4 to Khān Jahan Lodī at Burhānpūr with a faimān conferring various favours and concessions, and confirming him, as hithertofore, in his mansab, jāgīr and the Sūbadārī of the Deccan The object was to obtain informajāgīr and the Sūbadārī of the Decean tion regarding his intentions after winning him over by royal favour, more particularly as his insincerity and faithlessness were well known As fortune and prosperity had for saken him, he on receipt of the farman showed his indifference, and sent back Jan Nithar Khan without any The latter reached the royal Presence at Ahmadābād, and was honoured on the day of the audience with the grant of the rank of 2,000, 1,000 horse, and the gift of a flag and drums, an elephant and Rs 15,000 ın cash And in the 3rd year, on the death of Divanat Khan he was appointed as the officer-in-charge 1 of the fort of Ahmadnagar, and was further favoured with the grant of Rs 40,000 as a contribution for expenses And in the 4th year, on airival at the Court, he was exalted by an increase of 500 with 500 horse, and appointed as faujdār of the Lakhī Jangal And he was later transferred to Sīwistān as the faujdār When in the 11th year, Qandahāi was conquered by the loyal officers, the sūbadārs and faugdārs of the neighbourhood with auxiliary forces reached there for help Jan Nithar Khan also hastened from his area, and took an active part in the fighting, and in the company of Qulij Khān Sūbadār of Qandahār, he rendered valuable services in the conquest of the fort of Bust In the 12th year, another 500 horse were added to his Mansab, and on transfer from Sīwistān to Bhakkar he took up the government of the area in succession to Yūsuf Muḥammad Khān in the same year he died

¹ Blochmann's translation of A'in, I (2nd edn), pp 537, 538

⁴ Id, p 538 ³ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 662-664

⁴ Iqbālnāma 1-Jahāngīrī, pp 298, 299, Khafī Khān, I, p 391, and Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, p 60

The Khan made a large harem by forcing most of the Zamindars of the area of the tribes of Sīmja and Sūdh to give their daughters to him, and in this way was able so successfully to carry out his policy (of control), that in a short time no trace of refractory or corruptive elements was left After his death, all the Zamīndārs took away then daughters from his house by force Perhaps this happened in Bhakkar (the boundaries of which adjoin those of Sīwistān), for as is well known² he did not die in the province of Sīwistān His son Mīrzā Hafīz Ullāh received, in view of his claims as a Khānazād, 10yal favours from his childhood In the reign of Aurangzīb he was exalted with the title of Basālat \underline{Kh} ān, and was the $Ba\underline{kh}$ shī of the army of Prince 'Azam Shāh at Bījāpūr and for a time he remained in this office They say, that he used to drink constantly and so died

(Mahārāo) Jānōjī Jaswant Nimbālkar 3

(Vol III, pp 806, 807)

He was the son of Rāo Ranbhā 4 who in Aurangzīb's time held high office, and was appointed to the Deccan As he (Jānōjī) had had frequent disputes with the officers of Rāja Shāhū Bhōnsle, they, after making agreements with Husain 'Alī Khān made accusations against Jānōjī Husam 'Alī Khān in order to please them managed by guile to imprison He was released at the request of Muhammad Anwar Khān at the time when Nizām-ul-Mulk Āsaf Jāh went to the Deccan from Mālwa and crossed the Narbada, and was appointed to the auxiliary force at Burhānpūr He, who was in distressed circumstances (?) (lit had a sore on his liver), was introduced to Āṣaf Jāh by Muḥammad Ghiyāth

History of Maratha People, p 73, etc

4 He is apparently the Ranbhājī Deccanī mentioned in 'Ālamgīrnāma, pp 249,

 ¹ Khafī Khān, I, p 429
 2 This Jān Nithār Khān should not be confused with Yādgār Bēg, Lashkar Khān otherwise known as Jān Nithār Khān who was sent an ambassador to the Shāh of Persia, see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, III, pp 168-171, and Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 201, 202 In the latter work no distinction is made between the

Banālkar in the Text appears to be a lapsus calami for Nimbālkar Nimbālkars of Phaltan are well known in Marhatta history, see Kincaid and Parasanis,

Khān Bahādur, and entered his service In the battles with 'Alam 'Alī Khān and Mubāriz Khān 'Imād-ul-Mulk he distinguished himself and received the rank of 7,000 with 7,000 horse After Asaf Jāh's death he held a suitable rank and had hereditary estates He was a good manager of property, and developed the estates He collected a suitable force and distinguished himself in battles As, he held high rank, he acted as a go-between for the Marhattas In the time of Nāsir Jang the Martyr, he received the title of Jaswant, and he did good service in his company in the Phulchary battle, though it was rumoured that he had a share in Nāsır Jang's death 1 He died in 1176 AH (1762-63 AD) His eldest son Anand Rāo Jaiwant who was distinguished for excellence died during his lifetime At present his second son Māhā Rāo, and Rão Ranbhā the son of Jaiwant hold the fiefs, and are in government service

Jān Sipār Khān

(Vol I, pp 535-537)

He was the third son of Mukhtar Khan of Sabzawar His name was At the time when Aurangzib left the Deccan with the Mir Bahādur Dil intention of obtaining the sovereignty and proceeded towards the Capital, Jān Sipār Khān accompanied the all-conquering royal stirrups with his elder brother Mīr Shams-ud-Dīn Mukhtār Khān In the battles which that fortunate King waged against his foes, Jan Sipar Khan showed fidelity After the battle with Dārā Shikōh he obtained the rank of 1,000 with 500 horse and received the title of Jan Sipar Khan that he was appointed to provincial duties $(K\bar{a}ih\bar{a}-i-b\bar{e}r\bar{u}n)\bar{a}t$ or outside duties), and always behaved well In the 24th year, he was made governor of the fort of Bidar After the conquest of Haidarābād he was made faujdār of Zafrābād When Aurangzīb returned after settling that newly conquered country and encamped at Bīdar-Zafrābād, Abūl Hasan the ruler of Telang—who, though his addiction to luxury and pleasure had during the fifteen years of his rule never gone farther from Haidarābād than Muhammadnagar Gölkonda, which is one kos distant, and for whom even daily riding was difficult—prayed that he be allowed And in truth Aurangzīb also disliked his disposition which was the very opposite of his own Accordingly, he did not deal with him as he had dealt with Sikandar the ruler of Bījāpūr after its conquest He did not even summon him to his Presence, and from the first day kept him under surveillance Accordingly, Jan Sipar Khan, who was faujdār of Bīdar, was ordered to convey him to Daulatābād 3 so that he might spend the rest of his life in comfort with his dependants. After that the said Khān was made the governor of Haidarābād which was a rich and well-inhabited country, especially when the Qutb-Shāhī dynasty had laboured to improve it He spent a long time in that country and

¹ Nāsır Jang was kılled on 17 Muharram, 1164 A H (16th December, 1750 A D), vide Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text III, p 855 and Cambridge History of India, IV,

² Aurangzīb began by being generous to Sikandar (Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, pp 280, ^{282),} but he afterwards imprisoned him He died three years afterwards

3 See Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, IV, pp 384, 385, for Abūl Hasan's capture and his transfer to Daulatābād Also Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 309 administered it well. Since Shāyista Khān Amīr-ul-Umarā and 'Āqil Khān Khawāfī few have exerted such power for so long a time. He died in the 45th year 1113 A H (1701 A D). His eldest son was Rustam Dil, of whom a separate account 2 has been given

JAN SIPAR KHAN KHWAJA BABA.

(Vol I, p 530)

He was the brother's son of Naqīb Khān 3 of Qazwīn In the time of Jahāngīr he was given the title of Jān Bāz Khān and attained the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse. In the 1st year of Shāh Jahān's reign he was confirmed in his former rank, and in the 3id year he was raised to the rank of 1,500 with 600 horse. For a time he was faujdār of Mandsūr, and in the 18th year corresponding to 1055 AH (1645 AD) he died From the list (filius) at the end of the second decennium in the Shāhnāma 4 it appears that he obtained the title of Jān Sipār Khān and the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 horse, but the date of this occurrence has not been recorded

JAN SIPAR KHAN TURKAMAN.

(Vol I, pp 516-519)

His name was Jahangir Beg and he was one of Jahangir's officers. He was long employed in the Deccan, and by his zeal and bravery he did valuable services in the cause of the King's government affairs of the Deccan were not improved by Prince Paiviz in spite of his long stay in Burhanpui and appointment of leading officers, and large armies, and the expenditure of much treasure, on the contrary the rulers of the Deccan shook off the rope of obedience, for example, Malik 'Ambar who took entire possession of the Bālāghāt estates, it became necessary in the 11th year to appoint Prince Sultan Khuriam 5-who after his victories received the title of Shah Jahan-to settle the affairs of the His rising Foitune was dreaded by the Deccanis and they bowed their humble and submissive shoulders beneath the burden arms with which they interfered with the imperial estates were shortened, and they had to pay tributes and the government revenue 12th year the Prince distributed his companions and the officers of the Deccan to the thanas and faujdaris, as he judged proper Jahangir Beg was favoured and sent off to administer the thana of Jalnapui which is 25 kos (East) from Daulatābād and was at that time the chief thana in Balaghat, and many royal officers were appointed there in accordance with their ranks Later some of the treacherous Deccanis

¹ $Ma\bar{a}thir$ -i-' $\bar{A}lamg\bar{i}r\bar{i}$, p 439, where it is stated that $J\bar{a}n$ Sipār $\underline{Kh}\bar{a}n$ the $N\bar{a}zim$ of Haidarābād died in that year

² Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 324-328

<sup>See Blochmann's translation of A'in, I (2nd edn), pp 496-498
This is apparently the Bādshāhnāma, II, p 762, but the number of horse there</sup>

⁵ For the Deccan campaigns, see Beni Prasad, History of Jahāngīr, pp 266-279 and Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 19-21 Also see Rogers and Beveildge's translation of Tūzuk-i Jahāngīrī, I, pp 329, 337

proceeded to break their engagements and to take possession of the royal estates Nor were they content with the Balaghat, but even raised their standards as far as Burhanpur The Plince was compelled to undertake a second expedition to the Deccan and in the beginning of the 13th year of Jahāngīr's reign he came to Burhānpūr An army was appointed to chastise Nizām Shāh and Malik 'Ambar After much fighting and severe battles, in every one of which the Prince's forces were victorious Malik 'Ambar once-more witnessed the Fortune of the Prince and turned aside from his evil ways and entered by the door of repentance, and stretched the hand of supplication towards the skirt of a desire for peace Every one of the leaders remained on one of the estates of Bālāghāt till the end of the rains, and Jān Sipār Khān with 3,000 horse remained at Bir When a new division was made of the thanas he received an increase of rank and was made the thanadar of Bir ın the 19th year a battle took place at Bhātūrī 1—which is a dependancy of Ahmadnagar-between Malık 'Ambar and Mulla Muhammad Lärī the Commander-in-chief and Vakīl-us-Saltanat of Bījāpūr, and whom 'Adıl Shāh its ruler both in verbal and written messages addressed as Mullā Bābā, the Mullā was killed by fate's decree, his army was thrown into disorder, and the royal officers who had been appointed to assist the Mulla were seized with the exception of Khanjar Khan who escaped to Ahmadnagar, and Jan Sipar Khan who conveyed himself to his own fief and strengthened the fort of Bir Shortly before Jahangir's death, Khan Jahān Lodi handed back Bālāghāt to Nızām Shāh and wrote to the imperial officers, who were in the thanas, that they should make over the estates to the agents of Nızām Shāh and come to Burhānpūr Khān obeyed the order and joined Khān Jahān A few days had not elasped when the report of the accession of Shāh Jahān gave fresh joy to the whole of India, and Jan Sipar Khan flew on the wings of swiftness, and having donned the pilgrim's dress paid his homage at the commencement of the reign² He obtained an increase of 1,500 Dhāt and 1,000 horse and so had the rank of 4,000 Dhat, 3,000 horse and the gift of a flag and drums In succession to Jahangir Quli Khan he was sent to take up the governorship of Allahabad But according to the rule of the revolving heavens-that every good is allied with evil, and every joy is mixed with grief—the wine of success in this instance was followed by the crapulousness of failure, and the limpid waters of joy had at the bottom a sediment of sorrow The cup was no sooner filled than it was emptied, and the roll not finished without the pages being turned over, in this very year did the cup of his life overflow His son Imām ³ Qulī held the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse In the 3rd year of Shāh Jahān's reign he was in company with A'zam Khān 4, the governor of the Deccan, when one day in Bālāghāt the 'Ādil-Shāhī and Nīzām-Shāhī troops fell upon their rear Multafat Khan, the leader of the army, left the flank exposed, and Imam Quli and some others bravely sacrificed

¹ See Bεnı Prasad, op cit, p 382 ² Bādshāhnāma, I, p 185 Hıs rank was, however, increased to 4,000 Dhāt and 4,000, not 3,000 horse, and in addition to the grant of a flag and drums he was given a Khil'at, and a jewelled dagger, and appointed governor of Allahābād

<sup>Bādshāhnāma, I, pp 244, 304, 305
Irādat Khān the Mīr Bakhshī, who was m general command of the Deccan</sup> their lives, and gathered eternal fame Jan Sipar Khan also had a brother named Murtada Quli He had the rank of 1,000 with 600 horse He died in the Decean in the 10th year

(Mahārāja) Jaswant Singh Rāthör

(Vol III, pp. 599-604.)

He was the son of Rāja Gaj Singh In the 11th year of Shāh Jahān's reign he came with his father to the Court, and succeeded 1 him after the This was because, contrary to the custom of the other latter's death Rājpūts-according to which the eldest son succeeds-the Rāthors choose the son whose mother was the special favourite of the father Accordingly the King made Jaswant Singh his father's heir although Amar Singh was the elder son, and gave him a robe of honour, a decorated dagger and the rank of 4,000 with 4,000 horse, and the title of Raja in accordance with his father's will, and also gave him a flag, drums, a hoise with golden saddle and an elephant from the royal heid In the 15th year he was awarded a special Khil'at a jewelled dagger with Phūl Katārah, a horse with golden trappings, and an elephant from the royal herd and was sent to Qandahāi in attendance on Plince Dārā Shikōh, and in the 18th when the King moved from Agra to Lahore, he was ordered to take charge of the city till the arrival of Sharkh Farid son of Qutb-ud-Dīn Khān Kōka, and afterwards join the Court In the 21st year his rank was 5,000 with 5,000 hoise, of which 3,000 were dū-aspa and sih-aspa (two-horse and three-horse) At the end of the same year the rest of his troopers were also made $d\bar{u}$ -aspa and sih-aspa. In the 22nd year Prince Muhammad Aurangzīb Bahādur went to Qandahār which was besieged by the Persians, but according to orders stayed in Kābul When in the end of the same year the King came to Kābul, Jaswant Singh paraded 2,000 of his troopers before him In the 26th year his rank was 6,000 with 5,000 dū-aspa and sih-aspa troopers, and this was increased in the 29th year, he also received the title of Mahārāja As his marriage with the daughter of Sarab Deo Sesodia had been arranged in the same year, he was permitted to go to Mathurā and afterwards to his home at Jodhpūr In the beginning of the 32nd year when news of improper movements on the part of Murad Bakhsh and of the departure of Prince Muhammad Aurangzīb Bahādur from the Deccan was received, Dārā Shikōh in view of his own interests appointed two armies to block the way of his two The Mahārāja had his rank increased to 7,000 with 7,000 horse and was appointed governor of Mālwa in succession to Shāyista Khān and received one hundred horses, one with golden trappings, an elephant and a female elephant and a lac of rupees He arrived at Ujjain, and though Aurangzib endeavoured to conciliate him he was haughty and After fighting and after some Rājpūts had been killed and others had fled, Jaswant Singh thought himself lucky to have saved his life In the first year of Aurangzīb's reign when the royal army came to the

¹ See Tod, Annals and Antiquities of Rajasthan (1914 edn.) II, p 34, for an account of the ceremony of disinheritance of Amar Singh, the name is written as Umra in that work

Sutles in pursuit of Dārā Shikōh, Jaswant Singh, through the mediation of some officers, was pardoned and paid his respects He was allowed to remain at Delhī till the end of the pursuit, and in the battle with

Shuiā' he commanded the right wing

As he had been accustomed to the favouritism of Shāh Jahān and did not see any such in Aurangzīb, he felt hurt, and eventually from foolishness joined the malcontents and removed the veil from the face of his actions. One night he left his station empty and went home with In the turmoil some of the baggage of Prince Muhammad Sultān and of the King and the officers and soldiers was plundered was a great shock to the troops After the end of the battle with Shujā' the King moved towards Amer At this time, as he was hopeless of the King's, favour, he intrigued with Dārā Shikōh who was coming to his country from Gujarāt Meanwhile he was by the intervention of Mīrzā Rāja Jai Singh made hopeful of pardon, and withdrew from Dārā Shikōh's party As on account of his frequent faults he could not approach the King, he was, in his absence $(ah\bar{a}'ib\bar{a}na)$ confirmed in his old rank and given the title of Mahārāja, and made governor of Ahmadābād (Gujarāt) In the 4th year, he in accordance with orders went with all his troops to assist Shāvista Khān in the Deccan In the 5th year he was removed from the government of Gujarat and served for 2 or 3 years in the Deccan, partly with Shāyista Khān but chiefly with Prince Muḥammad Mu'azzam who had been appointed governor in the room of Shāyista Khān exerted himself to the utmost of his power in laying waste Shiva's country and in the end of the 7th year he came to the Court When in the 9th year the friendship between the King and Shāh 'Abbās II of Persia changed to enmity, Prince Muhammad Mu'azzam, who had been appointed to Kābul before the imperial army marched, was accompanied by Jaswant Singh When news came of the death of the King of Persia, and the Prince in accordance with orders returned from Lahore, Jaswant Singh also returned. In the 10th year he went to the Deccan in attendance on the same Prince, and in the 14th year he was made thanadar of Jamrud in the province of Afghānistān In the 22nd year corresponding to 1089 A D (December, 1678) he died 1 On account of his wealth and the number of his followers he was at the head of the Rājas of India, but as

In Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 171, it is stated that Jaswant Singh died in the city of Kābul and gives the date (p 171) as 6 Dhul Qa'da 1089 AH, 20 December, 1678 AD, Jaswant Singh's appointment to the thānadārī of Jamrūd is noticed in the same work on p 109 Manucci also refers to Jaswant Singh's death

(II, p 233)

¹ This is rather a meagre account of Jaswant Singh It tells us nothing of his career during the last eight years of his life Nor does it discuss the genuineness of Ajīt Singh Tod does not give many more facts though he devotes several pages to Jaswant Singh According to him Jaswant Singh lost two other sons during his lifetime, and he died not in 1678, but in 1681 1678, however, seems correct his lifetime, and he died not in 1678, but in 1681—1678, however, seems correct though Beale puts the event in December of that year, and Orme in the beginning of the year It occurred at or near Kābul Jaswant Singh's being made a Mahārāja is mentioned in Khāfī Khān, II, p 98 The account of his death and of the flight of the Rājpūts with his son Ajīt Singh is given on p 259, etc Orme in his Historical Fragments, p. 252, gives a translation of a remarkable letter said to have been addressed by Target Singh is given on p 259. dressed by Jaswant Singh to Aurangzīb about the capitation tax, but it is doubtful if it was really written by Jaswant Singh For a detailed account see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, III, pp 324–334, and pp 351, 352 for the parentage of Ajīt Singh

he had been brought up luxuriously and had lived apart ¹ from the ups and downs of existence he did not possess the art of government Outside of the walls of Aurangābād, towards the market place, there are a ward and a tank which bear his name There are also the remains of a stone building on the bank of the tank Kunwar Prithī Rāj his eldest son died in his lifetime. After his death two sons were born to two of his widows. One soon followed his father. The second is Muḥammadī ² Rāj who became a Muhammadan, and was brought up in the palace. Another son, who his tribesmen say was conveyed to his home after many struggles, was made his heir and is Ajīt Singh. A separate account ³ of him has been given

(Rāja) Jujhār Singh Bundēla

(Vol II, pp 214-218)

He was the son of Rāja Bīr Singh Dēo After his father's death he had the title of Rāja and received a suitable mansab At the end of Jahangir's reign he held the rank of 4,000 with 4,000 horse. In the first year of the reign of Shāh Jahān he did homage and received a robe of honour, a jewelled dagger with Phūl Katārah, a flag and drums When Shah Jahan looked into the affairs, Jujhar Singh who had, without any exertion, got much wealth which his father had accumulated, became suspicious in accordance with the saying that "The faithless are fearful", and relying upon his forts and his jungles fled at midnight from Agra to Orcha (Ondcha in Text), and set about strengthening his fortresses and collecting troops Shah Jahan sent Mahabat Khan and many other officers against him and an order was issued to Khān Jahān Lōdī the ruler of Mālwa to enter his country from the south by the route of Chanderi. 'Abdullāh Khān also received an order to proceed from his fief of Qanauj along with Bahādur Khān Rōhila and others from the east of Orcha. When all three forces arrived near Orcha they carried on a hot war, and 'Abdullah Khan, Bahadur Khan and Pahar Singh Bundela took the fort Jujhār Singh was helpless and sought an interview with Mahābat Khān and prayed for forgiveness of his offences The King accepted his prayer, and Jujhār Singh in the 2nd year came to the Court with the Khān who put a string round his neck and holding the two ends in his hands produced him before Shāh Jahān He presented one thousand mohurs and 15 lacs of rupees, and forty elephants

When Shāh Jahān resolved to proceed to the Deccan in the 3rd year to chastise Khān Jahān Lödī and to lay waste the territory of the Nizām-ul-Mulk—who had protected him—and appointed three armies to devastate the country, he wrote to Jujhār Singh to act along with A'zam Khān the governor of the Deccan and gave him the title of Rāja Afterwards,

¹ Az lam u ziyād waridāt ba yaksū zīst namūda, which may be translated as he showed an existence apart from great or little circumstances. Apparently the meaning is that as he had always been affluent and powerful, he did not know the ups and downs of life

² He died of Plague in the 32nd year, 1100 A H (1688-89 A D), vide Maāthir-

³ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text III, pp 755-760, Beveridge's translation, pp. 173-

when Yamin-ud-Daula was appointed to command the Deccan forces, he (Jujhār Singh) and the other mansabdārs were placed in the rear When the provinces of the Deccan were entrusted to Mahābat Khān, Juihār Singh after staying some time with Mahābat Khān left his son Bikramājīt in charge of his troops and took leave and went home After returning home he 1 in the 8th year, at the dictates of his own seditious nature, led an army against Bhīm Narāin 2 the Zamīndār of Chūrāgarh which is the Capital of Garh Katankā 8 He induced him by oaths and promises to surrender, and then put him to death with a large number of his kindred He also took possession of his fort and his property When Shāh Jahān heard of this event, he ordered that Jujhār Singh should surrender the land to the government, otherwise an equal amount of land would be taken from his own territory Also that he should send 10 lacs of rupees of Bhīm Narāin's property to the Court On hearing of this from his agent Jujhar Singh wrote to his son Bikramaıit, who was in the Deccan, to take to flight and come home Three armies under the command of Saiyid Khān Jahān Bārah, Fīrūz Jang Bahādur and Khān Daurān marched off to punish him Prince Awangzīb and Shāyısta Khān also supported them When the imperial armies had nearly arrived they first attacked Dhāmūnī and then Chūrāgarh Jushar Singh could find no resting place, he went with his goods to the territory of Rāja of Dēogarh The imperialists pursued him, and there were frequent fights All his money and ornaments fell into the hands of the Ghāzī warriors He himself crept into the jungles with his eldest The Gonds killed both of them in 1044 A H (1634-35 son Bıkramājīt AD) Khān Daurān on hearing of this cut off the heads of both and brought them to Fīrūz Jang who sent them to the King along with a kror of rupees from Juihār Singh's buried treasures 4

K

Kākar 'Alī Khān

(Vol III, pp 148, 149)

He was one of Humāyūn's paladıns In the year when Humāyūn set out to conquer India, Kākar 'Alī Khān attended on his stirrups the reign of Akbar he had the rank of $\overline{2,000}$ In the 11th year (973 A H) when Mahdī Qāsım Khān the Ta'luqadār of Garh made up his mind to go to Hıjāz without Akbar's permission, Akbar appointed Kākar 'Alī Khān and others to that territory In the battle with Ibrāhīm Husain Mīrzā which took place near the town of Sarnāl⁵ in Gujarāt, Kākar 'Alī Khān was one of the fighters Afterwards he was appointed to accompany Mun'ım Bēg Khān-Khānān to the Eastern districts One day when the imperial army was besieging Patna, Kākar 'Alī Khān and his

Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 95
 More correctly Narāyan, but so in Text

³ Garh Katankā or Gondwana, see Imperial Gazetteer, XII, pp 321-326

For a detailed account see Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 79-89

Middle of Sha'bān, 980 AH (December, 1772 AD), vide Ā'īn, Blochmann's translation I (2nd edn), pp 353, 447 son attacked the enemy and distinguished themselves They slew many of the foe and were themselves slain, in the year 980 1 A H (1573 A D)

KAKAR KHAN, OF KHAN JAHAN KAKAR

(Vol III, pp. 152, 153)

He was one of the Wālā-Shāhīs (body-guard) of Shāh Jahān After the accession he obtained the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse, and a present In the 3rd year when the Royal Court was established in the Deccan he, along with Raja Gaj Singh 2, was appointed to the forces which were sent to chastise Khan Jahan Lodi, and to ravage the territory of the Nizām-ul-Mulk In the 8th year he was appointed 3 along with Saivid Khān Jahān Bāiah to punish Juhjār Singh Bundēla In the 10th year his rank was increased 4 by 500 with 600 horse, and in the 13th his rank became 2,000 with 1,000 horse, and he was granted the title of Kākar Khān Afterwards he was appointed to the fort of Qandahār, and he stayed there a long time When in the 22nd year the King of Persia came and took the fort 5, he went with Khawāşs Khān the governor, and waited upon the Shah He received permission and returned to India. Along with Sultan Aurangzib Bahadur, who had been appointed for the second time to the expedition, he was sent (to Qandahār) In the 26th year he went there in attendance on Sultan Dara Shikoh 6 No more account of his life has been noticed

KAMAL KHAN GAKKHAR

(Vol III, pp 144–148)

He was the son of Sultān Sārang younger brother of Sultān Ādam The Gakkhars are a large tribe and dwell between the Jhelum and the Indus in the folds of the hills and inhabit caves, etc. In the time of Shaikh Zain-ud-Din of Kashmir a Ghazni officer named Malik Kid, who was connected with the ruler of Afghanistan, came and took the country out of the hands of the Kashmīrīs He brought under his sway the whole tract from the Nīlāb (Indus) to the slopes of the Sıwālıks and the borders of Kashmir Though other 7 tribes such as the Khattar, Januth (2), Aiwan (Awan), Chatarnih, Bhukiyal 8, Jhapa (Chibh) and

¹ In Albarnāma, Text III, p 82, Beveridge's translation III, p 115, the siege of Patna is stated to have been in the 19th year or 981 A H (1574 A D)

² Bādshāhnāma, I, p 294 ³ Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 97

⁴ Id, p 250

⁵ The Qandahār fort was surrendered to Shāh 'Abbās II on February 11, 1649, see Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, p 225

⁶ For the expeditions of Aurangzīb and Dārā Shikōh, see Banarsi Prasad, op cit, pp 226-235, and Cambridge History of India, IV, pp 204-206

7 This account is partly taken from Albarnāma, Text I, pp 323, 329, Beveridge's translation I, p 559, and partly from the Tabaqāt-i-Akbarī, De's translation II, pp 267, 268 For correct names of tribes, see Delmerick in Journ As Soc

II, pp 267, 268 For correct names of tribes, see Delmerick in Journ As Soc Bengal, XL, pt 1, 1871, pp 67 et seq

8 Apparently the correct spelling is Bhugiyāl, descendants of Sultān Bhuga Elliot, VI, p 309, note, and Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī, p 47, Rogers and Beveridge's translation I, p 97

Maikwal live there, they are all subject to the Gakkhars When Malik Kid died, his son Malik Kalan succeeded him After him his son Nabīr obtained the chiefship, and after him Tatar became the head of the tribe At the time of the conquest of India he did good service under Emperoi Bābur especially in the battle with Rānā Sāngā He had two sons, Sultan Sarang and Sultan Adam, and the first of them obtained the chief-He had great contests with Shei Shah and Salim Shah, and fought He made many Afghans prisoners and sold them into slavery. Sher Shah with the object of chastising this tribe founded the fortress of Rohtas 1, and afterwards he in accordance with the dictates of Fate managed to get him (Sārang) into his power and put him to death imprisoned his son Kamal Khan in the fort of Gwaliyai, yet he could not conquer the country The chiefship of the Gakkhai tribe fell to Sultan Salim Khān too made great efforts in order to reduce the country, but did not succeed

They say, that Salīm Khān on one occasion ordered all the prisoners in the fort of Gwaliyar to be put to death. A pit was made under the prison and filled with gunpowder The explosion blew the prison and the prisoners into the air, and their limbs were scattered. Kamal Khan was there, but the Almighty power (Qādir-i-pur-Kamāl) preserved him from the calamity No whiff of the fire reached the corner of the room When Salīm Shāh heard of this Divine protection, he where he was took oaths from Kamāl Khān and set him free He went home, and as his uncle Sultan Adam had got full power, Kamal Khan and his brother Sa'īd Khān had to spend their days in affliction, and in a pretence of submission In the beginning of Akbar's reign Kamāl Khān came to Jālandhar 2 and introduced himself, and was made an officer good service in the battle with Hēmū and at Mānköt, and was rewarded by favours In the 3rd year he was appointed to put down the Miyanah Afghāns who were making a disturbance in Sirōnj in Mālwa He went against them with a suitable force, and was victorious Akbar gave him the towns of Karra 3 and Fathpur Hanswa, etc., in fief, and in the 6th year on the occasion of the war with the son of Mubariz Khan 'Adli-whom the Afghans had raised up-Kamal Khan brought a well-equipped force and shared in the campaign with Khān Zamān Shaibānī He fought bravely in the battle, and Akbar on hearing of this remarked that Kamāl Khān had done his duty and that it was time to reward him, and that he would give him whatever he wished When he came to the Court in the year 970 AD he represented to the courtiers that in his love for his native land he hoped that he would get his father's lands, which through evil fate his uncle had taken possession of Akbar wrote to Khān Kalān and the other Panjab officers to divide the Gakkhar territory into two portions and to give one to Sultan Adam and the other to Kamal If Sultan Adam resists this order by disobedience, they are to punish him When Sultan Adam was informed of this order he and his son Lashkari-who managed his father's affairs-refused obedience,

¹ For the construction of the Fort of Rohtās, see Qanungo, Sher Shah, pp 405, 406, also pp 233-235 for his campaign against the Gakkhars Also see Hidayat Hosain's edition of Tārīkh-1-Shāhī, p 205, note 2

² Akbarnāma, Text II, pp 22, Beveridge's translation II, pp 38

³ Akbarnāma, Text II, pp 78, 191, 192, Beveridge's translation II, pp 119,

²⁹⁷

and the Panjāb troops along with Kamāl Khān entered the Gakkhar territory and fought a great battle at the township of Hīlān¹ There was a severe engagement and Sultān Ādam was made a prisoner His son Lashkarī fled to the hills of Kashmīr, but he too was made prisoner The whole of the Gakkhai territory which none of the former rulers of India had been able to subdue was conquered and made over to Kamāl Khān Sultān Ādam and his son were also delivered up to him He put Lashkarī to death and kept Sultān Ādām in confinement till he died

It is stated in the $Tabaq\bar{a}t$ -i- $Albar\bar{i}$ ² that Kamāl Khān attained the rank of 5,000, and that he was distinguished for bravery and generosity It is also stated that he died in 970 Å H (1562-63 Å D) which was the very year of his success God alone knows what is true!

KAMGAR KHAN

(Vol III, pp 159, 160)

He was the second son of Ja'far Khān He received a suitable rank in the beginning of Aurangzīb's reign In the 7th year his rank was increased to 1,000 with 200 horse and he was granted the title of Khān In the 10th year he became Bakhshī of the Ahadīs in succession to Lutf Ullah Khan In the 12th year he was appointed Dāroaha of the Jewel market, and in the 19th year was dismissed for some reason, but in the 21st year he was again received into favour and made Master of Works (Buyūtāt 3) in place of Rahmat Khān In the 22nd year when the King went to Ajmēr, he was made governoi of the fort of the Capital In the 24th year he was made Reporter (Wāqi'a khwān) in place of Ashraf Khān, and in the 25th year, on the death of 'Abd-ur-Rahim Khān he became 3rd Bakhshī In the 27th year he became Master of the Horse in succession to Mughal Khān and in the 28th year Dārōgha of the jilau (retinue) and in the 30th year Superintendent of the Ghuslkhāna 4 in succession to Bahrahmand Khān In the end of the same year, on the death of Muḥammad 'Alī Khān he became Khān-1-Sāmān b Afterwards, he was removed and in the 33rd year was ordered to proceed with a body of men to convey Muhammad Mu'azzam's ladies to Shāhjahānābād (Delhī) In the 43rd year he obtained the rank of 3,000 For a time he was governor of the fort of Akbaiābād (Āgra) His simplicities are well known, and though he was without talent, he on account of his illustrious descent was much wrapped up in himself and did not defer to anybody

¹ Akbarnāma, Text II, p 193, Beveridge's translation II, p 299 It is a ferry on the Jhelum

² De's edition, Text II, p 438, Translation II, p 664 The date of his death is given there as 972 A H

³ For duties of Buyūtāt, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, Mughal Administration, pp 52-54

⁴ For Ghuslkhāna or Daulathāna, see Ibn Hasan, Central Structure of the Mughal Empire, pp 68–70, 77–80

⁵ For Khan-i-Sāmān or Mīr Sāmān, see Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, p 275, and Sir Jadunath Sarkar, Mughal Administration, pp 48-52, where his duties are described in detail Also see Ibn Hasan, The Central Structure of the Mughal Empire, pp 234-252

They say, that one day the King directed Amīr 1 Khān of Thatha to give a message to Kāmgār Khān He sent word of this by a confidential person and requested the Khān to visit him The Khān pretended ignorance and asked "What Amīr Khān? Amīr Khān was our cousin" The go-between said "Amīr Khān 'Abdul Karīm of Thatha" The Khān said "He is 'Abdul Karīm the Farrāsh (carpet-spreader) him that we do not visit the houses of farrashes" By this remark he alluded to the fact that Mīr 'Abdul Karīm had been for a long time Superintendent of the Oratory When Amīr Khān reported this story to the King, he said. "After all he is the son of Ja'far Khān You should not have sent for him to your house" The verses (Qit'a) of Ni'mat Khān 'Ālī, of which this is the first couplet, refer to Kāmgār Khān

Verse 2

The second marriage of the Khān of lofty lineage (?) Took place with perfect honour and splendour.

(Rānā) Karan

(Vol II, pp 201-208)

He was the son of Rānā Amrā son of Rānā Pratāp alias Kīkā son of Rānā Udai Singh son of Rānā Sāngā Zamīndār of Mēwār a part of the province of Ajmer, and the Sarkar of Chittor belongs to it. It has 10,000 villages 3 Its length is 40 kos and its breadth 33 kos has three important forts, Chittor the Capital, Kombalmir, and Mandal The chief was formerly called Rāwal, but for a long time he has been styled Rānā He belongs to the Gahlot clan When they made their home in the village of Sēsöd they became known as Sēsödias claim to be descended from Naushīrwan the Just Their great ancestor was compelled by Fortune to come to Berār and became known as the ruler of Narnāla 4 When Narnāla came into the possession of the enemy, a young boy, Bāpā by name, was conveyed from there to Mēwār by his mother She took protection under Rāja Mandalīk, a Bhīl When he grew up he became famous for slaying beasts of prey, and became one of the trusted servants of the Raja When the latter died he became the

¹ Amīr Khān Sindhī of Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 303-310, Beveridge's translation, pp 253-259

² The poem is a coarse satire on an old man's marrying a young woman was Kāmgār Khān's second marriage Ja'far Khān the father of Kāmgār Khān had the title of 'Umdat-ul-Mulk and was nephew (sister's son) and son-in-law of Nūr Jahān's brother Āsaf Khān This biography is based mainly on the references in Maāthir-i-'Alamgīrī, pp 82, 156, 166, 172, 206, 216, 240, 260, 281, 297, 330, 405

³ See Jarrett's translation of \bar{A} 'in, II, p 268, where for villages "troops" is suggested The number of villages is probably correct, as in the Imperial Gazetteer, XXIV, p 93, it is stated that there are 6,044 villages and towns in Mewar (Udaipūr) excluding 94 managed by Government of India It is the area given in Text and in $\overline{A'in}$ which seems to be wrong In reality Mēwār has an area of over 12,000 sq miles.

4 Var Parnāla See Jarrett's translation of $\overline{A'in}$, II, pp 234, 268 Narnāla is in the Akōlā district of the Berārs, Imperial Gazetteer, XVIII, p 379 The text is taken verbatim from the $\overline{A'in}$, Text I, p 505

Rānā Sāngā was one of his descendants He in 933 A H 1 (13 Jumāda II) along with other Rājas brought together 100,000 horse and fought a battle with Babur and was defeated In 934 A H (1528

AD) he died, and Rānā Udai Singh succeeded him

In the 12th year of his reign Akbar proceeded to chastise the sons of Sultān Muhammad Mīrzā who were sturing up strife in Mālwa When he came to Dholpu, he, in order that the turbulent elements of Malwa might be thrown off their guard, observed 2 that many Rajas of India had waited upon him, but that the Rānā was still in the sleep of forgetfulness Now he would make a rapid march and punish him He turned to Sakat Singh, the son of Rana Udai Singh, who was one of his servants, and said. May be that you can render useful service in this case. He in appearance agreed, but was alarmed and fled. In view of this Akbai determined to punish the Rānā He first established stations in fort Sīvī 3 Sūpar and the town of Kōtha and he also took the forts of Māndal and Rāmpūr The neighbourhood of Udaipūi was also devastated. Chittor was taken after a long siege The Rana hid himself in the folds of the bills It appears that after some time he died, and that Rānā Pratāp succeeded him Accordingly, Abul Fadl writes in the Albarnama that in the 18th year when Kunwar Man Singh after chastising the Zamindar of Döngarpur came to Udaipui, the Rana came out to meet him and put on with respect the royal robe of honour He expressed himself warmly to the Kunwar and excused himself for his delay in waiting upon Akbar In the same year the Rānā sent his eldest son Amrā along with Rāja Bhagwan Das-who had come there from Idar-and he made use of many flattering words and promised that after purging his offences he too would come and kiss the threshold He also had an interview with Rājā Todar Mal—who was coming from Gujarāt—and exhibited much Amrā after coming to the Court entered the King's service In the 21st year Kunwai Mān Singh was ordered to chastise Rānā Pratāp and came to Mandalgarh After collecting his forces he marched to A great battle took place and the Rānā was defeated and In the same year Akbar came there in person, and as the Rānā had taken shelter in the hills, a force was appointed to act against him and to bring him and his eldest son to the Court Meanwhile, the rebellion of Khusrau took pace and the Rānā sent his younger son Bāgha wards, 'Abdullāh Khān Fīrūz Jang, and then Mahābat Khān were sent to pursue him But there was no result At last in the end of the 4 9th year Sultān Khurram was appointed to the task He established stations and pressed him so hard, that he had to submit and wait upon the Prince, and to give his eldest son Karan to accompany him Karan received a robe of honour and a sword, and to subdue his savagery he was every day awarded new favours In the 10th year he was made

¹ Battle of Khānua on 16th March, 1527, see Cambridge History of India, IV, p 17 In De's translation of the Tabagāt-i Albarī, II, p 39, note 1, the Hijrī date is given correctly, but 25th March, 1526, is incorrect

2 Akbarnāma, Text II, p 302, Beveridge's translation II, pp 442, 443

3 "Sheopoor, 12m S W Agra," Elhot, V, p 325, the Sheopur of Imperial Gazetteer, XXII, p 271, in the Gwalior State

⁴ He was appointed in the end of the 8th year, see Tūzuk i-Jahāngīrī, Rogers and Beveridge's translation I, p 256 The Rānā submitted in the 9th year (op cit, pp 273–276) His name in that work is Rānā Amar Singh a Panzhazārī with 5,000 horse, and was allowed to go home Afterwards his son Jagat Singh came to the Court and received a robe of honour and went home with Har Das Jhala In the 11th year Kunwar Karan came to the Court, was honoured and again returned home.

When Sultan Khurram was appointed to the Deccan campaign, Rānā Amrā Singh and Kunwar Karan waited upon him and sent the grandchild (Jagat) to accompany him with 1,500 horse In the 13th year, when Jahāngīr was proceeding from Gujarāt to Āgra, and came near the Rānā's territory Kunwar Kaian did homage In the 14th year Rānā Amrā Singh died 1, and Jahāngīr made Kunwar Karan the Rānā, and granted him a 10be of honour, a horse and an elephant 18th year Jagat Singh his son came to the Court When Shāh Jahān. after his father's death proceeded from Junair towards Agia, Rānā Karan waited on him in the vicinity of his territory and was graciously received. He died in the first year of Shah Jahan's reign, 1038 2 A H. (1628 AD), and Jagat Singh became Rānā and had the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse In the campaign against Khān Jahān Lodī when Shah Jahan went to the Deccan, 500 horse under the command of the Rānā's uncle named Arjun were in attendance For some time the heir-apparent served with the expedition, and it was agreed that 500 horse under the charge of a responsible officer should always be on duty in the Deccan He also received from the King presents of jewels. a robe of honour, an elephant and a horse In the 26th year the Rānā died, and the heir-apparent was granted the title of Rānā Rāj Singh and the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse and received his native land in fief

As in Jagat Singh's lifetime it was reported, that he had begun to repair Chittor, although the agreement was that it should never be repaired, the King appointed someone to inquire into this matter it was reported that one or two gates out of the seven had been repaired, Sa'ad Ullah Khan was sent in the 28th year with a force to destroy the fort and to devastate the country Some parganas also were made imperial stations Rānā Rāj Singh went to Prince Dārā Shikōh and represented his humility, and agreed to send his son and hen and to demolish the repairs He begged that his country might not be devastated by the troops Accordingly, Sa'ad Ullah Khan returned after destroying 3 the fort The Rānā sent his eldest son, who was six years old, to the Court which was then at Ajmēr together with his responsible officers and a present (pēshkash) The King presented him with a robe of honour, jewels, an elephant and a horse, and as it appeared that the child had not yet been named by the Rānā, he was called Subhāg 4 Singh An order was also passed that the Rānā should send his son and 500 horse to the Deccan

When Aurangzīb came to the throne, the Rānā received a robe of honour, and in the 22nd year when the King was at Ajmēi Rānā Rāj

¹ Op cit, II, p 123

² Tod, Annals and Antiquities of Rajasthan (1914 edn.), I, p. 296, states that Rānā Karan (Kurrun) died in Jahāngīr's reign, though he gives the year as 1628, but Jahāngīr died on 7th November, 1627

³ Tod, op cit, p. 297, represents Jagat Singh or as he calls him Juggut Sing as having repaired Chittor, and does not speak of the fortifications having been destroyed.

destroyed

⁴ Subhāg—the fortunate There is the variant Suhāg

Singh, after asking permission to do so, sent 1 his son Kunwar Jai Singh After some days he received a robe of honour, a sarpēch to the Court a horse and an elephant In the same year when the levy of the Jizya ² (poll-tax) was approved of by the King, the Rājpūt annoyance was added to their natural recalcitrancy, and they became presumptuous Accordingly, it was resolved in the 23rd year to march from Ajn cr against Udaipūr and to chastise the Rānā The Rānā abandoned Udaipūr and fled, and an army under Hasan 'Alī Khān 3 was appointed to pursue Afterwards, Muhammad A'zam Shāh and Sultān Bīdār Bakht were nominated to the task When the Rānā's territory was trampled upon, he left his home, and was without a refuge In the 24th year he supplicated the Prince and in lieu of the Jizya surrendered the parganas of Mandal and Budhnur Then he came to the Raj Sumandar 4 tank and waited upon the Prince, and was confirmed in the title of Rana and the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse. In the same year he died and a mourning robe was sent to Rānā Jai Singh, his son

(Rão) Karan Bhūrthiya 5

(Vol II, pp 287-291)

He was the son of Rão Sūr After his father's death he, in the 4th year of Shāh Jahān's reign, attained the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 horse and the title of Rão and the fief of Bikānir In the beginning of the 5th year he came from his native country and did homage He was sent off along with Vazīr Khān to take Daulatābād Khān, in accordance with orders, returned while on the march to that place, he too came back Afterwards he was appointed to the Deccan and did good service in the taking of Daulatābād He also served well at the siege of Parenda After the death of Mahabat Khan he was attached to Khān Daurān the governor of Burhānpūr In the 8th year when the King came to the Deccan, and Saiyid Khān Jahān Bārah was sent off to take Bījāpūr, he was appointed under him 6 In the 22nd year he was made governor of Daulatābād in succession to Siyādat Khān and had an increase of 500 horse and the rank of 2,000 with 2,000 horse 23rd year he had an increase and his rank became 2,500 with 2,000 horse In the 26th year his rank was 3,000 with 2,000 horse, and afterwards, when the fort of Daulatābād was given to Sultān Aurangzīb Bahādur

¹ Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, pp 174, 175 2 For Jīzya see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, III, pp 268-275, it was levied from 12th April, 1679, see Cambridge History of India, IV, p 242

³ In the text Husain, but the variant Hasan agrees with Maāthir-i-'Alamgīrī,

⁴ Raj Sumand, 25 miles north of Udaipūr (Rajputana Gazetteer, III, p 13, and Tod, op cit, p 310) See Maäthir-i-'Alamgīrī, p 208, where the parganas are called Māndalpūr and Budhnūr According to Tod, op cit, p 310, the Muhammadans were several times defeated by the Rājpūts, cf Khāfī Khān, II, pp 263, 264, and Sir Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, pp 379, 380

5 Kurrun son of Raja Rae Sing according to Tod, Annals and Antiquities of

Rayasthan (1914 edn), II, p 145

⁶ For the campaigns against Ahmadnagar, see Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 137-149

the increase of 500 and 500 horse—which he had received on condition of governing the fort of Daulatābād—was withdrawn When the duty was entrusted to him of conquering the Sarkār Jawār 1 in the province of Aurangābād, which is bounded in the North by Baglana, South by the Konkan, West by some districts of the Konkan, and East by Nasik,and of which the port of Jewal is a part—and where Srīpat the Zamīndār was behaving contumaciously, he, on the recommendation of Prince Aurangzīb, was restored to the above increase, and Saikāi Jawār-of which the revenue was 50 lacs of dams—was assigned to him deputed by the Prince and proceeded towards that district arrived at the borders of Sarkār Jawār, the Zamīndār was not able to resist him and submitted He gave money by way of tribute and took the revenues of the district into his charge, and made over his son to accompany Rāo Karan as a hostage After his return Rāo Karan waited on the Prince in the 28th year When on the occasion of Shāh Jahān's illness the influence of Dārā Shikōh became supreme, the officers who had been sent with Aurangzīb to conquer Bījāpūr were recalled and set off for the Rão Karan also left the Deccan without the Prince's leave, and went to his home Accordingly, in the 3rd year of Aurangzīb's reign, Amīr Khān Khawāfī was deputed to Bīkānīr When he reached the boundary, Rão Karan submitted 2 and came to the Court with the Khān and did homage along with his sons Anūp Singh and Padam Singh He received the rank of 3,000 with 2,000 horse, and was again appointed to the Deccan In the 9th year he went off with Diler Khān Dāūdza'ī to punish the Zamīndār of Chānda 3, but as he committed faults he became an object of censure The chiefship of his tribe and the government of his native country were given to his son Anūp Singh, who was granted the rank of 2,500 with 2,000 horse Owing to the income from his fiefs having been stopped, he fell into distressed circumstances and came and settled in Aurangābād In the 10th year corresponding to 1077 A H (1666-67 A D 4) he died Outside of the town of Aurangābād, on the south side, inclining to the west, there is a quarter which is named He had four sons, Anup Singh, Padam Singh, Kēsarī Singh, after hun and Mohan Singh The three last died childless

They say 5 that Sultan Muhammad Mu'azzam was favourably inclined to Möhan Singh, and that on this account the latter became an object of envy to the Prince's servants One by the name of Muhammad Shah the Min Tuzuk (Master of Ceremonies),—whose tame deer had entered Möhan Singh's premises—had a quarrel with Möhan Singh in the open Darbar, and this became very acute Each used weapons against the other Other men joined and Möhan Singh was wounded Though Padam Singh was not on good terms with his brother, he on

¹ Jawhar, a native state in the Thana district of the Bombay Presidency, see

Imperial Gazetteer, XIV, p 87 It is the Djavar of Tiefenthaler, I, p 486

² Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, p 32, Ālamgīrnāma, p 599, Khāfī Khān, II, p 122

³ According to Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, p 59, the name of the Zamīndār of Chānda was Mānjī Malār

⁴ The 10th year of Aurangzib's reign extended from July, 1667 to June, 1668 and Rão Karan must have died during this period

⁵ See the story in Tod, op. cit, p 145, note He refers to Ferishta, but as that writer died in Jahangīr's reign, the reference is really to Jonathan Scott's translation hearing of the affair came and killed Muhammad Shāh Möhan Singh into a palanquin and were taking him to his house, but he died on the way Anup Singh was at first appointed to the Deccan expedition and in the battle fought by Bahādur Khān Kōka he was on the left wing along with 'Abdul Karīm Miyāna In the 18th year, at the request of the said Khan he received the title of Raja, and in the 19th year when a battle took place under the leadership of Dilēr Khān Dāūdza'ī with the Deccanīs, he was in the learguard In the 21st year he was left to defend Aurangabad In that year Shiva Bhonsle invested the city Anup Singh came out with his troops to his own quarter Meanwhile, Khan Jahan Bahadur, who in that year was governor of the Deccan, came up, and the enemy fled In the 30th year he was appointed governor of the fort of Nasratābād, and in the 33id, he, in succession to Rão Dalpat Bundēla was appointed to the charge of Imtiyazgarh Adoni In the 35th year he was removed from there and in the 41st he died The chiefship then came to his son Sarūp Singh who held the rank of 1,000 with 500 horse, and who did service under Dhulfagar Khan Bahadur After him his son Anand Singh and his grandson Zōrāwai Singh became At the time of writing, Gaj Singh the adopted son of Zorāwar Singh, who is of the same tribe, is the chief

KĀRTALAB KHĀN.

(Vol. III, pp. 153, 154)

He was originally a Mahratta, and his name was Baswant Rão In the reign of Jahangir he became one of the royal servants and was appointed to the Deccan He was given the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 Afterwards, when he became a Muhammadan, he had the title of In the 3rd year of Shāh Jahān's reign, when the royal Kārtalab Khān standards were established in the Deccan, his rank was increased to 3,000 with 2,000 horse In the 9th year when the King came to the Deccan for the second time, and troops were appointed to chastise Shāhū Bhōnsle and to ravage the territory of 'Adıl Khān, he was sent along with Khān After that he served with the governors of the Deccan the 30th year he was attached to Prince Muhammad Aurangzīb Bahādui in the expedition against Qutb-ul-Mulk 1 After that business was disposed of, he was sent off by the Prince along with Kesar Singh Zamindar of Deogarh to collect a sum of money for which the above named (Kesar Singh) was responsible Afterwards when the Fates made another arrangement, and the Prince proceeded to Upper India on the pretext of inquiring after his father's health, he conciliated Kārtalab Khān and took He was attached to Aurangzīb's stirrups in the battles 2 against Mahārāja Jaswant Singh and Dārā Shikōh He died at his appointed time

 $^{^1}$ The reference is to the expedition against Gōlconda in 1655 AD, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, pp $\,204-212$ $\,^2$ Battle of Dharmat, April 25, 1658 AD and Sāmūgarh, June 8, 1658 AD, see Sarkar, op cit, II, pp $\,359,\,377$

KHALIL ULLAH KHAN (Vol I, pp 775-782)

He was the younger brother of Aşālat Khān 1 Mīr Bakhshī married to Hamida Banu Begam the aughter of Saif Khan 2 and the daughter's daughter of Asaf Khān Yamīn-ud-Daula (Nūr Jahān's brother) In the reign of Jahangir he was imprisoned by Mahabat Khan along with Asaf (Yamīn-ud-Daula) at the time of Mahābat Khān's usurpation of authority In the 3rd year of Shāh Jahān's reign he received the title of Khān, and afterwards was made Mīr Tuzuk 3 (Court Chamberlain) the 6th year 4, 1042 AH, 1632 AD, he was made Mīn Atısh (Head of the Artillery), and in the 9th year he attained the rank of 2,000, and was made Qarāwal Bēg (Chief huntsman) In the 18th year he obtained the 1ank of 3,000 with 2,000 horse 5 and was made Qurbegi 6 (Keeper of the In the 19th year he was sent along with Prince Murad Bakhsh for the capture of Balkh and Badakhshān, and became leader of the left wing of the reserve The Prince sent off Khalil Ullah Khan with Chin Qulij Khān and Mīrzā Naudhar Safavī from Chārīkārān to go by Abdarah and take the forts of Kahmard 8 and Ghori The Khan by his rapidity went on one stage ahead with Mīrzā Naudhai and when they passed the katal (defile) of Gandak 9-which is the boundary between the province of Kābul and Kahmaid, he appointed a body of men to go with all possible The Uzbegs were disconcerted as soon as the heroes speed to Kahmard arrived and left the fort and fled A few of them at first stood firm, but at last they asked for quarter and surrendered the fort

Khalīl Ullāh Khān after taking steps for strengthening the fort, went on with Mīrzā Naudhar a stage ahead of Qulij Khān and sent on a force against Ghöri-who had come out of the fort under the impression that the imperial troops were men of the Hazārājāt,—but after a short struggle fled The gallant men followed close on his heels and entered

¹ Asālat Khān Mīr 'Abdul Hādī, Maāthır-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp. 167-172,

Beveridge's translation, pp 295-299

² Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 416-421 His name was Saif Khān Mīrzā Şafī and his wife—the daughter of Yamīn-ud-Daula—was Malika Bānū She died in the 14th year of Shāh Jahān's reign Khalīl Ullāh Khān was son of Mīr Mīrān of Yazd His grandfather, who was also called Khalīl Ullāh Khān, left Yazd and came to India with his son Mīr Mīrān on account of his family having been ill-treated by Shāh 'Abbās, vide Khāfī Khān, I, p 627, this was in Jahāngīr's time children remained in Persia, but afterwards came to India

³ See Banarsı Prasad, History of Shahyahan, p 273 He was the Court Chamberlam or Master of Ceremonies

⁴ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 474 For a detailed discussion of the terms Dhat and Suwar, see Blochmann's translation of A'in, I (2nd edn), pp 249-259, Irvine, Army of the Indian Moghuls, p 9, Tripathi, Indian Historical Records Commission, V, pp 60-62, Banarsi Prasad, op cit, pp 284–289

6 Qūrbēg in dictionaries is given to mean Keeper of Arsenal, but Banarsi Prasad,
"In the Company of Tabanair, p 96, calls him "in op cit, p 273, following Beni Prasad, History of Jahangir, p 96, calls him "in charge of the royal standards" or "Lord Standard-bearer" Irvine in Army of the Indian Moghuls, p 205, describes him as officer entrusted with the insignia and

⁷ Son of Mīrzā Haidar and grandson of Mīrzā Muzaffar Safavī, vide Bādshāhnāma, II, pp 99, 521 8 North of Bāmiān

⁹ Gambadhak ın Bādshāhnāma, II, p 521

the fort after fighting with him, Qabad took refuge in the citadel, and then came to terms with Khalil Ullah Khan and waited upon him Khān made over the fort to Ihtimām Khān and joined the Prince along with Qabad After that country had come into the possession of the imperial servants and the learned Sa'ad Ullah Khan had arrived in the city of Balkh for the purpose of making a settlement, Khalil Ullah Khan took the confidential servants of Nadhar Muhammad Khān with him and returned to the Court In the 20th year he again went off to the Balkh campaign with the fortunate and victorious Prince Muhammad He had arrived at Duhāk when he heard 1 of the death of Asālat Khān (his elder brother), and from excess of affection his heart turned away from worldly matters and he retued into solitude Though the Prince came to console him and gave him counsels of patience and said to him that at such a crisis it was repugnant to loyalty to withdraw himself from the King's service, the exhortation had no effect Accordingly, he was punished by being deprived of his rank and $j\bar{a}g\bar{i}r$. In the 21st year he showed signs of repentance, and was again given the mansab of 4.000 Dhāt with 3.000 horse, the fief of Mewat and its fauidārī in succession to Shāh Bēg Khān, and was ordered to go to his fief from Lāhōre without having the honour of waiting upon the Sovereign the 22nd year he was made Bakhshi In the 23rd year he was appointed in succession to Ja'far Khān to the high post of Mīr Bakhshī, and in the 24th year he received an increase of 1,000 horse, and on the death of Mukarmat Khān he was made Sūbādār of Shāhjahānābād In the 26th vear he was made a Panjhazārī (5,000) with 4,000 horse and was appointed with a large force to go in company with 'Alī Mardān Khān Amīr-ul-Umarā to protect Kābul—the government of which had been assigned to Prince Dārā Shikōh and his son—but which the Prince was leaving to besiege After that, as the ruler of Srīnagar (Garhwāl)—which is in the hills north of the Capital—trusting to the strength of his fort and the difficulties of the hills, had not since the accession of Shāh Jahān paid his respects, and was showing signs of rebellion, Khalil Ullah Khan was appointed to chastise him He was, however, ordered first to go to his fief and put it in order, and then to go on the expedition 29th year he came from his estates to the Capital and in Safr 1065 A H (December, 1654 AD) set out with 8,000 horse. The Zamīndār of Sirmur 2—which is the top of a hill north of the Capital, and the place from which ice comes to Shāhjahānābād—joined Khalīl Ullāh Khān and assisted him When he came to the Dūn—which is a place outside of the hills of Srīnagar and is in length 20 kos and in breadth five kos, and one end of which touches the Jumnā and another the Ganges, and has in both directions villages and cultivated estates—he began near Khēlāghar to establish stations (thānas) Up to the bank of the Ganges he built earthen forts at every place that he judged proper, and appointed bodies of men to look after them When he came to the bank of the Ganges, which had to be crossed in order to enter the hills, he sent a force across and took possession of thana Chandni which was a dependency of Srīnagar outside of the Dūn and Khēlāghar Bahādur Chand the ruler of Kumāōn joined the army with the intention of rendering service

¹ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 677

² Elhot, VII, p 105

As the rainy season had nearly arrived, and the season for campaigning and for entering the hill-country was over, and moreover there was no reason for captuing that country the climate of which was immical to all but the inhabitants, who belonged to the face of demons and wild beasts, Khalil Ullah Khan, in accordance with the imperial orders reserved the question of the hills and settled the Dün—the revenue of which at that time was 150,000 tupees of sixty lacs of dams for the twelve months—on Chatr Bho, Chuhan as his fief on condition of his residing there Chatr Bhoj then had a mansab of 1,500 with 1,000 The thāna of Chāndnī was made over to the krōrī of Hardwār 1. Thereafter Khālīl Ullāh Khān returned to the Court and was again granted an increase of two-horse and three-horse troopers. In the 31st year when after the sudden illness of Shah Jahan, affans took a different turn, and a change of residence became essential, he in Muhairam 1068 A H (October-November, 1657 AD) moved from Shāhjahānābād to Āgra, the said Khan was appointed to take charge of the former city When in the end of Shāh Jahān's reign Dārā Shikōh placed 2, on account of suspicion, Muhammad Amin Khan (son of Mir Jumla) the Mir Bakhshi 3 under surveillance, that high office was restored to Khalil Ullah Khan After that, when Dārā Shikōh resolved to oppose Aurangzīb, he, from the great confidence that he had in Khalil Ullah Khan, sent 4 him off with a strong army by way of vanguard from Agra to Dholpui On the day of the battle he, with the Mīn 5 (?) Tūrāniāns and royal officers had command of the right wing As he had secretly made promises of service and loyalty (to Aurangzīb) he, in the height of the engagement, with 15,000 troopers who were swordsmen and spearmen, did not move from his place though the Uzbeg troops who were with him behaved bravely and did what they could to repulse the foe After Dārā Shikōh's defeat, and when Aurangzīb was encamped in the environs of Agia, Fādil Khān the Khān-1-Sāmān came again 6 on behalf of Shāh Jahān and offered congratulations and invited Aurangzib to wait upon the Emperor. Aurangzīb at first accepted the proposal, but afterwards at the instigation of self-opinionated advisers refused to go and do homage to his father Shāh Jahān sent Khalīl Ullāh Khān and Fādıl Khān with messages Ullah Khan who in consequence of the former concord was admitted to a private interview before Fädil Khan, spoke so much against the invitation that Aurangzīb's alarm and dread were increased a hundredfold, and he detained 7 Khalil Ullah Khan and sent back Fadil Khan without the latter

¹ Nägar Däs the Krörī of Hardwär, vide Elliot, VII, p 107 Sir Jadunath Sarkar, Mughal Administration, p 41, note† For Krörī see

² 'Alamgīrnāma, pp 84, 95

³ For Mir Bakhshi see Ibn Hasan, The Central Structure of the Mughal Empire, He discusses in detail the meaning of the word Bakhshi, the number and duties of the officers at the Capital, on tour and on the battlefield

⁴ Khāfī Khān, II, p 22
5 Khalīl Ullāh Khān was not a Tūrāmān, but he had Uzbegs under him, vide Khāfī Khān, II, p 26 Apparently the word occurs in text because the author is abstracting from 'Alamgīrnāma, p 95, where at line 4 from bottom the word Sāyar (will) occurs after the mention of some Uzbeg names

^{6 &#}x27;Alamgīrnāma, p 112 See also Su Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib,

II, p 415
7 'Alamgīrnāma, pp 114, 115, Sarkar, op cut, p 416, where all relevant authohaving attained his object Though the office of Mir Bakhshi was restored to Muhammad Amīn Khān, but 'Umdat-ul-Mulk Khalīl Ullāh Khān was raised to the rank of 6,000 two-hoise and three-horse troopers He was sent off from Aghrābād 1 in Delhī in command of the forces in pursuit of Dārā Shikōh, and he with Bahādur Khān Kōka did not draw the reins till they reached Multan At the same time, in the beginning of the year 1069 A H (1658 A D) Khalil Ullah Khan was made governor of the Panjab In the 4th year he fell ill at Lähöre and as the illness became protracted he came to the Capital, but on account of weakness was unable to pay his respects and alighted at this own quarters Tagarrub Khān (Hakīm Dā'ūd) and others of the royal physicians were ordered to visit him He had been much reduced by the length of the illness, and a slight injury—the consequence of carelessness in the matter of food—made his case beyond the reach of medicine! On 2 Rajab, 1072 A H (21 February, 1662 AD) he died Aurangzīb 2 in appreciation of his services cast the shadow of kindness on his representatives and showed them various favours Mīr Khān, Rūh Ullāh Khān, and 'Azīz Ullāh his sons and Iftikhār Khān, Multafat Khān and Bahā'-ud-Dīn his brother's sons and Saif Ullāh Safavī his son-in-law received dresses of honour His wife and daughter received an annual allowance of Rs 50,000, and his sons and son-in-law received increases of rank

Khalīl Ullāh Khān was of noble origin, and had great ability, he long served the royal dynasty He spent his last days in loyalty to the reigning Emperor For these reasons he acquired a great name They say that Khalil Ullah Khan in companison with his elder brother Asalat Khān was rough in speech and manners When both brothers were appointed to accompany Shāh Shujā' to the siege of Parēnda, Mahābat Khān was as much vexed with and full of complaints about Khalil Ullāh Khān as he was pleased with Asālat Khān Asaf Khān too was always worried on account of his unaccommodating nature 3

(Mîr) Khalîl Ullāh Yazdī

(Vol III, pp 335-342)

He was a descendant of that paragon of wisdom Saiyid Nūr-ud-Dīn Shāh Nı'mat 4 Ullāh the saint who is famed throughout the world for his

nath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, II, p 399, note

4 In Khazīna Āsfiya, I, p 114, it is stated that Ni'mat Ullāh belonged to the Qādirī order Also see Beale, Oriental Biographical Dictionary (1881 edn), p 203, according to which he died in 1424 or 1431 A D

¹ Khāfī Khān, II, p 39, who says the Agharābād garden is now known as Bāgh

Shālāmār, see also Sarkar, op cit, p 446

² Maāthir i ʿĀlamgīrī, p 39, and ʿĀlamgīrnāma, pp 662, 663

³ Bernier, pp 53, 54, refers Khālīl Ullāh and speaks of his treacherous advice to Dārā, but see the judicious remarks of Elphinstone, History of India (1905 edn), p 584 According to Bernier, Khalil Ullah was made Mir Bakhshi in place of his patron Dānishmand who had resigned as he was not a favourite with Dārā He also says that Khalīl Ullāh behaved treacherously to Dārā because the latter had had him beaten with slippers If Khalil Ullah stood still and did not attack the foe, would he have ventured afterwards to advise Dārā or would Dārā have listened to him? Bernier seems to be the only person who speaks of Khalil Ullāh's having 30,000 Mughals under him Khāfī Khān, II, p 26, speaks of Khalil Ullāh's having Bakhsh with 3 or 4,000 Uzbeg archers The Tadhkira-ul-Umarā says he made the Shālāmār gardens in Lāhōre at a cost of six lacs For further details see Sir Jadu-miracles and expositions His lineage goes up to the Imām Mūsā Kāzim (the 7th Imām), may God's blessings be on him and his venerable descendants! The place where the Saiyid was born and leared has not been ascertained but after acquiring knowledge from many distinguished men he settled in Kirmān. The learned men of that place accused him of heresy, and he answered, "They acknowledge the goodness of God, and afterwards they deny the same, but the greater part of them are unbelievers" (Sūla 16, v 85). As the Saiyid was a pupil of 'Abdullāh Yamanī Shāfa'ī some regarded him as belonging to the Shāfa'ī sect, but the following verse of his proves the contrary

Verse

They say to me what is your religion? O ignorants, what religion do I have? From Shāfa'ī and Abū Hanīfī I hold my own mirror before myself, They are all followers of my ancestor, I hold the faith of my ancestor

His writings in treatises and pamphlets amount to nearly 500 As the report of his abilities spread everywhere the kings of the age put the rings of his discipleship in their ears. He died in the year 728 A H , and is buried in Māhān 2 one of the dependencies of Kirmān Authorities differ in the accounts of his sons. Those of the order, who to this day sit on the seat of their ancestors, maintain that they are descended from Amīr Ghiyāth-ud-Dīn who was the direct son of the Saiyid. But some maintain that the only son of the Saiyid was Shāh Khalīl Ullāh. When Sultān Ahmad Bahmanī of the Deccan, who founded the city of Bīdar became, in absence 3, a disciple of the Saiyid, he begged that he would send him one of his sons. The Saiyid was not willing to send his son, as he had only one, and so sent his son's son Nūi Ullāh 4. Under the circumstances, Ghiyāth-ud-Dīn may be a title of Shāh Khalīl Ullāh, and it is also probable that the birth of Amīr Ghiyāth-ud-Dīn may have taken place after this event.

They say that Sultān Aḥmad considered the arrival of his Master's descendant (grandson) a great boon, and with his officers and sons met him in the environs of the city and brought him to his home. He established a village at the place of meeting and called it Ni'matābād. He exerted himself to the utmost to do him honour and gave him the title of King of Shaikhs (Malik-ul-Māshā'ıkh) and ordered that he should have precedence over the son of Saiyid Muhammad Gesü Daraz. also gave him his daughter in marriage Shāh Khalīl Ullāh also after his revered father's death came with his two sons Shah Habib Ullah and Shāh Muhib Ullāh to Muḥammadābād (Aḥmadābād) Bīdar had accomplished his purpose he returned to his native country some 1 say that he died in the Deccan. As Shāh Habīb Ullāh and Shāh Muhib Ullah became connected by marriage with Sultan Ahmad and his son Prince 'Alā'-ud-Dīn, Shāh Habīb Ullah entered 2 the service of the son, and made over the charge of the monastery to his younger brother Shāh Muhib Ullāh He himself assumed the pomp and circumstance of Amiship and indulged in drums and a retinue He obtained the township of Bir as a fief When the sovereignty came to the son of Sultān 'Alā'-ud-Dīn who was known as Humāyūn Shāh the Tyrant, he imprisoned Habīb Ullāh who had opposed him. As the latter s brain was suffused with the vapours of leadership, he escaped from confinement, but was at last put to death The chronogram 3 is Bar amad ruh pak Ni'mat Ullāh (The pure soul of Ni'mat Ullāh departed) His descendants are still living in the Deccan Some persons in Badakhshān and Tūrān also claim relationship with the Saiyid Probably in course of time one of his descendants had gone to those regions. A strange thing is that every one of them has a different creed and ascribes it to the Saiyid Those who are in Yazd and Kirman, and represent their great ancestor, have not varied but preserve his doctrines, and his lineage One of this family who rose to honour and prosperity in Persia (Fārs) and 'Irāq was Mīr Nizām-ud-Dīn 'Abd, the successor of Shāh Safī-ud-Dīn son of Amīr Ghiyāth-ud-Dīn He became Sadr of Shāh Ismā'īl Safavī Vakīl of the State, Amīr Najm Thānī, had great faith in this family, and when he went to Balkh he made the Mir his deputy When Amir Najm Thānī was killed (at Gajdīwān) the Mīi became the royal Vakīl He fell into the hands of the Turks at the battle of Chāldirān in 920 A H (1514 AD) and was killed His son Saiyid Na'im-ud-Din known as Nı'mat Ullah II—who was distinguished for his piety and abstinence and who spent his days in prayer—was married by Shāh Tahmāsp Safavī to his own sister, Khānish Khānam He died in Hamadān and left behind him more than 40 lacs of rupees, these were divided between his son Amīn Ghiyāth-ud-Dīn Muhammad Mīr Mīrān and his daughter Paiī Paikar (Fairy-faced) Khānam Mīr Mīnān was the object of honour by the Shāh and had the title of Murtadā-1-Mammālik-1-Islām—the chosen of the realms of Islām His sons Mīr Ni'mat Ullāh and Mīr Khalīl Ullāh became famous by marrying in the Safavī family The faithful of the order of Shāh Nı'mat Ullāh behaved to him as disciples, and received enlightenment from him They were unrivalled for their grandeur, houses,

 $^{^1}$ Presumably, Mūsā Kāzım who was born in 128 AH = 745-46 AD, see Khazīna Āsfiya, I, p. 48

² Māhān is situated to the south-east of Kirmān Seven appears to be a mistake in the Text for 8, as Ni'mat Ullāh belonged to the 8th century of the Hijra and died in the 9th century in 834 A H (1431 A D), see Ferishta (Newal Kishore edn) I, p 329 and Rieu, Persian MSS Cat II, p 634, where it is stated that Māhān is eight passages (leagues) from Kirmān, and that Ni'mat Ullāh died there on 22 Rajab, 834 A H (April, 1431 A D) at the age of 103 or 104 lunar years

³ Ghāi'bāna, i e without having had a personal interview with the Saint ⁴ Ferishta says Ni'mat Ullāh first sent his disciple Qutb-ud-Dīn, and afterwards his grandson Nūr Ullāh, vide his account of Ahmad Shāh Bahamanī, I (Newal Kishore edn), pp 328, 329

³ The chronogram is by Saiyid Tāhir Astarābādī, and forms the 4th line of a quatrain, see Ferishta, op cit p 342 and De and Prashad's translation of Tabaqāt-

1-Albarī, III, p 84

¹ This seems to be taken from Ferishta, op cit
² There is evidently something wrong in the Text here In Maāthi -ul-Umarā, III, p 337, it is stated that Habīb Ullāh died (dar guzīsht) in the reign of 'Alā'-ud-Dīn, but on the next page it is noted that Habīb Ullāh was put to death in Humāyūn Shah's reign It also speaks of Nūr Ullāh when apparently Habīb Ullāh is meant It was Muhib Ullāh who became the son-in-law of 'Alā'-ud-Dīn (see Ferishta gardens, etc Their pensions, perquisites, etc., came to 5,000 tomans and as the disposition 1 of the Mir was not free from ambition and selfseeking, in 998 A H (1590 A D) the 3rd year of Shah 'Abbas I's reign, Vaktāsh Khān Afshār son of Valī Khān Qūrchībāshī the governor of Kırmān and Yazd, who was a trickster and an ambitious man, and was the son-inlaw of the Mīr (Mīrān) instigated him to aim at the rule of all Persia end of the affair was, that there was fighting at Yazd with Ya'qūb Khān the Amīr-ul-Umarā of the country and that Ektāsh Khān entered the city Ya'qūb Khān sent a message to the Mīr Mīrān that as Yaktāsh Khān was the enemy of the King, he makes him over to the Mir in order to avert suspicion from himself and to save himself, contrived to get Yaktāsh Khān into his power, and kept him in custody until he committed suicide Thereupon Ya'qūb Khān felt contempt for the Mīr and his other sons, and levied from him large sums as tribute and But he increased his defence for Mīr Khalīl Ullāh, who had always been opposed to his father and to Yaktāsh Khān After Yaktāsh Khān's widow, who was the daughter of Mir Miran, had observed the time of her mourning, he (Ya'qūb Khān) mariied her Afterwards, when Mīr Khalīl reached the summit of success, and he became arrogant, the Shāh proceeded in the 4th year of his reign to Fars Mir Miran waited upon him. Meanwhile Shahr Bānū Bēgam, the wife of Mīr Ni'mat Ullāh, his son—who was the husband of Shāh Tahmāsp's daughter—died a natural death in Isfahān, and the Shāh himself paid him a visit of condolence and consolation But except that Mir Khalil was graciously treated, he did not get any further honour When the Shah came to Yazd, he alighted at the Bagh Gulshan—which was Mir Khalil Ullah's residence, and Mīr Khalīl Ullāh's wife, who was the daughter of Ismā'īl Mīrzā the son of Shāh Tahmāsp, performed the duties of a hostess The Shāh conferred various favours on Mīr Khālīl and made over the affairs of Yazd Afterwards, however, Mir Khalil also for some reasons became the object of the Shāh's censure, and from fear of his life fled with his two sons Mir Miran and Mir Zahir-ud-Din in very straitened circumstances to India which is the abode of security In the 2nd year of Jahangir's reign, 1016 AH (1608 AD) he did homage at Lāhōre, and received the rank of 1,000 with 200 horse, and a fief, and a present of Rs 12,000 for expenses The year had not ended when he died of diarrhoea 2 eldest son Mīr Mīrān received royal favours and was married to Sālih Bānū Bēgam the daughter of Āsaf Khān Yamīn-ud-Daula, and his two sons Mīr 'Abdul Hādī and Mīr Khalīl Ullāh—who on account of then tender age had remained in Persia-were out of kindness asked to be sent to India by Jahangir in a letter to Shah 'Abbas They both rose to high ranks in the Indian Empire, as has been mentioned separately in Mir Zahir-ud-Din resigned service and lived in retiretheir accounts 3 Shāh Jahān granted him an annual allowance of Rs 18,000, and on the feast of the 'Id and at the New Year showed him special

¹ Taken from 'Ālam Ārā'ī, account of 2nd year of Shāh 'Abbās I

¹ Taken from 'Alam Ara'ı, account of 2nd year of Shāh 'Abbas 1

² He died in the 3rd year of Jahāngīr's reign in June 1608 A D, see Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk-ı-Jahāngīrī, I, pp 145, 305

³ For the biography of Asālat Khān Mīr 'Abdul Hādī, see Maāthīr-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 167–172, and Beveridge's translation, pp 295–299, while that of Khalīl Ullāh Khān (Text I, pp 775–782) is published immediately preceding this account, pp 767-770

His son Mir Ni'mat Ullah received the rank of 1,000 25th year he became the son-ın-law of Mīrzā Murād Kām Safavī the grandson of Mīrzā Rustam of Qandahār and who was faujdār of Jaunpūr and was made his deputy — In the beginning of Aurangzīb's reign he got the title of Khān and had an increase of rank and was living with his fatherın-law

Khān Daurān

(Vol I, pp 782-785)

He is Saiyid Mahmūd the second son of Khān Daulān Nasrat Jang1. After his father's death he received the rank of 1,000 with 1,000 horse By grace of fortune and in view of his good services, he surpassed his elder brother Saiyid Muhammad in the pursuit of promotion and riches In the 22nd year (of Shāh Jahān's reign) he had a mansab of 2,000 and in the Qandahār campaign he was attached to Muhammad Aurangzīb In the 23rd year at the time of the return he came with Sa'ad Ullah Khan-who was hurrying to salute the threshold-and had the honour of an audience He received his father's earlier title of Nasīrī After that, he was made an auxiliary officer of the province of Malwa and got the fief of Ra'isin and the government of its fort the 30th year he went to the Deccan in company with the governor of Malwa, who, along with all the contingent of that country, had been appointed by Prince Muhammad Aulangzīb the governor of the Deccan to chastise 'Abdullāh Qutb Shāh (of Gölconda 2) After executing that duty in a proper manner, he returned to his home, and in the same year he was again ordered to the Deccan, and as an attendant on Prince Aurangzīb did good service in attacking and devastating the territory of 'Adıl Shāh 3

When Shivā and Manājī Bhonsle 4, at the instance of the Bijāpūrīs, raised the head of disturbance in the neighbourhood of Ahmadnagar, and attacked certain estates, Nasīrī Khān went there with 3,000 horse in company with a number of officers such as Kārtalb Khān and Īraj Khān, and acted bravely, and put many of Shivā's men to the sword He took up his quarters in Pandya Biigaon, so that the rebels might not reach the royal estates After the taking of the forts of Bidar and Kalyan, the exertions of every one of the contingent were brought to the notice of Shāh Jahān by the Prince and every one was suitably rewarded Nasīrī Khān received the rank of 3,000 with 2,500 horse In one campaign after another he distinguished himself by good service and became a favourite with the Prince, and when, after the battle with Rāja Jaswant ⁵ the Prince encamped at Gwaliyar, Nasīrī Khan came, according to orders, from fort Rā'īsīn and did homage, and received the high title of Khān Daurān In the battle 6 with Dārā Shikōh he commanded the right wing of the reserve, and after the victory, was raised to the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse, of which 2,000 were two-horse and three-horse. He with

<sup>Maāthir-ul-Umarā, I, pp 749-758
See Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, pp 209-217
Sir Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, pp 244-250
Sir Jadunath Sarkar, Shivaji, pp 49-53
Battle of Dharmat, 25th April, 1658</sup>

⁶ Battle of Samugarh, 8th June, 1658

a portion of the army was sent to govern Allahābād after taking the fort, which was famed for its strength, and which was held by Saiyid Qāsim Bārah on behalf of Dārā Shikōh The latter, though he had heard of the flight of Dārā Shikōh, resolved upon loyalty, and did not desert, but exerted himself to strengthen the fort Khān Daurān set about besieging the fort, but when Shujā' came from Benāres with the intention of giving battle, and arrived near Allahābād, Khān Daurān raised the siege and joined Prince Sultan Muhammad who had come near the fort as the vanguard When Shujā' gave fortune to the winds, and an army under the command of Muhammad Sultan pursued the vagabond, Khan Dauran acted as the Prince's auxiliary.

At this time Saiyid Qasim Barah the governor of the fort of Allahābād, who in accordance with Dārā Shikōh's letter had joined Shujā's army, made a rapid march to Allahābād after Shujā' had been defeated 1, and entered the fort before his arrival Now he, from a consideration of final results, shut the gates against that hopeless one, and wisely chose the King's service When Sultan Muhammad came near Allahābād, Saiyid Qāsim turned to Khān Daurān, who, before this, had obtained the command there and was besieging the fort Qāsım made him the instrument for procuring the pardon of his offences, and Khān Daurān, in accordance with the King's order, encompassed him with favours, and took possession of the fort, and addressed himself to the government of the province 2 In the 2nd year when the government of that province was made over to Bahādur Khān Kōka, Khān Dauran was made the governor of Orissa He went there and spent a long time in that distant province In the 10th year 3, 1077 A H, he died there a natural death

KHĀN DAURĀN AMĪR-UL-UMARĀ

(Vol I, pp. 819–825)

His name was Khwaja 'Asam, and he came of a noble family 4 His ancestors came to India from Rūstāg in Badakhshān and settled in Some took to military life and some spent their days as darvishes His elder brother Khwāja Muḥammad Ja'far was one of the respected The discussion which Shaikh 'Abdullah Wā'ız (preacher) of Multān had with him in the 3rd year of Farrukh-siyar's reign about asceticism and the virtues of the saints is well known Khwāja Muḥammad Bāsıt was the son of Khwāja Muhammad Ja'far Khwāja 'Asam held a small post in the body-guard (Wālā-Shāhīyān) of Sultān 'Azīm-ush-Shān When the latter, on the death of Aurangzīb, proceeded to Āgra from Bengāl at his father's summons, and left his son Muḥammad Farrukh-siyar in Bengāl, he put his son in the Khwāja's charge As he was possessed of good manners, and ability,

¹ Battle of Khajuhā, 14th January, 1659
² 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 303
³ See Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 62, where the appointment of his successor to the Sūbadārī of Orīssa is mentioned, his death must have occurred early in 1667

⁴ For his life see Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, pp 264-266, etc

he in a few days became the favourite of Farrukh-siyar, and had the management of his affans Other dependants wrote such attacks about him that Sultan 'Azīm-ush-Shan summoned him to his presence When Bahādui Shāb died and Sultān 'Azīm-ush-Shān was killed in battle with his brother, and Muhammad Fairukh-sivar sat upon the throne, and with the aid of the Barah Saivids proceeded to make war upon his uncle Jahandar Shah, the above-named Khwaja came to Farrukh-siyar and was made $D\bar{a}r\bar{o}aha$ of the $D\bar{i}r\bar{a}n$ -i- $Kh\bar{a}s$, and received suitable emoluments and the title of Ashraf Khān He was also for some time Mīr Atish (Head of artillery) in addition to his Dārōghaship After Farrukh-siyar had vanguished his uncle and had come to Delhi, the Khwaja was in the first year raised to the rank of 7,000 with 7.000 horse and had a flag and drums and the title of Samsam-ud-Daula Khan Daman Bahadur Mansūi Jang Afterwards, when in consequence of the levity and inexperience of the Sovereign, and the arrogance of the Saiyids of Barah friendship between them was changed into enmity, the Khwaja-who possessed caution and good sense—did not break off with the Saivids though he shared in the Emperor's counsels In the 2nd year when the Amīr-ul-Umaiā Husain 'Alī Khān went off to the government of the Deccan in succession to Nizām-ul-Mulk 1 Fath Jang Bahādur, he was made deputy of the Mir Bakhshi At the same time he was made 2nd Bakhshī in succession to Muhammad Amīn Khān Bahādur he was made governor of Gujarāt, and Haidar Qulī Khān, who had been made Superintendent of the port of Sūiat, was made his deputy

When the sovereignty came to Muhammad Shāh, and Husain 'Alī Khān was killed in the first year of the reign and his troops gathered together and Saiyid Chairat Khān, Husain 'Alī's sister's son, came to the royal enclosure with his men, the King, at the instance of his well-wishers mounted on an elephant and stood in front of the Daulatkhāna The Khwāja during the height of the commotion came with his men and was attached to the vanguard. After Chairat Khān had been killed, and the disturbance was quelled, the Khwāja received the title of Amīr-ul-Umarā and the charge of the office of Mīr Bakhshī. For a long time he remained in that appointment. He had pleasant manners, and was affable, and was fond of the society of the learned. In his company subjects of learning were always discussed. He was courteous to strangers, but reserved with his rivals. Whatever he got from his fiefs he spent upon his soldiers who were all in good condition, and there was no self-seeking in his management of state affairs

They say that when Ja'far Khān, the governor of Bengāl, died and Shujā'-ud-Daula the son-in-law of Ja'far Khān was appointed in his place, he sent a large sum of money, which might mean lakhs 2 (of rupees) for the Khwāja in addition to the royal tribute, and the Khwāja deposited the whole of it into the royal treasury. The Rājas were much in league with him. When the Mahrattas of the Deccan made a disturbance in Mālwa in 1147 A H (1734-1735 A D) he went along with the Rājas

² Ke ta bir balakūk tawān kard Lakūk is given in the Ghiāth-ul-Lughāt as the plural of lak, a lakh or 100,000

¹ The Nizām-ul-Mulk Āsaf Jāh He got the title of Fath Jang from Farrukh-siyar For an account of his life, see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text III, pp 837-848 and pp 875-882, also Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, pp 267-271, etc to chastise the vagabonds, and there was another army under Itimadud-Daula Qamar-ud-Dîn Khān, the Khān Daurān encountered Mulhār But nothing suitable resulted, and he returned to the Court after arranging a sort of peace In the year 1149 AH when Bājī Rāo made a commotion around the Capital, Khān Daurān 1 came out of the city and opposed him In 1151 AH (1738 AD) when Nadir Shah came to India, and the reigning Sovereign proceeded to Kārnal to engage hım. Burhān-ul-Mulk Sa'ādat Khān the governor of Oudh, who had fallen behind, made a forced march and joined him, and on hearing the news of the plunder 2 of his baggage hastened to oppose the Persians Dauran too followed with his troops to assist him The opposing aimy came on the field in Cossack-fashion (in skirmishing order). Khān Daurān stood firm and fought to the best of his power Many of his companions were killed, and he himself was wounded by a bullet He was carried to his tent and died on the following day Three 3 of his sons who were with him, and Muzaffar Khān his brother—who had acquired a name for excellence, and had for a while been governor of Amer,—were killed in this battle His son Khwaja 'Ashwari, who was made prisoner by the enemy, received his father's title in the reign of Muhammad Shāh, and in 1167 AH (1754 AD) was made Mir Atish In the time of 'Alamgir II he was made Amir-ul-Umarā, and after some time died.

As Nädir Shāh has been mentioned, some notice of him is indispen-He was of the tribe of Qirqlu which is a section of the Afshar In ancient times this tribe lived in Turkistan In the days Turkamāns of the supremacy of the Mughals in Türan (the Afshar Turkamans) they came away from there and took up their residence in Adharbā'ijān In the time of Shāh Ismā'īl Safavī they marched forward and took up their abode at the fountain of Manāt 4 Könkān Mahāl Anīward (?) (Abīverd?) belonging to Khurāsān, north of the holy Mashhad and twenty farsakhs distant from it and near the district of Marv He was born in 1100 AH (1688 AD) and received the name of his grandfather Nadhr Quli As in the last days of the sovereignty of Sultan Husain Safavī there was confusion in the government owing to abundant slackness, and the absence of punishment, which is essential for rule—there arose in every biain and heart a desire for power Accordingly, the Abdālī Afghāns and the Ghilza'ī Afghāns took possession of territories ın Khurāsān and Qandahār, while the men of Rūm (the Turks) took places on their borders He first rebelled in his own country and fought with

¹ Bājī Rāō arrived outside Delhī on 9 Dhul Hijja, 1149 A H (9th April, 1737),

see Irvine's Later Mughals, II, p 289

² Elliot, VIII, p 61, Sir William Jones—Historie de Nader Chah, p 297, and Irvine, op cit, p 343

³ In Sir William Jones's History, p 299, only one son is spoken of as having been killed. In a note in Frazer's Nadir Shah, p 158, it is said that the eldest son of Khān Daurān was killed, and that Khān Daurān had two bullet wounds, one in the arm and another in the side. In Irvine loc cit, p 348, he is stated to have been the arm and another in the side mortally wounded in the face In Irvine, loc cit, p 348, he is stated to have been The battle of Karnal was fought on 23rd February, mortally wounded in the face

^{1739, 24}th February according to Cambridge History of India, IV, p 359

4 Sir William Jones in his life of Nādir Shāh, op cit, p 27, has the fountain of Meiab Kiupe Kale twenty parasangs north of Mashhad and near Merv It was their summer quarters Frazer says he was born at Calot (Kalat-i-Nadir) That place lies to the N of Mashhad Wardeh of the maps is probably Abīverd Sykes in History of Persia (1930), II, p 248, says he was born at Kala Kuhna or Old Fort in the autumn of 1100 A H in the autumn of 1100 A H his own tribesmen who opposed him, and prevailed over them. wards, in repeated battles he killed the Afghans and checked their power. After that he accomplished the conquest of the holy Mashhad (1138 AH, 1725–26 AD) and in 1141 AH took Isfahan In 1145 A H he defeated the armies of Rūm and made peace on five 1 conditions (1) The learned men of Rum should count the Imamiya sect as the fifth sect four pillars of the mosque at Mecca belong to the four Imams; the men of the Imamiya religion should share with them in one pillar and say their prayers according to the Ja'far rites (3) A Mir Haj to be appointed every year from Persia, and to be treated with respect and honour (4) The prisoners of the countries of Persia and Rum to be released, with whomsoever they might be, and the buying and selling of them to be prohibited (5) An agent from either Court to be always present so that the affairs of each country may be suitably disposed of $\,$ In the year 1147 A H 2 he ascended the throne, and in 1151 AH (1738-1739 AD) came to India Muhammad Shāh at last made peace with him and made over to him a large sum of money and endless goods 3, among them the Peacock Throne which was made by Shāh Jahān In 1152 AH he returned, and got possession of the whole territory of Persia, Balkh and Khwārazm In the year 1160 4 A H his sentries entered his tent at night and killed After him some of his sons rose to power The last of them had nothing left but a name

KHĀN DAURĀN NASRAT JANG

(Vol I, pp 749-758)

His name was Khwāja Sābir, and he was the son of Khwāja Hisārī Naqshbandī In the time of Jahāngīr he obtained an office and was

² See Irvine's Later Mughals, II, pp 317-320, for Nādir Shāh's early life. This date should be 1148 A H On p 319 he is stated to have ascended the throne on 26th February, 1736, see also Cambridge History of India, IV, p 357, and Sykes, History of Persia, II, p 248

³ For details of the indemnity levied by Nadir Shah at Delhi, see Sir Jadunath

Sarkar's account in Irvine's Later Mughals, II, pp 371-373

⁴ In Sir William Jones's History, op cit, pp 400, 401, the date is given as 8th June, 1747, and the names of the murders are Ali Kuli Khan, Mohammed Saleh Khan and Mohammed Kuli Khan, and the place is stated to have been Fathabad two farsangs distant from Khabouchan In the Cambridge History of India, IV, p 371, the date is 2nd June, 1747 Sykes in his History of Persia, II, pp 272, 273, mentions the names of only two, 'Mohamed Salah Khan and Mohamed Kuli Khan', and states that he was killed in 1160 (1747)

Sir William Jones's History in French was a translation of the Persian MS of Tārīkh-i-Jahān-Gushā-i-Nādirī (see Ivanow, Descr Cat Persian MSS, As Soc Bengal, p 30, 1924) by Muhammad Mahdī In the Persian Text of this work published by the Asiatic Society in 1845, the date, on p 326, of Nādir Shāh's murder is given as يك شنه ياردهم حبادي الأخرى سال هرار و صد و شصت The same date and day are given in Oskar Mann Das Mujmil et-Tārīkh-i-Ba' DNādirije (Leiden, 1896), p 15 This according to Wunstenfeld-Mahler Vergleichungs-Tabellen (1926) would correspond to 20th June, 1747 AD The day, however, does not agree, as according to these tables 10th June was a Saturday, and 20th, therefore, would be a Tuesday and not a Sunday as recorded by the Author of the Persian work

¹ There is no such account in Sir William Jones's life of Nādir Shāh Afterwards at all events Nādir Shāh was a bigoted Sunnī There were said to be four orthodox sects of Muhammadans, and apparently Nādir demanded that the Shī'as should be recognised as a fifth orthodox sect

Khān-Khānān 1 observed in him signs of appointed to the Decean courage and skill and patronised him For some reason he retired from his service, and attached himself to Nizām Shāh As he perceived that young men were encouraged there, he entered among them and so exerted himself that he became an intimate companion, and received the title of Shah Nawaz Khan Later he gave up this service and became a servant of Prince Shah Jahan, and received the title of Nasii Khan He was the Prince's close attendant in all the vicissitudes of his fortune and did not leave the least point of good service undone. In the case of occasional necessity he even looked after the saddles and bridles of the special horses In the Tons² battle (near Benares) he was leader of Shah Jahan's troops. As on that day all threw the dust of instability on their heads, he too could not maintain his ground After 'Abdullah Khān had behaved unfaithfully and had separated from the Prince. Khān Daurān also deserted in consequence of his being 'Abdullāh Khān's son-ın-law and joined Malik 'Ambar On his death he joined Nizām-ul-Mulk, who had established himself in position In the 2nd year of Shah Jahan's reign he presented himself at the Court and received the lank of 3,000 with 2,000 horse and his old title of Nasīrī Khān When in the 3rd year Shah Jahan in Burhanpur appointed a large army to chastise Khan Jahan (Lodi) and to conquer the Nizam-Shahi territory, Khan Dauran was directed to proceed in company with Raja Gai Singh Out of his zeal he represented that if the task of taking the country of Telingana and Qandahar 3-whither Rao Ratan had been sent-were entrusted to him, he would in a short time accomplish it. He received the rank of 4,000 with 3,000 horse, and was deputed to that expedition He set before himself the taking of the fort of Qandahar 4-which was famed for its strength—and began by defeating Sarafraz Khan the leader of the army of that country and who had prepared for a battle between the town and the fort Mugarrab Khan, Bahlul Khan and Randaula Khan the 'Adıl-Shahi had come in force to the assistance of the garrison and were making a commotion, but Khan Dauran's vigorous efforts made them turn back At this time A'zam Khān the Sūbadār of the Deccan came to his help, and as the besieged saw that their capture was at hand, they surrendered After four months and mneteen days Sadıq the son-ın-law of Yaqut Khudāwand Khān gave up the keys in the 4th year, 1040 A H (1631 A D) The guns 5 Malik Dabt, Bijlī, and 'Ambarī known as Major and Minor, and other great and small cannon to the number of 116, each of which was enough to overthrow an army or a city, together with other materials for the defence of a fort, were taken possession of Nasīrī Khān had

^{1 &#}x27;Abd-ur-Rahim Khān-Khānān, Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp

² Töns is a tributary of the Ganges, see Beveridge's translation of Maāthir-ul-Umarā, p 456 The battle was fought in 1624 at Damdama, a village in the Allahābād district near the junction of Töns and the Ganges, vide Cambridge History of India, IV, p 173 For an account of Shāh Jahān's rebellion, see Beni Prasad, History of Jahangir, pp 366-386, and Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 40-52

³ Bādshāhnāma, I, p. 307

⁴ Bādshāhnāma, I, pp 374-377
5 Bādshāhnāma, I, p 377 Two guns of the name of 'Ambarī are mentioned there, and instead of Bijlī we have Tajallī It was only the four large ones which were fit for use an increase in rank of 1,000 and of 1,000 horse In the same year at the time of his leaving for Bālāghāt he received, at his request, the distinction of the $M\bar{a}h\bar{i}$ -o-mar $\bar{a}tib^{1}$, this, in old times, was a decoration which was customary with the Delhi Sultans and which was given by them to the rulers of the Deccan After that it acquired great glory in this country (the Deccan), and was given by the princes thereof to whosoever was considered by them worthy of great favour In the 5th year he was appointed as the Sūbadār of Mālwa in succession to Mu'tagad Khān

They say that when Ujjain and Sārangpūr became his fief after the death of Khwāja Abūl Hasan,—who had developed them for a long time—there was such a famine in Khāndēsh and the Deccan that a loaf was dearer than a life (nānē bajānē mē arzīd) The reliance of the inhabitants of those countries for food was on the corn of Mālwa Nasīrī Khān filled the granaries with gold Nevel was so much money obtained from the estates of Mālwa

When in the 6th year Mahābat Khān besieged the fort of Daulatābād, Nasīrī Khān was appointed to assist him, and distinguished himself One day Khan Zaman had filled a mine with seventy maunds of gunpowder, when it was fired, 28 2 yards of the wall of 'Ambarkot and 12 yards of its bastion were blown up, and a wide path was laid open But on account of a rain of musketiy and rockets by the garrison no one advanced Mahābat Khān wanted himself to go forward on foot, but Nasīrī Khān said "Such an idea on the part of a leader is contrary to all canons of skill He cast the shield of Divine protection over his face and ran to He passed through the arrows and bullets and fought with sword and dagger The garrison, on seeing such devotion and zeal, after a short struggle, retired to the Mahākōt (the great fort) And when that too was opened by a mine they surrendered and delivered up Every one 3 whom Mahābat Khān appointed to defend the fort rejected the task because there was no food in the fort, and because during the four months of the siege they had endured various hardships Nasīrī Khān, who had 2,000 troopers in his service, accepted the duty from his great love of work, and in concert with Saiyid Murtadā Khān superintended the defence of the fort. After the Bijāpūr troops had followed the Commander-in-chief for some stages, they returned to Daulatābād They entered the batteries, which were still standing and invested As Nasīrī Khān repeatedly showed activity and energy, they failed 4 and had to retire He received the title of Khan Dauran and the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse, and, in accordance with orders, made over 5 the fort to Murtadā Khān and returned to Mālwa

When in the 7th year Prince Muḥammad Shujā' was appointed to take Parēnda, Nasīrī Khān was appointed to accompany him One day when the enemy had pressed upon Khān-Khānān at the time of foraging 6

¹ Irvine, Army of the Indian Moghuls, p 33
2 Bādshāhnāma, I, p 512, Elliot, VII, p 38
3 Bādshāhnāma, I, p 532, Elliot, VII, p 42
4 Bādshāhnāma, I, p 533 Khān Daurān made frequent sallies
5 Bādshāhnāma, I, p 534
6 Nashata anhāma and an and an and an and an and an an and an analysis sallies

⁶ Naubat-1-gahī means turn of foraging Each commander apparently had to take his turn in looking after the foraging Bādshāhnāma makes this clearer by adding the pronoun ao in naubat-i gahī-i-ao būd it was his turn for foraging Gahī here means forage or a party of foragers Details are given in Bādshāhnāma,

(naubat-1-gahī) and it was leading almost to a big defeat, Khān Daurān perceived the position and came up quickly and forced the army which was behind Khān-Khānān on to the forces on his right wing, and then made both bodies join in with the force in front of Khān-Khānān also rescued the wounded, and joined Khān-Khānān On this success the enemy fled, and this great 1 deed was the cause of Khān Daurān's receiving a great reception at the Court When Mahabat Khan died, Bālāghāt was made over to Khān Zamān (his son), and the Pāyānghāt which included the whole of Khandesh and much of Berar-was made over to Khān Daurān at a revenue of 92 krors of dāms An order was also given that Sarkār Bījāgarh, Sarkār Nadarbār 2 and that part of Saikār Handia, which was on the other side of the Narbada, should be regarded as belonging to Khāndēsh When ³ Bikramājīt the son of Jujhār Singh Bundēla, who, with his father's contingent, was with Khān Zamān in Bālāghāt, at a hint from his father, who was meditating rebellion in his wretched country, fled to his home, Khan Dauran heard of it and came out of Burhanpur to pursue him He came up with him at Ashta 4 in the Mālwa $S\bar{u}ba$, and nearly caught him Bikramājīt fled wounded into the difficult jungles and joined his father in Dhāmūnī Khān Daurān waited for orders in Mālwa, and when the government of Mālwa was entrusted to him, he was sent to uproot this plant of disaffection conjunction with 'Abdullah Khan he displayed great energy in the pursuit and completed the task In the 9th year he sent the heads of Jujhār and his son to the Court⁵, and as a reward received the title of Bahādur. In the same year, when Shāh Jahān came to visit the fort of Daulatābād, Khān Daurān, with Rāja Jai Singh and other Rājpūts as a vanguard, and Mubārız Khān Nıyāzī and other Afghāns as the rearguard was appointed to take the forts of Udgir, and Ausa, and to ravage the territories of Bījāpūr and Gōlconda He destroyed every cultivation and habitation to within twelve kos of Bījāpūr, and repeatedly punished Bahlūl Khān Mıyānah and Khaırıyat Khān Habshī When 'Ādıl Shāh trod with humility the path of obedience, Khān Daurān withdrew his hand from devastating his territory and went off towards Udgir After a siege of three months and odd days on 8 Jumāda I, 1046 AH (28 September, 1636 A D) he captured this strong place from Sīdī Miftāh 6 and addressed himself to the siege of Aūsa Bhōjrāj 7 the governor after a struggle surrendered the fort, and after then an order was passed that the elephant Gajmōtī (Pearl of elephants)—which was the finest elephant with Qutb-ul-Mulk—should be taken possession of He

I, pt 2, p 37, etc, and in Khāfī Khān, I, p 396, etc After Mahābat Khān arrived at Parēnda a foraging party was sent out The Deccanīs came out to attack it and Mahābat Khān first sent his sons and then went himself to defend the party The Deccanīs lured him on to their main body by pretending to fly and then hemmed him in He would have been cut off but for Khān Daurān's help

¹ Kār dastbasta, literally an affair that sent one to his prayers
² Nadarbār or Nadhrbār of Text is the Sarkār of Nazarbār of Jarrett's translation of Ā'īn, II, pp 195, note 1, 208, 251, note 1 It was in Mālwa, and is the modern Nandurbār in Western Khāndēsh, Imperial Gazetteer, XVII, pp 362, 363

Elliot, VII, p 47
 Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 96

⁵ Id, pp 110-116 Also for the whole campaign see Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 86-89

An Abyssinian, Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 218
 Id, p 220, and Banarsi Prasad, loc cit, p 147 proceeded to Kötgīr 1-which was on the boundary of his kingdom, and by his efforts got hold of the elephant and also a lac of rupees as tribute He took Kilchar and Ashta and then came to the frontiers of Devgarh —which are dependencies of Kararmāndgāon² in Berār—from the possession of the powerful Gonds 3, and took Nagpur after a siege of some Kūkīvā 4 the Rāja of Dēogarh paid a tribute of 1,50,000 rupees and 170 elephants and regained possession of Nagpūr

In the 5 10th year Khān Daurān came to the Court and presented 200 elephants worth ten lacs of rupees together with eight lacs of rupees ın cash-which the ruler of Gondwana, and other landowners had tendered, partly as tribute to the King, and partly as a present to himself, together with the elephant Gajmoti-which was valued at one lac of rupees, and whose name was changed to Pādshāh Pasand (Approved by the King)—with golden trappings (of the elephant) which were prepared by Khān Daurān at his own expense at a cost of one lac of rupees his loyalty and courage were conspicuous, and he had in a short time presented a pēshkash, such as none of the great officers had collected at one time, he received 6 various marks of favour and was given the title of Nasrat Jang and a mansab of 6,000 with 6,000 horse $d\bar{u}$ -aspa and sih-aspa (two-horse and three-horse)—the allowance (tankhuāh) for which was 10 krors, 80 lacs of dams for twelve months of the year which came to 27 lacs of rupees,—and also the tankhwāh of pargana Shujā'atpūr 7 in the crown-lands When in the 17th year Prince Muhammad Aurangzib came from the Deccan on the occasion of inquiring after the health of the Bēgam 8 Sāhıba, he having regard to various proceedings of his in the Deccan, which were repugnant to Shah Jahan, withdrew his hand from worldly affans and went into retirement 9, before his father should show marks of displeasure This causeless proceeding increased Shāh Jahān's vexation and he made over the government of the Deccan to Nasrat Jang who was in charge of Mālwa He received the rank of 7,000 with 7,000 horse, and a present of one kror of dāms which formed the highest limit of advancement for officers

They say that Khān Daurān during his government of the Deccan made a new world by his innovations Many $d\bar{e}shmukhs$ and $d\bar{e}shp\bar{a}ndas$ were beaten with mallets ($me\underline{kh}$ $k\bar{o}b$ zada) and sent to annihilation Also in order to develop the country he consolidated the tankhwāhs of the mansabdars who held fiefs in various places He also visited all the forts, and made full arrangements for the garrisons (ahshām) and their provisions He sent to the Court nearly a kror of rupees of Govern-

 $^{^1}$ Kömgīr, $B\bar{a}dsh\bar{a}hn\bar{a}ma$, I, pt 2, p120 2 Kararmāndgāon is the Māndgāon Karar in Jarrett's translation of \bar{A} in, II, p 233

³⁻⁵ See Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, pp 233, 246

<sup>See Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 247
In Sarkār Sārangpūr, vide Jarrett, op cit, p 204, wrongly printed as Shujāa</sup>pūr

⁸ Jahān Ārā, the daughter of Shāh Jahān was badly burnt in March, 1644, and was confined to bed for 4 months, see Banarsi Prasad, loc cit, p 316, and Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, pp 63-66
9 Bādshāhnāma, II, p 376, and Khāfī Khān, I, p 600 Also Elliot, VII, p 69 Aurangzīb was restored to favour and office at the request of his sister, Khāfī Khān, I, p 606, also Banarsi Prasad, op cit, p 316, and Sir Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, p 66 68 pp 66-68

ment treasure which was in the forts and crown-parganas so that the world might see that whereas (hitherto) money was always sent from the Court, but he in his $S\bar{u}bad\bar{a}r\bar{\imath}$ was sending money from the Deccan. When he was satisfied with the settlement he had made of the country, he set himself to take Bījāpūr In the 18th year he was summoned to the Court for some deliberation about administration He accompanied the Emperor to Kashmīr, and then took leave and came to Lahore He halted two kos from the city At the 1 end of the night he was By a strange fate a Brahman boy of Kashmir whom he had converted to Islam and enrolled among his servants struck him a severe blow in the belly with a dagger They say that it took seventeen stitches He did not knit an eyebrow, and conversed with Qulij to sew it up He was in possession of his senses for one day, and divided his money and goods among his children, and left the balance for the exchequer He wrote a petition, in accordance with these dispositions, with his own hand and sent it to the Court He died on the night of 7 Jumāda I, 1055 AH (21 June, 1645 AD) Shāh Jahān gave to every one of his children more than was bequeathed in the will, and 60 lacs of the surplus reverted to Government As his ancestors were buried at Gwāliyār he was buried there 2

Khān Daurān never slackened in the service of the Emperor, and was free from covetousness and avarice in this respect He spent three watches of the day and one watch of the night in government service He left nothing to others, but did all the work himself But he was severe to the subjects, and behaved with harshness and oppression to God's creatures It was the arrow of the sighs of the oppressed that finished him On the day that the news of his death reached Burhanpur there was no stock of sugar or sweetmeats in the shops which the people did not give away in thanksgiving Most of the fine buildings in Burhānpūr were made during his time Mandavī Zainābād 3 on the bank of the Tāptī was built by him From Sarōnj to Burhānpūr he put up serā'īs at every tenth kos His sons Saryid Muhammad and Saryid Mahmūd 4 obtained after their father's death the rank of 1,000 with 1,000 horse. 'Abd-un-Nabī, who was young, received a mansab of 500

KHĀN JAHĀN BAHĀDUR ZAFAR JANG KŌKALTĀSH

(Vol I, pp 798-813)

His name was Mîr Malik Husain His father was Mîr Abûl Ma'ālī Khawāfī who was a Saiyid known for his virtue and piety As his honoured wife suckled Prince Aurangzīb, his sons Mīr Muzaffar Husain and Mīr Malik Husain were raised to suitable nanks and became Amīrs The first, as his biography shows, was reared in the presence of Shāh Jahān The second from his early years was

¹ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 426 Khāfī Khān, I, p 610
² According to Muhammad Latīf, History of Lahore, p 168, his tomb is at Chintgarh, 2½ miles east of Lahore

³ Apparently this is the garden 'Ālam Ārāī, celebrated as the residence of Zainābadī, Aurangzīb's favourite, see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, p 790

⁴ Later Khān Daurān, Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 782–785, Translation, ante, pp 774, 775 brought up in the Prince's (Aurangzīb's) service, and was an intimate courtier and was respected. In the 27th year he was displeased with the Prince's service and left him, and came from the Deccan with the intention of serving the King Shāh Jahān gave him the rank of 700 with 100 horse, but as the Prince did not like his departure, he in the 30th year begged his father to give him the faugdārī of Hōshangābād Handīa In this way he was drawn by favour into the Deccan In the 31st year when the Prince, after taking the fort of Bīdar addressed himself to the taking of Kalyan, he was sent to take the fort of Nailanka1 After he arrived at the spot, though the besieged endeavoured to defend it, he succeeded in its capture He seized all the defenders of the fort as also the horses and arms, and sent them to the Prince When the Prince raised the standards of world-conquest and set out from Burhanpur towards Agra he gave him the title of Bahadur Khan As the Prince was convinced of his bravery he was put into the van in the battle with Jaswant Singh 2 In the battle with Dārā Shikōh 3 he had command of the right wing of the reserve In his zeal he advanced as far as the vanguard Suddenly Rustam Khān Deccanī with the whole force of the left wing encountered him Bahādur Khān fought with skill and bravery, but was wounded, and when Aurangzīb's army advanced full of glory from Agra to the Capital (Delhi), he received an increase of 1,000 with 500 horse and was sent in pursuit of Dārā Shikōh who had gone to Lāhōre to retrieve the position The Khān by his alacrity crossed the Sutlej, the bank of which the enemy had fortified and which could not be crossed easily He after crossing attacked the enemy and put them to flight Nor could Därā Shikōh maintain himself in Lāhōre. He fled and went to Bhakkar. Bahādur Khān and Khalīl Ullāh Khān followed him as far as Multan In the battle of Khajuha (north of Allahabad) with Shuja', Bahādur Khān had charge of the Iltmish and fought bravely When Dārā Shikōh came to Cutch by way of Bhakkar, he after crossing the Indus went to Malik Jīwan (of 4) Dhādhar on account of his former acquaintance with him, and after resting from his fatigues for a few days went off with the intention of going to Qandahār, but that unrighteous landowner saw his selfish advantage in seizing him, and blocked his path and made him prisoner He wrote the account of this to Bahādur Khān who quickly came there, and after seizing Dārā Shikōh went off rapidly to the Court via Bhakkar, along with Rāja Jai Singh On 16 5 Dhu l Hijja of the 2nd year, he reached the Capital and did homage On that day 6 Dārā Shikōh and his son Siphr Shikōh were placed in an open

^{1 &#}x27;Ālamgīrnāma, pp 1008, 1009

² Battle of Dharmat, 25th April, 1658 See Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of

Aurangzib, II, pp 359-362

3 Battle of Sāmūgarh, 8th June, 1658—vide Su Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, pp 376-400

⁴ Dadar in Kach Gandava, Elliot, VII, p 244, note Jīwan was an Afghān, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, pp 539 540

5 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 431 Sir Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, p 541, states that they arrived outside Delhī on 23rd August, 1659 Old Style or 2nd September New

^{6 &#}x27;Alamgīrnāma, p 431 on Tuesday the 20th corresponding to 17 Shahriyār. The anruz of the Text may mean next day, but even then it does not agree with the 'Alamgīrnāma, according to Sir Jadunath Sarkar, p 542, Dārā was paraded through Delhī on 29th August Old Style or 8th September New Style litter (hauda') on a female elephant and taken by the road between the city and the bāzāi to Old Delhī, and guarded in a secure 1 place in Khidrābād Next day, 21 Dhu'l Hijja, 1069 AD, he was put to death, and buried in Humāyūn's tomb The Khān received a piesent of one hundred horses—as many of his own had died owing to the iapidity of his movements Later he was sent to put down the commotion of Bahādur Bachgōtī²—who had raised a disturbance in Baiswāia he had finished that business, he was made governor of Allahābād in succession to Khān Daurān and received a mansab of 5,000 with 5,000 He long governed the province In the 10th year he was made governor of Gujaiāt in succession to Mahābat Khān, and he proceeded there from Allahābād, and was long occupied in making a settlement of Gujarāt In the 16th year he received the rank of 6,000 with 6,000 horse-two-horse and three-horse He also received the title of Khān Jahān Bahādur and the charge of the government of the Deccan in place of the agents of Prince Muhammad Mu'azzam He received a special dress of honour and a decorated dagger which were sent to him along with the mace-bearers An order was passed that he was to receive the Māhī-o-marātib (Order of the Fish, etc.) and that he was to be allowed to display it One of his feats in this year was that he maiched rapidly sixty kos and inflicted a signal defeat on Sivā (Shivājī) Bhonsle who at this time was plundering the people of the Deccan and disturbing their repose He (Khān Jahān Bahādur) obtained a large amount of plunder After he had by repeated attacks defeated and overthrown him, he displayed alacrity in chastising the other sedition-mongers of the Deccan and several times sent tribute from the rulers of Bījāpūr, and Haidai ābād to the Court The King in consideration of his good services gave him ın 1086 A H (1675-1676 A D) the title of Khān Jahān Bahādur Zafar Jang Kōkaltāsh and made him an officer of the rank of 7,000 with 7,000 horse and gave him a present of one kroi of $d\bar{a}ms$ and so raised him above his contemporaries In the 20th year, 1088 AH (1677 AD), he took, after a struggle, the fort of Naldrug which was one of the great forts of Bījāpūr, from Dā'ūd Khān Panī, who was a child 3 of four years (2) In the battle of the batteries in this siege, his son Muhammad Muhsin was Inasmuch as high rank and greatness end in airogance and presumption, and success and prosperity lead to independence and pride, or rather they lead from zeal to insouciance and craft (kuhna 'amlagī), several offences of his were proved and he was summoned to the Court, he was dismissed, and deprived of his title, and his moveable and immoveable property was confiscated. As he displayed marks of eminence, and the fame of his excellence was spread far and wide, and his

^{1 &#}x27;Ālamgī nāma, p 43 In the Khawwāspūra quarter The rūz dōwum of the Text may mean two days afterwards Dārā was put to death on the eve of Thursday the 22nd Dhu'l Hijja, 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 432 But Khāfī Khān, II, p 87, says Dārā was put to death on the last day of the month The Maāthīrī 'Ālamgūī, p 27, also gives Thursday eve as the date of death The English date, according to Sir Jadunath Sarkar, p 548, is 30th August Old Style or 9th September New Style Manucci, I, p 356, puts the death into October

² A Rājpūt clan—the Chūhāns are Bachgōtīs See 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 451. The occurrence was in the 2nd year of the reign long service and good performances were over and above this, he after some time, in the 21st year, was restored 1 to his rank and titles, etc., and the water which had departed returned to its old channel When in the 22nd year Mahārāja Jaswant died and left no heir or representative, Khān Jahān² was appointed to take possession of his property royal standards moved to Ajmer, and the Khan swiftly went off to Jödhpur -which was the capital of Jaswant's country-and set about destroying the idol temples He brought in several cartloads of idols—many of which were adorned with gold and silver After the King returned to the Capital, they were, by the King's order, thrown into the Jilaukhāna (place for keeping carriages, etc.) of the Darbar and under the 3 steps of the Jahannuma mosque and for a long time were trodden under the feet of comers and goers till no trace of them was left But the district was not settled, as it should have been The commotion of the Rājpūts and the contumacy of the Rānā came to a head, and it ended in a royal expedition Khān Jahān went off from Chittor to govern the Deccan, leaving Prince Muhammad Mu'azzam there He in the height of the rains addressed 4 himself to the siege of the fort of Sālhēr—which was the loftiest fortress in Baglana, and had come into the possession of the enemy,—but after enduring much suffering he had to withdraw without success, and came to Aurangābād Mīr Muhammad Rıdā Lāhōrī the commentator on the Mathnavi Ma'navi was with him as a mansabdar He described the expedition in verse, and said with reference to the mud and mire

³ There is surely some mistake here See Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, p 64, and Beveridge's translation, p 459, where Dā'ūd is described as entering the royal service in the 18th year, yet the age is given as four in all the MSS

Verse

The helpless bullock became a bullock 5 of the earth

In the same 6 year, Muharram 1091 A H. (February, 1680 A D) Sambhā Siwā'ī marched 35 kos at night and fell, without warning, upon Bahādurpūra—which was a populous place two kos from Burhānpūr—and Kākar Khān the Nāyıb of Khān Zamān, the governor of Burhanpur, shut himself up in the city with a few men, and the robber set fire at his ease to important quarters of the city and reduced them to Many noble families were dishonoured, some to guard their honour killed their wives and themselves were killed When Khān

¹ Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p. 168

² Maāthir-i Ālamgīrī, p 172 Jaswant left a widow and two sons, according to Elphinstone, History of India (1905 edn.), p 623 According to Tod, Annals and Antiquities of Rajasthan (1914 edn.), II, p 44, he only left a pregnant queen who afterwards became the mother of Ajīt The Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, pp 176, 177, states that Jaswant left two pregnant wives and that both were delivered of sons in Lāhōre One of the sons died shortly afterwards—see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, III, pp 325-330

3 The Text is not correct and the variant agrees with Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, p 175, from where the passage is taken The idols were thrown into two places into the Darbar-1-Jilaukhana and under the steps of the Chief Mosque treated the idols from Mathura in the same way

 ⁴ Khāfī Khān, II, p 270 Elhot, VII, p 304
 5 A pun on Gāō-zamīn, the bull Lıyūnān which supports the earth, see

Prashad, B, Qānūn-Humāyūnī, p 11, note 1

6 Khāfī Khān, II, p 272 See Sir Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, IV, p 244 et seq The date appears to be incorrect, it was in the middle of February, 1681, that this attack by Sambhājī was launched after his coronation, see Kincaid and Parasnis-A History of Maratha People, p 119

Jahan heard of this, he hurried from Aurangabad, and in one night and day reached the pass of Fardapūr 1 which is 32 los distant There he occupied four watches in crossing the pass It was said that this inconsiderate delay occurred on account of the arrival of Sambhā s agent and the promise of a large sum of money By this delay Sambhā got away with everything that he could carry away, together with all his prisoners whom he took by way of Chopra to the fort of Salher 2 who ought to have gone by a cross-road and come up with him, went straight by the right to Burhanpur 3 This neglect confirmed men's suspicions and was the cause of a fiesh alienation of the Emperor's affection from him An order of censure was sent to him, and in that year the propositions 4 he had made about ranks and increase were entirely rejected By chance, in the same period Prince Muhammad Akbar fled towards the Deccan in the 24th year Orders were sent to all the officers to stop Akbai wherever he appeared, if possible, they were to take him alive, otherwise they were to kill him As he was passing near the hills, of Sultanpur, Khan Jahan, who showed himself as very zealous to seize him and had come near him, drew iein until Akbai passed the hills of Baglana and with the help of the Bhīls and Kölis came to Rāhīrī, and stayed for some days under Sambhā's protection Though the news-writers kept this back, yet Mīr Nūi Ullāh the son of Mīi Asad Ullah, the faujdar of Talner 5, who was an audacious man, and who relied upon his being a Khānazād (house-born one) and on his influence, communicated all the details (to the Emperor), and increased the store (of displeasure) in the Emperor's heart, and the craft and decent of Khan Jahan became apparent to all

As the inflicting of punishment on Sambhā and the chastisement of Akbar both demanded the attention of the Emperor, he, in the 25th year made the Deccan his residence Khān Jahān was appointed to conquer the fort of Rāmsīj 6 which appertained to Gulshanābād (near Junair) But though he made great efforts, he did not succeed on account of the watchfulness and ability of the governor of the fort, who was an experienced Mahiatta He was obliged to retire, and on the day of his march he set fire to the materials of the batteries which were composed of wood, etc., of which a great quantity had been collected The garrison came out on the battlements in great muth, beat their great and small drums, and made ribald remarks. When he came within three kos of Aurangābād he was gratified by the receipt of a dress of honour, and was ordered to proceed to Bidai without coming to pay his respects He was to take up his quarters there, and to pursue Akbar

³ 'Idalābād m Khāfī Khān, II, p 275

6 Khāfī Khān, II, p 282, etc

Khāfī Khān, II, p 274
 Sālēr in Khāfī Khān, where it is stated that he should have turned to the left, but instead went to the right

⁴ Khāfī Khān, II, p 275, Elliot, VII, p 308 In Elliot the passage is translated as—"In his anger he took away from Khān-Jahān all the increased honours and emoluments he had conferred upon him in that year" But what Khāfī Khān says is that contrary to the former practice, all Khān Jahān's recommendations about mansabs and their increases were disallowed Apparently Khān Jahān had been in the habit of submitting lists for promotions and they had hitherto been passed In the text Thānēsar, but really Tālnēr or Thālnēr See Khāfī Khan, II, p 299 It is in Khāndēsh "east of Nandurbār", Elliot, VII, p 362

whenever he got any news of his movements When Akbar came away from Sambhā and embarked on a vessel with the intention of going to Persia, Khān Jahān proceeded to chastise the brigands, and in the 27th year attacked them when they were at a distance of thirty kos By his vigorous proceedings their bands, which had been collected on the bank of the Kishnā, were broken up, many of the infidels were put to the sword and their property was plundered In reward for this service he received a complimentary farmān and his sons Muzaffar Khān, Nasīrī Khān, Muḥammad Samī' and Muhammad Baqā received respectively the titles of Himmat Khān, Sipahdār Khān, Nasīrī Khān and Muzaffar Khān, while his brother's son and son-in-law Jamāl-ud-Dīn Khān was granted the title of Safdar Khān.

When Prince Muhammad A'zam Shāh proceeded to the siege of Bījāpūr, Khān Jahān was ordered to take up his quarters at the thāna of Amdī 1 m order to send supplies to the Prince's camp From there he was appointed in the end of the 28th year to accompany the Prince who had been sent off to chastise Abūl Hasan of Haidarābād ahead of the Prince with 10,000 horse, and fought severe battles with Khalīl Ullāh Khān, the head of the army and with Husainī Bēg 'Alī Mardān Khān, who with 30,000 horse was presumptuously opposing the imperialist One day the drums and trumpets sounded at early dawn, and for three pahars there was a hot market of warfare The gallant men passed from guns and bullets to fighting with daggers and there were heaps of slain on both sides In that battle his son Himmat Khān was hard pressed, and though he sent a message to his father for help, the latter was so hemmed in by the enemy who surrounded him like a halo that he could not move a step At this time Parab 2 Khan, who was called Hat Pathar (the stone-hand), whose stone-like hand was dealing bullets around, urged on his horse, and lance in hand, came in front of Khān Jahān's elephant and cried out Where is the leader ? and wanted to pierce him with his lance Khān Jahān shouted I am the leader, and without giving him time to use his javelin 3, cast him to the ground with an arrow At last the predominance of the enemy was such that Khān Jahān was nearly being defeated Suddenly Aurangzīb's good fortune displayed itself in another form, a raging elephant came among the enemy from the King's side and caused their horses to rear up or three leading men were overthrown, and the Haidarābād troops took to flight They were driven off in spite of repeated onsets

Verse

Shud 4 fath bayang Hardarābād (Hardarābād was conquered in battle , 1097 A H , 1686 A D)

¹ Pargana Indī, Khāfī Khān, II, p 317 ² Khāfī Khān, II, p 297, Barī or Parī Khān Hıs sobrıquet ıs given as $H\bar{a}t$ Bhatta

³ The word in Khāfi Khān is bhāla
4 The Maāthir i 'Ālamgīrī puts the victory in 1096, see editor's note on p 268, but the chronogiam given there yields 1097 Khāfī Khān, II, p 300, says that Auiangzīb was very angry with him for not following up his victory, and that in writing to him he quoted a line of poetry which has become proverbial when any untoward event has been produced is the chronogram of this battle, and of the ruler's shutting himself up in the fort of Golconda As in reality the Prince and Khan Jahan did not wish to destroy Abul Hasan, and their first and foremost desire was that there should be peace, and that Aurangzib should forgive his offences, though his ignorant officers urged him on to battle, they restrained themselves, and ignored the attacking and plundering (of the city) view increased the Emperor's displeasure, and he summoned Khan Jahan to his Presence As he had been the King's playmate and in addition had the relationship of fosterage—which is a strong tie—and was also proud of his skill and knowledge of affairs—especially in Deceani matters which, he thought, could not get on without him—and moreover he had no control over his tongue or his hands, he behaved insolently in the Presence, and in the King's absence said improper things in the Dīvān. and in administrative matters did without hesitation whatever he wanted If an order was received from the King, he did not earry it out For instance, forbidden 1 things, which were prohibited by the King, were in common use in his camp One day there was a great disturbance between his men and Mu'azzam Khān Safayī in the Irlaukhāna (portico) about the leaving of a palanquin Khān Jahān was allowed to leave so that he might restrain his men When he came out, he, in his insolence. told his men to go and loot Mu'azzam Khān's bāzār This added to the King's displeasure, and he became more vexed with him than ever He resolved to break his presumption and whenever he was appointed to any province he was removed before he could benefit by the harvest, and all his financial 3 arrangements were upset

In fine, in the end of the 29th year he was sent 4 off to punish the Jāts and the sedition-mongers of the Āgia province, and received a present of two krors of dāms. With the exception of Himmat Khān, who was appointed to manage the affair of Bījāpūi, his sons were sent with him. As that difficult task could not be accomplished without a large army and much effort, Prince Bīdār Bakht the eldest son of Muhammad A'zam Shāh was also appointed to this expedition. Afterwards by the excellent exertions of the Prince, and the management of Khān Jahān, Rājā Rām Jāt the leader of the rebels was killed by a bullet in 1099 A.H. (1688 A.D.) The Prince destroyed Sansanī and other places which had been founded by Rājā Rām and became the controller of that country. Khān Jahān was sent 5 to the government of Bengāl, and in the 23rd year was made governor of Allahābād. In the 34th year he was made governor of the Panjāb. In the 37th year he was summoned to the Court from Lāhōre After that he did not go anywhere else away from the Court, till frequently moved about There is also a Deccani word sambandi or sambandhi, meaning relationship and perhaps this is the word here meant

¹ Vice and immorality, vide Khāfī Khān, II, p 299

² Father-in-law of Prince Kam Bakhsh, vide Khafi Khan, II, p 316

³ Sanbandī, presumably it is san-bandi or the arrangements for the year, but it may be a clerical error for sibandī which is given as a variant. It is the Anglo-Indian Sebundy, and means militia, and also the expenses connected therewith. The passage in the Text is taken from Khāfī Khān, II, p. 395, who speaks of the heavy expenses in travelling which the Khān Jahān had to incur on account of his being frequently moved about. There is also a Deccanī word sambandī ci sambandhī, meaning relationship and perhaps this is the word here meant.

4 Khāfi Khān, II, p 316 Cf Elhot, VII, p 522 Sansani is sixteen miles NW of Bharatpūr Irvine in Journ As Soc Bengal for 1904, p 289, states that Rāja Rām was killed in July 1688

⁵ But he never reached there in the 41st year, on 19 Jumāda I, 1109 AH (23rd November, 1697 AD) he died in the camp of Islāmābād Biahmapūr 1 As his illness lasted a long time, Aurangzīb at the time of returning from Shōlāpūr visited his quarters and inquired after his health. As he was confined to bed, he could not rise, and lamented saying as he could not have the honour of kissing the feet, he wished that he had died on the field of battle The King replied that he had spent his whole life in faithful service and devotion, and did he at this 2 age still have a wish left? (He desired that) his bier should be conveyed to the town of Nakodar 3 in the Dūāba of the Panjab as his family tomb was there The accounts of his sons Himmat Khān and Sipahdār Khān have been given separately (Text III, pp 949-951) His other sons were not so distinguished Nasīrī Khān was a mad man and without dignity His youngest son Abul Fath lived into the beginning of the reign of Muhammad Shāh He spent his days in affliction

Khān Jahān 4 Bahādur, the Commander-in-chief was the central figure in the government He was unequalled among the nobility for his grandeur, lofty buildings and splendid possessions. He was polite and gracious and was endowed 5 with many good qualities His receptions (mahfils) were superb Scarcely anyone but he could express an opinion He spoke openly what he wanted, and others could only answer by assent He did not like much talking The chief things discussed in his company were prose and poetry, swords, jewels, horses, elephants and aphrodisiaes ⁶ He was a good judge of physiognomy One day, when he was governor of the Deccan, he said to Amānat Khān Mīrak Mu'in-ud-Din the great grandfather of the writer of these lines who at that time was the chief $\check{D}\bar{\imath}v\bar{a}n$ of the Deccan 'The King at the time of granting me leave said "If you hear that Muhammad Mu'azzam intends to rebel, accept the statement, even though he takes no step towards doing so, but if such a report be spread about Muhammad A'zam, beware of crediting it whatever he may do, and Muhammad Akbar is a child" But (said Khān Bahādur) from my knowledge of physiognomy I can say that none but he will tread this wrong path' At that time there was not the least sign of Akbar's becoming a leader, nor any report of it After six months this untimely flower blossomed, and the discernment of Khān Jahān proved to be in accordance His haughtiness and domineering spirit brought him into collision with a King like Aurangzīb who trusted to his own genius and did not have regard for others Hence 7 it was that at last he was without which appears to be more appropriate

6 Adwiya-i-mubahhī, but Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 390, has adwiya-i-mushtahī which perhaps means only carminatives or tonics 7 Khāfī Khān, II, p 448

Brahmapüri later named Islāmpūri not Islāmābād as in Text, see Maāthir-1-'Alamgīrī, p 381, etc., and Sır Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzıb, V, p 6 It was in the Shōlāpūr District on the southern bank of the Bhīma river

2 The text has 'umr, age, but the Maathur.--'Alamgīrī, p 390, has amr matter, viz, the matter or point of life-devotion This reading seems preferable ³ Jarret's translation of \bar{A} 'in, II, p 317 In Sarkār Dūāba Bet Jālandhar Khāfī Khān, II, p 448, puts Khān Jahān's death into the 39th year, 1106, instead of the 41st

⁴ Taken from Maāthır-ı-'Alamgīrī, p 390 ⁵ In Maāthır-ı-'Ālamgīrī, p 390, it is mustajama'-ı-marātıb-ı-bırr o ıhsān,

a jāgīr or employment and was kept in the Presence under surveillance To his disgust 1 some of the new Khānazāds rose into fame for military service Foi instance Tahawwur Khān, son of Salābat Khān and Jān Nithär Khan Khwaja Abul Makarım were sent off at this time to put down Santa the brigand and had a battle ² The whole army and park of the artillery were plundered and Jan Nithar Khan escaped half dead Tahawwur Khān was wounded, and flung himself among the dead 3 and so had a second life When this occurrence was reported to the King, he said "All these happenings are due to Destiny, and are not in anyone's power" When Khān Jahān heard this remark he said, "Good, there'll be no revising 4 of reports in heaven, to give and then take away (praise) In my long leadership I never had a defeat" False stories about him and tales, which reason cannot accept and which belong to the class of romances, are well known and are on men's lips 5 Although there can be no question about the merits and great qualities of Khān Jahān, for they followed close upon one another, yet a just review must admit that there was a strain of levity in him How could it be otherwise He advanced from 700, all at once to 5,000, without passing through the intermediate stages But it was strange that such a King as Aurangzīb, who was not wanting in wrath and pride, should have entertained a servant with such unrestrained presumption

In the end 6 of his days he showed the King in his hall of justice a small, round porcelain water-pot (aftaba) and said it had belonged to Moses—Peace be upon him! Aurangzīb looked at it and gave it to the Princes Muhammad Mu'ızz-ud-Din and Muhammad Mu'azzam were two lines resembling some writing engraved on the neck of the vessel The Princes said "This should be Hebrew" Bahadur examined the letters and said, "I know nothing about its being Hebrew-Ebrew—('Ibrānī mabrānī), some vendor put these marks on it" The King said "They are letters, the porcelain is not bad"

KHAN JAHAN BARAH

(Vol I, pp 758–766)

He was Saiyid Muzaffar Khān, one of the Tihanpūrī 7 Saiyids His name was Abūl Muzaffar In the 14th year of Jahāngīr's reign

Khān, II, p 297

¹⁻³ Khāfī Khān, II, p 417

⁴ The story comes apparently from Khāfī Khān, II, pp 417, 418, but if so, the author of the Maāthir-ul-Umarā has not quoted it correctly According to Khāfī Khān, Khān Jahān did not say that he never had a defeat, and it is not likely that he would say so, for it would not have been correct. What he said was—What is given in heaven, is given once for all (there is no revision there). And then Khārī Khān explains this as meaning that he, Khān Jahān, had never been defeated. But he does not put these vaunting words into his mouth

5 Probably this is an allusion to the romantic account of the battle from Khāfī

⁶ The story is from Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, p 371 The text has Chinīk bad nēst which does not seem intelligible. In the text of Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī we have Chinīk-i-bad nēst—the bit of China is not bad. A note to the text of the Maāthir-ul-Umarā says that several MSS have Khushk Kbushk āwardan means to keep silence, and perhaps what Aurangzib said was When such language is used, silence

⁷ The chief town of the Tihanpūrī Saiyids was Jānsath, see Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), pp 428-430

when Prince Sultan Khurram was sent to the Deccan, he in the battle with the Deccanis fought bravely and was wounded and fell on the field His military aptitude became impressed on the Prince When the Prince chose to separate himself from his respected father, and came t the Deccan, and when the crossing of the Narbadā by Mahābat Khā and Prince Sultan Parviz had made it impossible for the Prince to sta ın Burhānpūr, he went off by Sīkākōl (Chicacole) belonging to Qutb-u Mulk's territory towards Bengāl, and there fought a battle with Ibrāhīr Abūl Muzaffar distinguished himself in the battle Khān Fath Jang 1 and all the time during separation, was attached to the Prince's stirrup He served well and showed devotion and so gained a place in the Prince When the Prince ascended the throne he, in the first year, gav Abūl Muzaffar the rank 2 of 4,000 Dhāt with 3,000 horse and a flag an drums, and a horse from the special stables with a gilded saddle and th present of a lac of rupees He appointed him as the governor of the for of Gwaliyar, and placed its dependencies in his fief. In the same year he was sent with Mahābat Khān to chastise Jujhār Singh Bundēla who ha broken out into rebellion. On the representation of Mahābat Khā Khān-Khānān, his offences were overlooked, and the royal Dīvāns lef to him such portion of the territory in his possession as corresponde to the amount 3 of his mansab and assigned the excess of his jagir to Abūl Muzaffar and other officers In the 2nd year when Khān Jahā Lodi, on account of a suspicion which had arisen in his mind, fled from the Capital, Abūl Muzaffar was appointed, along with Khwāja Abūl Husan Turbatī, to pursue him In his alacrity he went off that same nigh without waiting for his leader and at six gharis of the day came up with Khān Jahān Lodī on the banks of the Chambal near Dholpur, and faced him bravely Muhammad Shafi' his grandson and nineteen of th Saiyids of Barah were killed, and fifty of his companions were wounded When this was reported to the King, Abul Muzaffar received an increas of 1,000 horse and a steed from the special stables with a gilded saddl and an elephant from the special herd In the third year he received a Khil'at, a decorated dagger and a horse from the special stables with gilded saddle and an elephant with gilded trappings and was appointed to the vanguard of the force which had been placed under A'zam Khān for the chastisement of Khān Jahān Lodī 4 Later 5, when it was heard that the $\underline{\mathsf{Kh}}$ ān was unable to ride on account of a swelling above the navel Jagjīvan, the surgeon, was directed to go and treat him, and the Khāi was told to return to the Court after convalescence Inasmuch as the surgeon on account of the amount of matter had to open the swelling and much pus had been removed, the Khān waited for some time for the wound to heal and then came to the Court The appreciative Sovereign gave him a Khil'at and an adorned dagger with phūt katāra 6 and an increase

¹ See Tūzuk-1-Jahangīrī (Rogers and Beveridge's translation), II, p 299, 'Amal 1-Sālih, I, pp 180-184, and Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 47-49

Bādshāhnāma, I, p 117
 Bādshāhnāma, I, p 255 His mansab was of 4,000 with 4,000 horse
 For the rebellion of Khān Jahān Lödī, see Banarsi Prasad, op cit, pp 66-79

⁵ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 316

⁶ Katāra is an Indian word for a dagger Phūl, i e flower, is a word used for embroidery, and phūl Latāra probably means a decorated dagger Bādshāhnāma loc cit of 1,000 Dhāt so that he had the rank of 5,000 with 4,000 horse, and was granted a horse with a gilded saddle from the special stables

When the territory of Nizām Shāh was trodden under the feet of the royal armies, Khān Jahān Lōdī saw it was difficult to remain there and went off to Malwa Abul Muzaffar, who was famed for bravery, and noble lineage, received a special Khil'at, and a sword, and a Qipchāq horse from the special stables and was sent to pursue him As 'Abdullah Khān Bahādur was also ordered to pursue him with a separate force, the order was passed that if 'Abdullah Khan Bahadur should come to the borders, both armies should join up and uproot the thornbush of sedition Saiyid Muzaffar Khān quickly crossed the Narbadā at the Akbarpūr ferry and sent out his scouts At the station of the village of Talgaon ın Mālwa 'Abdullāh Khān Bahādur joined him, and then they learnt at the village of Nīmī belonging to the country of Bāndhū—which is 15 kos from Sahenda and 30 from Allahābād—that Khān Jahān had taken to flight after the contest had failed The gallant men did not desist from pursuit, and after two days they came up with him, and an engagement took place He was killed in the encounter with the vanguard of Saiyid Muzaffar Khān and Saiyid Mākhan the son of Saiyid 'Abdullāh, the daughter's son of Saiyid Muzaffar Khān and 27 others attained martyrdom After that Saiyid Muzaffar Khān came to the Court and received an increase of 1,000 horse and was raised to the rank of 5,000 Dhāt o suwār and received the title of Khān Jahān year, he and his following consisting of 1,000 horse dū-aspa and sih-aspa (two-horse and three-horse) was sent off with Yamīn-ud-Daula to chastise 'Ādīl Khān of Bījāpūr In the 5th year he waited on the King and received an increase of 1,000 horse, $d\bar{u}$ -aspa and sih-aspa. In the 6th year he was granted a similar rise of rank Afterwards he was sent off with Prince Muhammad Shujā' to the siege of Parēnda He did good service on this occasion, and when the taking of the fort was delayed, the Prince, in accordance with the orders of Shah Jahan, came to the Court, and Saıyıd Khān Jahān quickly arrived and did homage near Āgra Sth year an addition was made of $d\bar{u}$ -aspa and sih-aspa troopers to his contingent, and in the same year he was appointed with other officers to chastise Jujhār Singh Bundēla who had rebelled When Jujhār Singh had after a struggle proceeded to Deogarh—which was near Berar and 'Abdullāh Khān Bahādur Fīrūz Jang and Khān Daurān were ordered to pursue him, Saiyid Khān Jahān halted in accordance with the commands to settle the conquered country and to search for the treasures hidden near Chūrāgarh After that he came to the Court when Shāh Jahān intended to visit Daulatābad and after crossing the Narbadā had encamped on its bank. He received a special Khil'at with a gold embroidered chārqab, a decorated dagger with a phūl-katāra, a decorated scimitar, and a lac of rupees in cash In the 9th year he received a special Khil'at, a special scimitar and a horse from the special stables and was sent off with a possé of officers to chastise 'Ādil Shāh Bījāpūrī He came from Bir to Dhārwār and leaving his baggage there proceeded to Sholapur On the way he sent men and took Saradhun He also attacked the fief of Rīḥān of Shōlāpūr and established a station (thāna)

¹ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 348 See also Banarsı Prasad, op cit, pp 77-79

at the town of Dhārāsīn 1 On several occasions he fought with the The said Khān displayed personal valour and every time inflicted disastrous defeat upon them

They say that one day Randaula 2 Bījāpūrī was wounded and fell from his horse but one of his companions brought him a horse and took him off the field After portions of the Bijapur territory had been devastated, and the ramy season had commenced the Khān turned back in order to go into quarters and came to Dhārwār Afterwards, when 'Adıl Khan came to terms and submitted, the said Khan, in accordance with orders, returned to the Court When in the end of the same year the King resolved to go to the Capital, the charge of the four provinces of the Deccan, that is, Khandesh, Berai, parts of Telingana, and some of Nızām-ul-Mulk's territory was made over to Prince, Saiyid Khān Jahān received a special Khil'at and was ordered, during the absence of the Khān Zamān at the sieges of Junan, etc., to remain in attendance on the In the 10th year he came to the Court and was sent to Gwaliyar -which formed a part of his fief In the 11th year he again came to the Court and as the King intended to go to Lahoie, Khan Jahan obtained leave to return to his fief In the 14th year he waited on the King in Lāhōie and received an increase of 1,000 horse so that his rank became 6,000 with 6,000 hoise, 5,000 of which were dū-aspa and sih-aspa this time, when Prince Jagat Singh the son of Rāja Bāsū iebelled, Khān Jahān was appointed with a force to chastise him and to take possession of his forts. At the time of taking leave he received a special Khil'at and two horses from the royal stables with gilded saddles and an elephant together with a female elephant and a lac of rupecs as an advance accordance with orders he spent the rainy season in Lahore and later when he had traversed the passes of Bahalwan³ and Machlibhawan he encamped within half a los of the foit of Nūipūi, and made excellent preparations by erecting earthworks and digging mines Though a bastion of the fort was blown up, but as the besieged had elected a wall behind each bastion, there was no means of entiry. Afterwards, in accordance with royal orders, he undertook the siege of Mau fort and displayed courage In the fights he so pressed the besieged that the royal forces were able to enter the fort on another side, and Jagat Singh took to flight a reward an addition of 1,000 dū-aspa and sih-aspa troopers was made to Afterwards, when Jagat Singh expressed his penitence, his offences were forgiven, and the said Khān returned to the Court with Prince Murad Bakhsh As in this year it was reported that Shah Safi, the ruler of Persia, was coming to take Qandahai, Prince Dārā Shikōh was deputed to check him The said Khān received a special Khil'at and an ornamented sword, and two horses from the royal stables with gilded saddles and an elephant, and was appointed to accompany the Prince

During this time the death of Shah Safi was reported year the Khān received permission to go to his Gwāliyār fief In the 17th year he again came to the Court and, when Shāh Jahān went to

Dhārāsiyūn in Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 157
He is the famous Bījāpūr general Randaula Khān, who played such an important part in the war against the imperialist army. The incident is mentioned in Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 157
Balahwān, Bādshāhnāma, II, p 261. For a connected account of the campaign against the Zamīndārs of Nūrpūr, see Banarsi Prasad, op cit, pp 93-102

Ajmēi, he was left in charge of Āgia — Aftei the ieturn of Shāh Jahān, he remained at the Court foi some time — In the 18th year he was allowed to go to his jāgīi — In the 19th year he was summoned and did homage in Lāhōre — In the middle of the same year corresponding to 1055 A H (1645 A D) he became paralytic and after remaining bedridden for two months died — The appreciative Sovereign grieved for his loss and made provision for his sons Saryid Mansūi — Khān, Sarvid Shēi Zamān and Saryid Munawwai — the two last became known as Saryid Muzaffai — Khān and Saryid Lashkai — Khān, a separate account 1 of them has been given

The Khān had a great name, and was possessed of much character and generosity He spent his life with honour. To every one of the royal servants who was associated with him he gave villages out of his fief He was very gentle and considerate They say that one day Shah Jahan seated him at his table and made him share his meal Afterwards when the King 105e, Khān Jahān 1an and placed his slippers under his feet. The King was angry and said, "You should have respect for your high. When a person has such a title, we and all the Princes, not to speak of the officers, need his support. And he does not make an exception in anybody's favour. The King said, 'In future in all proceedings the code (tōrah) and rules must be observed But they say that he did not succeed in worldly matters, and did not trust his officers favoured servants from his native land, and their statements were believed by him One day a collector who had embezzled five thousand rupees of the revenue of his $j\bar{a}g\bar{i}i$, sent through a servant ashrafis to the value of Rs 3,000, with the request that this was the sum due to the $D\bar{\imath}\iota\bar{a}n$ and the accountant, but that he was afiaid that they would tomorrow give a verdict for putting him to death. The said Khān was pleased and took the ashrafīs Though after this the clerks stated that Rs 5,000 of the revenue were due from him, the said Khān would not accept their statement

Кна́ n ² Јана́ n Lōdī (Vol I, pp 716-732)

He was the son of Daulat Khān Lōdī and belonged to the Shāhūkhaıl clan Hıs name was Pīi Khān In early youth he quarrelled with his father and came to Bengāl to Rāja Mān Singh with his elder brother Muhammad Khān One day, when they were desirous of crossing the river and entering the city (Gaur?) a dispute arose on board the boats, and it ended in a fight. It happened that two brother's sons of the Rāja were killed. After the Rāja had heard of what the two brothers had done in the matter he, on account of his former knowledge of them, presented them with Rs 30,000 and sent them away lest they should be maltreated by the Rājpūts. Muhammad Khān died in early youth and Pīrā had the good fortune to become a favourite with Prince Sultān Dāniyāl. They say his intimacy became such that they were inseparable, and that

 $^{^1}$ Maāthır ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 465–468 2 For a notice of Khān Jahān, see Khāfī Khān, I, p 411, etc. The Shāhūkhail clan is mentioned in Jarrett's translation of \bar{A} in, II, p 308 and in Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} in, I (2nd edn), p 564. For the origin of the Lōdīs, see Bellew's Races of Afghanistan, p 99. Shāhū perhaps refers to Shāh Husam the Lōdī the Prince spoke of him as his child (farzand) After the Prince's death, he in his twentieth year entered into the service of Jahangir and became a special favourite i First, he obtained the rank of 3,000, and the title of Salābat Khān and shortly afterwards received the high title of Khān Jahan and the rank of 5,000 In point of intimacy and the influence of his words he had no rival, and Jahangir ordered that he should have a seat in the Ghuslkhāna He repeatedly took him into the female apartments, and wished to marry him to a relation of the royalty, and to give him the title of Sultan Jahan He represented that the title of Sultān was reserved for princes, and that sitting in the King's presence, and entering the female apartments were also their privileges, and begged that he might be spared such ceremonials, and also that the proposed connection with the royalty might not take place. They say that Jahangir did not insist on the relation of master and servant between them, and treated him as a friend But he did not withdraw himself from service and did not extend his foot beyond the proper limits Prince Parvīz was appointed to the Deccan, along with Rāja Mān Singh and Sharif Khān the Amir-ul-Umarā to assist Khān-Khānān, the work did not make much progress, and in the year 1018 AH (1609 AD) Khān Jahān was sent with 12,000 horse to assist the imperialists the time of his departure, the King descended from the public and private sharōka and placed his own turban on Khān Jahān's head, and took his hand and set him on his horse. An order was passed that as he went he should beat his drums On one side the King, and on the other Khān Jahan indulged in unrestrained weeping on account of the impending separation At every stage presents for him arrived from the King Khān Jahān did not delay in Buihānpūr but proceeded towards Bālāghāt where the imperial camp was A great battle took place at Malkapur with Malik 'Ambar The Hindustani (i e up-country) soldiers, who did not know the Parthian 2 tactics of the Deccan, went on lapidly and suffered much loss After that Khān-Khānān came, and treated him with much politeness, and conveyed him to the Bālāghāt As it had been arranged by the Emperor that on one side Khān Jahān should advance with the army of the Deccan, and on the other 'Abdullah Khan's Zakhmī should advance to Daulatābād with the Gujarāt army, and so

Beveridge's translation of $T\bar{u}zul$ -i-Jahāng $\bar{i}r\bar{i}$, I, p 87

² $Bxrg\bar{i}$ $gir\bar{i}$, cf Elliot, VI, p 428, last line Barg \bar{i} is a name for the Mahrattas For an account of the battle, see Khāfi Khān, I, p 318 and Beni Prasad, History of

Jahangir, pp 261, 262

¹ There is a detailed account of Khān Jahān and his ancestors in Rogers and

³ It is not clear why the epithet Zakhmī is added to the name of 'Abdullāh He is 'Abdullāh Khān Fīrūz Jang of Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text II, pp 777-789 Perhaps chashm zakhmi, the defeated, is what is meant In the notice of Khan Jahan Lödī (p 718) it is said that Malik 'Ambar intrigued with Khān-Khānān, and that accordingly the latter detained Khān Jahān Lōdī in Zafarnagar by pretexts and so brought about 'Abdullāh Khān's defeat whereas in (Text II, p 780) in the account of 'Abdullāh Khān it is said that this account is not correct, as Khān-Khānān was not then in the Decan but had returned to the Court of the Maāthir-ul-Umarā has confounded two events. The time when Malik' Ambar is said to have intrigued with Khān-Khānān was the 5th year of Jahāngīr's reign (vide Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk-i Jahāngīrī, I, p 179, and Elliot, VI, p 323) This was not the time when 'Abdullah was defeated and had to make a shameful retreat, as that occurred some three years later in the 7th year of Jahāngīr's reign, see Rogers and Beveridge, $op\ cit$, p 219, and Khāfī Khān, I, pp 273, 274 surround Malik Ambai, and chastise him, they say that the latter got alarmed and intrigued with Khān-Khānān The latter accordingly by stratagem detained Khān Jahān for some time in Zafarnagar so that 'Abdullah Khan reached Daulatabad and was defeated and had to make a shameful retreat Malık 'Ambar having got 11d of him addiessed himself to plundering the grass and food for Khān Jahān's camp The price of corn rose so high that a sēr could not be had for a rupee There was also a great mortality among the quadrupeds He was reduced to complete confusion and had to make a sort of peace and return to Burhanpur The disaster attached a stigma to the name of Khān-Khānān Khān Jahan wrote 1 that "all this has occurred from the hypocrity of the old Things must either be left to him, or he must be summoned to the Court, and I with 30,000 cavalry will in two years after relieving the fortiesses make Bijāpūr part of the empire, or not show my face among the royal servants" Accordingly, the management of the whole affair of the Deccan was entrusted to Khan Jahan, and Khan A'zam Koka, Khān 'Ālām and other officers were added to the former auxiliaries and Khān-Khānān hastened back to the Court But the secret treachery of the royal officers still persisted, and nothing could be achieved Jahan was censured and given the fief of Thanesar 2 and made to reside ın İhchpür while the command was transferred to khān A'zam After a year, when Khan Jahan came to the Court, his old intimacy and influence were restored, and there was not a han breadth of difference. In the 15th year when it appeared that the Qazalbāsh (Persian) was trying to conquer Qandahāi, Khān Jahān was appointed governor s of the province of Multan and sent to his post. In the beginning of the 17th year when Shāh 'Abbās took the fort of Qandahār after a siege of forty days, Khān Jahan in accordance with orders, went with all haste to the Court to advise about this matter. But his return at such a time was regarded by those who did not know of the royal orders, as a slight to Khān Jahān and indicating that he was not a leader. They were sure that on this occasion he would fall from his rank, and that he may not escape even with his life The facts are that commands repeatedly came to him to the effect that he should beware of making an attempt on the fort and that only princes could oppose princes. After his arrival at the Court, it was settled that until the Prince came he should proceed to Multan and arrange for the expedition

They say that many of Afghān tribes from the neighbourhood of Qandahār came to Multān and said to Khān Jahān that on account of tribal feeling, if government would give five tankas (piee) a day per horseman, and two tankas for footsoldiers—which amount was indispensable for food—they would serve in his van in large numbers till they had conquered Işfahān—They also promised that they would provide the

¹ Rogers and Bevendge, op cit, p 179 and Elliot, VI, p 323, and Iqbāl-nāma-i-Jahānqīrī, p 45 Fcr a connected account of the Decean campaigns, see Beni Prasad, History of Jahanqir, pp 261-266

² This is a mistake for Thālnēr
³ See Rogers and Beveridge, op cit, II, p 191, for the appointment of Khān Jahān as governor of Multān, there he is designated my son farzand. According to the Tūzuk it was not till the beginning of the 17th year that there was any indication that the Persian king would attack Qandahār (p 233). Khān Jahān was recalled and then sent in advance of the expedition against Qandahār.

camp with grain at the rate of five sers (seers) for the rupee Khān Jahān said that if ever the King came to know of this kind of agreement he would never allow him to live Meanwhile the heavens caused another revolution, for there arose a disagreement between the King and the henapparent Shah Jahan and there was disturbance and war The despatch of troops against Qandahār was stopped, and repeated orders were sent, summoning Khān Jahān At last the King wrote "If at this time Shēr Khān Sūr were living, he would in spite of all his enmity come to us, and yet you have not come!" It happened that Khān Jahān fell ill, and for thirteen days and nights he was insensible After his arrival at the Court he was ordered to guard the fort of Agra and the treasures there, and to take 1 up his abode at Fathpūr Sīkiī In the 19th year he on the death of the Khān A'zam Kōka was appointed governor of Gujarāt When Mahābat Khān was removed from the guardianship of Sultan Parviz and made governor of Bengal, Khan Jahan was appointed in his place and joined the Prince in Burhanpur In the 21st year, 1035 A H, when Sultan Parviz died, the whole management of the Deccan was entrusted to Khān Jahān He went to the Bālāghāt to chastise Fath Khān, the son of Malık 'Ambar, who was stirring up commotion in the imperial territory, and did not draw rein till he came to Khirki that time, Hamid Khan 2 the Abyssinian—whose wife managed the army was the Prime Minister of Nizām Shāh He had recourse to cajclery and deceived Khān Jahān into making over the royal territory to him for a tribute of three 3 lacs of hūns Accordingly, the faujdārs and thānadārs of Bālāghāt, in accordance with the letters from Khān Jahān, made over their posts to the agents of Nizām Shāh and assembled at Burhānpūr, with the exception of Sipahdāi Khān 4 who did not surrender Ahmadnagar on the plea of not having received the King's orders They say that Khān Jahān out of his fai-sightedness, by this kindness to the Nizām Shah, made him his friend in contemplation of his having a place of refuge on the day of misfortune At any rate the stain of this evil deed remained on his reputation. At the same time when Mahābat Khān withdrew from the Court with evil designs and joined Shah Jahan in Junair, Jahangir gave his title of the Commander-in-chief to Khan Jahan Many days had not elapsed when Jahangir went to the other world Shāh Jahān sent Jān Nithāi Khān 5—who was a confidential and tactful servant—to Khān Jahān with a gracious farmān and an order for the confirmation of his governorship of the Deccan Jan Nithar Khan was to ascertain further his secret sentiments and to ask his opinion about Shāh Jahān's marching by way of Burhānpūt But Khān Jahān, although he had not fallen short in serving the Prince at the time when he was in Junair, at this time accepted the instigation of Daiyā Khān Rölmla and the advice of Fadil Khan the Diran of the Deccan, who sud that Sultan Dawar Bakhsh had been placed on the throne in the camp, and that Shahrivar was laying a claim to the sovereignty in Lahore

¹ He could hardly protect Āgra if he staved in Fathpur Sīkiī some 24 miles a vav Khāfī Khān I, p 343, savs he was left in Āgra in the 19th year 2 Khāfī Khān I, p 381

Mati Man 1, p 381
 It is three lass in Iqbālnāma 1-Jahāngīrī, see Elliot, VI, p 433 Khāfī Khan, I, pp 411 and 429 speaks of sir lass of hūns

¹ Klianjar Khān in Khāfī Khān loc cit but it is Diyānat Kliān on p 429 5 Kliāfī Kliān, I, p 391, and Banar-i Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 68, 69

also said that Shāh Jahān—to whom he had rendered such services—had been joined by Mahābat Khān the day before yesterday, and that Shāh Jahān had given him the title of Sipahsālār which had been conferred on him (Khān Jahān) by the (late) King (Jahāngīi) "You", he said, "are, by the goodness of God, master of forces and of tribes, enter the service of whoever becomes the King" As the time of his fall was near at hand he, in spite of all his knowledge and ability—in which respects he was the unique of the age—made a mistake and sent back Jān Nīthār Khān without even replying to the farmān

When it was reported that Shah Jahan had sent Mahabat Khan from Gujarāt against Māndū—where Khān Jahān's family was—he renewed the treaty with the Nizām Shāh and left Sikandai Dūtānī to guard Burhanpui He himself came with the auxiliary officers to Māndū and took Mālwa from Muzaffar Khān Ma'mūrī who was the The loyal officers all gathered lound him and many of them said "If you wish to fight we all shall help you" When they saw that Khān Jahān had not made up his mind, and that they would have a bad name to no purpose, they tuined away from him and went off to the Presence (of Shāh Jahān) And Khān Jahān when he perceived that Shāh Jahan had marched by Gujarat and that all the officers and Rajas from all quarters had appeared before him—and it became apparent that the accession of Dawar Bakhsh was only a ruse, and was an adumbiation of Shāh Jahān's sovereignty arranged by Asaf Khān, he saw that what he (Shāh Jahān) had done was proper (i e in sending Jān Nithār Khān But as the opportunity was gone, what was the good of He sent his Vakīl to the Court and after the accession sent repentance! a tribute along with a coronet (sihia) of pearls Shāh Jahān, who was a world of knowledge and graciousness, ignored his evil behaviour and made 1 him governor of Malwa In the 2nd year when he came to the Court after having settled the punishment of Jujhāi Bundēla, though all the $Am\bar{\imath}\imath s$ did not receive him as in the time of Jahāngīr, yet the King ² ın order to please him sent away to Delhī 3 Mahābat Khān—who had become Khān-Khānān, and was always lording over everybody—and bowed his head to no one But

Verse

That cup was broken and that cupbearer was no more

Where was the respect with which he had been treated by his master? Where was the public and private reception? Moreover there was no sincerity on either side. An order was given "Why have you all this army with you at the Court? You must discharge it." Also under some pretext some valuable properties were taken from him. Continually, during the eight months that he was at the Court he was suspicious on account of his own actions, and lived unhappily and was agitated mght, in the Darbār, Mīrzā Lashkaiī the son of Mukhlis Khān said in his hotheaded way to the Khān Jahān's sons, "Today or tomoirow they'll imprison your father" When these idle words, which had no trace of the truth, reached Khan Jahan, he, by reason of his seeing that he was out of favour, fell into confusion and suspense and confined himself to his Shāh Jahān sent Islām Khān to him and asked for an explanation He, being dominated by apprehensions, represented the alienation of the King's favour from him, and prayed that he might be favoured with a letter of security (amān-nāmā) in the King's own hand sent him such a letter and Yamin-ud-Daula Asaf Khān sympathetically said to him, "If you are to become a heimit, it is proper that we all should today become your companions" As the materials for his fall and ruin were apparent, he could not be reassured, and after the manner 2 of timid traitors suspicion augmented his suspicion

¹ Khāfī Khān, I, p 412

The account of Khān Jahān's behaviour after the death of Jahāngīr, etc, may be compared with the account of Fādil Khān in Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text III, pp 19, 20, Beveridge's translation, p 549

³ Khāfī Khān, I, p 412, has the Deccan, but Delhī seems more correct, see Bādshāhnāma, I, p 352

They say that one night, when he wanted to leave Agia and take the road of vagabondage, Aşaf Khān heard of it and reported the fact to the Emperor He replied that as the promise had been written, it was not right to hinder him or to inflict punishment before the offence is committed They were still conversing when news of his absconding was brought Immediately Khwāja Abūl Hasan Turbatī and other officers were deputed to pursue him

They say it was the midnight 3 of the Diwali, 27th Safr, 1039 A H when he came out of his house at Agra When he came to the Hatiyāpūl Gate, he threw the reins of his horse's neck and lowering his head on his saddle-bow said, "O God, Thou knowest that I am leaving in order to save my honour and that there is no rebellion in my heart" When he came to Dholpur 4, the first persons to encounter him were Muzaffar Khān Bārah, Rāja Bēthal Dās, and Khidmat Parast Khān A great fight took place Husain and 'Azmat, his two sons, Shams his son-in-law, with his 5 two brothers Muhammad and Mahmud who were grandsons of 'Alam Khān Lōdī—who was an old leader of the Afghāns—together with sixty of his chief servants, such as Bhīkan Khān Qurēshī, and others Khān Jahān personally fought bravely and was wounded and endeavoured to reach the river Chambal, but on account of the violence of the current his women were not able to cross His wife and daughters and some trustworthy dependants (asāmī) were put into litters on elephants and left behind in great agitation and confusion

at Delhi, but the elephants were originally at Agra

 $^{^1}$ Khāfī Khān, I, p 412 See also Elliot, VII, pp 8, 9, and $B\bar{a}dsh\bar{a}hn\bar{a}ma$, I, p 273 The story is told with more detail and some verbal differences in $Ma\bar{a}t\underline{h}vr$ ul-Umarā, Text III, p 430, in the notice of Mukhlis Khān For a detailed account of Khān Jahān during Shāh Jahān's reign, see Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 66-79

² Khāfī Khān, I, p 412
³ Two hours after nightfall, Khāfī Khān, I, p 414 Bādshāhnāma, I, p 275, gives the date of flight as Sunday, 26 Safr See Banarsi Prasad, op cit, p 71, where the date is given as October 5, 1629

⁴ Eighteen kos from Āgra There is, or was, a Hatiyāpūrī oi Elephent Gate

⁵ That is Shams's brothers, Bādshāhnāma, I, p 278 Cf with Maāthin-ul-Umarā, I, p 715 'Ālām Khān Lodī had been killed along with Rāja 'Alī of Khāndesh in the great battle against Suhail

Verse 1.

I've brought myself half alive out of the valley of death, 'Tis enough to have saved this out of a long march

On account of the delay of the 10yal army for a night 2 and a day Khān Jahān clossed the rivel. He then entered the jungles of the country of Jujhār Bundēla. He took unfrequented ways and proceeded to Gōndwāna. Bikramājīt the son of Jujhāl 3 ignoled his coming, otherwise he could have apprehended him Khān Jahān reposed for a time in Lānjī and then went by Berār to the country of Nizām Shāh Bahlūl Khān Mivāna the jāgārdār of Bālāpūr, and Sikandar Dūtānī joined him. Nizām Shāh regarded his coming as a great gain and received him with much cordiality and pitched his tents outside of Daulatābād

When Khān Jahān came near his enclosure (sarāparda) and had not yet alighted from his horse, Nizām-ul-Mulk came out to welcome him, and placed him on the masnad, and himself took a seat on its corner He gave him money for his expenses and assigned to him pargana Bīr as his tankhuāh, though it was an imperial thāna. He also gave fiefs to his companions and dismissed them. He himself proceeded to collect his army. In the beginning of the 3rd year, Shāh Jahān came to Burhān-pūr and made it his residence to uproot him. Three bodies of troops consisting of 50,000 cavalry were despatched under the leadership of A'zam 4 Khān Sāvajī the governor of the Deccan. Khān Jahān confronted him with 40,000 cavalry of Nizām Shāh and others

They say that on the day of battle he was sitting in his palanguin smoking and that 'Azīz Khān his son said to him, "If you want to give battle you should mount your horse and attack, otherwise why are you running the world?" He replied, "Do you believe that we shall prevail over the royal army? Alas! It has God-given Fortune by these strugglings of a slaughtered animal an atonement may be made, and that there may be some hope for you, and that I may go to Mecca " These words of Khan Jahan caused the dispersal of the Afghans who had come from Upper India with the idea of obtaining the sovereignty (of When the rains came, Khān Jahān took up his quarters in the village of Rājaurī four kos from the town of Bū, and in the slope of the When the rains ended, Mugarrab Khān the leader of the Nizām-Shāhī army and Bahlūl Khān on the approach of the army of A'zam Khān withdrew to Dhārwār from Jālnāpūr Daryā Khān Rōhila had not joined (Khān Jahān), when A'zam Khān saw his opportunity and set out from Dēvalgāon and crossed the Godāvarī, and from Manjhalīgāon fell upon Khān Jahān who had not more than 400 horse Khān Jahān prepared for the battle and sent off his women to the hills, and came out to fight When he reached the highlands of Rājaurī an engagement took place between Bahādur Khān Lodī, the brother's son of Khān Jahān, and Bahādur Khān Rōhila Brave deeds were done on both sides, and though Bahādūr

¹ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 279

² The army halted for seven watches, Bādshāhnāma, I, p 280

³ Jujhār was then in the Deccan It is said there that Bikramājīt guided him out of his country to Göndwāna, see Banarsi Prasad, op cit, p 73

⁴ From Sāvā in Persia, also called Irādat Khān, see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, I, pp 174–180, Beveridge's translation, pp 315–319

Khān Rōhila fell on the field, the imperial aimy arrived with help Bahādui Khān Lodi lost heart and sought to fly Rāja Bihāi Singh Bundela came up to that doomed man and killed him Khan Jahan went off with his women on horseback from Sīvagāon and came to Darvā Khān joined him on the way From there he hastened to Daulatābād, and rested for a while Though they urged him to sit upon the throne, he replied "Fifty years of my life have gone, I do not know if after me my sons will be fit for the sovereighty Every Mughal will expel an Afghan with insult from the towns and country and then the maidservants of the Afghans will execuate me (ht will take my name and strike their slippers on the ground), saying 'We have come to this state by his wickedness I cannot stand all this beating with slippers. Bahlūl and Sikandai became displeased and left him Noi did he see much kindness on the part of the Nizām Shāh Rather there were signs of the use of disaffection. He was disgusted with his interested friendship, and at the advice of Daivā Khān Röhila, Aimal Khān Tarīn, and Sadi Khān formed the plan of going to the Panjāb so that he might stir up commotion there with the help of the Afghans He came from Daulatābād to Antūr¹, and passing by Dharangāon² and Amba Pātar proceeded towards Mālwa 'Abdullāh Khān Fīrūz Jang and Sarvid Muzaffar Khān Bārah pursued him. He was unable to halt. He continued his march plundering as he want. Near Saronj he seized 50 of the royal elephants and entered the Bundela territory so that he might reach Kālpī Biki amājīt the son of Jujhāi Bundēla to amend his former fault attacked the rear which was commanded by Daryā Khān and in that struggle Daryā Khān was killed Khān Jahān was grieved at the death of such a companion and continued his march. When he came to the territory of Bhander 3, Sarvid Muzaffar Khan Barah of the King's vanguard nearly caught him up Khān Jahān sent on his family, and with 1,000 horse engaged in hot battle His son Mahmud Khan and many Khān Jahān was helpless and turned his rein he came to Kālinjar, Saiyid Ahmad the governor of the fort barred his In that fight his son Hasan Khān was made prisoner Khān Jahan went on, a doomed man, some twenty los more, and halted at the bank of a tank at Sahīnda 3 He said to his men, "The roval army does not cease from following us and is close upon our heels. How long shall I fly? All our relatives and clansmen have been killed. I too am satiated with life There is no remedy save death. Whoever wishes, may leave He distributed to them whatever (pioperty) remained Many went off on 1 Rajab (24th January, 1631 AD), the others advanced with firm foot and engaged Saiyid Muzaffar Khān Bārah At last Khān Jahān dismounted along with his son 'Azīz Khān, Aimal Khān Taiīn, and Sadı Khān, and fought with swords and daggers as long as there was life in their bodies. He fell to the ground from an arrow 4 (bullet?) of Mādhū Singh 'Abdullāh Khān Zakhmī (the wounded) sent his head to the Court, and it was shown to Shah Jahan while he was taking an airing in a boat on the Taptī in Burhanpūi In accordance with his

Katal Antūr, Khāfī Khān, I, p 437
 Dharangāon and Jōpra, Khāfī Khān I, p 437
 Elhot, VII, p 21 note 2
 A spear (barchā), see Bādshāhnāma, I, p 351, and Elhot, VII, p 22 orders it was buried in his father's tomb ${\rm T\bar{a}lib^{\,1}}$ Kalīm wrote this quatrain

Quatrain

This pleasant news was an additional ornament, What joy did not this end of two evils cause, The departure of Daryā made the head of Pīrā depart, As if his head were a bubble of the river

The following chronogram enigmatically 2 gives the date

 $Ki\ \bar{a}h\ o\ nalah\ az\ Afgh\bar{a}n\ bar\ \bar{a}mad$ (Sighs and laments emerged from the Afgh \bar{a} ns)

In their accounts of Khān Jahān contemporaries have added too much or stated too little—Some maintain that in reality he had no intention to rebel—All that happened was done in self-defence (khud dārī) Others say that he was a born rebel and recalcitrant, and observe no bounds in their abuse of him—Leaving aside the words of his detractors and panegyrists, what comes out from his history is that he was a straight 3 and honest man—He was not a time-server or a double-faced person. The blows of circumstance had not touched him—The word of check had not reached his ear, and all out of envy were lying in wait for him. The King of India (Jahāngīr) with all his glory and grandeur was enamoured of him—Out of pride and unconciliatory nature of his temperament he did not bow his head to heaven or prince (falak o mallak)

One day Shah Jahān apropos of something said to Saiyid Khān Jahān Bārah, "This title is of a man from whom we and all the princes desire to receive attention, but he out of contempt says nothing to anybody" All at once the jugglery of the heavens produced a new world, and there was a new arrangement on the carpet of universe His distinction and intimacy no longer existed. Men who had not been admitted 4 to his presence claimed to be his equals, or rather they raised their heads above him. The exhibition (by him) of some disrespectful actions—which were regarded at the Court as sedition and rebellion—produced the result that every want of attention was regarded as an affront, and every idle word as the sound of banishment. Moreover he was jealous and proud, and far from affable. He felt out of place, and his heart was aggieved. He preferred vagabondage and a death 5 in the desert. To the lofty minded no evil is more intolerable than disgrace after honour. So he brought himself to where he brought

¹ Commonly called Abū Tālib See Rieu, II, p 686 He was a native of Hamadān, and became Shāh Jahān's poet laureate His quatram is a play on the word Darvā which means both the Daryā Khān who was Khān Jahān's follower and a river Pīrā was Khān Jahān's name, Pīr Muhammad and may also stand for evil The quatram is given in Bādshāhman, I, p 352

The chronogram is ingenious $Az Af \eta h \bar{a} n$ yields 1040, the proper date, but the word for Afghāns, 1 e for the plural number is Afghānān = 1091. We deduct a, and n = 51 from this, as representing ah sighs, and $n\bar{a}lah$ laments and so get 1040. There is also a play on the word Afghān which means laments as well as an Afghān

The author passes lightly over this selling the Deccan to Nizām Shāh
Perhaps persons who had not his privilege of admission to the Emperor himself At first all his dangerous outbreaks were the result of nothing but a desire to preserve his honour and status. Afterwards other designs were mixed up with them. Or rather they became necessary, $e\,g\,$ his collecting troops and his alliance with Nizām-ul-Mulk. If the die had been cast aright and Time had been his friend how could the love of the world's glory ever have made him bow his head for service!

⁵ Bıyābān margī, desert pestilence?

In fine, Khām Jahām was possessed of mildness and clemency, and could not bear to injuie ony one. Though he was a Sunnī he was specially inclined towards the people of Persia. His father was well known as a Shī'a, and there was a saying of his that there could be no courage without submission to Murtadā 'Alī. At last, Khām Jahām, from companionship with Shaikh Fadl Ullāh of Burhāmpūr took a fancy foi Sufīsm, and spent his nights with Darvīshes and 'Ulamā, and expressed an aversion to the world. There was nothing startling or extraordinary about his household management. His expenses were sometimes three lacs a month, and sometimes less. There was a little saving after expenditure. He did not himself look after matters, and was not friendly with Hindūs. He procrastinated about the taking of accounts from collectors, and other similar matters. He had many sons. Some died on the field of battle, and Asālat Khām, who held the rank of 3,000, died in Daulatābād during the period of exile. Muzaffar left his father and went to the Court, and Farīd and Jahām¹ were made prisoners. 'Ālam and Ahmad fled, but after a time came to the Court. Up to the present day none of his descendants has arrived at eminence.

Khān Zamān.

(Vol I, pp. 785-792.)

He was Mīr Khalīl the second son of A'zam Khān 2 Jahāngīrī and son-in-law of Yamīn-ud-Daula Āsaf Khān Khān-Khānān the Sipahsālār In company with his father he performed distinguished actions, and was the Mīn shamshēr (sword-arm) and main support of his father During the time of the government of Jaunpūr by A'zam Khān, his son exerted himself to such a degree in overthrowing the seditious and rebellious that even the name rebel did not remain in that quarter Wherever he heard that there was a strong fort, he either by stratagem or by courage pulled it down Many fortresses which were full of guns, and which former governors had taken a long time to subdue, were overthrown by him in so short a time that no trace of them remained When his father died 3, he received the rank of 1,000 with 700 horse

They say that he performed ⁴ Rustam-like feats in the faujdārī of Nārnōl ⁵ which was a perpetual hot-bed of sedition near the Capital He made a tank there called the Khalīl Sāgar which eclipsed the fame of

¹ Jān Jahān, Bādshāhnāma, I, p 351 ² His name was Mīr Muhammad Bāqir, ahās Irādat Khān, see Beale, p 88 He was brother of Āsaf Khān Ja'far Bēg Jahāngīr refers to him under the name of Irādat He did not get the title of A'zam Khān Jahān's neign

 ³ Khāfī Khān, I, p 685, m 1058 A H (1648 A D)
 4 He cannot be Kārtalab Khān of Khāfī Khān, II, pp 252, 253, who put down the Satnāmīs of Nārnöl m 1082 A H

⁵ In the Patiāla State, Panjāb, and not very near Delhī

the tank which had been made by Shāh Qulī Mahiam 1, who had been jagīrdār there for forty years In the 3rd year (of Shāh Jahān) he had an increase of 500, and was appointed to the Deccan along with his elder brother Multafat Khān In the same year the office of Superintendent of the artillery for the whole of the Deccan was, at the request of Shāyısta Khān the Governor, conferred upon him Such an airangement as he made of the establishment had not been made by any of the governors (of the Deccan) He personally visited all the foits, and examined minutely all details, and provided each with bullets, lead and gunpowder He caused the muster of all the old artificers and workmen $(ahsh\bar{a}m^2)$, who for years had, by means of favouritism and bribery, spent their days in comfort and the enjoyment of promotion³, with or without providing substitutes He built a wall three yards in height and breadth as a target, and tested every musketeer by making him aim at it from a distance of forty paces three times Whoever did not even once hit the mark was dismissed He reduced the allowances of some weak and disabled men, and kept them under surveillance In this manner, he in one and a half months saved for the exchequer Rs 50,000 and made his own honesty, skill and perspicacity apparent to the In the 27th year he obtained the rank of 2,000 with 1,000 horse and the title of Muftakhir Khān On the death of 'Arab Khān he was made governor of the forts of Fathābād and Dhāiwār As during his service in the Deccan he had impressed his character for devotion, etc., on the mind of Prince Aurangzīb, the Viceroy of the Deccan, so when confusion arose and the Prince resolved to proceed to the Capital, Khān Zamān accompanied him After reaching Burhānpūr he was granted an increase of 1,000 with 1,000 horse and rose to the rank of 3,000 with 2,000 horse and was made Mīr Bakhshī with the title of Sipahdār Khān After the battle with (Mahārāja) Jaswant he received the title of Khān Zamān and the present of a $t\bar{o}gh$, and a drum After the overthrow of Dārā Shikōh, and the success of 'Ālamgīn the office of $M\bar{\imath}\imath$ $Ba\underline{kh}sh\bar{\imath}$ was restored to Muhammad Amīn Khān, the son of Muhammad Mu'azzam Khān (Mīr Jumla), and Khān Zamān on account of his usefulness in the Deccan had an increase of 1,000 and attained the rank of 4,000 with 2,000 horse and was made governor of the fort of Zafarābād Bīdar which had been added to the imperial territories by Aurangzīb Afterwards he was appointed to the management of the affairs of Ahmadnagar 9th year he was, in succession to Dā'ūd Khān Qurēshī made governor of Khāndēsh, and in the 18th year he had the rank of 5,000 with 3,000 horse and was made governor of Berär In the 20th year he was made governor of Zafarābād Bīdar and had the charge of that fort assigned to him the 24th year he came 4 with Shāh 'Alam from the Deccan to Ajmēr, and did homage For some days he was attached to the stirrups of the Prince and engaged in the pursuit of Akbar, the rebel (Prince Akbar), and in the chastisement of the Rājpūts In the same year he was appointed again to serve in Burhānpūr as governor in succession to Īrij Khān, and had an increase of 1,000 horse

¹ Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), pp 387, 388
2 For $Ahsh\bar{a}m$, see Irvine, Army of the Indian Moghuls, p 160, etc
3 Ba'ıwaz o bılā'ıwaz But the variant bē'ıwaz o bılā'ıwaz, without giving a substitute or doing any work, appears to be more appropriate
4 Maāthīr-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 209

It chanced that in the same year 1, viz, 1091 A.H (1680 AD) Sambā Sawā'ī had, before the arrival of the Khān made a night-march of 35 kos and fallen upon Bahādurpūra two kos from Burhānpūr and had insulted the Muhammadans and infidels, and plundered their property Some of the leading men had time to perform the johar for their wives and children, and many took to flight with their families Afghān who, as Khān Zamān's deputy was guarding the city (Burhānpūr), protected it with great difficulty. As the learned men and the Shaikh's of the city left off public prayers and reported to the Court the predominance of the infidels—who plundered the Muhammadans at their pleasure —Amangzīb proceeded towards the Deccan from Amēr On 122 Dhul Qa'da of the 25th year, the King arrived at Burhanpur, and Khan Zaman the Governor of the area paid his respects

When in the same year, Rabi' I, 1093 AH (February, 1682 AD) Aurangzīb proceeded to Aurangābād, Prince Muhammad Mu'izz-ud-Dīn was appeinted to stay in Burhanpur, and went from Bahadurpura, Khan Zaman was appointed to wait upon the Prince At the same time Khān Zamān was appointed 3 to the government of Mālwa in succession to Mukhtai Khan In the end of the 27th year, 1095 AH (1681 AD) he died there He was well versed in every science and was famed for his calligraphy He was skilled in polite literature and was an able man of business. He did not need the guidance of others in transacting affairs, and he was a man of pleasant manners He was skilful in collecting men—especially were his uncring marksmen—who could sew up the eye of a snake on a dark night with a fire-bearing arrow—famous throughout the world He was deeply skilled in music, and in spite of his being immersed in business he was devoted to singing and amusement (1ag-orang) He had in his house fair y-faced songsters and attractive musicians The famous Zamābādī, who was the beloved of Amangzīb when a Prince. It is stated that she was his (Khān Zamān's) mistress

They say that the Prince went one day to the world-adorning garden of Zamābād in Burhānpūr which was commonly called the Deer-Park $(Ah\bar{u} \, \underline{kh\bar{a}}na)$, and paid a visit to the ladies of the harem there a banquet with his familiais and stiolled about with them Zamābādī 4 was unique as a songstiess and excelled in her beauty. She came with Khān Zamān's noble consort—who was the Prince's maternal aunt (sister of Mumtāz Mahal the wife of Shāh Jahān), and in the course of the walk she saw a mango tree laden with fruit Without considering the respect

¹ It was the 23id year of Aurangzīb, Khāfī Khān, II, p 272 See, howevei, Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzīb, IV, p 244, and Kincaid and Parasanis History of the Maratha People, p 119, from which it will be seen that the attack was in January or February 1681 AD or in 1092 AH Sawā'ī seems to have been a title which Sambhā gave to himself, see Khāfī Khān, II, p 384 It was a title afterwards given to Jai Singh of Jaipūr Perhaps it was a Rājpūt title and taken by Sambhā as showing his Rājpūt desent taken by Sambhā as showing his Rājpūt descent

² The 14th according to Khāfî Khān, II, p 278, and Elliot, VII, p 310

³ Maāthir-i-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 220 His death occurred in the end of the 27th year, and Mughal Khān was appointed as his successor early in the 28th year, vide op p 246

⁴ Apparently she was so called from living at the garden (the name signifies the abode of grace) The garden seems to have been that made on the bank of the Tāptī by Khān Daurān, see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, I, p 757 See also Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzib, I, pp 56-58 for a detailed account of Zamābādī due to the Prince, she ran forward joyfully and playfully, and leapt up on the tree and plucked a fruit. This movement was a heart-robbing one and it robbed the Prince of his self-control and his virtue.

Verse

It was a wondrous snare of love's robbenes. The friendly glance of the beloved was more than friendship

By begging and imploing he obtained possession of her from his indulgent aunt and with all his asceticism and purity he gave his heart to her and used to fill a cup of wine with his own hand and give it to her

It is stated that she too one day put a cup of wine into the Prince s hand and urged him to drink it. Though he begged and prayed, she had no pity on him and the Prince was helpless, and was about to drink it, when the sly gul drank it off herself, saying. It was to test your love and not to make your palate bitter with this liquor full of evil. This passionate love giew to such an extent that Shah Jahan heard of it Dārā Shikoh—who heartily disliked him—made the story a ground of calumny and detraction and said to Shah Jahan "What restraint and self-control has that hypocritical ascetic he is ruining himself for a gul of his aunt's" As Fate decreed, the flower of her life faded in its spring, and the Prince was marked with the perpetual scar of separation tomb is in Aurangabad near the great tank. As the death of one's beloved robs a man of his power, the Prince became altered on the day of her death and in his restlessness resolved to go out hunting 'Askaiī' 'Aqıl Khan was in his ietinue, and when he had an opportunity of speaking privately to him he said "Will it be advisable for you to go hunting when in this state (of mind) ?" In reply the Prince recited the verse

Laments at home comfort not the heart, In the desert one can weep one s fill

'Āqıl Khān recited this verse as suitable to the occasion

Veise 2

How easy Love appeared Alas! how hard it was! How hard was parting, what rest the Beloved attained!

The Prince was touched, and committed the verse to memory Khān Zamān during his government of Berār chose the village of Harm three kos from Thehpūr, which is the Capital of the province, as his residence and called it Khānzamānnagar He erected lofty buildings of which traces still remain He also had a residence in Burhānpūr His sons passed away without any of them obtaining distinction

 ¹ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, II, pp 821-823
 2 Maāthir-ul-Umarā, II, p 823 The couplet was 'Aqil's own See Manucci's account of this love-story, I, p 231

KHĀN ZAMĀN MEWĀTI

(Vol. I, pp. 829-832)

His father was Sharkh Ghulam Mustafi Kartalab khan of Bahadur Shāh's body-guard (Wālā-Shāhī) and belonged to the Qādīzādas of Firuzpur in Mewat He had a little learning, and had read some of the ordinary books The commencement of his service was on the establishment of 'Aqıl Khan khawafı the governor of Shahjahanabad (Delhi) taught the Khan's children. Afterwards, he became connected with Mun'ım Khān the Dīvān of Prince Muhammad Mu'azzam (afterwards Bahādur Shāh), and through his intervention obtained a royal mansab When Mun im Khān had charge of the government of Lāhōre on behalf of the Prince the performance of much of the business was entrusted to Khān Zamān When the Prince came, after his father's death, from Peshāwai to Lāhōie, and sat upon the throne and struck coms and had the Khutba recited, he increased the allowances of his old and new servants and gave them titles khān Zamān on account of his ability and industry had an increase of mansab and received the title of Kartalab khan victory had declared itself, he was made kiōrī of the market of the impenal camp, but when Mun'im khan received the title of khan-khanan and became Vazīr, he, on account of his long companionship, had full charge of the administration and received a high rank When Shah Dhora 1, which is a pargana appertaining to Suhind and is famed owing its connection with the shine of Shah Faid Qadni, became the camp of Bahadur Shāh, and before the death of Khān-khānān Khān Zamān, who now had the title of 'Alī 'Askai Khān, was made faujdāi of the Challa of Etāwah which is one of the noble Khālsa estates of Igra He ruled over thirty Los of territory on the banks of the Jumna Afterwards when Jahandar Shāh came to power, Prince I'zz-ud-Dīn his eldest son 2 was appointed under the guardianship of Khwāja Hasan Khān Daurān to oppose Fairukh-siyar who was advancing from Patna Most of the faujdars in the line of rank or near it were ordered to furnish auxiliaries, and the Khān, who had a good force with him, marched and joined the Prince He accompanied him for some days and became acquainted with the nature of the leader and the ways of the Court The Prince was only in name and was under the control of the Khān Daurān, and the latter, who was inexperienced, ruled by craft and fraud. His cowardice, etc. foretold disaster Khān Zamān watched his opportunity and when Farrukh-siyar approached, he set off with his troops and the treasure which he had with him and having marched through the evening and night, joined him, and was the object of a thousand congratulations the battle against Jahandar Shah, he in conjunction with Chabila Ram Nāgar galloped off towards Kökaltāsh Khān Khān Jahān, and engaged He several times made brave attacks, and after the victory received the title of Khān Zamān Bahādur, and a high rank as a mark of Afterwards he went off to the government of Multan 10val favour

Sādhurah of Jarrett's translation of Ā'īn, II, p 296 The Sādhaura of Imperial Gazetteer, XXI, p 347 It is in the Ambāla district, and the local saint is called in the Imperial Gazetteer Shah Kumais There is the variant Qais
 For an account of the children of Mu'izz-ud-Dīn Jahāndār Shāh, see Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, pp 242, 243 and acquired a great name He did not have so much power and influence in the time of the reigning Sovereign (Muhammad Shāh), and after the catastrophe of Nādir Shāh's expedition, when Nawwāb Āsaf Jāh went off to the Deccan, he made over the charge of his estates in Upper India to Khān Zamān 'The end of a groom is to sell hay', and in the discharge of his duty he died ¹

Khān Zamān Shaikh Nizām

(Vol I, pp. 794-798)

He was from Haidarābād, and one of the military Shaikhzādas of the Deccan He had an abundant share of courage He became an Amīr under Abūl Hasan the ruler of Telingāna (Gōlconda) He acquired a name for leadership and military skill At the time of the siege of Gōlconda he was at the head of the Qutb-Shāhī troops and engaged the imperial forces outside the fort. One day he had an encounter on the top of a battery with Khān Fīrūz Jang, and there was a great fight. Though the imperialists tried to carry off the corpse of one of their men, they did not succeed, and the other side carried it off along with some bodies of their own men

When Fortune and the happy star turned away from Abūl Hasan and every day there were increasing signs of misfortune, he departed from loyalty to him and attached himself to the threshold of Aurangzīb When the principal servants of Abul Hasan, out of cupidity and in the hope of attaining offices, threw the dust of unfaithfulness on their heads and no leader but he remained, his disaffection was regarded as productive of Abūl Hasan's downfall, and special efforts were made to win After he had accepted service he received 2 the rank of 6,000 with 5,000 horse, the title of Mugarrab Khān and the gift of a flag, drums and a lac of rupees together with Arab and Persian horses, as also strong elephants and other gifts, and was made an object of royal favour sons and relatives also received offices, several of them were not lower than 4,000, and altogether they had mansabs of 25,000 with 21,000 horse After Haidarābād had been taken and the city of Bījāpūr had for the second time become the seat of the royal encampment, Khan Zaman, who was unique in military science, was sent to take the fort of Panhāla 3 which was in the possession of the enemy The Khan appointed spies to obtain information about Sambhā who after his father's death was the leader in the Deccan Suddenly the news came that he, on account of a dispute with the clan of Bairagis 4 who were related to him, had come from Rāhērī to the fort of Khēlna, and after making an agreement with them and satisfying himself about the victualling of a fort, had gone to

¹ See Irvine, Journ As Soc Bengal for 1896, pp 186, 198, 199, where he is called 'Alī Asghar Khān and Khān Zamān ('Alī Asghar) Also see Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, pp 214, 230, 231 Khān Zamān is also called 'Alī Asghar in Khāfī Khān, II, p 721

² Maāthīr-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 296 ³ Parnāla of Text is Panhāla—one of Shivāji's strong forts Shaikh Nizām was sent to besiege it in 1688, see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, History of Aurangzīb, IV, p 398.

Sangamnīr (Sangamēswai)—where his pēshkār Kab Kalus 1 had made grand houses and gardens and was occupied in amusing himself Khān hastened there from Kölāpūr 2 which was 45 kos off and separated from Sangameswar by a very steep and bad road He washed his hands of life in zeal for his master and was accompanied by a few devoted men Though spies informed Sambhā that the Mughals were coming, he from sottish drunkenness and arrogance signed with his eyebrow for their heads 3 being removed from their bodies and mockingly said "The ignorant fellows have grown mad Can the Mughal troops come here?" Meanwhile the khan, after abundant hardships and difficulties—in the course of which he had to go on foot in many places—came upon him like lightning, with 300 troopers. Sambha doubly intoxicated by pride and wine called for the help of 4 to 5,000 Deceans troopers and fought By destiny, an arrow from the hand of fate reached Kab Kalus and after a short struggle Sambhā's party fled, and he crept into the house of Kab Kalus He and Kab Kalus and 25 of his chief men with his wives and daughters—except Ram Raja his younger brother who was in one of the other forts-were seized. Among them was Rāja Sāhū, his eldest son, who was seven or eight years of age. As this news reached the King in Iklūj he gave 4 that place the name of Sa'dnagar After that, when the Khan came out from that desolate place, none of his (Sambhajī s) assistants and companions could move hand or foot He (Sambhājī) came to the Presence at Bahadurgarh, and was put into the prison of 1etribution 5 At the same time Aurangzīb came down from the throne and placing himself on a corner of the carpet humbly offered thanks to God The chronogram is

Verse

Bā zan o farzand shud Sambhā asīr (With wife and son Sambhā was made pusoner—1100 AH, 1689 AD)

In reward for this great service the victorious khān received the title of khān Zamān Fath Jang and the rank of 7,000 with 7,000 horse and Rs 50,000 in cash, etc. His sons and companions received increases of rank and the gifts of dresses of honour. After that khān Zamān was for a time attached to the army of Prince Muhammad A'zam Shāh. In the 37th year the Prince returned to the Court as he was afflicted with dropsy. Khān Zamān paid his respects, and with his sons and other relatives was the recipient of favours and went off with Prince Bīdār Bakht to punish the enemy. Apparently he died in the 40th year. He

¹ The Kuloosha of Grant-Duff, History of Mahrattas (1921 edn), I, pp 238. 239, etc, and the Calusha of Elphinstone, History of India (1905 edn), p 633, and Kalasha in Kincaid and Paiasanis, History of Maratha People, p 127 Evidently Kab in his title and means a bard He was a Brahman, see Elliot, VII, pp 285, 305

 $^{^2}$ Shōlāpūr ın $\textit{Maāt\underline{h}\textit{ir-i-'}\bar{A}lamg\bar{i}r\bar{i}, p}$ 321

³ Khāfī Khān, II, p 385, says he ordered then tongues to be cut out The account is taken from Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 321

⁴ Taken from Maāthir-i-'Ālamgīrī, p 322

⁵ For a detailed account of the capture of Sambhājī (called Sambhūjī), see Sir Jadunath Sarkar, op cit, pp 396–407 were among the noted of the age, as will be seen from their biographies Another was Farīd Sāhib, who with his brothers fell bravely in the battle with A'zam Shāh A separate account has also been given of Amīn Khān 3 Another was Husain Munawwar Khān who chose Haidarābād as his residence. He received from Āsaf Jāh's establishment the collectorship of Murtadānagar. In the year 1158 A.H. (1745 A.D.) he died. His sons were held liable to render accounts to the government Another was Nizām-ud-Dīn Khān whom Aurangzīb in accordance with the father's will brought up as a house-boin child, and married to a sister of Rāja Sāhū for whom he had taken a fancy. He had Mughalī manners, and did not at all resemble his father or brothers. He lived in Aurangābād, and was not without fame and reputation. He spent his days in tranquillity, and died in 1155 A.H. (1742 A.D.). His sons—who were half-biothers—long disputed with one another about their father's inheritance.

KHIDMAT PARAST KHĀN

(Vol I, pp 713-716)

His name was Rida Bahādur He 4 was from his boyhood a slave and attendant of Prince Shah Jahan, and was a favourite because of his long service, trustworthiness and tact They say that when the Prince was appointed to the affair of the Rānā, Khidmat Parast Khān on one occasion received 500 lashes for some offence, but he did not fall to the ground or utter a sigh This fortitude won him respect, and led to an increase in his rank and honour He gradually rose to the dignity of an Amīr, and received the title of Khidmat Parast Khān (the Khān devoted to service) When Shāh Jahān returned from Bihār he, out of the confidence reposed in him, was left along with Saiyid Muzaffar Khān Bārah in the fort of Rohtās in attendance on Sultān Murād Bakhsh 5 death of Jahangir when Shah Jahan came from Junair in the Deccan to Gujarāt, and proceeded from the bank of the Kānkriya tank near Ahmadābād—where he had encamped for seven days—towards Agra, Khidmat Parast Khān was despatched form the way with an autograph farmān to Yamīn-ud-Daula in Lāhōre The purport of it was that the time was critical, and that he should cleanse the world from the contamination of the existence of sundry princes who were the source of Khidmat Parast Khān reached Lāhōre by relays in nine disturbance They say that Sultan Dawar Bakhsh known as Sultan Bulaqi whom Asaf Khān had placed upon the throne for some days out of certain considerations of policy—was playing chess with his brother Sultān Garshāsp When he heard the noise of Ridā Bahādur's arrival, he

 $^{^1}$ Maāthır-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 816, 817, his full name was Khān 'Ālam Ikhlās Khān

² Id, Text III, p 654, 655, his full name was Munawwar Khān Shaikh Mīrān ³ Maāthir-ul-Umarā, Text I, pp 352-357, Beveridge's translation, pp 236-

⁴ Bādshāhnāma, I, p. 118

Murād Bakhsh was born about this time, Khāfī Khān, I, p 354
 See Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, p 61

divined his object and said to his brother "Virtue 1 (Ridā) has not come, it is your and our Fate (Qadā) that has arrived "Yamīn-ud-Daula in accordance with the order made over the blinded Sultan Shahriyar, Sultān Bulāqī and Tahmūras and Hūshang the sons of Sultān Dāmyāl to Khidmat Parast Khān He on 25 Jumāda ² I, 1037 A H (1st February, 1628 AD) put them all to death in one day

On the accession he had an increase of rank and was made Mir Tuzuk and received an ornamental staff After that he was made Mir Ātish (Head of the artillery) In the 2nd year when Khān Jahān Lödī fled from Agra he-in advance of the officers who had been appointed under the leadership of Khwāja Abūl Hasan to pursue Khān Jahan, came up with Saiyid Muzaffar Khān Bārah, and Rāja Bēthal Dās 3 Gaur—with the enemy in Dholpur and bravely engaged them He several times flung himself down upon the foe, and received 4 a wound from an arrow (bullet?) which struck his temple and brought him to his end

They say that as Khidmat Parast Khān went rapidly in pursuit, he travelled by night, and losing his way, came upon the ladies (qabīla) of Khān Jahān Lodī who had gone off with his son-in-law (Muhammad Shāh Lōdī) 5 towards the Chambal 6 A great fight took place, and so much bravery was shown on both sides that it cast into oblivion the deeds of Rustam and Isfandiyār Muhammad Shāh Lōdī with his two brothers, and twelve of the relations and confidential servants of Khān Jahān were killed, and Ridā Bahādur with sixty of his best followers was also killed in the King's service His body was conveyed to the Nakhkhās (cattle-market) of Agra and a dome was erected there He was married to a daughter of Kōtwāl Khān a Georgian slave of Daulat Khān—who had been presented by Khān-Khānān They loved each other so excessively that the tale of their affection was celebrated all over Khidmat Parast Khān would say to her "My life is devoted to the service of the King, I will probably die to-day or to-morrow in my master's service, what will happen to you?" She would show opium and poison which she carried in the corner of her dress After his death, though she did not have the grace of dying, she sat in wretched circumstances at the head of his grave On this account Shāh Jahān gave her Khidmat Parast Khān's property, and also allowed her a daily pension A year had not elapsed when out of the intoxication of wealth and the instigations of bad company she became enamoured of music and dancing and took to drinking When the King became aware of this, he gave her in marriage to Qil'adār Khān Chēla After his death she shaved her head and again sat at the head of Ridā Bahādur's tomb Shāh Jahān again granted her the daily pension

¹ Punning on his name Ridā

² Khāfī Khān, I, p 394, says the 22nd In Bādshāhnāma, I, p 79, the date is 25th, while in Iqbālnāmā-1-Jahāngīrī, p 303, it is 26 Jumāda I

³ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 117, has Rāja Bēthal Dās son of Rāja Gopāl Dās Kaur (Gaur) There is a notice of Rāja Bēthal Dās Gaur in Maāthir-ul-Umarā, II, pp 250—256, Beveridge's translation, pp 401—404 It is Rāja Vithaldas in Banarsi Prashad, op cit, p 64

⁴ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 278, also Banarsı Prashad, op cit, p 72

⁵ Called Shams in $Ma\bar{a}t\underline{h}ir$ -ul- $Umar\bar{a}$, I, p 725
6 In the text Chital It is the Dhōlpūr river, ie, the Chambal, see Khāfī Khān, I, p 418 Also see Banarsi Prasad, op cit, p 72

It is stated that Ridā Bahādur had 200 superior servants and that every day he ate with 50 of them, and that they were excused from guard and from (sawārī) personal attendance(?) After Shāh Jahān's accession he was sent with a large force to chastise the Mēwās (Mēos) of Mēwāt There he committed many murders and put them all to the sword Those who escaped the sword, whether old or young, were all castrated so that the race might be extirpated A large number of women and children were brought as prisoners to Āgra and daily many of them used to die of want and hunger

They say there was a jeweller famous for his wealth He came to the chief $D\bar{\imath}v\bar{a}n$, Afdal Khān, and agreed—in the hope of eternal recompense—to stand surety for the payment in four instalments of two lacs of rupees for their release. The prisoners were released, and he paid the first instalment in cash. For the second instalment he gave a $t\bar{o}m\bar{a}n$ (bond) upon his house and effects worth Rs 30,000, and for the balance he came with his sons and daughters into the office ($kachehr\bar{\imath}$) and sat there. When this was reported to the King, and the jeweller was questioned, he said that innocent women and children were daily dying of hunger, and that in heu of their blood-money he was offering his own life and his wife and children. Shāh Jahān after this noble payment gave him back his bond ($t\bar{o}m\bar{a}n$) and also let him off the remainder. But it was ordered that the $D\bar{\imath}v\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}$ clerks should not (in future) accept any security without investigation

KHIDR KHWAJA KHAN

(Vol I, pp 613-615)

He belonged to the race of the rulers of Mughalistan The author of the Tabaqat-1-Akbarī says that he was descended from the Princes of Kāshghar 1 On joining the service of Humāyūn he was honoured with At the time when owing to the unkindness of the heavens misfortunes made their appearance, he deserted Humāyūn (lit he made the flank of zeal empty of companionship) When that Sovereign returned from Persia, he, in company with Mīrzā 'Askarī, was besieged in the fort of Qandahar When the siege had lasted a long time Khidr Khwāja Khān threw himself out of the fort at a spot near the royal battery, and taking the collar of submission in the hand of humility he fell at Humāyūn's feet, and was again the recipient of royal favours As he was adorned with high birth and noble qualities, he was honoured. by an alliance with the exalted family and was married to Gulbadan Bēgam² the half-sister of Humāyūn By the auspiciousness of this connection he attained to the rank of Amīr-ul-Umarā

When in the beginning of his reign, Akbar proceeded from the Panjāb to Delhī to extinguish the flames of the ascendancy of Hēmū, he left Khidr Khwāja Khān with a suitable force to control the distracted conditions in the Panjāb 3 and to put down Sultān Sikandar Sūr who was

See De's edition of Tabaqāt-1-Albarī, Text II, p 428, translation II, p 656
 For a detailed account of Gulbadan Bēgam, see Mrs Beveridge's History of Humāyūn, pp 1-79 (1902)
 Albarnāma, Text II. p 31, Beveridge's translation II, p 50 a claimant for the throne of India, he in the battle of Sirhind had escaped from the clutches of Humāyūn's heroes and taken refuge in the Siwālik Sultan Sikandar was looking for an opportunity, and considering the affair of Hēmū to his advantage, he gathered a force and came out of the hills and set about collecting tribute in the Panjab 1 Khidr Khwaja Khān left Hājī Muhammad Khān Sīstānī in charge of the defences of Lahore and marched out to oppose Sultan Sikandar When he came near the town of Chamyair and there remained a distance of ten los between the two armies, Khidi Khwaja Khan separated 2,000 of his choice men from his force and sent them ahead as the vanguard Sikandar did not lose his opportunity and a great fight took place defeated the vanguard, and Khidi Khwaja did not think it advisable to stand his ground, but returned to Lähöre without fighting and set about strengthening the fortifications. Sikandar pursued him for a short distance and then looked to his own affairs, and levied tribute and gathered troops. When Akbai had routed Hemu, he regarded the putting down of Sikandar as the most important matter and returned to the Panjab They say that when Akbai determined upon this expedition he took an omen from the Dīvān of Hāfiz (Lisān-ul-Ghaib) and that this verse turned up 2

Verse

The water (of life) was not vouchsafed to Sikandar, This boon cannot be gained by might or money

On hearing of this expedition Sikandar saw that he could not resist and withdrew to his fixed abode in the Siwāliks and shut himself up in the fortress of Mankot 3 When the siege had lasted about six months and the batteries had been brought close to the fort, Sikandar became alarmed and begged for the coming of one of the leading officers to comfort By the mediation of Shams-ud-Din Khān Atga, and Pin Muhammad Khān Shērwānī—whom Sikandai had won over by a large sum of money his petition was accepted and the Atga Khān was sent to soothe him Sikandar made his many enemies an excuse for not waiting upon Akbar and sent his son 'Abd-ui-Rahîm with Ghāzī Khān and some elephants as a tribute In accordance with his request Bihai, etc, was given to him in fief, and on 27 Ramadān 964 A H (24 July, 1557 A D) and in the second year of the reign he delivered over the fort and went off to Bihār After two years he died there 4

¹ Albarnāma, Text II, p 47, Beveridge's translation II pp 73, 74

² Albarnāma, Text II, p 47, Beveridge's translation II, p 75

³ For the siege of Mānkōt and its capture, see Albarnāma, Text II, pp 50, 51, 58, 59, Beveridge's translation II, pp 79, 89, 90

⁴ This is an unsatisfactory biography The author breaks off and digresses into an account of Sikandar Sūr, which is mainly adapted from Albarnāma The last mention of Khidr Khwāja in this work is in 1654 Å D when he helped Hakīm Annul Mulk in treating Albarnāma he was wounded by an account see Albarnāma 'Am ul-Mulk in treating Akbar when he was wounded by an assassin, see Albarnama, Text II, p 202, Beveridge's translation II, p 313 For his life also, see Blochmann's translation of A'in, I (2nd edn), p 394, note 1

KHUDABANDA KHAN

(Vol I, pp 814-816)

He was the son of Shāyısta Khān the Amīr-ul-Umarā In the lifetime of his father he in the 36th year of Aurangzīb's reign received the rank of 1,000, with the faujdārī of Bahrāich in Oudh After his father's death he came to the Court in the 39th year, and was by the King's order married to the daughter of Jumalat-ul-Mulk Asad Khān

The auspicious planets' conjunction has taken place in the mansion of Leo (1101)—Sa'dain kardah and ba Burj-i-Asad Qirān—is the

chronogram

In the 40th year he was made Mīr Bakhshī of the Ahadīs in succession to Murīd Khān In the 41st year he had the charge of the Buyūtāt the 44th year he was appointed to the government of Bīdai in succession to 'Askar Khān Haidarābādī, and in the 46th year he was sent off to the faujdārī of the Karnātik Bījāpūr in succession to Chīn Qulīj Khān the 48th year, on the death of Rūḥ Ullāh Khān II, he was made Khān-ı-He held the rank of 2,500 with 1,000 horse At last he got in Ahmadnagar an increase of 500 with 200 horse At this time the death of Aurangzīb took place Among the successors to the Caliphate, Muhammad A'zam Shāh—who had gone off to the government of Mālwa and had proceeded twenty kos away from the camp, immediately on hearing the news returned to the imperial camp, and ascended the throne The lords and nobles of Aurangzib, willing or unwilling, or rather out of a show of obedience, embraced his cause, and the Khān in question also joined them In the battle 2 with Bahadur Shah which took place 3 months and 20 days after Aurangzib's death and in which Muhammad A'zam Shāh, and his two sons and many officers on both sides fell bravely, the Khān was severely wounded 3 He was conveyed to Agra and though his wounds showed signs of healing and he was able to wait upon Bahādur Shāh, but through carelessness the wounds reopened and he died

It is said that when they had conveyed him along with Matlab Khān from the field of battle, 'Alī Mardān Kōkaltāsh came up to them and indulged in reproaches, such as are appropriate to such times, and which men of the victorious side use towards the vanquished thereby rubbing Matlab Khān in his weakness lamented and said salt into their wounds We had to do it, and came against our will Khudābanda Khān, who was partly unconscious on account of his wound, heard him, and at once became indignant and said "Good, we had come with great pleasure to make prisoners of your wives and children, and to kill you It was not the will of God This head is ready Throw it in the worst place that your malice can discover" He had sons, but none by the

¹ That is, the conjunction of Jupiter and Venus took place in the house of Asad, ie Leo But the chronogram is wrong, for Khudabanda's father did not die till 1105 and his marriage took place in 1107, see Maāthir-i-Alamgīrī, p 374 If we read burūj instead of būrj the chronogram would be increased by 6 and would be right The mansion of Leo is the house of Asad (Lion), the father of the bride

² Aurangzīb died on 28 Dhul Qa'da, 1118 A H or 3rd March, 1707 A D The battle of Jājau took place on 18th June, 1707 (wide Sir Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, I, p 26, and Cambridge History of India, IV, p 320
The period of 3 months and 20 days does not, therefore, seem to be correct

³ Khāfī Khān II p 595 also Irvine's Later Marchale I p 21 Khāfī Khān, II, p 595, also Irvine's Later Mughals, I, p 31 daughter of Asad Khān One of them was granted his father's title, and contrary to most noblemen's sons—who spend their time in frivolities—he lived with great virtue and asceticism, and occupied himself in prayers and other religious duties. At the time of writing he is the $D\bar{v}\bar{a}n$ of Asaf Jāh His honesty—which is a rare jewel in this world—is patent to all He was, however, pronounced incapable by those who could not appreciate him and was dismissed

Khudawand 1 Khan Deccani

(Vol I, pp 659, 660)

He was one of the officers of the Nizām-Shāhī dynasty of Ahmadnagar His father was from Mashhad and his mother an Abyssinian imposing statule and great physical strength. He was also noted for his courage When Khwaja Mirak of Isfahan known as Chingiz Khan became the Valīl and Prime Minister of Murtadā Nizām Shāh, he brought forward Khudawand Khan and made him an Amir and procured for him choice estates in Beiai He soon acquired much wealth and power and became a great man The mosque of Rohan-Khēra,2 which has stood for ages without being injured or broken, was built by him year 993 AH he came, in company with Mir Muitadā of Sabzawāi who was the head of the Beiar army and could not stay in the Deccan on account of the predominance of Salābat Khān the Circassian, to Fathpūr and entered Akbar's service He obtained the rank of 1,000 and received promotion at the Court But in the 32nd year 995 AH, he lost favour on account of improper behaviour between him and his servants at a royal assemblage, and which was the result of his want of tact, and nonappreciation of dignities When Pattan Gujaiāt was assigned as his fief he went off there to look after it and died in 997 A H (1588-89 A D)

There were many Amīrs present—As the Shaikh had provided abundance of viands, and there was great variety and much splendour in accordance with his lavish ways, there were placed before each of his servants nine dishes, a plate (langar) of mutton-biryān 3 and one hundred loaves—Before Khudāwand Khān were set many dishes of fowl and partiidge and varieties of vegetables and curries (sālan)—He was displeased and got up because they had brought to him roasted fowls through scorn and derision—When this affair was reported to Akbar, he said to Khudāwand Khān that these things were the recognized dainties of Upper India "Otherwise if it had been a question of food (re if you had wanted other food), nine dishes 4

¹ See Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), pp 490, 491 Rohankhed of Imperial Gazetteer, XXI, p 304 The statement in that work that the mosque was built by another Khudāwand seems wrong

<sup>Blochmann, op cit, p 490, note 2
Biryān is a choice dish, see Blochmann, op cit, p 63</sup>

³ Biryan is a choice dish, see Blochmann, op cu, p os ⁴ See Darbār-i-Albarī, p 721 Apparently it was not his behaviour on this occasion, but some quarrel between him and his servants that lost him Akbar's favour According to Badāyūnī, Text II, p 372 and Lowe's translation of Muntakhab-ut-Tawārīkh, II, p 384, Khūdāwand died at Kārī in Gujarāt in 998 A H The chronogram Khudāwand Dakhinī murda is correct if we read murd instead of murda and this seems preferable to Blochmann's suggestion (op cit, p 490) of leaving the h in Dakhinī Mr Lowe's calculation on p 381 n seems to be wrong

(langarī) had been placed before your servants" Notwithstanding this, Khudāwand Khān was not satisfied about the Shaikh, and did not go again to his house. Hence it is that in Upper India men of the Deccan are reckoned as fools and as persons of weak intellect.

Khudāyār Khān

(Vol I, pp 825-829)

He was the ruler of Sindh, known as Lētī (Latī) 1 and he belonged to the 'Abbāsī family The title of the family in the language of Sind is Kalhōra 2 and his followers were called Sarā'yān because most of this tribe came from Sarā 3 which is the name given to the district between Bhakkar and Multan His ancestors were the dress of darvishes, and they were disciples of Saiyid Muhammad of Jaunpui the Mahdavi One of his ancestors were connected with the head of the Abrah tribe 4who from early times had been the rulers of Sindh He acquired a piece of land as madad-ma'āsh 5 (maintenance-land) His sons lived by it and gathered many disciples and dependants At last they became zamīndārs and paid rent to the rulers Gradually they gained power over the Abrah tribe and brought many of their villages under their dominion At last came the time of Shaikh Nasīr He became firmly possessed of zamīndārī property and after his death his elder son Shaikh Dīn Muhammad became the leader In the time of Aurangzib when Prince Mu'ızz-ud-Din (afterwards Jahandar Shah) obtained the government of Multan and the Prince's standards reached Siwistan, Din Muhammad withdrew his head from obedience and did not wait upon the Prince At last after swearing on the Qur'an he summoned Din Muhammad and two of his relatives After the three had come, he drew up an aimy to bind and bring those who had remained behind with their wives and children Yar Muhammad the younger brother of Din Muhammad quickly sent his family into the inaccessible parts of the hills and prepared to give battle The Prince's army was defeated and Yai Muhammad became bold, and taking up a position in the defiles prepared for battle The Prince was contented with imprisoning the three men and returned There he gave orders for putting the three men to death to Multān Thereafter Yar Muhammad became more and more powerful, he took possession of Sīwistān, and took from its old landowners Sībī Dara which is an extensive area running from Sindh to Qandahār, as also

The Darbār-1-Albarī says, on what authority it is not known, that Khudāwand Khān's offence was a violent dispute with his servants which led to his behaving presumptuously in Akbar's Darbār Khudāwand Khān was married to Abūl Fadl's sister In Tabaqāt-1-Akbarī, De's edition, Text II, p 445, translation II, p 672, it is stated that he died in 995 A H

¹ It is Latī in Maāthir-ul-Umarā, III, p 312 'Abbās was the Prophet Muham-

² For Kalhōra, see Imperial Gazetteer, XXII, p 398

³ The Indus from the junction of the Punjab rivers to Sīhwān is called Sarā, vide Elliot, I, p 526, the Sirai or Tālpūr tribe, see Imperial Gazetteer XXII, p 398

Siraiki is a dialect of Sind

⁴ This is a tribe in Larkana, see Imperial Gazetteer, XVI, p 139
5 See Blochmann's detailed note in his translation of A'in, I (2nd edn), pp 280, other estates Day by day his star rose higher and higher ın Muhammad Farrukh-siyar's time he received the title of khudayar Khān and a mansab He died in the end of that reign descendants there were two principal ones—Shaikh Nür Muhammad and Sharkh Dā'ūd For some time there was strife between the two brothers At last Shaikh Nür Muhammad prevailed and sat in his father's place He made peace with his brother and assigned him a part of the estate Shaikh Nur Muhammad received from the Court his father's title of Khudāyār Khān, and had a mansab His power exceeded that of all his predecessors His pomp and grandeur reached the highest point, and he brought most of the zamīndārs under his power In the earlier years of his rule he fought severe battles with the Dā'ūdpūtras—the Zamīndārs of Shikāi pūr—and was victorious He drove out that tribe from their original abodes with their wives and children to the number of 6 to 7,000 The Dā'ūdpūtras had been confirmed in the zamīndārī men and women of Shikārpūr in the time of Prince Mu'izz-ud-Dīn The reason for this was that when the Prince sent an army against Bakhtiyār Khān the Zamīndār of Shikārpūr, a body of the Dā'ūdpūtras accompanied it and did good service, and cut off the head of Bakhtiyar Khan and brought The Prince as a reward for this service made over that country 'Abdullāh Khān Barauhī the ruler of Kalāt2—which is a strong to them fort between Sindh and Qandahār—was always making attacks on Khudāyār Khān's territory, and every year levied a tribute Khudāyāi Khān in the year 1143 A H (1730-31 A D) proceeded against 'Abdullāh Khān, who was unique for courage He came out of Kalāt with a small force and having crossed the boundaries of his territory, met the enemy and a severe battle ensued By Divine decree he was killed on the field, but though Khudāyār Khān took some of the dependencies of Kalāt he, on account of the mountainous nature of the region, could not capture After this victory he received from Court the title of Khudāyār Khān Bahādur Thābit Jang and the rank of 5,000 and the gift of drums (naubat, i e he was allowed to have music played) and a robe of honour In 1149 A H (1736 A D) the government of the province of Thatha and the Sarkar of Bhakkar were conferred on him The whole of the country of the Tarkhans and additional territory came into his possession

When Nādir Shāh resolved to march against India he wrote to Khudāyār Khān to allow him a passage through his territory Khudāyār Khān refused and fortified the passes so that Nādir Shāh had to invade India via Kābul After his return to Kābul, as he was displeased with Khudāyār Khān, he turned his courser's reins towards Sindh When the news of Nādir Shāh's arrival at Dēra Ghāzī Khān—which is 30 kos from Multān—reached Khudāyār Khān, he decided to retire from his own territories. He went off to deserts and sandy places which an army could not traverse. His intention was to return after Nādir Shāh left Sind. With this design he marched from Khudāābād and Sīwistān with all his family and the tribe of Kalhōra and his Sardārs and came to Amarkōt which is a strong fort. On hearing this Nādir Shāh made a rapid march and came to Amarkōt. Khudāyār Khān saw no remedy but to submit and came and waited upon Nādir Shāh. After Nādir Shāh had

 ¹ In Imperial Gazetteer, XXII, p 398, it is stated that he got the title from Aurangzīb
 ² In Balūchistān, Imperial Gazetteer, XIV, p 305

reproached him he said "Why did you run away from me?" Khudāyāi Khān replied "We from the time of our forefathers were the servants of the King of India, if we had shown an inclination for you, you would not have believed us " This saying was approved and accepted, and in the same interview Nādir Shāh gave him the good news of his territory being restored to him 1 After taking goods, etc., Nādir Shāh returned to him one-third of the territory, and gave one share to the Dā'ūdpūtras and the third share to the Zamīndārs of Bhakkar Some time before this was written Ghulām Shāh and Sarafaiāz Khān his son—who were related to Khudāyār Khān—managed the government of this province, and at present also it is in their hands

Khushhāl Bēg Kāshgharī

(Vol I, pp 773, 774)

In the 19th year of Shāh Jahān's reign he held 2 the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse, and was out with Sultan Murad Bakhsh to conquer After Balkh was taken and the Prince retuined Balkh and Badakhshān to India, Jumlat-ul-Mulk Sa'd Ullah Khān was appointed to settle the country there, and he and other Kāshgharīs were appointed to the thānadārī of Shērpūr 3 and Sām Chārēk In the 20th year at the instance of Jumlat-ul-Mulk his rank was raised to 1,500 4 with 500 horse. In the 22nd year he was sent off with Prince Aurangzīb to Qandahāi and there along with Rustam Khān and Qulīj Khān he distinguished himself in the battle with the Persians In the 23rd year his rank was 2,000 with 1,200 horse, and in the 25th year he went off again with the Prince on the above-mentioned expedition In the 28th year he was sent, along with Jumlat-ul-Mulk against Chittor and displayed great rapidity of movement Afterwards he went off with Khalil Khan to chastise the Zamindar of Srīnagar (Garhwāl), and in the end of the 31st year he went to Mālwa, and showed courage and loyalty in conjunction with Jaswant Singh in opposing the march of the troops of the Deccan when Prince Aurangzib was reported to be proceeding to inquire after the health of his honoured Afterwards in the battle of Sāmūgarh he was attached to the stırrups of Sultān Dārā Shıkōh Hıs subsequent career is not known

¹ See also Maāthir-ul-Umarā, III, p 312, and Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'īn, I (2nd edn), p 391, note 2 There is an account of Nādir Shāh's dealing with Khudāyār Khān in Elliot, VIII, p 97 The life of Nādir Shāh which Sir William Jones translated into French in 1773 is the same as that used by the author of the Maāthir-ul-Umarā, viz, Tārikh-i Jahān-Gushā-i-Nādirī by Muhammad Mahdī bin Muhammad Nāsir Astrābādī (see Ivanow, Descriptive Cat Persian MSS As Soc Bengal, 1924, p 30) Nādir Shāh's invasion of Sindh is described there on pp 260-263 (As Soc Bengal's edn of 1845) Nādir Shāh visited Amarkōt in February 1840 (As Soc Bengal's edn of 1845) Nādir Shāh visited Amarkōt in February 1840 (As Soc Bengal's edn of 1845) ruary, 1740, vide Elliot, VIII, p 99, but 1152 in that work on p 98 should be 1153 For Amarkot see Albarnama, Beveridge's translation, I, p 55, note 4

² Bādshāhnāma, II, p 460 Two years before this he got a present of Rs 2.000, op cit, p 342

³ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 565, has Sarpul and Sān Chārēk It also calls Khushhāl Bēg, the son of Mīrzā Sharaf-ud Dīn Husam, perhaps the officer who was the Kõtwāl of Delhī, op cit, p 110 ⁴ Bādshāhnāma, II, p 595

KHUSRAU BE

(Vol I, pp 673-675)

He was an Uzbeg qui ugchī 1 His ancestors were men of wealth and power in Tūrān, and always held their heads high through their 1ank and wealth They also had a name for bravery He too possessed this quality When he came 2 to India, he was greatly favoured by Jahangir and promoted to a high office As marks of sense and ability were apparent in him he was made faujdar of Delhi 3 and Narnol which are hotbeds of strife and sedition. They say that he had 400 plumed (garquradar) Uzbeg troopers mounted on Turkish horses, they were all brave men. In carrying out the duties of this magistracy, he did not neglect one iota of what was necessary for putting down the disturbers He cleared the country of the weeds and rubbish of rebels, and was applauded by the Court When in the 8th year of Jahangu's 1eign, Ajmer became the abode of royalty, the heir-apparent 4 (Shah Jahān) was sent with an army against the Rānā and Khusrau Bē was enrolled among the auxiliaries, and did good service The Prince loaded him with favours, and his rank and influence were increased wrote a recommendatory letter about him to the Court Jahan by the strength of his good fortune established thanas in the hilly country of the Rānā, Khusrau Bē was appointed to do the thānadān's There he died a natural death He had a magnanimous disposition and every day he caused food to be prepared for the soldiers, and every one who did not appear at his table was put down as absent 5 (without leave) He was very liberal with gifts and rewards he regarded as if it were a goat He changed nothing of what had been his customs and habits in Türän

KHUSRAU SULTĀN

(Vol I, pp 767-772)

He was the son of Nadhi Muhammad Khān, the ruler of Balkh and Badakhshān When in the year 1051 A D (1641-42 A D) the Khutba of Transoxiana was recited in the name of Nadhr Muhammad, he in concert with his eldest son 'Abdul 'Azīz Khān occupied with complete assurance the masnad of Khānship at Bokhārā, and carried on the administration along the right path. In the year 1055 AH he went to Qarshī 6 and took possession of Urganj, the ruler of which, Isfandiyār Khān had died Nadhr Muhammad's elder brother Imām Qulī Khān had paid great deference to the Uzbegs and left to them the realization mad and brother of Abūl Ghāzī

¹ A sentinel at the entrance to the female apartments, a game-keeper Vide Rogers and Beveridge's translation of the Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī, I, p 206
 Vide Rogers and Beveridge, op cit, p 229, where Mēwār is apparently a mıstake for Mēwāt

⁴ Vide Rogers and Beveridge, op cit, p 256 5 Presumably his pay was reduced, see article Ghair-hāzirī in Irvine's Army of the Indian Moghuls, p 25 6 Isfandiyār died in 1053 A H (1643 A D) He was the son of 'Arab Muham-

of the revenues and the settlement of Transoxiana and had been content with the name of Khān Nadhr Muḥammad now called upon them for That contumacious the payment of the revenues of Imam Quli's time and independent tribe were annoyed and resolved to get rid of Nadhr Muhammad and his son 1 He received a hint of their union and resolved to throw a stone of separation in their midst He appointed each of them to a different place He gave Samarqand and its dependencies to 'Abdul 'Azīz and appointed Bēg Oghlī as his guardian and Khusrau Bēg as his Tāshkand² and its dependencies he gave to his third son Bahrām and appointed Bāqī Yūz as his guardian He appointed Nadhr Bē, the guardian of Imam Quli Khan—who had great influence among the Uzbegs and whom he regarded as the chief of the sedition-mongers in the Qanduz, which is the capital of Badakhshan, government of Balkh he gave to Khusrau Sultan Kahmard and its dependencies and the Hazārajāt—which had long belonged to Ilangtosh—he took away in spite of the fact that no faults had been committed and made them over to his fourth son Subhān Qulī, and made Tardī 'Alī Qatān his guardian also resumed many fiefs and made them remunerative He also resumed Madad-1-ma'āsh 3 (subsistence-allowances) tenures and Suyūrghāls on pretext of the grants having been forged, and took possession of them himself

Inasmuch as his dominion had come to an end, and his fortune was proceeding to a fall, he, for some reasons, annoyed the Khwajas of Tūrān, whom everybody whether high and low, regarded with respect. and with this design he made every pasturage qurq (i e, reserved) for his own cattle and would not allow these to be used by any one else Consequently all the people became disaffected Though 'Abdul 'Azīz, his son and heir, tried to induce him to make, like Imam Quli, Bokhara his headquarters, and to give him Balkh, Nadhr Muhammad refused on the ground that he had spent forty years in Balkh, and the chimate agreed with him, and it was disagreeable for him to leave the place and the treasures accumulated during so many years He also annoved his son by thwarting him in his designs, and in the non-recognition of truth he shut his eyes to the wishes of the leaders of Balkh-who during a long period had not omitted the smallest office of loyalty, and were naturally expecting favours and graciousness He also disregarded all the precepts of skill and caution and when any one of his well-wishers gave him a secret hint about the disaffected, he in his shallowness divulged the matter and thus ashamed and discredited his informers whole of Tūrān and all the Tūrāniyāns suddenly broke out into rebellion and beat the drum of opposition, and recited the Khutba of Transoxiana ın the name of 'Abdul 'Azīz, while the Almānān, who were looking for an opportunity, proceeded to pillage and destroyed many establishments (kārkhānajāt or manufactories) At last Nadhr Muhammad came to an agreement with his son that he himself will keep the government of Transoviana, while that Balkh and Badakhshan will belong to 'Abdul

¹ That 1s, his eldest son 'Abdul 'Azīz The union here spoken of was that of his sons, and so he sent them to different places Umarā is taken from Bādshāhnāma, II, p 435, etc The account in the Maāthir-ul-

r Tashkent in Ferghana in modern atlases

s For Madad-1 ma'āsh and Suyūrghāls, see Blochmann's translation of A'īn, I (2nd edn), pp 278-280

'Azīz, and that there should be peace—But on account of the double-mindedness of the Uzbegs, and the insolence of Almanan he was in daily fear of his life and property. He left off hunting and for a time shut himself up in the fort of Balkh When Jahangir died, and his hen Shah Jahan was far off in Junau in the Deccan, Nadhi Muhammad thought the field was empty and in his hot-headedness and arrogance led a large army to conquer Kābul Though it did not succeed, and he had to make a shameful retreat before the pressure of the victorious imperial troops, yet he stretched out the hand of oppression over the inhabitants of the towns and districts, and every place that the Uzbegs found unguarded was plundered From that time it was impressed on Shāh Jahan's mind that it was necessary, according to the verse

Lerse

Stones are the retribution of clod-throwers

That an army should be sent to Balkh and Badakhshān and that the ancestral properties should be recovered. On account of other occupations (in India) this design could not be carried out. At this time when spontaneously there arose confusion in the country, and the Alman infidels lighted the flames of oppression and by slaying the good and noble, and dishonouring their families made themselves deserving of condign punishment, Prince Murad Bakhsh 1 was sent off rapidly in the 19th year with 50,000 cavaliv to conquer the country and to punish the unruly tribes When the Prince had traversed the pass of Tūl and came to the plam of Smā 2 the Uzbegs and Almānān, who had ravaged the villages of the Badakhshānāt, and had made Khusiau Sultān's position difficult, fled on hearing the sound of the victorious army Khusiau Sultan thought peace was best and came with his son Badī' Sultan and 2,000 house-holders of Qanduz—who had suffered from the ravages of the pillagers—and submitted to the Prince When Khusiau arrived near Andarab the Amir-ul-Umara 'Ali Mardan Khan came and saluted him on horse-back When Khusrau entered the Prince's tent, the latter acted according to the loyal olders and stepped to the edge of the calpet to receive him and place him near the masnad and showed him various attentions and kindnesses He made him various presents, including Rs 50,000 in cash and sent him to the Court Marhamat Khān 3, the son of Sādıq Khān deceased, was sent from the Court with four Arab and Persian horses with gilded saddles and valuable cloths from among the choice fabrics of India, together with a palanquin and chahār dūlī (litter) with silver poles and velvet lining for his ladies, and two complete advance-tents 4 and directed to bring him with all honour to the Court On 29 Rabī' II, 1056 A H, when he reached Kābul, the officer in charge Sa'd Ullāh Khān and Mīr Jalāl Sadr-us-Sudūr went out to meet him and paid their respects His request to be allowed to wait upon the Emperor

¹ For an account of Prince Murād Bakhsh's campaign in Transoniana see Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahyahan, pp 195–201

² This apparently should be Snāb, see Bādshāhnāma, II, p. 517 For Tūl see Jarrett's translation of \bar{A} 'īn, II, pp 399, 400

³ $B\bar{a}$ dshāhnāma, II, p 519, and Khāfi Khān, I, p 625

⁴ In dū dast peshkhāna, the word dast seems to be pleonastic was granted After he had paid his respects, Shāh Jahān raised his head with the two hands and embraced him, and ordered him to be seated He showed him various favours and presented him with Rs 50,000 in cash and gave him a mansab of 6,000 with 2,000 horse The house of Khān Daurān Bahādur with carpets and other splendid furniture was assigned to him His son Badī' Sultān, who was with him, received an annual allowance of Rs 12,000, and Khusrau Sultan, who was a man of a feeble constitution and an opium-eater, and had long endured the oppressions of the Uzbegs, never seen happiness, and never had had a moment's peace on account of his dread of the Almanan, suddenly arrived without care or effort at God-given comfort He at his ease tasted the joys of life He did not seek for service Sometimes in Lāhōre and sometimes in Shāhjahānābād (Delhī) and occasionally in attendance on the Sovereign he passed 1 his time In the 26th year he was removed from 2 his mansab and received a pension of a lac of supees In this year his son Badī' Sultān was raised to the mansab of 1,000 with 200 horse At the end of Shāh Jahān's reign his rank was 2,500

KHWĀJA JAHĀN HERĀTĪ

(Vol I, pp 630-632)

He was Khwāja Amīn-ud-Dīn Maḥmūd, and was known as Amīnā He was a pioneer in the science of accounts He wrote shikasta very beautifully, and was exceedingly acute and careful in the valuation of property and in the correctness of his calculations He was attached to Humāyūn's stirrups during the journey to Persia, and later was always the recipient of royal favours and for some time was the $Ba\underline{kh}sh\overline{i}$ of Prince Muhammad Akbar When Akbar ascended the throne, he was promoted to the rank of 1,000 and granted the title of Khān Jahān For a long time the administration of the kingdom was carried on in accordance with his sage advice

When Akbar left him and Mun'im Khān and Muzaffai Khān, in Karra Mānikpūr, to put in order the affairs of Khān Zamān Shaibānī, and returned to Agra, and the officers neglecting the administration of that part of the country proceeded to the Court in the beginning of the 11th year, Muzaffar Khān made a rapid journey from Etāwah and airived first at the Court He reported 4 the double-dealings of the officers, and Khwāja Jahān was censured and the royal Grand Seal—which was the ınsıgnıa of his office—was taken from him, and he was dismissed to the Later, on the intercession of the courtiers, the Khwāja's offences In the 19th year, 981 AH, when the royal standards advanced to take Hājīpūr and Patna, the Khwāja owing to indisposition remained in Jaunpur When Akbar returned victorious to Jaunpur

¹ Khāfī Khān, I p 695

khātī khān, I, p 716

khātī khān, I, p 716

So in the text, but this is a mistake for khwāja Jahān For an account of his life see Blochmann's translation of Ā'īn, I (2nd edn), pp 467, 468

Albarnāma, Text II, p 270, Beveridge's translation II, p 401 In the text it is stated that Muzaffar khān made a rapid journey from Etāwah, but according to the Albarnāma Muzaffar khān burned to Etāwah and there denounced the other to the Albarnāma, Muzaffar Khān hurried to Etāwah and there denounced the other and proceeded towards Agra, a mast elephant ran at the Khwāja in Jaunpūr His foot caught in a tent-rope and he fell. His condition at once became critical, and in the beginning of the month of Shawwāl, 982 AH (January, 1575 AD) he died in Lucknow. Mīrzā Bēg, whose takhallus was Sipihiī and had a good poetical vein, was the Khwāja's brother's son. As he had acquired tawakkul (reliance upon God), he withdrew from service and lived in retirement. He died in 989 AH They say that he secretly used to help the needy. This veise is his

Verse 2

Remove by a smile the poison of thine angly eyes, For they sweeten with salt when the almond is bitter

KHWAJA JAHAN KABULI.

(Vol I, pp 672, 673)

His name was Khwāja Dost Muhammad, and he was a native of When Jahangii was the heir apparent, he was his Divan his daughter was married to the Prince, he became distinguished above After the accession he obtained high rank and the title of He conducted his duties well and became a favourite Whenever Jahangir went out to hunt near Agia, the Khwaja was left in charge of the fort and city They say that after the morning prayer the spiritual Mathnavi Ma'navi 3 of the Maulana of Rum (Jalal-ud-Din) was read in his assemblage for four gharīs After that he attended to work, and by his discernment and knowledge of business disposed of disputes Some of his decisions are amusing They say that a man complained that the wife of his brother, who was impotent, had taken possession of the property asserting that her child was her husband's When she was asked, she said it was true that her husband was without sperm, but that she, on the advice of a $Hak\bar{\imath}m$, had for forty days given him the head of the $R\bar{u}h\bar{u}^4$ fish to eat This had produced virility. The Khwāja ordered that two grooms should make the child run up and down, and catch the sweat of his face and body in a handkerchief When the handkerchief became wet he took and smelt it It smelt of fish, and those present all confirmed this On another 5 occasion, they say that a person picked up

¹ Blochmann, op. cit, who says that his talhallus was Shahrī But it is Sipihri m Badāyūnī Muntakhab-ut-Tawārīkh, Text III, p 241 See also Darbār-i-Albarī, p 722

² This verse and others are given in Badāyūnī, op cit, p 241 Probably the salt in the second line is the white row of teeth seen in the smile, the $b\bar{a}d\bar{a}m$ or almond may mean the eyes

³ For details of this work see Ivanow, Descriptive Cat Persian, MSS As Soc Bengal, 1924, pp 216-218 Jämī has said about this Mathnavī

⁴ The famous Indian Carp Labeo robita (Ham -Buch)

⁵ This is a familiar story

a purse on the road and restored it intact to the owner and avaricious man complained that half of his money had been taken When this dispute was brought before the Khwaja he ordered that the purse be given to the finder, adding that it was a windfall for him, and he said to the owner, "Yours must have been a different purse" He at once became pentent and confessed that his money was so much When it was counted it was found all right (i e, the amount was what the owner had stated) The Khwāja died 1 a natural death He built a stately mansion in Agra Among his sons, Jalāl-ud-Dīn Maḥmūd held a jāgīi and a mansab till the end of Shāh Jahān's reign He did not possess discretion Mīrzā 'Ārif (another son) was handsome and agreeable He had no rival as a polo-player He was on terms of intimacy with Jahangir The flower of his life perished in its spring (i e, he died in his youth)

KHWĀJA JAHĀN KHAWĀFĪ.

(Vol. I, pp. 748, 749)

His name was Khwaja Jan, and he was one of the old servants of When after the receipt of the news of the death of Jahangir, Shāh Jahān moved from Junair and arrived near Ahmadābād he made the Khwāja, who was exalted to the rank of 2,000 with 600 horse, Dīvān of Gujarāt In the end of the 4th year he begged to be allowed to visit the holy places, and this was granted As the King had allocated five lacs of rupees to be sent to the needy in those blessed places, he ordered 2 that the officers of Gujarāt should make over to the Khwāja, who was known for his honesty, 2 lacs and 40,000 rupees worth of such goods as would be saleable at the two holy places He was to sell these goods and distribute the price (i e, the capital and the profit) to the poor there In the 9th year he returned and presented mine Arab horses as a pēshkash In the 12th 3 year he was removed from the Dīvānī of Gujarāt and died in the 17th 4 year, 1053 A H (1643-44 A D)

KHWAJA 5 QULI KHAN BAHADAR.

(Vol I, pp 834, 835)

Son of Nadhr Bē who was one of the nobles of Tūrān He came to Aurangzīb on an embassy from there On his return, he sent Yūlbāras Khān his eldest son to India for service After his death, his second son Bēglar Bēgī Khān came with his dependants to his elder brother

² Bādshāhnāma, I, p 406 Hakīm Masih-uz-Zamān was associated with him. His name was Khwāja Jān or Mullā Khwāja Jān, but his title was Khwāja Jahān There is a special notice of him in Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 333 He was a native

¹ The authors of the Maāthu-ul-Umarā apparently used only the first volume of Tūzuk-ı Jahāngīrī Khwāja Jahān died in the 14th year of Jahāngīr's reign Jahāngīr gives an account of him in his Memoirs, see Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk i Jahāngīrī, II, pp 121, 122, note His being in charge of Agra is mentioned on p 67

³ Should be the 11th year, see Bādshāhnāma, II, p 105 4 Op cit, p 728 His rank was 2,000 with 600 horse

Khān at that time was a suckling Bēglai Bēgī during the days of power of the Saivids of Baiah, became faujdar and governor of the fort of Māndū, in succession to Maihamat Khān He also went there with his In 1136 A H when Nizām-ul-Mulk, after his second Vazīrship. requested leave from Muhammad Shāh and went off to the Deccan,1 he joined him on the way After the battle with Mubariz Khan he got a fief in the province of Burhanpur, and spent his time as faujdar of Sarkāi Khaigon 3 in the province of Khāndesh In the beginning of the rule of the martyred Nasu Jang, he was made deputy-governor of Berar, but after some months he was removed. After that he was at one time faujdār of Baglāna, and at another deputy-governor of Burhānpūr the time of Salabat Jang, he received the title of Dhulfagar-ud-Daula When Khandesh came into the possession of the Mahiattas, he went away ın dıstress to Salābat Jang ın Haidarābād He received the pargana of Jalgãon 4 in Beiāi in fief, and went off there. After some days he died in 1179 AH (1765 AD). Asaf Jāh treated him with distinction, and when he paid his respects put his hand on his head. But he was very reserved. He composed simple verses and had the pen-name of Mauzūn

This verse is his

Verse

Whene'er without thee I visit the rose-border, The perfume of the bud and the flower gives me a headache

None of his sons attained any position. They passed away at various intervals after their father's death. But Khwāja Qudrat Ullāh is still alive

Khawwās Khān Bakhtiyār Khān Deccanī

(Vol I, pp 774, 775)

He took up service in the reign of Jahangir, and in the 8th year of Shāh Jahān's reign was honoured by being appointed as the faujdār of Lakhī Jangal 5 and Thārah in place of Sardār Khān In the 12th year, when the King had reached the borders of the Panjab, he was honoured by being permitted to offer his allegiance. In the 14th year he was removed from that office and appointed an auxiliary of the $S\bar{u}ba$ of Bihār In the 16th year he was exalted by being appointed as the $faujd\bar{a}i$ of Tirhat (Tirhūt) in the $S\bar{u}ba$ of Bihār In the 20th year he was granted a Khil'at, and a horse, and was ordered to Badakhshan In the 21st year he returned to the Court, and was honoured by being appointed

¹ For details see Sir Jadunath Sarkai's edition of Irvine's Later Mughals, II,

pp 131-137 He took leave from the Emperor on 17th December, 1723

² Battle of Shakar Khera on 11th October, 1924, see Irvine, op cit, p 145

Shakarkhelda in Cambridge History of India, IV, p 350

³ There was a Khargōn in Bījāgarh Sarkāi, Mālwa, see Jarrett's translation of Ā'īn, II, p 206 Now in Indore, see Imperial Gazetteer, XV, p 251

⁴ In Sarkār Narnāla, see Jarett, op cit, p 234, and Imperial Gazetteer, XIV,

⁵ Lakhī Jangal was the extensive uncultivated area south of the Sutlej, see Irvine's detailed note in Manucci, IV, p 426 as the faujdār and tryūldār of Mandsūr in Mālwa. In the 23rd year when the Sūbadārī of Mālwa was granted to Shāh Nawāz Khān, and that of Mandsūr to Mīrzā Muhammad, son of Mīn Badī' of Mashhad, who was the son-m-law of the said Khan, he was transferred from there and appointed as an auxiliary in the Deccan forces In the siege of Gölconda he served with Sultan Muhammad Aurangzib, and when later the said Prince was nominated as the Governor, he was granted the rank of 2,000, 1,500 horse and the title of Khawwas Khan And in the series of battles which took place between Aurangzīb and Mahāiāja Jaswant Singh and the rivals for the kingdom,1 he attended the royal stillups, and later went to Bihār on being appointed to that $S\bar{u}ba$ And when before the second coronation 2 the fort of Chunai 3 was delivered from the hands of Saıyıd Abū Muhammad a servant of Sultān Shujā', he was appointed as the guardian of that fort, and in the 2nd year was iemoved 4 from that office Nothing further is known about him

KIRAT SINGH

(Vol III, pp 156-158)

He was the second son of Mirza Rāja Jai Singh When the seditious Mewās of Kāmā 5, Pahārī and Köh Mujāhid between Āgia and Shāhjahānābād troubled the residents and travellers in the tract, and the parganas were going to waste on account of their attacks and the fief holders were put into difficulty, Kirat Singh was, in the end of the 231d year of Shāh Jahān's reign, raised to the rank of 800 with 800 horse and the district in question was assigned to him as his fief and residence. An order was sent to the Mīrzā Rāja to exturpate the wicked crowd (the Mewās) and to plant his own men there in their stead The Rāja made the place his home and came with 4,000 cavalry and 6,000 musketeers and archers and proceeded to cut down the jungle He put many of the contumacious inhabitants to the sword and made prisoners of a large number of them A large quantity of cattle fell into his hands Those who escaped the sword were expelled The Rāja received the lank of 1,000 horse two-horse and three-horse, and the pargana Hāl Kalyān 6,

For details of the coronation see Sir Jadunath Sarkai, op cit, pp 613-624 3 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 349 The name of the fort is given as Chanada 4 Shujā' Khān was appointed his successor, see 'Ālamgīrnāma, p 418

6 This should be Châl Kalanah in Narnol Sarkai, see Jarrett's translation of Ā'īn, II, pp 97 and 194 See Maāthir ul-Umarā, III, p 573, where the revenue of Chāl Kalāna is mentioned as 70,000 dāms It was really much more, being over 7½ krors according to Jarrett, op cit, p 194 See also the article Kaliāna, Imperial Gazetteer, XIV, p 307 It is now in the Jind State

¹ Battle of Dharmat, 26th April, 1658, and the battles with his brothers in the War of Succession See Sir Jadunath Sarkar's History of Aurangzib, II, p 348-612, and Cambridge History of India, IV, pp 222-228
2 16th June, 1659 For details of the core

^{*} Snuja Man was appointed his successor, see Atamgirnama, p 416

5 The Kāmah of the Ā'īn, see Jarrett's translation, II, pp 96 and 195, Pahārī and Kōh Mujāhīd are also mentioned there They were in Sarkār Sahār and province of Āgra, see also Elhot's Supp Glossary, II, pp 102, 103 The Sarkār is sometimes called Pahārī For the Mewās or Meos see Imperial Gazetteer, XVII, p 313 Kāmā is the Kāman of the Imperial Gazetteer, XIV, p 325 It is now in the Bharatpūr State, and is 39 miles NW Mathurā In Khāfī Khān, I, p 701, mention is made of the attack upon the Mēwātīs by the Mīrzā Rāja Jai Singh's son who is there called Kēsarī Singh

the revenue of which was 80 lacs of dams, was assigned to him to pay for the increase Kirat Singh 1 also had an increase of rank and was made faujdār of Mēwāt

As the cypress of his talent grew by the stream of the Mīrzā Rāja and the plant of his intelligence was nourished in the garden of knowledge of that great man, his tact and skill soon became impressed on the mind of the King In the 28th year when the 10yal standards came to Amer he received the rank of 1,000 with 900 hoise and was sent off to guard the After the end of the 30th year when the buildings of Faidābād known as Mukhlispüi in pargana Muzaffarābād Sarkār Sahāranpūr² were nearly completed on the banks of the Jumnā near the northern hills -which are in the vicinity of the Sirmur hills—the King often visited that delightful place which was 47 kos from the Capital, Kīrat Singh was sent off to guard the environs of Shāhjahānābād When his father separated from the Sulaiman Shikoh, and was proceeding to join Aurangzīb, Kīrat Singh, who, after the battle with Dārā Shikōh, had gone to his home, joined his father and entered into service with him He received a flag and was sent off to put down the Mewat rebels time he was faujdār of the Metropolitan district Afterwards he did good service along with his father in conquering Siva's territory, and with 3.000 men erected batteries in front of the fortress of Purandhar 3

When Sivā submitted, and all the officers of the army received royal favours, Kirat Singh obtained the rank of 2,500 with 2,000 horse wards, when the Mīrzā Rāja went off to attack Bījāpūr, and the Iltimish was under Kırat Sıngh's charge, he fought bravely with the Bijāpūris, and when the Mīrzā Rāja died in Burhānpūr, he came to the Court and received drums, and the rank of 3,000 with 2,500 horse He again joined the Deccan auxiliaries and spent a long time in that country 16th year, 1084 A H (1673 A D) he died 4

(Rāja) Kishan Singh 5 Bhadāwariya

(Vol II, pp 228-230)

Bhadāwar is a tract three kos from Agia, and the inhabitants of this area receive their name from it. This tribe is bold and undaunted, and formerly it was turbulent Akbar had the head of the tribe trodden under the feet of elephants 6 After this they were always law-abiding

¹ It is mentioned in Elliot's Supp Glossary, II, p 103, that Kīrat Singh got the parganas of Sarkār Sahār m fief from Shāh Jahān

² Sarāngpūr given in a note as a variant is incorrect

³ Purandar of the Cambridge History of India, IV, p 254, is famous for the masterly campaign of Rāja Jai Singh against Shivājī in 1665. It is now a military sanatorium in Poona district, see Imperial Gazetteer, XX, pp 396, 397.

⁴ Maāthir-i-Ālamgīrī, p 128. According to Tod, Annals and Antiquities of Rajasthan (1914 edn.) II, p 288, Kirat Singh poisoned his father at the instigation. of Aurangzib, and was rewarded by the gift of the district of Kamah See, however, Sir Jadunath Sarkar's History of Aurangzib, IV, pp 128, 129, where the death of Jai Singh and his character are discussed in detail in the Text 6 The only reference to the expedition against the tribe in Albarnāma is in Vol II, text, p 78, Beveridge's translation, pp 119-120, where Adham Khān is stated to have been appointed to subdue the country and punish the seditious tribe and did service In the time of the said King, Muktaman Bhadawariya was the head of the tribe and held the rank of 1,000 In the time of Jahāngīr the chief was Rāja Bikramājīt who accompanied 'Abdullāh Khān in the campaign against the Rānā and afterwards was appointed to the Deccan He died in the 11th year and his son Bhōj came from the Deccan and did homage In Shah Jahan's time the chief was Kishan He in the 1st year served with Mahābat Khān in the affan of Jujhar Singh, and in the 3rd year he was sent off with Shayista Khan to devastate the country of Nızām-ul-Mulk who had given protection to Khān Jahān Lōdī In the 6th year he did good service in the siege of Daulatābād, and in the 9th he went with Khān Zamān to punish Šāhū Bhonsle In the 17th year corresponding to 1053 AH (1643 AD) As he had no son except one by a concubine, Badan Singh his uncle's grandson received a robe of honour, and was granted the rank In the 21st year he of 1,000 with 1,000 horse and the title of Raja had one day gone to pay his respects at the Darshan (the King appearing in the Jharoka) when suddenly a mast elephant ran at him and printed one of his retainers under his tusks The Raja boldly struck the elephant with his dagger and as a fireball 1 (char khī) was discharged at the same time, the Raja escaped injury and his retainer was released The Raja was rewarded by the gift of a 10be of honour, and the 1emission of Rs 50,000 out of a pēshkash (tubute) of two lacs of rupees which he had agreed to pay when he was confirmed in his chiefship. In the 22nd year he had an increase of 500 and went off in attendance of Prince Muhammad Aurangzīb Bahādui to the Qandahāi campaign In the 25th year he again accompanied the said Prince, and in the 26th year he was sent with Prince Dara Shikoh on the same expedition. In the 27th year he died His son Mahā Singh attained the rank of 1,000 with 800 horse and was granted the title of Raja, and the gift of a horse 28th year he was appointed to Kābul, and in the 31st year he had the rank of 1,000 with 1,000 hoise Afterwards, when Aurangzīb became victorious, and Dārā Shikōh was defeated, the Rāja entered the Emperor 5 service, and in the 1st year of his leign he went with Subkarn Bundela against Champat Bundela In the 10th year he did good service with Kamāl Khān in chastising the Yūsufza'ī tribe, and as a reward 500 of his troopers were made two-horse and three-horse He died in the 26th His son Udai Singh—who had already been in the King's service and a favourite and had been appointed to accompany the Mīrzā Rāja Jai Singh in the Deccan campaign—was in the 24th year made governor of the fort of Chittor On the death of his father he obtained the title of Rāja

⁵ See Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), pp 547, 548

KISHAN SINGH RĀTHÖR (Vol III, pp 150-152)

He was a half-brother ² of the well-known Rāja Sūraj Singh and fullbrother of the mother of Shāh Jahān By virtue of this great relationship, he, in the time of Jahangir, became an intimate courtier and rose to

¹ Blochmann, op cit, p 134 under Charkhī

^{2 &#}x27;allātī a half brother in Text, but Jahāngīr calls him his own or full brother, see Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk-i-Jahāngīrī, I, p 291 The biography of Sūraj Sing Rāthōr called Soor Sing by Tod—Annals and Antiquities of Rajasthan (1914 edn), II, p 29, 1s given in Maāthir-ul-Umarā, II, pp 179-183

a high position. He behaved treacherously and maliciously to his elder brother who was one of the pillars of the State —It happened that Göbind Dās Bhātī—who was Rāja Sūraj Singh's agent and manager—killed, on account of a quarrel, Gopal Das the Raja's brother a son As the Raja (Sūraj Singh) was very fond of him, he did not resort to vengeance for the murder Kishan Singh was annoyed at this indulgence, and lay in wait looking for an opportunity to avenge his nephew. In the 10th year of Jahangii, 1024 A H when the royal camp was at Ajmer, on a day when Jahangii visited the Pushkar lake, Kishan Singh got on horseback before morning with the intention of exacting retribution and came to the place where Raja Sūraj Singh was staying. He sent some of his tried men on foot to the quarters of Göbind Das, and they attacked a party of men who were on guard there. During the tumult Gobind Das awoke, and came out without previous warning from one side of the Kishan Singh's men-who were searching for him-killed him as soon as they saw him Kishan Singh, as he did not yet know what had happened, came on foot in great agitation and anger to the place, and though men warned him, it was of no use Meanwhile Raja Sūraj Singh also awoke and came out with a sword in his hand, and sent his men to oppose In the tumult, Kishan Singh and some of his men were The others got to their horses and escaped The Raja's men followed and a hot fight took place in front of the royal window (haroka) Whosoever's head was struck by the seimitar (shamsher), it was cut down to the waist, and whenever the swords $(t\bar{e}ahh\bar{a})$ of Indian steel reached the waist the body was divided into two Sixty-eight 1 Rajputs of the two parties displayed the devotion of their life. They say that from that day the scimitars of Suōhī² are held in respect, and are sought after Jahangii, after this catastrophe, divided his (Kishan Singh's) mansab among his sons and confirmed them in the possession of his native place of Kishangarh 3

LASHKAR KHĀN ⁴ (Vol III, pp 161-163)

His name was Muhammad Husain Khuiāsānī, and in the reign of Akbai he held the rank of 2,000 and was $M\bar{\imath}r$ $Ba\underline{k}hsh\bar{\imath}$, and $M\bar{\imath}i$ ' $Ard\bar{\imath}$ (Superintendent of petitions) In the 11th year he was removed from his office on account of charges brought against him by Muzaffai Khān Turbatī In the 16th year he insolently came in open daylight drunk to the $Darb\bar{a}i$ and created a disturbance When this was reported to the Emperor, he was, in spite of his high rank and connections, led round

¹ In Jahängīr's Memons, Rogers and Bevendge's translation, op cit, p 293, the number is given as 66, viz 30 on Rāja Sūraj Singh's side and 36 on Kishan Singh's Perhaps the author of the text has added Kishan Singh and his nephew Karan Tod, op cit, p 33, refers to the slaying of Govindas and ascribes it to the instigation of Shāh Jahān when a Prince, and puts it near the end of Jahāngīr's reign!

² Capital of the native state of that name It is 28 miles north of the Abū Road Station and 171 miles from Ajmēi (vide Imperial Gazetteer, XXIII, p 37) The manufacture of swords is still carried on there—See Jivine, Army of Indian Moghuls, p 77

³ Imperial Gazetteer, XV, p 317

⁴ See Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn), pp 446, 447, and Albarnama, Text II, p 364, Beveridge's translation, p 529

tied to a hoise's tail For some time he was imprisoned and then released He was appointed along with Mun'im Khān Khān-Khānān to take part in the conquest of Bihār and Bengāl In the battle with Dā'ūd Kararānī, who had laid a claim to those areas, he was in the centre and supported the Commander-in-Chief and was severely wounded Though his wounds healed, he, for want of care died in Bengal He was a man of wealth and had a thousand mounted servants of his own

The excessive punishments imposed by the Emperor may seem to savour of wrath, for the rule with wise kings—who regard capital punishment, etc as inseparable from their position—is to apportion chastisement according to the (rank of the) individual rebuke only by a stein glance or a frown, another they reprimand by a severe talk, another they punish by blows of the fist, while still another they chastise by the whip and the stick As some one has well said

Quatram

If it be necessary to punish some one, Tis wrong to chastise every one in equal measure O players on the instrument 1 of justice, Beat the drum with the fist, the flute with the breath.

But if we consider the idiosyncrasy of this pomp-loving man, the pumshment was just, for in spite of all his high rank he endured such contemptuous treatment and out of his meanness of spirit did not relinquish service Yet many servants of inferior rank, at a frown or a harsh expression, give up their lives so as to pieserve their honour, and so acquire undying fame

Reflection 2 (or Warning)

As the idiosynciasy of every person is distinctive, and moreover different people may have different notions of this idiosyncrasy, legal orders should not have reference to the personality but to the deed, and reward or punishment should be awarded accordingly

Verse

Each deed has its recompense and its retribution

LASHKAR KHĀN ABŪL HASAN MASHHADĪ (Vol III, pp 163-168)

At first he was the Dīvān of Prince Sultān Murād On his death he came back from the Deccan and entered the service of Prince Sultan

 $[\]frac{1}{2}$ $Q\bar{a}n\bar{u}n$ which has two meanings, a musical instrument and a canon or law The sentence is obscure, and seems to contradict what has been stated earlier on The author first says that Lashkar Khān's punishment was justified by his peculiar nature and behaviour which showed that he was thick-skinned, and then he seems to say that legal orders must deal with the fact and not the personality But the explanation is that Akbar's order was not one of the ahkām shar'īya, but a special order and an exception which proves the rule Certainly the tying to a horse's tail was not a legal punishment We are reminded of the punishment Akbar inflicted, when a boy, on some negligent dog-keepers, see Akbarnāma, Text I, p 318, Beveridge's translation, I, pp 590, 591

He did good service and this formed the foundation of his good When the Prince became King, Abul Hasan received the title of Lashkar Khan and was granted a high office For a while he was $D\bar{i}v\bar{a}n$ and $Bakhsh\bar{i}$ of Afghānistān, but as Khān Daurān the Governor there disliked him, he was summoned to the Court Afterwards he was commissioned to chastise the Afghans who were a stumbling-block to travellers between India and Kābul He did everything possible in the way of smiting and binding the lobbers and highwaymen, and so put things straight In the 14th year, when Jahangir paid his first visit (as King) to Kashmii, Lashkar Khān was granted a flag and drums, and entrusted to guard Agra 1 When the imperial aimy marched in company with Prince Parviz and under the leadership of Mahābat Khān in pursuit of Prince Shah Jahan, Lashkai Khan was sent as an auxiliary to the army 2 of the Deccan When the army reached Burhanpur, 'Adıl Shah the ruler of Bījāpūr made friends with Mahābat Khān on account of his enmity with Malik 'Ambar, and sent his general Mulla Muhammad Lārī with 5,000 hoise to Burhanpur 3 Mahabat Khan left Rao Ratan Sarbuland Rāi in charge of the city, and appointed Lashkar Khān with a number of other officers as his associates The control of affairs there was entrusted to Mulla Muhammad Mahabat Khan himself hastened off with Prince Parvīz to Allahābād Malık 'Ambar, who was waiting for the opportunity, proceeded to Bījāpūr and besieged it 'Adıl Shāh engaged in strengthening the walls and fortifications and sent off couriers to summon He also wrote to Mahābat Khān that he hoped for Mulla Muhammad his assistance in return for his loyalty, and he sent three lacs of huns, which are about twelve lacs of rupees, for the expenses of the army accordance with a letter from Mahabat Khan, Lashkar Khan left Saibuland Rāi with a few men in the city and marched as the auxiliary of Mullā Muhammad to extirpate Malik 'Ambai Malik 'Ambai heard of this and wrote to Lashkar Khan that he had not behaved presumptuously to the King's servants, and asked why he was to be ill-treated There had long been a boundary dispute between him and 'Adıl Shah, and he asked that he might be allowed to settle matters with his adversary Whatever was fated would happen No answer was returned and the troops marched on to the neighbourhood of Bijāpūr Malık 'Ambar was obliged to raise the siege and to proceed to his own territory Mulla Muhammad followed him In proportion as Malik 'Ambai showed a disposition to surrender, and to behave humbly, Mulla Muhammadbelieving that Malik 'Ambar was weak and in distress-increased his aceibity and hostility When the situation for Malik 'Ambar became critical and he was hard pressed, he was obliged to fight at the stage of Bhātūrī,4 five kos from Ahmadnagar It happened that Mullā Muhammad was killed, and 'Adıl Shāh's forces were thrown into confusion Jādū Rāi and Ūdā Rām on the King's side did not exert themselves in the

¹ Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk-1 Jahāngīrī, II, p 81 it is stated that he was promoted to the mansab of 3 000 personal and 2,000 horse, also see p 102

Rogers and Beveridge, II, p 197
 For a detailed account see Beni Prasad, History of Jahangu, pp 379-383 ⁴ In Iqbālnāma 1-Jahāngīvī, p 236, the name of the place is not mentioned, but it is stated that it was a distance of 5 los from Ahmadnagar See also Khāfī Khān, I p 348, and Beveridge's translation of Maathir-ul-Umara, p 269, note 3 battle but fled Ikhlas Khan and others to the number of twenty-five officers, who were the mainstay of 'Adıl Shāh's power, were made prisoners Malık 'Ambar put to death Farhād Khān out of their number, as he was after Malık 'Ambar's life Lashkar Khān and forty mansabdāns, among whom were Mīrzā Manūchehi and 'Aqīdat Khān weie made pilsoneis and were for a time imprisoned and fettered in the fort of Daulatābād After Sultān Parvīz's death, when Khān Jahān was entrusted with the government of the Deccan, Lashkar Khān and the other officers were released and came to Burhanpui After Shah Jahan ascended the throne he had regard for Lashkar's Khān's earlier services—Lashkar Khān had lent him 10 ¹ lacs when he was a Pince—and paid ² him the amount—and increased his rank by 2,000 personal and horse, so that his rank became 5,000 with 4,000 horse. He was also appointed ³ governor of Afghānistān in place of Khwāja Abūl Hasan Turbatī. It happened that before he entered upon this office, Nadhr Muhammad Khān the ruler of Balkh and Badkhshān, out of his short-sighted view, and the thought that the death of Jahāngīr was an opportunity, led a large army into Afghānistān, and arrived near the city of Kābul Lashkar Khān did not wait for the reinforcements which Mahābat Khān was directed to bring, but marched on rapidly When he came to Bāiīk Āb twelve kos from the city, Nadhr Muhammad laised the siege and came forward to fight Lashkar Khān advanced to meet him, and when Nadhi Muhammad saw that Lashkar Khan's aimy was coming on with great boldness, and that the mercenary servants who would help him in a difficulty were few, he did not think it advantageous to engage, and on 9 Muharram, 1038 A H turned his iein He traversed the heights and hollows—which he had formerly taken a month to travel through—in four 4 days and reached Lashkai Khān entered Kābul and rejoiced the citizens who had been afflicted by the plundering of the Uzbegs He sent troops wherever they were required, and drove off the raiders ⁵ But as the inhabitants of the province were Hanafis and were opposed to Lashkar Khān on account of his religion, he was removed from there in the 4th year 6 In the 5th year he was appointed in place of Mahābat Khān to take charge of Delhi, but as on account of his great age he could not render proper service, he, in the 6th year, entered the list of those who pray for success (of the reigning Sovereign) He and his sons paid their respects

Though the Bādshāhnāma 7 does not give any reason for his retirement except old age, yet it appears that he had not attained to such an age as to be unfit for service But for some reason he was not in favour with the Sovereign They say, that after his resignation he resolved to go for pilgrimage After he had visited the shrines and had spent large

¹ According to Rogers and Beveridge, II, p 250, Shāh Jahān entered Lashkar Khān's house and seized Rs 9,00,000 in the 17th year of Jahāngīr's leign

² Bādshāhnāma, I, p 189

³ See Banarsı Prasad, History of Shahyahan, pp 185, 186

⁴ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 214 Sa'd Ullāh made a rapid journey from Kābul to Balkh in 1056 A H, but he took 11 days, id, II, p 564 He, however, returned in four days, id, II, p 584

5 There is a long account of Nadhr Muhammad's invasion and of Lashkar Khān's victory in the Bādshāhnāma, I, p 206, etc The chronogram was Lashkar Fath or Lashkar's victory = 1038 (id, p 215)

6 See Banarsi Prasad, op cit, p 295

⁷ Bādshāhnāma, I, p 472

sums of money there, he went to his native country, and became a sweeper of the holy threshold (of Mashhad) He founded Serā'is there, and bought many properties And there he died His sons remained in India His eldest son was Sazāwār Khān, of whom an account 1 is given in this Another son was Mīrzā Lutf Ullāh He was a Sunnī and became Bakhshī of the Deccan One night when travelling in his palanguin someone suddenly attacked him with a dagger and killed him, and ran away It was never known as to who he was Lashkar Khān's son-ın-law Bābā Mījak distinguished himself in Jahāngīr's time in the hills of the Kāngra When Prince Shāh Jahān besieged Burhānpūr Bābā Mīrak was with Rāo Ratan One day when Shāh Qulī Khān 2 entered the city, he fought and was killed His son Latif Mirak ended his life in governing the forts of Anki 3 Tanki in the Deccan Outside the walls he had made a small garden and erected his tomb, and there he was buried

LASHKAR KHĀN, otherwise JĀN NIKHĀR KHĀN 4

(Vol III, pp 168–171)

His name was Yādgār Bēg and he was the son of Zabardast Khān 5 a Wālā-Shāhī (belonging to the bodyguard) of Shāh Jahān He became known in his father's lifetime, and did good service. In the 19th year his rank was 1,000 with 200 horse and he was superintendent of the mace-bearers and of the $naqd\bar{i}$ officers In the same year he got an increase of 500 with 300 horse, and was honoured by the grant of the title of Jan There was always friendship between the house of Tīmūr and the great sovereigns of the Safavī family, and the exchange of letters and messages and present was customary with them, but in the end of his reign Shāh Safī became annoyed about the affaii of Qandahār and severed the chain of old affection When he died, Shāh Jahān did not like that old relations should be altogether lost, and in the same year appointed Jān Nithār Khān as ambassador 6 to Persia He gave him and his companions two years' pay and sent them off with presents worth three and a half lacs of rupees, and a letter of condolence on Shah Safi's death and of congratulations on the accession of Shāh 'Abbās II, the son and successor of Shāh Safī He also apologized for the coming to India of 'Alī Mardān Khān, who had not left (Qandahār) for any ambitious reasons or from a desire to enter service, but had been obliged to withdraw on account of the machinations of envious persons Jän Nıthār Khān returned towards the end of the 21st year, and received the rank of 2,000 with 700 horse and the office of Master of the Horse In the 23rd year he was made Mīr Tuzuk, and in the 24th year he became 2nd Bakhshī in place of Sivadat Khan In the 25th year he had an increase of 500

Maāthu-ul-Umarā, II, pp 438-441
 Also called Muhammad Taqī, the Sīmsāz, see Maāthu ul-Umarā, II, p 210
 Bādshāhnāma, I, pt 2, p 165 These were 18 los from Daulatābād, Elliot, ⁴ He should not be confused with Kamāl-ud-Dīn Jān Nithār Khān of Maāthu - ul-Umarā, I, pp 527-529

Maāthir-ul-Umarā, II, pp 372, 373

Bādshāhnāma II pp 492 493, Khāfī Khān, I, p 620

Bādshāhnāma, II, pp 493-500, Banarsi Prasad, History of Shahjahan, pp 221, with 300 hoise, and received the title of Lashkai Khān In the 26th year his rank was 3,000 with 1,000 horse and he was appointed Bakhshī of Prince Dārā Shikōh's army when it was sent on the Qandahār expedi-In the 27th year he was summoned to the Presence from Multan and appointed, as formerly, to the post of 2nd $Ba\underline{k}hsh\overline{i}$, in succession to Irādat Khān In the 29th year certain facts came out, which indicated a want of honesty on his pait It appeared that in the Bakhshī department he had opened the hand of covetousness and committed embezzle-He was removed from office and his rank was reduced by 500 After that he was appointed to chastise the seditious elements in Hisar In the 31st year, on the death of 'Alī Mardān Khān Amīr-ul-Umaiā he was appointed governoi of Kashmīr and received an increase In the beginning of Aurangzīb's reign a robe of honour was sent to him and his rank was increased by 500, and 500 horse, so that he held the rank of 3,000 with 2,500 horse He was nominated governor of Multan, and in the 3rd year he was made governor of Sindh in succession Later he was appointed governor of Bihār to Qubād Khān 11th year he became governor of Multan in succession to Tahir Khan and in the 13th was appointed Mir Bakhshi on the death of Danishmand He then had an increase of 1,000 with 1,000 horse, and his rank became 5,000 with 3,000 horse In the end of the same year, 1081 A H (1671 AD) he died None of his sons reached eminence His daughter was mailied to Lutf Ullah Khan 2 the son of Sa'd Ullah Khan

(Rukn-ud-Daula Saiyid) Lashkar Khān Bahādur Nasīr Jang (Vol II, pp 359-361)

His name was Mīi Ismā'īl and his ancestois came from Sirpul near His lineage goes back to Mīr Saiyid 'Ali Dīvānah whose shrine in a village of the Panjāb is greatly respected, and who was a descendant of Shāh Nı'mat Ullāh Valī Hıs uncle Saıyıd Hāshım Khān was ın the royal service As the father of Mīn Ismā'īl died at an early age, Hāshim Khān brought him up He became a servant among the 'Servants of the Special Brotherhood' which is a phrase for the Mughal Mansabdars, and received the title of Musāfii Khān In the 1st year of Muhammad Shāh's reign in the battle with 'Ālam 'Alī Khān 3 he in company with Nızām-ul-Mulk distinguished himself and overcame his opponents with Afterwards when Nizām-ul-Mulk at the summons of the sword Muhammad Shāh 4 came to the Court, he described his bravery to the Accordingly, he was made faujdār of Attock Afterwards he resigned that post, and went to the Deccan to the Nizām-ul-Mulk and was made Bakhshī of Sāyar Sarkār (the customs) and given the title of Saıyıd Lashkar Khān For a time he was employed in the settlement of Rājbandarī in Farkhundābunyād (Haidarābād) For a long time he

¹ Maāthur-r-ʿĀlamgīrī, p 105
2 For his life see Maāthur-ul-Umarā, III, p 171-177
3 'Ālam Alī Khān the nephew of Saiyid brothers of Bāiah opposed Nizāmul-Mulk Āsāf Jah in the Deccan, and the battle took place close to Bālāpūr town in the Akōla District on 10th August, 1720 See Sn Jadunath Sarkai's edition of

Irvine's Later Mughals, II, pp 47-49
4 Khāfī Khān, II, p 939 and Irvine, loc cit, p 106

was governor of the province of Aurangābād Later he accompanied Nızām-ul-Mulk to Upper India, and did good service during the time of When the disturbance of Bājī Rāo, the general of Rāja Nādu Shāh Sāhū Bhonsle, which took place in the Deccan led to the battle with Nāsır Jang the Martyi, and the Rāo having received a severe chastisement died shortly afterwards, Ismā'il, at the request of (Nizām-ul-Mulk) Bahadur, went and offered consolation to the brother and son of the deceased and established condial relations. He again went to Upper India with the said Bahadui and returned to the Decean in 1153 After the death of Nasīi-ud-Daula he was appointed as the Deputy Governor of Aulangabad, and had the rank of 4,000 with 2,000 horse and was given the title of Bahadur and the gift of a flag and a In the time of Nasir Jang the Martyi, he received the title of After the battle of Pondicherry he again became Governor In the time of Salabat Jang 3 his rank became 6,000 of Aurangābād with 6,000 hoise, and he had the title of Rukn-ud-Daula, and was made On resignation from this office he became Governor the Prime Minister of Berār, and when that post was given to Nizām-ud-Daula Āsaf Jāh he was appointed to the charge of Aurangābād He died in 1170 A H (1757 A D) He was distinguished for his good nature and his observance of the religious laws He honoured the learned and the poor very charitable, and was well acquainted with administrative work. But he was less experienced in financial matters He left some daughters His cousins Saiyid 'Āiif Khān and Saiyid Zaiīf Khān came to him from Lāhōre, and he behaved kindly to both of them He gave one of his daughters (in marriage) to Mīr Jumla younger son of Zarīf Khān time of writing he (Mii Jumla) has the rank of 5,000 with 5,000 horse and the title of 'Azīm-ud-Daula Nasīr Jang Bahādur, and is in charge of Aurangābād and the management of the estates of Nızām-ud-Daula Asaf Jah in that province, and is an object of favour with the said Nizām-His elder brother Raf'at-ud-Daula Bahādur Zōrāwar Jang was for a long time the Bakhshī of the Mughal Risāla (cavality) in the Nızām-ud-Daula's service At present he is the Deputy Governor of His rank is 5,000 He is a bold and sincere man Nāndēr

(Rāi) Lūnkarn Kachwāha 4

(Vol II, pp 116, 117)

He was a Shaikhāwat, and his estate was in the pargana of Sāmbhar. He entered the service of Akbar and was kindly received In the 21st, year he was appointed along with Kunwar Man Singh against the Rana.

⁴ See Blochmann's translation of \bar{A} 'in, I (2nd edn.), p. 554, under "Rāy For the derivation of his name see Beveridge's translation of Albarnama, III, p 295, note 4

¹ See Kıncaıd and Parasanıs, History of the Maratha People, p 270, and Cambridge History of India, IV, p 383 Bājī Rāo died on 25th April, 1740 ² For his biography see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, III, pp 848-862 He was killed by Himmat-Khān the Pathān chief of Kurnool on 16th December, 1750

³ His full title was Āsaf-ud-Daula Zafar Jang Amīr-ul-Mamālik For his biography see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, I, pp 368, 369, Beveridge's translation pp 279, 280 Lashkar Khān is mentioned as having been made the Prime Minister after Rāja Rughnāth Dās was killed and in the same year he went with Raja Bīrbar 1 (Bīrbal) to bring the daughter of the Rājā of Dōngarpūr whom the latter wanted to be admitted in the royal haiem In the 22nd year he came with hei, and offered his submission to the sovereign In the 24th year he went off with Rāja Todar Mal to chastise the rebels of the Eastern districts In the 28th vear he was sent off to Gujarāt along with Mīrzā Khān son of Bairām His son was Rāī Manōhar who was liked and cherished by Akbar In the 22nd year, when Akbar was at Amber, Manohar represented 2 that there was an old city in that neighbourhood, of which nothing remained but heaps of earth The Emperor applied himself to rebuilding it and several officers were appointed to look after this project. In a short time it was completed As the Zamīndārī belonged to Lünkaran, ıt was called Mūl Manōhainagar

When Muzaffai Husain Mīrzā fled, and no Amīr offered to pursue him, the Emperor sent Manohar along with Rai Duiga Sal in the 45th year to follow him Though Khwāja Waisī had seized the Mīrzā, they also joined near Sultānpūr After Akbar's death, Manōhar was an object of favour with Jahāngīr, and in the first year 3 he was sent off along with Sultān Parvīz to punish Rānā Amai Singh In the 2nd year his rank was 1,000 with 560 horse ⁴ He was long attached to the Decean $S\bar{u}ba$ In the 11th year he died ⁵ His son attained the rank of 500 with 300 horse Manōhar wrote poeti y and Tausanī 6 was his pen-name This verse is his

Verse

Learn from the eyes to be separate and united, For the two eyes are distinct, and yet do not see separately

His two brothers Isar Däs and Sānval Dās left children.

LUTF ULLAH KHAN.

(Vol III, pp 171–177)

He was the eldest 7 son of Sa'd Ullah Khan Jumalat-ul-Mulk whose noble qualities will remain famous for ages When that famous Vazīr died in the beginning of Shāh Jahān's 30th year, Lutf Ullāh Khān was eleven years old He received the rank of 700 with 100 hoise and was the subject of royal favours When the reins of power fell into the hands of Aurangzib, he was graciously treated on account of his father's having had a closer connection with Aurangzīb than with the other princes, and

¹ See Albarnama, Text III, pp 196, 210, Beveridge's translation III, pp 278, 295

² Akbarnāma, Text III, p 221, Beveridge's translation III, p 311, note 1 Manōharnagar is now known as Manōharpūr, and is situated 28 miles N E of Jaipūr, see Imperial Gazetteer, XVII, p 200

3 See Rogers and Beveridge's translation of Tūzuk-i Jahāngīrī, I, p 17

⁴ In Rogers and Beveridge, op cit, p 112, his rank is given as 1,000 and 600

⁵ Rogers and Beveridge, op cit, p 321

Tausnī means a spirited horse, see Muntakhab-ut-Tawārīkh, Text III, p 201

His mother was daughter of Karīm Dād son of Jalāl-ud-Dīn Raushanī

Tausnī means a spirited horse, see Muntakhab-ut-Tawārīkh, Text III, p 201 Karīm Dād was executed in 1047 AH (1637-38 AD), see Maāthir-ul-Umarā, II, p 248.

received the rank of 1,000 with 400 horse. He was continually cherished by Aurangzib and received accessions of rank There were few of the higher daroahaships (superintendencies) which he did not fill 12th year he was appointed in charge of the Dak charki (Post Office) in the room of 'Aqil khan In the 13th year he was made Superintendent if of the office of the Revision of Petitions in place of Haii Ahmad Sa'id i Khān In the 14th year he was married to the daughter of Lashkar Khān Mīt Bakhshī, who had died earlier. In the 19th year after the King's return from Hasan Abdal to Lahore he was, in succession to Faid Ullah Khan made the Darogha of the elephant-stables In the 21st year he was, on the death of Shaikh 'Abdul Azīz Akbaiābādī again made Reviser of Petitions In the same year he was honoured among his peers by being allowed to enter the fort in his palangum. In the 23rd vear the government of Lahore was entrusted to Prince Muhammad A'zam in succession to Qiwām-ud-Din Khān, and Lutf Ullāh Khān was made the Prince's deputy. Next year he came to the Court and was made Superintendent of the Ghuslkhana in succession to 'Abd-ui-Rahim In the 25th year he was made Wagi'a Khuan (Recorder) in the room of Kāmgāi khān Next year he was superintendent of the Jilau Khāss (Special stables) and of the Chaukī Khāss (Special guards)

As the abilities of Lutf Ullah khan were well known and he possessed all kinds of excellences he impressed all with his courage during the siege Especially was this so on that midnight when the besieged fell upon the royal battery (damdama)—which had been carried up to the level of the battlements—and spiked the cannon Saivid Izzat Khān the Chief of the artillery together with Sarbarah Khan disciple of Jalal were made prisoners 1 Lutf Ullah khan with a body of the special guards (Chaukī Khāss) had been appointed to guard the battery, and for three days he brayely maintained himself in the middle of the river which is at the foot of the fort, till another body of troops arrived and drove off the enemy and secured the battery The Khan had his rank increased 2 As his courage had been tested he was sent 3 in the 34th year to the thana of Kahta on to chastise the robbers (the Mahiattas) the following year he was again appointed to superintend the Post department in succession to Salabat Khan In the same year his rank was reduced 4 on account of some error, but after a time he was restored In the 39th year he was made Master of the Horse in succession to Saf Shikan Khān and in succession to Khānazād Khān was made the Dārōaha of the Khāss-Chaukī In the 43rd year his rank was 3,000 with 2,000 horse and he was given drums, and appointed to the government In the 45th year he was removed from this office, and had an increase of 500 horse and appointed to the government of Aurangābād In the 46th year that government was, after the taking of the fortress of Khēlnā given to Prince Bīdār Bakht, and Khān Fīrūz Jang was ordered to come from Berar and to take charge of the royal encampment Ullah Khan, who was the brother-in-law of Firuz Jang was made the Deputy Governor of the province The Khān died 5 before he reached the

¹ Maāthir i-Ālamgīrī p 291 2 In Maāthir i-Ālamgīrī p 303, it is stated that his rank was 2,000 with 1 000 horse and that he had an increase of 200 horse

^{3,4} Maāthur-1-'Ālamgīrī, pp 337-341 5 Maāthur-1-'Ālamgīrī, p 461 district, in the year 1114 A H (1702-3 A D) He possessed talents and courage and repeatedly distinguished himself and ought to have had higher promotions, but perhaps some levities and other defects in his disposition prevented this

It is well known that one day the King was reading a report which contained some secret information Before the King had spoken of it, the contents were reported to him, and an inquiry was made as to how they had been divulged At last the King correctly and with conviction said that Lutf Ullāh Khān must have done this Afterwards it became known that the Khān had from behind (Amangzīb) understood (read) the whole of the report and mentioned it to other people Accordingly he was for some days excluded from the private audience He used unfamiliai expressions and words, which required a dictionary to explain His artificial phiases and his difficult compounds are famous His son Muhammad Khalil 'Ināyat Khan was for some time governor of Burhānpūr He had a military frame of mind and was also of a literary turn (mīrzā manish) He was not without ability in the composition of Hindī melodies In the battle of Jājau, which took place between Shāh 'Alam and Muhammad A'zam Shāh for the sovereignty of India, he was with Jahāndār Shah Mu'izz-ud-Dīn's army When the Bārah Saivids, who were few in number in the van and were hotly engaged, Ināyat Khān came to then aid When it appeared that the enemy were getting the better of the fight, he alighted from his elephant Nūr-ud-Dīn 'Alī Khān the brother of Hasan 'Alī Khān and Husam 'Alī Khān saw this and said to their biethien that it would be a shame if a Shaikhzāda carried off the palm Saying this, they also alighted from their elephants, and encountered Aman Ullah Khan, Saiyid Aütad Muhammad, Ibrāhīm Bēg Basrī and other old servants of Muhammad A'zam Shāh, who since long were well known for courage and bravery A severe fight took place 'Ināyat Khān received several grievous wounds and fell on the ground A breath of life remained, but he soon Bahādui Shāh gave him the name of 'Ināyat Khān the Martyr, and looked after his sons, who were of tender age In the reign of Muhammad Shāh at the time when Nawwāb Āsaf Jāh Nizām-ul-Mulk came from the Deccan to the Capital and became Vazīi on the death of Muhammad Amīn Khān, he married the daughter of the martyred Khān She was his cousin (daughter of maternal uncle) and received the name This connection led to Lutf Ullah's sons becoming the of Sāhib Bēgam recipients of fresh favours Hafiz-ud-Din and Muhammad Sa'id Khān, who were her full brothers, came to the Deccan by the favour of Asaf Jāh and after the battle 2 with Mubāriz Khān each was appointed to a lucrative faujdārship, and were given drums, etc Afterwards Hafīz-ud-Dīn became Deputy Governor of Burhānpūr When in 1150 A H (1737 A D) Āsaf Jāh went again to the Capital, he took both the brothers with him They liked staying in Delhī and did not return with him, but entered the service of the King Both had distinguished qualities,

¹ Battle of Jajau 18th June, 1707, see Su Jadunath Sarkar's edition of Irvine's

Later Mughals, I, pp 25-34

² Battle of Shakar Khēra or Shakar Khēlda some 80 miles from Aurangābād on 11th October, 1724, between 'Imād-ul-Mulk Mubāriz Khān and Nizām-ul-Mulk Asaf Jah, see Irvine, op cit, II, pp 145-150 especially Muhammad Sa'īd Khān Bahādui was a real aristociat (amīrzāda) Though they attained higher office than their father or grandfather they did not rise to the same position and influence. Two other brothers, Muhī-ud-Dīn Qulī Khān and Mu'īn-ud-Dīn Qulī Khān were in Delhī and were killed in the general massacre of Nādii Shāh 1

LUTF ULLAH KHAN SADIQ.

(Vol III, pp 177, 178)

One of the Ansārī Sharkhzādas His home was in Pānīpat came to the Court during the reign of Bahadui Shah and rose from a. low rank to that of an Amir He was censured in Jahandar Shah's reign and his home was confiscated On this account he sought to ion Muhammad Farrukh-siyar, and after the latter's victory he, along with Sarvid 'Abdullah Khan was appointed to administer the Capital ul-Mulk nominated him to the Dīvānī of the Khālsa The King had given this office to Chabla Ram Nagar, and on this account there was ill feeling between the King and his Vazīr Qutb-ul-Mulk said that as the Vazīr's first recommendation had not been accepted, it was evident 2 what his (Qutb-ul-Mulk's) position was At last the Khān's appointment was confirmed In Muhammad Shāh's reign he was made Khān-1-Sāmān and had the rank of 6,000, and the title of Shams-ud-Daula Bahādur Mutahawwar Jang After Nādu Shāh came, Lutf Ullāh did acts which were disapproved of and he was consequently censuled 3 He died in the reign of Ahmad Shāh The reason why he got the appellation of Sādiq ıs well known 4 Dıleı Dıl Khān was hıs brother He accompanied the Amīr-ul-Umarā and attained the rank of 3,000 Another brother was Shēr Afgan Khān He was faugdār of Kana near Allahābād Among his sons, 'Inayat Khan Rasikh and Shakir Khan received some promotion

¹ On 11th March, 1739, see Sir Jadunath Saikar in Irvine, op cit, II, pp 367-370, and Cambridge History of India, IV, p 361, where the date is 22nd March, the date in the former work is according to the Old Style

² Khāfī Khān, II, p 730

³ He was the governor of Delhī at the time of Nādir Shāh's invasion, and handed over the city without fighting to his agent. He was confirmed in his post of the governor by Nādii Shāh, see Sir Jadunath Sarkai's edition of Irune's Later Mughals, II. p. 362

⁴ Khāfī Khān from whom the above account is taken does not mention the reason, but perhaps it refers to the advice given by him to Farrukh-siyar to dismiss a number of the bodyguaid, op cit, p 769

Each issue bears, besides its issue number, a fascicle number indicating its place in the work and volume to which it belongs.

With the issue of this Notice all previous prices and price-lists are cancelled.

CALOUTTA,

1st January, 1941.

The publications or information about them are obtainable from the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal, No. 1, Park Street, Calcutta, or from the Society's Agents —

MESSRS. LUZAC & Co., 46, Great Russell Street, London, W.C.

M PAUL GEUTHNER, 13, Rue Jacob, Paris, VIe.

BUOHHANDLUNG OTTO HARRASSOWITZ, 14, Querstrasse, Leipzig.

MESSRS THACKER, SPINK & Co , LD., 3, Esplanade, East, Calcutta.

MESSRS THE MOORE COTTRELL SUBSCRIPTION AGENCIES, New York, USA

Residents of Europe should order from the Agents

When ordering direct from the Society the following rules should be observed —

Orders should be addressed to the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal and not to any Official by name or title

All Cheques, Money Orders, etc., should be made payable to the "Treasurer, Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal"

Orders for books should be accompanied by a full name and address, legibly written, and should be sent on a separate sheet of paper containing no other communication

In India, books are supplied by V -P.P.

CALCUTTA:—Published by the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal, 1 Park Street, and Printed by G E Bingham, Baptist Mission Press, 41A Lower Circular Road.

defeated Bir Singh, and when the latter took refuge in the fort of When Bir Singh made a Īrīj, Patr Dās proceeded to invest it breach in the wall of the fort and came out, the Rajah followed him, till at last he escaped into the jungle In the 47th year the Rajah came to court according to orders and kissed the sublime In the 49th 1 year he received the rank of 5000 and the threshold After the accession of Jahangir he title of Rajah Bikiamājīt was chief officer of the artillery and was ordered to collect 50,000 Fifteen parganas were assigned in tankhwāh artillerymen (?) When the disturbance caused by Mozaffar for the expenses Gujarati's sons 3 and the slaying of Yatīm Bahādur in Gujarat were reported, he was sent there with a large force, and an order was given that he should appoint officers, from among those who appeared before him at Ahmadabad, to the rank of yūzbāshī (centurion), or if they had held higher commands he was to report the circumstances in detail. The year of his death does not appear 4

(RAJAH) BIKRAMĀJĪT RAI RAYĀN

He was a brahman, and his name was Sundai ⁵ Dās He was a writer in the service of Prince Shah Jahan, and for his uprightness and zeal he was made Mīr Sāmān (major domo) On account of his high spirit and lofty nature he was raised from the pen to the sword. In the affair of the Rānā he attacked with a gallant army the country of the latter and devastated it, and killed many and made many prisoners. By his instrumentality the Rānā sub-

¹ Jahangirin the Tūzuk, p 9, speaks of having conferred the title on him His father, he says, had made him Rai Rayān He was to collect 50,000 artillerymen (topcīs) and 3000 guncarriages

² Cf Price's Jahangir, 28 The Tūzuk, p 10, does not mention the 15 parganas

³ The Tūzuk J speaks of one son, and of the death of Yatīm Bahādur in the first year See p 23 Yatīm is there called Pīm The Maasir has the variant Talīm There is no mention of Yūzbāshīs etc in the authentic Tūzuk Perhaps the permission to appoint yūzbāshīs was a consequence of the former order for collecting 50,000 gunners. The Mirāt Ahmadī lith, p 192, says Mozaffar Gujarati left two sons and two daugh ters

⁴ Jahangir, Tūzuk translation, p 104, speaks of a son named Kalyān whom he severely punished

⁵ He was a native of Bandhū, ie Bānda, in the Allahabad Division Tūzuk translation, 325

ed and waited upon the Prince In return for this good service undar Dās had an increase of rank, and the title of Rai Rayān 1 the Prince left for the first time for the business of the an he sent him along with $\bar{\mathrm{A}}$ fzal K to give counsel to Ibra-Ādīl Shāh of Bījāpūī He transacted that affair in a proper ner and obtained fifteen lacs of rupis of tribute of rupīs which 'Ādil Shah had given to himself he purchased oa a ruby weighing 7 $misq\bar{a}ls$, $5\frac{1}{2}$ surkhs, and which was valled for colour and water, and presented it to the Prince at ame of paying his respects. The Prince made it the head of wn present to his father, and the Rajah had an increase of rank the title of Rajah 1 Bikramājīt, which is the highest honour in When in the end 1026 (1617) Gujarat was assigned to the ce as his fief, the Rajah was appointed to the charge of it as leputy He led an army against the Jām and the Bihāia, who the principal landholders of the province The territory of the of these is bounded on one side by Sorath, and on the other The other is on the seashore and marches with the ocean Both landholders are men of substance, and who ever de s the properties is styled the Jām, and the Bihāra e they had never waited upon any king By the Rajah's dexby they became obedient, and did homage to Jahangir in nadabad ointed to take the fort of Kāngra, became treacherous and rebels, the Rajah was sent in the end of the 13th year with an y consisting of the Prince's servants, and also of Jahangir's, Shahbāz K Lodī and others, to take that inaccessible asylum, ch no Delhi sovereign had hitherto thrown his lasso over first addressed himself to the putting down of Sūraj Maler a short struggle he put him to flight, and won the forts of a and Maharī which was Sūraj Mal's residence. In reward this he was given drums. In the 16th year, 1029, 1620, he was to besiege Kāngra, the city of which is called Nagarkot. He ssed haid upon the besieged and in the beginning of 1030, 1621,

When Sūraj Mal, the son of Rajah Bāsū, who had been